LOCKED IN A DEATH GRAPPLE

Nearly 500,000 Men Participating In the Operations

THE BATTLE AT LIAOYANG

Desperate Fighting, In Which Total Casualties May Reach 20,000, Has Apparently Been of No Great Advantage to Either Side--Battle Now Said to Be Concentrated on Main Line Will Be History-Making, and Cannot Stop Short of Crushing Defeat of One Side or the Other In the Far Eastern War

London, Sept. 1.—The news-silence regarding the battle of Liaoyang—perhaps to be regarded as the most sanguinary in the history of warfare—which began with press dispatches direct from the battlefield late on Tuesday night, was broken by dispatches received yesterday saying that fighting had been resumed at dawn that morning and that the firing extended along the entire line, some seven miles in extent.

A dispatch from Liaoyang received late in the afternoon told of repeated bayonet advances on the road directly south of Liaoyang, where the Russians shelled the Japanese positions until 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the engagement, which was general throughout the south and southeast, narrowed to the main line. The cannonading continued until evening without advantage to either side.

The sudden termination of direct dispatches gave rise to the belief that communication had been cut north of Liaoyang, but it is officially stated from St. Petersburg that this is incorrect.

It is positively stated in St. Petersburg that the emperor had received yesterday afternoon a dispatch from Liaoyang, the contents of which, however, were not disclosed.

A Liaoyang dispatch filed at 5:21 p. m. yesterday said that the Japanese were getting around the Russian left flank, while a later dispatch stated that the Russians had effected an advance along the railway to the southward, from which direction the Russians retreated before the battle of Liaoyang was begun.

Reports reaching St. Petersburg are to the effect that the results so far have been favorable to the Russians.

A dispatch from Tokio, filed at 11 o'clock this morning, says: The battle of Liaoyang is progressing without appreciable result. Official Japanese dispatches sent out late yesterday say that neither contestant has realized any visible results.

The dispatches estimate the Japanese force at about 240,000 men and the Russian at from 170,000 to 200,000 men, with from 600 to 1000 guns engaged on each side.

It is thought at St. Petersburg that in view of the numbers engaged, the desperateness of the assaults and the length of the line, about seven miles, the losses in the two days' fighting cannot fall short of 10,000 on each side. Both sides are straining every nerve, realizing that the fortunes of war for a whole year are in the scale, and neither side is in the mood or the position to spare men in the effort to achieve a final victory.

One of the surprising phases of the situation is the endurance of the men. They have been fighting desperately for two days after more or less severe fighting under unfavorable conditions every day since Aug. 24. It would seem that human endurance could not persist much longer without respite of some sort.

Suspense at St Petersburg

St. Petersburg, Sept. 1.—With the knowledge that the Russian and Japanese armies about Liaoyang are locked in a death struggle, the tension in St. Petersburg is strained to the utmost. It is believed here that the fight cannot stop short of the crushing defeat of one side or the other.

All reports so far are favorable to the Russians, though the suspension of all news for many hours has been exceedingly trying and has given rise to several rumors, somewhat tempering the earlier enthusiasm.

It is stated officially, however, that the report that the railway and the telegraph have been cut north of Liaoyang is untrue.

For England to Consider

Berlin, Sept. 1.—A military writer in The Neueste Nachriethen, in summarizing the Russian mobilization of troops, points out that for every infantry division sent to the far east another will be mobilized in European Russia and that the men under arms there still outnumber the army of any other European state. He calls attention to the mobilization of four corps in central Asia and to the strengthening of boundary fortifications and says that these measures should not be disregarded in England.

San Francisco, Sept. 1.—Over $60,000,000 of new coinage of Philippine gold is on board the army transport Thomas, which sailed for Manila today.

Labor Day Outing.

The members of Clan McGregor, Quincy, are making great preparations for the Labor day outing of the Scottish clans to be held at Caledonian grove, West Roxbury. This is the occasion par excellence for the Scots of the metropolitan district, when seventeen clans meet to renew acquaintance and indulge in the pastimes of the heatherland. The festivities of the day will be inaugurated by a parade of the kilted clansmen and the entire remainder be spent at the grove in athletic contests and picnicing.

Unusual interest has been manifested by the clansmen in this year's event, each of the participating clans competing in an effort to have the largest representation. Since the organization of the Massachusetts' Highland Dress Association an interest in the wearing of the picturesque national costume of Scotland has been awakened and it is expected that the display of kilts and tartans will be unsurpassed. Three prizes are offered for the best dressed highlander and this stimulus is bound to bring the highlanders in their best array.

Never in the history of the clans has such a lengthy and varied program of games been arranged. In all there are 38 events, 16 of which are confined to members of the organization and 22 of which are open to the professionals of the world. The event which is exciting the greatest interest among the clansmen is the tug of war between six men teams. Clan Cameron of East Boston took first money last year and they are the ruling favorites for the Labor day pull. The big event in the open contests is the three-mile race which is down to start at 5 o'clock.

These are the officers of the association: President, John Rule of Clan Stewart, Charlestown; Vice President, James D. McQuarrie of Clan Malcolm, Dorchester; Secretary, George A. McCormack of Clan Farquharson, South Boston; Treasurer, William J. Hamilton of Clan McLean, Lynn; assistant Secretary and Clerk of the Ring, Francis Morrison of Clan McGregor, Quincy.

Insured for $2,000,000

L. Rodman Wanamaker, son of John Wanamaker, the eminent merchant of New York and Philadelphia, has taken out a policy in for $1,000,000, paying an annual premium of over $30,000. This makes him the most heavily insured man in the world, with the single exception of King Edward VII.

Mr. Wanamaker's total insurance is now $2,000,000.

Ask yourself WHY Mr. Wanamaker placed one-half this great amount with The Prudential.

Your business judgment will at once reply: "Because after full investigation and comparison, Mr. Wanamaker found that the company which could give him the best insurance for a given amount of money was The Prudential."

Undoubtedly you will agree that Mr. Wanamaker does not pay over $30,000 per year except for most excellent reasons.

These reasons apply to YOU precisely as well as they do to HIM.

ONE MORE GAME.

South Quincys and Merrymounts to Play Labor Day.

Owing to the closeness of last Saturday's game at South Quincy and the great rivalry between the two teams, South Quincys and Merrymounts will meet once more at Merrymount park on Labor day, Monday, Sept. 5th, at 10 A. M.

Earlier in the season, the Merrymounts defeated, Cornish Atlantics in two games—the Quincys and St. Marys. South Quincys defeated Cunniffs Atlantics, the Quincys in two games and the St. Marys. This left Merrymounts and South Quincys to fight for the championship of the city. In the first game, Aug. 13, Merrymounts had a bad day and South Quincys easily won, but last Saturday, South Quincys had their hands full in defeating Merrymounts, 2 to 1.

The game arranged for Labor day is at the request of several of Quincys' base ball enthusiasts. The rivalry between the teams is so great and both teams are playing such fast ball, Monday's game bids fair to be the hottest contest of the season.

Bart MacLane will officiate as umpire, and the following is a list of the players:

MIMIC WAR.

Army Manœuvres at Manassas Next Week.

By Sunday night 6979 of New England's Volunteer militia and national guard will be on the historic battlefield of Bull Run to participate in the army manœuvres in which regulars and volunteers will take part. The object is to give the men a lesson in the art of war.

The 5th Mass. infantry will be in the first brigade of the first division. Battery A. of Mass. will also be in the same division, while 8th and 9th Mass. infantry will be in the second division. Capt. Henry L. Kincalde of Quincy Adj., and Capt. Henry L. Dearing of Braintree, surgeon, who are on the staff of Col. William H. Oakes, will be among those to take part.

The 5th regiment will leave Boston Saturday morning at 9.05.

MILTON.

Milton people in general are very much pleased to hear that Rev. Theodore I. Reese has decided not to accept the call to Lynn, but will remain in Milton.

Paul H. Dudley and family have returned from Provincetown.

IT WAS THE JANITOR

Gentleman from Athol Well Entertained.

The gentleman from Athol came into town unannounced. Entering one of the banks he informed one of those in attendance that he was connected with the bank at Athol. He had heard one of Quincy's banks had just moved into handsome new rooms and he thought he would look at them.

The treasurer came from his private office and grasped the visitor by the hand with that heartiness such as only bank treasurers know how. The next few minutes was occupied in showing the visitor about the spacious and handsomely furnished rooms. A suggestion that the rooms of the Savings bank be inspected was accepted and soon the stranger was behind the rail and presented to President Marsh.

In the course of the conversation Mr. Marsh remarked that he believed some of the Athol bank's mortgages were held by his bank. The stranger replied that he did not know anything about that.

"What!" said Mr. Marsh, "you an officer of the Athol bank and know nothing about its business?"

"Oh!" replied the stranger, "I am not an officer, I am the janitor."

Quincy Directory.

The new Quincy directory will be out in a few weeks. It is modeled after the Brookline directory, being nearly square in shape, eight by ten inches outside and an inch thick. It will open flat and need no weight to hold it open. The map of Quincy will be in sections, easily fitted together. It will contain with other useful matter, a list of the births, marriages and deaths. There will be pages of historical matter with illustrations printed on fine quality paper with hour and rules for the use of visitors; useful in the household as well as in the office.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

Frank F. Prescott is expected home tonight. He and his son Carl have had a delightful time at the World's fair and other places in the West. He writes that the fair is immense, and one week is not half time enough to see the many things at this attractive exposition.

An effort will be made during the coming session of Congress for the establishment of a department of Mining and Metallurgy. By reason of its great influence upon all other resources and industries and the advancement of the country, many men of influence think mining should receive equal consideration with agriculture, and other pursuits. Certain it is that if it is worth while to keep a weather bureau running, the Government might recognize an important industry like mining.

Official reports from Canada show that this country's commercial relations with that highly loyal province are in a very satisfactory state, even without reciprocity. For the year ending June 30, 1904, as compared with 1903, there has been a decline in Canadian exports of over $12,000,000, and an increase of over $17,000,000 in imports. The imports are mostly from the United States, while the decline in exports is owing to a falling off of sales in England.

The assurance with which great enterprises are being undertaken, involving the expenditure of many millions of dollars, is evidence that confidence prevails among all classes of men as regards the future, and that the country has settled down to the conclusion that there will be neither a change of government or of politics. A million dollar power plant on the banks of the Susquehanna river at York Haven, Pa., has just been started. It will furnish power and light for a number of nearby cities. There has been a great merger of traction lines in Ohio, and a mortgage authorized of $750,000. A half million acres of land, now desert, are to be reclaimed in the Imperial Valley, in California. About $7,000,000 is to be invested in trolley lines and a system of parks in western Massachusetts and northern Connecticut. A gigantic station on the Connecticut river, at Greenfield, will feed the wires with power which will run all over the two states. Many other similar enterprises might be noticed, all going to show that capital considers the future as assured.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ There is talk of still another newspaper in Boston. It would seem to the man on the fence as though the town was struggling under a heavy load in trying to carry what it now has. —Brockton Enterprise.

☞ Some of the nights begin to feel cool, and the linen clothes and the peekaboo waists and all that seem a little out of place at times. But they will be worn for some time yet by the women. If the men took the same chances in chilly weather the hospitals would be full of pneumonia patients.—Brockton Enterprise.

☞ There is now a legal decision that any old place where you can hang your hat may be home, sweet home. A Beverly man who went to Boston and slept one night on the first of May for the purpose of getting a residence in that city and being able to cast his vote there, has been acquitted of the charge of false registration which was brought against him.—Haverhill Gazette.

☞ The steel trust is selling its rails in Canada from $6 to $8 a ton less than it will sell them to American railroads. Does anybody think that the railroad influence of Canada, which is pretty big, will let the anti-dumping law get into very active effect, while these bargains are on the counter?—Haverhill Gazette.

☞ Signs multiply of the revival of the cotton manufacturing industry, among which is the renewel of work in mills in this city. A story is afloat that southern manufacturers are taking advantage of the Fall River strike in securing orders for goods which have been heretofore supplied by manufacturers in that city—a story which, if true, is not to the advantage of either strikers or operators. Matters do not appear to have been managed very well in Fall River, and the sooner the strike is settled up the better it will be for all concerned.—New Bedford Standard.

☞ Either the physical standard at Annapolis is unreasonably high or the young men of today are not so physically fit as they should be; for of the 199 who recently passed the entrance examinations at the naval academy, 114 failed to meet the physical test. The standard cannot be a merely theoretical one. It must have had its basis in the actual capacity of a sufficiently large number of men to make its attainment possible by other large numbers of men. Whether the proportion of men with brawn and brain was in earlier days to men with brain alone only as 85 to 199 we cannot say; but the probability is that the boys of today are not matching up in size and robustness with the boys of not so many years ago. Physical effort has gone somewhat out of fashion, and with its decline has gone something of physical power. Lowering the standard at Annapolis will let the boys more easily in, but toughening the boys would be a better way of overcoming the difficulty.—New Bedford Standard.

☞ The Massachusetts bureau of labor statistics has published a report on the loss of time due to drunkenness, in which there is shown a great decrease in the proportion of absences from work directly following payday. The special agent visited 413 establishments and found absent on Monday but 511 of 39,761 males over 16 years of age employed on the previous Saturday. The per cent. is 1.29. The employers who have changed the pay day from Saturday to the middle of the week report a great improvement in this respect. The man who knows that his position depends on his reporting for work on the morning immediately following pay day appears far more likely to keep sober than when a full day or day and a half intervenes. Saturday nights and Sundays have proved in very many instances the opportunity to indulge in an excess of liquor drinking and its accompaniments, and the money secured on Saturday for the week wages has been squandered, but the payment in the middle of the week seems break in upon this with good results as above stated.—Gloucester Times.

☞ A surprising statement comes from the bureau of education. It is that there are in the United States 1,757,023 males over 30 years of age without education.

The bureau does not go far enough. It should follow that army to the poorhouse, the jails, the haunts of bitter poverty, to the lives of the tramps.

For one of the mainsprings of poverty and crime is ignorance.

Education pays. More education pays better. A study of that book of notables, "Who's Who," shows that out of 10,000 men considered successful, 7,769 had college education.

If parents would only stop to consider the matter they would realize that it isn't what a boy earns in the years before he is 21 that counts.

Up to that time his life is preparatory. He should be getting ready for a struggle that will be strenuous.

He can afford to be pinched for spending money, for clothing, for luxuries of all kinds, but if he steps into the world where every man fights for himself, without at least a good common school education, well soaked in he is going to wear a ball and chain the rest of his life.

He is going to have a handicap that no amount of worldly wisdom can entirely overcome.

Perhaps, in your own experience, you have seen the young men who can not write, who can not spell, who can not frame a sentence without violating grammatical laws. They are not wanted. Society does not excuse them, and their field of endeavor is narrowed down to a point where the thousands struggle for a living.

Ignorance means a bare living at the hardest, most killing kind of toil.

The money earned by a child often means the sacrifice of a future.

Education pays.

Shot at Masked Man Who Attempted to Hold Her Up

SEQUEL TO BIG ROBBERY

Family of Aged Doctor Who Lost $5000 In a Confidence Game Threatened With Death If They Do Not "Let Up"

New Milford, Conn., Sept. 1.—This entire section is aroused over what appears to be a new chapter in the story of the assault upon Dr. Henry Hartwell, an aged resident of Judd's Bridge, and the robbery of $5000 which he had drawn from a local bank with which to buy bonds offered to him at a bargain price by a smooth-talking stranger a week ago last Friday.

Mrs. G. C. Spencer, daughter of Dr. Hartwell, and wife of a clergyman of Greenwich, was stopped on the highway yesterday afternoon near her father's home by a masked man and three times shot at. One of the bullets touched her dress, but in no way harmed her. Mrs. Spencer, who for some days has been carrying a revolver because of threatening letters received by the Hartwell family, returned the fire at the man, but probably did not hit him, although he jumped into the bushes and disappeared.

Mrs. Spencer continued on her way home and reported the incident and, accompanied by her husband, returned to town and informed Sheriff McMahon of the shooting. A number of citizens were called upon to go out in search of the masked man and all carried guns when they went into the woods.

That the assault on Mrs. Spencer was premeditated is shown by the story told by Miss May Geldin, a neighbor. She says that during the forenoon, when about a quarter of a mile from the Hartwell place, a roughly dressed man stepped out of a patch of wood and, approaching her, asked if she were "Miss Hartwell." On receiving a negative reply the stranger walked away, and Miss Geldin hurried home and reported the incident. The attack on Mrs. Spencer occurred later.

The letters sent to members of the Hartwell family and directly to Dr. Hartwell are identical. They state that "if you don't let up on this matter (the robbery of Dr. Hartwell) and call off your constables and sheriff, we will kill you and the constables and sheriff as well, all of whom we know."

At first the family did not think any direct threat was made, but now all are very much frightened. When the letters came it was thought that the confidence men who sent Dr. Hartwell some typewritten letters the day after the robbery were sending a second lot as a matter of course.

Not Complimentary to Soldiers

Washington, Sept. 1.—Brigadier General Lee, commanding the department of Texas, reports: "Desertions continue without any marked decrease and they will be in about the same ratio so long as the conditions remain the same. The principal factors are drunkenness, evil associations, frequenting vicious resorts and insensibility to the sacred obligations of the oaths upon enlistment and thereafter.

In Hands of Court of Inquiry

Savannah, Ga., Sept. 1.—The final session of the court of inquiry on the conduct of the state militia at Statesboro, when the mob took two negroes from the courthouse and burned them at the stake, was held here yesterday afternoon. It is believed that it will be two weeks before the court is ready to make its report to the governor.

A Worthy Project

Southboro, Mass., Sept. 1.—J. M. Sears plans to set aside 50 acres of his Wolf Pen farm, to be made into a pleasure park, with the idea of interesting other wealthy property owners in Southboro to give similar parks. The plan includes landscape gardening, flower gardens, winding drives and a zoo.

Strike of Hub Teamsters

Boston, Sept. 1.—Because Youlden, Smith & Hopkins, a firm of teamsters in this city, refused to discharge a driver who would not join the Team Drivers' union and who was working at a scale lower than that demanded by the union, 85 employes of the firm were called out on strike last night.

All Butcher Workmen Called Out

Chicago, Sept. 1.—Orders have been issued for a general strike of all butcher workmen throughout the country. The order, if observed, will affect large plants in several cities. Altogether, union officials assert that 15,000 men will go out and the meat supply will be seriously crippled.

Dan Patch Lowers Record

Lincoln, Neb., Sept. 1.—In an exhibition mile at the state fair grounds Dan Patch lowered the record for a half-mile track, covering the mile in 2:03 1-4 on a track still a trifle lumpy from recent rains. He was accompanied by a runner, but wore no wind shield.

Conference Without Result

New York, Sept. 1.—A long conference was held here between the parties interested in the demand for $3.50 a day for nine hours' work in the new subway, but no definite result was reached.

BRYAN'S SERVICES

Tendered by Nebraskan to National Democratic Committee

New York, Sept. 1.—Satisfaction is expressed at national Democratic headquarters regarding the offer of Mr. Bryan to aid in the campaign, as there has been considerable talk about the apathy of some of the most ardent Bryan men and fear has been expressed that they would vote for Watson. Democratic leaders believe that Bryan's appearance on the stump, even if he does not come east, will have a tendency to hold his warm supporters in line for the regular ticket. The following is an extract from the letter received at Democratic headquarters from Bryan:

"I have just wired you expressing my regret that I cannot attend the meeting of the Democratic editors Sept. 5. I am going to the mountains for a rest, but will be ready to enter the campaign by the first of October. I shall be glad to devote to the national campaign as much time as I can spare. Let me know where you think I can help."

Moody at Bar Harbor

Bar Harbor, Me., Sept. 1.—Addressing a mass meeting here last night, Attorney General Moody spoke on the issues of the national campaign, upheld the course of the administration and prophesied Republican successes at the polls in November. He contended that all that had been done for "sound money" had been done by the Republican party. Referring to the charges of militarism made by the opponents of the administration, he said that if the protection of American citizens and interests is "militarism," then the issue must be accepted.

Tammany and the Governorship

New York, Sept. 1.—Charles F. Murphy, the Tammany chieftain, when asked what Tammany's policy will be in respect to the selection of a candidate for governor, said:

"Tammany has no candidate for governor. As far as I know it will have no candidate for any other place on the state ticket."

"Who will be the nominee for governor?"

"I can tell you that better after the convention."

Beveridge at Maine Capital

Augusta, Me., Sept. 1.—The first political rally of the campaign in this city was that of the Republicans last evening, when Senator Beveridge discussed the tariff, currency, trusts and the Philippines. He ridiculed the Democratic talk about militarism and warmly eulogized President Roosevelt. He contended that the Democrats must prove they could do better before there was any reason for giving them power.

Depew Regrets Hill's Decision

Hornellsville, N. Y., Sept. 1.—Senator Depew made an address at the Hornellsville fair, in the course of which he referred to the published statement that Mr. Hill would retire from active politics after Jan. 1. He said he felt as though he was at a funeral, as he regretted the loss of so picturesque a figure from the Democratic platform.

Shepard Speaks In Vermont

Bennington, Vt., Sept. 1.—From the steps of the Bennington county courthouse last evening, Edward M. Shepard of New York spoke on national issues and urged a crowd that nearly filled the square to support the Democratic ticket in the state election next Tuesday. Shepard was warmly greeted and frequently applauded.

Wilson Talks on Prosperity

Lyndonville, Vt., Sept. 1.—Secretary of Agriculture Wilson, in a rally here last night, emphasized the Republican claim of general prosperity and said that capital and labor were both fully employed except where local disagreements existed.

Illinois Populists' Ticket

Springfield, Ills., Sept. 1.—The Illinois state Populist convention nominated a complete state ticket headed by James Hogan of Chicago for governor.

Cleveland on Fishing Trip

Buzzards Bay, Mass., Sept. 1.—Former President Grover Cleveland, accompanied by Mrs. Cleveland and Dr. Bryant, have arrived here from the Cleveland's summer home at North Sandwich, N. H. They are stopping at Gray Gables, Mr. Cleveland's estate. Mr. Cleveland and Dr. Bryant are here for a few days of salt water fishing.

Warships In Searchlight Drill

Cuttyhunk, Mass., Sept. 1.—Vineyard sound, from Gay Head to Tarpaulin Cove, was bathed in light for half an hour last night while four battleships of the north Atlantic squadron, Missouri, Maine, Illinois and Iowa, held a searchlight drill. The display was very brilliant. The fleet will remain in Menemsha Bight for two weeks.

A Verdict of "Accident"

St. Louis, Sept. 1.—Barney Oldfield, whose automobile killed two men in the races Sunday, is still confined to the hospital and the inquest into the death of John Scott and Nathan Montgomery proceeded without him. The jury returned a verdict of accident, adding that the track was not properly policed.

Dare Cost Him His Life

Rutland, Vt., Sept. 1.—David Roberts, aged 10, had climbed to the top of a telegraph pole when several companions who were watching him dared him to touch a live wire hanging over his head. Roberts placed one finger upon the wire and in an instant his lifeless body dropped to the ground.

THROWING THE DICE.

The Ancient Germans Were Furious Gamblers at This Game.

The invention of dice has been of old ascribed to Palamedes, the son of Nauplius, king of Euboea, about 1244 B. C., and also to a Greek soldier named Alea, which is the Latin for a die, but Herodotus assigns both dice and chess to the Lydians.

The ancient Germans would gamble away at dice all that they were worth and then their liberty, submitting to slavery if they lost, and the Saxons, Danes and Normans were all addicted to the game. Fox Talbot is of opinion that the Latins invented, if not the game, at least the name for the single point, which they called unus. The Germanic races, adopting this practice from the Greeks, translated the Greek corruption of unus into ass, which has now become ace. The root of this word lies in the Latin as, the monetary unit.

John of Salisbury in the twelfth century mentions ten different uses of the dice. Stow mentions two entertainments given by the city of London at which dice were in evidence.—London Telegraph.

THE BIRD'S SONG.

It Is Produced by a Unique Voice Organ In the Syrinx.

Birds have no vocal chords in the larynx, but they possess a unique voice organ in the syrinx, which is provided with what are really vocal chords of a very effective and complicated kind. This syrinx lies in the lower part of the windpipe and the upper part of the branching bronchi, but varies much in its exact position and details of structure in different birds.

Briefly it consists of a varying number of muscles, as many as from five to seven being found in the best songsters, attached to folds of membrane and the bony half rings, which at this part of the throat form a sort of enlarged Adam's apple.

Distinctness of the several muscles and the mode of their insertion indicate a bird's musical capability. The syrinx of the skylark and nightingale, for instance, is a marvel of adjusted muscle and membrane, while, on the other hand, the ostrich and some vultures have no voice organ, the pigeon has but little to show, and the common fowl has no muscles to modulate its cry.

Old Roman Hairpins.

That deadly implement, the hatpin of modern times, is a descendant of an equally formidable toilet article used by Roman women. The Aspasias and Julias and Claudias who decked themselves a couple of thousand years or more ago, to the undoing of the particular Balbus or Marcus they desired to fascinate, wore bone hairpins of prodigious length. Yet, like the women of this present time, they seem to have experienced the same difficulty in keeping them in place. This fact came to light during excavations at Silchester, near Reading, England, a hundred or so of these bone hairpins being found in the Roman bath, collected maybe by the bath attendant, to prove all these centuries later that there is nothing new under the sun and that in all ages the same little foibles have been possessed by women.

The Dragon Fly's Eggs.

Any one who has watched a dragon fly flitting about the surface of small, reedy ponds or near the shores of large ones during the summer and early fall months has noticed its frequent dipping of the extremity of its long body in the water as it skims along. The dragon fly thus engaged is always the female, and every time she dips her body in the water she deposits an egg. The specific gravity of the egg is such that it sinks to the bottom among the weeds.

New York Men Criticized at Irish League Convention

ARE NOT LIBERAL ENOUGH

Want More to Say, Though Contributions Are Smaller Than Those of Other Cities--Platform Pledging Allegiance to Cause of Irish Independence

New York, Sept. 1.—Much excitement and disorder attended the discussion of a resolution to increase the membership of the executive committee at the convention of the United Irish League of America here. The proposition was to increase the committee from 50 to 100, and the trouble began when John F. Ryan of Philadelphia said that the New York branch of the league had not contributed as much to the common fund as it ought to have done considering its size, there being more Irishmen in New York than in the city of Dublin. He said that New York should not have two representatives on the executive committee as desired, when Boston and other cities had given more to the fund than New York had. He declared that such a proceeding would be unfair to the other cities.

Delegate O'Connor of Elmira sharply resented Ryan's attack on the Irishmen of New York state and the convention was soon in an uproar. The chairman tried vainly to restore order. Finally the proposed amendment was defeated by four votes and this quieted the excitement.

The platform adopted by the convention, after renewing the pledge of the league's allegiance to the cause of Irish national independence and the right of Ireland to have a parliament of her own, says:

"We assert the right of the Irish people to procure their independence by any honorable method, by work or word, by voice or sword, as circumstances may dictate or opportunities may offer, but we fully admit the right to choose their weapons in the battle for liberty, untrammeled by dictation from any outside source, realizing that the people on the firing line of the fight for nationhood are the best judges of the policy to be adopted in their struggle with the wealth and power of England."

The convention recognized the "incalculable services rendered by John E. Redmond, William O'Brien, Michael Davitt, John Dillon, T. P. O'Connor, Edward Lake and their able colleagues, "services which no material value can represent or recompense," and appealed to Irishmen in America to sustain them in their struggle "with a generosity worthy of the glorious renown of the Irish race, and of the cause to which they are unalterably devoted."

A member of the committee of ways and means read a report from the committee in which it was stated that it is the intention of this committee to raise $50,000 before the first of next year for the general election fund, to be used in England and Ireland.

Dropped Fourteen Stories

Pittsburg, Sept. 1.—By the fall of an elevator in the Park building five persons were hurt, one of whom, a 14-year-old boy, may die. The elevator had just left the 14th floor when the operator lost control. The descent was with lightning-like rapidity until the first floor was reached, when the safety clutch for the first time became effective and the car was stopped before reaching the basement.

Many Hurt In Trolley Accident

Boston, Sept. 1.—An electric car containing about 25 passengers left the rails in South Boston last night and toppled over a 10-foot embankment. Nearly every person on board the car was scratched or bruised and 11 were sent to hospitals. The cause of the accident is not known, but it is believed that one of the rails was depressed. The car was in charge of Conductor Farrell and Motorman Ridge.

What Philippine Soldiers Need

Washington, Sept. 1.—In his annual report Brigadier General Carter, commanding the department of the Visayas in the Philippines, strongly urges the encouragement of athletic sports among the soldiers, to supply the present lack of means of recreation, and abundant employment as the most wholesome antidote for the effects of Philippine service in time of peace.

Bad Railroad Wreck In Canada

Montreal, Sept. 1.—Nine people were killed and 23 others injured in a head-on collision on the Grand Trunk railway near Richmond, between a special excursion and a passenger train. The collision, it is claimed, was due to neglect of orders on the part of the train crew of the excursion train, which left Richmond without awaiting the arrival of the passenger train.

Searching For Dead Bodies

Colchester, Conn., Sept. 1.—The search for bodies on the farms of Gershon Marx was continued until nightfall yesterday by a large squad of farmhands, but no trace of a human body was found. The officials here are still of the opinion that there are bodies somewhere about Marx's farm and will continue the search until the entire property has been gone over.

AGAIN IN PUBLIC EYE

Mysterious and Romantic Disappearance of Princess Louise

Berlin, Sept. 1.—Princess Louise of Coburg, whose relations with Kegelvich Mattasitch, the former lieutenant in the Austrian army, caused a great scandal in European royal circles a few years ago, and who has since been kept under the closest restraint, has vanished from Badelster, where she has been taking the cure. It is presumed that the princess is in the company of Mattasitch.

Ladders and a swift automobile were brought into play to effect her release from the hotel where she has been held almost as a prisoner and to convey her to some refuge regarding the location of which there is as yet a complete mystery. Not the slightest trace of the whereabouts of the pair has yet been discovered, and nothing is known beyond the fact that the princess and another guest of the hotel, believed to have been Mattasitch, have disappeared and with them the jewels of the princess and an automobile.

The escape of the princess has created almost as great a sensation here and in Dresden and Vienna as did the original scandal. Detailed accounts in the newspapers of her flight overshadow the dispatches from the far east.

Big Stakes at Sheepshead

New York, Sept. 1.—In a hard drive Caughnawaga, at 3 to 1, won the Twin City handicap of $13,000 to the winner, at Sheepshead Bay. The mile and a quarter was run in the fast time of 2:05. McChesney, who won this stake last year, was made favorite on the strength of a very fast trial, but was always outrun, finishing next to last. Artful, winner of the Futurity on Saturday, added another victory to her list by winning the $10,000 Great Filly stakes.

Ticket Scalper In Contempt

Boston, Sept. 1.—For dealing in tickets which had been issued by the railroads at reduced rates for the Grand Army encampment, and made non-transferable, after having been enjoined from doing so, Edwin C. Paige, a ticket scalper, was sentenced to 30 days' imprisonment in jail by Judge Fessenden, having been found guilty of contempt of court. Paige had notice of the injunction on Aug. 15 and afterward dealt in G. A. R. tickets.

Death Rather Than Starvation

Newark, N. J., Sept. 1.—Driven to the city by hunger, having eaten little except dandelion leaves since last Sunday, Guiseppe Marmanno, who escaped after killing his brother-in-law, Nunzio Morano, and wounding Mrs. Morano, was arrested last night. He declared that after his experience of the last three days he was ready to die. At the time of his escape it was thought he had perished in a salt swamp.

Three Hundred Families Homeless

St. Johns, Sept. 1.—Forest fires have destroyed the hamlet of Little Bay and 300 families are homeless. Two men have been drowned. Steamer Prospero has embarked the women and children. Men are fighting the flames in an effort to prevent the destructive fires from covering a wider area. The government is providing food, shelter and other assistance to the destitute.

Bald-Headed Vessel Launched

Mystic, Conn., Sept. 1.—The four-masted schooner Charles E. Wilbur was successfully launched at the shipyard of M. C. McDonald & Sons at this place and is the second vessel of the "bald headed" type on the Atlantic coast. Her length is 190 feet and she has a beam of 36 feet. Her draught is 14 feet, and capacity 1400 tons.

Will Depend Upon "Best People"

Cripple Creek, Col., Sept. 1.—In a letter to Governor Peabody, Sheriff Bell has formally declined the services of the state militia to preserve order in this district and expressed the belief that "the best interests of this county and state will be subserved through the determination of the best people of this district."

Sleeps Well and Takes Nourishment

Worcester, Mass., Sept. 1.—Senator Hoar is senting comfortably and there is no apparent change in his condition. His strength has not increased, but he takes nourishment administered by his doctors and sleeps well. No perceptible change is looked for for several days.

Hot Fight of Bantamweights

Philadelphia, Sept. 1.—Frank Niel, the bantamweight champion, and Tom Murphy went six rounds to a draw here last night. It was a terrific fight from beginning to end and both men received some hard punishment. Niel, however, had slightly the better of the bout.

Analyzing Mrs McVicker's Stomach

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 1.—Chemist Day has commenced an analysis of the contents of the stomach of Mrs. J. H. McVicker. The examination is expected to finally settle all question concerning the manner of her death.

Fever Steadily Developing

Elkins, W. Va., Sept. 1.—Dr. Golden, who is in attendance upon John H. Davis, the stricken son of Henry G. Davis, states that the typhoid fever is steadily developing but will hardly reach its height for several days.

Druggist Platt Wins His Case

Chicago, Sept. 1.—Twenty-five hundred retail druggists in the United States were declared guilty of contempt of court by Judge Dunne of the United States circuit court, and the National Association of Retail Druggists, of which they are members, was fined $2000, while Secretary Wooten of the organization was fined $500. Isaac platt, a retail druggist, charged that he had been blacklisted and boycotted by the association and that through its influence all the wholesale houses in Chicago refused to sell him supplies.

Harvard's Valuable Acquisition

Cambridge, Mass., Sept. 1.—Director Pickering of the Harvard observatory announces the acquisition by that institution of a 60-inch reflecting telescope, the largest instrument of its kind in the world. It was constructed in England and has been idle for several years. An attempt was made to purchase the instrument several years ago, but the means of the observatory would not permit.

Away Ahead of Record

Buffalo, Sept. 1.—W. L. Whitman, who is trying to break the San Francisco-New York automobile record, arrived in Buffalo last evening and left later for Rochester. He expects to reach New York on Saturday. Whitman left San Francisco on Aug. 1. The present record, made by Tom Fetch, is 61 days.

Winter Coal Rates In Effect

Philadelphia, Sept. 1.—In accordance with custom the anthracite coal producing companies today put up the price of coal to the regular winter rates.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Fire destroyed the H. B. Cotton piano frame and box manufacturing plant at Fryeburg, Me. The loss, including the electric light plant and lumber mill, is $30,000.

The Massachusetts Democratic state committee has issued the call for the state convention on Oct. 7, next, at Boston.

Joseph Wells, known as the oldest veteran of the Civil war in Vermont, died at Barre, aged 88.

JAPAN'S ARMY GENIUS.

Record of Baron Kodama, Chief of Staff to Oyama.

SCION OF GOOD FIGHTING STOCK.

William E. Curtis Says Field Marshal Oyama Considers His Assistant One of the World's Shrewdest Strategists—His Arrangement For Locating Japanese and Russian Forces.

Everybody agrees that the genius of the Russo-Japanese war is General Baron Kodama, recently assistant chief of the general staff, and now chief of staff to Field Marshal Oyama, commander in chief of the Japanese army in the field, says William E. Curtis, the Chicago Record-Herald's correspondent writing from Tokyo. Kodama was formerly assistant minister of war, then minister of the interior, and is now governor general of Formosa, on leave of absence, having been called to Tokyo at the outset of the war because, while assistant minister of war some years ago, he planned the campaign which the Japanese armies are conducting in Manchuria. After serving in Tokyo for six months and carrying out his plans concerning the mobilization and transportation of troops, he was sent to the front about the first of July.

General Baron Kodama is about fifty years old, and a descendant of a samurai or knight of feudal times. He is therefore of good fighting stock, and he has made a brilliant record as a soldier, bearing honorable wounds received in Korea some years ago, where he was shot through both shoulders. For months he lay in a plaster of paris mold, unable to move a muscle of the upper portion of his body. His patience and courage have been talked about ever since. His left arm is helpless. Otherwise he is in perfect health and is the hardest worked man in Japan. He has spent from sixteen to eighteen hours a day at the general staff building. He has read every report that has been received and every dispatch that has been sent from Tokyo concerning the army in the field, and has dictated most of the orders from the war department at Tokyo to the commanders in the field. Although Field Marshal Oyama is in good health and his mental vigor is unimpaired, he refers everything to his assistant because he recognizes his superior ability and considers him the shrewdest or one of the shrewdest strategists in the world today.

Baron Kodama looks more like a Frenchman than a Japanese. Except his diminutive size, he is entirely unJapanese in appearance. He is small and slight, weighing not more than 120 pounds. His scanty hair is iron gray. His mustache and goatee, which he wears in the French style, are almost white. His skin is tanned like leather from great exposure and has the weatherbeaten appearance noticeable in sailors and old campaigners. His eyes are keen, but kindly, and their color is blue. He has a quick, nervous manner and a hearty laugh. He speaks no English or French, but reads the latter language imperfectly. Lieutenant Tanaka, an aid-de-camp, who speaks both English and French fluently, is always at his side to interpret conversations. No reports are given out without the approval of Kodama. In fact, he is Japan as far as the army is concerned.

He has an assistant of his own kind in Major General Fukushima, a man of great ability, energy and learning, whom many consider the equal of his chief. Fukushima has ridden from one end of Manchuria to the other. He knows every road and stream, every mountain and valley, every town and hamlet and can make a chart of the country with his eyes shut.

Fukushima and Kodama work as one and are entirely in sympathy. Among other duties Fukushima looks after a curious chart which hangs in Kodama's office. The headquarters of the general staff are in a two story villa, built for the residence of a foreigner about twenty years ago, just outside the walls that inclose the park of the imperial palace. Within everything is severely simple.

Kodama's room is the plainest of all. It is uncarpeted, entirely without ornament, and the only furniture is an Indianapolis roll top desk, an ordinary kitchen table and half a dozen hard bottom chairs. The table is covered with maps and charts, and upon the wall is a rack of beautiful Japanese cabinet work divided into narrow little slits, each of which contains a piece of cardboard inscribed with Japanese characters. While no foreigner or other person unacquainted with the Japanese language can appreciate the significance of this curious arrangement, to Kodama and Fukushima it means everything. Each slip of pasteboard represents a regiment, each line of compartments a brigade, each block of lines a division, and the entire rack stands for the Japanese army in Manchuria. Over the wires every morning come reports of the location and fighting strength of the different regiments, and the little strips of cardboard in this curious arrangement are changed accordingly, so that by a single glance Baron Kodama can see what troops are available and where they are located.

In a drawer of the table is another chart, not visible to the ordinary visitor, upon which is kept as accurately as possible a similar representation of the strength and location of the Russian armies, based upon information received daily from the spies and scouts which the Japanese have stationed in every village and hamlet throughout all Manchuria.

FAVORITE OF CZAR.

Admiral Prince Ouktomsky, Who Commands Port Arthur Fleet.

Admiral Prince Esper Ouktomsky, upon whom by virtue of his rank the command of the Russian Port Arthur fleet devolved on the death of Admiral Withoft, is a remarkable character. It is a singular coincidence that he was left in command of the same fleet once before through the death of his superior, who in this instance was Admiral Makaroff, the brave commander who was drowned in the blowing up of the Petropavlovsk. The prince at this time showed that he was possessed of signal courage. He is an intimate friend of the czar and on that account has enjoyed exceptional freedom in the expression of his opinions through the St. Petersburg newspaper, the Viedmosti, which he owns. He belongs to the most ancient of Muscovite nobility.

NOTES ABOUT TOWN.

Dr. Andrews has returned from his vacation.

Mrs. Chas. Damon is confined to the house by illness.

Allen Goss has returned from his visit to Providence, R. I.

Rev. Leon H. Austin and wife are expected home from Connecticut tomorrow.

C. F. Carlson is expected home next week from his visit to his old home in Sweden.

The members of the Hyde Park board of trade held an outing Wednesday at the Squantum Inn.

A large attendance is anticipated Monday at the reunion of the Washington M. French Hose Co.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Peterson, of Quincy Point, with their two daughters have returned from the provinces.

The through cars between Neponset bridge and Nantasket beach will be discontinued after Labor day.

Officer Malcolm Stewart was on duty on the Point beat Wednesday. Officer Larkin being at Dedham for a portion of the day.

Mrs. A. A. Harlow and sister have moved from South street to Mill street where they will make their home for the future.

The Willard school is not to open until Monday, Sept. 19th on account of alterations in the heating system. It is needless to say this is not a disappointment to most of the pupils.

Mr. Nilson, brother of Mrs. C. F. Carlson of Saville avenue, who with his family have been her guests for two months, returned Wednesday to their home in Brooklyn, N. Y. Interest attached to the little turns, Karin and Nils, fourteen months old, and although the girl is fifteen minutes younger than the boy, she can walk several steps and seems the smarter of the two.

A JAIL SENTENCE.

For Conductors Concerned in Transfer Frauds.

Fred McGowan and Bert Burrell, the two Old Colony street railway conductors arrested by the state police last week for being concerned in the transfer frauds, will spend the next twenty days in the House of Correction at Dedham.

The specific charge against the two men was larceny. They were arraigned in court last week and held until this morning for a hearing. John W. McAnarney appeared for the defendants this morning while District Attorney represented the government.

Contrary to expectations, and to the disappointment of the court spectators, there was no hearing. When the case was called the defendants retracted their plea of not guilty and entered a plea of nolo-contendre. The court accepted this plea and sentenced each to twenty days in the House of Correction.

Small Pox.

The small pox epidemic in North Adams is said to be beyond the control of the Board of Health, and is causing a reign of terror. Ten new cases were reported yesterday, making thirty-four cases in the pest house, which is full, and there are about thirty persons suspected of having the dread disease in the detention hospital. There have been several deaths.

Yesterday the Board of Health commanded the police to prevent anyone excepting physicians and police officials from walking on Reed and Rand streets, two thoroughfares on the edge of the city. Seven cases were reported on Reed street in a German family, the father and mother and five children being striken at the same time.

The house was quickly quarantined and the family removed to the pest house. Within a few minutes three more cases were reported on Rand street, making ten cases for the day.

—According to the declaration of the superintendent of Police in Chicago there is immediate need of 2000 extra policemen, for crime is everywhere and there has been a regular epidemic of it for the past two months. This is owing it is said to the strike in that city.

How to Broil a Chop or Steak.

Few housewives understand the art of broiling, and consequently chops and steaks are often robbed of their delicate flavor by frying in a pan. A steak or chop properly broiled should have a thin, well browned crust. Beyond this crust the meat should be red and juicy, hardly a shade less done in the middle than near the surface. If the broiling is to be done on a range have the fire very bright and clear. Open every draft that smoke and flame may be drawn up the chimney. Place the piece of meat in the double broiler and hold it as near the coals as possible until the surface is brown, turning frequently. It will take three or four minutes for this. Now raise the broiler several inches above the bed of coals and continue the cooking until the meat is done. The broiler must be turned often. A good rule is to count ten slowly, then turn the broiler. A steak or chop cut a little more than an inch thick will cook nicely in ten minutes. If liked well done, it should be cooked for twelve minutes.

How to Make Damp Rooms Dry.

A damp cupboard or storeroom is practically useless, but the damp may easily be banished. The plan is to put a box or bucket of lime in the cupboard or storeroom, as the case may be. The lime will absorb the damp and thus render the air quite dry. The lime must be renewed from time to time as it loses its power.

How to Make Toilet Waters.

Toilet waters can easily be made at home. For violet water put a quarter of a pound of fresh picked sweet violets, together with their weight of pure alcohol, into a large bottle. Cork, and shake the bottle every day for one week. Then add a quarter of a pound of water, filter and bottle for use. Lavender water is made by slowly steeping for one hour in a covered farina boiler one pound of fresh lavender with one pint of water. On its removal from the fire add two quarts of alcohol, filter and bottle for use. One of the most delightful home made toilet waters is cherry laurel water. Bruise one ounce of bay leaves and add to them a half pint of water. Steep slowly for one hour in a farina boiler. Take it from the fire and add one quart of lavender water. Filter and bottle for use.

How to Keep Butter Firm.

Place your butter in a basin and cover it with water to within an inch or two of the top; add a piece of salt the size of a hazel nut; cut off portions daily. Butter treated in this way will keep firm and fresh for days.

How to Test Ventilation.

A very simple way to tell whether your room is properly ventilated is to place a wide necked bottle of water into which you have put half an ounce of limewater somewhere in the room, letting it remain there uncovered overnight. If in the morning the limewater is milky the ventilation is very bad indeed. If the limewater becomes milky on your covering the bottle mouth with your hand and shaking the vessel the ventilation is not sufficiently good. If the limewater remains clear the air of that room is pure.

CONFERENCE TODAY.

Between Street Railway Officials and Men.

A conference was held at 2 o'clock this afternoon between President Sullivan and committees representing the employes of the Quincy and Brockton divisions of the Old Colony Street Railway.

The object of the conference was to arrange a working contract for the coming year. A similar conference was held some weeks ago but no definite understanding was reached. The men were not satisfied with the result and another conference was asked.

General Manager Goff suggested that the men wait until the return of President Sullivan who was away. As far as can be learned the principal bone of contention is over the recognition of the union.

The men demand that the union be officially recognized which would mean that none but union men could be employed on the road.

The company refused to grant their request in this respect, claiming that as it was a public service corporation it had no right to discriminate between union and non-union men. The company however were and always have been ready to meet any committee of their employes to adjust any grievances, the only stipulation being that they were actual employes.

20 PERSONS HURT.

Electric Car Goes Over Embankment.

Twenty persons were more or less injured Wednesday night when a Fields corner, Dorchester avenue car, jumped the track at South Boston and went over a twelve-foot embankment. Fortunately none of the passengers on the car were seriously injured, although twenty of them were cut and bruised. Those that were taken to hospital were sent home after their injuries had been dressed.

Want House Open to Public.

To the Editor:

Will you please try and find out for the public why the Quincy Historical society does not keep the John Quincy Adams house open to visitors, as the Daughters of the Revolution keep the John Adams house which is close by. The latter place can be visited any time through the day from early morning until into the evening. It is difficult to get into the historical rooms at any time of the day, if at all. The grounds about the house need attention and the outside of the house is in danger of abuse. The small boys have already made a target of the windows.

Quincy people do not realize the interest these old houses and their contents have for visitors. An interest continually increasing, as proved by the past year or so. The Historical Society house has the advantage of the Daughters of the Revolution house in the number of relics gathered and the added interest of its having been the home of Abigail Adams, the intelligent, resourceful and capable American woman.

Why cannot both houses be put under the same care-taker and opened at the same hours? Respectfully Yours,

John Smith.

McPherson—Nicholson.

At 8 o'clock last evening, Mr. Roderick McPherson and Miss Katie Nicholson, both of Quincy, were united in marriage by the Rev. W. B. Barr at the home of Mr. Angus McDonald, 148 Granite street. Mr. McDonald is brother-in-law of the groom. About forty persons were present.

The bridesmaid was Miss Katie L. Nicholson, a cousin of the bride, and the best man was Mr. Malcolm McPherson, of Boston, a brother of the groom.

The bride was dressed in lace over white silk and carried a bouquet of white carnations. The bridesmaid was dressed in white muslin trimmed with lace and ribbon. The bride and groom will make Quincy their home. They were the recipients of numerous handsome gifts.

Their many friends extend congratulations.

Card of Thanks.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel R. McKay desire to express their sincere thanks to the members of the Police Department for the beautiful flowers sent them at the funeral of their infant daughter, Grace Dorothy, and to neighbors and friends for their words of sympathy and acts of kindness.

TODAY'S COURT.

The continued case of Harvey Abrams of Cohasset for peddling without a license was called and he was fined $10.

Patrick Murphy was fined $3 for drunkenness at Quincy.

Daniel W. Turner was arraigned for drunkenness at Weymouth. Case continued until next Tuesday.

PANAMA CANAL DIGGERS

Plenty of Offers to Furnish Cheap Labor.

MANY FROM FOREIGN SOURCES.

Thirty-two Propositions Received From Companies Employing Chinese—Japanese Offer to Furnish Skilled Mechanics and Laborers For Small Sums.

Since the announcement that one of the most serious problems facing the Panama canal commission is the question of labor hundreds of propositions have come to the commission from individuals and contractors all over the world offering to furnish suitable laborers in any quantity desired to dig the canal, says the Washington correspondent of the New York Herald.

The commission has nearly completed plans for improving sanitary conditions on the isthmus, which was considered a matter of primary importance, and attention has now been turned toward the labor question.

Thirty-two propositions have been received from companies employing Chinese labor, offering to furnish the government coolies to be employed on the canal at a cost of 62 cents a day for each laborer. The companies guarantee to feed and clothe the laborers their propositions contemplating the importation to Panama of large quantities of clothes worn by the Chinese at home, together with cargoes of rice and such other articles of food as they are accustomed to. It is also proposed to construct bamboo houses for the Chinese laborers, and the companies agree to return the bodies of all Chinese who may die on the isthmus to their native country unless death should be caused by contagious disease.

Another proposition has been submitted to the department by Lieutenant Charles O. Thomas, Jr., of the quartermaster's department, U. S. A., who recently supervised the construction of the military post at Batangas, Philippine Islands, and who is now supervising the construction of the new post at Los Banos. Lieutenant Thomas recently asked authority to take 2,000 Filipino laborers to work on the canal. He offered to supply skilled carpenters at $1.50 a day and rations, stone masons at $1 a day and rations and laborers at 75 cents a day and rations. He reports that he has employed Filipino labor almost entirely in the construction of military posts and roads in the Philippines and that it has proved exceptionally efficient. The secretary of war has forwarded the proposition to Admiral Walker, and should the commission decide to accept the offer Lieutenant Thomas will be given permission to bring his 2,000 Filipinos to Panama and put them to work on the canal.

Similar propositions have been received from Japan, the Japanese offering to furnish skilled mechanics at a stipend of $1 a day and laborers at 65 cents a day.

The Porto Ricans are particularly anxious to assist in the construction of Uncle Sam's great ditch. Thousands of applications have been received from Porto Rico requesting employment. It has been urged as a reason why Porto Rican labor should be employed that the island is today impoverished and that it would be a gracious thing on the part of Uncle Sam to employ Porto Ricans, thus furnishing the idle on the island employment, which in turn would furnish relief to thousands of families that are now practically destitute. It is also urged that the Porto Ricans are acclimated and would thus prove more efficient and valuable to the government than laborers brought from the States.

It is understood that a majority of the commission are opposed to employing foreign labor on the canal. They believe that as far as possible American workmen should be employed.

Admiral Walker believes that, as the canal is to be an American enterprise, American labor, as far as practicable, should be employed and that this labor should be properly compensated.

At present there is a force of about 2,000 men working on the canal. The majority of them are employed on the great cut on the Pacific side, which requires an excavation of 160 feet of the earth. Others are employed on other portions of the ditch merely for the purpose of keeping the work already done intact.

Perfume From Philippine Flower.

"America has the monopoly of the finest perfume in the world," said a well known chemist of Paris, according to a cable dispatch. "Despite our reputation in that line we French have nothing to beat the ylang-ylang. The integral parts of that perfume, a vegetable oil, are found in their highest perfection only in the Philippines. But it takes twenty pounds of flowers to distill two grains of the oil. It appears that the Yankees have not yet caught on to the good thing in their hands, which is a wonder, seeing that ylang-ylang is enormously popular."

Singular Custom.

The Russian and English sailors on board the cruiser Amphitrite, which took the Russian survivors of the Variag and Korietz to Ceylon, exchanged caps, than which a greater proof of perfect nautical entente could not be given.

A Result of Russo-Japanese War.

In consequence of the war with Japan 15,000 Russian laborers at Lodz are already out of employment. At Odessa 20,000 men who usually find work on the docks in summer are vainly seeking their former jobs

CONFESSED THEFT

Savings Bank Treasurer Helped Himself to Funds

A SHORTAGE OF $12,000

Kept It Hidden by Fictitious Series of Deposits on the Books --Aged Official Sent to Jail In Default of $10,000 Bonds

Watertown, Mass., Sept. 2.—Nathan A. Frye, for eight years the treasurer of the Watertown Savings bank, is charged with embezzling $12,000 from the bank. According to officials of the institution, Frye, who is about 65 years of age, has confessed the larceny. Late yesterday afternoon he was arraigned in court at Waltham, and was held in $10,000 for the grand jury. He appeared very much affected when, upon being asked to plead, he replied that he was not guilty and then waived examination.

Although the warrant upon which the treasurer was taken in custody declares that Frye converted the total amount of $12,000 upon Jan. 1, this year, the bank officials say that the larceny was distributed over a period of four years. The shortage came to light only a few days ago through a discovery by the bank's auditor that the trial balance statement did not agree with the aggregate of deposits in the bank. This led to a careful investigation and Frye was confronted with the facts. Thereupon, it is claimed, he confessed to taking a total of $12,000, hiding the shortage by means of creating a fictitious series of deposits on the books.

When the condition of affairs became known the bank officials conferred with the state police and also with the savings bank commissioners. An examination of the bank's securities was made, but they were found to be intact. Frye was technically placed under arrest Wednesday, but he was not formally taken into custody until yesterday afternoon, when all the circumstances in connection with the case were in the possession of the authorities.

Charles W. Stone, town treasurer for Watertown, who is vice president of the savings bank affected, stated that the security of the institution is not at all influenced by the defalcation. He said that the treasurer had filed a bond for $20,000 with the bank. He added that the deposits were as high as $1,200,000 and that one half of that amount could be raised at once on the institution's securities, if such were found necessary.

After Frye's arraignment in court he was removed to the county jail at Cambridge, being unable to secure bondsmen. Frye's home is in Cambridge, his family consisting of a wife and several children.

The following statement has been issued by Bank Examiner Otis:

"The affairs of the bank are otherwise in excellent condition and the depositors should have no apprehension whatever as to safety of their deposits in the institution. The negotiable bonds and securities of the bank, aggregating nearly $600,000 in value, have this day been examined at the safe deposit vault in Boston and found intact. The conditions of the bank at the close of the day's business shows that the deposits and funds at hand amount to $1,424,568.55."

VERY HARMONIOUS

Was the Conference Between Railway Officials and Men.

The conference on Thursday between President Sullivan and the committee representing the employes of the Quincy and Brockton division of the Old Colony street railway was very harmonious.

The committee met President Sullivan and the matters pertaining to the contract for the coming year were discussed in a most friendly spirit.

An agreement was reached in a greater part of the matters under discussion and there is no question but what the result will be the same in regard to all matters.

Lack of time prevented all matters from being adjusted on Thursday, and when the conference adjourned it was until next Friday at 10 o'clock, when it is expected all matters will be settled.

PERJURY CHARGE.

More Arrests in the Case of Andrew A. Meyer.

Following the arrest of ex-councilman Andrew A. Meyer for subornation of perjury has followed the arrest of Charles M. Moore of Somerville, who was employed as clerk at Meyer's hotel at Houghs Neck and of Charles L. Prescott of Quincy for perjury.

Some weeks ago the A. M. Richards building company of Charlestown secured a judgment against Meyer and attached his property. It is alleged that on Aug. 4 Moore gave a bond of $1000 to release the attachment and that the bond was worthless. It is also alleged that Prescott gave a similar bond for Meyer which was worthless.

The case against Meyer for subordination of perjury has been continued under a $5000 bond until Sept. 13 for a hearing. The cases against Moore and Prescott will probably be heard at the same time.

WHITON---WOODS.

Quincy Physician Weds a Malden Lady.

One of the most important social events at the Point for many months was the wedding reception on Thursday evening given by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph L. Whiton of Washington street, for their youngest son Ross Kittredge Whiton, M. D. and his bride Miss Ada Louise Woods, daughter of Mrs. Abbie F. Woods of Malden, Mass.

The ceremony was performed at the Whiton home at seven o'clock by Rev. John R. Cushing formerly pastor of the Malden Methodist Episcopal church. Mrs. Dora Mitchell Nason played the wedding march.

In the bridal party were Dr. Dana W. Drury of Roxbury, a classmate of the groom, who acted as best man and Miss Florence White Woods sister of the bride who was the maid of honor. The ushers were: Joseph L. Whiton, Jr., and Dr. W. J. Middleton of Quincy, Isaac W. Litchfield of New York and James G. Stiles of Malden.

Only the immediate families, relatives and friends were present at the ceremony.

A largely attended reception from eight until ten filled the spacious house to over-flowing, the Whitons being long resident and having a large circle of friends. The young people were assisted in receiving by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph L. Whiton, parents of the groom and Mrs. Woods, mother of the bride.

The bride's gown was an ivory messaline with duchess lace trimmings. The tulle veil was fastened with bride roses and she carried a large bouquet of the same roses. The maid of honor wore a blue silk crepe.

Evergreens, palms, ferns and white hydrangeas were used profusely in decorating the house producing beautiful results.

A wedding supper was served and there was also a display of beautiful gifts.

The groom is a Harvard A. B. 1900 and Harvard M. D. 1904, and the bride a popular young lady of Malden. The young people have hosts of friends and start life with the brightest prospect of future happiness and success.

They are to reside at 1220 Hancock street, Quincy centre, where Dr. Whiton has already opened his office, and they will receive their friends after November first.

Bowler—Moran.

A pretty wedding was solemnized at West Newton Wednesday evening the contracting parties being Timothy J. Bowler, a former Quincy boy, and Miss Margaret H. Moran, a popular young lady of West Newton. The wedding took place at St. Bernard's Catholic church the ceremony being performed by Father Galligan. John H. Dolan of this city was best man and Miss Mary Moran, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid.

After the wedding a reception was held at their future home 39 Auburndale avenue. The presents were numerous and costly. The spacious rooms were filled to overflowing by their many friends. There was a large attendance present from this city. After an extensive trip through New York state Mr. and Mrs. Bowler will reside at 39 Auburndale avenue, West Newton.

Smart Old Lady.

Among the visitors to Quincy this week was Mrs. Harriet Newall of Sumner, Me. Mrs. Newall, although 88 years of age is remarkably smart and made the trip from Maine unaccompanied. She left her home in the Pine Tree state last Monday. Her first stop was at Lowell where she spent the day with friends.

Tuesday she came to Quincy as the guest of her nephew, George Newall, who resides on the old Brackett estate. Wednesday she went to Abington and Thursday she was at Plymouth, from which place she left today for her home in Maine. There are few ladies of her age who would have the courage to travel about the country alone. She does not mind it however but on the whole enjoys travelling and says she is coming to Quincy again before spring.

Labor Day Parade.

Labor is preparing for its great holiday, and on Monday, Sept. 5, Boston will see the biggest Labor day parade in the city's history.

All arrangements for the parade, except a few of the minor details, are now completed. The parade will form on the streets adjacent to Boylston street, with the head of the column resting on Boylston street and Copley square, in front of the Public Library. The procession will start promptly at 10 o'clock, and it is expected that fully as many men as marched in the Grand Army parade will be in line.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

The vacation months are over, and yet to a good many people the two best vacation months of the year are just opening.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ If Hetty Green is taxed $20 on property worth $400, she has reason to complain, even if she is rich.—New Bedford Standard.

☞ Chief Willis Moore of the weather bureau thinks that a man who must have thirty days' vacation and thirty days' sick leave every year is clearly too feeble for government employ. He is acting accordingly, and somehow there is very little sympathy for the invalids whose cases he has been treating.—New Bedford Standard.

☞ Framingham's collector, who has held the office for 41 years, has been removed because he failed to file a $25,000 bond as the selectmen required him to do. The collector is now 85 years old, and because of his age and because his work has always been punctually performed, some citizens are criticising the selectmen harshly. But do they deserve it? Nowadays when tax collectors handle moneys rising to the $1,000,000 mark the taxpayers must be properly protected.—Boston Advertiser.

☞ It may be worthy of note that the four leading candidates before the people of the nation today attended church last Sunday, whether they happened to be at home, enjoying their summer vacations or on a hurried trip through a strange city. Whether there may or may not be reason for some fears of decreasing church attendence, it is significant that the leading men of the country are still those who identify themselves with the church and are careful in their attendance upon its services.—Haverhill Gazette.

☞ The opening month of fall is but an extension of the closing month of summer, and the difference in the weather is so slight that only by turning to the almanac is the transition appreciable. The entrance of September means the turning of the tide of summer travel, and the homeward rush will grow stronger every day until the tourists are once more safe at home, and the summer hotels closed for the season. The hotel season has been a short one, but probably as profitable as usual, for each year notes an increase of the number who make a practice of spending the summer weeks away from home.—Lynn Item.

☞ The paymaster-general of the army reports that since the abolition of the canteen the savings of soldiers deposited with the office have shrunk nearly two million dollars. In itself the fact doesn't prove that the men have been less saving and there is probably no accurate means of determining just what the significance of this fact is. But taken with the known fact that there have been in the vicinity of every army post from three to a dozen saloons established, that their patronage has been principally that of the soldiers, that they have unquestionably been profitable to their owners, and the lack of savings by the men in the ranks becomes of peculiar significance.—Haverhill Gazette.

☞ As was observed by a level-headed New York clergyman, what it costs to live depends very largely upon one's definition of "living."

If by living is meant idleness, luxury, the idle pursuit of pleasure and extravagant gratification, then the cost of living properly follows a whole set of moral and sanitary questions which ultimately become quite incapable of considering.

But living in the mind of a sober, sensible, honest, right-hearted man is quite another thing. It does not include things that are senseless or harmful. It carries no delusions. It means simplicity of habits and the consciousness of duty nobly done in place of idle whims and irrational longings.

A young man was recently before the courts for an increase of allowance. He declared that he could not possibly live on less than $34,000 a year. What does that mean? It means, as shown in his petition, three servants, $1,500; rent, $1,500; carriages, $3,000; for the table, $6,000; for clothing, $12,000, and so on.

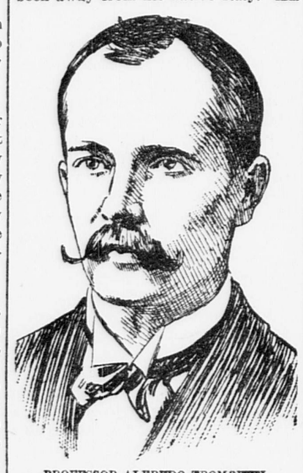

Such a person never asks himself what sense there is in this scale of living, and whether walking would not be a very beneficial substitute for so much carriage hire. Behind all the estimates of such persons as to the cost of living may be almost any conceivable thing.

There is not enough stoicism in the composition of the average young man of today. There is too much aping of wealthy ideals. We often hear men discussing what it costs to live. It depends altogether what the standard of living set up is. If that standard is a rational one the cost of living modestly and comfortably will be found to be astonishingly small.—South Framingham News.

A GREAT LINGUIST.

A New Genius Discovered In Professor Trombetti of Italy.

A new genius has been discovered in Italy. He is Professor Alfredo Trombetti, who is said to know more languages than any other man in the world. This remarkable linguist is but thirty-eight years old and has never been away from his native Italy. His wonderful acquirements were first brought to public attention by a book which he recently wrote, entitled "Connections Between the Languages of the Old World," which was sent to the Italian Academy of Sciences in competition for a prize. He was born of poor parents and apprenticed to a barber at an early age, but all the time he could spare from razors and brushes he spent on books.

How to Make Waffles.

One cupful of cold boiled rice passed through a sieve, one cupful of flour, half a teaspoonful of salt, one tablespoonful of sugar, one and a half teaspoonfuls of baking powder, two eggs, one heaping tablespoonful of butter and sweet milk enough to bind. First rub the butter into the sugar, sift together flour, salt and baking powder. Add to the sugar and butter, then add the yolks and rice. Thin this with milk to the consistency of cake batter; fold into it the beaten whites of the eggs. Have waffle irons hot and carefully greased, fill two-thirds full, close and turn when brown. Serve with maple sirup.

How to Keep Greens Fresh.

Celery, parsley, lettuce or watercress can be kept fresh and green an indefinite length of time by being thoroughly sprinkled with water each day, put into a brown paper bag to keep it from the air and placed on ice. Celery especially grows mellower under this treatment.

JAPANESE IN LIAOYANG

Carnival of Slaughter In Routing the Russians

KUROPATKIN ENVELOPED

Whole Army Withdrawn to Right Bank of Taitse River--Apparently Deprived of Retreat to Northern Base at Mukden by Cutting of Railway Communication -- Loss of Whole Army Not Unlikely--Total Casualties as Result of Desperate Fighting Estimated at Fifty Thousand Men

London, Sept. 2.—Yesterday's news from the seat of war closed with the receipt of two dispatches, giving information of a most significant character, as bearing on the domination of Manchuria at the close of the present campaign. The first came from a press correspondent at St. Petersburg, filed there at 10:16 p. m., and said that General Kuropatkin had withdrawn his whole army to the right bank of the Taitse river, so as to meet General Kuroki's flanking movement. The inference drawn from this dispatch was that Liaoyang had been evacuated, that city lying on the left bank of the river.

Nothing to confirm this was received until several hours later, when a dispatch from the press correspondent at St. Petersburg, dated Sept. 2, and timed at 1:26 this morning, said that "the news of the evacuation of Liaoyang and the withdrawal of the Russian army to the right bank of the Taitse river" had caused intense excitement and disappointment.

Late Thursday night the St. Petersburg press correspondent obtained an opinion from the war office that the withdrawal to the right bank of the Taitse river became necessary so that the Russians would be able to repel a blow in that direction and that General Kuropatkin's movement was the carrying out of a well defined idea, rather than a retreat.

The same dispatch points out, with notable lack of comment, that the Japanese took advantage of Kuropatkin's withdrawal to occupy the city of Liaoyang.

The second dispatch, which may have a significant bearing on the campaign, is that filed at Mukden at 9:27 p. m. yesterday, stating that the train service between Mukden and Liaoyang was interrupted, and it may mean the cutting of railroad communication, which would deprive Kuropatkin of an opportunity to retreat to his more northern base at Mukden. As pointed out in the St. Petersburg dispatch, the Mukden correspondent does not mention whether the telegraphic communications are open.

All the dispatches agree that the last three days have witnessed the most desperate fighting in the world's history. The slaughter in the early hours of Thursday, and especially during the retreat, when the Russians had to cross the River Taitse under a withering artillery fire, is described as something fearful. The total losses are estimated at 50,000.

A dispatch from Tokio, filed there at 2 p. m. yesterday, said that popular estimates of the date of the fall of Port Arthur inclined to the last week in September.

Commenting upon the situation in the far east, all the London newspapers discuss the problem as to whether General Kuropatkin will be able to extricate his forces or whether Marshal Oyama will succeed in completing the victory by enveloping and destroying the Russian army. The concensus of opinion is that Kuropatkin's position is most perilous.

The absence of telegrams from Liaoyang, together with the news that the railway is interrupted, the newspapers regard as showing that Kuropatkin has begun his retreat too late.

Interesting reports come from Tientsin and Chefoo that the Japanese have effected a landing of troops, the capture of two small forts near Tiger's Tail, three quarters of a mile from Port Arthur, and near the lighthouse at Lioati mountain, and that the attack is being vigorously pressed.

St Petersburg Hears Bad News

St. Petersburg, Sept. 2.—The news of the occupation of Liaoyang and the withdrawal of the Russian army to the right bank of the Taitse river has caused intense excitement and disappointment. The majority of the inhabitants retired to rest last night believing that Russian arms had again been successful and that the Japanese attacks had been repelled. Ugly suspicions, however, had been rife during the day, owing to the absence of press telegrams from Liaoyang, leading to the belief that the communications had been cut by General Kuroki.

The withdrawal of the Russians to the right bank involved the abandonment of Liaoyang, which is situated on the left bank. The Japanese took advantage of this to occupy the city, but the sternest part of the fighting is still before them unless Kuropatkin decides at the last hour to again fall back to the northward.

Up to the hour of filing this dispatch (1:26 a. m.) the war office has not given out the details of the fighting of Sept. 1, but it is believed that this fighting exceeded in fierceness that of any previous day. The absence of press telegrams from Liaoyang on Sept. 1 aroused suspicions that changes of importance were proceeding, which the military censors did not wish to be made known.

Rejoicing at Tokio

Tokio, Sept. 2.—Tokio rings with shouts and cheers for the victory at Liaoyang. Lantern bearing crowds swing through the streets and surge around the staff offices. The details of yesterday's fighting are scanty. It is only known that at dawn General Oku's army was hurled against the Russian right centre on the southern line and that the Russians were forced to abandon their line and positions and retreat. Their pursuit is now in progress. No estimates are obtainable of the losses on either side. Field Marshal Oyama describes his losses in the morning assault as heavy.

Another Victim of Mine

Tokio, Sept. 2.—A Russian steamer engaged in clearing the channel at Port Arthur struck a mine and was destroyed on Wednesday.

Judge Parker's Successor

New York, Sept. 2.—Judge Edgar M. Cullen of Brooklyn was appointed chief judge of the court of appeals by Governor Odell, succeeding Judge Alton B. Parker, resigned. Judge Cullen is a native of Brooklyn, where he was born in 1843. He served during the Civil war as second lieutenant of infantry and later as colonel of volunteer infantry. He was admitted to the bar in 1867, serving as assistant district attorney from 1872 to 1875. In 1880 he was elected supreme court justice for a term of 14 years and was re-elected in 1894. He is a Democrat and is now serving as an additional judge of the court of appeals. Judge Cullen will be nominated by the Republican party for the position to which he was yesterday appointed.

Peppered Queen of Zanzibar

Washington, Sept. 2.—Judge W. G. Reilly, formerly in the consular service and a well known character about town, died last evening from the effects of a heat stroke. A story is told of him to the effect that he shot the Queen of Zanzibar with salt and pepper, when he was consul to that country, because she persisted in bathing in the garb of nature in front of the American consulate each afternoon. He resigned after holding the office a year.

Was Favorite of Victoria

London, Sept. 2.—King Edward has approved the appointment of Earl Grey as governor general of Canada, in succession to the Earl of Minto. As a godson of the late Prince Consort, Lord Grey was a particular favorite at the court of Victoria, the queen being especially fond of him. Earl Grey is now about 52 years old. He is a brother of the Countess of Antrim and the Countess of Minto, as well as of the late Duchess of St. Albans.

Labor Leader at Rosemount

Esopus, N. Y., Sept. 2.—John N. Bogart, one of the state organizers of the American Federation of Labor, spent two or three hours in conference with Judge Parker. Both Bogart and Parker refused to make any statement about the visit. Bogart has in the past been a worker for the Democratic party in the field of organized labor and it is probable that the matters discussed related to the practical work of the campaign.

Steamer Carried 3124 Persons

New York, Sept. 2.—What was said to be the largest number of steerage passengers which ever arrived at this port in a single ship from England arrived on the steamship Baltic. There were 3124 persons on board, including the crew. William Riley, a cattleman who was in the steerage, completed his 204th round trip across the Atlantic.

Increase In Treasury Deficit

Washington, Sept. 2.—The deficit in the United States treasury was increased by $6,382,608 in August, and now stands at $23,790,336 for the fiscal year begun July 1. There was a decrease in current receipts and an increase in expenditures during the last month, as compared with August, 1903.

About to Attack Capital

Buenos Ayres, Sept. 2.—The Paraguayan revolutionists have captured Villa Concepcion and 400 men with arms and ammunition. The revolutionists now refuse all the terms offered them by the government and an attempt on the capital is believed to be imminent.

Won't Study With Negro

Ada, O., Sept. 2.—Three hundred students at the Ohio Normal university have signed a petition to the trustees to refuse a negro student the privilege of studying at the school. The students refused to attend class yesterday as a protest against the presence of the negro.

Automobile Went Astray

New York, Sept. 2.—An automobile in which George B. Damon, a wealthy resident of Pittsburg, was riding, smashed into a guard rail of a bridge in Central park and plunged down to the footway, 20 feet below. Damon was taken to a hospital.

HOUGHS NECK.

The season at the beach is nearing its end. Several families have already returned to their homes and another week will see many more take their departure.

The new arrivals are few and far between and the real estate agents report nothing doing.

H. M. Gragg and family returned to Waltham this week.

Thomas H. Mattheus and family have returned to their winter home in Waltham.

George H. Wilkins and family have returned to Campello.

F. M. Coburn and family have returned to Dorchester.

The evening dancing parties continue to be well patronized.

A very pleasing musical entertainment was given at the Yacht club house Wednesday evening by friends of W. J. Tilley.

The Quincy Yacht club will hold another race on Labor Day.

KEEPING CUT FLOWERS.

How They May Be Preserved For Several Weeks.

Cut flowers, when properly treated, can be made to look fresh for three or four weeks, writes a florist in the St. Louis Republic.

Every night take them out of the vases and thoroughly rinse the stalks under a faucet, removing with the fingers any decomposed matter. Then put them to bed for the night in a basin of strong soapsuds, but be careful not to allow any water to touch the blossoms. The soapsuds supply a certain amount of nourishment.

In the morning rinse the stalks under the water again and, as each blossom is arranged for the day in the vase of fresh water, snip off a tiny portion of the stalk with a pair of scissors. Always carefully trim away any faded part.

Food for the day is supplied by sulphate of ammonia, a few drops of which should be added to the water put into the vase.

At night put the flowers in some dark, cool place—say a pantry—as it is not good either for the flowers or the household that they should remain all the time in the living rooms.

To revive cut flowers put them into warm salt water, to which has been added a few drops of sulphate of ammonia.

Cut flowers are constantly sent by express and through the mails, but seldom in such a fashion as to preserve their bloom and freshness.

To effect this pack them in a light wooden box lined with cotton or wadding, laying over this a sheet of tissue paper. Then lay the flowers, not on top of each other, but in rows, side by side, the blossoms of each row on the stems of their neighbors.

Pack closely, otherwise the flowers will be displaced and injured in the journey. Before packing they should stand in water several hours in order to absorb moisture enough to keep them from withering.

It is not good to sprinkle them too heavily after they are in the box, for without air this is likely to produce mildew.

How to Cure Seasickness.

Suffering severely on a recent voyage, the captain gave a friend of the writer the following remedy, which at the time brought her relief, but if taken for a few days before starting on a sea voyage it will almost surely prevent seasickness: Six ounces peppermint water, eight drams bromide of soda, four drams bromide of ammonia. A teaspoonful in a wineglassful of water is to be taken before each meal and on retiring.—Pictorial Review.

How to Make Pin Money.

A profitable and interesting way to earn pin money is by making raffia shopping bags, says the Woman's Home Companion. They are made the same as the shoe string bags, the knot being the same, and a fringe left at the bottom for a finish. These bags hold a surprising amount. Fifteen cents' worth of raffia will make a bag that will retail for a dollar, or $1.50 if it is lined with bright silk. Another way to earn spending money is by making fish net out of carpet warp. Two spools, costing 25 cents, will make a net that one could retail for $2.50. In a college town the nets are always in demand for the students' rooms, being used for draperies or to hold pictures. A child as well as a grown person can make a net, as it is quickly and simply done.

How to Make Mexican Salad.

Shave enough cabbage fine to make two cups, and chop peanuts to measure one-quarter cup. Make a dressing of six tablespoonfuls of olive oil, two of vinegar, a level teaspoonful of salt and a little paprika. Stir the dressing into the cabbage and nuts and set in the ice chest to season for half an hour before serving.

Salt Rheum

You may call it eczema, tetter or milk crust.

But no matter what you call it, this skin disease which comes in patches that burn, itch, discharge a watery matter, dry and scale, owes its existence to the presence of humors in the system.

It will continue to exist, annoy, and perhaps agonize, as long as these humors remain.

It is always radically and permanently cured by which expels all humors, and is positively unequalled for all cutaneous eruptions.

Do you know a tomato when you see one? Yes, when it is outside a bottle of catsup.

Most "tomato" catsup is colored with aniline dye, or other artificial coloring matter; nobody would touch the stuff undisguised.

Columbia, "The Uncolored Catsup," contains only the red of the perfectly ripe tomato.

Estimated to contain 85,000 square feet of land.

Together with all the flats adjoining and appurtenant to the parcel above described.

The two foregoing parcels are two of the three parcels described in Certificate of Title No. 108, issued by the Registry District of Norfolk County, Massachusetts, dated January 13, 1904, and recorded in Norfolk County Registry District Court of Land Registration, Book 1, page 108, the second of the parcels described in said certificate having been released from said mortgage or deed of trust. Reference is made to said certificate and to the plans filed therewith for further description of said parcels. Said two parcels above described comprise the premises decribed as parcels numbered 2 to 6 inclusive in said mortgage or deed of trust of December 6, 1902, parcel numbered 1 in said mortgage being the parcel released as above stated.

Parcel No. 3. A certain parcel of land, situated on the easterly side of Commercial street in Braintree in the County of Norfolk and Commonwealth of Massachusetts, bounded and described as follows, viz.:

Commencing on land now or late of John B. Allen on said Commercial street, and running northerly on said street to land now or late of Joshua Wilkins; thence turning and running easterly on land of said Wilkins by a stone wall to a junction of said stone wall with another stone wall; thence turning and running southerly by land formerly of Barnabas T. Loring to land of said Allen by said last mentioned wall; thence turning and running first westerly, then southerly, then westerly, then southerly, then westerly all on land now or late of the said Allen by stone walls to the point of beginning, and containing twenty (20) acres more or less.

Parcel No. 4. Also a certain parcel of land situated on the westerly side of said Commercial street in said Braintree and opposite the last described tract and bounded and described as follows, viz.:

Commencing on land now or late of Robert Dickey on said Commercial street and running southerly on said Commercial street to Adams street; thence turning and running northwesterly on said Adams street to land conveyed by Sidney Coolidge to the Fore River Ship & Engine Co., by deed dated January 7, 1904, and recorded with Norfolk Deeds, Book 965, page 137; thence turning and running northwesterly and bounded southwesterly by said land of the said Fore River Ship & Engine Co., three hundred fifty-three (353) feet; thence turning and running easterly and bounded northerly by said land now or late of Dickey to said Commercial street at the point of beginning. The two last described parcels of land are a part of the same premises conveyed to Sidney Coolidge by Francis M. Edwards, by deed dated January 5, 1904, and recorded with said deeds, Book 965, page 134.

Parcel No. 5. Also a certain parcel of land situated in Braintree, bounded and described as follows:

Beginning at the southerly corner thereof on Elm street, at land conveyed by Birney C. Parsons to George E. Bruorton, by deed dated November 3, 1903, and recorded with said Deeds, Book 960, page 507, and running northwesterly along the said premises conveyed by said Parsons as aforesaid, seven hundred forty-two (742) feet, more or less, to land now or late of Mrs. Austin White; thence running northeasterly along said land now or late of said White, one hundred twenty-two (122) feet, more or less, to an angle; thence running southeasterly and bounded northeasterly by said land of White, about one hundred twelve (112) feet to an angle; thence turning and running northeasterly and bounded northwesterly by said land of White, about eighty (80) feet to land conveyed by Sidney Coolidge to said Fore River Ship & Engine Company by said deed recorded with said Deeds, Book 965, page 137; thence turning and running southerly by said land of the said Fore River Ship & Engine Company, about six hundred and sixty (660) feet, to said Elm street; thence turning and running along said Elm street to the point of beginning.

Parcel No. 6. Also a certain parcel of land situated in said Braintree, bounded northeasterly by said Commercial street; southeasterly by a private way formerly Elm street, which private way leads from said Elm street to said Commercial street; westerly by land conveyed by Sidney Coolidge to the said Fore River Ship & Engine Company by said deed recorded with said Deeds, Book 965, page 137; northwesterly by land now or formerly of said White. The two parcels last above described are a part of the same premises conveyed to Sidney Coolidge by said Birney C. Parsons, by deed dated January 5, 1904, and recorded with said Deeds, Book 965, page 136.

Parcel No. 7. A certain piece or parcel of land situated on the northeasterly side of Howard avenue, in that part of said Quincy known as Quincy Neck bounded northwesterly by land of the Fore River Ship and Engine Company, formerly of George J. Sargent, five hundred and seventy-one (571) feet, northeasterly by land of the Fore River Ship and Engine Company, formerly of heirs of Noah Bosworth, one hundred and forty and four-tenths (140.4) feet, southeasterly by the land of the Fore River Ship and Engine Company, formerly of Malchionda, five hundred and sixty-one (561) feet, and southwesterly by Howard avenue, one hundred and forty-one (141) feet, being premises formerly of Noah Bosworth, deceased.

Parcel No. 8. All the line of railroad of said Fore River Ship and Engine Company, extending from and including the yard of said Company in said Quincy to the line of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company in said Braintree, together with the land appurtenant and adjacent thereto belonging to said Fore River Ship and Engine Company, and all rights and easements appurtenant thereto or used in connection therewith, and particularly the rights granted to the Fore River Ship and Engine Company by Kerby Stevens and Frederick H. Allen by deeds dated respectively December 31, 1903, and January 15, 1904, and recorded with Norfolk Deeds January 25, 1904, —subject, however, to the rights granted by said Fore River Ship and Engine Company to said Kerby Stevens by deed dated December 31, 1903, recorded with Norfolk Deeds January 26, 1904.

A portion of the premises to be conveyed is subject to a mortgage from Charles W. Pike to Albert H. Davenport, dated November 14, 1902, recorded with Norfolk Deeds, Book 934 page 545.

The conveyance will also be made subject to an easement granted by the Fore River Ship and Engine Company to the Old Colony Street Railway Company by deed dated January 30, 1904, to erect, operate and maintain upon certain terms, conditions, reservations and exceptions a pole line for the transmission of electricity and for telephones for the private use of said Railway Company along the route described as follows:—

Beginning at the South Shore Branch of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, in Braintree, Massachusetts, thence extending northwesterly over land conveyed to said Fore River Ship and Engine Company by Sidney Coolidge by deed dated January 7th, 1904, and recorded with Norfolk Deeds Book 955, page 137, to Adams street; thence crossing said Adams street and continuing northwesterly over land of said Fore River Ship and Engine Company to Elm street; thence crossing said Elm street and continuing northerly over land of said Fore River Ship and Engine Company to Commercial street; thence crossing said Commercial street and continuing northeasterly over land of said Fore River Ship and Engine Company to land now or formerly of one Patch.

The following parcel, which has been released from the lien of said mortgage or deed of trust, by instrument of release dated June 4, 1904, will be excepted from the conveyance:—

A certain parcel beginning on Commercial street at land now or late of John W. Ratchiffe and running westerly on said land one hundred and eight [108] feet to a stake on the margin of Factory Pond so called; thence turning and running northerly and northwesterly on a curved line along the margin of said pond four hundred and five [405] feet more or less to a stake on the margin of said pond situated twenty-five [25] feet from the centre line of the Fore River Railroad as now laid out; thence turning and running northeasterly eighty-six feet three inches [86 ft. 3 in.] to a stake on Adams street situated ninety-four [94] feet more or less from the center line of said railroad where it crosses the southerly side of Adams street; thence turning and running southeasterly on Adams street to Commercial street and southerly on Commercial street a total distance of four hundred ninety feet four inches [490 ft. 4 in.] to the point of beginning.

The conveyance will include, in addition to the property, rights, privileges and franchises above described, any property, rights, privileges and franchises not herein described which may at the time of sale be covered by said orginal mortgage or deed of trust of the Fore River Ship & Engine Company or any indenture to the Adams Trust Company supplemental thereto. The conveyance to the purchaser will be made without covenants, express or implied. Article XIII of said mortgage or deed of trust provides that said Fore River Ship & Engine Company will, upon request of the purchaser at foreclosure sale, make, execute and deliver to said purchaser a good and sufficient deed or deeds to confirm the title in said purchaser.

The said property will be sold as an entirety to the highest bidder, subject to all unpaid taxes, assessments and other liens, if any. No bid will be received from any person who shall not first deposit with the auctioneer, as a pledge that he will make good his bid in case of its acceptance, the sum of Twenty-five thousand (25,000) dollars in cash, or in a certified check for that amount on some National Bank or Trust Company of the City of Boston, made or endorsed payable to the order of the Adams Trust Company, Trustee. Deposits so received from any unsuccessful bidders will be returned to them when the property shall be struck off, and the deposit so received from any successful bidder will be applied on account of the purchase price of the property sold. On the acceptance of any bid the purchaser shall forthwith pay to the auctioneer in addition to the amount of the deposit qualifying him to bid as above provided, the sum of Twenty-five thousand (25,000) dollars in cash, or in a certified check for that amount on some National Bank or Trust Company of the City of Boston, made or endorsed payable to the order of the Adams Trust Company, Trustee. The purchaser shall within ten days from the date of sale pay to the Adams Trust Company as Trustee, on account of the purchase price, an additional sum sufficient to make his total payments equal to (50) per cent. of such purchase price, and the balance of the purchase price shall be paid and the property transferred on or before the expiration of thirty days from date of sale. In case any bidder shall fail to make good his bid upon its acceptance, or shall fail after its acceptance to make the further payments herein before required, then his right to receive and purchase the property shall at the option of the said Trust Company at once cease, and said Trust Company shall have the right to proceed at once to re-sell the property, and all sums deposited or paid by him shall be forfeited and shall be applied to the payment of the expenses and charges in connection with the re-sale and toward making good any deficiency, loss or damage resulting from such failure and re-sale, whether arising from the delay, from the fact that the second sale is made at a less price than the first, or from any other cause, and any balance remaining shall be repaid to the defaulting bidder or purchaser. The purchaser may in making payment of the purchase money, deliver to the Trustee any of the bonds or coupons secured by said mortgage or deed of trust, said bonds or coupons to be computed at a sum equal to that which would be payable out of the net proceeds of said sale (if made for money) to the purchaser as the holder of the bonds and coupons so delivered for his share or proportion of such net proceeds.

Further information may be had on application to the undersigned or its counsel.

Insured for $2,000,000

L. Rodman Wanamaker, son of John Wanamaker, the eminent merchant of New York and Philadelphia, has taken out a policy in

The Prudential Insurance Co.

for $1,000,000, paying an annual premium of over $30,000. This makes him the most heavily insured man in the world, with the single exception of King Edward VII.

Mr. Wanamaker's total insurance is now $2,000,000.

Ask yourself WHY Mr. Wanamaker placed one-half this great amount with The Prudential.

Your business judgment will at once reply: "Because after full investigation and comparison, Mr. Wanamaker found that the company which could give him the best insurance for a given amount of money was The Prudential."

Undoubtedly you will agree that Mr. Wanamaker does not pay over $30,000 per year except for most excellent reasons.

These reasons apply to YOU precisely as well as they do to HIM.

MISSING PRINCESS

Details of the Escape of Louise From Her Guardians

CHAMBERMAID AIDED HER

Secretly Carried Notes Detailing Plans For Departure--Sanitarium Manager Allowed Conversation With Her Lover

Badelster, Saxony, Sept. 2.—Princess Louise of Coburg, who is thought to have eloped with Mattasitch-Keglevich, a former lieutenant in the Austrian army, escaped alone, it now appears, from her hotel at 2 o'clock Tuesday morning. She was joined under the trees in the hotel garden by two women and a man. They entered a two-horse carriage which was waiting outside and were driven swiftly away in the direction of Munich. A man named W. Gratz, who was stopping at the hotel, has not appeared since Monday night. It is supposed that he provided the means for the flight of the princess, and that he was an agent of Matassich-Keglevich, with whom she eloped in 1897.

Beyond the outskirts of the town some of the occupants of the carriage were transferred to an automobile and the carriage continued its rapid flight, probably to confuse possible pursuers. It is deemed likely that the princess was one of those taking the automobile. The chauffeur drove the machine through several roads leading in different directions from the town, doubtless with the purpose to further create doubt as to which road the princess really took. An automobile similar to that which left Badelster was traced to Hof, 40 miles away. Whether the princess took the 8 a. m. train there for Munich or proceeded in the automobile is undetermined.

The disappearance of the princess was most dexterously managed, as she was under sharp surveillance day and night, both by an especially trustworthy court lady with three servants and by the manager of the royal baths, who had been made responsible for her safekeeping.

A watchman who was in the hotel corridor at the time the princess escaped saw nothing of her.

A chambermaid who had access to the princess' apartments carried notes regularly between the princess and another person. It was in this correspondence doubtless that the plans to escape were conveyed. The princess was to have been taken back to the sanitarium in two or three days. A visit from her sister, the Countess Lonyay, had been promised for Sept. 7.

The pursuit is not likely to be keen, as it is very well understood that the husband of the princess is rather pleased than otherwise at her escape because he thinks she has been sufficiently punished.

The sympathies of the Belgian court have been with her for the same reason, it being thought that she has been harshly treated.

The princess, it appears, met Lieutenant Matassich-Keglevich in the garden of the Dresden art exhibition two weeks ago, where she was taken under the escort of Manager Pierson of the sanitarium. The latter had turned away a few minutes before to look at a piece of sculpture. So soon as he saw the princess talking to a strange man, Pierson hastened toward them. She told him that the man was Lieutenant Matassich-Keglevitch and begged to be allowed to speak with him. Pierson replied that she knew that to be impossible and that he must insist that she go with him immediately.

The princess began to cry and asked to be allowed to talk with the lieutenant for a few minutes. She became so distressed that Pierson turned to Matassich-Keglevitch and requested him to give his word of honor that he would not attempt to persuade the princess to leave those who were taking care of her. The lieutenant promised, Pierson withdrew out of hearing, and the two so long separated talked together for several minutes, until Pierson told them that the interview must end.

Husband Not Worrying

Dresden, Sept. 2.—Up to the present not the slightest trace has been found of the refuge sought by Princess Louise, and it would seem that the adventure has been brought to a successful conclusion. That the princess and her escorts took a train for Munich has been established, but nothing further is known. Prince Philip of Saxe-Coburg, husband of the princess, apparently is not concerning himself with the departure of his wife and has not given any directions as to future procedure.

Tinsmiths on Strike

Philadelphia, Sept. 2.—Seven hundred tinsmiths and sheet metal workers have gone on strike here for an advance of 5 cents an hour. The old contract expired yesterday. Employers say that the union refused to accept an agreement or to submit the same to arbitration.

Mrs McVicker Not Poisoned

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 2.—An analysis of the stomach and other portions of the late Mrs. J. H. McVicker by Dr. R. V. Day, city chemist of Los Angeles, has been completed, and no trace of poison was found.

MARRIED AT SIXTEEN

Elopement of Ten Years Ago Ends In Tragedy at Lowell

Lowell, Mass., Sept. 2.—Crazed by jealousy, Narcisse Dufresne, 26 years old, shot his wife, Almeria, last evening and then turned the revolver on himself. He died three hours later, while the woman has a fair chance of recovery. The attempted murder took place in Decatur avenue, nearly opposite the Church of St. Jean de Baptiste. Many saw the shooting and followed the chase which Dufresne gave before he shot himself.

The couple had been married 10 years. They eloped when very young, Dufresne supplanting a wealthy Canadian to whom Almeria had been promised by her relatives. For a few years they lived happily, but of late the man has been drinking and this fact, coupled with what he believed to be unfaithfulness on his wife's part, apparently inspired the deed.

Fire Loss of $100,000

Boston, Sept. 2.—Nourished by nearly 6000 gallons of varnish, hundreds of bales of excelsior and an immense amount of seasoned wood and finished furniture, a fire raged for three hours in the chair factory of P. Derby & Co. last night, causing the ruin of all the stock and finished product of the company and burning out the two upper floors of the building. The fire broke out in the upholstery room on the fourth floor. The cause is unknown.

Had Not Lost Its Novelty

Boston, Sept. 2.—The electrical parade, which was held in Charlestown on the evening of June 17, the anniversary of the Battle of Bunker Hill, and again during the recent Grand Army encampment, was repeated last night for the benefit of many who had not before seen it. Although it was the third time the pageant had been held, more than 150,000 spectators thronged the streets through which it passed.

Jewelry Clerks Took the Bait

Boston, Sept. 2.—While the two clerks in charge of the Eagle Jewelry company's store last night hastened to the assistance of a fainting woman on the sidewalk, an unknown man entered the store and seized jewelry valued at $1000 and escaped. The description of the thief is meagre. It is believed that the woman who fainted was a confederate of the man who stole the jewels.

On Open Shop Basis

Boston, Sept. 2.—The clothing contractors have submitted to the several hundred striking garment workers a new agreement which they are willing to sign, containing a clause insisting on the open shop, in which they say: "All employers are at liberty to employ and discharge whomsoever they see fit." The garment workers have not accepted it.

Hoar's Condition Unchanged

Worcester, Mass., Sept. 2.—Senator Hoar's condition is still unchanged. He sleeps well and although his heart is no weaker he does not gain strength.

Car Crashed Into Carriage

New York, Sept. 2.—Travelling at high speed, a cross-town car last night struck and demolished a carriage driven by Dr. Martin W. Auspitz, killing Frank Schiemer, a boy who was stealing a ride, and fatally injuring Laura Schreyer, one of Auspitz's patients, who was in the carriage with him. Dr. Auspitz received a fractured arm and leg and many bruises.

Vicious Assault by a Mob

New York, Sept. 2.—There was an outbreak of violence here last night on the upper East Side in connection with the beef strike. A mob overturned a wagonload of fresh meat and beat and stamped on Henry Fisher, the driver, who is suffering from shock, concussion of the brain and interial injuries. His body was covered with bruises. There were no arrests.

Peck Again In Gubernatorial Race

Oshkosh, Wis., Sept. 2.—The Democratic state convention nominated a state ticket headed by former Governor G. W. Peck for governor. Peck was chosen by acclamation amid great enthusiasm. The platform approves the principles declared by the last national Democratic convention at St. Louis and the nomination of Parker and Davis.

Whitman Near Journey's End

Utica, N. Y., Sept. 2.—L. L. Whitman, who is trying to break the San Francisco-New York automobile record, having left San Francisco Aug. 1, arrived here at 11:30 last night. He left at 6 o'clock this morning, hoping to make New York by Saturday.

Found City Hall Deserted

Montreal, Sept. 2.—There was no one to receive the Archbishop of Canterbury and J. P. Morgan when they arrived to pay an official visit to the city hall. The mayor was absent and it took a long time before the official rooms could be opened.

To Confer With Strikers

Chicago, Sept. 2.—Representatives of five of the leading railroad organizations in the country are coming to this city to confer with officials of the Butchers' union regarding measures of relief for the stockyards men now out. The officers of these organizations have not given any assurance that they will favor a sympathetic strike, but are simply coming in response to the invitation of the officers of the Butchers' union, who will ask for their aid and co-operation.

Barkentine and Crew Lost

St. Johns, Sept. 2.—Schooner Troop, from the Grand Banks, reports that the fishing schooner Coleraine reported having spoken a French barkentine, name unknown, 170 miles off Cape Race with only three men left out of a crew of 34, the others having been lost while fishing with their dories. The French captain begged the Coleraine to help him reach this port, but the weather was too stormy, and it is feared that the French vessel and the remainder of her crew have perished.

Shooting Over Mongrel Dog

New York, Sept. 2.—John Flinn was probably fatally shot because he and others laughed at a mongrel dog that followed John Stehl and his brother Joseph into a saloon. The Stehls are under arrest. Flinn has identified John as the one who did the shooting.

Ten Passengers Hurt

Chicago, Sept. 2.—A State street cable train struck an iron pin in the cable slot last night and was hurled from the track. The car was filled with passengers and 10 were hurt, two seriously, in the panic that followed.

Union President Arrested

Fort Madison, Ia., Sept. 2.—L. C. Neyer, president of the Machinists' International union, is charged with assault with intent to kill, the arrest being the result of an alleged attack by Neyer on strike breakers here.

FARMERS' MONTH AT WORLD'S FAIR

Biggest Department of the Great Exposition Ready For the Inspection of the Army of Men Who Made Its Creation Possible.

Now that crops have been or are being laid by, the farmer prepares for his trip to the World's Fair, a treat that has long been promised him and for which he has patiently waited. No exposition has offered so many inducements for the farmer's presence as this one at St. Louis, nor has any previous exposition given the prominence and space to the subject of agriculture.

August and September are ostensibly the farmer's months at the Exposition, for it is at this season that the agriculture exhibits are the freshest and best. Products of the new crops are pouring into the booths from every state in the Union, and additions are constantly being made to the gorgeous display.

Headquarters for visiting farmers may be found in every state section of the great Agriculture Palace, but for their special convenience there has just been completed a Grange House, situated in the south end of the building. It is equipped with a reception room, ladies' retiring rooms and check rooms, where parcels may be left free of charge. Here will be kept a list of moderate priced rooms to aid visiting farmers and their families in procuring accommodations.

The largest building on the grounds is the Palace of Agriculture, covering twenty acres, while the Palace of Horticulture near by covers about a third as much space. These two immense structures are filled with exhibits of the farm, garden and orchard of the most extensive and elaborate character, every state in the Union and most of the principal countries of the world being represented.

Agriculture is given more prominence than any other department at the Exposition, the paramount importance of this great industry having been fully appreciated from the very beginning of the World's Fair movement.

About seventy acres of ground are covered by the agriculture and horticulture department at the Fair, large outdoor spaces being devoted to this industry. Outside there are growing crops, trees and flowers, an instructive six acre farm maintained by the United States Government Plant Industry, and gardens in all parts of the grounds.

There are more exhibits in the Agriculture building than in any other section of the Exposition. This building is considered by many people the most interesting part of the World's Fair. The exhibits in the palaces of Agriculture and Horticulture constitute a display vast enough and instructive enough to occupy the attention of visitors for many days. Nothing to compare with them was ever attempted before. They are the climax of several decades of educational work which is placing farming on a high plane and is making scientific agriculture a pleasing reality.

The conspicuous role played by agriculture at the World's Fair should bring untold benefits and wealth to the farming community of the world and impress all farmers with the importance and dignity of their calling.

Passing through these colossal buildings, studying the attractive exhibits and fascinated with the bewildering encyclopedia of rural life which is spread out before his eyes, the World's Fair visitor is impressed with the important part the farmer plays in the great world of industry, and every farmer who views these interesting exhibits is given a new pride in his vocation if filled with inspiration and impressed with new ideas in harmony with the progressive strides that farming has been making for the past few years. The visit will give an insight into up to date farming on the most approved plan and will bring new hopes and blessings to the farm.

How properly to rotate crops, how to get the best results from fertilizing and irrigation, how to protect crops and fruit from the ravages of insects—all these and many more things of vital interest to farmers and fruit growers are taught at the World's Fair.

NOTES ABOUT TOWN.

The rain that is so badly needed does not seem to come.

Stephen A. Pierce of Wilton, N. H., is in town on a visit.

Mr. Bert Pitts of Wollaston leaves today for Cottage City.

William J. Parker has gone to Atlantic City for a few days' vacation trip.

Mr. Waldron P. Schumacher of Beach street is spending a week at Kennebunkport, Me.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Bartlett of Wollaston have returned from a pleasant camping trip in Maine.

Postmaster Hammond has placed a mail collection box in the Hancock building in the corridor leading to the court room.

Mr. R. B. Tobey of Lincoln avenue, accompanied by Stanley W. Ferguson, of Charles street, has left for a few weeks' trip to St. Louis.

Mrs. Weatherspoon and daughter, Libby, of Garfield street leave on Saturday for a short stay with her brother, Samuel Kain, Milford, Mass.

Clifford Hill and Harry Arthur of Charles street are building two racing tenders. They will race sometime this month, the prize being a silver cup.

The Iron Ship Drillers and Tappers union will hold a smoke talk at Cahill's hall next Wednesday evening. There will also be an address on unionism.

Surprise Party.

Miss Mary and Jean Cramond were surprised by twenty of their young friends at their home at 109 Intervale street on Monday evening. Miss Harriet Daley played several selections on the piano, games were enjoyed and light refreshments were served.

Those present were: Lulu Hayden, Lillian Riddler, Bessie Warmington, Mary Warmington, Bessie Miller, Harriet Daley, Pearl McDonald, Florence McDonald, Jean Cramond, Mary Cramond.

Ernest Warmington, John Souter, George Moorhouse, William Warmington, Walter Murray, James Michael, Charles Dunbar, Stanley Collins, Harold Richards, William Pratt.

—It was an Indiana farmer who declared that there must be something in "luck" because his neighbor bored for water and struck oil, while he bored for oil and struck water. The "luck" theory is still further established by the fortunes of the steamship Alaskan, which reached New York from Hawaii Sunday with a cargo of sugar, the value of which, owing to the rise in price, was $30,000 more than it would have been had the ship not been delayed by a storm at Coronel.—Herald.

—It is reported that the undertakers in the Adirondack region are all ready for a rush of business. The deer season has opened, and the amateurs who shoot at a moving bush without waiting to see what is behind it are pouring into that section.

—The Wabash railroad has just paid, it is said, ten million dollars to get into Pittsburg.

ADVERTISE IN THE LEDGER.

Crop for August.

In its crop report for August the State Board of Agriculture prints an article on "Harvesting and Marketing Apples." by F. A. Waugh, professor of horticulture at the Mass. Agricultural College. A copy will be sent to any one applying to J. Lewis Ellsworth, Sec. State Board of Agriculture, State House, Boston, and those wishing it may have their names placed on the mailing list for future issues.

In this article Prof. Waugh says: The apple is peculiarly at home in Massachusetts and New York State. Northward the severe winters make the growing of many varieties precarious, while southward the trees are less and less thrifty. The commercial importance of the apple crop in Massachusetts is increasing rapidly from year to year, and the methods of handling it have been much changed in recent years. The farmers who still adhere to the old-fashioned way of doing things do not find great encouragement in selling apples, but on the other hand, those who have taken up with modern ideas, or better still have led in the establishment of modern practices, are reaping their just and generous reward.

Prof. Waugh then describes the methods of picking the fruit, saying that time was when apples were shaken from the tree. Today they must be hand-picked in order to be marketable, and they should be taken off with the stems attached to the fruit, to prevent rupture of the skin and decay of the fruit. The matter of having apples fully grown, ripe, and thoroughly colored is of so much importance that some growers have adopted the practice of picking over the tree two or three times. Kinds of baskets and ladders to be used are described, and also a convenient wagon for handling the fruit between the orchard and the storage room or shipping station.

In nothing, says Prof. Waugh, does the work of the experienced apple seller differ more from that of the inexperienced man than in the grading of the fruit. Apples should be graded into at least three lots,—firsts, seconds and culls. The first grade of fruit must be of good size, uniform in shape and color, free from blemishes and true to name. Second grade fruit is smaller, not so well colored, but must be free from any serious blemishes. The rules of the National Apple shippers' Association for grading the fruit are given, and the methods of sorting and packing described, with a cut illustrating a convenient sorting table.

Prof. Waugh describes the different kinds of packages and barrels in which apples are sold and then speaks of the rapid development of cold storage for apples during the last five years. Many storage companies accept apples for storage direct from the growers, charging from thirty to fifty cents a barrel for the season, extending to the first of May.

Retailing in the home market Prof. Waugh considers the most profitable method of selling apples where possible. Selling on the tree is of considerable advantage to those not in close touch with the apple market, or not experienced in grading and packing fruit. Selling on commission is the method perhaps most common, but selling on joint account, a new method, described in detail, Prof. Waugh considers to be more satisfactory.

In closing Prof. Waugh says: "It may be proper to remark, though 1904 is scheduled as the "apple year" with us, the crop now promises to be moderate. The most reliable reports we have seen say that it will be less than last year. Prices offered by buyers this fall will probably be about the same as in the fall of 1903. Though growers cannot generally expect to get better prices than a year ago, they should not be frightened into selling for less merely because this is called "apple year" in Massachusetts."

TODAY'S COURT.

Henry D. Cormeran was fined $15 for speeding an automobile on the Blue Hills reservation.

Jeremiah Doran was sent to the house of correction for thirty days for disturbing the peace at Weymouth.

—It is dryer in Quincy and vicinity now than any other time this season. But in New York State it is different; it was the wettest August for twenty years.

The Yacht Julia.

It is more than thirty years, since Mr. John Clean, silversmith, doing business at No. 3 Wareham street, Boston, located in Atlantic, with his family; having observed the sequestered table-land overlooking the water of that lovely part of Quincy bay, bounded by the Squantum level and promontory, and the islands, seaward, and like his illustrious countryman, Sir Francis Drake, delighted in the pretty nook; provided a generous estate, and introduced himself to his neighbors and acquaintances newly made, a perfect type of the English gentleman; his wife, as kindly hearted and merry a matron as became the home and as excellent a lady as a community could desire; two daughters, Miss Mattie and Miss Annie and John the only son constituted the family.

The purchase and complete equipment of a beautiful yacht, at once developed the son's part of host to the lovers of boating, who in summer time obtained real solace and retirement in Atlantic and Squantum; the Henry F. Miller people on the William Glover estate; the Burkhardts at their majestic abode on Squantum heights; the Westons, Howes, Lincolns, Balcoms, Richardsons and the numerous other friends who appreciated a sail on the generous thirty footer, which nodded gracefully to Skipper Richardson's signal and flew swiftly over the bay.

Surely no lovers of that miniature "life on the ocean wave" could be happier in the gladdening, health-giving pursuit than John Clean and his two sisters, with a full share of the good company, who cherish grateful recollections of jolly times on the "Julia."

Dr. Wilson Atwood of Boston, bought the yacht in the late 70's, had her rebuilt by Smith of South Boston, and renamed the "Magnet," in accord with his profession. Mr. G. F. Burkhardt bought her of the doctor about 1887, and after six or seven years sold her to Commodore W. A. S. Chrimes of the South Boston Yacht club. She passed from the commodore's possession in time and was seen by him but a few weeks ago, doing honor to her builders at East Greenwich, R. I., though having received slight damage by fire. Phoenix like skimming over the water, affording a day's sail to pleasure parties, having been repaired and merited the commodore's testimonial as "apparently good for a quarter of a century yet;" he also adds, "In my opinion there never was a better boat of her size."

The "Julia" always availed of every breeze for a fleet run and rifted the waters of Atlantic shore when there was scarcely a keel but a row-boat to keep her company. The bugle sounds from the Miller abode, or on the water, the songs and laughter aboard, or going and coming over the unsettled Atlantic plain (save by the few) linger still in pleasant memories of the past.

Many a beauty of "white wings that never grow weary," floats in the offing; sauntering in and out with owners and friends, day after day, and the Squantum Yacht club, has evolved from the intensely earnest faith in yachting. The fine club house gives token of enduring devotion to the sailor's joy and pastime, and the waves are cleft with more benefit and happiness; more comfort and healthfulness than what the land journeys give, by team, trolley or automobile. The welkin echoes of delights in the "Julia's" days and the melody which comes across the bay to Atlantic's shores is a sweet tribute to her having lead the way.

POISON IVY.

How to Tell It and How to Exterminate the Plant.

"What is poison ivy?" "What does it look like?" "How can it be distinguished from Virginia creeper?" These and similar questions have been asked me hundreds of times, and they are questions that it is well for every one to be able to answer for himself, says a writer in Country Life In America. Poison ivy has three leaflets and Virginia creeper has five. The former has white berries, the latter purple.

There is a little jingle which I remember having at some time read, which, concisely, if not very poetically, explains these differences, and which, if committed to memory, will always serve to distinguish the poisonous and nonpoisonous sumacs:

Berries red,
Have no dread;
Berries white,
Poisonous sight;
Leaves three,
Quickly flee;
Leaves three, with berries red,
Fragrant sumac, have no dread.

All the drugs in the world are of no use in preventing a bad case of poisoning, unless one begins to do something as soon as the telltale itching begins. When the pustules break open, one is almost sure to be in for three days or a week of suffering. It is well to have a little bottle of the extract of grindelia in the house all the time. Ten cents' worth is enough. You can get it at any drug store. Rub it on the affected parts every five minutes until the trouble is averted, and be sure to lose no time in beginning!

Poison ivy is often troublesome in gardens and grounds, as well as on the farm, where it infests fence rows. On the farm it can be plowed out, but a single plowing is not enough. Five or six may be necessary before the fragments cease to send up new leaves. Any plant can be smothered in this way—even "quackgrass," which is propagated by being cut to pieces. The one essential thing is persistence. The leaves of a plant are its "lungs," and if the leaves are cut off as soon as they appear the plant will die. It is a sure way, but you must keep "everlastingly at it."

The same principle applies to the garden, where poison ivy can be exterminated by the frequent use of the hoe. Few people are so sensitive that they will be poisoned at the distance of the length of a hoe handle. Most cases of poisoning are supposed to come from direct contact of the leaves on cut fingers or other bruised surfaces. A good way to get rid of poison ivy in a garden is to hire some one who is immune to root it out and keep rooting it out until it never shows a leaf again.

How to Make Gooseberry Catchup.

Remove the stems and blossoms from nine pounds of ripe gooseberries, wash them and put into a granite kettle. Mash them well, scald and rub through a colander. Then add five pounds of sugar, three tablespoons of ground cinnamon and one and a half each of allspice and cloves. Boil fifteen minutes, then add one quart of cold vinegar. Bottle immediately.

How to Prepare an Egg Tonic.

A raw egg is an excellent tonic and is very strengthening. If prepared in the following way it is really a delicious drink. Put the yolk of an egg into a dish with a teaspoonful of white sugar and a teaspoonful of orange or lemon juice and beat lightly together with a fork. Put the white on a plate and add a pinch of salt; then, with a broad bladed knife, beat it to a stiff froth. Now, as lightly as possible, mix all together in the dish, then as lightly transfer it to a clean tumbler, which it will nearly fill if properly made. It must not stand in a warm place, as it soon becomes liquid and loses its snowy look. Any fruit juice may be used in place of orange or lemon.

How to Clean Fruit Jars Quickly.

To clean fruit jars quickly, fill them (almost) with hot soapsuds, then put into the jars an ounce of carpet tacks and shake vigorously. Afterward rinse well in clean cold water and turn upside down to dry. This is a much quicker method of cleaning than the ordinary one.

How to Grow a Miniature Forest.

It is quite possible for any one to own a forest of miniature oaks, which may be grown even without the aid of soil. In order to rear a miniature forest, procure a shallow dish and cover the base of it with moss an inch thick. Then set a number of good acorns in rows about two inches apart, and a perfect little forest of oak trees can be raised. The moss must always be kept very moist, and the acorns will begin to grow in the spring. By June or July they will have raised themselves six to eight inches high and will form a charming sight for any lover of trees.

How to Beautify the Pie.

To give a pie a beautifully brown flaky appearance, when the pie is ready to bake put about one and a half tablespoonfuls of sweet milk or cream on top and spread it over all the surface. No more white crusts if this is done.

How to Make a Flute.

A little flute from which a good deal of amusement may be derived can be made by wrapping a piece of paper around a pencil to make a tube. Paste the edge fast and to one end of the tube fasten a triangular piece of paper somewhat larger than the opening. To play the flute draw in your breath through the open end of the tube. The difference in pitch will depend on how hard you breathe.

How to Kill Insects on Roses.

If insects attack roses put moth balls under the bushes, and in a very short time the insects will be gone.

POTPOURRI JARS.

How to Make One That Will Keep Fragrant For Years.

The never failing delight of a potpourri jar prepared from fresh roses' petals, lemon verbena leaves, rose geranium and other sweet scented flowers is known only to its fortunate possessor. It is easy to prepare one and, once prepared, so easy to keep at the point of perfection that I marvel they are not more frequently made, says a writer in Good Housekeeping.

The rose petals and other blossoms should be gathered in the morning as early as possible after the dew has dried off. Be sure and have no water on them, then put them in a large stone jar and sprinkle a little salt over half inch layers. I use a salt shaker, as it distributes the salt more evenly. The petals can be added from day to day till enough for your purpose have been gathered. Let them stand in the jar for twelve days after the last are put in and stir the whole thoroughly every day with a wooden fork. (A salad fork is good to use.) Grind coarse an ounce of allspice, cloves and fine stick cinnamon. Transfer your petals to another jar and scatter the spices, mixed together, in layers alternately with the flowers. Cover the jar very tight and let it stand in a dark place for three weeks to "ripen," when your stock will be ready for the permanent jar.

Of course this may be as handsome as you can afford, but whatever it is it should be provided with a double cover. Now have ready a quarter of an ounce each of allspice, cloves and mace, all coarsely ground, half a grated nutmeg, half an ounce of cinnamon, an ounce of the best powdered orris root and a quarter of a pound of dried lavender flowers. Mix all together in a large bowl and proceed to fill your permanent rose jar with alternate layers of the stock and the mixture.

If you like you may add a few drops each of the following essential oils, which should be dropped upon the layers as you proceed: Rose, geranium, neroli and bitter almond. (The last is a deadly poison, if taken internally, so keep away from childish hands.) Over the whole pour an ounce of the finest cologne or rose extract.

This quantity will fill a two quart jar and it will keep for years and years. You may add to it various sweet blossoms from time to time, and if the jar be left open a half hour each day it will fill your apartments with fragrance.

How to Make a Bath Sachet.

A French recipe for a bath sachet calls for three pounds of bran to one of powdered orris root, with a pound of starch, a pound and a half of almond meal and twelve ounces of good white soap. Five ounces may be put in each bag, which should be made large enough so that the mixture will have plenty of room to swell and will serve only for one bath.

How to Keep Shoes Looking Smart.

"Lax in their gaiters, laxer in their gait," is an old saying which applies well to the modern shoe and its wearer. No shoe will keep in shape long unless it is put on a tree when out of use. These "trees" are very cheap, but most women look upon them as an extravagance. Another rule of the carefully shod woman is to rest her shoes for a day or so and always wear a different pair indoors. Low shoes are better for house wear, as they permit of ventilation. Select a strong calfskin for a walking boot, keep it well oiled, and your pedestrian trips will be made in perfect comfort. Keep an old pair of shoes to wear under rubbers, as the perspiration which india rubber excites ruins good leather.

How to Make Maple Frosting.

Grate or crush very fine a half pound of maple sugar, add to it a gill of boiling water and boil, without stirring, until it threads. Then pour slowly upon the beaten white of an egg, whipping steadily. When thick enough spread upon the cake.

How to Make Orange Sherbet.

Take the juice of six oranges and four lemons, five cups of sugar, two tablespoonfuls of orange extract and the grated rinds of two oranges. Scald the rinds of the lemons and oranges in one quart of boiling water. After fifteen minutes remove the rinds, strain the water and add to the rest of the ingredients with enough cold water to make an exact gallon of mixture. Freeze and serve in glasses or half skins of the oranges. This makes a delicious and attractive sherbet, and it is bright orange in color. If anything in the recipe is omitted the sherbet is not good.

How to Keep Cheese Fresh.

Always keep cheese well covered in a cheese dish or it will become dry and tasteless. If the cheese is wrapped in a cloth moistened with vinegar it will keep beautifully moist and retain its flavor longer.

How to Bottle Lemon Juice.

To keep lemon juice ready for use squeeze out the juice in the usual manner, strain free from pulp and pips, add white powdered sugar in the proportion of one pound to a pint of the juice, stir it until the sugar is quite dissolved, then put it away in very small bottles. Put a teaspoonful of salad oil in the top and cork it close. When wanted for use take out the cork carefully and take up the oil with a bit of cotton wool. To use for lemonade, add one large tablespoonful to a gill of water.

How to Clean Waffle Irons.

Southern cooks never wash waffle irons, cleaning them with coarse salt and plenty of clean brown paper and putting them away in a fresh paper bag.

HORSE THROWN.

Engineer Packard Meets With Accident While Responding to Alarm.

Assistant Engineer Packard came near being in a serious accident this noon while responding to the alarm from Box 138. He was driving through Liberty street, and when near the corner of Quincy street a team came out of that street and drove across the street directly in front of him. In order to avoid a collision Engineer Packard pulled his horse up suddenly. Some part of the harness gave way, and the horse went down, smashing a shaft. Engineer Packard was thrown out, but fortunately escaped with a few bruises. While the horse was down he began to kick, and before he could be freed the dasher of the wagon was smashed.

BROKE THE RECORD.

J. G. Anderson Plays Excellent Golf at Franklin Park.

J. G. Anderson of Wollaston added new laurels yesterday to his title of the golf champion of Amherst College, and of the New England Collegiate Association. Playing in a foursome, says the Herald, with G. H. Jennings of Barre, Vt., W. E. Faunce, Wellington Hill Golf Club, and L. T. Allen of Wannamoisett, R. I., all well-known interscholastic and intercollegiate experts, he covered the Franklin Park course in 35, thus breaking the old record of 36, made last year by F. L. Adams of Jamaica Plain.

The bogey for the park is 37. Anderson's golf was especially good. On his first drive he made the edge of the green, 197 yards, and, with a 20-yard putt over very uneven ground, holed the third in two under bogey. He made a cleek shot of 190 yards and landed the seventh hole in Bogey. Going out his score was 41; coming in, 35.

His figures—4, 3, 2, 5, 4, 4, 5, 4, 4—35.

Fire Checked.

The prompt action this noon of Walter H. Dunbar, one of the compositors at the Ledger office, prevented what might have resulted in a serious fire. He was passing through Summer street about 12.45 when he discovered a lively grass fire in the yard of a house owned by Mrs. Perry Lawton. The grass fanned by a southerly breeze was blazing fiercely and was within a few feet of the house. Mr. Dunbar rushed into the yard and succeeded in extinguishing the flames.

Personal.

The Rev. M. C. Ward, a former pastor of the Universalist society in Quincy, has returned this week to his parish at Southbridge, Mass., after a pleasant vacation. He and his family have spent the larger part of the summer on a farm at Buxton, Maine. Taking a short trip through the White Mountains, northern and southern Vermont; preaching one Sunday at his boyhood home at Guilford, Vt., where he was greeted by a large gathering of old friends.

A Hot September Day.

The extremes of noon temperature in Quincy last September were 86 and 58 degrees, so that today at 87 is warmer than any day last September. The noon extremes for September since 1895 have been 92 and 52, both in the year 1898. On eight September days in eight years Quincy has had 90-degree temperature.

New Principal.

The school committee of Milton have elected William C. Hill of Malden as principal of the High school to succeed Emery L. Meade, who could not be induced to remain. The new principal comes from the Chicopee High. He was graduated at Brown University and is 34 years of age.

—Rev. Mr. Butler of Russell park has been successful in having some fine dahlias. The clematis vine in front of his house has climbed the veranda and is in clusters of white blossoms. There have been many lovely flower gardens in Quincy this summer and a flower show is suggested another season.

—The Norfolk grand jury, Richard E. Oldham of Norwood, foreman, and Daniel O'Neil of Holbrook, clerk, will come in at the Court House at Dedham next Tuesday morning.

—The city of Brockton has been sued for $3,000 by J. Williams Beal for High school plans.

BOSTON HAS 288 UNIONS

Interesting Facts Gleaned by State Bureau of Statistics

Boston, Sept. 3.—The state bureau of statistics of labor has issued a trade union directory which the officials of the bureau believe to be the most complete record of labor organizations ever compiled. Boston, with 288 unions, far outranks all other places. The next largest number of unions appears in Worcester, there being 71. Then follows in numerical order, Springfield with 67, Lynn with 62, Brockton with 61, Holyoke and Lawrence with 51 each. These seven cities contain in the aggregate 651 unions, or 45.51 percent of the total number of unions reported for Massachusetts.

The largest number of unions is represented by the building trades workmen, there being 345 organizations under this craft. Transportation employes are also largely organized, there being 155 unions, followed by metal workers with 133, boot and shoe workers with 95, printing trades with 55.

Stafford Gives Himself Up

Boston, Sept. 3.—Eugene L. Stafford, whom the police have been seeking since Feb. 17 last on the charge of murdering Maynor B. Trussell, walked into a police station early this morning and surrendered himself. He said that he had to come back to this city to see his 6-year-old son. Stafford admitted killing Trussell, but he added that on account of the man's attentions to Mrs. Stafford he had to kill him in order to maintain his own self-respect.

Discharge of Union Men Resented

Lynn, Mass., Sept. 3.—One hundred and fifteen trimming cutters and tongue makers, employed by Jacobson and Jacobs, leather remnant dealers, have struck because of the discharge of three men for joining a recently formed union. The workmen are all Russian Hebrews, and when a reduction of $1 a week in their wages was made this summer a union was organized, which did not meet with the approval of the firm.

Boy Accidentally Electrocuted

Brookline, Mass., Sept. 3.—Tony Carreiro, 12 years old, was electrocuted by electric light wires on Boylston street last evening. The boy had climbed an electric light pole when he became entangled in the wires. In his attempt to extricate himself he grasped a poorly insulated wire and was killed instantly. The boy's body hung by the feet from the wires until members of the fire department removed it.

Perhaps a Murder Mystery

Boston, Sept. 3.—What the police believe to be a murder mystery was revealed upon the finding of the skeleton of a man in the condemned barn of Julia Hannagan, rear of 27 Conant street, by Charles Bender, 14 years old. No wearing apparel was found, and as the remains were found in a place into which no mortal could apparently crawl, the police believe they have a murder mystery to solve.

Legion of Honor Litigation

Cambridge, Mass., Sept. 3.—An attachment for $25,000 was filed at the Middlesex registry of deeds against Adam Warnock by Henry A. Wyman, receiver of the supreme council, Legion of Honor. The suit is an act of contract. Named with Warnock in the action are the Winthrop National bank, the National Shawmut bank and the Boston Safe Deposit and Trust company.

FRYE REMAINS IN JAIL

Embezzling Treasurer Used Ill-Gotten Gains In Carrying on Household Expenses -- Bank Officials Had Faith In Him

Watertown, Mass., Sept. 3.—That the defalcation of Treasurer Nathan A. Frye of the Watertown Savings bank, who has been held on a charge of stealing $12,000, has not influenced the attitude of the depositors of the institution was shown when the bank resumed its business as usual. Several Italians, who had heard of the shortage of the bank official, called to withdraw their deposits. The withdrawals, however, were not heavier than the money deposited by others, so that the business of the bank was wholly normal.

Former Treasurer Frye is still in jail at Cambridge, as no one has volunteered to serve as his bondsman for $10,000.

Julian A. Mead, president of the bank, arrived home from Europe yesterday on steamship Republic and was informed on the wharf of Treasurer Frye's wrongdoings. He said:

"I am very much surprised and sorry to hear it, for I have always considered Mr. Frye a man of exemplary character and absolutely trustworthy. The bank is safe from loss, as I renewed the treasurer's bond just before I went to Europe in July."

Mr. Mead went from the wharf to the bank to learn from the officials there the exact status of affairs. He has been abroad two months, with his wife, spending the time in the British Isles.

According to the confession of Frye, together with the results of the expert examination, it appears that for the past four years Frye has been taking money for his own use in varying sums. The largest sum Frye took at any one time was $600. It is generally believed that Frye used his ill-gotten gains in carrying on his household expenses and that the money was not lost in speculation. As treasurer of the bank Frye received a salary of $2200.

The defaulter is 65 years of age and has been employed by the bank for seven years. For two years he was general clerk, after which he was made treasurer, succeeding Julian A. Mead, who was then elected president. A year previous to his employment by the bank Frye acted as paymaster of the Aetna mills at Bemis, where he was highly regarded. He has a wife, three sons and a daughter. His family is now summering at one of the islands in Portland harbor, where he maintains a cottage. One of his sons lives in New York city, while another is a Harvard student.

In personal appearance Frye is distinguished looking, having a closely cropped iron-gray beard, which leads some persons to recognize in his features a resemblance to Richard Croker. His residence at 71 Larch road, Cambridge, is in the fashionable quarter of the upper Brattle street district, near Mt. Auburn cemetery.

A meeting of the trustees of the bank was held last night. President Mead of the bank presided. No action was taken on the matter of choosing Frye's successor and the defalcation was discussed in an informal way only.

After the meeting adjourned Mr. Mead, in an interview, said that he did not believe Frye had speculated, but had, as he had already stated in his confession, spent the money on his family. Mead said he had always placed implicit confidence in Frye and had considered him the ideal man for the treasurer of the bank.

The Business World

New York, Sept. 3.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says that confidence increases each week as a larger proportion of the agricultural yield is placed beyond the reach of injury and industrial undertakings are less interrupted by labor controversies. In many lines, particularly dry goods, stocks have been reduced much below normal and fall shipments are expanding in a healthy manner.

Two Killed In Elevator Accident

Chicago, Sept. 3.—Two persons were killed and six seriously injured by the falling of an elevator in the store of Sears, Roebuck & Co. The passenger elevator in the building was out of repair and the freight elevator was in use instead. While a load of passengers were being carried up the cable parted, allowing the elevator with its load of 10 persons to fall three stories.

Sheriff Wouldn't Protect Him

Cripple Creek, Col., Sept. 3.—Frank J. Hangs, attorney for the Western Federation of Miners, who was deported from this district Aug. 20 and who returned Thursday, went out again last evening to avoid another deportation. He said that Sheriff Bell had refused to give him protection.

Preparing For Emergencies

New York, Sept. 3.—After an hour's conference with officials of the Interborough Rapid Transit company Police Commissioner McAdoo admitted that police arrangements for a possible strike of elevated railway employes had been discussed.

PHILIPPINES AT WORLD'S FAIR

Complete Exhibition of Island People and Industries Covers Forty-seven Acres and Is Independent of Larger Show.

Not even in the heart of Manila city could there be found forty-seven acres of Philippine territory as interesting as that amount of space covered by the Islands' display at the World's Fair. Here is an exposition within an exposition, a little wheel that revolves independently of the larger one encompassing it.

Scores of buildings are filled with exhibits, native life is depicted by as many different villages as there are tribes on the islands, military drills are given by Philippine troops, and concerts are rendered by native bands. For its amusement features the Philippine exposition has the humorous Igorrote, who dines on dog meat, and visitors are entertained by Visayan actors and actresses. Nothing is lacking to make the show complete.

SOUTH ENTRANCE PALACE OF LIBERAL ARTS, WORLD'S FAIR.

The Administration building is a replica of the government offices in Manila, while the Art and Education building reproduces in miniature the cathedral within the walled city, even the mellowed tints of age being faithfully rendered. A section of the ancient but still serviceable town wall has been reconstructed to serve the double purpose of a gateway to the show and a museum of arms and war relics. The other main edifices are types of Filipino homes, being built of undressed timber, bamboo and rattan, with thatched roofs and broad verandas.

Then there are the tribal villages nestling under the trees, some of the houses perched high up among the boughs, others on piles above the waters of the Arrowhead lake, all of them actual dwellings fashioned of native materials by native workmanship and illustrating the manners, customs and pursuits of their occupants. Here are women weaving a coarse cloth on a rude hand loom, others making baskets, others tending irrigated fields of rice. One group of men are in village council, trying an offender according to their tribal laws; others are slowly moving in a circular dance to the thump of tomtoms and the clang of brass gongs; others, again, are smelting iron by the aid of a primitive but most ingenious bellows, the constituent parts of which are a bamboo tube and an air-tight mop of feathers working therein like the piston of a syringe. And these are but a few of an almost endless variety of life pictures.

The ethnological problem is a somewhat complicated one; but, although there are no fewer than sixteen races represented among the village dwellers, the scouts and the constabulary, each race speaking its own dialect and following its own customs, all may be roughly classified into four groups—the true aboriginals or non-Malays, the pagan Malays, the Christian Malays and the Mohammedan Malays.

The first are the dwarf Negritos, with dark skins and woolly heads, wearers of scanty raiment, proficient in the use of the bow and poisoned arrow, a race of nomads and forest dwellers, pagans pure and simple. They live in their own stockaded village.

Next to them are the Igorrotes, whose origin is traced back to the first wave of Malay invasion. Here, again, we have scanty clothing, amounting almost to nudity, but copper colored skins, long wavy tresses, pleasant featured faces and fine physiques, even though the stature be small. Among these pagan Malays are the head hunters and the dog eaters. They are savages, yet have their code of laws and a knowledge of several primitive industries.

The Christian Malays, produced by the second wave of invasion, are represented by the Visayans, a tall and handsome race, dressing well, living in pretty homes, skilled in weaving, dyeing, basket making, hat making, wood carving and other handicrafts, musicians of no mean merit, the one group of natives who came early and thoroughly under the influence of the early Spanish settlers.

Very different are the Moros, who swept into the islands from the Malay peninsula last of all, bringing with them their Mohammedan religion, also a knowledge of gunpowder acquired with the Koran from the Arabs—fanatics like their teachers, pirates, bloodthirsty, treacherous and vindictive fellows, ever at war among themselves and with the whole outside world. Despite their ferocity they are a clever race, dress handsomely, have their sultans and their slaves and are expert seamen, while long continued pillage on the high seas has surrounded them with many of the luxuries and conveniences of western civilization.

The buildings of Agriculture, Forestry and Fisheries show all the varied natural products, also the extremely primitive processes as yet in vogue, while in the Women's building we are introduced to a number of native manufactures, including the beautiful fabrics from the jusi, banana and pineapple fibers. This information is collated in the Building of Commerce, where a unique and most effective method of exhibiting is followed. In one hall are samples of all the articles produced for export, among which manila fiber, of course, holds the chief place of prominence, while in a second hall are all the manufactures from every country that are imported and find a ready market among the populace. Thus the business man gets a dual lesson. He sees what he can profitably take from the islands, and also what he may profitably send to them. When it is added that a large number of representative Filipinos have been brought over to visit the Exposition and study American business methods and manufactures, it will be recognized that great benefit both to the islands and to the world at large must result from this work of mutual enlightenment.

CONCERTS BY MASSED BANDS

Prizes Aggregating $30,000 to Be Distributed at the World's Fair.

Never were musical events in America planned upon such an elaborate scale as those of the World's Fair. A series of concerts will be given by competing bands in contest for prizes offered by the World's Fair. These contests will take place in Festival Hall, Sept. 12 to 17.

Nine cash prizes, aggregating $30,000, are offered for the successful bands. The prizes are divided so as to give to the organization scoring the highest number of points $3,250; $2,500 will be given to the band scoring the second highest number of points and $1,500 to the one getting the third highest number.

The above division is made for bands in Class A, which consist of twenty members. In the B class $10,000 will be given in prizes—first, $4,500; second $3,500; third, $2,000.

Class C, which includes bands of thirty-five members, will enjoy the division of $12,750. For the organization scoring the highest number of points a prize of $6,000 has been named. The second prize is $4,000 and the third $2,700.

Bands employed by the Exposition are not permitted to contest. All players must be bona fide members, and each musician must have been enrolled at least three months prior to the date of the contest. Each band must send to the bureau the name of its members and a nominal entrance fee.

Festival Hall concerts by massed bands will be given at 7:30 each day during the contest, in which all contesting bands will take part under the direction of a distinguished conductor. All bands entering must agree to play one concert in addition to the competing concert and massed concerts.

A separate programme has been prepared by the Bureau of Music for each class, and each band will play through the full programme of its class. The numbers in all three programmes are by eminent composers and are chosen with the view of bringing out the qualities of the bands performing them. The list of composers includes Wagner, Gounod, Offenbach, Verdi, Saint-Saens, Bizet, Strauss and Leoncavallo.

WEATHER AT WORLD'S FAIR.

Cool Nights and Delightful Indian Summer to Be Expected at St. Louis.

Usually the warmest month of the year, July proved to be one of the most pleasant of the World's Fair season, the average temperature being 67 degrees, a record lower than that made by either Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Cincinnati or Chicago. The weather bureau records show that the temperatures in St. Louis during July were just between the extremes recorded at New Orleans and St. Paul, cities located at great variance.

August in St. Louis is a month of cool nights, and September and October are the most delightful months of the year. It is that period known as Indian summer, when the foliage and birds linger to challenge the coming winter. Nowhere on the American continent is there a spot more delightful than the World's Fair city, a garden of blooming flowers and spraying fountains.

St. Louis, like all cities, experienced several hot days during July, but her highest temperature recorded was 93 degrees against 94 degrees registered by the thermometer at Chicago. On the same day the mercury rose to 96 degrees in Philadelphia, and scores of heat prostrations were reported from New York and Boston.

The relative humidity shows St. Louis to be about normal. Assuming absolutely no moisture in the atmosphere to be zero and absolute wetness to be 100, the relative humidities for July, taken from the records of more than twenty years, Boston shows 70.6, New York 72.2, Philadelphia 68.6, Cincinnati 64.6, Chicago 66.9 and St. Louis 66.3. The same degree of heat in two places, with different degrees of humidity, would cause it to seem the hotter at the point of greater density.

St. Louis may therefore rightly claim to be a summer resort this summer, positively one of the most comfortable and delightful places on the map.

THE NORMAL VOTE

Will Be Cast by Both Parties This Year, Says Watterson

CHANCES FAVOR PARKER

Independent Vote Will Be Decisive Element, and It Points Toward Democrats--Beveridge Sees Victory For Roosevelt

Esopus, N. Y., Sept. 3.—Henry Watterson, the Kentucky editor and orator, came to Rosemount and discussed with Judge Parker certain details of the Democratic campaign from the point of view of one who has participated actively in seven political conflicts. Colonel Watterson spoke hopefully of the prospects for Democratic success this fall, but agreed with many other old and experienced party leaders that it is yet too early to make an intelligent forecast.

"I have confidence in the reports from all parts of the country that the Democratic party is thoroughly united," he said. "The party will poll its normal vote, but this will be true also of the Republican party. This year, as in many former years, the independent vote will be the decisive element, and it appears that the trend of this vote is toward Judge Parker."

Regarding his plans for the campaign, Colonel Watterson said: "My labors will be confined to my own particular sphere and I shall extend my writing to do as much for Judge Parker as I can. I have not been on the stump since 1892. I said at that time I would not attend another national convention or again go on the stump. I was in seven consecutive conventions and feel that I have done my part. I was asked to make an address Wednesday night to the Democratic editors who are to meet in New York and I have accepted. My talk will not be a discussion of issues to any great extent. It will come nearer being the philosophy of politics based on the present conflict. If I were a Republican now I would vote for Parker, and in my address I will tell why I would vote for him."

Colonel Watterson had never met Parker, though Parker knows Watterson. In 1880 Judge Parker listened to the Kentucky editor when he made a vehement denunciation of the New York delegation to the Democratic national convention at Cincinnati. Judge Parker said afterward that Watterson had expressed the views he should have liked to deliver to the delegation.

What Beveridge Thinks of It

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Sept. 3.—After a conference with the president, which he said was principally of a personal nature, Senator Beveridge said: "I dislike to make political predictions, but it appears to me that the fight practically has been won by the Republicans. Unless there should be a Democratic landslide, and there are no indications of such a thing, I believe Roosevelt will be elected by the biggest majority a president has received since the Civil war.

"I think Parker will be defeated even more decisively than Bryan was in either of his campaigns. As to Indiana, I don't care to talk with particularity. We have been increasing steadily our gains in the state for several years. In the last election we had a majority of 35,000. I see no reason why we should not increase that majority this fall. Of the four congressional districts now held by Democrats I think we shall capture at least one."

Cockran Indicts Republicans

Bangor, Me., Sept. 3.—A large audience heard Congressman Cockran of New York speak here last night. He devoted himself to a discussion of the trusts, the tariff, the Philippines, and the situation in Colorado, which he declared was proof that the Republican form of government in this country was in danger. He presented a general indictment of the Republican party as responsible for various existing evil conditions, and of the administration as incompetent to maintain constitutional government in all the states.

If McKinley Had Not Died

Kansas City, Sept. 3.—Senator Fairbanks formally opened the Republican campaign in Missouri last night. Reference was made to Fairbanks' availability as a presidential candidate by State Senator Cubbison in the following terms: "If President McKinley had lived Senator Fairbanks would almost certainly have been the presidential nominee at this time, but under the circumstances, all we can do for him now is to elect him to the vice presidency and then nominate and elect him president four years hence."

Does Not Want to Be Governor

Bridgeport, Conn., Sept. 3.—General Henry A. Bishop, in answer to questions asked of him concerning the report that he was in the race for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, stated that he was not a candidate, never was a candidate, and has declined to be considered as a candidate.

Electors All White Men

Atlanta, Sept. 3.—W. J. Johnson, chairman of the Republican state executive committee, has announced the Republican electors for the state of Georgia. Every man on the list is a white man.

Turned $423,000 Back Into Treasury

Washington, Sept. 3.—Colonel Clem, chief quartermaster of the Philippine division, has been reprimanded by Quartermaster General Humphrey for his action in turning into the United States treasury the sum of $423,000 as "unexpended balance" of the appropriations for the last fiscal year, when, as stated by the war department, the money was actually needed to meet necessary expenses for work of the quartermaster's department. The money having been turned into the treasury is now beyond the control of the war department.

Suicide of a Dynamiter

Elmira, N. Y., Sept. 3.—Rather than face arrest on the charge of attempting to blow up the Avenue hotel in Elmira Heights, Nicholas Thome committed suicide by drinking carbolic acid. Thome's wife rented the hotel, which he owned, to Pearl Scott. He did not like Scott and last Friday he set off two sticks of dynamite under Scott's window. The escape of the latter from death was miraculous. The hotel was wrecked.

Power Saves the Guilty

Rome, Sept. 3.—Beside the body of Rocchiggiani, who was arrested in connection with the theft from the cathedral of Ascoli of a priceless cope and who afterwards committed suicide, was found a paper on which was written: "I am innocent. Search for the guilty, but when he is found he will be too powerful to be touched."

Strike May Soon End

New York, Sept. 3.—On both sides of the building trades fight here there are strong indications that a settlement is in sight. At the suggestion of several prominent builders and union men, a joint conference is being arranged, and the leaders express the hope that a settlement may be reached soon after Labor day.

The Case of Waggaman

Washington, Sept. 3.—Justice Anderson has issued a rule directing Thomas E. Waggaman, treasurer of the Catholic university and trustee for a number of parties from whom he received money for investment, to show cause Sept. 6 why a receiver should not be appointed for his estate.

Theft of State Documents

Taranto, Italy, Sept. 3.—A telegraph operator here has been arrested for the alleged abstraction of documents regarding the defense of the country, which were to be sold to a foreign power. The country to which the documents were to have been sold is not known.

How to Be Well Dressed

By Mme. EMMA CALVE, Operatic Singer

TO be well dressed, really well dressed, a woman should so dress that she herself and not her clothing attracts attention. A DRESS, with its complementary adjuncts of hat, gloves and umbrella, IS THE PICTURE FRAME. THE WOMAN IS THE PICTURE, and if the frame be too garish, or even without excessive brightness in the coloring, too obtrusive, it must of necessity, in my opinion, be in bad taste. A woman should be dressed so that her clothes become a part of her, and she should choose them so that she forgets them when she has them on. Nothing is more objectionable both to the wearer and her friends than the self consciousness of clothing many women make apparent.

I THINK THAT THREE WOMEN OUT OF FOUR PAY FAR TOO MUCH ATTENTION TO THE FASHIONS. WOMEN WHO DRESS ACCORDING TO THE FASHION MERELY AND WITHOUT THE EXERCISE OF THEIR OWN INDIVIDUALITY MUST NECESSARILY ACHIEVE UNSATISFACTORY RESULTS.

Fashion should be used as you would use a lorgnette in a theater,—that is to say, when necessary only, and not all the time. Fashion is very much like fire in one respect. It is the best of servants, but the worst of masters.

A WOMAN SHOULD ADAPT THE FASHIONS TO HERSELF AND NOT HERSELF IN SLAVISH IMITATION TO THE FASHIONS. Even in stuffs this is important. How often have I seen small slips of women staggering under heavy cloths and velvets merely because a tall and stately woman looks perfection in them! How often, on the other hand, have I seen big women crushed into dresses which must hurt them, and which hurt the eye of anybody with a sense of the artistic even more!

No woman should pay too little attention to her dress, but her chief object should be to attain that acme of perfection in it which makes her look as though she never thought about her dress at all.

THE PERFECT DRESS IS ONE WHICH HAS NOT BEEN CREATED YET. I like the fashions of today and think that they approach true beauty nearer than those of earlier days. We have become enfranchised of the awful custom which made women hide themselves as much as possible in their dresses, and we have learned, though we have taken years to learn, that THE WOMAN'S FORM IS A THING WHICH SHOULD BE CLOTHED FOR ITS BETTER SHOWING, not dissembled—no crinolines, no puffed out shoulders, no abnormal shapes and waists crushed into nothing.

I like the fashions of the day because they carry out my theory that woman's dress should be a picture frame and not a method of concealment, bunched in here and tightened there, built upon framework and altogether made in such a way as to make of the woman in it a mere artificial thing of basket work or whalebone.

A WELL DRESSED WOMAN SHOULD BE A WOMAN WELL DRESSED FIRST OF ALL—BUT FIRST OF ALL, YOU UNDERSTAND, THE WOMAN, THEN THE DRESS. A FRAME, NO MOTTER HOW EXQUISITE OF ITSELF, WHICH TOOK AWAY ATTENTION FROM THE PICTURE WOULD BE INARTISTIC. AND SO IT IS IN DRESS. DO NOT FOLLOW THE FASHIONS NOR LET THEM FOLLOW YOU, BUT GO HAND IN HAND WITH THEM IN HARMONY.

Evils of Modern Society And Their Correction

By JOHN D. LONG, Former Secretary of the Navy

THE real truth is not that the world has outgrown the simple precepts of Jesus, but that IT HAS NEVER REACHED THEM in their height or depth. We have never attained to the perfect practice of that simplest Christian rule—to love those that hate us, to love our neighbor as ourselves, to be pure in spirit.

Brutalities and crimes, drunkenness and misconduct are not confined to the lower classes, but they break out among young men and women who have had the opportunity of benefiting by our boasted education.

THERE ARE CORRUPTION, BRIBERY AND EMBEZZLEMENT BY OUR PUBLIC SERVANTS. THE SACRED TIES OF DOMESTIC LIFE ARE DISREGARDED. THE TEMPLE OF THE LORD IS INVADED BY MERE BIRDS OF PREY, WHO SHOULD BE WHIPPED OUT OF IT WITH LASHES OF SCORN.

To correct these evils is our work. The remedy is not in the effort of labor or capital to promote its material interests; it is not in the efforts men make to better their conditions by theories of social organization. These things will, under natural laws in a free country, work out their only salvation.

THE VITAL NEED IS THE RELIGION OF JESUS; IT IS CHRIST IN THE INDIVIDUAL MAN, REVERENCE FOR THE GREAT FUNDAMENTAL PRECEPTS OF THE MASTER, THEIR INCORPORATION INTO ACTUAL DAILY LIFE AS CONTROLLING SPRINGS OF ACTION.

Both Japan and Russia Are In the Wrong

By OSCAR S. STRAUS, Member of the Hague Peace Tribunal

IF the questions at issue between Russia and Japan were submitted to The Hague tribunal, THAT BODY WOULD DECIDE AGAINST BOTH NATIONS because they are battling for the control of a third nation. I believe that The Hague tribunal will yet have to be invoked to settle this war. I believe further that the war will bring such destruction on victors as well as vanquished that all nations will look upon warfare as the greatest of terrors.

DO NOT LOSE HOPE. THE TIME WILL COME SOON WHEN THE WAR DRUMS WILL BE HEARD NO LONGER IN THE LAND.

"KING OF TRAMPS."

Arrested at Cohasset and Sent to the State Farm.

John Morrissey, who has been given the title of "King of Tramps" by the police along the South Shore, was arrested at Cohasset yesterday. In court this morning he was sent to the State farm for an indefinite period. Morrissey has tramped through the South Shore for years, begging from door to door. He always asked for tea, coffee or sugar. If the articles were not forthcoming he would use the most abusive language. He always carries a coat over his arm, and was easily recognized. Women came to fear him.

When arrested at Cohasset he had a bundle which upon being opened was found to contain coffee, sugar, salt, bread, cake, a broken knife and a small spoon. Many Quincy families have met John, and there have been frequent complaints about him to the police.

Company A. Dinner.

The nineteenth reunion of Co. A was held at Wade's hotel, Nantasket Point, Friday. The affair was largely attended and 137 covers were laid. A large delegation of members of the G. A. R. and friends participated and renewed old acquaintances. At the business meeting the following officers were elected:

President, — Maj. Stephen Cabot, Brookline.

1st Vice President,—James S. Beal, Nantasket.

2d Vice President,—James Green, Franklin.

3d Vice President,—George W. Hoyt, Merrimac.

Secretary and Treasurer,—Benj. J. Loring.

At the close of the election dinner was served and a social time enjoyed.

Mischief Loafers.

It will not be wise for the person or persons to make themselves known who meddled with the engine in the launch that was fastened at Elwell's wharf on Thursday. Considerable damage has been done to the boat and if the guilty parties are discovered, serious results will follow.

There are a great many mischievous loafers hanging around this week and the owner of the launch has been informed of a few men who were seen about the boat.

—The order of the Post Office Department which requires postmasters to report all sales of stamps made in unusually large quantities, and to investigate and ascertain where the purchaser intends to use such stamps for mailing matter ought to prevent the recurrence of anything like the wholesale charges made last spring against postmasters in this state, who were supposed to have benefited by soliciting business. It would probably be difficult for postmasters to follow up all such sales of stamps, and learn where they are to be used, but the order will undoubtedly prevent their soliciting business, which is probably what the post office wants to accomplish.—Banker and Tradesman.

LABOR UNIONS.

Their Number in the State—List of the Organizations in Quincy.

[Special to the Daily Ledger.]

Boston, Sept. 3.—Today there will be issued from the office of the Bureau of Statistics of Labor and Bulletin for September. One of its chapters is a trade union directory for the state which has been compiled at an expense of about $2000. There are 1466 trade organizations listed, of which 1440 are trade unions or trade councils, and 26 are state organizers of general officers. Boston, of course, stands first, having 288. Worcester is second with 71, and then follow Springfield with 67, Lynn with 62, Brockton with 61, Holyoke and Lawrence with 51 each. These seven cities have 651 unions, or 45.21 per cent, of the total number of unions in the state. The leading branches, according to numbers of unions, are as follows: bakers and confectioners, 25; barbers, 30; boot and shoe workers, 95; brewery workmen, 18; building trades workmen (including 134 of carpenters, 69 of painters, decorators, and paper hangers, 61 of bricklayers, masons and plasterers, 43 of plumbers, gasfitters, steam-fitters and steam-fitters' helpers, 12 of lathers and 26 others,) 345; central labor unions, 36; cigarmakers, 19; clothing employees, 38; electrical workers, 17; horseshoers, blacksmiths and helpers, 24; hotel and restaurant employees, 41; laborers, 46; laundry workers, 10; machinists, 33; meat cutters and butchers, 14; metal workers, 133; musicians, 22; paper workers, 11; printing trades workmen, 55; retail clerks, 38; stationary firemen, 14; steam engineers, 19; stone workers, 28; textile workers, 48; transportation employees, 155; woodworkers, 17; miscellaneous, 98.

The numbers of members in the different unions are not given, and it is no fault of the Bureau. It is the fact that this directory has been prepared only with the utmost difficulty, owing to the refusal or neglect of many of the unions to give the desired information. They will not give the numbers of their members and the facts in the case warrant the suspicion whether the labor unions, as a whole, all over the state, are not playing a big game of bluff to magnify their own importance. If their annual dues were what is said, and if their claims to a membership of 100,000 in the state were well founded, then the total funds raised ought to be much larger than it actually is. The conclusion, therefore, is that the strength of the unions is not nearly as large as the members claim.

The unions will not pay any attention to requests which come to them unless they are printed on stationery bearing the union label. Though the state printers' office is known to be a union office,—and the unions have treated it despotically,—yet no circular from a state authority will be recognized by the unions unless it has the union label. It would be for the advantage of the unions to appear in this directory, but the members have given no co-operation to the Bureau, compared with what they might have. It is said that a large proportion of the officers of the unions are not citizens and that they do not seem to realize the difference between conditions here and in the old countries.

The directory which has been compiled for Quincy is as follows, S standing for secretary, R. S. for recording secretary and C. S. for corresponding secretary:

Barbers No. 390,—O. A. Minot, S., 335 Newport Av.

Never a Perjurer, Always a Friend

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

I feel that I should say through your columns a few words in vindication of myself. At all times it is a pleasure to me to do a favor for another. On April 4, 1903, I was called upon by a friend to grant him a favor. That favor was, to go upon a bond for him. I explained to him and also to bond commissioner my resourses, what I owned and what I considered it worth.

Now I am accused of perjury, but surely I am innocent until proven guilty. The favor I allude to, I wish to say, was done voluntarily as my idea then, and at present, is that "A friend in need is a friend indeed." Feeling confident that I have committed no crime, I remain, most truly yours, Charles L. Prescott.

TODAY'S COURT.

Norman R. Spear was arraigned for speeding an automobile in the Blue Hills reservation. Case continued until Sept. 7.

Warren D. Carr was arraigned for the illegal sale of liquor at Houghs Neck, Quincy. Case continued until Sept. 10

Patrick McCarthy was arraigned for keeping a liquor nuisance at Houghs Neck, Quincy, and fined $50.

Ezra Nelson was fined $2 for riding a bicycle on the sidewalk at Quincy.

Frank Stone was arraigned for vagrancy at Quincy. Case continued until Sept. 22.

Frank J. Sheehy was arraigned for vagrancy at Weymouth. Case continued until Sept. 6.

John Morrissey was arraigned for being a tramp at Cohasset. He was sent to the State farm at Bridgewater.

Ellalia Marsh was arraigned for threatening to assault Ruth A. Sawyer at Holbrook. Case continued until Sept. 12.

The continued case of Thomas Mulligan, for assault at Braintree, was called, and he was given until Nov. 12 to pay a fine of $15.

—About 200 miles in every direction is the distance a man can see when standing on a clear day on the peak of the highest mountain—say at a height of 26,668 feet, or a little over five miles above the level of the sea. An observer must be at the height of 6,667 feet above sea level to see objects at a distance of 100 miles. The distance in miles at which an object upon the surface of the earth is visible is equal to the square root of one and one-half times the height of the observer in feet above sea level. Some allowance has to be made for the effect of atmospheric refraction, but as the refraction varies at different heights and is affected by the various states of the weather, no precisely accurate figures for general purposes can be given.

THE POWDER WORKED.

An Invention That Proved Too Much of a Success.

A certain inventor once hit upon the happy device of desiccating eggs. He turned dozens and dozens of eggs into a powder that you might carry in a pill box. All you had to do when you wanted an omelet or a scramble was to drop a pinch of the powder into water. A teaspoonful of the stuff would swell up to fill a quart tin, and half a cupful would be enough for the meal of a company on the march. Now, this inventor by diligent effort succeeded in making himself known to a great man in a European country, a man who moves armies by the crooking of a finger, so to speak. The great man was delighted with the desiccated egg scheme, and a box of the powder was sent to him so that he might try it on the army. Fate, however, decreed that it should be tried on the dog. It lay open on the great man's study table, and there the dog nosed it out. He licked up the powder, an amount of it that forty conscientious hens could not replace with a month's hard labor, and he liked the taste of it. It made him thirsty, however, and he swallowed nearly a gallon of water to assuage that thirst. The powder immediately began to do what it was expected to do when water struck it, and before the eyes of the great man that unhappy dog swelled up and swelled up till his seams gave way. Just forward of the port beam he sprang a leak. This is a perfectly true story. The poor dog actually burst. That particular invention has never been recommended to the war office.—Washington Post.

VULCANO'S VOLCANO.

A Natural Weather Prophet and Infallible at That.

As a natural weather prophet, and infallible at that, the volcano on the island of Vulcano, twelve miles north of Sicily, in the Mediterranean, is believed to hold the record. The following is from an account of a dinner given by the Geographical Council Club of England in 1893: "Captain Wharton, the hydrographer to the admiralty, told how he had once anchored in very deep water on the east side of Vulcano, the southernmost of the Lipari isles, but that he had kept up steam with the intention of being off immediately if the wind changed to the east. He mentioned this to an Englishman who lived on the island and was in charge of some borax works. 'But,' said the man, 'there is not the remotest chance of the wind going around to the east without full warning.' 'What warning?' asked the other. 'Oh,' was the rejoinder, 'the volcano always warns us!' 'The volcano!' said Wharton. 'Yes, the volcano. A "fumarone" always emits a whistling sound before the east wind begins to blow.' Shortly after this Wharton was looking at Strabo and, to his astonishment, found that that writer mentions the fact. The Englishman had never heard of Strabo in his life. Strabo died as an old man about 25 A. D., so that this excellent 'fumarone' must have been giving its warnings well nigh 2,000 years at least."

Gray Cues Hard to Find.

"Look around during your next exploration of Chinatown," says a close observer, "and see if you can find any Chinaman with a gray cue. I have seen gray haired Chinamen all right and one or two with fuzz on their faces which might by courtesy be called beards, but a gray cue never. A good deal of the average cue is all make believe anyway, several inches of the end of it being composed of black braid.

"I have always suspected that there was more or less false hair about it, too; but that is of course a matter that cannot be determined by casual inspection. Such Chinamen as I have seen with gray hair have had black cues. It may be, however, that the ends of the cue, instead of being false, are dyed."—Philadelphia Record.

Southern Manchuria.

The St. James' Gazette says: "The rainy season in southern Manchuria is not so bad as it has been represented to be. Residents of long experience state that while there are days in which heavy falls of rain take place there are not many consecutive days in which torrential rains are experienced. When a really heavy downpour of rain of some hours' duration occurs it is almost invariably followed by three or four weeks of splendid, dry, bracing weather. There is no finer summer climate in the world than that of southern Manchuria. The temperature in the shade is seldom above 88 degrees."

His Blunder.

"Yes; she and her husband have quarreled. It seems he told her she was just too sweet for anything since their marriage."

"Well?"

"Well, she was insulted, of course. That was as much as to say she wasn't 'just too sweet for anything' always."—Exchange.

Easing the Problem.

"Dickie, when you divided those five caramels with your little sister did you give her three?"

"No, ma. I thought they wouldn't come out even, so I ate one 'fore I began to divide!"—New Yorker.

Main Point Settled.

"They have called two doctors in for consultation."

"And do the doctors agree?"

"I believe they have agreed upon the price."

If you neglect your business and have a rival who attends to his, look out.—Atchison Globe.

ANTS' NOSES.

There Are Five of Them, and Each Has Its Own Duty.

In their antennae, or feelers, ants have five noses, each of which has its own duties to perform.

One nose tells the ant whether it is in its own nest or that of an enemy; another nose discriminates between odors of ants of the same species, but of different colonies; a third nasal organ serves the purpose of discerning the scent laid down by the ant's own feet, so that it may be able to retrace the way quite easily; a fourth nose smells the larvae and pupae, and the fifth nose detects the presence of an enemy.

If an ant be deprived of a certain nose, it will live peaceably with enemies, but if it retains its fifth nose it will fight the alien to the death. There is a difference in the functions of nose one and nose five, although they appear to be somewhat alike.

This sense of smell does not come till the ants are three days old. If, therefore, ants only twelve hours old are placed among others belonging to different colonies, they will grow up quite amicably and not understand that they are a mixed lot, because they will have grown up with ideas of scent in accordance with their surroundings. The sense of smell to them is as important as the sense of sight to human beings.

—The Canadian Medical association has passed a resolution asking the the government to control the sale of patent medicines, as most of them contain alcohol, and their pernicious use is becoming a menace to the country.

Dragged-Down Feeling

BRAINTREE.

On Labor day, Monday, Sept. 5th St. Francis church of Braintree will hold its second annual field day on French's common. They have issued 1000 souvenir programs from the Observer office and it is their desire that the public carefully note the advertisements, gifts, program, etc.

Braintrees will play at Stoughton this afternoon, and a large crowd of Braintree rooters will help to make things noisy.

There will be no morning game on Labor day. The afternoon game will be a good one, against a strong team from South Weymouth.

The old-time Braintrees will play the locals next Saturday.

The Dewey club of South Weymouth will bring over a strong nine for the ball game on French's common, Monday afternoon. This game by reason of spirited rivalry between the two teams should be one of the most interesting of the season.

NEEDS OF WORLD.

The Practical Work Being Done by the Y. M. C. A.

The Y. M. C. A. seems to fit into the needs of the world, and is an agency for moral help which challenges comparison.

Quincy may well rejoice in the anticipation of an Association building in the near future.

The following editorial from the Boston Transcript of the 30th ult., gives an interesting and concise glimpse of the work which the Y. M. C. A. is expected to do in the line of practical Christianity in this twentieth century.

Archbishop Ireland is on record as saying that the only Protestant agency which the Roman Catholic Church covets and imitates is the Young Men's Christian Association. Certain it is that the rapidity of this organization's seizure of strategic points, the flexibility of its policy, the common sense and directness of its methods, and the economy of its administration commend it to many who might dissent from its theology and its spirit of exclusiveness in choice of governing members and officials. With the opening of war with Spain, came a great opportunity for service to the outgoing soldiers, in Florida, Cuba, Porto Rico and the Philippines, and it was seized immediately by the Association officials. In many of the cities of the Orient where Europeans and Americans congregate for commercial, military or social reasons the Young Men's Christian Association serves through its secretaries and well-equipped buildings as the only rallying centre for Christian activity. In India, China and Japan, the Young Men's Christian Association has come into friendly relations with English and American officials of various sorts, administrative, diplomatic, consular, and has won their admiration and support.

Notable proof of this fact has just been given in the official request of our first minister to the State of Panama. Hon. John Barrett, who through the State Department, has requested the International Young Men's Christian Association committee to send trained secretaries to Panama to work in one or both of its largest cities, where our engineers and the marines will congregate, who can establish there such associations and furnish such buildings as guard the physical, moral and spiritual welfare of young men in our American cities and towns and in many of the European and Asiatic cities where the Young Men's Christian Association has a foothold and is intrenched. Mr. Barrett's suggestion or plea is based on his own observation of the workings of the Y. M. C. A. in foreign cities in which he has been stationed as a diplomat or special agent of the Government.

Such a petition, doubtless, will move the Y. M. C. A. to a prompt, favorable, response, as it will involve extra expenditure the funds to make it possible should be forthcoming from those to whom the matter appeals as a matter of religion and patriotism.

The purer and more temperate the lives of such American youths as go out to build the great highway of trade, the lower the rate of mortality, which at best will be high. Most of those going out to serve as engineers will not find in the Church which is dominant in Panama that which appeals to them or which can serve as a restraint. Protestantism never has directed its missionary activity toward the Latin American States, as it has elsewhere in the world, hence it is practically nonexistent in our newly acquired territory and its adjacent State. Of temptations to do evil there will be many in Colon and Panama.

What the Federal Government and the Canal Commission cannot do directly it can do by calling upon an agency like the Y. M. C. A., trusting to it to admit to all its recreative, educational and social privileges. Protestants and Roman Catholics alike, and believing that by thus guarding against dissipation and temptation to evil, through the establishment of well-equipped social and educational centres, it is conserving not only the interests of the youth whom it employs in its great task, but also making certain the prompter and better construction of the canal. The less dissipation, homesickness, and waste of manhood among the engineers, marines and soldiers, the better the national record for celerity and thoroughness of execution of the vast task. From a purely selfish standpoint the policy which Mr. Barrett urges is wise.

☞Miss Spear's classes will be continued October 5. The house 48 Granite street, is being remodelled and designed to accommodate the needs of the school. The music and kindergarten rooms are adjoining, having much sunshine from the east and south. An attractive room, complete kindergarten plant and an efficient teacher will greet the children. A well equipped kitchenette is provided for the students in cooking, and the other departments will receive attention. A new prospectus will be sent on application to those interested.

WON BY 85 PINS.

The Nantaskets Again Defeated by the Quincy Team.

For the third time the champion Quincy bowling team journeyed to Nantasket beach last evening, in response to a challenge from the crack Nantaskets, and decisively proved their superiority by administering a crushing defeat to the latter, winning by a total of 85 pins. Hart of Quincy was high man with 288, closely followed by Norton with 287. Coyle captured the high single with 115.

Whistler and His Tailor.

"Curious enough," wrote Mortimer Menpes, "whenever one came in contact with Whistler one entirely forgot one's own affairs and became completely occupied with his. The fit of the master's coat was far more important to me than my own artistic work. At the tailor's Whistler would give an elaborate description of how a certain coat was to be made, and the tailor would carry out his directions literally. But no sooner had the man accomplished the work than Whistler would say: 'This is all wrong. How dare you say that it is what I told you to do? I am a painter. It is not my business to make coats. That is your province. Therefore you should have led me to do what you knew to be right.'"

Right to the Point.

To do even the most humble work worthily and well something more than blind mechanical service must be given. A young mistress once asked her cook about a certain recipe. "Just how much flour do you put in, Mary?" "Law, mum, you don't follow any rule; you just use your jedgment!" "But suppose you don't have any 'jedgment,'" returned the puzzled mistress. "Then don't cook!" was the reply, succinct and to the point.

Bunching It.

"How long have you been married?" asked the prima donna.

"Only six months this time," replied the beautiful soubrette; "but, putting them all together, I suppose I've been a wife for three or four years at least."—Exchange.

RELIC FROM THE STONE AGE

A Body From the Prehistoric Burying Places of England.

In Somersetshire, England, may be seen many "barrows," burying places of prehistoric man. Long ages ago, when the elephant and rhinoceros, the lion and bear, the hyena and wolf, the great elk and the reindeer were among the common animals of England, primitive man and savage beasts lived in caves in this region.

At the entrance to these caves the aborigines, clad in skins, kept fires burning for warmth and for protection from the wild beasts. It was here that they made flint hatchets, knives and arrowheads. Not long ago a trench was being dug within the mouth of one of these caves for the purpose of draining.

It was found necessary to break up a stalagmite floor of two thick layers. Between the layers was a deposit of cave earth and stones, in which was discovered the skeleton of a man of very great antiquity in an excellent state of preservation. With it were found several flint knives and flakes. Experts who made a careful examination of the skull, which has projecting brows and receding frontal bone, have decided that it belongs to the stone age and is of a type intermediate between the paleolithic and neolithic ages.

Apparently the body had been placed in a small passage leading off from the great passages to the stalactite caves and had been prevented from disturbance by stones piled around it. The stalagmite floor had formed over it all, effectually preserving it to the present day.—Harper's Weekly.

ANIMALS IN BATTLE.

The Gorilla's Powerful Arms Make It a Formidable Foe.

Fish fighting is a most popular sport in Siam. The two fish, trained from the age of six months to fight, are placed in a large glass bottle. It is most curious to note each fish's attitude when it becomes aware of its adversary's presence in the bottle. Swelling with rage and pride, they sail around and around the narrow space, pretending not to notice each other until suddenly one fish makes a savage dart at its unwelcome companion, biting its fins and body. The fight continues until the referee sees that the issue is no longer in doubt, when the contest is stopped.

Horses use either their teeth or their hoofs as a mode of defense. A curious instance of the effectiveness of these weapons once occurred at Sheffield park. A bulldog, barking and snarling, chased a horse turned loose around and around a meadow, not with angry intent, but purely from excess of high spirits. After galloping around the field several times the horse stopped dead and, turning sharply around, lashed out at the yelping dog, with a fatal result, for its skull was cloven.

The gorilla is a most formidable opponent in battle, its great strength lying in its powerful arms. Few animals of the forest have the slightest chance of overcoming a gorilla. A python has been known to encircle its coils around the gorilla's body, only, however, to have its own body torn open by its adversary's hands.

Waste of Energy.

If you hold your fist as tight as you can hold it for fifteen minutes the fatigue you will feel when it relaxes is a clear proof of the energy you have been wasting, and if the waste is so great in the useless tightening of a fist it is still greater in the extended and continuous contraction of brain and nerves in useless fears, and the energy saved through dropping the fears and their accompanying tension can bring in the same proportion a vigor unknown before and at the same time afford protection against the very things we feared. The fear of taking cold is so strong in many people that a draft of fresh air becomes a bugaboo to their contracted, sensitive nerves. Drafts are imagined as existing everywhere, and the contraction which immediately follows the sensation of a draft is the best means of preparing to catch a cold.

Sermon of Three Hours and a Half.

Charles II. was wont in his humorous way to say of his chaplain, Dr. Barrow, that "he was the most unfair preacher in England because he exhausted every subject and left no room for others to come after him." It was indeed too much the doctor's way. When he got hold of a topic he never knew how to leave anything unsaid about it. One of his best discourses, that on the duty and reward of bounty to the poor, actually took up three and a half hours in delivering.

Luck.

Persons who believe in luck and signs will doubtless agree that it is unlucky to be struck by lightning on Monday, or take hold of a circular saw in motion on Tuesday, or tumble downstairs with a coal scuttle on Wednesday, or be hit by a trolley car on Thursday, or fall overboard on Friday, or marry on Saturday, or be one of thirteen to dinner on Sunday when there is food for only ten.

Groundless Fear.

Cholly—I did think of going in for politics, but I was afwaid I wouldn't know just how to tweat my infewiahs, don't y' know. Peppery—Your inferiors! Oh, you wouldn't be likely to meet any of them.—Philadelphia Press.

The Sword.

A sword is out of place in time of peace, and it is of very little consequence in time of war, except to adorn a big general or a lodge man in a parade.—Atchison Globe.

True independence is to be found where a person contracts his desires within the limits of his fortune.

THE RETREAT OF RUSSIANS

Efforts at St Petersburg to Minimize the Movement

SITUATION AT LIAOYANG

Not Definitely Known Whether Japanese Have Occupied the City--Cannot Have Bearing on General Issue Unless Kuropatkin Is Surrounded--Critics See Nothing but Superior Japanese Force and Strategy to Account For Russians' Present Position

London, Sept. 3.—The lack of definite information from the seat of war continues up to this morning and nothing further regarding the situation at Liaoyang is known beyond the fact that Kuropatkin has withdrawn the main portion of his forces to the north, or right bank of the Taitse river, and that, according to the latest advices, the action is still in progress.

There is disinclination in St. Petersburg to believe that Liaoyang has been abandoned and at the same time it is declared that the position Kuropatkin now occupies is the one he had prepared and fortified and where he has all along planned to make his second stand, instead of directly in and around Liaoyang with the river at his back, as has been believed. It is thought by Russian experts that in attacking Kuropatkin's present defenses the Japanese are facing an almost impossible attack, especially with their forces divided by the river.

Advices reaching Tokio say that the Taitse is flooded and cannot be forded, and therefore, as pointed out in dispatches from St. Petersburg, "the river itself becomes an important factor in the general scheme of Russian defense."

Dispatches from both Russian and Japanese sources indicate that the troops on both sides are jaded and weary after the many days' fighting and it is pointed out that in consequence a temporary lull in the active struggle would not be surprising.

A dispatch received at Tokio says that great fires are raging at Liaoyang, "believed to result from Japanese shelling or from the efforts of the Russians to destroy their stores preparatory to the evacuation of Liaoyang with the additional hope of injuring the city as a future Japanese base."

The opinion prevails in the Japanese capital that the Russian casualties in the recent fighting will reach 30,000, while the Russian losses of Aug. 31 and Sept. 1 are given in official reports as 5000 killed or wounded.

The report from Marshal Oyama that he was engaged on Thursday with the Russian centre would indicate that at least a portion of Kuropatkin's army was still on the south bank of the river. It is not yet definitely stated that the Japanese have occupied Liaoyang.

English military critics neither share Tokio's jibilation over the fall of Liaoyang, nor lay any stress on the advantage which Russian dispatches attribute to Kuropatkin's latest move. The best informed observers here, who have access to sources of information not revealed in the dispatches from Tokio and not given out at St. Petersburg, declare that the battle of Liaoyang, however dramatic and historic in loss of life and tragic incident, can have no serious bearing on the eventual issue unless the Japanese have surrounded Kuropatkin.

The London daily newspapers in their headlines depict the conditions at Liaoyang as "Russian rout" and "defeat." Their editorials, in a more careful vein, point out that the latest dispatches leave the issue of the greatest battle of this generation still in doubt.

From the expert British point of view, Marquis Oyama's sacrifices will have been in vain unless he is able to cut off Kuropatkin from Mukden. On this point there are chaotic hypotheses.

The Daily Graphic frankly says: "We are in the dark as to the final outcome," adding that it seems not unlikely that Kuropatkin may still manage to carry a fighting force with him to Mukden.

The other critics doubt whether the Japanese in the face of "indomitable Russian pluck" are strong enough to press some of the preliminary success already won.

The Morning Post concludes a careful and rather impartial survey of the four days' fighting with the opinion that the battle of Liaoyang will take its place beside that of Waterloo, and believes that "whether or not Kuropatkin's force is able to continue its retreat it will be broken and useless for some time to come."

The Russian view that General Kuropatkin by crossing the river divided the opposing forces meets with slight consideration, as it is pointed out that all the Japanese units can now attack simultaneously from different directions, which eliminates any advantage to the Russian side and really aggravates the seriousness of their position, the Japanese force being superior in numbers.

The suspense with which the developments at Liaoyang are awaited could be scarcely greater at Tokio than it is in London.

The Daily Telegraph, which hailed the initial success at Liaoyang with the degree of finality, now admits that it is not inconceivable that Kuropatkin may extricate a portion of his forces.

The Daily Telegraph's military critic, in common with other English experts, sees nothing but a superior Japanese force and strategy to account for Kuropatkin's present position. This authority predicts an endeavor on the part of the Russian force to reach Chinese territory.

The Standard cautiously says that General Kuropatkin in his "precarious condition is not without some prospects of avoiding the signal catastrophe of a surrender en masse if he can still get away to the north. Even with the loss of many guns and valuable supplies the success of the Japanese will be a good deal modified."

The Standard bluntly voices the thought of everybody in England by saying: "Is it retreat or rout?"

The Times Tokio correspondent says: The premature rumors of the fall of Liaoyang are repeated today, but a careful analysis of official reports shows that the Russians have merely been driven in to their last line of defenses, where they will probably make a desperate resistance. Three Japanese armies are closing around them.

Germans See Possible Sedan

Berlin, Sept. 3.—Military specialists treat the news from Liaoyang as indicating a great Russian reverse, which, with the railway northward cut and bad roads, may be turned into a rout. As today is being celebrated as the anniversary of the battle of Sedan, frequent allusions are made by editorial writers to the possibility of Liaoyang being the Sedan of the east, and parallels are drawn between the two situations.

Bullet Hit Sultan's Coat of Mail

Paris, Sept. 3.—The Paris edition of the New York Herald prints the following from its Geneva correspondent: A high official of the Ottoman court has received news of a serious fight between the sultan's Albanian guard and Bosnians, which continued almost to the doors of the harem. Many were killed or wounded. It is said that one Albanian shot at the sultan, the bullet glancing off the coat of mail which he always wears. The sultan has asked the Prince of Montenegro to supply him with a guard.

Ants Vanish--Boll Weevil Stays

Taylor, Tex., Sept. 3.—The several colonies of ants which the United States government brought from Guatemala several weeks ago and placed on the cotton experimental farm near here have disappeared. The government experts are mystified as to what has become of the ants. The ants were brought to Texas to destroy the cotton boll weevil. The experiment is looked upon as a failure.

McCauley Under $5000 Bail

New York, Sept. 3.—Thomas N. McCauley, organizer and formerly president of the International Mercantile agency, who was arrested on Tuesday at the request of the police of Hamilton, Ont., charged with the larceny of $4200, was arraigned before Justice Wyatt and held in $5000 bail for a further examination. Friends of McCauley furnished sureties and he was released.

Says Boy Was Murdered

Mahanoy City, Pa., Sept. 3.—After a coroner's jury had decided that Anthony Gerlaitis had been killed by a railroad train, Katie Miller, aged 11, came forward with a statement that he was murdered and his body placed along the side of the railroad track. She implicates her stepfather, Joseph Zukiewicz, and John Acepawich. Both men have been placed under arrest.

Would Meet Three Men at Once

San Francisco, Sept. 3.—Champion Jim Jeffries has made a proposition to meet any three white heavyweights in the same ring on the same night for 10 rounds each, and if he is defeated the three can fight it out for the world's title. He names Bob Fitzsimmons, Jim Corbett and Tom Sharkey as the most eligible candidates, but only bars colored boxers.

Geay Sends In Resignation

Paris, Sept. 3.—The resignation of Mgr. Geay, bishop of Laval, has reached the ministry of public worship. Bishop Geay was one of the French prelates summoned to Rome by the Vatican for trial or punishment. The French government strongly protested against the action of the Vatican as being contrary to the terms of the concordat.

Someone "Gave Away" Figures

Savannah, Ga., Sept. 3.—The committee of information and statistics of the Savannah Cotton Exchange has sent a telegram to Secretary of Agriculture Wilson stating that the exact figures of the monthly agricultural department's report were known in Savannah three minutes before the report was published, and asking for an investigation.

Opposed to Death Sentence

Denver, Sept. 3.—Judge Mullins announces that, on account of his conscientious scruples against inflicting capital punishment, he has called a judge from another district to take his place on the bench here during all murder trials at the fall term of the district court. There are 10 persons awaiting trial for murder in this county.

WHITNEY AND CROKER

Why Tammany Hall Supported Cleveland In 1892.

HOW A HARD PROBLEM WAS FACED

Colonel George Harvey Tells of Wm. C. Whitney's Work as a Peacemaker That Ended In Election of a President—How He Was Helped by Former Tammany Chief.

Colonel George Harvey, the editor of Harper's Weekly, tells in a recent issue a remarkable story of the manner in which the late William C. Whitney harmonized the anti-Cleveland Democracy in 1892 and paved the way for Mr. Cleveland's second election.

Instead of having to harmonize the petty bosses of the two boroughs of New York Mr. Whitney had to placate the entire working element of the whole state. Colonel Harvey writes that the next morning but one after his return from Chicago Mr. Whitney summoned to his house in Fifty-seventh street, New York, a friend with whom he was accustomed to discuss his most trying political problems and stated the situation in substantially these words:

"It may seem strange, but it is a fact, that until last evening I did not begin to realize how serious a responsibility I had taken upon myself in doing what I did to bring about the nomination of Cleveland. It is quite possible, although I do not think so, that another candidate, if nominated with practical unanimity, might have proved successful at the polls. Consequently my responsibility is not only to Mr. Cleveland, whom I have urged so strongly to make the trial, but to the Democratic party itself, with which I have always been identified and from which I have received many honors.

"I have been so busy ever since I returned from Europe in trying to accomplish the nomination that, to tell the truth, I had overlooked the grave problems bearing upon the election of the nominee. When I sat down last evening and candidly reviewed the situation I must say that I was appalled. It is useless to deny to ourselves that practically all of the old time Democratic leaders, the men who would naturally be looked to as the guiding and most efficient helpers in the campaign, are bitterly opposed to Mr. Cleveland. Not that they will fail to vote the ticket, but their support at the present moment certainly promises to be lackadaisical and tinctured with feelings of personal hostility.

"The first and most serious problem to solve is here in New York, and I feel that I have not an hour to lose if I hope to succeed in breaking the combination that insisted upon Hill and is still hostile and likely to continue so to Cleveland. I feel so strongly the necessity for the greatest promptitude of action that I shall be utterly discouraged if I go to bed tonight without having made distinct progress. That," he added, with a characteristic shrug of the shoulders and a laugh that his friends would recognize, "is what I wanted to talk to you about."

"A discussion of ways and means followed," writes Mr. Harvey, "ending in a recognition of the necessity of obtaining at once the hearty co-operation of one of the three dominant factors in the organization—Mr. Hill, Mr. Murphy or Mr. Croker. Mr. Hill's name was promptly eliminated from consideration. His disappointment had been too great; his wounds were too recent. With Mr. Murphy, Mr. Whitney had, at that time, very slight acquaintance, and it was partly for this reason that he had called into consultation one who knew Mr. Murphy more intimately. After careful consideration of that gentleman's characteristics, his feeling that both the party and himself had suffered unnecessarily at the hands of Mr. Cleveland, his naturally unforgiving spirit in a situation of that nature and his inclination to believe that Mr. Cleveland's re-election would bring more harm than good to the Democratic party, his name, too, was dismissed.

"Only Mr. Croker remained.

"'I don't know Mr. Croker,' Mr. Whitney said. 'I suppose I have seen him twice in ten years and then only to speak to him casually. I can think of only one possibility in connection with him. When I was a young practicing lawyer, just beginning to get ahead, the two men whom I looked up to most in the Democratic party were Mr. Tilden and Mr. Hewitt, and I knew them both pretty well. One day Mr. Hewitt sent for me and said that Richard Croker, one of the minor leaders in the Tammany organization, had been indicted for murder and seemed likely to suffer unjust punishment because of his dogged refusal to clear himself. Mr. Hewitt said that he had made a thorough investigation and was absolutely certain that the guilty man was not Croker, but a man who had befriended him and whose name Croker would not under any circumstances divulge. Mr. Hewitt added that he considered Croker an honest, faithful and deserving young man, and he proposed to get him out of the scrape if there was any way to do it. He said he was willing to furnish money for the employment of lawyers and the getting of evidence and would pay me for any time that I should give to the case if I would take it up and give it my undivided personal attention until we should find that the man could or could not be saved. Of course I could not take payment from Mr. Hewitt for such a service, but I did under his direction undertake the task. I went down that morning and had a talk with Croker, but could get nothing out of him, and it is a positive fact that I did not see him again until, along with several others, I congratulated him upon his acquittal. Since then, as I have said, I have seen him only two or three times in the most casual way. Now, he, of course, remembers that, and he may feel a sense of gratitude that would enable me to appeal to him on personal grounds, and I have become so oppressed by this feeling of responsibility that I brought upon myself that I am ready to do it unless you can see some reason why I shouldn't.'

"There seemed to be no such reason, and Mr. Croker's house number was immediately rung up on the telephone. He was just leaving the house, but returned to answer the call. This conversation ensued:

"'Hello, Croker! Is that you?'

"'Yes.'

"'I am Mr. Whitney. I want to see you.'

"'All right.'

"'Can you stop here on your way downtown?'

"'Yes.'

"'Right away?'

"'Yes.'

"Mr. Whitney hung up the transmitter, walked across the room, lighted a cigar, turned around to his friend and said, with a laugh, 'I wish I could tell what was the meaning of the way he said "All right," but I might as well try to decipher an inscription on an Egyptian monument, so we will wait and see.'

"Ten minutes later Mr. Croker was shown into Mr. Whitney's library. After the usual handshaking, Mr. Croker lighted a cigar, dropped into an armchair, and, smoking meditatively, gazed at the mantelpiece. By that time Mr. Whitney had become so nervous from overwork, lack of sleep and a troubled mind that he could do nothing but walk back and forth. Not a word was said perhaps for five minutes; then Mr. Whitney stopped in front of Mr. Croker and said: 'Croker, I've got something I want to say to you, and I don't know how to begin. Are you going downtown?'

"'Yes,' Mr. Croker replied, without taking his eyes from the mantelpiece.

"'How would you like to ride down with me, and perhaps we can talk it over on the way?'

"'All right,' Mr. Croker replied, and that ended the conversation. With a word to his friend to meet him at his office in the Mutual Life building, Mr Whitney followed Mr. Croker into the waiting carriage, and away they went.

"Three-quarters of an hour later Mr. Whitney came swinging into his office loking twenty years younger. He greeted his friend like a long lost brother, threw back the lapels of his coat, tipped back his hat as he might have done in his undergraduate days and paced the length of the room three or four times with the gleeful spirit of a boy. Finally he stopped and said:

"'That is one of the most extraordinary men I have ever met. You may have noticed that I was nervous when I left the house. Well, I was. I could not get started on what I wanted to say even after we got into the carriage, and it is an actual fact,' he said, with a laugh, 'that neither of us said a word until we reached Washington square. Then I turned to him and said: "Croker, I am in the most uncomfortable position I have ever been in in my life. The people think I nominated Cleveland, and I suppose he thinks I may have had something to do with it. That being so, I have got to elect him, and I don't see how I am going to do it. I know I can't do it unless I can convince the country right away that New York is in line, and the only man who can help me out is you. There is no use talking about it, we both understand the situation. All I've got to ask you is, will you do it?" While I was making my speech Croker sat there looking straight ahead as impassive as a graven image and not giving the slightest sign of what he was thinking or what he intended to say, and he didn't breathe a word for a full minute. Then he took his cigar out of his mouth and turned around to me and, in the most matter of fact voice imaginable, said: "Mr. Whitney, I have been waiting for fifteen years to find you in a hole. You needn't worry about this. I guess it will be all right." Well,' Mr. Whitney continued after a momentary pause, 'I suppose I thanked him. I don't know. Anyhow, that is all that was said, and maybe I don't feel better. Now, let's go and get something to eat.'

"The next morning's newspapers contained positive assurances of Tammany Hall's determination to support the national ticket with all its might and main, and within twenty-four hours thereafter it was definitely known throughout the country that Mr. Murphy had joined hands unreservedly with his friend Croker in an effort to carry the state of New York. The effect of this announcement upon the workers of the party throughout the country was electrifying. It was the beginning of the end of Republican rule for at least four years."

A Substitute For "Hurrah."

In shouting "hurrah" we are (in these days unconsciously) repeating the victorious cry of the Cossack Tartars in pursuit of their enemies—a cognate word to the "maro" of our Indian cavalry as they encourage each other to strike, says London Truth. Both words simply mean "kill." I suggest that we now adopt for this purpose the popular and victorious cry of "Banzai!" which means simply "success" or "good fortune." Not only will this be a compliment to our Japanese allies, but it will supply a more suitable cry for civil occasions. Surely it would be better to greet, say, a lord mayor, or royalty, or Mr. Chamberlain with "Banzai!" than with a Cossack howl for their blood

Bad Dreams

Too often seemingly trifling complaints of children are put off as things of no consequence. Every unnatural action is a symptom of disorder and deserving of careful investigation. Worms more than anything else are the cause of childhood sickness. Attacking, as they do, the stomach and bowels, the effect of their presence is felt throughout the whole system and made known by nervousness, peevishness, disturbed sleep, erratic appetite, weak stomach and general lassitude.

Dr. True's Elixir

is the surest and safest worm remedy ever compounded—but it is more than that. As a tonic and general corrective it is unexcelled. It tones stomach and bowels, cleanses and enriches the blood and sends renewed health tingling through the veins. For over 50 years the most popular home remedy. Sold at all druggists, 35c. L. Rodman Wanamaker, son of John Wanamaker, the eminent merchant of New York and Philadelphia, has taken out a policy in
The Prudential Insurance Co.
for $1,000,000, paying an annual premium of over $30,000. This makes him the most heavily insured man in the world, with the single exception of King Edward VII.
Mr. Wanamaker's total insurance is now $2,000,000.
Ask yourself WHY Mr. Wanamaker placed one-half this great amount with The Prudential.
Your business judgment will at once reply: "Because after full investigation and comparison, Mr. Wanamaker found that the company which could give him the best insurance for a given amount of money was The Prudential."
Undoubtedly you will agree that Mr. Wanamaker does not pay over $30,000 per year except for most excellent reasons.

What It Costs
... AND ...
What It Pays

are two values of newspaper advertising that the merchant has to consider. But the most important thing is

WHAT IT PAYS.

The merchant can get space in papers of small circulation and little influence for a little less money than the same size space would cost in the DAILY LEDGER and the QUINCY PATRIOT.

DOES IT PAY

to throw away the certainty of the profitable returns which are sure to LEDGER and PATRIOT advertisers, because it costs less to advertise in a cheaper paper?

As High as Her Heart

By Martha McCulloch-Williams

Copyright, 1904, by M. Wood

Denise came into the rose garden in a little willful run, a pout on her lips, her pretty arched eyebrows trying vainly to scowl. But her face cleared magically at sight of Trent, who had come in by the farther gate, invisible from the front piazza. He swung his hat to her joyously and as soon as she came within easy hail said hushedly: "Great larks afoot; great larks! But, say, can you keep a secret?"

"I think I can keep one—going. That is what most secrets are for," Denise answered, with the least toss of the head. Trent gave her an injured glance. "I take that as personal," he said. "You know how I hate to have you spoil yourself attempting epigrams."

"Dear, dear! Can't one speak frozen truth in the shortest possible fashion?" Denise apostrophized, sticking out her pretty chin and making herself insultingly tall. Normally the top of Trent's head came just level with the part of her bright hair, but when she thus exaggerated her stature his shrunk inch by inch. Luckily he was not sensitive on this point. He smiled quizzically as he said: "Nature was kind to save me so much trouble. You know, one always looks up to what one worships." But Denise answered him with a grimace and turned half about, then all at once demanded: "What is this trumpery secret? If I knew anything I wouldn't take all day to tell it."

"Not even if it involved "treasons, stratagems and spoils,' eh?" Trent answered tranquilly. "This does involve all of them. Billy Mason is running away to marry, flat treason to you, since you are not the bride. Instead you are the stratagem, in part at least. You are to go right off and ask Malinda's aunt"—

"It's never Malinda! Malinda Maloney!" Denise ejaculated, clapping her hands. Trent nodded emphatically and ran on. "You're to get Malinda out of dress—say you want her company into town or any other thing you please. The point is to get her. She must be in Courthouse square by 11 sharp tomorrow morning. I shall be there to look after the spoils. Belding Bros. will be paying off their mortgage—$10,000 that is rightfully Malinda's money. Unless she marries before Mrs. Ketcham gets a chance to reinvest the cash she may whistle for it until she's rising thirty. You see, by old man Maloney's will Malinda's husband is to have no control of her estate except so much of it as may be represented by cash in bank upon the wedding day. Everything else is tied up hard and fast at the discretion of Aunty Ketcham. I had better say at her temper. She hasn't got a thing in the world against Billy except that his mother cut her out with his father, a matter of thirty years back."

"That's good and plenty! How stupid you men are," Denise said sagely, "but Sister Ketcham wouldn't let an archangel have Malinda with her good word, because her bad word means keeping a clutch on the money, and she's so stingy she even grudges herself a good long breath."

"You'll bring Malinda?" Trent asked. Denise nodded confidently, but all at once cried: "Oh, I forgot! Maybe I can't. The Baxters are coming. That's why you found me in such a taking."

Trent whistled. "The Baxters!" he repeated. "How many strong?"

"Old madam and Son John and Sis Sarah," Denise answered. Trent whistled again. "I don't think we quite deserve that," he said. "Your mother is, I dare say, delighted, but how about the squire?"

"Dad would be swearing if he dared," Denise said, sighing. "Poor dear! He knows if he did mother would turn on the waterworks, go to bed and stay there a fortnight. And then all my next season's party frocks would go up in doctor's bills. We bear one another's burdens—dad and I. But for what he'd have to suffer over it I'd run away from home whenever anybody said Baxter."

"You'll have to do it in the end. Why now now?" Trent said persuasively, trying to take her hand. She pulled it away, but not angrily, saying with a little sigh: "Not just yet. I must find out—things."

"What things?" Trent persisted.

Denise looked away. "They are—whether I want the freedom and the—the money you would stand for," she said at last, "or whether I truly l-like you yourself."

"Settle it either way, just so you take me," Trent said joyously.

"However, am I going to get Malinda?" Denise broke out.

Trent chuckled. "Tell Sister Ketcham you're going to be married and want Linda for bridesmaid. Then, of course, she won't mind letting her go along to help select wedding finery"—

"That she will," Denise interrupted. "She doesn't believe in weddings, hardly in marrying. I reckon she's 'fraid if Linda sees too much of the holy institution there'll be no chance of her keeping single or devoting her and her money to the missionary cause."

Notwithstanding Denise was certain she could fetch Malinda. She was already rehearsing a fairy tale of bargains that would, she knew well, appeal mightily to the thrifty Ketcham soul. And all would have fallen out exactly as she had planned if there had been no Baxters, whom she had left wholly out of account. Unluckily Madam Baxter overheard enough of talk between Denise and her maid Rena to let her guess pretty well how the land lay. So Denise was hardly away from the Ketcham place, with Linda trembling and happy at her side, than madam was telling Sister Ketcham over the phone a deal more than all she knew or even suspected. And thus it fell out two hours later that as Billy and Linda stood up before the minister, hearing, but not heeding, his solemn exordium, the door was filled with a blocky figure, red faced, gasping and for the moment speechless.

Amos Trent was no big man; still he had a grip. Before Sister Ketcham found voice he was beside her, holding her fast with one hand, the other laid firmly over her mouth. And there it stayed, while the minister, sensing the situation, hurried through his office. Billy said afterward he "beat the time o' every parson south o' the Ohio river." At the "I pronounce you man and wife" Amos let go, not suddenly, but with a suave relinquishment that left Sister Ketcham still upright. As she glared at him Denise ran up to them, holding out her hand and blushing like a rose. "We have made such a dreadful scandal, Amos, let's get the worth of it," she said. "Yes, you may have me if you will take me. I shall never feel taller than you any more."

So then and there the minister had another job cut out for him. He did it with a flourish and always said he was proud of the day's work. Sister Ketcham was for making him trouble, but found she had no case; also that since she had seen her niece married in the the law's eye she had consented to it and thereby lost control of the property. As for Denise and her husband, thty lived happy ever after, chiefly, said Denise, because Amos could make her mind him, but had the wit never to try doing it.

Pleased Himself.

A certain head gardener, whose work is admired by thousands of visitors every summer, is as outspoken as he is capable.

Not long ago he was summoned before the directors of the establishment where he is engaged to explain why he had made certain alterations without consulting the board.

"Well, gentlemen," he remarked, "the alterations is a success, and that satisfies me."

"But that isn't the point," said the chairman. "Why didn't you consult me in the matter?"

"Because, sir, I'm satisfied with my place at present, and intend to keep it."

"I don't think you are going the right way about it," said the chairman.

"Well, I do, and that's where we differ," returned the gardener boldly. "I've had the job five years, and before I came you'd had four gardeners in twelve months. Why? Because the first tried to please the chairman of the board and failed. The second tried to please the manager and didn't stop a month. The third tried to please the secretary, and the directors sacked him. The fourth tried to please the whole board, and so ran afoul of the manager and the secretary. The fifth—that's me—pleases hisself and keeps his job!"

And, be it remarked, the gardener is still "pleasing hisself" at the same place.—London Truth.

The Earth's Journey.

The earth does not travel at the same rate all through its journey. Its orbit being elliptical, it must at some time approach nearer to the sun than at others and will take less time in moving through one part of its path than through another. In winter the earth is nearer the sun than in summer and moves through space more rapidly. On Jan. 1 the earth is about 3,000,000 miles nearer the sun than it is on July 1, and as the velocity of a planet increases with its nearness to the sun the earth passes over one half of its orbit in less time than over the other half. Between the vernal equinox, which happens on March 21, and the autumnal equinox, which falls on Sept. 23, the earth is 186 days in accomplishing that half of her journey round the sun, while the other half occupies only 179 days. It has been said that owing to the friction caused by the tides and other reasons the earth is moving more slowly than it used to do and that the days are consequently lengthening, but as this is only to the extent of half a second in a century it will be a long time before there will be any apparent difference.

SIRES AND SONS.

C. H. Merriam, formerly of Fitchburg, Mass., but now of Honolulu, has been appointed register of conveyances for the territory.

H. H. Vreeland, president of the New York Street Railway company, never uses a free pass on his line, but invariably pays his fare.

Thomas Taggart, the new chairman of the Democratic national committee, has invented a voting machine which has been approved by the Indiana commission.

M. Lebaudy, the "emperor of the Sahara," has bought a beautiful residence in Brussels. It is to be his royal palace, and he proposes to establish a court on a magnificent scale.

Charles H. Corregan, a printer, at present foreman in the composing room of the Daily People, published in New York, is the Socialist Labor party's nominee for president of the United States.

Henry G. Davis, Democratic candidate for the vice presidency, never fails to write a letter on each day to his bachelor brother, Tom. He also receives a daily letter, and for forty years they have kept up this practice.

The value of the estate of the late Mayor Samuel M. Jones of Toledo is roughly estimated by his son, Percy Jones, in probate court, at $346,000, of which $325,000 is personal property and $21,000 real estate. The mayor left no will.

As Mr. Choate has now been American ambassador in Britain longer than any of his predecessors since the late C. F. Adams, who retired in 1869, he is to be presented with a portrait of himself by Mr. Herkomer. A replica of the portrait by the same artist is also to be placed in the embassy.

John D. Rockefeller is a director in but one corporation—Standard Oil. During the past six years he has been gradually withdrawing from the many boards of which he was a member. In 1898 he was a director in four corporations. The next year his son began taking his place.

THE ROYAL BOX.

The Duchess of Fife shares with her mother the love of angling. She has a fishing rod which cost close on $500.

King Edward goes to church regularly, but he invariably gets in late, cutting out all the service preliminary to the sermon.

The emperor of Austria scarcely ever shakes hands, even with the most exalted visitors or privileged persons. His usual form of greeting is a courtly bow.

Rumors are current in Berlin that a wonderful work of fiction by an "exalted personage" is shortly to be issued, and it is further hinted that this personage is the versatile kaiser, who has not yet tried his hand at novel writing.

TOWN TOPICS.

New York has a daily fixture leakage of 44,000,000 gallons of water.

The sea wall at Galveston is completed. It cost $1,198,318. It is 17,593 feet long, 16 feet high, 16 feet at base and 5 feet wide on top.

The city of New York, in the twelve months ending with last February, for the first time in its history, passed the billion mark in the number of 5 cent fares paid to local transit companies.

Since the opening of its new tunnel, which brings it drinking water from far out in the lake, Cleveland's number of typhoid fever cases has shrunk from fifty-eight a week in 1903 to about two at present.

POLITICAL QUIPS.

There is not much in a name after all. Swallow and Carroll are not standing on a "drink and sing" platform.—Washington Post.

The "rabbit" is a new factor in politics—at least the name is a new one for him. He is to a political convention what a camp follower is to an army.—Kansas City World.

JAP'S CONSCIENCE MONEY.

Premonition of Death Caused Karoti to Pay For Stolen Ride.

President Earling of the Milwaukee railroad received an interesting letter not long ago from one of the soldiers of the mikado's army, says a St. Paul dispatch to the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. The letter is as follows:

Most Illustrious Sir—Your humble servant, in the expectation of death, desires to make restitution to you for thievery having been accomplished by him while he was living in that grand America.

When the Second corps of the army was mobilized at Tokyo I, Matsuda Karoti, was in Chicago. I was without dollars, and the hurry to arrive at home was great to me. I therefore took a piece of planking and inserted it in on the rods of one of your most illustrious chair cars.

Thus I arrived in St. Paul last October. I had much trouble on the ride, but when here my noble friends in Japan already for my passage money had sent, and I did not have to use my board any further than St. Paul.

Tomorrow this battalion moves on the redoubt of the oppressive foe, and, while I know the army of the emperor cannot fail, I shall die.

I, Matsuda Karoti, of the samurai, do wish to free my mind of the weight of its guilt in stealing from your most magnificent railroad a ride, and therefore do I send 30 yen in the money of my noble emperor, which makes about the fare from Chicago to St. Paul. Your humble slave. MATSUDA KAROTI,
Eighth Imperial Battalion of the Second Corps.
Near Yinkow, July 2, 1904.

The letter was referred to General Passenger Agent Miller and by him to Northwestern Passenger Agent Dixon. No news was developed to indicate whether the soldier fell when Oku's army took the Russian outposts July 4 at Yinkow, although the officials took the trouble to wire to the Japanese legation at Washington to find out if any officer by the name of Matsuda Karoti had been reported killed in the charge.

The officials say that the restitution of the amount of a first class fare under any circumstances by the conscience stricken is extremely unusual and that for a soldier to do so is almost unknown.

The 30 yen has been turned into the treasury of the road.

RELIGIOUS SECT'S TENETS.

Founders Hold That Worship Should Be In House, Workshop and Office.

A new and unique religious sect or society is being formed at Elkhart, Ind., the leaders of the movement being prominent socially, says the Chicago Tribune. The original tenet of the new cult is that divine worship should never be conducted in a church, but in the home, the workshop or the business office.

The society will be known as the New church, and, while the sect adopts many of the doctrinal views of orthodox Christianity, it goes a few steps further. The moving spirits in the new faith believe in "rational explanation of Christianity in an attempt to interpret it so that the modern man can fit it to his modern problems."

Further, they believe that "there is a spiritual meaning inside the plain words of the Bible which is analogous to the soul within the body and that the second coming of the Lord is taking place now as the inner meaning is being unfolded." They do not believe that Christ will come in the flesh, but in the understanding.

The movement had its inception in a series of private meetings at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Briggs. These meetings were attended by the Rev. Charles N. Mann of Orange, N. J., editor of a sectarian paper, who was there as a guest. Several new articles of faith have resulted from these gatherings, and the new society seems destined to acquire considerable strength in the city of its birth.

At a recent meeting of the originators it was decided to invite Rev. Mr. Mann to return in October to remain until the following July for the purpose of building up the society and proselyting among the business men.

Fraudulent Railroad Tickets.

Passenger officials are making every effort to prevent the nontransferable railroad tickets to the St. Louis world's fair being used by any other than the original purchaser. Legislation, both federal, state and city, has been invoked, and the courts have, without an exception, held that the sale of a nontransferable ticket such as is used for excursion traffic to the fair is illegal and the purchaser is in many instances liable for forgery, inasmuch as these tickets have to be signed in the name of the original purchaser. An enormous number of cheap tickets are sold to persons either passing through St. Louis or returning from the fair. In many instances the conductor does not discover the fraud until the purchaser of the ticket is far out on the line from St. Louis, and the passenger is unable to pay his fare. Many incidents wherein not only men, but women and children, are put off trains because their tickets are not valid have come up since the opening of the fair, all of such incidents being presented to the notice of the chief of police and mayor.—St. Louis Republic.

Coinage of a Word by Opticians.

Opticians hereafter are to be known as "optometrists," according to a decision reached recently by the American Association of Opticians while in session in Milwaukee, says the Chicago Record-Herald. The convention officially coined the word "optometry"—the science which treats of the physiology of the function of vision and the physical effect thereon of lenses, and the title of "optometrist"—one skilled in optometry.

A Floating Hotel.

One of the Hamburg liners was used as a hotel ship in the harbor of Kiel during the recent races. The rates for meals and lodging were from $5 to $10 a day.

NOTES ABOUT TOWN.

Mr. B. D. Mann of Beal street, Wollaston, has purchased a new double house on Hunt street, Atlantic.

Sessions of the First church Sunday school will be resumed on Sunday in the chapel at twelve o'clock as usual.

The Greenleaf school, so popular and well known in this city, will open on Monday, Sept. 19th, its 32d year.

The old Washington M. French Hose Co. will hold its annual reunion Monday at Pawsey's Rock Island farm.

An express company is occupying one of the offices in the new block on East Howard street, near Newcomb square.

The hall in the old Tiger engine uilding that has been used by the Socialists is being made into a tenement.

Miss Mollie Brown leaves for her home in Cambridge today, after a pleasant visit with her aunt, Mrs. C. Tower of East Howard street.

The Sunday school of the Washington Street Congregational church will reopen tomorrow. It is hoped that al the members will be present.

Owing to illness, Miss Alice M. Webster of Adams street, East Milton, has resigned her position as teacher at the Belcher school. Supt. Jacoby has been unable to fill the vacancy as yet.

The Socialist club will have a picnic at Merrymount park on Labor day. An interesting feature will be the engagement of two rival base ball teams, composed of ladies from Malden and Everett, who will contend for a purse.

The First church and chapel have had their annual cleaning and will be open for services tomorrow morning at half past ten. There have been many visitors to the Adams tomb this summer who have also enjoyed seeing the beautiful old church.

Anyone having articles for the colored schools are asked to send them to the following ladies: For Tuskeegee to Mrs. J. Henry Emery, Adams street; for Calhoon to Mrs. N. S. Hunting, Hancock street; for Snow Hill to Miss Dora A. French, Adams street.

Mr. E. Landis Snyder, who is in town with three of his choir boys from Massachusetts, greatly delighted the Lutheran congregation last Sabbath morning, both with music on the organ and a solo by one of the boys. Their music was much appreciated.—The Middletown Press, of August 27.

HABITS OF THE ANT.

The Sleeping, the Waking and the Toilet Before Work.

During sleep the ant's body is quite still. Occasionally may be noted a regular lifting up and setting down of the fore feet, one leg after another, with almost rhythmic motion. The antennae also have a gentle, quivering, apparently involuntary movement, almost like breathing. The soundness of slumber was frequently proved by applying the feather end of a quill. The feather tip is lightly drawn along the back, stroking "with the fur." There is no motion. Again and again this action is repeated, the stroke being made gradually heavier. Still there is no change. The strokes are directed upon the head, with the same result. Then the feather is applied to the neck with a waving motion intended to tickle it. The ant remains motionless. Finally the sleeper is aroused by a sharp touch of the quill. She stretches out her head, then her legs, which she shakes also; steps nearer to the light, yawns and begins to comb her antennae and brush her head and mouth. Then she clambers over her sleeping comrades, dives into an open gangway and soon has said "Good morning" to another tour of duty. Be it well noted, however, that she has gone to work, as she and all her fellows always do, not only rested, but with her person perfectly clean!—H. C. McCook in Harper's Magazine.

AN ODD CHARACTER.

The Queer Freaks of an English Poet and Clergyman.

Robert Steven Hawker, poet and vicar of Norwenstow, England, was an eccentric person. In his younger days he used to daub the village physician's horse with stripes of paint until the animal looked like a zebra and then summon the physician hastily to an urgent case miles away in the country. Two elderly women whom he disliked he is said to have driven out of the town by sending all the undertakers in Plymouth to measure them for their coffins.

His marriage, too, was out of the ordinary. It happened while he was at Oxford. His father told him that he could not afford to keep him there any longer. Hawker at once set out to the home of his godmother, Miss Charlotte l'Ans, twenty-one years his senior and the possessor of an annuity of $1,000. He is said to have "run from Stratton to Bude, arriving hot and blown," and proposed to her. She accepted him. He returned to Oxford a married man and won a fellowship. The marriage was a happy one.

When his wife died Hawker wore at her funeral a pink hat without a brim. But this was in no disrespect to her memory. It so happened that it was his usual headgear at that time.

INDIA INK.

The Way the Kind Used In China and Japan Is Made.

India ink, much used in China and Japan for writing with small brushes on soft paper and made extensively in China since 250 B. C., consists of a mixture of carbon and gum, with the addition of a little musk or Borneo camphor to give it the characteristic odor. The preparation of this simple ink is by no means easy, for if the materials are not of the best quality and if the carbon is not as finely divided as possible an inferior ink will be the result. After the carbon and gum have been mixed the product has to be slowly and carefully dried. The high polish is said to be produced with tree wax.

Europeans have produced ink equal if not superior to the genuine Chinese article. The reason why the manufacture has remained chiefly in eastern hands is an interesting one. The business instinct of the European maker prompts him to seize any opportunity of substituting cheaper raw materials and so lowering the quality of his ink, while the tendency of the Chinaman is to work on in the same groove, and in this case his hidebound conservatism is profitable.—London Mail.

Mozart Relics.

The small and old fashioned Mozart house is in the middle of Salzburg. It is with a feeling of respect, a visitor to the spot says, that one climbs the three flights of stairs and enters the room where Mozart was born. All the ancient pictures, the two old pianos and many relics belonging to the composer take one back a hundred years. The only jarring note in this harmonious association of memories is that Mozart's skull is in a glass case in the center of the room, all that remains of him, since no one could ever distinguish his body in the mass of remains in the common paupers' grave wherein he was buried in Vienna.—London Globe.

Papa's Frankness.

"What would you think if your daughter were to elope?"

"I'd think," replied the discouraged old man, "that somebody had been stringin' the fellow concernin' the amount of money I'm worth."—Exchange.

The Early Bird.

Our English saying about the early bird's breakfast has its counterpart in twenty other languages. The Germans, for instance, have a rhymed proverb to the effect that early morning has gold in its mouth.—Hartford Courant.

Contradictory.

"He said he couldn't live without her."

"Did she accept him?"

"Oh, yes, after looking him up in the financial reports and finding that he could."—Puck.

Where there is much pretension much has been borrowed. Nature never pretends.—Lavater

CHEEK, PUSH AND CASH.

Three Essentials, Says a Cynic, to Success In Life.

Fighting for cards to entertainments, pushing up by hook and by crook, giving dinners and dances (typewritten descriptions of which are given to any journalists who wish for them)—these things are essentially opposed to "that repose which stamps the caste of Vere de Vere."

These influences are very widespread. To "get on" is the great object of every one, and to get on one must drop as many refinements as possible. They "do not pay." This may seem cynical, but it is unfortunately true. Cheek, push and cash are the three essentials to success, and if the last be lacking the two former are necessary for its getting.

This is all false, unworthy. It is only the veneer of a butterfly class. The aristocracy is one with the upper middle classes in its rejection of these influences. Refinement is not dead among us, but it is overshadowed. Sane and serious people are sickened by the frothy life that goes on about them. If it really brought enjoyment to its devotee it would be justified, but that it does not is amply evidenced by the discontented, artificial faces under the horribly pretty hats above the vulgarly elaborate dresses. Better things will come, better things exist now beneath this false surface, but the man who beats the drum can drown the strains of the violin. Just now the drum is very loud. Let us lower our voices and wait.—London Outlook.

QUEER ENGLISH BELIEFS.

Superstitions That Still Abide With the Country Folk.

There is a well known weed with dark blotches on it, not unlike blood stains. I have been twice assured with the utmost seriousness by an old woman that "where you find them there a-growing there's been a battle long ago."

The same dame once seemed rather in a hurry when buying a setting of eggs from me about tea time, and I found the reason was that she believed you had no luck with eggs if you did not set them before sundown. This is curious, for, though the modern poultry keeper might make the nest and place the eggs in it during the daytime, he would probably defer putting the "broody" on them till dusk that she might have the best chance of settling down quietly.

The other day in a neighboring cottage I was admiring a fine baby and ventured to suggest that if its nails were left so long it might scratch its face. The mother said she would cut them, but the grandmother burst in with: "You'll do nothing of the sort, my dear, asking your pardon, sir. You don't seem to know, sir, that to cut a child's nails before it's twelve months old makes it light fingered." And I am perfectly certain the nails will not be cut. It will be of interest to add that the cottagers I speak of live near enough to London to see its lights in the sky.—London Chronicle.

Talked Too Much.

Speaking one day of club sociability, Hy Mayer, the cartoonist, told of a club to which he was invited while in Berlin. The club was composed of elderly Germans, who met in a back room to drink beer and smoke. At intervals one of the clubmen would remove his pipe from his mouth, nod his head sagely and remark, "Yah." After a little pause another of the smokers would say, "Yah." That was the extent of their conversation. "One night," said Mr. Mayer, "one of the members brought his son to the club. After several of the older ones had spoken as usual the youngster spoke. He said, 'Yah, yah.' They expelled him at once," concluded Mr. Mayer, "for talking too much."

An Effective Whistle.

A popular English author was wholly incapacitated from work by a lady who lived next door and strummed through Handel's "Messiah." His idea of the inviolability of an Englishman's house did not allow him to send in any message, and he was at his wits' end till he saw in a daily paper that steam whistles could be bought to fit on to kettle spouts. He provided himself with one and put the kettle on the fire in the room nearest the singer. As soon as the whistle began he went out. Of course the bottom came off the kettle, but it cost little to solder it on again, and after two or three solderings the lady took the hint.

Good Luck For Turtles at Least.

The Chinese have a peculiar custom with regard to turtles, which they consider as very good joss. Almost any day one can see these creatures, some of them of huge size, being carried on board the river steamers, not to be taken to Canton for culinary purposes, but to be dumped into the sea and restored to liberty and freedom. Good luck is thought to follow.—Hongkong Press.

Useless.

"No, sir; I never borrow trouble."

"Neither do I, so why should I sit here listening to your argument about the wickedness of docking horses? I don't own a horse, and I never expect to."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Conscious Virtue.

Senator Blowen (proudly)—No, sir; no one has ever attempted to bribe me. Senator Ketchem—Never mind. Some day, when it's a close vote, you'll get your chance.—Chicago Journal.

Getting Even.

Barber—Does that razor pull, sir? Customer—Yes, but go ahead. I've been pretty hard pushed lately, and this'll even up things a little.—New Yorker.

SUNDAY SERVICES.

May Have Met With Foul Play

New Haven, Sept. 3.—The body of Louisa Dupoes, 20 years old, was found on the rocks off Woodmont. She left home Monday, saying she was going to visit in Meriden, and was seen Thursday night walking near the place where her body was found. Coroner Mix is of the opinion that the girl met with foul play and is conducting an investigation on that theory.

Bay State Troops Go South

Boston, Sept. 3.—Three thousand of the flower of Massachusetts volunteer militia, the Fifth, Eighth and Ninth regiments and the signal corps, all included in the Second brigade, left this city for the Bull Run battlefield this morning. From 6:30 o'clock until after 9 a. m. both North and South stations were the centre of unusual activity.

Stolen Silverware In Field

Brookline, Mass., Sept. 3.—While passing a field near Coolidge's corner last evening a little girl noticed some silverware behind a fence. She notified a policeman and upon investigation more than $2000 worth of silver that was stolen from the home of Lewis Woodruff by burglars early yesterday morning was recovered.

Cotton Mill Shuts Down

Chicopee, Mass., Sept. 3.—The Chicopee Manufacturing company has shut down its entire plant until Sept. 12 on account of the state of the cotton business. Only a half of the plant has been running for several weeks and it has been upon a four-day schedule since the early spring.

Closed Because of Smallpox

North Adams, Mass., Sept. 3.—The board of health has issued an order closing the churches, theatres and schools on account of the prevalence of smallpox in the city. Thirty-five cases and two deaths have been reported.

Not Pleasing to Divorcees

New York, Sept. 3.—Men who have been paying alimony to a former wife, married after getting her decree, are celebrating over the new state law which has gone into effect and cuts off the incomes of thousands of divorcees now living with their second husbands.

—The American Inventor tells of a narcotic bomb invented by a surgeon in the Austrian Army which may be fired from any gun. This bomb has a time fuse, and when dropped amid a regiment of the enemy will not explode, but will fill the air with narcotic gases strong enough to make 2000 men unconscious four several hours. It is an application of the principles on anaesthetic surgery to war.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

John Craig and Lillian Lawrence, the former stars of the Castle Square stock company, will be the principal entertainers in the Keith vaudeville bill next week, which will be their last appearances on the stage in Boston for some time. They will present the balcony scene from Romeo and Juliet, which will be given a splendid stage setting by the management of the theatre. William Harcourt, the well known leading actor, is to make his vaudeville debut in Boston, presenting a comedy sketch entitled "A Dakota Widow." Other entertainers whose names are prominent on the program are James Harigan, who was formerly billed as "the tramp juggler," but has now developed into one of the leading monologue comedians and topical singers in the varieties; Albertina Mellish, who will exhibit a troupe of wonderfully trained birds, and Misses Lucie and Viate, noted wire performers, both acts having been imported direct from Europe for appearance on the Keith circuit. The Fadettes will have an entire change in musical selections, and all the motion pictures in the biograph will be renewed. It should be noted that the holiday (Monday) opening is at 11 o'clock, A. M., and that on Tuesday, and thereafter during the fall and winter seasons, the doors will open at 1 o'clock, P., M. instead of at 1.30, as has been the case during the summer.

BOSTON THEATRE.

"Quincy Adams Sawyer," the great rural New England play, which has had several remarkably successful engagements at the Boston Theatre, will open the season at that play house on Saturday night, Sept. 3, and will continue to be the attraction for the following week only, with an extra matinee on Labor Day, in addition to the regular Wednesday and Saturday matinee. It is seldom that the pulpit speaks approvingly of the stage and there have been very few instances indeed where the church has been so loud in its praise of any as in the case of this one. The scenic production will be new one and will be seen to especial advantage with the excellent lighting effects made possible by the new electric switchboard installed by Manager McCarthy at an expense of over $6,000. The cast will be much the same as last season, nearly all the old favorites appearing in their original roles. As the engagement is for one week only seats should be secured in advance.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

For the week beginning Labor Day, Monday Sept. 5, the management of the Castle Square Theatre announce the emotional drama "Rose Michel" which made one of the famous Union Square stock company's productions almost a generation ago. The story deals with the results of the robbery and murder of the Baron DeGrandchamps by the husband of Rose Michel, an innkeeper of Sureener. The Baron had on his person 100,000 francs which he had received from his wife's lover Mr. de Boisey, under compromising circumstances. Rose discovers the theft and, secure the money from her husband, Pierre, return it to its original owner, de Boisey and upon the discovery of the money in his possession he is arrested for the murder of the baron to recover with his right hand what his left hand has parted with. The plot of the play turns upon the dilemma in which Rose finds herself as being the only witness who can clear de Boisey at the expense of the life of her husband to whom she is devoted.

September Magazines.

McClure's Magazine for September is a vigorous expression of American life and interest, part fact, part fiction, all entertaining. Several serious articles give it commanding importance and character. Of these William Allen White writes of "Roosevelt and the Postal Frauds." It is in all an article which every American citizen will want and ought to read. Ida M. Tarbell gets at the very heart of the trust question in her Standard Oil History in a masterly paper on "The Price of Oil." "The Friendly Fog," of which Henry C. Rowland romances exercises a most important function in the lives of two charming young people who profit by its kindly ministry. It is a yachting story and a love story of distinctly clever plot and bright lines.

Francis Willing Wharton has a new novelette in the September number of Lippincott's magazine entitled "The Deep Waters of the Proud." This title is, we believe, taken from one of the Psalms of David. It is the story of a young man who, with the whole world at his feet, hears from his physicians that he is going blind. With the promise of twelve months of light before the darkness finds him, he resolves to enjoy all he can get out of living and then—die game. How he is turned from his purpose belongs to the author to reveal. The breathless climax is handled with the greatest cleverness, while the tale throughout excels in power and interest.

What It Costs

... AND ...

What It Pays

are two values of newspaper advertising that the merchant has to consider. But the most important thing is

WHAT IT PAYS.

The merchant can get space in papers of small circulation and little influence for a little less money than the same size space would cost in the DAILY LEDGER and the QUINCY PATRIOT.

DOES IT PAY

to throw away the certainty of the profitable returns which are sure to LEDGER and PATRIOT advertisers, because it costs less to advertise in a cheaper paper?

THE CHAMPIONS.

South Quincys Again Defeat Merrymounts.

The Score Was Six to Three.

The Wollaston Parks Defeat the Somersets.

Again on Labor Day, in the presence of 1000 or more people, at Merrymount park, the South Quincys defeated the Merrymounts by the score of 6 to 3. It was a close contest from start to finish characterized by heavy hitting, effective pitching at critical times, and also a few costly errors.

Drake opened for South Quincys with a long fly to right field which was captured. Donaher hit just inside the left field line and reached second. A sacrifice by J. A. Duffy advanced him, but Birnie was third out at first and South Quincy was blanked.

After Taylor had struck out and Bennett retired at first, Baker hit a long fly into the hole in right field and scored a home run by fast base running. Eaton struck out.

MERRYMOUNTS 1, SO. QUINCYS 0.

A. Dunn was the only South Quincy man to reach first in the second on a base hit to left, but he was left on third.

For the Merrymounts, Gill hit safely between second and third and stole second. He tried to score on Chadbourne's out at first, but was unsuccessful. Meanwhile Osgood struck out.

Patterson flied out to centre field, Drake hit safely between second and third, Donahue struck out, and J. A. Duffy hit safely to right, reaching second on steal. A passed ball into the crowd allowed Drake and J. Duffy to score, and then Birnie flied out to short.

Taylor hit safely in the third to right field, but was left on first.

SO. QUINCYS 2, MERRYMOUNTS 1.

South Quincy added an earned run in the fourth on a hit and steal by A. Dunn who scored on Spargo's out.

Merrymount added one and had two left on bases. Baker opened with a double to right and Eaton a single to centre. A wild throw by Drake to third allowed a score. Osgood received a pass and stole second, but "Chad" struck out and Atkins popped a fly to Donaher.

SO. QUINCYS, 3; MERRYMOUNTS 2.

In the fifth, Patterson opened with a safe hit to left and Kolson gave Drake a pass. Both were left as Kolson assisted in two outs at first and then struck out Birnie.

It was one-two-three for the Merrymounts, two on strike outs and Bennett on a fly to left.

There was some controversy in the fifth over Patterson's delivery, and Kolson deliberately took a step in the sixth, but J. Duffy was given first base and it put a check on it. Sacrifices by A. Dunn and Spargo and a safe hit by J. Dunn to left allowed Duffy to score. Then Patterson flied out.

Eaton was the only Wollaston man to reach first in the sixth, but he perished at second.

SO. QUINCYS, 4; MERRYMOUNTS, 2.

The Ward Three men were unable to reach first in the seventh. Two Wollaston men were more successful, Osgood being given first on illegal pitching, and Chadbourne a pass. Atkins struck out. Kolson hit a long fly over the first base which looked good for a run or two but J. A. Duffy got under it, and Taylor again fanned the air.

Birnie opened the eighth with a single to left, and Duffy followed with a double to right. A. Dunn struck out. Birnie attempted to score on Spargo's hit but was out, and J. Dunn closed the innings at first.

Wollaston added a run and had two left in this innings and missed their opportunity. Bennett hit safely to centre, and Bennett got first on an error. Eaton flied out. An error by Donaher allowed Gill to reach first and Bennett to score. Then Osgood struck out, and Chadbourne was unable to beat the ball to first.

SO. QUINCYS 4; MERRYMOUNTS 3.

With two men out, Donaher got first on an error, and J. A. Duffy contributed a double. Birnie then put a fly into Eaton's hand but it did not stay there and two runs resulted. J. Duffy flied out to left.

With three runs to tie, Merrymount made a poor try in the ninth. Atkins flied out, and Kolson and Taylor struck out, the latter for the fourth time.

Mr. Leach of Wollaston, the umpire, came in for some criticism by the Merrymounts and their sympathizers, but was as fair as possible and on the whole gave good satisfaction.

Atlantics Win.

It was a close game played on the Ward Six playground on the afternoon of Labor Day, in which the Atlantics defeated the Athelwood A. A. 3 to 2. It was a pitchers' contest.

The visitors were first at the bat and scored two runs. The Atlantics scored three in the last half of the second and that was the extent of the run getting.

Both Hawkins and Alberti did effective pitching, so that the visitors hit safely but four times and the Atlantics five times. Hawkins struck out 15 and Alberti 11.

Copelands Win.

At South Weymouth Saturday the Copeland club of West Quincy defeated the Porter A. A. in an exciting finish by the score of 6 to 5. With three runs to tie and four to win, the Porters made two in the ninth. The Copelands excelled at the bat and in the field.

Bigelows Win Two.

The Bigelows of Quincy Point won a double-header yesterday, defeating the Railroads of Quincy at the Socialist picnic in the morning, and the Roanokes of Boston in the afternoon. In the first game the battery work of Rogers and R. Ford and the short-stop playing of Saunders were the features, and in the afternoon the pitching of R. Ford and the hitting of the Bigelow team was notable.

VETERAN HOSEMEN.

Reunion of the Old Washington M. French Hose Company.

The annual reunion of the Washington M. French Hose company was held Monday at the Rock Island farm. The affair was one of the most successful in recent years. The members and their friends began to arrive during the morning hours, and at 2 o'clock when an appetizing clambake was served there were one hundred or more present. The bake included clams, corn, sweet potatoes onions and lobsters. It was done to a nicety and everybody pronounced it all right.

At noon a light lunch was served to the early comers to keep their appetite on edge until the bake.

There was no speechmaking this year, and the members of the party enjoyed the day as each individual taste suggested.

A short business session was held during the afternoon at which these officers were elected:

President,—Fred H. French.

Vice President,—Frank C. Packard.

Secretary and Treasurer,—Jesse F. Curtis.

Assistant Engineer Frank C. Packard, who was thrown from his carriage while responding to an alarm of fire Saturday, drove down during the afternoon and received an ovation.

LAST RACE Q. Y. C.

Josephine, Thelma, Betty B and Eleanor the Winners.

The last scheduled race of the season of the Quincy Yacht club was sailed Monday afternoon in a light southeasterly breeze. There were three classes among the sailing craft, and a class for the power boats.

Class A got away at 3.35. In this class were all the old rivals, but probably on account of the light breeze they were beaten. The Josephine was an easy winner in this class, leading the prize winner Marvel by three minutes.

In Class B the Thelma and Swallow fought it out alone, and the Thelma won easily.

There were three starters in the one-design class. The Betty B won out, defeating the Ella S. by 21 seconds. The Irene M. withdrew.

In the power boat race the Eleanor beat the Marjorie by over nine minutes corrected time.

S. Y. C. LADIES DAY.

A Sail, Aquatic Sports, Illumination and Dancing.

The out of door events that were arranged for the annual ladies' day of the Squantum Yacht club two weeks ago, but which could not be held on account of the stormy weather, took place Saturday afternoon.

The yachts that had not gone cruising were placed at the disposal of the ladies who were given a sail about the bay. While this was in progress there was a series of water sports off the club house.

First came the potato race, which was very exciting. It was won by Fred Croucher, with Harry Hendrickson second.

The second event was a rowing race over a 200-yard course. It was won by H. S. Briggs, with Fred Croucher second.

The tub race probably furnished the most amusement. It was won by Harry Hendrickson, with Fred Croucher second.

The 100-yard swimming race for men was won by E. W. Lennon.

The next event was the tug of war. Two boats were fastened together with two men in each boat. It was a contest of pulling strength. The boat manned by George Sawyer and John McCarthy won the first and third heats, and E. L. Drew and Charles Bourne the second heat.

The junior tug of war was won by Fred Croucher and Fred Sass.

In the evening the club house was illuminated and there was dancing until 11 o'clock.

THE SOCIALISTS.

Have an All Day Picnic and an Evening Meeting.

An all-day outing was held Monday by the Socialists at Merrymount Park. There was a large attendance during the morning, and in the afternoon there was a crowd. Many of those present in the afternoon went to see the game of base ball that was advertised to be played between nines composed of girls.

For some unknown reason the girls failed to put in an appearance. When it was seen that the game was not to be played many left the field and went to the upper field to see the ball game there. The Finn band was present at the picnic, and gave concerts morning and afternoon.

In the morning there was a game of ball between the Bigelows and Railroads, won by the former by a score of 15 to 1.

In the afternoon there was dancing in the pavilion, an exhibition by a trained dog, and a list of sports. The committee neglected to take the names of the prize winners of the sports and they cannot be given.

In the grove there was a refreshment table, where things for the inner man were for sale.

There were several speakers on hand to expound the party views, but as the rules of the Park prohibit political speaking this part of the program was postponed until evening, when it was held at Hancock hall.

Squire E. Putney presided at the evening meeting and the speakers were Levi H. Turner, Mrs. S. A. Merrifield, Patrick Mahoney, and Dr. George W. Galvin.

SCOTTISH CLANS

Hold a Very Successful Union Picnic at Caledonian Grove.

The Scottish Clans of Quincy and other Massachusetts cities held their annual picnic on Labor Day at Caledonian Grove, West Roxbury, and the event is entitled to be called the "grandest o' them a'," for no previous picnic held under the same auspices has drawn so large a number of people, nor provided entertainment on so splendid a scale.

An unusually large number of Quincy people were present, some of them attending with the expectation of seeing the McGregor tug of war team remove the laurels from the brows of the Camerons of East Boston. In this they were disappointed, for the championship remains with the stalwart Highlanders from East Boston. The latter, however, admitted that the McGregors made them feel uncomfortable for a few minutes over the issue.

The usual features were on the program, and the usual prizes given. Caber was not as satisfactorily handled as on former occasions; very few of the contestants were able to "tip over" "the telegraph pole," as it is facetiously called by some.

There were more pipers on hand than ever before, a large contingent of them being in the field, and more scattered here and there all over the grounds, each one trying as hard as his lungs would permit to make the sloping hillside resound to the weird and warlike notes that in days gone by summoned the clansmen in old Scotia to gather for battle.

There was a generous amount of applause from the grandstand and the opposite hillside for all the contestants but the major part of it went to the wee tots who danced the sword dance and Highland fling. How those little girls, scarcely old enough to enter the grammar schools, could go through the intricacies of those difficult and graceful dances is hard to understand; but they all did it successfully.

Good Squirting.

Two Brockton tubs headed the list at the hand engine muster at Waltham on Labor Day, the Hancock taking first money with 246 ft., 4 in., and the Protector second with 239 ft., 8 in. The Defender of East Weymouth was a good third, but the Union of Braintree was 13, the Active of Weymouth 19, and the Cochato of Braintree 22, and the well known Baw Beese of Gardner last.

—Pongee silk to be successfully laundered must be hung on the line without wringing the water out. It is allowed to thoroughly dry. Press with a moderately warm iron without sprinkling.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ Today, Tuesday, is election day in Vermont, an occasion about which a good deal of superstition gathers in a presidential year. It is not a question as to which party will win; about that there has been no doubt from the very beginning of things. It is the size of the Republican majority, which is supposed to give infallible indication of the general election in November. It is certainly quite remarkable how this September Vermont vote has foreshadowed that of the nation in the following presidential election. Whenever the Republican plurality has fallen below 25,000 the Democrats have carried the country, as in 1876, 1884 and 1902; and the greater the fall from the 25,000 mark the more sweeping has been the Democratic victory for the presidency. This decline was smallest 1876, when the national result was close enough to cause a contest, and largest in the tidal-wave year of 1892. A curious thing about it is the persistence of the omen, the 25,000 mark having remained through all the changes in relative local party strength. The Democratic vote in vermont has been steadily declining for more than a quarter of a century, and the Republican vote has steadily gained, but through these vicissitudes the 25,000 Republican plurality has continued to be the test figure.—Boston Beacon.

WELL TO REMEMBER.

How to Wear a Life Preserver to Prevent Drowning.

The quality of the life preservers was not alone responsible for the drowning of the passengers on the General Slocum, says the New York Tribune. Ignorance as to the method of wearing them probably caused many deaths.

The name of "life belt" applied to the preservers has proved a source of confusion in other marine disasters. Because the circular life preservers are called "belts" many people have the idea that they are worn around the waist. When the person has adjusted it around the waist and jumped overboard, the buoyancy of the belt has thrown his head under water, and drowning has resulted.

Life belts are generally either composed of from six to eight blocks of cork sewed together in canvas or small pieces sewed into a circular belt. To the backs of the first described belt are affixed two strong canvas straps, which cross the wearer's back and which button in front. The belt should be placed directly under the armpits, and the straps brought over and across the shoulders and fastened. The buoyancy of twenty-four pounds, which is fixed by law, is then sufficient to support the head of a person above the water.

The other style of life preserver, the common tubular form seen hung along seawalls and other places, is adjusted similarly. It lacks the straps of the "jacket" form, but if placed under the armpits, being passed first, like the other, over the wearer's head, it as easily supports him. Around the outer circumference of most of these there is a loose cord. Two persons holding this cord, one on either side, are easily supported by the belt, if it is in good condition.

How to Whiten the Throat.

Here is an excellent formula for taking the stain from the neck which has been left from wearing high collars and stocks: Take fresh strained cucumber juice, boil it five minutes, and for every five ounces of juice add pulverized borax, 175 grains; acetate of soda, 90 grains; tincture of quillaja, 2½ ounces; tincture of benzoin, 4 drams; rose water, 1 pint. Mix thoroughly and apply two or three times a day until the stain is removed.

VOTE OF VERMONT

Expected to Indicate Political Sentiment of Country

A "DEAD LINE" OF 25,000

Republican Plurality Lower Than That Will Be Regarded as Democratic Victory--License Question an Important Issue

White River Junction, Vt., Sept. 6.—The state election which is being held today is of national importance, as it will be the second state election of the presidential year, and the result, as compared with former Republican majorities in Vermont, will be generally accepted as an indication of the political sentiment throughout the country.

State officers will be chosen and the Republicans, Democrats, Prohibitionists and Socialists all have tickets in the field. Charles J. Bell of Walden is the Republican nominee for governor, while Ell H. Porter of Wilmington is the nominee of the Democrats. Two congressmen and a legislature which will select a senator, undoubtedly Senator Proctor, will also be elected.

The question in which there is national interest turns on the plurality by which the Republicans will cover the state, for practically the sole fight of the Democrats has been to reduce the Republican plurality of 31,000, cast in 1900, to a figure which would indicate a significant gain in Democratic strength in a year when a President of the United States is to be elected. A Republican plurality under 25,000 will be regarded as victory. The Republican leaders of the state expect at least 25,000 plurality, and, getting it, will regard it as a strong indorsement of the Republican administration in the state for the past two years and as an omen of Republican success in the national election of November.

The political situation in Vermont, which has always been unique, and which was complicated two years ago by a split in the Republican party on the license question, is this year marked by several local issues, the probable effect of which upon the vote for governor is problematical. Chief among the local issues is, as was the case of 1902, the license. The license question is not being voted upon today, but in the selection of local candidates the nominations have in several instances turned upon the candidates' positions on the liquor traffic.

The Democrats have declared in favor of local option, but they have accused the Republicans of only half heartedly favoring the law, and have suggested the possibility of a later repeal of the law altogether by the Republicans. As a proof of this contention the Democrats have pointed to the situation in Chittenden, Rutland and Washington counties, where a large number of Republicans who are earnest "local option" supporters have nominated their own county tickets in opposition to the regular Republican nominees. The Republicans, however, claim that this will not effect the vote for governor.

A comparison of the gubernatorial votes this year with that cast two years ago is valueless because of the Republican split in 1902, when neither John C. McCullough, the present governor, who was the regular Republican nominee, and Percival W. Clement, the high license candidate, received a majority of votes as required by the Vermont law, and when Governor McCullough was selected by the legislature.

Another feature of the canvass this year has been the charge made by the Democrats that the Republicans have been guilty of extravagance since 1882, but the Republicans have answered this by pointing to the natural increase of maintaining new public institutions.

Democrats Claim Gains In Arkansas

Memphis, Sept. 6.—Early returns from the state election in Arkansas indicate the re-election for governor of Jefferson Davis, the Democratic incumbent, over Harry Myers, Republican, by a large Democratic majority. The Democrats easily elected their entire state ticket. Democratic managers claim that Davis' plurality may exceed the figures of two years ago, which were 48,103. Returns are necessarily slow, as many voting places are remote from railroad and telegraph stations.

Death Penalty For Brutal Crime

Auburn, N. Y., Sept. 6.—Giuseppe Varsacia, the accomplice of Antonio Giorgio, who was executed here last Tuesday for the dual murder at West Almond in May last, was put to death yesterday. Giorgio killed Van Gorder in Varsacia's presence and compelled the latter to kill Miss Farnham, half-sister of the first victim. Versacia was 21 years old.

STRUCK TELEGRAPH POLE

Electric Car Crash In Which Women Were the Sufferers

Boston, Sept. 6.—Three women were seriously, though not fatally, injured in an electric car accident in West Roxbury district last night. They are Mrs. Mary Muir, Miss Ruth McRae and Mrs. Martha McPhee. The three injured women were taken to a hospital. Four other women received minor scratches and bruises.

The accident happened on Beach street on the tracks of the Boston Elevated Railway company. There were 85 passengers on the car, all of whom were returning from the Scottish games at Caledonian grove.

At the point where the accident happened the track runs along the edges of an embankment 20 feet high. The car was proceeding at a rapid rate of speed when it suddenly left the track, the cause being, it is believed, a broken flange on one of the wheels. The car crashed into a telephone pole, snapping it off four feet above the ground. The stump of the pole is all that saved the car from going down the embankment.

The three women who were hurt were sitting on the front seat, and when the car crashed into the pole they were thrown from their seats.

Charges Not Sustained

Boston, Sept. 6.—Governor Bates has ordered that First Lieutenant John F. Delaney of company D, Ninth regiment of infantry, M. V. M., who had been suspended from duty pending an investigation of charges preferred against him, be released from arrest and that he return to duty. Delaney was charged with being absent from his command without leave; disobedience of orders; drunkenness while on duty, and conduct unbecoming an officer. Governor Bates exonerated Delaney on every specification contained in the charges.

Caldwell Out of Commission

Revere, Mass., Sept. 6.—James F. Moran of Chelsea won the six hours-motor-paced race held at the Revere cycle track. For more than half the race Harry Caldwell was in the lead, finally meeting with an accident. After covering 121 miles without being headed, Caldwell was thrown from his wheel, receiving a broken rib and severe cuts on his right arm, and he was forced to retire. Moran's score was 197 miles 250 yards. McLean, Butler and Caldwell finished in the above order.

Boys Charged With Robbery

Cambridge, Mass., Sept. 6.—Edward Spicer, 18 years old, Gardner Gibson, 17, and George Heylitt, 14, are charged with breaking and entering and larceny. All of the boys are students at the Rindge Manual Training school. It is alleged that the boys have entered the homes of Harvard professors while the tenants were absent. The value of the property stolen will amount to several thousand dollars, the police say.

Ten Thousand In Labor Parade

Boston, Sept. 6.—Boston streets resounded yesterday with the tramp of labor's hosts, and 10,000 toilers wound their way through avenues of congested humanity. Not from Boston alone, but also from surrounding cities, citizens gathered to pay tribute to the occasion, and the respective greetings of state and city were extended by Governor Bates and Acting Mayor Doyle.

Work For 3300 Operatives

Pawtucket, R. I., Sept. 6.—After a brief period of idleness, three of the textile mills in this city resumed operations today. They are the thread mill of the J. & P. Coates Co., employing 2200 hands; the Dexter Yarn company, employing 300 hands, and the cotton mill of Green & Daniels, employing 800 hands.

Investigating Miss Dubois' Death

New Haven, Sept. 6.—Regarding the death of Louise Dubois, whose body was found on the Woodmont shore, Coroner Mix states that he has not yet reached a conclusion as to how the girl met her death. Coroner Mix will examine the girl's lungs and will question Ernest La Pointe, the girl's suitor.

Victims of Automobile

Ipswich, Mass., Sept. 6.—An automobile struck and overturned a carriage in the street here, throwing out the four occupants, Bazard Tuckerman and his daughter and Randolph M. Appleton and his daughter. The men escaped with but few bruises, but both women had their collarbones broken.

The Cora May Sets Sail

Chatham, Mass., Sept. 6.—Schooner Cora May, St. John, N. B., for Stonington, Conn., with lumber, which grounded on Chatham bar Saturday night, floated without assistance at high water. She proceeded west, with three feet of water in her hold.

American Girl a Baroness

Newport, R. I., Sept. 6.—Miss Alice M. H. Pfizer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pfizer of Brooklyn, wedded Baron Reinhart Cl. Bachosen von Echt of Germany at the summer home of the bride's parents.

Mettling's Fast Fifty Miles

Cambridge, Mass., Sept. 6.—Louis Mettling defeated Will Stinson in a 50-mile motor-paced race at Charles River park, making the distance behind four horse-power motors in 1h. 12m. 28 4-5s.

Insured for $2,000,000

L. Rodman Wanamaker, son of John Wanamaker, the eminent merchant of New York and Philadelphia, has taken out a policy in

The Prudential Insurance Co.

for $1,000,000, paying an annual premium of over $30,000. This makes him the most heavily insured man in the world, with the single exception of King Edward VII.

Mr. Wanamaker's total insurance is now $2,000,000.

Ask yourself WHY Mr. Wanamaker placed one-half this great amount with The Prudential.

Your business judgment will at once reply: "Because after full investigation and comparison, Mr. Wanamaker found that the company which could give him the best insurance for a given amount of money was The Prudential."

Undoubtedly you will agree that Mr. Wanamaker does not pay over $30,000 per year except for most excellent reasons.

These reasons apply to YOU precisely as well as they do to HIM.

GREAT RACE FOR MUKDEN

Russians and Japanese Headed For Rich Base of Supplies

ABOUT TO BE EVACUATED

Japs In Fair Way to Succeed In Taking Place Which Will Furnish Commodious Winter Quarters and Control Whole of Southern Manchuria--Russian Losses Up to Sunday Were Sixteen Thousand Men, With Japanese Casualties of Probably Double That Number

London, Sept. 6.—The forces of Kuropatkin and Oyama are racing for Mukden. This much stands out in the latest news, and it is indicated in a report forwarded by Kuropatkin, who says that his retreat is being conducted in perfect order, though the Japanese on Sunday repeatedly attacked his rear and continued the attack until Monday. The result of the race is in doubt, according to Kuropatkin's admission.

The united Russian forces are now north of Yentai, a station on the railway about 10 miles northeast of Liaoyang. They are pushing on to Mukden, to which the bulk of the Japanese forces is marching direct, after having swarmed across the Taitse river. A strong Japanese flanking column is about 30 miles northeast of Liaoyang and is trying to get between the Russian forces and Mukden.

With this race in progress there comes a brief dispatch from Mukden, saying that preparations for the evacuation of that place are proceeding.

It is reported in St. Petersburg that Kuropatkin's rear guard has been almost annihilated and that the main Russian army is in danger of being surrounded.

The race of General Kuropatkin for Mukden enthralls the British press and public, and military and other critics scarcely venture a definite surmise as to its result. The best opinion, however, inclines to the belief that Kuropatkin will get through with a respectable remnant of his great army, thus robbing the Japanese of the complete fruits of their victory, but it is realized that the Russians will not be out of the woods for several days.

It is believed here to be likely that the report that Kuropatkin is cut off will be repeated several times before the issue of the sanguinary struggle is decided. English military critics base such opinions as they have upon the tremendous topographical difficulties General Kuroki must overcome before intercepting Kuropatkin who, they hold, has shown ability to take advantage of every phase in the strategy of retreat. If Kuroki now succeeds, after failing in the initial attempt, he will have accomplished, in English eyes, an almost superhuman achievement.

Here it is almost taken for granted that a Japanese occupation of Mukden must quickly ensue. No serious English critic supposes that Kuropatkin will dream of making such another fatal attempt to stem the Japanese advance, as he did at Liaoyang. If the Russians can reach Harbin they will, according to English opinion, be lucky.

Before that becomes a question of moment, however, it is expected that desperate engagements must be fought, and the Japanese are expected to risk even heavier casualties than they sustained at Liaoyang in the final endeavor to annihilate Kuropatkin, either on the way to Mukden or in the neighborhood of Mukden itself. The fate of Kuropatkin's force depends, say the English observers, upon the Russian general's ability to confine these efforts to rear guard actions.

What Loss of Mukden Means

St. Petersburg, Sept. 6.—It is impossible at this hour to obtain any statement from the authorities regarding the reported preparations for the abandonment of Mukden. If it turns out to be true it means the abandonment of the whole of Southern Manchuria and the winding up of the present campaign.

In fact, should Mukden be evacuated, there would be no point for wintering the army of a quarter of a million, with its many wounded, short of Harbin. On the other hand, the evacuation of Mukden would give Field Marshal Oyama commodious winter quarters and the practical control of two lines of railway. The Kinchou-Sinmintin line, tapping rich Chinese territory, stops little short of Mukden, with which it is connected by a good wagon road.

The report of the prospective evacuation of Mukden, if well founded, would indicate that the crippling effect of the Liaoyang fight on Kuropatkin's army is more serious than has as yet been intimated.

General Kuropatkin estimates his losses up to and including Sept. 1 at 16,000. This is considered to be a very conservative figure. The loss to the Japanese probably will be double this number, owing to their position as attackers.

Kuropatkin says nothing regarding the loss of guns, but it is probable that some of the heavier emplaced guns at Liaoyang had to be abandoned.

No Thought of Intervention

London, Sept. 6.—Inquiries in official and diplomatic quarters here establish the fact that no hope prevails of the termination of the war at this moment as the result of the series of victories obtained by the Japanese. There has been no interchange of official views by the neutral European governments. There is no thought of intervention, nor can there be any mediation without the consent of both parties, and Russia, it is stated emphatically, does not find the moment opportune to accept the good offices of any power.

Japan, on the other hand, is known to be willing to enter upon peace negotiations if Russia could be induced to do so. But Russia feels that she cannot afford to accept peace until she has completely vindicated her military prestige.

Crews Have a Loafing Spell

Shanghai, Sept. 6.—The crews of the Russian cruiser Askold and the torpedo boat destroyer Grozvoi, which took refuge here after the naval battle off Port Arthur Aug. 10 and which subsequently were dismantled, will remain in China until the close of the war. They will be divided and sent to the treaty ports where there are Russian consulates.

Stockyards Strike Near End

Chicago, Sept. 6.—Indications are that the stockyards strike, begun two months ago, may be called off today through the medium of a middleman. Special meetings of all the local unions involved in the strike are in progress, and if the packers give encouraging assurances to the strikers, messengers will be sent at once to the gatherings of the local bodies. The unions will then vote on discontinuing the strike and their referendum vote will be reported at once to the meeting of the allied trades council.

Fought to the Limit

Butte, Mont., Sept. 6.—After 20 rounds of a fierce fight, "Battling" Nelson of Chicago, before 10,000 persons, got the decision over Aurello Herrera of California. Nelson carried the fight to Herrera almost without cessation throughout the 20 rounds. The gong saved Herrera a knockout, although both men retired to their corners with an unsteady gait. The men fought for a purse of $3500—60 percent for the winner and 40 percent for the loser.

Washington Musicians Strike

Washington, Sept. 6.—The Musicians' union declared a general strike of the members of the orchestra of the local theatres. Three houses are open. The men employed at two of them went out and the performances were given with improvised orchestras, while in the third the regular orchestra played as usual. Failure of the theatre managers to comply with a demand for a 20 percent increase in pay was assigned as the cause of the strike.

White Men Marked For Death

Tallahassee, Fla., Sept. 6.—During the taking of testimony before the coroner's jury in the case of N. W. Epps, a planter, who was shot to death, Isum Edwards, Jr., the negro who did the shooting, acknowledged that a "Before Day club" had been organized in the county and that a number of white men had been picked out to suffer death. Edwards implicated a number of other negroes and there are eight negroes in the county jail.

Baseball Spectator Killed

Chicago, Sept. 6.—Wendell Miller, 12 years old, son of the president of Ruskin university, was killed by a batted ball while watching a baseball game. Miller was sitting in the grandstand when the ball struck him on the temple. He died in three minutes.

Yacht Corona Wins Ocean Race

New York, Sept. 6.—Arthur F. Luke's schooner yacht Corona won the ocean race for prize cups valued at $1500 offered by the flag officers of the Atlantic Yacht club. The course was a distance of 240 miles. The Corona covered the course in 31h. 23m. 43s.

Immigrants Held Aboard Ship

New York, Sept. 6.—Three thousand six hundred and sixteen immigrants who reached this port on six ocean lines were compelled to remain on the ships owing to the closing of the Ellis island immigrants' station on account of Labor day.

Revolution Continues

Buenos Ayres, Sept. 6.—The negotiations between the Paraguayan revolutionists and the government have failed and the revolutionists have reverted to their former position of hostility. Developments in the revolution are hourly expected.

Parade of Non-Union Labor

Cripple Creek, Col., Sept. 6.—Labor day was observed here with a parade of 3000 non-union workmen. Banners reading "They can't come back," Cripple Creek is still in America," and "We don't hire salaried agitators," were carried.

To Confer on L Difficulties

New York, Sept. 6.—The officials of the unions interested in the troubles on the elevated road state that a conference has been arranged for this afternoon. Until that time no further action looking toward a strike will be taken.

Police Experts at Baseball

Melrose, Mass., Sept. 6.—Runs were so numerous in a ball game between the local police and the letter carriers that even the official score-keeper became entangled in the mass of figures and it is doubtful if he secured the totals correctly. The score, as near as could be obtained, was 48 to 1. The solitary run made by Uncle Sam's men was secured on a wild throw of the police pitcher, Wilbur.

Platonoff Succeeds Plehve

St. Petersburg, Sept. 6.—Senator Platonoff, a member of the council of the empire, has been appointed minister of the interior and chief of the Russian police, in succession to the late M. Von Plehve.

Jealousy and Double Shooting

New York, Sept. 6.—George Schmidt, in a fit of jealousy, shot his wife three times. Believing he had killed the woman, Schmidt shot himself. Both are in a critical condition.

EARTH LIGHT.

Evidences That Our Planet Possesses a Luminous Quality.

In proof that the earth does emit light Humboldt (1808) points to the aurora borealis. The light produced by this luminous arch is distinct from that received from the sun, and its intensity slightly exceeds that of the moon's light in her first quarter. At the poles this glow continues with scarcely a break, reminding us of the planet Venus, whose side turned away from the sun often gives forth a feeble phosphorescent light.

Humboldt goes on to argue that other planets also may possess a similar luminous quality, and in our atmosphere there are other evidences of this emission of light from the earth itself. Such were the famous dry fogs of 1783 and of 1831, which gave forth light perceptible at night, and such is that diffused glimmer which guides our steps in the nights of autumn and winter, when clouds hide the stars and the earth is not covered with snow.

It is therefore not entirely true that, as Sir Norman Lockyer puts it, "the earth cannot give out more light than a cold poker can."

GENIUS AT WORK.

Curious Postures of Some Men to Woo a Flow of Ideas.

Lombroso says that some men of genius in order to give themselves up to mediation even put themselves artificially into a state of cerebral semi-congestion. Schiller worked best with his feet plunged into ice. Descartes buried his head in a sofa while meditating, while Milton composed with his head leaning over his easy chair.

Paisiello composed beneath a mountain of bedclothes, and Rossini found bed the best place for his best works. Cujas worked lying prone on the carpet, and Liebnitz is said to have been obliged to assume the horizontal to meditate at all satisfactorily. Rousseau worked with his head in the full glare of the sun, Shelley on the hearth rug with his head close to the fire, and Bossuet, retiring to a cold room, wrapped his head in hot cloths.

It is possible that some of these devices increased the flow of arterial blood to the head, just as many can think best when exhilarated by rapid exercise or by walking up and down a room.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

IN BATTLE ARRAY

Opposing Armies Are In the Field In Virginia

A TWO DAYS' CONTEST

General Corbin Gives a Dinner to Guests, at Which Ex-Senator Manderson Delivers Some Humorous Thrusts

Gainesville, Va., Sept. 6.—Orders for a rush to positions were given in both manauver camps exactly at midnight last night. The "Blue" army under General Grant moved to attack the "Brown" army under General Bell. The orders of General Bell sent his forces towards his adversary at double-quick. It is his desire to reach a position near the centre of the maneuver field and stop the attacking force, whose duty it is to force a passage through Thoroughfare Gap.

Careful estimates of these marches indicate that a collision between the opposing forces will take place somewhere near Groveton, a memorable spot in the Bull Run battles. From this first collision the Brown army can fall back, if necessary, to successive positions toward Thoroughfare Gap. General Corbin will join General Grant and witness the operations of his army. The day following he will be with General Bell.

The plans of neither commander have been divulged, but the problem makes plain to military strategists the course that will be followed in all likelihood. Every regiment to participate in the manauvers was in its place shortly after noon yesterday. Outpost duty, regimental and brigade drills have been in progress, and all the final arrangements made for leaving camp for the battle which is to continue until 5 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, with a truce from 3 o'clock this afternoon until midnight.

Considerable feeling developed at General Grant's camp at Manassas between soldiers of the First South Carolina infantry, the First Texas infantry and the First Georgia infantry on the one hand, and a Connecticut negro regiment. Many of the southern soldiers have declined to salute negro officers.

It was discovered yesterday, although it is fair to say not in this connection, that ball cartridges have been brought into the two big camps. A rigid inspection was ordered last night and the belt of every soldier was inspected before the companies went into action.

While are armies were preparing for their contest last night in camps Nos. 1 and 2 corps headquarters presented a scene quite in contrast to warfare. General Corbin and his guests gathered in the mess tent for dinner and speeches in response to toasts were made. A toast to the president was drunk standing. A toast to Spain was responded to by Colonel Monteverde, the Spanish military attache, who is an observer of the maneuvers. Colonel Raspopoff, the Russian observer, raised his glass to the president.

Governor Warfield of Maryland spoke for his state, and incidentally remarked that Maryland was responsible for Nebraska, Kansas, Missouri and other western states. Ex-Senator Manderson of Nebraska, who spoke next, said he had often wondered where to look for the source of his friend Bryan. He now knew Maryland was responsible for him, according to the confession of her governor. He touched on the strictures reported to have been made by Representative Livingston of Georgia on the "full dress" features of the dinner in General Corbin's camp and invited an investigation by congress with the hope that the ladies present, Mrs. Corbin, Mrs. Grant and Miss Patten, would be called as witnesses. Any member of either house of congress, he said, who would not vote for the proper training of the army, that it might be efficient as such, was not worthy a place in congress.

General Greene of New York and Brigadier General Riggs of Massachusetts also responded to toasts.

Cortelyou at Oyster Bay

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Sept. 6.—National Chairman Cortelyou was in conference with President Roosevelt last night. Pursuing the policy he has laid down, the chairman declined to discuss the campaign or any features of it. He said the work was well in hand and progressing smoothly, but he could not be induced to go into details.

Stabbed In Baseball Row

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Sept. 6.—Dr. James H. Hall, manager of the Oyster Bay baseball team, was stabbed in the leg while attempting to settle a dispute between his team and one from Stamford, Conn. No serious results are anticipated. The assailant is unknown.

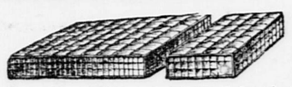

Wreck of Large Bark

Sydney, N. S., Sept. 6.—A large bark, thought to be an American, was wrecked on Simon's Point, four miles from Louisburg, C. B. The name of the vessel is not available. The crew was saved.

Sad Termination of Honeymoon

Charlotte, N. C., Sept. 6.—Professor J. F. Bivins, head master of Trinity Park high school at Durham, N. C., was killed by a train near Durham while returning from his wedding trip.

Restful Mattresses.

Just think, people everywhere trying to get enjoyment and comfort out of this life, and the queer thing about it all is, that very few start in the right place.

There isn't any money that will bring such rest and comfort to tired folks as the money you spend for one of our famous Cotton Felt Mattresses.

These Mattresses are as unlike the one you are now using, as night is unlike day. They are soft, soothing, springy, restful, dreamy. They fit the body from top to toe, and afford you rest, comfort and enjoyment, unequalled by anything else that money can buy in all this great world of ours.

They range in price from $7.50 to $15 00. We have them for immediate delivery.

OPEN HANDICAP.

Arnold Wins in Semi-Finals—C. Barker and Hall to Play.

The Quincy Tennis club held a very successful tournament in open handicap singles at their grounds on Whitney road, Labor day. Play reached the semi-final round and some very interesting tennis was provided. The handicaps were very fairly distributed, only two men playing at scratch: Hall and Davenport.

In the preliminary round:

Hall beat Holden, 6-0, 6-4.
C. Barker beat Davenport, 9-7, 7-5.
Bates beat Albee by default.
Foster beat Nowland, 6-1, 6-3.
Arnold beat H. Barker, 2-6, 6-4, 6-4.
Chipman beat Sampson, 6-2, 6-4.

FIRST ROUND.

Hall beat Niles, 7-5, 6-4.
C. Barker beat Bates, 7-5, 6-2.
Arnold beat Foster, 5-7, 6-4, 6-3.
Chipman beat Babcock, 6-3, 6-0.

SEMI-FINALS.

Arnold beat Chipman, 2-6, 6-3, 6-4.

The remaining match in the semi-final round between C. Barker and Hall will be played on Saturday, and also the finals.

CITY COUNCIL.

Regular Meetings to be Resumed After Long Vacation.

A regular meeting of the City Council will be held tonight. The great interest in the meeting will be the joint convention of the City Council and School Committee to elect a member of the School Committee to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Miss Adams.

There have already been two conventions to fill this vacancy without result. Tonight's convention, however, will probably settle the matter.

Aside from this the Mayor's appointment of election officers will come up for confirmation.

The Finance Committee will also report on some matters before them.

New Officers.

The Copeland club held an exceedingly large meeting and smoke talk at their rooms Labor day. Besides other business discussed the following officers were elected:

President,—Joseph J. Flaherty.
Vice President,—Joseph A. Monahan.
Treasurer,—John J. Joyce.
Secretary,—Fred McDonald.
Chairman Entertainment Committee,—Frank Hebert.
Trustees,—Morris F. Cohen, James F. Edwards, Philip Garrity and Harry T. Boyd.

Restful Mattresses.

Just think, people everywhere trying to get enjoyment and comfort out of this life, and the queer thing about it all is, that very few start in the right place.
There isn't any money that will bring such rest and comfort to tired folks as the money you spend for one of our famous Cotton Felt Mattresses.
These Mattresses are as unlike the one you are now using, as night is unlike day. They are soft, soothing, springy, restful, dreamy. They fit the body from top to toe, and afford you rest, comfort and enjoyment, unequalled by anything else that money can buy in all this great world of ours.
They range in price from $7.50 to $15.00. We have them for immediate delivery.

OCDEN---FAXON.

Quincy Young Lady Bride of Washington Man.

Wedding at the First Church at Noon.

Reception Followed at Home of Bride's Parents.

Miss Patty Earle Faxon, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Franklin Faxon of Quincy, and Mr. Warren Greene Ogden, son of Mr. Herbert Gouverneur Ogden of Washington, D. C., were married today at noon in the historic old Unitarian church of Quincy.

The beautiful old edifice was decorated by friends of the bride with palms and white hydrangeas, which made a charming background for the bridal party.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. E. C. Butler, pastor of the church, and the edifice was well filled with guests from Boston, Salem, New York, Philadelphia, Providence, Washington and Quincy.

The bride, who was given away by her father, was gowned in white satin, made princess and trimmed with costly lace. The bridal veil was draped off the face and was of tulle. The only ornament worn was a string of beads, a gift from the groom. She carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley, tied with white satin ribbons.

Miss Jane Reed, cousin of the bride, was maid of honor. The three bridesmaids were: Miss Dorothea Bigelow, a cousin of the bride from Chestnut Hill, who is to be married in early October to Mr. Reginald Heath of Brookline; Miss Grace Eaton of Quincy, and Miss Mildred Vinal of Winthrop. They were gowned alike in white organdie, trimmed with insertions of lace, and wore large white hats, with ostrich plumes and carried bridesmaid roses tied with pink satin ribbons. Mr. J. D. Buckingham of Quincy presided at the organ.

After the ceremony, there was a breakfast and small reception at the home of the bride on Adams street.

Mr. and Mrs. Ogden were assisted in receiving their friends by Mr. and Mrs. Faxon, and by Mrs. Darrell Harvey of Providence, and Mr. Herbert Gouverneur Ogden of Washington, the sister and father of the groom.

The wedding gifts included a rare collection of choice silver, glass, and other valuables.

After their wedding journey Mr. and Mrs. Ogden will reside at No. 1324 19th street, Washington, D. C.

PRIZE GARDENS.

Cash Prizes Given Children by the Quincy Home Science Association.

The committee in charge of the Quincy Home Science Association children's gardens prize contest has just made its award and is so pleased with the results that it announces that there will be another contest next summer. The committee were Miss Elizabeth Johnson, Mrs. Alice H. Marsh and Miss Florence R. Faxon, and they have frequently viewed the gardens entered in the contest.

Thirteen dollars in all were awarded in ten prizes, $8 in five prizes for vegetable gardens, and $5 in five prizes for flower gardens, the winners being:

Vegetable gardens,—Russell Tingley, $3; John Griffin, $2; Raymond Coyle, $1; Joseph Hogan, $1; Joseph Moriarty $1.

Flower gardens, — Henry Clark Prescott, $2; Margaret Griffin, $1; Henry Leet, $1; Helen Gurney and Mary Gurney each 50 cents.

Honorable mention was given Donald Crane, Bertha Foss, Violet Jones, Robert Leoher, Mollie Moran and Joseph Moran.

"Yankee Doodle."

As for the origin of the tune of "Yankee Doodle," over which there is much controversy, this can be said—that most of the views expressed about its origin are right, but only partly so. It is true the tune is the same as that of "Lucy Locket Lost Her Pocket," "Yankee Doodle Came to Town," and that of the Dutch reapers' song, "Yonker Dudal, Dudal Daun," but it is also identical with the old Biscayan "Danza Esparta" (sword dance) and that of a German song which was published at Cologne in the year that Columbus discovered America.

MORE MONEY WANTED.

Three City Departments Ask for More for Current Expenses.

Three Ballots Required to Fill the Vacancy on the School Committee.

A Veto of Mayor Bryant Sustained---Election Officers for Fall Elections Confirmed.

The City Council and School Committee succeeded Tuesday evening in filling the vacancy on the School Board, but it required three ballots as 16 votes were necessary and both candidates remained in the field. The School Committee asked for an additional appropriation for current expenses, and the Sewer Commissioners and Commissioner of Public Works also want more.

Councilmen Hardwick, Holmes, Lanzalier and Whiton were the absentees of the Council.

MORE FOR SEWERS.

The Sewer Commission sent a communication stating that its appropriation for extensions would not last until the end of the season, and asking for an appropriation of $22,000, the balance of the amount authorized by the Sewer act. To joint Committee on Finance and Sewers.

A VETO.

The Mayor returned without his approval the order granting a license for a wrestling exhibition at Faxon hall. His reason was that the hall was not licensed to give entertainments. Veto sustained.

PUBLIC WEIGHER.

The Mayor sent in the appointment of William McKee as a public weigher. Confirmed.

MORE FOR REPAIRS.

The Mayor forwarded a communication from the Commissioner of Public Works asking for an appropriation of $1,500 for repairs of public buildings.

Communication laid on the table until later, when Councilman Polk offered an order for $1,500 to be used in repairing steam plants at the Massachusetts Fields and John Hancock school buildings, repairing at the almshouse, repairing slate roof on City Hall, and repairs on Hose houses 2 and 4. To joint committee on Finance and Public Buildings.

MORE FOR SCHOOLS.

The School Department sent a communication stating that the amount asked for by that department had been cut in the budget from $114,965 to $111,000 and asking for an additional appropriation of $3000. Of this amount $1500 was for evening schools and $1500 for books and supplies. To Finance Committee.

ELECTION OFFICERS.

The Mayor's appointments of election officers were confirmed.

PETITIONS.

Several petitions were received for minor licenses. Referred.

The New England Telephone Co. petitioned for permission to attach wires to poles of other companies on Arlington street, and for location of poles on Sea street and Sea avenue. To Committee on Streets.

TAX TITLES.

Councilman Bass offered the following tax title refunding orders which were referred to the Committee on Finance.

$22.00 to Walter F. Fuller.
$13.84 to Walter F. Fuller.
$5.59 to Willard Walsh.

A PARK CREDIT.

Councilman Bass offered an order instructing the City Treasurer to place the $100 received for pasturage at Merrymount Park to the credit of Park Commission. To Finance Committee.

HIGHWAY CREDIT.

Councilman Bass offered an order authorizing the City Treasurer to place to the credit of the highway department such sums as may be received from the Metropolitan Water and Sewer Commission for damage to streets by construction of sewer. Adopted.

JOINT CONVENTION.

At this time the adjourned joint convention of the City Council and School Committee was held to fill the vacancy from Ward Three on the School board.

The members of the School board present were Porter, Hallowell, Burke, Hunting, Smith, Record and Churchill. The only absentee being Dr. Pierce.

Chairman Nichols appointed Dr. Record as one of the tellers in place of Councilman Whiton who was absent.

Voted to proceed to ballot.

Three ballots were necessary and resulted as follows:

	(1.)	(2.)	(3.)
No. present,	26	26	26
Vote cast,	24	26	26
Required to elect,	16	16	16
J. L. Miller had,	14	15	16
J. E. Sprague had,	10	10	10
J. E. Miller had,	0	1	0

John L. Miller was declared elected and the convention dissolved.

LICENSE GRANTED.

Councilman Adams offered an order granting James F. Burke an auctioneer's license. Adopted.

The auctioneer's bond of James F. Burke was approved.

ASSESSMENT REFUNDED.

Councilman Bass offered an order refunding Herbert T. Whitman $12.70 paid by him twice for a sewer assessment in 1903. To Finance Committee.

Adjourned 8.28 to meet Monday evening, Sept. 19.

Recital.

The students of Boston Academy and invited guests were entertained Tuesday evening by Mr. John Francis Gilder in piano recital, assisted vocally by Disc records reproducing selections rendered by Calve, Picci, Caruso, the Pope's Choir, Michallowee and other superb artists, exactly as to quality, expression and power. Arrangements are being perfected to secure this eminent composer for a popular recital at Music hall, Quincy.

—Boston commandery, K. T., refused to parade at San Francisco on Tuesday because it was not given the right of line.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

Vermont has been heard from.

With three departments calling for more money at one meeting of the City Council, it looks as if the city could not live within the limit set by the State for current expenses. It will be remembered that the City Council went to the limit when the annual appropriations were made.

Ex-Governor Morgan G. Bulkeley of Connecticut is a candidate for the United States Senate in place of General Hawley, whose health is so as to forbid his re-election. Gov. Bulkely is one of the foremost Republicans in New England. And yet the passing of Gen. Hawley will cause sincere regret among all who knew him.

There have been many word-portraits of the ideal woman, but especially interesting is that from Miss Wordsworth, so well known in England in connection with the movement for the higher education of women, who is quoted in the September Delineator as saying: "My ideal woman is always graceful and beautiful, better with her hands than with her head, but she has all with her heart. She has many admirers, but is constant to one, whom she marries at twenty-five. She can cook, sew, dance and sing; she is, very likely, accomplished and well informed. She is not a bore, because she has never overworked her brain, and is really interested in all she knows. My pattern woman is not at all controversial. She cannot argue, but she lives."

Drift of Opinion.

☞Every now and then something seems to remind the czar that Russia and reform begin with the same letter.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

☞An effort is being made to revive the lost art of daguerreotype pictures. Time has shown that the old pictures taken fifty years ago are beautiful today. It was a real art, and it will be revived.—Birmingham Ledger.

☞Walking is now recommended as a cure for appendicitis. If the appendix is all right, walking is also good for the liver, and if the liver does not need it the exercise is good for the lungs, the muscles and, above all, for the nerve centers and think machine.—Brockton Enterprise.

☞Undoubtedly the southern mills will prosper, and we hope they will. But it does not at all follow that the progress of that part of our country must necessarily mean a corresponding decline in some other section, provided competition is legitimate, free and open. Probably the truth lies between the two extremes, and that there will be a good business done in cotton manufacturing both north and south. There should be, and there will be, enough for both. But New England beaten and out of the race? Not while New England is New England!—Fibre and Fabric.

—A model coffee-curing plant in miniature is shown in the Mexican section of the Palace of Agriculture at the World's fair. The plant shows in every detail the way the coffee crop is handled from the time it is harvested until ready for the market.

A VERMONT SWEEP

Plurality For Republican Ticket Not Far From 33,300

THE GREATEST SINCE 1896

State Senate Will Probably Be Without a Democratic Member--Republicans Also Make Gains In Lower House--Effort May Be Made by Next Legislature to Turn State Back to Prohibition

White River Junction, Vt., Sept. 7.—The Republicans won a sweeping victory in the state election, rolling up for Charles J. Bell, their candidate for governor, a plurality greater than that returned for a governor since 1896, and which will prove to be not far from 33,300. Returns are available thus far from all but 11 small towns.

The state officers elected are: Governor, Charles J. Bell of Walden; lieutenant governor, Charles H. Stearns of Johnson; treasurer, John L. Bacon of Hartford; secretary of state, Frederick G. Fleetwood of Morrisville; auditor of accounts, Horace F. Graham of Craftsbury. David J. Foster of Burlington was elected to congress from the First district, and Kittredge Haskins of Brattleboro from the Second district.

The total vote as far as reported, is: Bell, 47,815; Porter (Dem.), 14,979, a plurality of the Republican candidate of 32,836. The 11 missing towns represent a total vote of about 1224. Four years ago they gave Stickney (Rep.) 988, and Senger (Dem.) 236. If they show a falling off in the vote in the same ratio as disclosed in other places they will add something over 420 votes to Bell's plurality.

Returns show that the Republicans have made large gains in both branches of the legislature. In all the districts heard from Republican senators have been elected, with the indication that the upper branch of the legislature will be without a Democratic member next year. The party had five senators in the last legislature. The Republicans have also made gains in the lower house, the standing for the 100 towns being 136 Republicans, 20 Democrats, 2 independents and 1 citizen.

Every effort to obtain an expression from some of the Democratic leaders on the result of the election failed last night. Nearly all left the party headquarters at an early hour and those who remained refused absolutely to comment on the Republican victory. Chairman Bullard of the Democratic state committee claimed that he wished to wait until the full returns had been received.

Returns from Chittenden, Rutland and Washington counties indicate a defeat for the fusion ticket organized to emphasize the present high license law. If the complete returns bear this out, it is thought probable that an effort will be made at the next meeting of the legislature to turn the state back to prohibition.

It was the counting of these fusion ballots which delayed the returns at Burlington and Rutland until a very late hour.

Secretary Watson of the Republican state committee said last night: "We expected a Republican plurality of 30,000, but the returns indicate Bell's election as governor by a plurality of 32,000. I attribute this increase in the Republican vote over 1900 to the excellent weather, the popularity of Bell among the farmers, and the care with which the voters read the campaign speeches and literature which we sent them. The victory must also be regarded as a splendid endorsement of President Roosevelt."

The vote for congressmen followed closely that for governor and with the exception of the three northern counties, where local issues affected the normal vote, the complexion of the legislature was practically unchanged.

The campaign was hard fought by both of the leading parties, the Democrats bending their efforts to a reduction of the Republican majority of 31,000, given to William W. Stickney for governor in 1900. The Republicans conceded a falling off from these figures, owing to the loss of the gold Democrat vote, but a plurality of less than 25,000 for the head of the Republican ticket would have been construed as a decline in Republican sentiment.

The polls opened early everywhere and in the larger cities and towns were not closed until sunset. In the hill communities, where the vote is not large, balloting ceased at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. The early returns from West Fairlee and other places in the centre of the state showed the Republicans holding their own, while the Democrats showed a falling off from their vote of 1900. At 8 o'clock 75 of the 246 towns and cities had made returns, the results being similar to those of the earlier returns. As usual the cities and the remote mountain towns were slow in reporting and from some of the latter returns have not been received.

The homes of the candidates for governor strongly supported their own citizen. In Walden, Bell received 114 majority, only nine votes being cast for his opponent. Porter carried Wilmington by a vote of 148 to 119, as against a vote in 1900 of 180 to 91 in favor of the Republican candidate.

The law requiring majority elections for all candidates necessitates in several of the cities and large towns a recall of the voters once and sometimes twice. At Burlington the balloting for representatives was still in progress at 11 o'clock last night, owing to numerous split ballots, and the vote for governor had not been tabulated. Two ballots were taken at Barre before the Democratic candidate for the legislature was declared re-elected.

At Rutland split ballots were also the cause of a second ballot, the result of which was not known until a late hour.

Priest For the Legislature

St. Albans, Vt., Sept. 7.—This city gave the usual plurality for the Republican state ticket, but, as in previous years, elected a Democratic member of the legislature. The vote was the smallest in six years, falling nearly 200 below that of two years ago. In view of the fine weather the falling off of the vote was somewhat of a surprise to the party managers of both parties.

Rev. Father D. J. O'Sullivan was the candidate elected to the legislature. On account of factional differences, ex-Governor Smith, a Republican, supported Father O'Sullivan and carried with him many Republican voters.

Connecticut Democrats Meet

New Haven, Sept. 7.—An address by Henry W. Rogers, dean of Yale law school, was the notable feature of the opening last night of the Democratic state convention to nominate a state ticket. The temporary organization was effected. The real work of the convention will be taken up today. Dean Rogers demanded that the courts of the state be kept apart from partisan influences, that county commissioners be elected by the people, and pleaded for a corporation act that will put an end to favoritism and abuse of public rights in the award of great privileges. A demand was made for reciprocity in raw materials for New England. Mr. Rogers said that the Democratic party contends in this campaign for a dissolution of the partnership between the trusts and the government.

Whacks Cleveland and Roosevelt

New York, Sept. 7.—Eugene V. Debs, candidate for President of the United States of the Socialist Democrat party, addressed a mass meeting of the party here last night. He devoted much of his address to a reply to a recent article by Grover Cleveland on the Chicago Pullman strike. "But that strike was not altogether a failure, at that," he declared. "It taught the workingmen something. I went to jail a union man and came out a socialist." He said that Mr. Roosevelt's public record proves that he has an implacable hostility to the working class, and he challenged contradiction of that statement.

Thinks Parker Will Lose

sentative Smith of the Twenty-fourth New York district, in which Alton B. Parker resides, arrived here by invitation of the president. He says that his district is normally Republican by several thousand majority and that Democratic hopes of accomplishing something in the district through the personal influence of Judge Parker will not be realized.

Davis' Plurality Cut Down

Little Rock, Sept. 7.—Late returns from the state election show that while the unopposed Democratic nominees for state offices received 85 percent of the total votes, the plurality for Governor Davis (Dem.) will be less than 40,000 and may drop to 30,000. The next legislature will stand: Senate—Democrats, 34; Republicans, 1. House—Democrats, 95; Republicans, 15.

Noted Politicians Visit Parker

Esopus, N. Y., Sept. 7.—Judge Parker's guests yesterday included Richard Olney of Massachusetts, Lieutenant General Miles, John R. McLean of Ohio, a member of the national executive committee; Judge McConville, chairman of the speakers' bureau of the national committee, and many others who are taking part in shaping the destiny of the campaign.

Odell Not a Candidate

New York, Sept. 7.—Governor Odell has set at rest all talk about himself as a candidate for governor to succeed himself, by declaring during a conference of state leaders that under no circumstances would he be a candidate. It seems to be as good as settled that Lieutenant Governor Higgins will be nominated.

Fairbanks on Maine Stump

Brunswick, Me., Sept. 7.—Senator Fairbanks, in his first address in Maine, devoted his attention almost exclusively to merchant marine, advocating a liberal ship subsidy.

The Packing House Strike

Chicago, Sept. 7.—Unofficial reports of the result of the balloting in Chicago on the proposed abandonment of the strike indicates that the men will defeat the proposed abandonment of the strike.

Sioux City, Ia., Sept. 7.—Three hundred strikers took a referendum vote on the proposition made by the packers. It is unofficially reported the vote was favorable to returning to work.

Kansas City, Sept. 7.—The local unions of the packing trades in the two Kansas Citys voted to continue the present strike until the packers should be brought to terms.

The Weather Forecast

Almanac, Thursday, Sept. 8.
Sun rises—5:16; sets—6:07..

LULL IN WAR NEWS

Russians Trying to Push Past Mukden on the Way North

JAPS CLOSE UPON THEM

Roads In Terrible Condition and Rivers Are Flooded--Attack on Port Arthur Continues--Russian Steamers St Petersburg and Smolensk Overhauled

London, Sept. 7.—The dearth of immediate press and official dispatches from the present actual seat of the far eastern struggle continues. It is admitted by the Russian war office that no telegrams whatever have been received from General Kuropatkin bearing Tuesday's date. The situation, in the light of the latest information, may be summed up as follows:

The Russian forces are pushing on to Mukden, greatly impeded by heavy roads and floods, conducting an orderly retreat, and followed step by step by the Japanese. Details of the fighting and of the exact position of the opposing armies are lacking. The report that Kuropatkin's rear guard has been annihilated and that the Russian forces are in danger of being surrounded is denied by the Russian general staff. The Russian war office is entirely confident that the retreat is slowly but surely being effected.

From Tokio comes the official report that the bulk of the Russian forces is still at Yentai.

The heads of Kuropatkin's long commissary trains have passed through Mukden and are continuing northward.

The attack on Port Arthur continues and Chinese arriving at Chefoo say the Russian garrison expects a general land and sea attack today.

Retreat Under Heavy Pressure

Mukden, Sept. 7.—A Russian press correspondent supplies the following:

Our retreat is being carried out under heavy pressure and with the Japanese on our heels. The task is additionally difficult owing to the terrible condition of the roads and the rivers, which are flooded.

The fighting has now been almost continuous since Aug. 24, and how much longer it will last it is impossible to say, as the initiative is in the hands of the Japanese.

The number of lives sacrificed and the loss of supplies by burning, bridges being blown up, etc., can only be explained when we once more have concentrated, and this will occupy us for some days.

Do not be under any misapprehension; we will live through these heavy days and still more alarming nights; for despite recent failures, we have steadfast faith in the future, and the spirit of the troops is unimpaired.

There are numberless stories of heroism, collective and individual, which it is impossible to relate by wire. The Red Cross is working tirelessly, not only in aiding the wounded, but in establishing booths by the roadside and distributing food and tea to the sick, injured and starving. The Chinese population is in a state of ferment.

Whole Nation In Anxiety

St. Petersburg, Sept. 7.—The emperor has received the following despatch from General Kuropatkin:

"Today, Monday, Sept. 5, the army is advancing northward. It has extricated itself from the dangerous position in which it was placed, being threatened by the enemy and having a narrow front..

"The enemy throughout the day cannonaded our rear guard, especially its left flank, but without much effect.

"We lost about 100 men today."

The utmost confidence prevails at the war office that the Russian army is slowly but surely effecting the retreat without serious risk of being cut off. None the less, intense anxiety is felt throughout the whole nation, and is shared by the czar, who is unwilling to absent himself from Peterhof, and has countermanded all proposed journeys. He remains closeted for hours with his military advisers.

Hunted Up at Last

Zanzibar, Island of Zanzibar, Sept. 7.—The British cruiser Forte yesterday found the Russian volunteer fleet steamers St. Petersburg and Smolensk within the three-mile limit and communicated to them the orders of the Russian government to desist from interference with neutral shipping. The commanders of the Russian vessels said they would forthwith proceed to Europe.

A report was brought in yesterday by the German steamer Kronprinz that the St. Petersburg and Smolensk were coaling in territorial waters. The Forte immediately proceeded to search for and eventually found them. They were not coaling, but after the orders of the Russian government had been delivered to them the Smolensk and St. Petersburg joined a German collier and proceeded to Dar-es-Salaam (on the African coast, 25 miles south of Zanzibar). The Forte has returned here.

Defects In Baltic Fleet

St. Petersburg, Sept. 7.—According to an unconfirmed report, the Baltic fleet will not be able to sail before November, owing to the discovery of considerable defects in some of the vessels which recently underwent their trial trips.

LABOR RIOT AT LYNN

Greek and Italian Strike Breakers Assailed by a Mob

Lynn, Mass., Sept. 7.—Squads of police were called out to quell a strike riot in front of the factory of Jacobson & Jacobs, a leather remnant shop, whose employes went out on strike last Friday. The firm brought about 30 Greeks and Italians to take the places of the strikers, and from 500 to 600 people awaited their coming from the factory at the closing hour last evening. Rocks and stones were hurled at the strike breakers, and in some instances knives were drawn, but no one was seriously injured.

Samuel Margolis was arrested by the police for throwing a stone, which hit one of the workers. Michael Healy was arrested for refusing to stop haranguing the crowd on the benefits of socialism, and Adam Wyzanski was also arrested for doing too much talking and refusing to "move on."

A number of Hebrews, who came from Brooklyn yesterday afternoon to take the strikers places, were met at the depot by pickets and asked to attend a meeting of the strikers. The situation was explained to them and they promised to return to Brooklyn.

Alleged Murderer Is Indifferent

New London, Conn., Sept. 7.—A morbidly curious crowd filled the courtroom here when the trial of Gershon Marx, who is supposed to have turned the various farms he has occupied in the last two years into graveyards for his victims, was called. Marx is on trial for the murder of Paul Rodecki. The prisoner, who is 80 years old, was seemingly unperturbed when he was led into the courtroom. Despite the accumulation of evidence him, Marx, since his imprisonment, has maintained a stolid silence. He seems to have no fear as to the outcome of his trial.

Appointment Turned Town

Concord, N. H., Sept. 7.—At yesterday's meeting of the executive council Governor Bachelder again nominated Channing Folsom to be his own successor as superintendent of public instruction. At last month's meeting the council rejected this nomination by a vote of 3 to 2, and yesterday took like action by the same vote. The office is now vacant, as Folsom's term expired at midnight last night, and no provision has been made regarding his successor.

Mrs McKenzie In Insane Asylum

Boston, Sept. 7.—Mrs. Minnie McKenzie, wo killed Patrolman Sturdivant of the East Boston station, Sunday afternoon, is now an inmate of the Worcester insane asylum, having been committed to that institution by orders of expert alienists. Mrs. McKenzie apparently does not remember any of the circumstances leading up to and following the shooting of Sturdivant, and she is thoroughly frenzied by the hallucination that everyone is trying to murder her.

To Testify Before Coroner

New Haven, Sept. 7.—Detective McGrath, who went to Hammonton, N. J., in order to take the deposition of Ernest La Pointe, the suitor of Louise Dubois, whose dead body was found on the Woodmont shore, returned to New Haven last night with La Pointe, and what statement the latter has to make in regard to his acquaintanceship with Miss Dubois will be made before Coroner Mix. La Pointe is not under arrest.

Free Soup Well Patronized

Fall River, Mass., Sept. 7.—At a meeting of the Textile council a delegation from the Salvation army requested that the council furnish them money to supply the needy strikers with soup. The Salvation army has been caring for children, but finds many demands from adults for free soup. The council decided to give $25, although the service will cost $40 a week.

Probable Incendiary Fire

Medford, Mass., Sept. 7.—The lumber mill of Shaw & Lemby on Winchester street, South Medford, near the Somerville line, was badly damaged by fire last night. The total loss is estimated at $20,000, partially insured. The fire is believed to have been of incendiary origin and is the second serious blaze in this locality since Saturday night.

Potato Bugs Held Up Car

Uxbridge, Mass., Sept. 7.—An army of potato bugs stopped an Uxbridge and Blackstone trolley car and it took the car crew 15 minutes to spread sand enough on the rails for the car to get headway. The bugs were emigrating from a large potato field toward Millville.

Receiver For Tobacco Company

Hartford, Sept. 7.—Judge Case has appointed H. M. Alcorn temporary receiver of the United States Sumatra Tobacco company on petition of R. L. Moore, one of the stockholders, who alleges neglect of property and misconduct of the officers.

Decision Favors Trading Stamps

Concord, N. H., Sept. 7.—By a decision handed down in the supreme court, the law enacted by the legislature of 1899, prohibiting the use of trading stamps, is declared unconstitutional and void.

A Three-Year Agreement

New York, Sept. 7.—The threatened elevated railroad strike here has been averted, an agreement having been reached at a five-hour conference which ended last night, between representatives of the Interborough Rapid Transit company and of the engineers, firemen and other employes of the road. The agreement is to be in force for three years.

Admiral Was Disobedient

St. Petersburg, Sept. 7.—Captain Viren will replace Rear Admiral Prince Ouktomsky as commander of the Port Arthur squadron.

The St. Petersburg correspondent of a Paris newspaper on Sept. 2 said that at a council of admirals it was decided that Ouktomsky be court martialled for having disobeyed the order not to return to Port Arthur after the battle with Togo's fleet on Aug. 10.

Iowa Woman Honored

St. Paul, Sept. 7.—The Empress Dowager of China has secured the services of a graduate of Carleton college as tutor to her nephews, in the person of Miss Mary Reynolds. Miss Reynolds was chosen by the minister of China at Washington, on the endorsement of President Salmon of the Northfield college. Miss Reynolds' home is at Sibley, Ia., where she was born.

Struck a Submerged Rock

New York, Sept. 7.—Steamboat William Paine, while bound for New England points with several hundred passengers aboard, struck a submerged rock in Long Island sound. She was too disabled to proceed. Steamboat Richard Peck took the Paine's passengers off and will land most of them at Bridgeport. The disabled vessel was towed back here by tugs.

Knights Templars on Parade

San Francisco, Sept. 7.—The parade of the Knights Templars here was one of the finest ever seen in San Francisco. It occupied nearly three hours in passing a given point. The advance along the line of march of the more largely represented eastern commanderies was signalized by continuous cheers. New York, Pennsylvania and Illinois made especially fine showings.

Four Killed In Train Wreck

St. Louis, Sept. 7.—A Wabash Railroad passenger train, south bound from Des Moines to St. Louis, was wrecked near Pendleton, killing four passengers and injuring 30 others. The cause of the wreck has not been determined, but it is thought that a broken wheel derailed a passenger coach, which jumped the track and dragged the dining car with it.

Applauds Refusal to Salute Negro

Atlanta, Sept. 7.—In discussing the refusal of a Georgia soldier to salute a negro officer, Governor Terrell said: "That's what I call true Georgia grit. He is made out of the proper stuff."

NEWS IN BRIEF

Stephen I. Abbott of Waterville, Me., known throughout New England as the agent for the Lockwood Cotton mills, is dead, aged 82.

Rev. Dr. Sylvester Clarke, first rector of Trinity Episcopal church, Bridgeport, Conn., and the oldest clergyman in the city, is dead, aged 71.

Mrs. Betsey Dodge died at Everett, Mass. She was born in Sydney, Me., in 1802, and had she lived until next December would have been 102 years old.

EDITOR'S HASTY CHOICE.

Had to Decide Between Paper and Baby and Chose Latter.

A visit from the stork and the suspension of the Evening Bulletin, published at Hilford, Pike county, Pa., both on the same day, is the lively news from the pen of J. F. Terwilliger, editor of the Milford Dispatch. Running an afternoon paper as an experiment in Pike county and caring for a newly born babe is too much for a Pike county editor, says a Stroudsburg (Pa.) dispatch to the Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Terwilliger, being compelled to relinquish some of the affairs he had on hand, acted promptly and decided in favor of the baby. J. Hicks Van Etten, a brother editor, in congratulating Terwilliger, said in a recent issue, "It was a question of survival of the fittest, and of course the Bulletin being the least fit had to go, and it went."

Parted Hair a Renewed Vogue.

Many women are returning to the old fashioned way of parting the hair, but this restoration of a charming but disused style applies only to women with abundant hair, says the New York Press. The pompadour and "beau catcher" coiffures were a boon to women with scant hair because they gave the opportunity to art to supply the defects of nature. Miss Isabel May, daughter of Henry May, has come forth with her thick brown hair parted and draped back over her ears. The back hair is worn in a simple coiled braid. Miss May has never worn flowers or feathers in her hair. Miss Daisy Leiter is another fashionable woman who has clung to the parted hair, and likewise her sister, Lady Curzon. Both of the Leiter girls have classic features, and the tall pompadour was not becoming to them. Mrs. Stanford White has always parted her hair, and some of the Meadowbrook women who incline toward simplicity in dress use the parted coiffure.

Market For Ink In Russia.

The Swedish commercial expert in Moscow reports to his government that all the writing and copying ink used in Russia is of foreign origin, being supplied in the main by German, French and Swedish manufacturers. Here is an opening for our United States ink producers to gain a new market.

Emigration of Finns.

Since the decree of the czar in 1899 depriving the people of Finland of their constitutional liberty 150,000 Finns have come to the United States. Newcomers are looked out for by the Finnish Exiles' club at Battery park, New York. The per cent of Finland's population of 2,000,000 is now in America.

$100 Reward, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

NOTES ABOUT TOWN.

Rather cool this morning.

Warmer weather is predicted.

H. H. Faxon has a new list of houses to let in this issue.

Councilman Stone and family have returned from Brownfield, Maine.

Miss Helen Hurley of Newport is the guest of Mrs. J. Peterson of Graham street.

Miss Carrie E. Small and friend are in town today for the Ogden-Faxon wedding.

Mrs. Wilson G. Hammond of Walker street has returned from a visit at Lyme, Conn.

Mrs. Annie Chamberlain of Hancock street is entertaining her mother from New York.

Henry S. Kolseth and grandson Carl have returned from a fishing trip at Halifax, Mass.

Mr. Farr of South Boston will be in charge of Kennedy's store during the absence of A. L. Baker.

Dr. Joseph M. Sheahan has made rapid progress toward recovery of late, and will soon be about as usual.

Dr. Abner B. Packard has opened dental parlors at the residence of his father, ex-Councilman Elisha Packard, 60 Elm street.

Rev. Frank Wright Pratt and family, of Wollaston, will spend the month of September at the Sailors' Home during the absence of Lieut. and Mrs. Downes.

The Fore River Shipyard should connect with the public sewer. The present system is a nuisance and the attention of the Board of Health has been called to it.

Miss Rose Heymann of Roxbury has returned to her home after spending a few weeks as the guest of her cousin, Miss Rebecca F. Warshaw of Granite street.

The Willard school will not reopen at the same time as the other schools but on Monday, Sept. 19, because work on the new heating plant was not far enough advanced.

Miss Jennie Roberts has returned from Wollaston to her home in Barre, Vt., accompanied by Mr. Robert Pohl of South Boston. They have also visited the White and Green Mountains. Mr. Pohl returned to his home on Monday after spending a few days at Miss Roberts' home in Barre.

EVEN MILLION.

The Price Paid for Fore River Plant.

Outstanding Indebtedness $1,606,000.

Committee on Reorganization Made the Only Bid.

The mortgagee's sale of the property of the Fore River Ship and Engine Co., by the Adams Trust Company was held at the company's plant this morning.

The property sold includes all the real and personal property, rights, franchises and privileges comprising the manufacturing plant of the Fore River Ship & Engine Company as a going concern, together with all buildings of said Company, tools, manufacturing and other machinery structures, and fixtures, the yards, docks, and all property connected with the yards and docks or used therein; all easements, letters patent, trademarks, tradenames, good will, franchises, privileges, rights, contracts, plans and specifications, railways, locomotives, patterns and drawings, ships, vessels, boats, manufactured product constructed or in course of construction; and all the Company's right, title and interest therein; all raw or manufactured material and the issues, profits and income of the property herein described.

The amount of outstanding indebtedness of the company was stated to be $1,606,000.

The auctioneer was Horace S. Crowell. But one person qualified to bid by depositing a check for $25,000. This was Henry Endicutt, Jr., who represented the reorganization committee. His bid was $1,000,000 at which price the plant was sold.

A CITY WITHOUT TAXES.

All Its Expenses Are Paid by the Income From Its Property.

In the Black forest of Germany is the little city of Freudenstadt, with about 7,000 inhabitants, a busy industrial place with iron and chemical works of some importance.

Small as it is, Freudenstadt is a full fledged city, with a mayor, aldermen, half a dozen policemen and a fire engine. The public business is conducted on an economical basis, and the total expenses do not exceed £5,000 in a year.

Freudenstadt has the distinction of being the only city in Germany and perhaps in the world which does not tax the citizens a shilling for municipal expenses. The yearly net revenue from the public property covers all the expenditure.

This property consists of about 6,000 acres of fine forest, which, being managed under the best forestry methods, is a permanent source of income. One or more trees are planted for every one that is cut down. No tree is cut till it can yield the maximum profit.

After deducting all the expenses of the industry the annual profit to the acre is about £1.—Pearson's Weekly.

How to Bake Sardines.

This little savory is seasonable at all times, as sardines are with us the year round. To make the dish you must bone as many of the fish as you require, first removing the skin; then make a little white sauce (about a quarter of a pint) and add to it a seasoning of salt, pepper, cayenne and a few drops of lemon juice; now add the sardines and put the mixture into scallop tins; cover each with fine breadcrumbs; put a few small pieces of butter on the top and bake for about ten minutes in a moderate oven.

How to Sweeten Musty Jars.

Musty bottles or jars may be sweetened with lye or dissolved soda. Let either remain in them a short time, then dry and scald them. They will not become musty if a little salt be kept in them.

No Cause For Alarm.

The Wife—Come out from under the bed, I tell you. What are you afraid of? Didn't I promise at the altar to love, honor and obey you?

W. Y. C. CRUISE.

The Pocahontas First in the Race Home from Marblehead.

The weather certainly favors the Wollaston Yacht club in all their races and events and it did not fail them on the annual cruise to Marblehead.

The start was made Saturday at 2.30 from the club house; 19 boats comprising the fleet; about 100 members enjoying the hospitality of the boat owners.

As the fleet passed in review, their salutes were answered from Commodore Wiley's yacht Claytonia. On reaching Marblehead, the boats anchored as near each other as the conditions of the harbor would allow. The evening was devoted to paying respects to the commodore and vice-commodore and in visiting among the boats.

The concert by the Minstrel Show Quartet was enjoyed by all within hearing distance. "The Man in the Overalls" brought forth great applause from the other yachts.

Sunday was a quiet day among the yachtsmen, the morning call of the captains upon the commodore being the only event of the day.

It was decided that the fleet race home, starting Monday morning at 10.15. Capt. Nelson offered his launch the Duett, as the judges' boat, and also to take the time at the end of the run at Wollaston. Some little difficulty was experienced in getting out of Marblehead harbor, the Claytonia and Harolde both being undecided as to whether they should return to Marblehead or proceed to Wollaston. The strength of the "white ash breeze" resulted finally in the departure of these boats. The Harolde with the added assistance of two men in the water started on her homeward way much to the edification of the many boats in the vicinity of Marblehead Rock.

The Pocahontas finished first with the Reliance a close second. The Goblin and Sheila finishing next in the order named. The scrap between these boats was decidedly interesting and they crossed the line within a few seconds of each other. Owing to the light air many of the boats were late in getting in, but all voted the cruise a success.

In the evening the regular Saturday evening dance was enjoyed by over fifty couples.

TODAY'S COURT.

George Fielding was arraigned for drunkenness at Quincy. Case continued until Sept. 12.

The continued automobile cases of Lewis Wright and Norman R. Spear were called, and they paid fines of $10 and $15.

IN FIERCE COMBAT

Blue and Brown Armies Get to Work on Historic Ground

BELL RETAINS DEFENSE

Brown Charging Force Ordered Back After Suffering Heavy Loss, but Success of Blues Was Only Temporary

Gainesville, Va., Sept. 7.—The Blue and Brown armies were in fierce combat when halted by the chief umpire at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Previous to this the commanders of the two forces had spent the time maneuvering for position. The net result of the day is that General Grant, who is charged with forcing back General Bell's Brown army through Thoroughfare Gap, has not been able to break the line of defense established by Bell during the early hours of the morning.

This line extends north and south, bisecting the maneuver zone about midway of its length. The northern half of Bell's defense line is composed of infantry and artillery. General Grant opposed this force in the extreme north early in the day, but with no success.

After five companies of the Blue army had been ruled off the field for attacking in the open a strong concealed defense, hostilities ceased for nearly three hours. During this time Grant swung the bulk of his infantry and artillery to the south in an effort to flank Bell's line of infantry on the right. General Bell, however, learned of the movements of his adversary and rushed up his reserves to the threatened point.

The two forces came in contact shortly after 2 o'clock. Artillery was brought into place by the Brown army and rapid-fire guns spoke on both sides, while volley after volley of musketry added to the sound of battle. The battle had proceeded only a short time when an order from the umpires was given to cease firing. At this time the forces were practically equal and the situation was such that a decision from the umpires seemed to be demanded. Instead 15 minutes was granted each side to rectify its lines. Then at a signal from the chief umpire the action was resumed.

The First Vermont, a portion of the Twelfth New York, the Eighth Massachusetts, and the Second Maine made a charge on the Blue position, moving over very open ground and under a very heavy fire from the Seventh Virginia, the First Maine and the First Texas. The Brown charging force was ordered back, after sustaining heavy loss.

The success of the Blue army at this time was but temporary, as an enfilading fire of infantry and artillery from the Brown troops on the right and left made it impossible for the Blue to hold its position, and an order to fall back was given, Bell having ordered up reinforcements, consisting of the greater part of Barry's brigade, which had been holding the line still further to the south.

The immediate line of the Brown's defense then consisted of the Second Maine, First Vermont, Eighth Massachusetts, Fourth New Jersey, Ninth Massachusetts, Twelfth New York, Third North Carolina and Second Georgia, besides a battery of artillery. Opposed to this force was the Seventieth Virginia, First Maine, and First Alabama.

The situation was critical for either side. The fighting forces were approaching closer and closer and the firing was growing hotter. A decision from the umpire would have been imperative had a halt not been called.

The record of the Blue army for the day is summed up by Colonel Wagner, chief umpire, as follows: "General Wint's brigade, which took up a position early in the day at the extreme right of the attacking line, has not been heavily engaged, and his troops are in bivouac. Price's bivouac has been seriously engaged and has suffered great losses. Frost, on the left, has not been heavily engaged, while the brigade of Cliss still further on the left has not been in action. The fighting for the Blue army was done almost exclusively by Price's brigade and by the advance guard of Wint.

"On the part of the Brown army the brigades of Smith, Lee, Regan and Barry have all been in fighting."

Colonel Wagner sees a great improvement in the militia forces regarding the use of ammunition. There was no reckless or needless firing to speak of. The control that officers of the militia have over their men was also a matter of gratification.

Great Yield of Hops

Portland, Ore., Sept. 7.—More than 40,000 persons have entered the hop fields of Oregon and begun the harvest. The crop is the most valuable ever raised in this state, being worth almost $4,400,000.

Seattle, Sept. 7.—The harvest of the Washington hop crop has begun. Estimates put the prospective crop at an increase of 5000 bales over last year.

Lynched and Mutilated

Brunson, Fla., Sept. 7.—The body of Wash Bradley, the negro who murdered Mrs. N. B. Barrow, has been found with both ears cut from his head, with slashes down his back and his arms almost severed with buckshot. His body had been hung to a tree and riddled with bullets.

REPRESENTATIVE MEN ON THE WORLD'S FAIR

What Distinguished Statesmen and Others Say of the Educational and Inspiring Exposition at St. Louis.

The public utterances of distinguished men who have visited the world's fair have but one note, and that of emphatic praise. Here are some of their comments:

Hon. John Hay, secretary of state: "I have never seen nor heard of anything so fine."

Hon. Leslie M. Shaw, secretary of the treasury: "Any father of a bright boy can afford to send him to the Fair simply to study any one of at least a thousand exhibits."

Hon. Charles H. Grosvenor of Ohio: "A visit of ten days by a man of ordinary aptness and appreciative capacity to the Fair is almost equal to a postgraduate course in a university."

Hon. Benjamin B. Odell, governor of New York: "St. Louis has been badly misrepresented by accounts which say that her weather is unbearable. The Fair is wonderful."

Hon. George C. Pardee, governor of California: "The governor of the Golden State, who has spent all his life within her borders, finds that he knew only a little about his state until he came to the Fair and saw all her varied products assembled together."

Hon. Albert B. Cummins, governor of Iowa: "The Louisiana Purchase Exposition is on the grandest scale of any exposition the world has ever seen."

Hon. Richard Yates, governor of Illinois: "The more I see of the Exposition the more I enjoy it."

Hon. Fennimore Chatterton, governor of Wyoming: "I wish the Fair the greatest success. It certainly deserves it."

Hon. Franklin Murphy, governor of New Jersey: "It is well worth coming from New Jersey to see even a small part of this Fair."

Hon. A. B. White, governor of West Virginia: "I cannot speak too strongly of the greatness of this Fair."

Hon. William J. Bryan: "The Exposition is an unparalleled wonder."

Hon. John Sharp Williams, member of congress from Mississippi: "The most wonderful thing of its kind."

Hon. Hoke Smith of Georgia, formerly secretary of interior under President Cleveland: "I am highly pleased with the Exposition and believe it to be one of the triumphs of modern civilization."

Hon. Perry Belmont of New York: "In magnitude and beauty the Fair is wonderful. It is worth coming a long distance to see."

Hon. Daniel J. Campau, chairman of the Michigan delegation to the Democratic national convention at St. Louis: "It is positively sinful for parents to fail to bring their children to see the Fair."

M. Paul Dupuy, editor of Le Petit Parisien of Paris, France: "I admire the Exposition for its immensity, its spirit of the sublime, its general beauty and its completeness."

Prince George of Bavaria: "I have never seen anything prettier than the Louis World's Fair buildings when outlined at night with their millions of electric lights."

Hon. Louis E. McComas of Maryland: "The greatest Fair in the world."

Hon. John F. Dryden of New Jersey: "The people have no idea of the greatness of the Exposition. Every American should see it."

T. P. Shants, president of the Clover Leaf route of Chicago: "The Fair is a big success and will continue to become a greater success as it progresses."

WAGE EARNERS AT THE FAIR

Prominent Men Planning to Help Workers See the Great Exposition.

Wage earners of America are to see the World's Fair by tens of thousands under the auspices of the National Civic Federation. A new bureau of the Federation has just been established at St. Louis upon the World's Fair grounds. Back of the movement are Grover Cleveland, David R. Francis Andrew Carnegie, Cornelius N. Bliss and others. Plans are making to have a vast number of the wage earners of the United States see the World's Fair, the most glorious spectacle of the age and the most influential factor in the education of the American citizen.

The bureau is in charge of Miss Gertrude Beeks, secretary of the Federation's welfare department, of which Mr. H. H. Vreeland, head of the street railway system of New York city, is chairman. The bureau headquarters is in the east end of the Palace of Transportation, on the ground floor. The Exposition management is in hearty accord with this movement on the part of the Federation to induce the large manufacturers and other employers of labor to provide ways and means for the wage earners of America to visit the Exposition. President Francis is displaying personal interest in the undertaking by affording the Federation every facility for the consummation of its efforts, and in this connection he has directed Theodore Hardee, assistant to the secretary, to co-operate with Miss Beeks and Ralph M. Easley, chairman of the Federation's executive council, in every possible way.

The Exposition management has also equipped this bureau with clerical assistance and a full supply of World's Fair literature. The bureau will be used as headquarters for all wage earners coming to the Exposition under its auspices. The aim of the Federation is to make it feasible for the largest possible proportion of wage earners to visit St. Louis and see the World's Fair. It will see that they are met at the depot by responsible persons and conducted to suitable lodgings, where they will be treated fairly.

There will also be furnished, free of charge, appropriate itineraries indicating the points of interest to be seen within a limit of one week, which is about the average time each party will spend here. It will also indicate the objects of special interest to various craftsmen in their particular lines, so that they may devote as much time as possible to the objects of peculiar interest to them. These and many other efforts will be made to help all wage earners to enjoy the benefits of this great Exposition comfortably and at an expense within their means.

Restful Mattresses.

Just think, people everywhere trying to get enjoyment and comfort out of this life, and the queer thing about it all is, that very few start in the right place.

There isn't any money that will bring such rest and comfort to tired folks as the money you spend for one of our famous Cotton Felt Mattresses.

These Mattresses are as unlike the one you are now using, as night is unlike day. They are soft, soothing, springy, restful, dreamy. They fit the body from top to toe, and afford you rest, comfort and enjoyment, unequalled by anything else that money can buy in all this great world of ours.

They range in price from $7.50 to $15 00. We have them for immediate delivery.

SPECIAL MASTER.

To Hear Case of the Federal Trust Company.

Against the Fore River Company.

Prayers to Restrain the Adams Trust Company Denied.

Another chapter in the financial history of the Quincy shipyard was published by the Boston Advertiser this morning. It says, Judge Morton of the supreme court has referred the case of the Federal Trust vs. the Fore River Ship and Engine Co. to S. K. Hamilton as special master, to hear evidence in relation to the validity of the issue of non-convertible bonds of the Fore River Ship and Engine Co., the validity of the transfer of pledge of the bonds to F. R. Hart, and his title thereto, and the validity of the transfer to Hart of stock of the Coastwise Transportation Co. and his title thereto.

Under the interlocutory degree, of which this order is a part, the agreement of Feb. 4, 1904, between the Fore River Ship and Engine Co. and Hart is declared invalid as against the mortgage of the Adams Trust Co. in so far as this property is covered by the mortgage, except as to the transfer of the non-convertible bonds of the Fore River Ship and Engine Co., and the stock of the Coastwise Transportation Co.

The Adams Trust Co., as trustee under the mortgage, is directed to sell the property free from any lien or claim of Hart as trustee, except as respects the shares of stock of the Coastwise Transportation Co.

The decree further provides that Hart as trustee shall be enjoined from taking possession of, or in any way interfering, with the property described in the mortgage to the Adams Trust Co. as trustee, excepting the stock of the Coastwise Transportation Co., and the non-convertible bonds of the Fore River Ship and Engine Co.

The prayers for the appointment of a receiver, for the foreclosure of the mortgage, for an order to restrain the Adams Trust Co. from further proceeding with the foreclosure, and for an order restraining the Fore River Ship and Engine Co. from making any disposition of the property are denied.

The Federal Trust Co. was the owner of 50 of the bonds issued by the Fore River Ship and Engine Co. All of the bonds issued were secured by a mortgage given by the Fore River Ship and Engine Co. to the Adams Trust Co. The mortgage stipulated that it owned property in existence at the date of the mortgage, 1902, and also all property thereafter acquired.

In February last the Fore River Ship and Engine Co. executed to Hart a mortgage or bill of sale of all the property it acquired after the mortgage given to the Adams Trust Co. to secure the bond issue.

The Federal Trust Co. claimed that the mortgage or bill of sale to Hart is not valid as against the mortgage to the Adams Trust Co.

The Reorganization.

The financial editor of the Globe comments as follows: The Federal Trust Co. and the Fore River Ship and Engine Co. on Tuesday came to an agreement in regard to their financial arrangements, and the litigation which had been begun in the courts was withdrawn. The withdrawal of the suit of the Trust Co. removed the only obstacle to a sale under foreclosure proceedings, and such a sale was held at Quincy yesterday. The property was bid in for $1,000,000 by Henry Endicott, Jr., who represented the interests favoring a reorganization. No other bid was made. Representatives of the Old Colony, Federal and Adams Trust companies were at the sale.

The reorganization of the old corporation was subsequently brought about by the formation of the Fore River Shipbuilding Co. which has been organized under the laws of Massachusetts. The new corporation which acquires the property and business of the Fore River Ship and Engine Co. has a capitalization of $4,800,000, of which $2,400,000 is 6 percent noncumulative preferred and the balance common stock.

Under the terms of the reorganization of the Fore River Ship and Engine Co. the bondholders and stockholders of that company will participate as follows:

Bondholders upon payment of $400 per bond will receive 10 shares of the preferred stock of the new company and eight shares of the common stock.

Holders of old preferred stock upon payment of $33 1-3 per share and surrender of certificates will receive one share new preferred and 1 1-2 shares of new common stock.

Holders of old common stock upon surrender of their shares and the payment of $100 for every 15 shares so deposited will be entitled to receive one share of new preferred and one share of new common for the 15 surrendered.

The incorporators and directors of the new company are Joseph Remick, Henry W. Palmer, Lawrence A. Ford, Reginald Bradley and Daniel W. Weeks. The officers are: President, Lawrence A. Ford; treasurer, Joseph Remick. This organization is but temporary.

MRS. PAUL REVERE.

Widow of Hero for Whom Quincy Post Was Named.

The death of Mrs. Paul J. Revere for whose husband Paul Revere Post 88, G. A. R., of this city was named, is reported on the Maine coast on Wednesday. A Rockland dispatch says:

Mrs. Paul Revere, 3d, of Boston, died at the Point Lookout club, Isle au Haut, at 8 o'clock this morning. The body was taken to Belfast by steamer for shipment to Boston.

Nathaniel Thayer, whose wife was Pauline Revere, arrived just before Mrs. Revere's death. Mrs. Thayer has been with her mother during the past two weeks. She made a record-breaking trip by special train and boat from Newport, when her mother's illness became serious.

Mrs. Revere, whose Boston home was at 350 Marlboro street, was the widow of Col. Paul J. Revere of the old 20th Massachusetts regiment in the Civil war. He was a great grandson of the revolutionary hero.

SMOKE TALK.

Copeland Club Discuss Plans for Second Anniversary.

The members of the Copeland Club were the guests of their popular treasurer John J. Joyce, at a smoke-talk held at his residence on Bates avenue, West Quincy, on Tuesday evening. After a short business meeting, when the plans for celebrating the second anniversary of the club's organization were discussed, the evening was given over to music, speeches and cigars. The affair was under the direction of Maurice F. Cohen, the treasurer of the baseball team.

Solos were rendered by Messrs. Fred McDonald, F. E. Hebert, James F. Edwards, John J. Joyce, Ed. McCall and Thomas Barry, assisted by the full chorus.

Short remarks were made by President Flaherty and the other officers, and ex-officers of the club, pertaining to the welfare of the club.

Among those present were: Joseph J. Flaherty, J. A. Monahan, F. E. Hebert, G. S. Hebert, John F. Joyce, Fred McDonald, Jas. F. Edwards, John F. Walsh, Geo. Ripley, A. E. Leclair, J. D. Smith, M. F. Cohen, Frank Egan, Bernard Hoffman, John Schatzel, A. Elcock, A. V. Raymond, P. F. Garrity, James Ogle, Thomas Barry, H. T. Boyd, J. E. McTiernan, John Kilmartin, Frank Schneider, I. M. DeButche, James Sullivan, Edward McCall, Fred Sagesse, Frank Lowe, Geo. Berry.

PARKWAY WORK

Bids Wanted for the West Quincy End.

Between Adams Street and Reservation.

The Land Takings Made on Route Sometime Ago.

It is probable that work will commence at West Quincy this month on the Furnace Brook Metropolitan parkway, the commission having asked for bids for grading that portion between Adams street and the Blue Hills reservation. Bids must be in before Monday, Sept. 19. The land takings for the route were made some months ago.

The parkway leaves Adams street between Common street and the ice pond of Sprague Bros. and follows the valley of the brook via the Ward Four playground to Reardon street; thence across Cross street; it crosses Copeland street at its junction with Crescent street, and goes through the Willard School yard. Thence across Miller street and under the railroad and Willard street, and curves round to the west into the Blue Hills reservation.

The parkway will make an excellent drive between the seashore and the Blue Hills reservation and ultimately each end will connect with Boston. The route will develop considerable land in Quincy, particularly between Newport avenue and the Ward Four playground, and along Quincy bay shore and at Atlantic.

FOR CONGRESS.

J. F. O'Connell and G. B. Gates to Run Against McNary.

The opening of the nomination papers for the Democratic caucuses in Boston, shows a contest for the Congressional nomination in this district. Congressman William S. McNary will have the opposition of Joseph F. Connell of Ward 20, who has filed papers in every ward; also of G. B. Gates of Ward 14, who has been prominent as an advocate of the referendum.

Mr. O'Connell is president of the Ward 20 Young Men's Democratic Club and has never held political office, although prominent in the Democratic party for 10 years. He is 31 years old, a graduate of Boston College and Harvard law school.

Whether the contest will extend to Quincy and Milton, the opening of the nomination papers will tell.

Clothing Store Burglarized.

There are probably three well dressed burglars about somewhere today. The outfits they are wearing were unwillingly supplied by Remick, who runs the clothing store in Music Hall block.

When the store was opened up this morning there were three piles of old clothing on the floor. In each pile were the remnants of what were once complete outfits from the bottom of the feet to the top of the head. The clothing on the counters was thrown about and the shoe boxes were scattered about.

Appearances indicate that the parties entered the store and supplied themselves with complete outfits, including collars and cuffs. Entrance to the store was obtained by breaking the glass in one of the windows in the rear and turning the catch.

Automobilists Fined.

Twelve automobile speeders were lined up before Judge Avery in the district court this morning. They were charged with exceeding the limit at the Blue Hills reservation. They were Frank W. Lawrence, Edwin R. Clarke, James L. Sturtervant, Samuel A. Meyer, Harry L. Spencer, Arthur B. Benson, Arthur N. Broughton, Fred N. Rock, George H. Berg, Charles W. Jones, Fred X. Fouek, Ernest W. Saunders. They were all fined $15 except Berg, whose case was continued until Sept. 21.

There were several good-sized bonfires in the woods at Quincy Neck Wednesday.

ADVERTISE IN THE LEDGER.

WHITLEY---LEFLER.

Former Wollaston Teacher Inherits Fortune and Marries.

A dispatch from Plainfield, N. J., to the Globe, reports that Miss Mabel Lefler, once of Wollaston, Mass., school teacher, who came into possession of $200,000 recently through the amicable settlement of the estates of the late Mrs. Charles L. Fair and her husband, married George Thomas Whitley, a draftsman, employed in the Walter Scott printing press company's plant here, Tuesday evening.

The event marked the first reunion of Mrs. Fair's relatives since her death, and all the people of Newmarket were invited to the marriage ceremony. Mayor "Bill" Smith, a brother of Mrs. Fair, who is known as the village's benefactor, gave the bride an imported rocking chair, and J. E. Chandler, a New York lawyer, who represented Mrs. Hannah Nelson, the bride's grandmother, in the fight for the Fair millions, sent a chest of silver.

The bride met her husband on a baseball diamond three years ago, when he was captain and pitcher of the Newmarket nine. Mr. and Mrs. Whitley will reside in a house which Mrs. Fair gave her niece.

BOYS ARRESTED.

Two Gangs in Quincy Point District Charged with Thefts.

Seven juveniles, who it is alleged have been doing the breaking and entering and petty thieving, in the Quincy Point district for the past few weeks, were rounded up by Inspector Bradley and Officer Larkin on Wednesday, and appeared in court this morning.

There were two gangs apprehended. In the first was Fred Lawton, John J. Lawton, Edward Rogers, and Henry Rogers. Their ages range from 9 to 10 years. It is alleged that they are the parties who broke into A. F. Hall's store, Crane's boat house, the City bath house, and other places.

When rounded up by the police, confessions were obtained from some of the gang. Although there were several complaints against the gang, the specific charge brought against them in court was breaking and entering the store of A. F. Hall.

There were three boys in the second gang, their ages averaging 14 years. They were Francis Good, John Stitt and Maurice Lawton. Their field of operation has been in the vicinity of the Quincy Point bridge. Their particular hobby was freezing on to anything they could get their hands on.

It was getting so that it was not safe to leave anything out either day or night unless it was nailed down. There are fully as many complaints against this gang as the first. They were put in, however, upon but one complaint, namely larceny of wheelbarrows from the power station.

There have been numerous complaints made to the police about these gangs and the police have been working on the case for some weeks, but it was not until recently that they were enabled to trace the thefts to the gangs. Their arrests followed.

Eyeglasses fitted scientifically. No guess work.—Williams.

Insured for $2,000,000

L. Rodman Wanamaker, son of John Wanamaker, the eminent merchant of New York and Philadelphia, has taken out a policy in

The Prudential Insurance Co.

for $1,000,000, paying an annual premium of over $30,000. This makes him the most heavily insured man in the world, with the single exception of King Edward VII.

Mr. Wanamaker's total insurance is now $2,000,000.

Ask yourself WHY Mr. Wanamaker placed one-half this great amount with The Prudential.

Your business judgment will at once reply: Because after full investigation and comparison, Mr. Wanamaker found that the company which could give him the best insurance for a given amount of money was The Prudential."

Undoubtedly you will agree that Mr. Wanamaker does not pay over $30,000 per year except for most excellent reasons.

These reasons apply to YOU precisely as well as they do to HIM.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

There never was a President in the White House who was a greater friend of the laboring man than Theodore Roosevelt. His record, from the time when he was an Assemblyman in the New York Legislature, to the present, has been a consistent one in this respect. President Roosevelt stands as the friend of the lawmaker and the enemy of the lawbreaker no matter what his politics or his calling.

Mr. John L. Miller, the newly elected member of the School Committee, is one of the most progressive granite manufacturers, and represents a large industry which should have a member on this board. One of the criticisms of the School Committee has been that it was composed of too many professional men, physicians in particular, and at times clergymen. Mr. Miller is a practical business man, with opinions of his own, and will make a valuable addition to the School Committee.

Inasmuch as the additional appropriation asked by the Sewer Commissioners is for construction rather than maintenance, and it is now September, the request should be denied until the city comes to a realization of the annual cost of its sewers. Thus far the cost has been paid from assessments levied, and has been in excess of the collections. Very soon there will be no assessments or rentals to levy and the maturing bonds, interest and maintenance must be met directly by taxation. Postpone the appropriation of $22,000 until 1905. It should be sufficient for that year.

A part of the ammunition for the campaign consists in the records of Congressmen as collated from the Congressional Record. If a member has cut a poor figure in Congress, or none at all the Record shows that fact. Has he been a negative or a positive representative of the people? Has he been content to look simply after the interests of his own district, and bring in a large number of pension bills? Has he failed to take part in the great and broad questions which concern the welfare of all the people as a nation? Was he attentive to his duties; did he vote on all important questions? These facts, and many more, are now being carefully culled from the Record, and will be used in more than one closely contested district, for or against a candidate as the case may be.

Drift of Opinion.

The estate of Whitaker Wright, the promoter who killed himself after being sentenced by an English court for swindling, is valued at $741,000. The conviction of a man worth $741,000 is an Englishism—Milwaukee Journal.

The picture of the President in war paint is being drawn rather too luridly for success. The country knows the man too well by now. There is probably no other American citizen today whose life is laid so fully open to the public, and whose ideals and conceptions of duty are so thoroughly understood. That such a man would play "foxy," concealing his real nature for the sake of election, only to shout the war song and swing the "big stick" regardless of cause or effect, is a theory that, if it were not absurdly impotent as a device, would reflect sad discredit upon the intelligence of the American voter.—Washington Star.

No Definite News of Developments In the Far East

KUROPATKIN AT MUKDEN

May Mean That He Has Decided to Try Conclusions With Fatigued Japanese--Report That Army Is Passing North of Manchu Capital Complicates Guesswork Regarding War

London, Sept. 8.—There is no news from the far east, either from Russian or Japanese sources. For the world-watchers of the great tragedy the curtain has been dropped, and all is conjecture. Not even an expression of opinion comes from Japanese sources, but from St. Petersburg it is indicated that the authorities are confident the critical stage of the Russian retreat is past and that Kuropatkin is no longer in danger of losing any part of his forces to the pursuing Japanese. The Russian commander has arrived at Mukden, and it is given out in St. Petersburg that the bulk of his army is now near there, while a dispatch from Mukden says that the main Russian army is pushing northward and evacuating that place. It is indicated that the Japanese are still harrassing the Russian rear. Further than this nothing is known. An absolute news silence prevails.

If the report regarding the bulk of the Russian army being near Mukden represents the facts, it seems to indicate that Kuropatkin has decided to make there a determined stand against the Japanese pursuit.

The reason for such a decision, in the absence of details of the retreat, is an interesting subject for speculation. There is no reason to think that the Japanese have abated their efforts to harass the retreating army, and it is within the possibilities that their attacks have been so effective that the Russian commander finds his army unable to endure them longer as rear guard actions.

In that event he may have decided to try conclusions with the fatigued Japanese army in a pitched battle. In his front he would have the broad Hun river, which should be of much defensive value. It is possible that there is some small reserve at Mukden which may strengthen his resistance. The city has a lofty brick wall, of three miles circuit about it, but the army would have to take its positions outside. The country about is rolling plainland, where the Russian cavalry, if not worn out, might be effective.

Little or nothing is known as to the condition of the Russian army, or the proportion of it that Kuropatkin has been able to extricate. Furthermore, press dispatches from Mukden, saying that the army was passing north of the city, complicate the guesswork. It may be that the Russians will continue their retreat to Tieling, 40 miles north of Mukden, and that the taking of positions near the latter city is merely a rear guard defense.

The report that eight transport loads of Japanese troops have been landed at New Chwang, and hurried north by rail, shows, if it is true, that Kuropatkin's masterly strategy of retreat is to meet further and perhaps more severe tests. Tieling is believed to offer a better defensive position to Kuropatkin than the Manchu city, and St. Petersburg thinks the army will not halt until it reaches the more northern position. A Japanese occupation of Mukden would probably have a great sentimental effect on the Chinese, and might thereby make a future offensive campaign by Russia exceptionally difficult.

Scarcely any London newspaper believes that Kuropatkin has brought the bulk of his forces with him to Mukden. It is pointed out that neither side is likely to risk the desecration of the imperial tombs by a pitched battle at Mukden, the cradle of the Manchu dynasty, and the mecca of all good Manchus, it is thought, will likely be respected from motives of policy by both the belligerents, though a comparatively pacific occupation of it by the Japanese is forecasted to occur within a few days.

Report of Battle at Mukden

Paris, Sept. 8.—The St. Petersburg correspondent of the Echo De Paris says: "A great battle is going on before Mukden. The first and seventeenth corps are engaged against General Kuroki. General Kuropatkin, with the bulk of his troops, is moving towards Tieling."

Japan Orders Armor Plates

Pittsburg, Sept. 8.—Agents of the Japanese government have closed a contract with the Carnegie Steel company for an order of 7500 tons of the finest grade nickel steel plates. The plates are for use on Japanese battleships. This order will keep the 84 and 184-inch mills of the Homestead plant busy for three months.

Ex-Mayor Charged With Murder

Charlottesville, Va., Sept. 8.—Ex-Mayor McCue is under arrest on the charge of murdering his wife last Sunday. McCue stated that he was assaulted and his wife murdered. His testimony and that of others before the coroner's jury strengthened the suspicion against him and the arrest followed.

REVISED FIGURES

Republican Plurality In Vermont Now Placed at 31,500

White River Junction, Vt., Sept. 8.—Nine belated town returns very nearly completed the unofficial vote for governor in the state election, and with only two small towns missing the Republican plurality of 31,500 is believed to be within a few votes of the correct figures.

The next legislature will be more solidly Republican than for many years. The returns from 221 towns show that the senate will be solidly Republican, where last year there were five Democrats.

Returns for the house show 186 Republicans, 30 Democrats, 3 Independents and 2 Citizens' members. Last year the Democrats had 50 members in the house.

Incomplete returns from the congressional vote indicate a plurality for Foster in the First district of 13,850, and for Haskins in the Second district of 16,900.

The vote for the minor candidates ran about the same as in former years. Returns show 587 votes for Charles E. Morse, the Socialist candidate, and 996 votes for H. F. Cummings of Richford, who headed the Prohibition ticket.

Democratic Opinion

New York, Sept. 8.—Concerning the result of the Vermont election, the following was given out at Democratic national headquarters last night:

"The result in Vermont is not surprising in view of the unparalleled efforts made by the Republicans and the quiet campaign conducted by the Democrats. The administration concentrated all its forces and resources upon that state, holding in the last week 200 meetings. The candidate for vice president, the secretary of war, Speaker Cannon, United States senators and representatives in congress, assisted by a host of lesser lights, made urgent appeals to the Republican farmers to go to the polls. Moreover, it was proclaimed throughout the state that the president had promised the candidate for governor to attend his inauguration in case he obtained a majority of 40,000.

"In view of these efforts, never made before by any party in a September election, it is remarkable that the administration did not succeed in increasing the Republican majority. Indeed, it did not even increase the Republican vote. That does not exceed 48,050, while in 1896 it was 53,426, and in 1900 it was 48,441."

Choice of Connecticut Democrats

New Haven, Sept. 8.—In the convention held in this city the Democratic state ticket was placed in nomination as follows:

For governor, A. H. Robertson; lieutenant governor, H. A. Bishop; secretary of state, James Huntington; state treasurer, J. M. Ney; comptroller, William Belcher; congressman-at-large, William Kennedy. Seven presidential electors were also nominated.

The platform heartily endorses the nomination of Parker and Davis and ratifies and confirms the declaration of principles adopted at the Democratic national convention. "In the interest of the industrial life of Connecticut," the platform says, "for the enlargement of its markets and the protection of its labor, we demand such legislation as shall establish Canadian reciprocity."

Hollis Named For Governor

Concord, N. H., Sept. 8.—For a second time the Democrats of New Hampshire nominated Henry F. Hollis of Concord to be their candidate for governor, the nomination being made by acclamation. The convention adopted a platform endorsing the national Democratic platform and candidates, and named four presidential electors. The convention named a candidate for governor only, as all other state offices are filled by appointment.

Says Farmers Are Satisfied

New York, Sept. 8.—Although members of the Republican national committee would not comment on the Vermont election, other Republicans who visited headquarters were not so reticent. Chairman Babcock of the Republican congressional committee said the vote in Vermont shows that the farmer is willing to vote his approval of existing conditions.

Gathering of Democratic Editors

New York, Sept. 8.—Nearly 500 Democratic editors from all parts of the United States met at a banquet here last night. The toast list included several of the best known Democratic editors in the country, all of whom responded to toasts on political subjects.

Won't Risk Forlorn Hope

Washington, Sept. 8.—George H. Shibley of this city, who was nominated by the Continental party as candidate for vice president of the United States, has declined the nomination.

FOR THE TRAVELER.

How Various Ills May Be Relieved With Simple Remedies.

Some of the following remedies may prove beneficial for car sickness, says the Ladies' Home Journal. It must be remembered, however, that what one person may have found invaluable may not always have the same good effect on another.

Foremost is the old time remedy, lemon juice. If this is taken freely, undiluted, it will usually prove a preventive. Another remedy is clam juice. Cool the juice with ice and drink as much as desired. Tablets of black licorice and pieces of cinnamon bark are also recommended. If thin smoked beef is put in the oven until crisp and a piece taken at intervals during the journey it may prevent sickness. Lying down in a berth in a sleeper may cause sickness, whereas one may not be affected if only slightly reclining.

For seasickness nibbling cloves is warmly advocated; also inhaling vinegar. An old remedy is to place a sheet of writing paper against the stomach.

In case of a sick headache on board either boat or train an ice bag often will bring relief. A little silk or mohair bag, lined with rubber cloth and having a drawing string, may be tucked in one corner of your bag for this emergency.

A sick headache is often caused when traveling by inability to get meals at the usual time. Not many people know that a few raisins carried in a tiny box and eaten from time to time often will avert a headache. Raisins contain a great deal of nourishment. The practice of eating sweet milk chocolate when meals are delayed is becoming almost universal.

To allay thirst when there is no water, or, at least, no good water, to be obtained, a cube of sugar soaked in lemon juice is excellent. Lemons are valuable traveling companions Sweetened lemon juice added to water is much better for drinking than plain water on boats or trains.

For toothache, rubbing the gum with quinine in powdered form is recommended. The powder should be held in the mouth as long as possible.

To remove a cinder from the eye the insertion of a flaxseed almost always will prove efficacious.

Candles and a box of safety matches are often friends in need, and it is a good plan to include them in one's baggage, especially when traveling abroad.

How to Make Tomato Catchup.

Boil a peck of sliced but unpeeled tomatoes with six white onions and cook until so soft they can be rubbed through a colander. Strain through a sieve and return to the fire with three bay leaves, a tablespoonful each of powdered mace, pepper, cloves, sugar, salt, a half teaspoonful of paprika and a tablespoonful of celery seed tied in a little cheesecloth bag. Boil for nearly six hours, stirring frequently. Remove the bag of celery seed and pour in a pint of vinegar. Bring again to the boil and remove from the fire. When cold, bottle and seal.

How to Revive a Tree.

It has been our ambition to have a beautiful home, says a writer in Good Housekeeping, and when we moved to our present one we found a row of maple trees, all perfect except one, and that, a former tenant told us, had been dead for a year. We disliked the thought of having to cut one out and decided to try what a little nursing would do. We loosened the dirt about the roots, put wood ashes around them to kill any destroying insects, filled in the dirt well up around the trunk and awaited results. In the spring the leaves came. Very few at first—perhaps all summer it was not half full, but enough to encourage us. We continued our petting, with the result that the second summer gave us a tree equaling the rest in its abundant foliage.

How to Make Chocolate.

An excellent summer beverage and one which is healthful is chocolate. When well made a cup of chocolate is most nutritious. Here is an excellent formula for making it: Take two squares of bitter chocolate and break them; add two tablespoons of hot milk or hot water and a scant saltspoon of salt, and into these ingredients stir gradually a scantily measured three pints of milk.

How to Make Burnt Almond Ice Cream

Shell and blanch four ounces of almonds and put into a porcelain kettle with three tablespoonfuls of sugar; heat until the almonds are quite brown, stirring constantly. Pound fine in a mortar and sift through a fine strainer. Add this as a flavoring to each quart of plain ice cream. A standard cream which may be used as a foundation for all sorts of varieties is made by adding a cup of sugar to a quart of cream and thickening over hot water with four or five eggs, according as one likes it more or less rich. Allow a little more sugar if more eggs are used, as it freezes out. To this add any fruits, nuts, macaroons, etc.

How to Soften the Hands.

An admirable whitener and softener of the hands is mutton suet, the favorite cosmetic of our grandmothers. Cut suet from mutton kidneys into small pieces, put into a glass jar or bowl and set in a pan of water on the stove. When the suet is melted pour off, add a few drops of carbolic acid and beat with a silver fork until it is cool.

How to Make Mucilage.

To five cents' worth of gum tragacanth dissolved over night in a quart of rain water add ten cents' worth of alcohol, and then add water until the right consistency is reached. Stir well and bottle. This will keep a year.

CITY BREVITIES.

The Registrars of Voters will meet for registration next week.

Mrs. John Gray of High School avenue has been seriously ill for a few days.

Considerable lumber has arrived on the site for the new Y. M. C. A. building.

Overseer of Poor James H. Cunningham has returned from a vacation trip to Maine.

Miss Mary Connors of Brewers corner is enjoying her annual visit at Lanesville, Cape Ann.

The Merrymounts will play the Porters of Weymouth at Merrymount park, Saturday.

The Misses Huston of High School avenue have returned from an extended sojourn in Maine.

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Jenness have returned in good health from their sojourn in New Hampshire.

Although the South Quincys have defeated the Merrymounts three times the latter team is not satisfied. It is reported that they will challenge the South Quincys to a game for $100 to be played on the South end grounds, Boston.

Woodward Institute.

The corps of teachers for the new school year as revised by Supt. Parlin is as follows:

Frederic W. Plummer, principal, Charlotte J. Burgess, Adella W. Bates, Helen H. Claflin, Martha E. Maccarty, L. Florence Kimball, Ruth B. Mears, Grace S. Burke, Georgiana C. Lane, Susie T. Sprout, and John D. Buckingham.

EFFECTS OF TOBACCO.

In Some Cases It Is Stimulating and In Others Narcotic.

Whether or not tobacco is a stimulant has been a vexed question ever since the time of Oviedo, the first writer to describe it fully, who says that the Indians of Hispaniola used tobacco to produce insensibility, whereas others among the old Spanish discoverers say that the natives smoked to stimulate themselves to fresh exertions.

Men whose business leads to exposure to weather or to violent physical exercise, such as sailors, soldiers, watchmen, navvies and field laborers, all take tobacco as a stimulant and have done so from the first.

These classes are mentioned as specially large consumers of the weed in Dr. Everard's "Panacea," published in 1659. Hobbes and Newton both used tobacco to stimulate. Goethe and Heine hated it. Scott smoked profusely; but, according to Mr. Trelawney, Byron "never smoked pipe or cigar."

Modern experience and observation seem to indicate that tobacco is a stimulant in moderation and a narcotic in excess, in this respect resembling all other intoxicants, using the term in its widest sense, from tea to opium.

CAT'S CRADLE.

Origin of the Name of the Familiar String and Finger Game.

Cat's cradle has been familiar to most of us from childhood as a game for two players, in which the first winds a looped cord over the fingers of both hands in a symmetrical figure, and the second inserts his fingers and removes it in such a way as to produce a different figure. This they do alternately several times, always changing the formation. The art consists in making the right changes.

The cord forms a rude representation of a manger, and the name originally was "cratch" cradle, cratch being a manger (creche, French), such as that in which our Saviour was laid. "They layde hym in a cratche," was Wyclif's translation of Luke ii, 7. The word is still used in Roman Catholic countries in that particular sense.

The Abbe Prevost says in his "Manuel Lexique," "Cratch is the name given to a manger for cattle and which is consecrated by the birth of Jesus Christ." To the present day the racks which stand in the fields for cattle to eat from are called cratches.

LYNN STRIKE RIOT

Started by Hebrews, but They Were Soon Put to Rout

STICKS, STONES AND FISTS

Attacking Party of Three Hundred Met by Thirty Greeks Armed With Iron Files and Clubs--Three Arrests

Lynn, Mass., Sept. 8.—A fierce race riot, incident to the strike at the leather remnant shop of Jacobson & Jacobs, occurred last evening at the corner of Summer and Blossom streets. As a result three men are under arrest. They are Louis Bougalis, a Greek, charged with assault upon an officer; William Hillzovelt, charged with throwing stones with intent to assault, and Samuel Applebaum, charged with assaulting a Greek.

The fight took place between about 40 Greeks who have taken the places of the strikers and over 300 Hebrew strikers and sympathizers. A squad of police was sent to the factory near the hour of closing to protect the Greeks. There was little or no disturbance, however, at the factory and the unmolested Greeks proceeded on their way to the boarding houses on Andrew street.

Their Hebrew opponents, however, had made a flank movement to outwit the police, and encountered the homegoing Greeks at the corner of Summer and Blossom streets, where a pitched battle was fought. The Hebrews attacked the strike breakers with sticks, stones and fists, over 300 engaging in the onslaught. The Greeks, led by Louis Bougalis, pulled from their pockets iron files and clubs and turned on the enemy with remarkable vigor and soon had the Hebrews driven up Blossom street. Signs and store windows were smashed and a fruit vender's stand upset.

Police Officer McGray, in citizen's clothes, was on his way to the central police station when he encountered Bougalis, file in hand, leading the victorious Greeks. McGray promptly placed the man under arrest and after a brief struggle disarmed him. But Bougalis pulled a piece of broomhandle from his pocket and began to belabor the policeman about the head. Officer Kane, who had one of the Hebrew rioters under arrest, dropped his man and hurried to the rescue of McGray. Together they got Bougalis into the store of John P. Squire and telephoned for the patrol wagon. The infuriated Greeks outside threatened to storm the store if their leader was not released, but the speedy response of the patrol wagon dispelled the danger. The arrival of police reinforcements sent both Greeks and Hebrews to cover.

Twelve Hebrews arrived from New York yesterday afternoon and went to work in the factory, but as soon as they learned a strike was in progress, they left. The strikers gave them $3 each and they returned to New York.

Concessions on Both Sides

New York, Sept. 8.—By a compromise reached last night all the possible remaining danger of a strike by the elevated railroad employes is averted. The principal point gained by the union is the agreement of the company to recognize the seniority and priority rights of men working on the elevated road desirous of changing to work in the subway. The union men gave up their fight against the severe medical examination demanded by the company in passing upon the men to be employed in the subway.

Enormous Waves From the Pacific

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 8.—From many points along the southern coast come reports of damage by great billows which are rolling in from the sea, occasioned by some peculiar phenomenon, possibly volcanic disturbances far out in the ocean. While there is no wind, enormous waves, in some instances 40 feet high, roll ceaselessly against the shores.

May Help Prevent Suicides

New York, Sept. 8.—As a result of the great number of cases of suicide in which carbolic acid has figured as the agent of destruction, an amendment has been made to the sanitary code forbidding the sale of the drug except on a physician's perscription. This amendment applies to a solution in which carbolic acid is present in a quantity in excess of 5 percent.

Indicted Man's Double Crime

Louisville, Tenn., Sept. 8.—William Neal, under indictment for the murder of Assistant State Attorney Shrader, last evening shot and killed his wife and then ended his own life. The tragedy occurred in a boarding house, where Neal and his wife had been living since Sunday.

Ultimate Victory For Rebels

Buenos Ayres, Sept. 8.—The revolutionists of Paraguay have captured Villa Encarnacion with its garrison and their arms. The position of the government in Paraguay is becoming weaker daily and its ultimate surrender or complete defeat is inevitable.

Waggaman Cannot Pay Debts

Washington, Sept. 8.—Thomas E. Waggaman has filed an amended answer to the petition of the three local banks that he be adjudged a bankrupt. He admits his inability to pay his debts and says that he is willing to be adjudged a bankrupt.

A MALDEN MYSTERY

Body of an Unidentified Child Found In a Reservoir

Malden, Mass., Sept. 8.—The police of this city are considerably mystified over the drowning of an unknown 5-year-old girl late yesterday afternoon in the old Malden reservoir. Cries from the reservoir were heard by three boys, who, rushing to the bank, saw the body floating about 75 feet from the shore. It was recovered a few minutes later by the park police, and an effort was made at resuscitation, which, however, proved unavailing.

The police searched the neighborhood without being able to obtain any clue to the mystery, nor were they able to find any family who had lost a child. The body is still unidentified.

The body was that of a girl about 5 years old. From the expression of the face and the appearance of the clothing it appeared to have been one of good family and whose parents had sufficient means to see that it was well dressed. The clothing was elaborate and evidently expensive, some of the underclothing being of silk. The complexion was light and the eyes blue.

"Premeditated Villainy"

Boston, Sept. 8.—John W. West and Winifred Brason were found guilty in the municipal criminal court upon the charge of defrauding the Warren, Brookfield and Spencer Street Railway company by false representations of injury to the woman defendant, alleged to have been sustained in a car accident on June 19 last. The court stated that he would impose a sentence, remarking that "all the evidence shows a scheme of premeditated, deliberate and continued villainy." Judge Bolster continued the case under $500 bail till Saturday next, to allow time for obtaining new sureties upon appeal.

Fall River Mills May Soon Open

Fall River, Mass., Sept. 8.—Operators of the mills affected by the textile strike are considering the advisability of opening their gates on Sept. 19, in defiance to the mill strikers. Among them the feeling is strong that enough operatives will return to make the running of their plants possible. They declare that enforced idleness with its attendant privation and hardship has caused many of the toilers to yearn for the voice of the spindle. If this is accomplished they predict an immediate collapse of the present strike.

Crocker Will Contest Goes On

Boston, Sept. 8.—Judge Braley of the supreme court handed down the final decree in the hard-fought Uriel H. Crocker will case, involving $750,000. The decree of the probate court allowing the will is reversed and the will disallowed. The cause is remanded to the probate court for further proceedings. Counsel for the widow entered an appeal, which means further and protracted litigation.

Canoe Capsized

Waltham, Mass., Sept. 8.—Frank C. Campbell, 26 years old, was drowned last evening while canoeing on the Charles river. His canoe capsized about 35 yards out from the Waltham Canoe Clubhouse. His cry for help was heard by two men who went to his aid in a canoe, but the upturned canoe alone was found.

Failed to Heed Warning

Baldwinville, Mass., Sept. 8.—George R. Dudley, a contractor for construction work at the Massachusetts school for feeble minded, was struck by a piece of rock from a dynamite blast and sustained a compressed fracture of the skull. He was 500 feet from the blast and had been cautioned.

Miss Dubois a Suicide

New Haven, Sept. 8.—Coroner Mix regards the case of the death of Louise Dubois as closed, being fully satisfied that the girl committed suicide and that there is no need for police action.

Typhus Scourge Follows Drouth

Berlin, Sept. 8.—The effect of the long summer drought which gave rise to great agricultural distress, to the suspension of water traffic and to forest fires, is now felt in epidemics of typhus which are prevalent in various sections. The patients in many small towns number hundreds.

On His Native Heath

New York, Sept. 8.—William Waldorf Astor arrived here on the steamer Majestic. This is Astor's first visit to America since he became a naturalized citizen of Great Britain in 1897. He is here to look after his large property interests in this city.

Job For Theodore Rosevelt Parker

Washington, Sept. 8.—The bureau of navigation has received a request of Representative Bell of California for the enlistment in the navy and assignment to the battleship Ohio of a constituent of his named Theodore Rosevelt Parker. Parker was a machinist when he enlisted in the marine corps in 1901. Representative Bell's request will be granted.

Bad Train Wreck In Illinois

Princeton, Ills., Sept. 8.—A fast passenger train was wrecked near Tiskilawa last night and more than 30 persons were badly injured, two of whom have died. The passenger train collided with the rear end of a freight train that had broken in two. Half a dozen passenger cars were wrecked and the passengers thrown in every direction.

Thieves Got Rich Harvest

Charlotte, N. C., Sept. 8.—Burglars made a raid on Yadkinville last night and blew open the safe of County Treasurer Logan in his store, securing nearly $10,000. The safe in the postoffice was also blown open and over $400 was stolen.

Receivers For Cotton Company

Trenton, Sept. 8.—Chancellor Magie has appointed C. E. Kimball and W. C. Lansing receivers for the American Cotton company, on application by F. Y. Robertson, vice president and treasurer of the company, who states that the company's indebtedness, exclusive of a bonded indebtedness of $2,000,000, is $1,327,000, made up largely of bills payable, a greater portion of which is now overdue or about to mature.

Fire Started In Fire House

Bakersfield, Cal., Sept. 8.—Fire broke out in the engine house of the local fire department and destroyed two blocks in the central part of the city. A Chinaman was suffocated. The loss is $250,000. William Saver entered the engine house in an intoxicated condition and lay down to sleep. It is supposed that he started the fire from his cigar. He was burned to death.

Negro Smoked Out and Lynched

Huntsville, Ala., Sept. 8.—After setting fire to the jail and smoking out the prisoner while the fire department was held at bay with guns, and the sheriff, his deputies and the soldiers outwitted, a mob estimated at over 2000 persons last night lynched Horace Maples, a negro accused of murdering John Waldrop. Maples was hanged on a tree on the courthouse lawn.

Hoar Holding His Own

Worcester, Mass., Sept. 8.—Rockwood Hoar reports that there is no change in the condition of Senator Hoar, who is holding his own.

HIS ATONEMENT

[Original.]

Bert Trowbridge was a harum scarum young fellow whom everybody loved. When the civil war broke out, Bert was one of the first to enlist. He was recklessly brave, and this soon made him an officer.

One day a brother officer of Bert was wounded, and Bert remained behind while the army pushed on. They were near one of those old plantations with a colonial residence in its center common in Virginia. Trowbridge carried his friend there. The wounded man was taken in, placed in one of the best rooms in the house and given every attention. Bert left his companion in charge of the inmates and went out to the stable to see that their horses were provided with fodder. When he returned, a young girl was carrying a salver on which were a dish of broth and some delicacies.

Elinor Digby was a typical Virginia maiden. Her complexion was olive, her hair and eyes jet black, while her cheeks were a pair of roses. Trowbridge had been campaigning, with men for his sole companions, and had scarcely laid eyes on a woman for more than a year. The consequence was that this apparition of womanly loveliness threw him into a sudden fever. Without stopping to consider the enormity of the offense, the violation of hospitality, ingratitude for kindness to himself and his wounded friend, he exclaimed, "I'm going to have a kiss if I die for it!" and, taking the girl at the disadvantage of having her hands employed, put his arms around her neck and kissed her.

The moment he had offended he realized what he had done. The hot blood rushed into the girl's face, and her eyes gleamed with indignation, scorn and, what brought most remorse to Trowbridge, the pained expression of one who had received an evil return for kindness.

"For shame!" she exclaimed. "We have received you into our home, we are taking every care of your friend, I am carrying him nourishment with my own hands instead of sending it by one of the women, and you, who look like a gentleman, treat me as if you were a vandal. Some day I will make you pay for this!"

"And some day I will do penance."

Without taking further notice of him the girl went on upstairs, and he heard her enter the room of his wounded comrade.

The war ended without Trowbridge again coming near the Digby plantation or seeing Elinor Digby. He had not forgotten her—he could never forget her—but the episode seemed a thing of the past. Her threat to make him pay for the indignity he had offered her and his promise of atonement seemed now improbable of realization. The south had been prostrated by the war and was slowly recovering. What recovery there was did not pertain to the original holders of land and slave property, and planters who had been wealthy since the time of Washington were penniless and their children obliged to seek a livelihood in the cities of the more prosperous north.

Trowbridge belonged to a wealthy family in New York. After the war he found himself in possession of his inheritance and set himself about its management. One afternoon while calling at the house of one of his friends, sitting in one of the dark drawing rooms of that brick and stone city, a woman passed through the room. She did not see Trowbridge, but Trowbridge saw her, and at once knew her for Elinor Digby. On inquiry he learned that her ancestral estates were in ruins, and she was a governess in the house he was visiting.

Trowbridge did not call again for a year, but the next morning Miss Digby received a box of cut flowers. Where they came from was a mystery, for no card came with them. Soon after this the lady whose children she taught began to invite her to go with her to balls and receptions, insisting on providing her with suitable costumes. Elinor protested, but the lady insisted, and, having yielded once, she was obliged to yield again and again. It was not long before the governess was on intimate terms with many of the best people of New York. Those were days when "to the manner born" counted for far more than it does now, and the highborn men of Miss Digby, combined with great sweetness of disposition, made her extremely popular.

Elinor was troubled because she could not show her appreciation of her obligation to her benefactress. The lady declared that she was entitled to no credit whatever—that money was no object to her, and there was no generosity where there was no sacrifice. At the end of a year, however, she confessed that she had been lavishing the kindness of another, she herself being simply a medium. Then she appointed an evening when she would introduce Elinor to her friend.

It did not occur to Elinor that that friend could be other than some Virginian who knew her family, her necessities and her pride. When she entered the drawing room and saw a man whom by the uncertain light she did not recognize she was astonished. Then she saw that the visitor was her old enemy Trowbridge.

"Miss Digby," he said, "when I last saw you you vowed revenge, I atonement. I have come to give you the revenge dearest to woman. Since I met you in your ancestral home your image has been with me till I have come to adore it, and now that I tell you my life will be a wreck without you you may stab me by your refusal."

"And you have been lavishing"—

"Atoning; only in a slight degree atoning."

Of the two vows, Trowbridge's was the only one kept.

Brooks Keyes of Quincy.

SCHOOL REPAIRS.

The Buildings Thoroughly Overhauled During Vacation Season.

During the summer vacation Commissioner Knowlton has been busy making repairs to the several school buildings throughout the city. Repairs have been made to every building with the exception of the Washington.

At the Coddington the annex has been painted, and some of the rooms in the main building and new platforms built.

At the Adams new floors have been laid on the first story and hall. All of the windows have been reputtied and the sanitaries repaired.

At the John Hancock, extensive repairs have been necessary to the boilers, the steam pipes and sanitaries.

At the John Hancock, general repairs to the heating plant have been made.

At the Willard, a new heating and ventilating system is being installed.

At the Gridley Bryant, a leak in the roof has been fixed and repairs made on the foundation and boilers.

At the Wollaston, the sanitaries and heating plant have been overhauled, and some painting done.

At the Massachusetts Fields, one of the boilers has been retubed, the radiators repaired and windows fixed.

At the Quincy, there has been some plastering, the window sashes repaired and renewal of sanitaries made.

At the High, the heating plant has been overhauled the sanitaries repaired, and the plumbing fixed.

In addition to this all of the blackboards have been gone over and the buildings generally put in good order.

Political.

A meeting of the Scandinavian Republican club was held last night in Faxon hall with a large number present. The political situation was discussed and speeches were made by Rev. Mr. Bjork, Rev. Mr. Bernhard, Rev. Mr. Callandor and others. Edward J. Sandberg was unanimously endorsed as candidate to the General Court. A committee of three for each ward was appointed to look out for the Republican interests of the city.

It is the general wish of the club that their candidate is supported by the party. Election of officers were held in which Theo. Hermanson was re-elected chairman; Dr. J. H. Anderson, Vice Chairman; O. S. Sandberg, Secretary; and Andrew Johnson, Treasurer. The meeting was then adjourned till Sept. 19th.

TODAY'S COURT.

Frank W. Lawrence, Edwin R. Clark, Samuel A. Meyer, Arthur N. Broughton, Fred X. Fouck, Arthur P. Benson, Harry L. Spencer, Ernest W. Sanders, Charles W. Jones, James L. Sturtevant and Fred N. Rock were fined 15 each for speeding automobiles on the Blue Hills Reservation.

George W. Berg was arraigned for speeding an automobile at the Blue Hills reservation. Case continued until Sept. 21.

Cornelius Crowley was fined $3 for drunkenness at Quincy.

Francis Good, John Stitt and Maurice Lawton were arraigned for larceny at Quincy. Cases continued until Oct. 6.

Fred Lawton, John J. Lawton, Edward Rogers and Henry Rogers were arraigned for breaking and entering at Quincy. Fred Lawton and Henry Rogers were put in charge of the State board, but appealed. The other cases were continued until Oct. 6.

$100 Reward, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

MILTON.

The water pipe on Adams street, East Milton, which the Metropolitan sewer had caused to settle, is being raised.

The Thursday Evening club has resumed weekly meetings.

Archdeacon Babcock will visit the Mission of Our Saviour church the first Sunday in October.

E. J. Tinker's store, which has been closed several weeks, will reopen this week.

Mr. and Mrs. John Bryden of Squantum street are receiving congratulations on the birth of a daughter.

Rev. W. E. Gardner of Quincy preached at the Mission church last Sunday.

The letter box that was on the pole at corner of Granite place and Adams street has been moved to the building at that place.

The Edison Electric Light Co. is erecting new poles throughout the town.

Adams street, between Squantum street and the Quincy line is being resurfaced.

The letter boxes are being repainted.

Merchants' Limited.

Beginning today there will leave from the New York and the Boston stations at 5 P. M., the Merchants' limited, the latest of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad's five-hour trains between those two points.

The trains will run by way of the Shore line, traversing the states of Connecticut, Rhode Island and Massachusetts, stopping only at New Haven, New London, and at Providence during the trip. They will each consist of one combined baggage and parlor car, one dining car, three parlor cars and one buffet-stateroom-observation car. They are the newest, handsomest and most comfortable trains in this country.

Some idea of the beauty and comfort of these two new trains may be obtained from the statement that the cost of their equipment was $200,000.

Thirty-five railroad and newspaper men were entertained on a trial trip Wednesday, the train being run to Franklin on the Providence division, then to Attleboro, Taunton, Brockton and Quincy.

TROOPS TIRED OUT

Long Rest Followed by Renewal of Maneuvers

A REVERSAL OF PROBLEM

Browns Will Make an Effort to Strike at Washington--Empty Stomachs Among the Militia Troops--Southerners Raid a Provision Store

Gainesville, Va., Sept. 8.—The first maneuver problem closed at noon yesterday with General Grant's force pushed through the left wing of General Bell. This put the Blue force within two miles of Thoroughfare Gap, the objective point. However, Bell had Smith's brigade on the right and Barry's brigade on the left of this breach in his line and Umpire Wagner draws no conclusion as to what might happen had not hostilities ceased under the command issued by General Corbin to cease hostilities at noon so that the tired troops might be given relief.

This attack on the part of the Blue force was made by General Wint with Price's brigade, consisting of the Seventh Virginia, the First Maine, First Alabama and Sixteenth Infantry. Previous to this there had been severe fighting on the line to which Bell had fallen back during the night. This line, the Antioch road, was within two miles of the western limit of the maneuver zone and extended the five miles of the width of the zone.

While Bell was falling back to the new line from the Carolina road which had been the scene of conflict the day before, Grant occupied the hours between midnight and daylight in concentrating his forces for an attack on the Brown's left. He withdrew all of his cavalry from the southern portion of his line, their position on the first day, and threw two full brigades and 16 guns to the point indicated. His artillery was so well placed that it had unobstructed play for an hour on the Brown line. The effect of this fire was not taken into account by a decision rendered by the umpire on the field early in the battle when the Blue force was required to fall back, but was taken into account later and credit given accordingly.

Every spectacular feature of a battle in full progress was produced in the maneuvers and the field was viewed from near and far by many spectators.

During the afternoon the troops returned to their respective camps to rest until 9 o'clock this morning, when the problem was reversed and the Brown army took the field against the Blue in the effort to strike at Washington.

The militia troops displayed the disadvantage of inexperience in the field. Many of them ate their two days' rations the first day and went hungry yesterday. The regulars set them a good example in this respect, dividing their supplies equally between the two days.

Complaint of depredations by militiamen came to headquarters from Wellington, where it was claimed that the First South Carolina regiment had cleaned out a provision store absolutely. The loss will be reimbursed to the proprietor and the amount deducted from the pay of this regiment. General Corbin and both division commanders unite in praising the conduct of the militia. They have been tired out, but their fighting qualities have not been impaired.

Private Williams of the Seventh cavalry, a member of the Brown army, was shot in the right lung with a wad from a blank cartridge. The shot was fired by a soldier in a Tennessee regiment at short range and was purely accidental. It is thought the wounded man may recover.

Would-Be Lynchers Convicted

Danville, Va., Sept. 8.—Seven citizens of this place were convicted of participating in the mob that several weeks ago attempted to lynch Roy Seals, a negro, charged with murder, confined in the city jail. The men were sentenced to pay a fine of $50 and to serve a term of one day in jail. They were placed in the same jail with the negro they attempted to lynch.

Railroad Men Get Good News

Altoona, Pa., Sept. 8.—Orders have been issued from the office of superintendent of motive power of the Pennsylvania Railroad company directing the shops to go on 10 hours' time, five days a week, and five hours on Saturday. Between 15,000 and 20,000 men will be benefited. Improved conditions of trade are given as the cause for the resumption of full time.

Governor Taylor's Third Bride

Bristol, Va., Sept. 8.—Ex-Governor Robert L. Taylor of Tennessee was married to Miss Mamie St. John of Chilhowie, Va., yesterday afternoon at the bride's home. Governor Taylor has been married three times, having been divorced only a few months ago from his second wife at Knoxville. Governor and Mrs. Taylor will reside in this city.

First Prize to Louisville

San Francisco, Sept. 8.—Louisville, Ky., commandery No. 1 won the first prize in the drill corps competition of the triennial conclave of Knights Templars. St. Bernard corps of Chicago was second, Ivanhoe of Milwaukee third, and Malta of Binghamton, N. Y., fourth.

IMPRESSING THE INDIANS.

Simon Fraser's Methods With the Untutored Redskins.

Even as late as the year 1805 there were Indians on the North American continent who had never seen or heard a gun, had never seen tobacco smoke and were capable of worshiping the white men who controlled these wonders. The Rev. A. G. Morice tells of some of the adventures of Simon Fraser, who has stamped his name on Canada. Father Morice writes as follows: "On landing at Lake Stuart Fraser's men, to impress the natives with a proper idea of their wonderful resources, fired a volley with their guns, whereupon the whole crowd of Indians fell prostrate to the ground. To allay their fears and make friends tobacco was offered them, which, on being tasted, was found too bitter and thrown away. Then, to show its use, the crew lighted their pipes, and at the sight of smoke issuing from their mouths the people began to whisper that they must come from the land of ghosts, since they were still full of the fire wherewith they had been cremated. Pieces of soap were given to the women, who, taking them to be cakes of fat, set upon crunching them, causing foam and bubbles in the mouth, which puzzled both actors and bystanders. All these phenomena, however, were soon explained away, leaving profound admiration for the foreigners and their wares."

THE PACIFIC OCEAN.

How It Came to Be So Called by the Explorer Magellan.

Magellan, practically the first to circumnavigate the world, set out from Spain in 1519 to find a western route to the famous Moluccas, or Spice islands. Vague rumors of a pacific ocean were scattered through Europe. To test these Magellan, following the coast of South America, passed through the strait which now bears his name, formerly the strait of the Eleven Thousand Virgins, tossed all the time on a most tempestuous sea.

Emerging into the broad waters on the west, he sailed northwest for three months and twenty days on a placid, almost unruffled sea, which he christened then and there Mar Pacifico, or Pacific ocean, the name it will now forever bear. Notwithstanding its name typhoons in the west and elsewhere make this ocean as perilous a path as any other to those who tempt its vast expanse and comparative solitude.

Magellan himself fell in the Philippines, but the Victoria came home to tell the tale. Drake was the first Englishman to sail on its wide waters.—London Standard.

BOOKWORMS.

Not the Human Kind, but the Grubs That Tunnel Volumes.

Blades, in his interesting volume, "The Enemies of Books," has shown that several very real bookworms are undesirable tenants of old libraries, and he has studied closely several specimens sent him and described their ravages.

Two grubs in particular richly deserve this name, the anobium, pertinax or eruditus and the oecophora. The anobium, a small, light colored, brown headed grub, with a body like thin ivory or transparent wax, bears a close resemblance to the white maggots of a Stilton cheese. Working with a pair of strong jaws, like a steel bit, the grub begins at the wooden boards and if allowed will perforate the whole volume. The oecophora, similar to the anobium, except for the possession of six legs, is not unlike the so called deathwatch.

M. Peignot asserts that he found twenty-seven volumes in one row pierced from end to end by a single worm tunnel. Mr. Blades doubts this, but has himself seen two volumes so treated, with no fewer than 212 distinct holes on one cover.

Garrick and the Bishop.

In the "Realities of Irish Life," by W. S. French, is this anecdote: "I have heard a story that upon one occasion the bishop of London asked the celebrated actor, Garrick, if he could explain how it was that he and his clergy failed to arrest the attention of their audiences, although they preached every Sunday of the realities of the world to come, while he (Garrick) filled crowded houses with the most rapt attention, although they knew perfectly well that all he was saying was fiction. 'The reason is very plain, my lord,' replied Garrick. 'You deal with facts as if they were fiction; I deal with fiction as if they were facts.'"

Convincing.

The late Wilhelm Jordan used to be very much annoyed because of the constant tearing up of the streets in Frankfurt. One day he said to one of the men at work, "Why are you digging up the pavement again?" "Because a new water pipe is to be put in." "But the old one was still quite good." "So was the old Nibelung-Lied, yet you wrote a new one, Herr Doctor," retorted the laborer, with a laugh, in which Jordan joined.

Reason Enough.

"What! Marry my daughter?" snorted old Gotrox. "Why, you must be destitute of all reason"—

"Yes," interrupted young Poorley, with refreshing candor; "I admit I am destitute, but that very fact is my reason."—Philadelphia Press.

Judicial Prognostics.

"What kind of sentence did the judge give the weather man?"

"Fair, followed by clearing; hard labor, changing to variable; bread and water toward evening; Sunday, soup."—Buffalo Express.

for $1,000,000, paying an annual premium of over $30,000. This makes him the most heavily insured man in the world, with the single exception of King Edward VII.

Mr. Wanamaker's total insurance is now $2,000,000.

Ask yourself WHY Mr. Wanamaker placed one-half this great amount with The Prudential.

Your business judgment will at once reply: "Because after full investigation and comparison, Mr. Wanamaker found that the company which could give him the best insurance for a given amount of money was The Prudential."

Undoubtedly you will agree that Mr. Wanamaker does not pay over $30,000 per year except for most excellent reasons.

ACKNOWLEDGES DEFEAT

Men Now Performing Work Satisfactorily Will Not Be Discharged by Packers--Strikers Lost $5,100,000 In Wages--Packers Loss Is $7,500,000

Chicago, Sept. 9.—The strike of the butcher workmen, which has demoralized the meat packing industry throughout the country for the last two months, was officially declared off last night by President Donnelly of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen of America. Donnelly telegraphed the members of the national executive committee yesterday, asking their consent to an announcement of the end of the struggle, and last night, having received favorable answers from all, he declared that the strike of the members of his organization would end at midnight.

The strike of the members of the affiliated unions at the stockyards who quit work in sympathy with the butchers was officially called off this morning at a meeting of the conference board of the allied trades. The general body was at first in favor of continuing the strike, but Donnelly, at a meeting of the central body of the Allied Trades last night, announced that the men were defeated and that in order to save his union from being entirely disrupted he would order his men to return to work in the morning, no matter what course might be taken by other unions. As the other unions had no grievances of their own, but had gone on strike to aid the butchers, there was nothing left for them but to follow the lead of Donnelly, and they too decided to call off the strike as far as they were concerned.

When the packers were notified that it had been decided to end the strike, they announced that they would give places as far as possible to the skilled men, but it was stated at the same time that many of these men would be unable to secure their old places, as in many cases the work was being performed in a satisfactory manner by men who had been secured since the commencement of the strike. It is expected that the majority of the unskilled men will be unable to secure their places again. It was the question of a wage scale for this class of men that brought about the strike, the packers refusing to sign an agreement with any class other than skilled workmen.

During the strike approximately 53,000 persons have been involved in the struggle, which is estimated to have cost the men about $5,100,000 in wages, as against an estimated loss of $7,500,000 to the packers in loss of business and expenses. The greatest number of men idle in Chicago during the strike was 26,000 and the total in the country outside of this city is estimated to be about the same.

The original cause of the strike was a demand by the Butchers' union that the packers pay to the unskilled workmen 18½ cents an hour. The packers refused to sign an agreement, but offered to arbitrate the question. This was accepted, the strikers agreeing to return to work pending the decision of the arbitrators. The men, however, were dissatisfied with the manner in which they were being put to work, and declared that they would not return unless all of the men were given their old places in one day. The packers declared that this was physically impossible, and the men went on strike for the second time.

The men now return to work under the conditions that existed before the strike.

Strikers Lost Their Jobs

Boston, Sept. 9.—The sailing of the fruit steamer San Jose for West Indian ports was delayed several hours because 10 firemen, seven seamen, a quartermaster and the ship's carpenter struck for higher wages. The San Jose is a British steamer. The crew signed articles at Belfast, Ire., for three years. When they found that the American scale of wages was considerably higher they demanded higher wages and, not receiving them, left the steamer. Their places were filled by a local shipping agency.

Think End of Strike Near

Fall River, Mass., Sept. 9.—The flurry caused by the persistent report of an early resumption of operations in the mills has subsided, and the treasurers say that they will be ready to open the mills when the operatives are ready. One or two are of the opinion that with favorable weather the strike may drag along until November, but by far the greater number think the end will come about the first of October.

Marseilles Strike Broken

Marseilles, Sept. 9.—The strike is gradually breaking up. The ship loaders and dock laborers still hold out. No large ports have joined in the strike.

Watchman Blinded by Coin

Paris, Sept. 9.—Princess Louise of Coburg and Count Keglevitch are stopping in Paris, but their exact location is concealed. The princess, however, received a friend of the count and told him that her escape from Badelster was facilitated by the night watchman, who had been bribed and saw nothing.

HOUGHS NECK.

The summer season at Houghs Neck has closed. There have been no new arrivals here during the past week, and while there may be a few families to come for a week or two, things will be practically at a standstill until next summer.

Just now all of the summer residents are busy picking up preparatory to leaving for their winter homes. Many families have already gone and by the end of the month there will be few if any left, other than the permanent residents.

The season as a whole has been a fairly good one, but the tone of the place has fallen considerably lower than it was a few years ago. Of late years it has a kind of a club colony. Twenty-two clubs were housed here during the summer, and it can not be said they were any addition.

Water at some of these club resorts was seldom used for drinking purposes and some of the night scenes, if told, would open the eyes of many people. The police have cleaned out several places but not all. The storekeepers have not gathered in much money for the reason that there are four times as many stores as are needed.

Another year the police should get after these clubs early in the season, and see if a little more respectability can not be infused into the place.

Veterans of Fletcher Webster Post, G. A. R., of Brockton and ladies of the Relief Corps enjoyed an outing jointly at Houghs Neck Tuesday, about 50 participating. It was arranged by Senior Vice Commander D. G. Hill and H. A. Soule of the post and President Mrs. Octavia C. Blair and Mrs. J. C. Gray of the corps. The party came by trolley and the attractive clubhouse of the Quincy Yacht club was placed at their disposal and was made headquarters during the day. No formal programme of any kind claimed the time the ladies and veterans being free to go about as they pleased.

The Stormiest Region Known.

The waters of Cape Horn have never been unvisited by storms for more than a week or two at a stretch within the memory of man. Standing on the outpost of the world, Cape Horn is the meeting place of ocean currents of very different temperatures, from the icy cold waters of the antarctic drift to the warmth of the Brazilian and Peruvian return currents. The prevailing winds are from the northwest and west, and these, coming from the warm regions of the Pacific, condense into fogs which the sailors call "Cape Horn blankets" and which are the sure forerunners of storms. The extremely low levels to which the glaciers of Tierra del Fuego descend, the perpetual congelation of the subsoil, the meeting of conflicting winds of very different temperatures, are all direct or indirect causes combining to make this the most constantly stormy region of the world.

Pocket Mirrors For Men.

"Pocket mirrors for men?" repeated a wholesale notion man in response to an inquiry. "We sell hundreds of them every year. You will find them for sale on street corner stands and in some barber shops. I don't know who buys them. I can't even say I ever saw a man use a pocket mirror. But I know they are in constant demand in the trade. You can buy a very good one, metal, for 10 or 15 cents retail. Oval shaped, flat mirrors for the vest pocket, made of celluloid, with a cover to protect the glass, cost 25 cents each."—New York Press.

Insulting.

"If old Skynner doesn't take back what he said to me this morning I'll be hanged if I'll work for him any more."

"Insulting, was he?"

"I should say so. He said he thought he could get along without me."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Not Contracting.

"Do you think Johnnie is contracting bad habits at school?" asked Mrs. Caution of her husband.

"No, dear, I don't; I think he is expanding them," was the reply.

Distressed.

"Madam, will you officiate at our church fair?"

"Dear me, I never did a dishonest thing in my life."—Life.

Perhaps one reason people go late to church is that they don't have to go early to get a seat.—Atchison Globe.

WILLARD ESTATE.

Value Unknown—May Be Over a Hundred Thousand.

Mrs. Penelope Coolidge, daughter of Joseph Willard, the late court clerk in Boston, filed an appearance in court Thursday, says the Boston Advertiser, asking that her father's will be allowed. She is left alone to uphold the will, acting for herself and her sister, Miss Edith Willard, against the rest of the family, who are all contesting for more of the property than was bequeathed to them.

The will is contested by the sons, Edward and Sidney the latter of Wollaston, and the three granddaughters, Mrs. Hollander, Mrs. Eastman and Mrs. Anderson, who was formerly Mrs. Richard Grogan. They have all filed appearances.

E. A. Willard and Penelope Coolidge were appointed special administrators of the estate of the aged clerk, and the bond was fixed at $100,000. The hearing upon the objections to the allowance of the will was set down for Oct. 12.

The fact that the bond is placed at $100,000 is the first public intimation as to the value of the estate. The bond is generally, but not always, put at twice the estimated value of the estate.

In reply to a question as to the value of the property left by Mr. Willard, one of the counsel said this noon: "Its value is absolutely unknown at the present time, and there is no one who can say whether it is $30,000 or $300,000. The placing of the bond at $100,000 is merely a matter of form."

Men Over 21 and Under 35.

An order was issued by President Mellen of the New York, New Haven & Hartford road this week fixing the age limit for yardmen and switchmen employed by the company. Hereafter all employes must be over 21 years of age and no new men will be taken on any freight or passenger trains of the road or in the yard service over 35 years of age.

The object is to prevent the employment of boys in departments requiring mature judgment, and securing men to learn the operating business of railroading within the age limit when it is easiest for them to learn a new trade.

The Much Needed Rain.

The first rain for a fortnight fell Thursday evening. During the afternoon it looked as though rain might be expected any moment, but it was not until 6.30 that it came. There was a roll of distant thunder at first, but little lightning. Then it rained. Up to nearly 9 o'clock it rained quite hard. Then it stopped and but little rain fell afterward. The rain was needed very badly as the ground was very dry, and the lawns already show improvement. More rain is needed.

Shipbuilding Plants Sold.

James Smith, Jr., receiver of the U. S. shipbuilding company, as special master, sold at public auction at Newark, N. J., on Thursday, the plants of the Crescent shipbuilding company and Daniel L. Moore & Sons company, both concerns being bought by William Nelson Cromwell, acting for George R. Sheldon, chairman of the reorganization committee. The price paid was $150,000 for the Crescent company and $205,000 for the Moore company. Charles M. Schwab attended the sale.

Peace Congress.

On the third of October, the 13th international peace congress will convene in Boston. Only once before—at the World's fair in Chicago—has this inter-national congress been held in America. It is hoped that the peace congress in October will be but the initial step in a national campaign of education. To this end, large meetings, to be addressed by some of the speakers at the Boston congress, will be held in New York, Philadelphia and Chicago, following the congress.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ Very soon the "auto piano" is bound to take the place of the street piano and hurdy-gurdy of the push-cart and "old hoss" variety of the present day. Then the musician can get up steam, run into a dooryard or in front of a house, throw the belt onto the musical part of the combination, grind out two or three of the lastest tunes, shut her off and leave the place again in a cloud of dust before the victim, if he be inclined to protest, has had time to recover from the shock.—Brockton Enterprise.

☞ If any society woman who may chance to read this article has a desire to know how much her taste has changed say within 25 years, in the matter of pictures, let her go through her house from basement to garret and learn how rudimentary were her ideas in regard to art when she first began to keep house. In the recesses of the attic and in unfrequented rooms—not to speak of the quarters devoted to the servants—she will find many a token of her lack of aesthetic education in the days when she thought she was cultivating her love of the beautiful.—Kansas City Star.

☞ The official investigation into the school department of the city of New York declares that the children of the schools are being forced too hard, in the early grades, especially, and that as a result not only are constitutions being broken down, but those who manage to stand the task, as far as their health is concerned, are coming through the ordeal with a limited equipment of education in what are supposed to be the essentials. In other words, the conscientious scholar who seeks to cover the full course imposed upon him breaks down, and the one who seeks health first, is forced to slight some things, and naturally slights the more important because they are the more difficult.—Haverhill Gazette.

☞ The entrance of Stephen O'Meara into the Congressional campaign of the Eleventh District insures a lively contest for the Republican nomination, and if he receives it, Congressman Sullivan will have the fight of his life for a re-election. Mr. O'Meara has had 30 years' experience in the Republican journalism of Boston, and as he says, cannot be considered a tyro in the larger work of politics. Senator Hoar, a week ago, sent this message from his sick bed:—"Why don't they nominate Stephen O'Meara? He is a good man and could be elected. He is a loyal Republican and could be depended upon." This is high commendation, and the best of it is that it is well deserved.—Lynn Item.

BEHIND BULL RUN

Blue Army Has the Browns at a Disadvantage

TO DEFEND WASHINGTON

Men In Brown Are Two Miles From Main Position of Adversaries--Maneuvers Will Come to an End Today

Gainesville, Va., Sept. 9.—General Grant, commanding the Blue army, has taken up a strong position behind Bull Run. This fact has not yet been ascertained by General Bell, commanding the attacking Brown army. This advance along the Wellington pike was harassed just west of Pageland lane by the First brigade of Grant's army under General Wint. General Bell opposed this force with his First brigade under General Lee. Taking this as his adversary's counter, he threw the brigades of Barry, Regan and Smith to the right of Lee, seemingly in an effort to get around what would be the original left wing of the Blue army. At 8 o'clock this had not been accomplished, owing to the distance the main line of the Blue army was behind its rear guard, or Wint's brigade.

General Grant selected the position behind Bull Run in which to defend Washington in order that it might be as easy as possible for his reinforcements, which are on the way, to join him. His position is not what Bell evidently has calculated on in ordering his turning movement, so the situation to be developed today is one of exceeding interest.

For this reason, Bell's army is as yet fully two miles from the main position of his adversary and his advance is being opposed by a single brigade. When the two armies come into actual contact today, if this should be the case before 3 o'clock, Corbin will declare the maneuver at an end, so that the men may get in condition for the review Saturday.

The fighting between the two first brigades of each army yesterday resulted in forcing the Blue brigade back through a strip of woods it had occupied just south of the Wellington pike and west of Pageland lane. Artillery was used by the Brown army in this action, the fire being directed into the woods. This was followed up by the advance of the Brown line and the falling back of the Blue under the direction of the umpires.

The delay of the march to positions until 9 o'clock yesterday was a matter of complaint on the part of the Brown troops, as many as 100 prostrations from the heat having been reported among the Brown troops, who were compelled to move in the middle of the day.

General Bell has removed his base of supplies to Aldie. This action relieves him of the necessity of employing a large force to protect his base while operating in the eastern end of the maneuvers scene. Thoroughfare Gap can be protected by a small force against a raiding party, and the removal of the base of supplies being unknown to the enemy makes it practically safe under the circumstances without protection.

There may be a question raised as to whether this move is justifiable within the rules governing the maneuvers, as the operations were to be confined to the map of the scene, and to attack the base in its new location would necessitate the Blue force going outside the limits of the scene. This move to the western side of the Bull Run mountains is considered quite an important one, as it leaves Bell with all of his force free-footed to pursue without restraint or depletion of forces.

Facts Wanted In Lynching Case

Montgomery, Ala., Sept. 9.—Acting Governor Cunningham has suggested to Judge Speake at Huntsville that he convene a special grand jury to investigate the lynching of Maples. He also called on Sheriff Rodgers for a full report of the lynching. Captain Hay, in charge of the militia, is also asked to explain why the mob was not deterred from its purpose, from whom he got his orders and to what extent he exercised the authority vested in him.

Likely to Be Some Shooting

Pavo, Ga., Sept. 9.—A clash between whites and blacks is imminent here. The whites are alleged by the negroes to have burned a hall in which a "Before Day" club is supposed to meet. The negroes have organized in armed bands outside the town and sent challenges to the whites, who are sleeping on their guns in anticipation of an attack.

Accused of Wife Murder

Charlottesville, Va., Sept. 9.—The coroner's jury investigating the McCue murder case returned a verdict that Mrs. Fannie C. McCue came to her death by a gunshot wound in the chest, inflicted by ex-Mayor J. S. McCue, her husband. There are 35 guards around the jail, but no mob violence is anticipated.

Russia's New Minister of Interior

St. Petersburg, Sept. 9.—Prince Peter Sviatpolk-Mirsky has been appointed minister of the interior. He is 47 years old. He traces his descent to Rurik, the reputed founder of the Russian monarchy, who died in 879. The family has long been settled in Poland, but belongs to the orthodox faith.

DR LORIMER DEAD

Notably Successful Pastorates of the Evangelical Preacher

Boston, Sept. 9.—A dispatch received in this city from Aix-les-Baines, France, announces the death of Rev. George C. Lorimer, D. D., for many years pastor of Tremont Temple, Boston, and since 1901 pastor of the Madison Avenue Baptist church, New York. Friends of Dr. Lorimer in this city knew that he was suffering from rheumatism when he went abroad about the first of June, and that he had been ill for some time previous, but had not heard that he was seriously ill.

George Claude Lorimer, doctor of divinity, popular preacher, and mover of men, was a type of the evangelist to the masses of the people, rather than of doctrinal controversialist or of the delver into the deeper aspects of religious thought. In his peculiar field of the ministry he ranked with such leaders as Parker and Talmage, by reason of his greater moderation, superior self-control and fewer idiosyncrasies. Three great cities—Chicago, Boston and New York—felt the power of his pulpit oratory and pastoral work.

Dr. Lorimer was 71 years of age. A widow and several children survive. He was a native of Scotland.

Hiccoughed to Death

Bridgeport, Conn., Sept. 9.—After hiccoughing steadily for two days, Franklin H. Hull, 75 years old, died at his home here. When first attacked, after eating a hearty supper, he made light of it. A doctor was summoned at midnight. He succeeding in checking the hiccoughs, but had been gone from the house but a few minutes when the attack began again. The best that the doctors could do was to stop the spasms for periods of 20 minutes. The patient's weakness increased and he died from exhaustion, the hiccoughing continuing until his last moments.

Smuggled Tobacco In Hay Car

Fall River, Mass., Sept. 9.—A special treasury agent searched several cars loaded with hay shipped from Canadian ports and seized five pounds of tobacco that had been smuggled across the border. The hay in the car where the tobacco was found was also seized. The treasury department has received advices that liquor and tobacco are being smuggled across the Canadian border in hay shipments consigned to Fall River.

Mother Drowned Child and Self

Malden, Mass., Sept. 9.—The body of the little girl found last evening in Fellsmere pond, Malden, was identified by the father of the child, James D. Tolman, of Everett. The police also recovered the body of the child's mother from the pond and are convinced that the woman premeditately drowned herself and the little girl. It is said that the woman had not been in the best of health and at times has appeared to be depressed.

Lynn Rioters In Court

Lynn, Mass., Sept. 9.—Louis Bougalis, William Hillzovelt and Samuel Applebaum, who were arrested during the riot on Wednesday night, were arraigned in court. Judge Berry held Hillzovelt and Applebaum in $100 each for trial on Saturday on charges of inciting a riot and disturbing the peace. Louis Bougalis, charged with assault on a policeman, was sentenced to six months in the house of correction.

Damage by Rain and Lightning

Hartford, Sept. 9.—An electrical storm that swept over the middle and western sections of the state last night did considerable damage, several buildings being struck by lightning. In East Hartford Frank Hollister, a farmer, met death instantly while driving near his home. In Waterbury hundreds of cellars were flooded and many buildings struck.

Woman Burned--Husband Arrested

Providence, Sept. 9.—Mrs. Agnes Sweeney, aged 19, was badly burned about the arms and is in a critical condition. Her husband, John Sweeney, said to be a featherweight prizefighter, is being held by the police pending an investigation. A quarrel between the two is alleged to have preceded the burning of the woman.

Tiverton Beats Sweet Marie

Hartford, Sept. 9.—The feature of the Charter Oak stake of $10,000 was the beating of Sweet Marie, the favorite, by Tiverton, the second choice. Dr. Strong won the first heat in 2:07½, which equalled the fastest mile ever made in this event.

Tide Penetrated Tunnel

Boston, Sept. 9.—As a result of the pressure of water caused by an unusually high tide last night a weak spot in the unfinished East Boston tunnel was broken open and for a short distance the big excavation was partially flooded.

Passing of Notorious Crook

Baltimore, Sept. 9.—Thomas W. Lansdrum, whose photograph adorns rogues' galleries in all parts of the country, died in jail here of tuberculosis. He was serving a year's imprisonment for stealing a satchel from a bank runner. He bequeathed his worldly possessions to Mrs. Ballington Booth of the Volunteers of America.

A Racetrack Fatality

Montreal, Sept. 9.—In the two-mile steeplechase at Delorimier park, Nidamus, a local horse, fell, breaking its neck. George Irwin the jockey, sustained injuries from which he died last night.

Earthquake In California

San Diego, Cal., Sept. 9.—A distinct earthquake shock was felt here, lasting several seconds. It was followed by a slighter and briefer disturbance.

NAPOLEON'S METHODS.

The Way the Great Military Genius Planned His Battles.

In his work on "Napoleon" Colonel Dodge has an interesting passage on Bonaparte's planning out of his battles. It runs:

"Spreading out and bending, sometimes lying, over his maps, with a compass in his hand, which corresponded to about seven or eight hours' march as the crow flies, being nine or ten actual hours' march, marking the position of his corps and divisions with various colored pins, as well as the supposed locations of the enemy, he ordered the movements of his army with an accuracy of which one can scarcely have an idea. Moving his compass across the map, he judged immediately, according to the topography, roads and season, how many marches any corps required to reach on a given day a certain place where he needed it and the rate of speed demanded, and with this knowledge (and his judgment was absolute of what troops could do) he dictated the instructions the execution of which made him so famous. Napoleon avoided such general orders as would inform the enemy of his wholesale plan should they reach him and confined himself when possible to such orders as would apply only to the movements of certain corps. Even in his own army he did not permit the general plan to be known, lest it should leak out. Each corps commander was given orders for his own maneuvers and was told what was essential about the neighboring corps. Just because Napoleon was thus particular were his orders such models of precision and clearness."

ANIMAL HABITS.

Why Horses Have and Donkeys Have Not the Shying Habit.

Horses shy because they are descended from ancestors accustomed to roam over plains, where any tuft of grass or bush might conceal an enemy waiting to spring on them. Under these circumstances they must often have saved themselves by at once starting away on observing any sudden or unexpected movement or on coming without warning upon some strange object. This is supposed to have become a habit which has descended to their domesticated descendants.

The donkey, on the other hand, is descended from animals which dwelt in the hills, among which there were precipices and dangerous paths, hence the sure footedness and comparative slowness of the donkey. His ancestors were not so liable to sudden attacks of wild beasts and of snakes. Moreover, sudden and wild starts on alarm would have been positively dangerous to them. Hence they learned to avoid the very habit which proved so useful to the horse in the plains.

The habit of eating thistles, which is almost peculiar to the donkey, is also supposed to come from these same ancestors. Living in dry and barren localities, they found little food and hence learned to eat hard and dry and, if necessary, prickly plants.

Our Funny Bone.

The "funny" bone, or "crazy" bone, as it is commonly called, is in reality no bone at all, but a nerve, and its peculiar name, of facetious origin, is a pun on the word "humerus," the cylindrical bone which runs from the shoulder to the elbow, the ulnar nerve passing around it.

The nerve is here superficial and therefore comparatively unprotected, so that it may be easily compressed, and then a blow upon it causes a strange tingling sensation in the course of its distribution, which is felt as far away as the little finger. The humerus has been the occasion of humor in others, for Locker wittily writes in "An Old Muff," published about 1740:

He cannot be complete in aught
Who is not humorously prone.
A man without a merry thought
Can hardly have a funny bone.

A Lifetime's Eating.

Science Siftings tells us that if we could see the amount of food one would consume in a lifetime pass before us the sight would be quite appalling. If a man lived seventy years, he would consume during that time about 100 four pound loaves of bread a year, or a total of 7,000 substantial loaves. Of meat he would consume, if he ate all beef, forty bullocks; of potatoes, an average of 200 pounds per year. If he ate only two eggs a week, it would require about 7,000 eggs to feed him during his lifetime; of tea and coffee on an average a pint a day, or for a lifetime about 3,220 gallons.

What They Didn't Know About Air.

Health journals have been in existence time out of mind. One in particular in its day was widely accepted as an authority on all matters of hygiene. An item which appeared in this paper in 1874 says among other things that "it is safer to sleep in a bad air all night—that is, with the windows tightly closed—with a temperature over 50 than in a pure air with a temperature under 40."

Y. R. A. Rendezvous.

The executive committee of the Yacht Racing Association of Massachusetts has announced the programme for the annual rendezvous and parade next Sunday, Sept. 11. All yacht clubs and individual yacht owners are invited to rendezvous off the Boston Y. C. at Hull at 2 P. M.

One long whistle will be blown as a preparatory signal at 2 o'clock. At 2.15 2 long whistles will be the signal for the association fleet to pass in review, dipping their signals as they cross the line between the flagship and the Boston Y. C. float. All boats will then form in line and parade to City Point via. West Way, leaving Peddocks, Long and Spectacle islands on the starboard.

As the yachts pass the association flagship off Marine Park Pier on the port, they will dip their signals and then the fleet will disband.

What are Humors?

They are vitiated or morbid fluids coursing the veins and affecting the tissues. They are commonly due to defective digestion but are sometimes inherited.

How do they manifest themselves?

In many forms of cutaneous eruption, salt rheum or eczema, pimples and boils, and in weakness, languor, general debility.

How are they expelled? By

Hood's Sarsaparilla

which also builds up the system that has suffered from them.

Restful Mattresses.

Just think, people everywhere trying to get enjoyment and comfort out of this life, and the queer thing about it all is, that very few start in the right place.

There isn't any money that will bring such rest and comfort to tired folks as the money you spend for one of our famous Cotton Felt Mattresses.

These Mattresses are as unlike the one you are now using, as night is unlike day. They are soft, soothing, springy, restful, dreamy. They fit the body from top to toe, and afford you rest, comfort and enjoyment, unequalled by anything else that money can buy in all this great world of ours.

They range in price from $7.50 to $15 00. We have them for immediate delivery.

TROOPS ARE TIRED

Russians May Not Be Able to Make a Stand

THE POST ARTHUR SIEGE

Reports That Japs Are Preparing For Another Assault--Russians Said to Be Short of Large Shells--Capture of the Place Grows Daily More Possible

London, Sept. 9.—What is termed Japan's "impenetrable silence" reduces English comment on the events at the seat of the war to a minimum. As dispatches from St. Petersburg have continuously pointed out, every development now lies with the Japanese, in whose hands is the initiative. In view of the continued silence from the quarter which alone can throw light on the tense situation, the English critics satisfy themselves by forecasting an impending great battle at Mukden or its vicinity.

A dispatch from Mukden bearing Thursday's date repeats the story of bad roads which have hampered the transport and intimates that there is an "interesting movement towards Tieling," but the nature of this movement is not disclosed.

General Kuropatkin reports that General Kuroki's army is 27 miles east of the railway, and General Oku's 20 miles to the west, while the Japanese cavalry is scouting widely on the Russian flanks. The general staff at St. Petersburg is said to expect a great battle, but apparently there is some doubt whether Kuropatkin will think his army in condition to make a stand. His troops are evidently much spent, but it seems to be believed by the Russians that the Japanese are in scarcely better condition. They are unlikely, however, to be so badly off, since their equipment is lighter than that of the Russians, and their transport has been free from any harassing by an enemy.

It is reported that the Russians are intrenching about Tieling, north of Mukden, using forced Chinese labor. It may be that troops have been sent south from Harbin to prepare this refuge for Kuropatkin. It would seem that any force from the north must be small, for otherwise it would probably have been dispatched to join in the fight at Liaoyang.

Chefoo reports that Japanese just arrived from Dalny say the besieging army is preparing another assault on Port Arthur. Some foundation for this idea may perhaps be discovered in the reported arrival of a fresh division of Japanese troops at Dalny.

The progress of the siege, in spite of accounts furnished by The Novi Krai, the sole newspaper of Port Arthur, remains clouded by contradictory reports. The general assault made by the Japanese a few days after the demand for the surrender of the fortress, on Aug. 16, seems to have shown the need of further reduction of the defenses by siege operations. Since that time there has apparently been a pretty steady hammering of the Russian defenses by the Japanese guns, and a general advance of the Japanese trenches, with assaults on separate works in the line of forts. Some of the Russian heavy guns have been dismounted, and the garrison is reported to be short of large shells.

Sorties by Russian infantry and cavalry appear to be a new feature of the defense, and point to an exceedingly close investment of the town. Capture of the place by assault is , of course, growing daily more possible with the lowering of the Russian stock of ammunition, and the gradual diminution of the garrison. The Japanese apparently misjudged their task three weeks ago, finding it either impossible, or too costly in lives.

Japs Searched Mail Steamer

Marseilles, Sept. 9.—The commander of the French mail steamer Oceanien, from Yokohama, complains that his vessel was held up by four Japanese warships outside of Yokohama and that she was detained for five hours and searched.

Uprising Against Jews

St. Petersburg, Sept. 9.—Persistent reports are in circulation of serious anti-Jewish disturbances in several of the governments of Southwest Russia, but up to this hour no particulars are obtainable.

Money For Manila Bay Fighters

Washington, Sept. 9.—The treasury department is sending checks to the 2000 officers and men of Admiral Dewey's fleet in payment of the awards of the prize money made for the victory of the American fleet at Manila bay. The total amount to be divided is $370,336.

Death of Noted Actress

St. Paul, Sept. 9.—Mrs. Sara Stevens, a member of the "Way Down East" company playing here, died suddenly from uraemia, aged 70. Her stage career dated from Oct. 27, 1856. Mrs. Stevens was the widow of John C. Heenan, the English pugilist.

Pit Held Sixty Skeletons

Rochester, Sept. 9.—Workmen engaged in excavating for a new trolley road unearthed 60 skeletons at Macedona that had been deposited in a pit. It is supposed that the bodies were those of Indians who fell in battle.

OLNEY FOR GOVERNOR

Bay State Democrats May Name Him For Head of Ticket

Boston, Sept. 9.—Colonel William A. Gaston of this city has authorized the statement that he is not a candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor this year. He considers that his position on the national committee enables him to be of just as much service as in the position of standard bearer. He intends to devote his energy to the continuance of the work of building up the Democratic party in the state.

The Post says that Colonel Gaston and Former Secretary of State Richard Olney met yesterday and talked matters over, with the result that the former candidate for governor instantly decided to step aside.

Mr. Olney had just returned from a visit to Esopus, where he met Judge Parker, and after a consultation with Gaston went on his way to New Hampshire to have a conference with ex-President Cleveland.

While at Esopus, Olney was urged to be the Democratic candidate for governor and he assured the judge that he would be if Gaston was not desirous of a renomination.

Prior to the visit of Olney to Esopus, Gaston had a conference with the Democratic leaders of the country, who urged that Olney be brought prominently into the coming campaign. Acting upon the suggestion made, Gaston has reached his decision.

Editors at Rosemount

Esopus, N. Y., Sept. 9.—Judge Parker received pledges of loyal support from editors of more than 200 Democratic newspapers, representing chiefly the middle west and south. On arriving at Esopus, the editors went at once to Rosemount, where the speeches were delivered at the edge of the Rosemount veranda. After the speeches an informal reception was held. Judge Parker, in his speech, asked the editors to urge retrenchment, declaring that extravagance runs riot in the government. He compared the cabinets of the two parties and said he believed the people would decide for the right.

Church and Politics

Salt Lake, Utah, Sept. 9.—The Democratic state convention nominated James H. Mayle of Salt Lake for governor and Orland W. Powers for congressman, and adopted a platform which reflects the recent renewal of charges of church interference in Utah politics and the reorganization of an anti-church party by denying the right of any power to dictate political nominations.

Fairbanks In Connecticut

Hartford, Sept. 9.—The campaign in Connecticut on the part of the Republicans was opened here last night by a rally at which Senator Fairbanks was the chief speaker. His address was along the lines of his previous utterances in New England.

Osborne Again Nominated

Rock Springs, Wyo., Sept. 9.—Former Governor Osborne was nominated for governor by acclamation by the Democratic state convention.

Looks Like Conspiracy

London, Sept. 9.—Home Secretary Douglas has appointed a commission to inquire into the circumstances of the convictions of Adolf Beck, who was convicted in 1896, served one sentence of seven years, and who was again arrested and convicted, but was granted a "free pardon" when it had been conclusively proved that both his convictions were founded on mistaken identity. The charge against the police of conspiracy is freely and openly made. The government offered Beck as compensation the sum of $10,000, which he refused.

Would Make China a Republic

Pittsburg, Sept. 9.—Sun Yat Sen, editor of a Hong Kong newspaper, in addressing the members of the Chinese Masonic organization here on the present conditions in China, said the time is ripe for revolution. He said that the intelligent Chinese wanted to model the government after that of the United States and that the downfall of the Manchu dynasty is certain.

Pacers Reduce Records

Syracuse, N. Y., Sept. 9.—Two world's records were broken at the New York state fair races. Miss Phelps drove the gelding Albert a mile in 2:05½, establishing new figures for a pacer with woman driver. The yearling colt, Paul D. Kelly, owned by U. G. Smith, paced a mile in 2:20 3-4, beating the world's record of 2:22, which has stood since 1898.

Constable Used His Gun

Lynchburg, Va., Sept. 9.—Constable Wright shot and fatally wounded John Inge last night. Wright is now in jail with a broken jaw and nose, which he received in an assault made on him by Inge, while attempting to serve Inge's son with a civil process.

Ashore In the Saguenay

Quebec, Sept. 9.—The Richelieu and Ontario company's steamer Virginian ran ashore a mile below Chicoutimi, on the Saguenay river. Her 50 passengers have been transferred to Chicoutimi.

Boston Templar Badly Used

San Francisco, Sept. 9.—Leo de Mar of Boston commandery, K. T., No. 822, was beaten, drugged and robbed of $550 in cash and a $225 watch and chain by unknown men, who escaped.

State Treasury In Bad Fix

Jackson, Miss., Sept. 9.—The state of Mississippi has in its treasury $1.56. Much doubt is expressed whether a firm of brokers who recently purchased a state bond issue of $500,000 will pay for them and the banks of the state seemingly are unwilling to advance money for immediate use. No payments of taxes are due for 30 days and a proposed special session of the legislature could not bring relief within that period.

Retained Heat Seven Months

Baltimore, Sept. 9.—City Surveyor Thomas reports that his men, who are doing some field work on Smith's wharf, uncovered a large quantity of wheat that was still burning—exactly seven months after the big fire. "The wheat was so hot," says Thomas, "that we could not handle it."

Weinseimer Pleads Not Guilty

New York, Sept. 9.—Philip Weinseimer, former president of the Building Trades Alliance, who is under two indictments of extortion, pleaded not guilty to the second charge before Judge Newburger, after his counsel had argued and been overruled on demurrer.

NEWS IN BRIEF

New Jersey won the Dryden trophy match, the most important event of the national shooting meet. The New Jersey shooters scored 987 out of a possible total of 1200.

The Boston and Albany freight house at Indian Orchard, Mass., was struck by lightning and burned to the ground with its contents. The bolt struck and exploded a 50-gallon tank of oil in the building.

President Roosevelt has presented to the Oyster Bay free library the mahogany chair presented to him when he was governor of New York and 50 volumes of history. No formalities attended the presentation.

The National Plumbers' association elected David Craig of Boston president.

W. R. Armour, manager of the Cleveland baseball club, has voluntarily resigned. Disappointment over the showing of the team is said to be the cause for Armour's retirement.

His Postponed Voyage

[Copyright, 1904, by Ethel Holland.]

"Mother, dear, there is something I wish to tell you," began Sue Emerson. "Last evening Sam Congdon asked me to be his wife, and I have promised to answer him at Mrs. Mynter's reception. I don't know what to say to him. I am awfully fond of Sam, but then there is Harvey Merritt. He is so clever, and I am sure he likes me. I wish I could make up my mind."

Mrs. Emerson stroked her daughter's hand.

"You must do your own choosing, dear," she said. "There is no one that could do that for you, but my heart has gone out to Sam."

That afternoon Sue called on her friend, Mrs. Curtis. She found her with a most disconsolate expression on her face.

"My dear Jessie," cried Sue, "what is the matter?"

"I have a serious problem to solve," she answered. "Jack gives a stag party tonight, and about ten minutes ago the maid came to me and said her mother was seriously ill, and she must go to her at once. Now who can I get to serve these men tonight?"

Sue meditated.

"I have it," she said at length. "I will be your maid tonight."

"You?" gasped Jessie.

Sue nodded.

"But," exclaimed Mrs. Curtis, "Harvey Merritt and Sam and other men that you know are going to be here."

"It will be such a lark, Jessie. You will remember I was a maid in those amateur theatricals which Mrs. Mynter gave. I have my costume now, the wig, and the liquid to stain my face. Consider it settled, Jessie. No one will ever know me, and you will see what an efficient maid I can be."

"If they don't recognize you, I shall be extremely thankful to you for helping me out of this strait," was Jessie's answer.

"It will be great fun," Sue declared, "but you mustn't tell a soul, not even Jack, until the evening is over."

Evening came and with it the new maid. As she entered the room where Mr. and Mrs. Curtis sat Jessie said to her husband:

"Oh, Jack, Alice was called home this afternoon by the serious illness of her mother. This is Mary, who takes her place this evening." And Jack, looking at the dark skinned, black haired girl before him, did not for a minute suspect she was dainty Sue Emerson.

While waiting on the guests the new maid gave a start at the turn the conversation had taken.

"Well, Merritt," Curtis was saying, "you and Sam are the only bachelors among us tonight."

"And I won't remain one for long," answered Merritt.

The maid was passing him salted almonds, and her hand shook a trifle.

"I have made up my mind to ask a certain young lady to be my wife, and she has given me reason to believe she will not refuse."

The men looked up in surprise.

"Who is the girl?" asked Curtis.

"Miss Emerson."

The dark blue eyes of the maid flashed as she filled the punch glasses.

"A toast to you," a young friend of Merritt's cried. "Here's to your success in winning Miss Emerson." The guests raised their glasses and drained them, all save Sam Congdon, whose glass but touched his lips. A man at the end of the table called out:

"Who would have guessed that our cynical friend had fallen in love?"

"Of course I am marrying for love," Merritt retorted, but his tone was tinged with sarcasm.

"You'll get the money along with the love this time," some one ventured to remark.

Merritt shrugged his shoulders. His manner was near to insolence.

The maid's hand trembled visibly as she poured the wine. She placed a glass at Sam's plate, noting the pallor of his face as she did so. Her blue eyes grew darker still as Sam arose and said:

"Won't some of you fellows drink with me? Tomorrow night at this time I'll be on my way to Europe."

"Why, how is that?" some one asked.

A wave of color spread over Sam's face for an instant as he deliberately told the falsehood.

"My father wishes me to look after his business in Liverpool."

All drank to his prosperity. Only one present knew the real reason for this sudden voyage. The new maid blushed furiously under her stained cheeks.

At 10 o'clock the following morning Sam stood waiting for the cab that was to take him to the wharf. His trunk, strapped and labeled, stood in the hall. His grip and umbrella were on the table. Sam went to the dresser and taking from it a photograph cut out the head and shut it in the back of his watch case. It was the head of Sue Emerson. He heard the cab stop in front of the house, and, pulling his hat down over his eyes, he started out, nearly falling over a small boy in a blue uniform standing in his path. A dirty hand passed Sam a yellow envelope.

"Sign here, sir."

Sam signed his name on the blank indicated, tore open the envelope, read the message and then raced down the stairs. Umbrella, grip and trunk remained behind.

"Emerson's, —— Eighty-first street," he shouted to the driver as he stepped into the cab.

The chambermaid walked into the room just vacated by Congdon.

"Would ye mind these bits of yellow paper flying around," she murmured to herself. With a maid's curiosity she put them neatly together and read:

I need you more than Liverpool does.
SUE.

NOTES ABOUT TOWN.

Fair and warmer tomorrow.

It is now the Fore River Shipbuilding Company, a Massachusetts corporation.

P. L. Litchfield of Water street now makes delivery of the daily papers in in Ward Three.

The Samuel Spear house on Granite street has been raised up, and another story will be built under it.

The new gas plant cannot be built too soon to please consumers of gas, who find it now an uncertain quantity.

The funeral of Mrs. Paul J. Revere, who died in Maine on Wednesday, will be held on Friday at 12 noon, at 350 Marlboro street, Boston.

Walter Flint has recently made extensive alterations and improvements in his residence on Hancock street, so that it is now a modern house.

Congressman McNary is reported at an address in Ward 16, Boston, on Thursday evening as saying—"The congressional situation in this district is all right—distinctly all right."

The hearing on the contest of the will of Joseph A. Willard, who was clerk of the Suffolk superior civil court, has been assigned by Judge Grant in the probate court for Oct. 12.

Mrs. Asenath Basley, formerly of Quincy, died at her residence in Belmont on Thursday. She was the daughter of the late Samuel Higgins of Germantown, who carried on carpenter's business. The burial will be at Quincy.

Joseph F. Costello of Havana, Cuba, is in town for a few weeks. Joe says he came up at this time to try the smelts. A few only are being caught now, but before the month is out there should be some good catches made.

Among the Quincy people registered at the Massachusetts building at the World's Fair during August were: Herbert W. Pinkham, Lucy W. Pinkham, Carle R. Hayward, M. B. Neff, Gertrude Neff, Frank A. Neff, John J. Connor, F. D. Greaney, Maybelle S. Stoner, Frank F. Prescott and Carl F. Prescott.

Emanuel's candy kitchen is fast becoming the popular resort for buyers of ice cream and candy. He has lately gone to a great expense in making his store a 1. Different colored electric lights are now placed over every mirror and the show window is encircled with them, making a beautiful display at night, On Saturday evening last his store was crowded to the doors, and it was hard work to wait upon the people, even with eight clerks.

Bethany church is being connected with the public sewer.

The shower of last evening was welcomed by most people.

Floor timbers are being laid for the new Y. M. C. A. building.

V. E. Miller is to open another store at Fields corner, Dorchester.

James Moorehead arrived home from Europe Thursday on the Saxonia.

Julius Johnson is building a house for C. A. Carlson on Granite street.

Fred G. Thayer of Wollaston, is spending a few days at Cape Porpoise, Me.

Mrs. Sarah. M. Pope, of Holliston, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Thayer of Willow street.

Hose 4 responded to a still alarm Thursday afternoon, for a fire in Eldredge's woods.

A new barber shop has been opened on Chubbuck street in the building near the Lawrence house.

The weekly prayer-meetings will be resumed at the Washington street Congregational church this evening.

Mrs. Stephen Penniman and daughter Mrs. James B. Pollock arrived home from Winthrop, Me., on Thursday.

C. F. Carlson, who returned Thursday on the Saxonia from a three months' visit to Sweden, reports having had a grand trip.

Julius Johnson has a new house well under way on Upland road, and has commenced work on the foundation for two more.

The closing social event of the Quincy Yacht club will be a smoker. It will be held at the club house, Houghs Neck, probably Thursday evening.

The friends in this city of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Westerndarp will be glad to learn that their little son Henry is recovering from his recent illness.

Three of the Philippine students, two ladies and a gentleman who are in Cambridge, were in town this morning and attracted considerable attention.

Great care will be taken of the raft which at present graces the bathing beach at Atlantic to keep it safe during the winter. The disappearance of the former raft excited suspicion and those who are interested in swimming will be wary this fall and spirit their treasure far away from pilfering hands. Next July 4, there will be no such foundation for the midnight bonfire.

Launch Stolen.

The 22-foot gasolene launch Alena, owned by Charles Keith of Cambridge, was stolen from her moorings off the Quincy Yacht club house at Houghs Neck sometime between 8 o'clock Tuesday night and Wednesday morning.

She was 22 feet long and 4 1-2 feet beam, painted red inside, and white outside above the water line, below which she was painted green. On her bow below the rail was a streak of aluminum bronze. The harbor police were notified but nothing has been heard from her.

TODAY'S COURT.

Maurice Fitzgerald was arraigned for drunkenness at Weymouth. Case continued until Oct. 10.

The continued case of Jeremiah Reardon, for drunkenness and assault on an officer at Quincy, were called and again continued until Sept. 30.

To Test Steel.

The simplest way to tell iron from steel is to pour on the metal a drop of nitric acid and allow it to act for one minute. On rinsing with water a grayish white stain will be seen if the metal is iron; a black one if it is steel.

Elevator Speed.

The highest speed which can be attained in an "express" elevator in a very high office building is about seventy feet a minute. That is equivalent to a mile in more than seven minutes, and many a pedestrian has walked for considerable distances at nearly as fast pace.

NOMINATIONS.

Must Be Filed Next Week for Democratic Caucuses.

Nominations for the Democratic caucuses must be filed before Thursday next at 5 P. M. and next Tuesday evening is the earliest date.

The number of delegates to which each ward of the city is entitled will be found in an advertisement today. It will be smaller at the State convention than to the other conventions.

The Democratic caucuses will be held, Tuesday, Sept. 27.

A Week of Pleasure.

The Manchester Unity Odd Fellows of Massachusetts are giving the Montreal brethern a grand good time on their visit. There was a reception in Boston on Sunday, followed by a parade and attendance at divine services at Tremont Temple. On Monday another parade to Rowes wharf and a picnic at Oak Island grove. On Tuesday a trolley ride to Waltham and visit to watch factory, and in the eveniug a grand ball in Boston. On Wednesday evening an exemplification of work in Boston. On Thursday a visit to Attleboro, and tonight another exemplification in Boston. On Saturday a visit to Lowell.

Oppose the Will.

Both E. F. Willard and S. F. Willard of Wollaston have filed appearances in opposition to the allowance of the will of their father, the late Clerk J. A. Willard of Boston. Each son was left $10,000, the grandchildren $50 each, and the residue to the two daughters. The residue comprises the bulk of the property.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

SEEING THE FAIR IN DETAIL

Tools of a Once Great Industry—Whalers' Outfit From North Carolina That Has Seen Years of Use—The Killing of a Whale—The Kind of Fowling Piece George Washington Carried. Birds of North Carolina—Two That Tennyson Mentions — Fisher Birds and Robbers—How the Demands of Milliners Nearly Exterminated the Snowy Heron — Shore and Marsh Birds.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE BY MARK BENNITT.]

Perhaps because a near neighbor of mine followed the sea in his youth and used to regale me in after dinner hours with narratives of life aboard a whaler I was more interested than you may be in the old whaling outfit which hangs in the North Carolina exhibit. What exciting scenes must have accompanied their use! The picture in the old geography labeled "Whaling In the Arctics" represented a whale breaking a boat in two with a flip of his tail, while men were flying in the air like so many pairs of open shears in the hands of a juggler. That picture gave me a perpetual distaste for whaling in its rigorous reality, but the narratives have never lost flavor.

You may not know that whaling is still an industry of no small importance along the Atlantic coast, for we still must have whalebone. Whales are, in fact, more abundant than at the time whaling lost its greatest importance, following the discovery of petroleum. The whaling of North Carolina is "shore whaling," but the whaler's outfit is the same as used aboard ship when the whales are lashed to the sides to be cut up and the blubber tried out on board the vessel. This outfit was in use as late as last spring off Beaufort. On one of the lances we may read upon a label in the whaler's own language, "Bin in 43 Whales."

When a whale was sighted in the old days the first act was to harpoon him. This act was usually attended with great peril. I suspect that the men in the geography picture had just harpooned a whale and the whale had resented it. Then came the lancing with the long sharp spear to reach the lungs and cause death. Between the harpooning and lancing a considerable interval usually occurred. The whale would "sound" after harpooning, going below and taking with him a boat load of rope attached to the harpoon. The harpoon has cruel barbs, its first purpose being to fasten a line to the whale. Sometimes the line would not run smoothly as the whale went down. Now and then it would loop around some object in the boat—perhaps one of the crew—and many a whaler has gone to Davy Jones' locker by that swift route.

The drag, which you may see here, is a wooden block twelve to fifteen inches square, with a hole through the center. Through this hole the harpoon rope runs, and when the drag may be safely launched the rope is knotted to hold the drag, which is intended to retard the progress of the whale and tire him.

The lancing of the whale is scarcely less dangerous than the harpooning, for the victim may still have much strength and a worse temper than when the big barbed harpoon entered his side.

The toggle iron is another form of harpoon, with point and barb on a hinge, so that a backward pull when it is once in the whale spreads the tool in the animal's flesh and holds it more securely.

The whale gun was invented during the later period of the whaling industry, and the harpooner became the man behind the gun. The whale gun has a bore of nearly an inch and carries a ten inch bomb with rubber feathers to guide the explosive missile. The gunner is not always sure of his whereabouts immediately after a shot on account of a tremendous recoil. The bomb has a fuse set at two seconds, and when well within the vitals of a whale makes quick work of him. The powder horn and cap box hang beside the old gun, and this whale spade, to cut off the blubber, has seen service in hundreds of whales. When passing along the north aisle of the Palace of Forestry take a look at these tools used in the romantic industry that built up New Bedford and other New England towns in the early part of the last century.

When George Washington went out into his preserves to shoot a few duck or other birds, he carried a fowling piece with barrel seven feet long. It was a muzzle loader and had a flintlock. And, by the way, a flintlock was about as ingenious an invention as the modern breechloader. A fowling gun such as Father George must have carried is in one of the cases of the North Carolina exhibit of game birds. Alongside it is a revolutionary musket, the selfsame gun whose shot, in poetic phrase, was heard round the world.

This leads me to the birds of North Carolina. Here are the birds that Tennyson meant when he wrote in "The Brook:"

I come from haunts of coot and hern.

The coot and the hern, or heron, are in the same case. The coot is a disappointment as to poetic grace, being rather too pussy, suggesting an inactive life. The herons are all beauties notwithstanding their long shanks, which trail through the air as they fly. This is a delightful place to study bird lore, particularly if you sit under the spell of H. H. Brimley curator of the state museum at Raleigh, the commissioner general for North Carolina at the exposition. Invariably the states have chosen from among their best men their representatives at the fair. The picked men of the world are here, making this the grandest educational project ever brought to consummation.

But to get back to North Carolina birds. Here are the fishers—the gulls, the terns or pointed bill gulls, the loons and gannets, the last huge white birds. The feet are the distinguishing "features" of these birds. The cormorant has an extra spread of webbing between his four toes, being, in the language of the natural history, totipalmate, or full webbed, while the grebes are merely lobe footed—a little webbing on each toe. Even in lower animal life nature bestows abundance on some of her children and handicaps others.

Here, too, is the jaeger, or hunting gull, not a fisherman, but living on fish, which he obtains in the same way as some men obtain a living—by taking it from others. When he sees the fisher gull rise from the waters with a live morsel he gives chase till the rightful owner drops it; then he dashes down and grabs it midair before it can strike water. The bald eagle here is the same sort of bird. He sits on a limb till a fishhawk makes a catch, then on swift wing soon claims the mouthful for himself. No doubt he goes home and tells what a great fisherman he is. A highwayman usually has other faults. Therefore, my children, give no credence to fish stories told by bald eagles.

Did you ever connect aigret, that beautiful and delicate filamentary white feather which stands up so straight in milady's hat, with egret, the white heron? In North Carolina's exhibit of herons are the great white egret and the little egret, or snowy heron. Algrets were in such demand that these beautiful birds became almost extinct. Egrets are now protected by law in North Carolina and are again seen with more frequency. All herons have aigret decorations of some sort somewhere, but the white ones are most sought after.

I cannot drop the herons till I call your attention to the bigness of the heron family, from the big blue heron three feet tall, with a wing spread of six feet, to the least bittern but ten inches high and weighing but an ounce or two. Eleven kinds are here shown in one case. The wood ibis is a full yard high and finely feathered.

I was an intense admirer of the sandpiper when a small boy. He is fleet of foot and quick of wing and the best example of alertness that one meets along the shore. He has an ungraceful bob, and his legs are so thin as to be almost invisible at the distance which he deems safe, but he is trim and lithe, and his little piping note lends romance to shore life. One does not easily forget his boyhood associates, these birds of the beach and marsh all reminiscent of boyhood and vacation days, the snipes and rails and the blackbirds with scratchy notes—counterfeit notes, in fact. The purple gallinule has perhaps the richest plumage of the Carolina birds, a color note that would be brilliant on any landscape.

The oyster catcher is so named because he has not merely a taste for shellfish, but a chisel bill with perpendicular blade with which to open—not oysters, but the weaker bivalves. The turnstone is a beach bird which gets its living by turning small stones along the shore and eating the insects that thought themselves safe in such seclusion.

If you have had sora on toast at any swell restaurant or cafe you will at once recognize this one among the Carolina birds. Though quite unlike the reedbird or bobolink, their names often get mixed on the menu, as their bodies do in the chef's kitchen.

Here are two of the larger rails—the clapper rail in gray of the salt marshes, whose notes are a succession of resonant clappings, and the brown king rail of the fresh marshes.

Perhaps we need no warning that we do not always get canvasback duck when it is on the bill of fare. North Carolina, one of the favored homes of this epicurean delicacy, includes twenty-four kinds of ducks in her game bird display, but the canvasback is king among them, the best and, of course, the scarcest one of the highest priced edibles found in an American market.

Five varieties of wild geese are in this exhibit, and the whistling swan, large and beautiful, in the favored attitude of taxidermy, makes one rub his eyes and wonder why he has not himself seen these great wild birds in life Fair Grounds, St. Louis.

Novel Slang Term.

Chefu has been added to our vernacular. In the east when anybody relates some astounding tale the cry of "That's a Chefu!" greets it, says the Kansas City Journal. As Chefu has turned out some of the most terrific rumors war was ever blessed with it wouldn't be strange if the name of the enterprising place was thus immortalized. So if you don't care to say to a man frankly, "You're a liar," why, just call him a Chefu. He will appreciate it just as well. Besides, it sounds less rude.

A Fuel From Peat.

Walter Schumann, consul at Mainz, Germany, writes thus to the state department at Washington: "Osmon, a new fuel, is made from peat. The peat used contains 90 per cent of water, of which 20 to 25 per cent is removed by means of an electric current. The peat is then further dried and passed through a machine which breaks it up and forms it into briquettes or nut shaped pieces. Osmon is free from sulphur and burns without slag or smoke."

What It Costs
... AND ...
What It Pays

are two values of newspaper advertising that the merchant has to consider. But the most important thing is

WHAT IT PAYS.

The merchant can get space in papers of small circulation and little influence for a little less money than the same size space would cost in the DAILY LEDGER and the QUINCY PATRIOT.

DOES IT PAY

to throw away the certainty of the profitable returns which are sure to LEDGER and PATRIOT advertisers, because it costs less to advertise in a cheaper paper?

Restful Mattresses.

Just think, people everywhere trying to get enjoyment and comfort out of this life, and the queer thing about it all is, that very few start in the right place.

There isn't any money that will bring such rest and comfort to tired folks as the money you spend for one of our famous Cotton Felt Mattresses.

These Mattresses are as unlike the one you are now using, as night is unlike day. They are soft, soothing, springy, restful, dreamy. They fit the body from top to toe, and afford you rest, comfort and enjoyment, unequalled by anything else that money can buy in all this great world of ours.

They range in price from $7.50 to $15.00. We have them for immediate delivery.

Cash or Easy Payments.

OVERFLOW AT HIGH.

Members of Entering Class to Attend Afternoon Session.

The School Committee have been unable to find rooms outside of the High school building for the pupils in excess of what can be accommodated in the present building. The sub-committee to whom the matter was referred has therefore decided that the only thing to do is to hold two sessions.

The three upper classes, 1904, 1905 and 1906, and as many of the freshmen class as possible, will attend the regular session which closes at 1.15. The remainder of the freshmen class will attend an afternoon session which will commence at 1.15 and continue until 4.15.

It cannot be definitely stated at present what the number of pupils at the afternoon session will be. The prospects are that there will be from 60 to 75.

In running the school in this manner it will be necessary to employ an extra corps of teachers. Extra teachers would also be necessary if outside rooms were used, but under the plan adopted the rental of the extra rooms will be saved.

NOT A CANDIDATE.

Representative Fallon Does Not Desire a Re-election.

Representative Fallon authorizes the statement that he is not a candidate for re-election as a Representative to the General Court. He says, by the way, that he is looking for something higher.

Mr. Fallon was first a candidate two years ago, when the Republicans nominated two, the Democrats two, the Socialists two and two ran on nomination papers. He was the leading man with 1272 votes. R. R. Freeman received 1268, E. J. Sandberg 1022, Levi Turner 944, John McKnight 871, E. F. DeNormandie 781, W. J. Collagan 608. P. M. Carlson 481.

Mr. Fallon was leading man last year also in the contest for Representative, receiving 1550, where Col. Gaston received but 1387 for Governor, against 1504 for R. R. Freeman, 1443 for E. J. Sandberg, and 1184 for Levi H. Turner.

It is probable that Mr. Fallon will seek the Democratic nomination for Mayor this year. As a Councilman and Representative he has always been a successful vote getter, and if nominated may give the Republican candidate a hustle.

GETTING TOGETHER.

Prospect That Street Railway and Employes Will Agree.

Another conference was held yesterday between the committee representing the street railway employes and officials. Considerable progress was made toward arranging the working contract for the coming year, and everything is progressing so favorably that it is almost absolutely certain that everything will be peacefully settled, and that there will be no trouble.

At the conference all of the clauses under discussion were settled but two or three. Another conference will be held some day the coming week at which time it is probable that all matters will be settled.

Grand Jury Report.

The Norfolk Grand Jury, which reported last night, found true bills in the following cases.

Bessie L. Moody charged with murder in the second degree, in killing her infant child at Quincy, May 26. She will be assigned counsel and arraigned later.

Charles J. Lindall, larceny at Quincy.

Edward Ford, John Leary, John O'Connell, Edward Kern and Edward Cronis, breaking and entering at Quincy.

Thomas Donahue, arson at Braintree.

Edward Frazier, arson at Weymouth.

Patrick A. T. Foley, assault at Weymouth.

Archibald Mills, breaking and entering at Weymouth.

Roy A. McDonald, breaking and entering at Milton.

Funeral of Mrs. Revere.

The funeral of Mrs. Lucretia Watson Revere, the widow of Col. Paul J. Revere, was held yesterday from her late home, 350 Marlboro street, Boston. She leaves a daughter and son, the former Mrs. Nathaniel Thayer and the latter Francis D. Revere formerly of Quincy, Col. Revere, for whom Paul Revere Post 88, G. A. R., of this city was named, was a member of the 20th Massachusetts regiment, and was killed at Gettysburg. He was a grandson of Paul Revere, the Revolutionary hero.

POLITICAL POT.

Many Rumors in Connection with Fall Elections.

Several Candidates for Representative.

A Contest for Mayor if Charles M. Bryant Retires.

The local political pot has commenced to boil and the air is full of rumors of all sorts. They are not confined to the State election but to the municipal election as well, the two being so intermixed that things are somewhat confusing.

Just at present the interest centers in the Representatives fight, and among the Republicans there are candidates to spare. Richard R. Freeman wants to return for a third term and will have a try for the nomination.

Edward J. Sandberg, who has twice received the nomination only to be knocked out at the polls, intends to have another try.

Ex-Mayor John O. Hall who a year ago came within a few votes of receiving the nomination, also wants to represent Quincy at the State House next winter. Aside from these there is another who will cut considerable ice in the contest. He is ex-councilman Harry S. Nicol of Ward Three.

The Freeman and Nicol forces are said to have joined hands, and is the team that is expected to win out. In support of this rumor comes the statement that Ward Three supported Mayor Bryant last year with the understanding that this year the compliment should be returned, and a plum land in Ward Three.

This brings up the Municipal fight. Mayor Bryant has said he has had all he wants, and his stepping aside brings to the surface a number who would like the privilege of sitting at the desk in the Mayor's office at City Hall.

Prominant among the names mentioned is that of ex-Councilman [illegible] present Principal assessor [illegible] Thompson. Mr. Thompson [illegible] candidate several years ago [illegible] defeated.

Now comes the quest[illegible] Ward Three gets a representat[illegible] eral Court can it also e[illegible] Mayor. Knowing ones say it [illegible] surrender one or the other. But which?

Other names prominently mentioned for Mayor are President Nichols of the City Council and ex-Mayor John O. Hall. Councilman Lewis Bass, name was a favorite with many at one time, but it is understood that his business firm will not hear to his entering the contest.

Rumor says that ex-mayor Hall is to be run again to compensate him from getting out of the Representative fight.

There is yet still another rumor, to the effect that City Auditor George A. Sidelinger, the ex-President of the City Council, is to be the candidate for Mayor and that ex-mayor Hall will be given the City Auditor's birth, which he filled for several years.

These are a few of the rumors that we hear upon the street, but they only show that just at present things politically in the Republican ranks are somewhat confused, and that the results of the State caucus and election will have an important bearing, and will play an important part in the coming municipal election.

Among the Democrats we hear but little, the most important being that Representative Peter T. Fallon is an avowed candidate for Mayor this year and that he will contest George H. Wilson's right to the nomination. As for representative nothing has been learned, although it would not be surprising if Mr. Fallon was a candidate for reelection, so that he can have two chances of getting in where it will be warm next winter.

Brotherhood Meeting.

The first of the regular monthly meetings of the Bethany Church Brotherhood, will be held at the chapel next Tuesday evening. Prof. Franklin T. Kurt of the Chauncy Hall School, Boston, will lecture. Subject, "Bacteria, —our friend as well as foe." All men of the city are cordially invited. Admission by free ticket obtainable of Brotherhood members. Lecture at 8 o'clock prompt.

—In the dominions of the British empire alone 8000 individuals vanish every year without leaving any indications as to their whereabouts or even appearing again.

FRYE SECURES BAIL

Indications That His Case May Be Settled Out of Court

Cambridge, Mass., Sept. 10.—Nathan A. Frye, treasurer of the Watertown Savings bank, who has confessed to the larceny of about $12,000, was indicted on 50 counts by the grand jury which reported yesterday afternoon before Judge DeCourcey. He did not have a chance to plead to the indictment, however, for he was bailed a few minutes before the court came in, and his name was not even called to answer to the charge. Bail Commissioner Winslow accepted the securities offered by John C. Gray and Frank E. Sweetser. The amount was $10,000.

It seems to be the opinion that this action of bailing out at almost the last moment before the court came in indicates that attempt at restitution will be made. In fact it is said that this action will not be hindered in any way by the bank officials.

As the final session of the superior court opens at Lowell Monday and will continue there for several days, it is not likely that anything will be done in this case until the last of next week, or the first of the following week.

Probably Jumped Into River

Haverhill, Mass., Sept. 10.—Standing on the lonely Groveland bridge over the Merrimac at midnight, gazing into the swiftly flowing waters, the conductor and motorman of a late car saw a richly dressed woman of middle age. When they returned on the next trip the woman was gone, but near the railing was a black silk coat, a silk umbrella, a Boston bag and a purse which Louis Sinotte, a wealthy druggist, this morning identified as belonging to his wife. There is no trace of the woman.

Costly Violation of Law

Boston, Sept. 10.—A fine of $15,000 has been paid into the coffers of the commonwealth by the Royal Exchange Assurance Company of London. The state charged the company with writing Massachusetts risks on forms other than the Massachusetts standard policy, placing Massachusetts business through non-resident agents and reinsuring policies of insurance companies in unauthorized companies. Under these three charges there were more than 50 separate counts.

Street Tragedy at Boston

Boston, Sept. 10.—Stung into an ungovernable rage as the result of being accidentally jostled from the sidewalk, an unknown man plunged a big jackknife almost to the hilt in the abdomen of Richard Wallace, 32, of Peabody, at the corner of Hudson and Beach streets, last evening, inflicting injuries from which it is thought he will die. Wallace's assailant escaped.

Deserter Indicted For Murder

Burlington, Vt., Sept. 10.—The grand jury returned an indictment against Benjamin Williams for murder in the first degree. It is alleged that Williams deserted his company at Fort Ethan Allen and shot and killed Policeman James K. McGrath of this city on May 12. The officer was endeavoring to capture Williams at the time of the shooting.

Blowing Up the Kiowa

Boston, Sept. 10.—Divers have begun the work of destroying steamer Kiowa, which has been a menace to shipping at the mouth of the harbor. They will do the work little by little, in order that as much as possible of the hull and the steamer's cargo may be saved. The work must be completed Dec 1, by government orders.

COWHERD'S VIEWS

Agrees With Babcock That House Contest Is Close

50 DISTRICTS IN DOUBT

Others Will Be Divided Evenly Between the Parties--Democratic Campaign Literature--Bright Prospect In New York

Washington, Sept. 10.—"I agree heartily with what Chairman Babcock of the Republican national committee says about the closeness of the campaign for members of the house," said Chairman Cowherd of the Democratic committee, who has just returned from several days' conference with the Democratic leaders in New York. "But I should differ from him as to the number of debatable districts. He thinks there are about 70. I place it from a reasonable estimate at not higher than 50. The remaining districts may be divided about evenly between the parties. I think neither has any advantage over the other in safe districts, and the control of the house will go to the party that carries a majority of the half hundred which are open to real contest. Much will depend on the district nominations and how they are made, and still more on the general drift of the presidential campaign. Our outlook I regard as very favorable.

"We are limiting our documents here to those which go under the government frank, or to speeches already delivered in congress. They are sending out from New York headquarters leaflets prepared especially for the campaign. We shall soon add two speeches to our list, making 12 in all, and perhaps more as the campaign advances. The one now in press is by Representative Wade of Iowa, on the trusts, in which he criticizes the administration for its lack of vigor in their prosecution, and especially calls attention to the congressional appropriation of $500,000, of which only $25,000 has been expended. We have also put out a speech by Vanduzer of Nevada, on irrigation, in which he shows that Senator Newlands of that state was the real author of the irrigation act, and that Democrats much more solidly than Republicans, hoped to bring its passage about. We believe these two latest additions to our list of documents will be extremely serviceable.

"The campaign is very slow in starting on both sides, and our speaking campaign cannot be said to have begun formally. There has been no particular reason for this delay aside from the general tendency of the times to make each campaign a little shorter than those before it. Many of the states encourage this by the dates which they prescribe for making nominations for places on the official ballot. This has accentuated the movement toward shorter campaigns.

"Our prospects in New York are extremely bright. Our people are very confident and whatever factional troubles there may be in the party have been relegated to the rear for this campaign. Factionalism may break out again, after it is over, but there seems to be an agreement on both sides to work together for the Parker ticket. Moreover, the Democrats are going to do the right thing in the state convention selecting a strong man, and if they do this I should regard the state as secure."

Parker May Leave Rosemount

New York, Sept. 10.—There is every reason to believe that Judge Parker will make arrangements to come to New York for temporary residence soon after his formal letter of acceptance is made public, it being his idea to be immediately in touch with the party leaders and accessible to those whom it is needful and desirable to meet as the campaign progresses.

Delaware Fight Continues

Wilmington, Del., Sept. 10.—The regular Republican state committee held a meeting here and authorized Senator Ball, the state chairman, to send a reply to Senator Allee, chairman of the Union Republican state committee, virtually refusing the proffer of the Addicks faction for harmony, and the consequent selection of one Republican state ticket.

Olney a Favorite Son

Boston, Sept. 10.—The announcement that William A. Gaston was not to be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor this year is widely discussed among politicians. Richard Olney is quite generally mentioned as the best man to nominate now.

Safe Robbed of $14,000

Pomeroy, O, Sept. 10.—Two men entered the office of County Treasurer Chase and while on of them covered Chase with a revolver the other went through the safe, securing $14,000. They then locked Chase in the vault and made their escape. Chase was found three hours later by his wife and released.

Must Be Kept Strictly Secret

Washington, Sept. 10.—The chiefs of the bureaus of the navy department have been informed that estimates for the navy are not to be given out or discussed by the employes of the department until further orders. The communication states that the order is "by direction of the president."

A Siesta In The Jungle

[Copyright, 1904, by T. C. McClure.]

Major Ridan of the Twelfth native cavalry, India, was hunting in Bengal with a small party, and one afternoon he wandered away from camp a short distance and stretched out under a tree for a nap. He had not slept above a quarter of an hour when he was aroused by what seemed to be the purring of a cat, only the sound was much louder. He had never heard the purr of a tiger or panther, but realized in an instant that one or the other had come creeping upon him as he slept. He was lying on his left side and facing the west, and the beast had come up behind him.

The major opened his eyes, but did not move a finger. The beast's nose touched the man's shoulder and snuffed at his face, and the long whiskers on his muzzle tickled the man's cheek, but he did not move. Had he raised hand or foot the beast would have seized him by the neck at once.

The tiger, as was afterward ascertained, had his lair within a few hundred feet of where the soldier was lying. After a minute or two a paw was placed on the officer's shoulder and he was turned over on the broad of his back. Through his eye winkers he caught sight of the paw and then realized that he was in the clutch of a full grown tiger. For the moment he was rejoiced. A panther hasn't the good nature of a tiger and is also more treacherous. A tiger will starve before he will feed on anything that he has not killed with his own paws, while a panther will grab at anything that comes in his way. Between the two the choice was with the tiger, and the major felt almost elated over his luck.

When the man had been turned on his back, the tiger sat up like a dog and purred like the great cat he was. The man had on a hunting jacket with silver buttons. They seemed to be objects of curiosity to the beast, and he touched the six of them in succession and slightly pulled at them with his paw.

The soldier's hat was lying on the grass near his head. The tiger reached for it and began to play with it as you have seen a puppy with a glove or rag. He struck it to the right and then to the left and then jumped after it and seized it in his teeth and gave it a toss into the air. He played with the hat for at least ten minutes and then sat up and yawned and returned to his victim.

Pretty soon a spur on the major's right boot heel attracted his attention. It was of brass and quite new and reflected the rays of the sun filtering down through the foliage. He licked at the metal and hurt his tongue on the rowel.

With a low growl he drew back and for a minute seemed to cogitate. Then he began licking at and biting the strap, which was also new and full of oil, and in a minute or two he had the spur off the boot. He then lay down and chewed at the strap as if he liked the taste, but after a time flung it aside and rolled over on his back and worked his body about on the grass as if bothered with fleas.

The beast was rolling and purring when one of the horses in camp uttered a neigh. The major was watching through half closed lids, and the move the tiger made astonished him. He turned like a flash and bounded six feet into the air, to whirl again and stand head to camp. For five minutes he stood watching and sniffing and growling. His tail was held straight out, his ears lay back, and one paw was held about six inches from the ground as if ready to strike. As the neigh was not repeated the tiger returned to the major.

The major was rolled over at least a dozen times by the tiger, and the beast leaped over him back and forth like a dog at play, and he seemed to get a good deal of amusement out of it and to preserve his good nature. He finally fastened his teeth in the man's hunting belt and lifted him clear of the ground as easily as a man might lift a kitten. If the soldier had not been told over and over again that a tiger eats only what he kills, he would have made sure that he was to be carried off.

He had a revolver in his belt, and as his right hand fell down it encountered the butt of the weapon. He might have drawn it and killed the beast or a shot might have frightened him away, but it was hardly a chance in a hundred. It may be that the tiger was holding the man up to see if there was life in him and was hoping to feel him make a movement. If there had been the stir of a hand, death would have been swift and merciless. After swinging the man pendulum fashion for a full minute the beast laid him down as carefully as you please, gnawed the belt in two and pulled it off, and, carrying one end in his mouth, he frolicked away and was hidden by the jungle.

An hour later the major's party had formed a cordon around the tiger's lair and sent in the beaters. At the first uproar the beast charged out with a fierce growl and killed a native with one blow of the paw which had treated the soldier so gently. Three minutes later he wheeled and charged in the other direction, and, though he received bullets from two different rifles, he sprang upon Captain West of the artillery and carried him 300 feet before falling dead. The officer, who had been seized by the neck, was dead long before the tiger gave up the ghost. One of the bullets had cut the beast's heart, and yet he had bounded away with a man weighing 170 pounds in his jaws and seemed to have been only scratched.

FOR YOUNG FOLKS

EVER SEE A CORK WALK?

If You Haven't, This Story Will Let You Into the Secret.

Lots and lots of our boys and girls have seen a match box, a horse fly, a stone fence, and even a board walk, but we are pretty sure that few of you have ever seen a cork walk. Still, under certain circumstances, a cork can walk, and this is the way to bring about that unusual spectacle.

Get as large a cork as you can find and stick side by side in one end a pair of flat headed nails. Then get two forks and insert them, one in each side, near the other end of the cork, as shown in the picture.

Now get a strip of wood four or five feet long and about two inches wide and make an inclined plane of it by piling books or boxes under one end. Place the cork on this, standing it on its nail legs, with one fork hanging down on either side of the strip of wood. Start the fork swinging from side to side, and you will see the cork walk jerkily down the board, taking ridiculous, stiff legged little steps on its nail legs.

AN ODD GAME.

It Is Played With a Pencil and Paper and Makes You Think.

This pencil and paper game can be played by any number of players. Give to each player a card with the alphabet written distinctly across the top. A paragraph of twenty-four words beginning with the various letters of the alphabet in their regular order is to be written. The words must of course make at least the semblance of sense. At the end of an allotted time each one should read his paragraph. If a prize is to be given the cards should be pinned up and the work voted on by all. Here are a few sample compositions:

"A boy can do everything for geese. He is just, kind, loving, merciful. Never ought poor, queer, righteous sisters to use viciousness with Xerxes' young zebras."

"Zeus yelled; Xerxes with vigor utilized troops. So, Romans, quell party or national misunderstandings. Love, kill, justly. In honor greet friends. Enemies do consider bad absolutely."

The author of the following, being unable to think of a word beginning with X, used X's to express number:

"Zoroaster yoked XXX white vultures under thirty stone rollers. Queer purple owls nightly made lamentation. Kingly jay birds in high glee fought every daring cavalier back again."

Bird Street Cleaners.

In many of the Haitian coast towns the only department of street cleaning that there is consists of pelicans that roost on rocks in the bay and fly heavily into town each morning to shovel up the refuse into their pouches.

Although the black population of the small republic does not care enough about cleanliness to provide means for sweeping the streets, still the people are glad enough to have the pelicans do it. So there is a heavy penalty for shooting at one of the birds.

As a result they are perfectly fearless and will flap into a street and waddle along right in the crowd. They arrive from the sea with their pouches empty and wrinkled and go along with their huge bills close to the ground like road scrapers. Gradually the pouch fills with all kinds of rubbish—and there is always enough and to spare in the Haitian towns—and at last it is distended and full of knobs and corners, like a badly stuffed carpetbag. Then the pelican rises heavily and flaps away to his roost.

Choosing "It" In China.

The Chinese know no end of riddles, both spoken and written, and they have all kinds of puzzles.

They have a funny way of choosing who shall be "it" in a game. One of them holds her hand out with the open palm downward, then all the others stand round with the tip of their first finger touching her palm. Then after repeating a few words she suddenly closes her fingers and tries to catch theirs. Sometimes she fails to catch one, and then it has to be done again, but if she does manage to imprison one finger the owner of that finger has to be "it."

Unnatural History.

The eel said to the heron,
"I don't agree with you."
"I beg your pardon," said the bird,
"But I rather think you do."

The heron then put in his bill,
And, though the eel replied
That he did not care to honor it,
He still went right inside.

The "Stunt" Of Mlle. Clementine

By ROBERT C. V. MEYERS

Copyright, 1904, by Robert C. V. Meyers

MLLE. CLEMENTINE was renovating the garments of Teddy and Chrissy, her dead sister's children, sons of Barney, the proprietor of the circus. She had promised her sister to look after the boys, and laundry work was a part of the surveillance. In the evening, a vision of silver and azure, she would soar aloft and take that leap from the trapeze which caused the timid souls in the audience below to hold their breath till she had landed on terra firma. As she rubbed away at the little garments she reflected on many things. Lately the circus had become almost unbearable to her. Barney said it was her liver and that exercise would cure her. She asked him what he called her performance on the trapeze. He answered that her liver was used to that; what was needed was variety of exercise.

She did not press the question, though she may have thought her exercise was sufficiently varied—cooking for Barney and the kids, helping round in the tent, acting as dresser to the performers, looking after the horses when Barney was in the dumps.

"By the way," her brother-in-law said, looking in on her, "the boy has turned up again."

The boy had followed her round for months and made all manner of protestations.

"Yes," she replied. "I saw him last night."

"Has he written to you as usual?" asked Barney.

She answered that a note had come that morning.

"He ought to see you now," he grinned, "this very minute."

She leaned farther over the tub.

"Keep it up, Clem," he went on. "It's as much of a stunt as your hop from the trapeze. Such a thing is always a sendoff for a show. Oh, I forgot. Sally wants you to mend her red velvet body. She's getting so fat I really believe she'd rip an iron fireproof safe if she was dressed up in one."

Sally was Signora Sarepo, who nightly wound a boa constrictor around her neck as though for warmth and called herself a "charmer."

"She must wait her turn," Mlle. Clementine told him. "I must fix Maggie's wig. Bill caught his nails in it last night when he missed his jump."

Bill was the lion into whose cage Marguerite de Melville, his owner, "in fear and trembling" obtruded herself at each performance and invited to skip over her head by shooting off a pistol near his ears in order to accent the invitation.

Then here came Teddy and Chrissy clamoring for bread with jam on it.

Mademoiselle wrung the suds from her hands and attended to the behests of her nephews.

Still Mlle. Clementine kept at her washing. All the time she was thinking of the boy. She knew his other name, of course, but she liked to think of him as the boy. It kept her under, so to speak.

"HE OUGHT TO SEE YOU NOW."

The boy was so young! She remembered the first time she had noticed him. It was at a town forty miles away, and she caught his eye as she kissed her finger tips to the audience. And, ah, the look he gave her!

In came Maggie with her torn wig, closely followed by Sally with the red velvet "body."

"It's like this, Clem," said Maggie. "I'm never hard on a friend that's down on his luck, but I must live, and so must Bill."

Mademoiselle conceded the fact.

"And," went on Maggie, "a continuous house wants Bill and me, and I rather like the 'snap' of vaudeville. If Barney can't pay up let him say so like a man. But it's shabby to promise and do nothing and hold me back when I can do better."

"So I say," the "charmer" chimed in.

Mademoiselle frowned. Of course things were going wrong; things were usually going wrong. It had always been so, and the worry had been too much for Sister Eliza. Barney was the greatest drag of all, either up in the skies or down in the depths. Last night when the box office was levied on by the printer he was for stopping the show and acknowledging defeat, though his wife's sister had pulled him through, as she had often done before. But was it worth while to keep on like this? By acceding to the boy's wishes she might end it all. Teddy and Chrissy would grow up just as well without her, while their father would scramble along like so many other men who seem never to establish a footing in the world. Yes, she could leave it all and interfere with the boy's prospects, for she knew all about the boy—how he had but recently left college and what a career his father had planned for him.

Yet what was to hinder her from growing up with him? She never had had half a chance; she had only known the circus.

She controlled the boy. She might form him into a sensible man and force his father to recognize her as a good woman and a helpful wife. She was tired of her sordid environment, of the poverty stricken sham.

She had but to say the word and the boy would take her away from it all.

She felt in the front of her gown. Yes, it was there, the ring he had insisted upon her taking and which she wore on a string round her neck so that Barney should not see it, for if Barney knew she had it he would imagine she possessed untold riches and might suggest branching out.

The boy had told her the ring once belonged to his mother. Why had she accepted it? Not for its money value surely, though that was considerable. But it had seemed very pleasant for her to have it. Knowing that it had been his mother's, she felt that he respected her as the greatest lady in the land when he could offer her his dead mother's ring.

And he had sent her a note this morning bidding her meet him this afternoon and answer the question he had put to her so often—would she become his wife?

To think of him and his bright ways and the possibilities that lay before her! They could go away from these crowded, congested cities, out to newer parts of the world where he might quickly work himself into being a power, she at his side. He was educated and enthusiastic, and education and enthusiasm might do anything in this world. But here was Barney again. He was laughing.

"You're in for it!" he said.

She looked at him for explanation.

"The old man has come after his son," he went on. "They told me at the hotel. Papa and sonny had it hot and heavy last night; almost came to blows. And all on your account. Your name was fanned from one to the other of them. It's the biggest card the show's ever had. We'll be crowded tonight.

"Maggie and Sally look black," he went on. "But tonight with a crowded house I'll manage to pay them something on account. Remember your stunt with the boy. Clem, keep it up." And he went away whistling.

Mademoiselle had many things to do before she was free to keep her engagement. First of all, Maggie marched in. She had been closeted with the "charmer."

"Clem," she said, "Sally and I have made up our minds that we won't go on tonight without some of our back pay. Barney's promises are all wind, and we can't live off air pudding if you can."

Again came Barney, in the depths this time.

"Clem," he groaned, "Maggie and Sally are drawers, and they've come down flat for their salaries. Couldn't you manage to borrow something from that young fellow?"

"Stop that!" she blazed out. "Don't ever let me hear you say anything like that again."

"Oh, you needn't mount the high horse with me!" he retorted. "I don't care what becomes of the show. Only your sister's children will suffer, that's all."

Mademoiselle watched him leave the tent and knew that he went for something to invigorate him, as he usually did when anything went wrong.

Surely she must get away from all this; she could stand it no longer. She hurriedly tossed on her street attire.

How bright the day was! How clear and clean the whole world looked away from the tent! It was a good and beautiful world, and surely she had a right to some of the goodness and beauty. She paused for a moment to drink in the glory of sunshine and blue sky, feeling young, almost girlish. Then she went on. She had walked some ten minutes or so when she glanced round. Yes, there he was. She knew he would be on the watch for her. But the boy was white of face, and there was a frown between his eyes as he came up to her. "Let us get into some quiet spot," he said. "I have a good deal to say to you."

There was a new quality about him that spoke of mastership. She went along beside him, silent as he, though she glanced at him sidewise now and then like some timid schoolgirl. And then they came to a little square with benches arranged about a glittering fountain where sparrows hopped and bathed in the bright spray. She seated herself. She knew that the time had come when she must make her decision, when the boy had all at once become a man, a masterful man.

He continued to stand.

"My father is here," were his first words.

"Yes?" She looked at the bathing sparrows.

"He followed me," he went on, "as though I were a child and did not know what I was doing. A child!"

In a flash the difference in their ages appealed to the woman who listened. He was twenty-one, while she was—any age she chose to look.

"It is like this," he continued. "My father has foolish plans for my future. I have my own ideas. I shall go in for politics; that's the field for a fellow like me. As for the social side of life, I am tired of all that nonsense. You are paying attention?"

"Oh, yes," she answered hastily.

"My father," he said, "heard of you, and he came after me. He says I know nothing about you. He speaks of a young girl he had selected for me, the daughter of a friend of his. He twits me with having liked her till I met you"—

"You liked her?" she interrupted.

"Oh," he said, "when you came could I think of any one else?"

The fervor of his tone touched her.

"But I told my father all that was over. Then he reminded me of your social position. I hope I do not pain you in speaking so plainly. I want to be honest, you know."

"It is always best to be honest," she replied.

He moved closer to her.

"Clementine," he said, "it must be as I say now. I will not be held off any longer. I have means of my own. Get rid of that miserable circus, be my wife and go with me to some new faroff place where we shall be together and happy."

Just such a picture as she had painted to herself earlier in the day!

"My love!" He sank to his knees and caught her hand in his. "My love!"

At his touch something seemed to give way within her. She saw him giving up for her sake the life his father had planned for him and entering the world of politics, where a man's wife may have sprung from anything; saw the girl he had "liked" till she came between them; saw herself beside him, far older than he, a woman with a glamour about her which he must some time estimate at its true value, a woman unused to his ways of life and who might hold him down. Hold him down! Never! She could elevate him far more than a frivolous young society girl might ever do, for she knew the world, could urge him on, make him see in the successes he should yet achieve that the motive power of those successes had been her love for him. And yet he was young,

"IT WAS YOUR MOTHER'S!"

the asserted authority of his father made him resentful and extravagant, while she—ah, she could make him a successful man; she knew she could; she knew her power. Did not all the people of the circus look up to her? Did not Barney depend upon her? The circus! She wrenched her hand from his. The circus!

"Your father was right," she said. "You know little or nothing about me!"

He sprang to his feet. "What do you mean?" he demanded.

She regarded him. He was a man, every inch a man, a loving man. And in her heart was a crying out for love, for refinement such as his, for all that he knew and she knew not, for freedom from the life that was hers.

He caught her by the arm. "Tell me!" he said.

Surely she might ruin his prospects by marrying him. And yet he loved her, and there was so much happiness in that thought!

"Tell me!" he repeated.

"You took too much for granted," she said hoarsely and rose to her feet. "And yet I"—

"You shall marry me," he thundered. "By heaven, you shall!"

"I will not," she said, "yet."

He stepped back from her.

"You do not love me!" he cried. "Is that it?"

She fingered the buttons of her coat till one of them came off and rolled to her feet.

"I cannot," she said, "now."

"Cannot!" he echoed. "What do you mean by 'cannot?' Do you mean that you cannot love me? You dare not? Is there any obstacle? What do I care for all the obstacles in the world?"

"That may be it," she said. "An obstacle, and yet I love"—

"An obstacle!" he repeated. "There is no obstacle short of a legal one"—

"A legal one?" she interrupted.

"Tell me," he said, "you are free; you are not bound to any one; you are not the wife of some one else?"

The wife of some one else!

It was as though he gave her a cue. Yet could she tell that lie? He was so young; she was not of his world. Dared she withhold any lie when all his future trembled in the balance?

"Tell me," he was saying. "I will never give you up unless—unless you are bound to some one else. I had not thought of that. Tell me it is not true."

She was white to the lips. She made an ineffectual effort to speak.

"Think of me!" he pleaded.

Think of him! Then she said boldly, "Barney, the owner of the circus"—and paused.

"What of him?" he demanded.

"He is my husband!" she said.

She could have cried out at the look that came to his face.

"And you never told me," he said. "You led me on all this time. You are the falsest woman ever created!"

"He is my husband," she said as before.

He gave her a long look.

"My father," he said, "was right."

He was leaving her when she called his name. She might tell him the truth even yet and—have him sacrifice everything for her. And dared she forsake her own duties? She snapped the string about her neck and held out the ring he had given her.

"No!" he cried, repulsing her. "I would not touch it after it has lain over your cruel heart."

"It was your mother's," she faltered.

"It was my mother's, but she never wore it. The jewels my mother wore shall be worn by the woman who shall be my wife, not by the one who has been false as a woman can be!"

She heard his footfalls become fainter and fainter. She did not see him leave her, everything was so blurred before her eyes.

She gave a deep sigh. Something hurt her hand. She looked down and saw that she had pressed the ring so tightly that it cut her palm. She regarded the jeweled circlet.

"It will pay the salaries," she said, "and buy shoes for Teddy and Chrissy. I promised Eliza. And now I must make haste to the tent and get supper or I shall be late for my stunt." And "No, no!" and again "No, no!" and she laid her lips on the ring in her hand, then threw it as far as she could into the dust of the road. She hurried away, holding her coat tightly across her breast as though the fierce pressure helped her.

Mlle. Clementine looked old for the first time in her life.

CARE OF THE TEETH.

How to Keep Them Clean and Avoid Breaking the Enamel.

Keeping the teeth in good condition is a very simple matter, yet perhaps more people sin in this particular point of cleanliness than in any other, says a writer in Success. I know young men, and young women, too, who dress very well and seem to take considerable pride in their personal appearance, yet neglect their teeth. They do not realize that there could hardly be a worse blot on one's appearance than dirty or decaying teeth or the absence of one or two in front. Nothing can be more offensive in man or woman than a foul breath, and no one can have decaying or dirty teeth without reaping this consequence.

How easy it is to preserve them when they are naturally good! Any one can do it. Brush them after each meal with a brush stiff enough to remove all particles of food, but not so stiff as to injure the gums. Warm or tepid water should be used, with a little powdered orris root, which helps to keep the breath sweet. Any other good tooth powder may be substituted or the occasional use of a little fine salt will be found beneficial.

If fibers of meat or particles of any other food that cannot be removed with a brush lodge between the teeth they should be removed by a wooden toothpick. On no account use a pin or a penknife or your fork. Do not try to crack nuts or to bite any hard substance with your teeth. This causes the enamel or outer protective covering to break, which is the same as if you were to break the skin on any part of your body. When the enamel is broken the tooth begins to decay, and severe pain and an unpleasant breath are the results.

Violent changes of temperature, such as from ice cream to hot coffee, also cause the enamel to break. If in spite of proper care your teeth trouble you, you should immediately consult a good dentist. Do not go to a poor one because he happens to be a little cheaper. You will find that a most pernicious sort of economy. It is a wise thing to have your teeth examined at least once a year by a good dentist.

How to Have Roses Bloom In Fall.

Hardy perpetual roses which bloom in the early summer can generally be made to bloom in the fall if the early blooms are cut with as long stems as possible for the vase before the roses are fully opened, says the Ladies' Home Journal. This takes practically all the season's growth off the plant, but if it is well mulched after being worked with a good stimulating fertilizer new growth will come at once and produce blooms in the fall.

How to Make Tomato Sherbet.

Wash two lemons and take off the thin yellow rind. Simmer a can of tomatoes, the lemon rind and a three inch piece of ginger root about fifteen minutes, after which pass through a sieve fine enough to retain the seeds. Mix with a sirup made by boiling a quart of water and a pint of sugar twenty minutes, adding the juice of the two lemons. When cold freeze as a sherbet—that is, to a stiff mush. As green ginger root is not always easy to get, half a cupful of sirup and a piece or two of finely chopped ginger root from a jar of ginger preserve may be substituted. A few preserved kumquats are an addition. Serve in sherbet glasses and slice a few bits of preserved ginger or kumquats over the top of each glass.

How to Launder Embroidered Linens

An experienced embroiderer gives this piece of advice about laundering embroidered linens: Always wash a piece for the first time before cutting it out. After washing stretch on a smooth board, which has been covered first with a piece of plain linen, tacking the embroidery quite smoothly and securely. Leave over night, laying the board flat, lest the colors run.

How to Serve Cold Fish.

Take the remains of any cold fish, remove the skin and bone and cut it into shapely pieces. Place the fish upon a dish and surround with blanched anchovies and again with beet root. Send to table with a bowl of well washed and dried lettuce broken into pieces, not cut with a knife. Pour a gill of mayonnaise over the fish one moment before serving. To make mayonnaise, beat well the yolks of two raw eggs and then add very slowly two tablespoonfuls of salad oil. When all is of a smooth consistency stir in two tablespoonfuls of vinegar and one of cream.

How to Keep Fresh Meat.

Farmers or others living at a distance from butchers can keep fresh meat very nicely for a week or two by putting it in sour milk or buttermilk and placing in a cool cellar. The bone and fat need not be removed. Rinse well when used.

How to Make Lemon Cheese Cakes.

Rub enough of cottage cheese through a sieve to give one and a half cupfuls, add one-third of a cup of sugar, two tablespoonfuls of cream, one tablespoonful of melted butter, the grated rind of and the juice of one lemon, one egg beaten until light and half a cupful of citron and currants; cut in small pieces. Line small pastry tins with pastry, fill with the mixture and bake fifteen minutes.

How to Sharpen Scissors.

Take scissors in the right hand and a needle in the left hand and hold the needle on the slant of the scissors, then work the scissors as if you were cutting cloth. The scissors will glide over the needle and be well sharpened in a few seconds.

UNCLE SAM.

Between 1896 and 1903 Uncle Sam increased the capital and surplus of his national banks from $895,000,000 to $1,123,000,000, an increase of $228,000,000.

UNDER PROTECTION.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ Those who have had the opportunity to spend a week or two at the seashore or mountains during the summer months will feel enough better the rest of the year to amply repay them for the time lost from their regular occupations. And besides, the mind will work better and with less friction. It will require less effort to think, and there will be an added joy in work. The ever present thought of pleasant moments passed in company with friends, or even alone, in the contemplation of seashore or mountain scenery, and, withal, the quiet planning of where to go next year, gives zest to all the vacationists' undertakings from now until next breathing spell. Very few would wish to prolong the days of their vacation however, especially those, we mean, who are in the full vigor of health; for the relaxation attendant upon vacation days soon fall upon one, and he or she longs to be up and doing again. Such is life. The real enjoyment of living is in doing something and the better the work one is engaged in the greater the enjoyment.—Hyde Park Gazette.

☞ Sparkling and delightful beyond praise is Ben Blow's sketch, "The Ladies of the World's Fair," illustrated with portraits of the board of lady managers, in the National Magazine for September. Wittily and sympathetically, in their own words, he depicts the woman real estate agent, the woman banker, the woman promoter, the woman politician and other interesting modern types represented in the group of women chosen from all America to represent the social side of the World's Fair. Joe Mitchell Chapple fills forty pages with World's Fair gossip—of art, of industry, of amusement and of picturesque personalities, illustrating his letter with scores of odd and attractive pictures. The fiction includes short stories of politics, of love, of childhood, of army life and a lively humorous sketch of rural life. The Home department contains a wealth of helpful suggestions given by twenty American housewives who have tested and proved their efficacy; it offers also several brief, bright, homey essays and poems.

GOING TO COLLEGE.

Many of Class of 1904, Thayer Academy to Pursue Studies.

School commences Wednesday, Sept. 14 at 9 A. M. After the opening day the first recitation will come at 8.20 instead of 8.30. The corps of teachers remains unchanged, but Miss Thompson will have an assistant in her work. The committee on lectures for teachers on museum collections, formed in Boston about four years ago to develop in the schools an interest in art, will have the benefit of her scholarship a part of each week. While she retains the direction of her classes and will teach a part of the time, the pupils will be instructed in her absence by William W. Gallagher, (Thayer 1900) (Harvard 1904) who has been teaching the last year in the Demeritte school in Boston.

Of last year's pupils the following expect to enter college:

Alan A. Arnold, Harvard
Mollie G. Brown, Radcliffe
Edith O. Crocker, Simmons
Harold C. Faxon, Inst. of Technology
Eleanor G. Gogin, Vassar
Helen B. Josselyn, Vassar
George H. Kelley, Williams
Grace E. McAllester, Vassar
Sophy R. Philips, Radcliffe
Mary L. Powers, Wellesley
Walter L. Remick, Dartmouth
Carl R. Sheppard, Cornell

Willard P. Sheppard has passed examinations for Harvard but studies a year in Lausanne, Switzerland, on Lake Geneva.

Mary Underhay, Normal Art school
Harold W. Wellington, Institute of Technology
Mabel A. Pratt, Boston University
Howard F. Whipple, Dartmouth
Thomas H. White, Institute of Technology

Personal.

It was the pleasure of the writer while on his way to the World's Fair recently to visit Dr. and Mrs. D M. McFall at Mattoon, Ill. Mrs. McFall is the daughter of Mrs. William Johnson and sister of Mr. Robert T. Johnson and Mr. Jos. W. Johnson of Quincy, and was married about a year ago. They have travelled extensively in the western states and on the Pacific coast. Their home in Mattoon is prettily situated, and is one of those hospitable mansions.

All the surrounding country is very level, and rich in corn fields and farms. Farms are valued at $125 per acre and it is not surprising, because no fertilizer is required and the crops are uniformly large. Mattoon is the trading centre, and Dr. McFall, who has retired from his profession is the owner of some of the largest business blocks, and also a farm outside the city. Fuel is cheap there, and the streets are piped for heating as well as water, etc. In fact hot water is on tap from a central plant.

Mattoon has electric cars, excellent railroad service both east and west, and north and south, fine churches, etc., etc. Meats are cheap, and fowl is sold alive.

During the summer Miss Blanche Morrison has been the guest of her aunt, and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Sprague are now there en route to the World's Fair.

Capt. B. F. Sherburne.

Benjamin Franklin Sherburne, a native of Quincy and a nephew of the late Thomas Crane, passed away at Sequoia hospital, Cal., on the 17th ult., from a diseased right foot.

Mr. Sherburne was born in Quincy, March 4, 1826, and spent the first twenty years of his life in this town. When a boy he shipped on a vessel for the East Indies. This was really the beginning of his professional career as a navigator, for he was soon promoted to ordinary "A. B." and returned on the vessel as her second mate. From that time on he worked his way upward in his chosen profession until he obtained command of a fine clipper ship. Most of his voyages as master of clipper ships were in the tea trade to the East Indies and in the China seas and in this trade he enjoyed the confidence and respect of all the shipping houses of Boston, New York and San Francisco. He had the reputation of being a skilled navigator and a careful master and it was his boast that during his long experience he "never met with disaster and never cost the Underwriters a cent."

Deceased was married to Miss J. A. Cummings at Tyngsboro, Mass., in 1853 and leaves three children surviving. His wife died in 1893.

Capt. Sherburne was a man of genial disposition and with a character that was above reproach. He was quite a student of literature and his many novel and exciting experiences in the clipper ship days in the China seas afforded him a fund of narrative which from time to time he wrote for the papers. He was probably one of the oldest Masons in the county having been "made" in New York in 1852, and joining the Chapter there in the following year.

—Hyde Park's tax rate is $17.30, a decrease of $3.10 on $1000. The town's total valuation is $12,654, 225. The increase in personal estate is $121,050; in real estate, $457,850.

REV. M. C WRIGHT

The New Pastor of the Atlantic M. E. Church.

The pulpit of the Atlantic Methodist Episcopal church for the next year or two, is to be occupied by a western man, this time from Greencastle, Indiana.

Mr. Wright is a gentleman of large physique with a strong though pleasing voice, and, he easily maintains his reputation as a fine preacher which had preceded him.

REV. MANFRED C. WRIGHT.

He is a graduate of the De Pann University and a member of the North West Indiana Conference and leaves his work as a pastor in that conference to complete his studies by taking a theological course at the Boston University.

He began his pastorate in Atlantic last Sunday. At present his address is No. 72 Mt. Vernon street, Boston, but in the near future he expects to reside in Atlantic.

BOWLING LEAGUE.

House Tournament in Big Pins by Cochato Club.

The regular house tournament of big pins will commence Oct. 4 and will be rolled as follows:

Nine teams will roll flat (point system) for twelve weeks. There will be five individual prizes for the members making the greatest gain over their 1904 ratings. The members rolling the highest single, highest three strings, and the highest average, will have their names entered on the official record board.

At the end of the regular tournament the teams will be divided into three classes. The teams in each class will roll against each other for three weeks, the team getting the greatest pin-fall in the three games to be the winner of the class.

For final there will be a grand roll-off between the three winning teams. The first and second teams to have their names entered on the official score board and the members of the third team to receive bowling books. This will be a handicap game, the class two and three teams having an allowance of one-half of the difference of the official team ratings, as rolled in the regular twelve week tournament.

The Saturday evening lunches were resumed last week and are to be continued this winter.

The alleys have been put into trim for the winter and are now all ready for the bowlers.

HATCHING BY HEAT.

The Principle of Incubation Has Been Used For Ages.

The ancient Egyptians from time immemorial have hatched large quantities of eggs by artificial warmth, applied through peculiar but simple ovens.

Bonnemain, in 1777, was the first in more recent times to put the process upon a sound commercial footing. He communicated to the Acadamy of Sciences an interesting fact he had noticed upon the method chickens used to break their shells, and for some time before the revolution he furnished the Parisian markets with poultry at a time of the year when farmers ceased to supply it.

His apparatus was founded upon the principle of the circulation of hot water through a series of connected pipes, a novelty which was afterward applied to the warming of buildings. Water saucers were placed in the egg drawers to keep up the necessary moisture, and twenty eggs were inserted daily for twenty days, when the first brood appeared. In 1825 D'Arcet obtained chickens by hatching eggs in the warm water baths of Vichy.

Modern incubators are essentially water baths, with an automatic regulator to keep the temperature to 40 degrees C.

MINERAL WOOL.

A Valuable Product From What Was Once Regarded as Waste.

Mineral wool is a soft substance consisting of a mass of very fine mineral fibers, which interlace one another in every direction and thus form an endless number of minute air cells. It is made quite simply, by directing a blast of steam against a stream of molten slag. Some of the best is made from blast furnace slag, an admirable illustration of the value of what was once regarded as a waste product.

The slag is melted in a large cupola, and as it trickles out of the tap hole it meets a high pressure steam jet which blows it in fleecy clouds into the storage room provided for it. The heavier wool naturally settles down first, while the lighter portions are blown further along by the force of the steam, and so the material naturally sorts itself.

Mineral wool is fireproof and may be used as a sound deadener between the floors of buildings; it also serves as a nonconducting covering for cold storage chambers and for pipes. For this last purpose the wool that is made from sandstone is best, for it contains no sulphur, which, when moisture is present, is a corroding agent.

THE BAGPIPES.

They Were Used by the Early Greeks, Romans and Egyptians.

Bagpipes, mentioned in Jeremiah xlviii, 36, "Mine heart shall sound for Moab like pipes; like pipes for the men of Kir-heres," and elsewhere in Scripture, were used also by the early Egyptians.

Both Greeks and Romans knew the instrument, for a coin of Nero shows upon one side the tibia utricularis, a bag with two reeds and nine pipes. Procopius also, who wrote about 550 A. D., asserts that Roman soldiers sometimes marched to the sound of the bagpipes, and it is not impossible that they introduced them into the British islands.

The earliest, more modern reference to them is in an Irish MS. of 1150, and an Irish illuminated MS. of 1390 depicts a pig playing on the bagpipes. The Scottish highlanders were the first and only people to use the great war pipe, as the highland regiments still do, but, in spite of Sir Walter Scott's assertion, it is very doubtful whether they charged at Bannockburn to the "skirl" of the pipes.—London Answers.

The Wornout Old Man.

When we become old we want to get off the streets. We always sympathize with the old men who have nothing to do, who are not wanted anywhere and who have no place to go. When we become old and useless we want a place of our own to go to, a place that is absolutely our own and that we can manage as we please. We hope it will be a little place where we can potter with fruits and flowers, vegetables and chickens, and keep busy. We don't want to give people opportunity to show neglect nor idle time in which to see visions of the grim monster. Old men who loiter about the streets, it always seems to us, make a mistake.—Atchison Globe.

Nourishment.

A man is a very broad, omnivorous animal and needs a great variety of food, both mental and physical. No matter what element we omit in his bill of fare there is a corresponding loss, omission or weakness in his life. You cannot get a full, complete man on half a bill of fare. You cannot nourish his body and starve his soul and expect him to be symmetrical, well balanced, poised. Nor can you starve his body and nourish his soul and expect him to be a giant on the physical as well as on the spiritual plane.—Success.

Must Be Very Good.

Jenny—Papa, cook must be very good. Papa—Why, my dear? Jenny—Because in my lesson last Sunday it said that the wicked shall not live out half their days, and cook says she has lived out all her life.

Plenty of Light.

Rev. Dr. Thumper—Does not married life seem brighter to you? Mrs. Newbride—It ought to. My wedding gifts included twenty-five lamps.

Joy's recollection is no longer joy, while sorrow's memory is sorrow still. —Byron.

CITY BREVITIES.

Pictures of Venice have arrived at the Public Library.

The caucus notice of the Socialists appears in this issue.

Charles Hull of Wollaston has returned from Yarmouth.

Chester Jones of Pray street will pass Sunday with friends in Somerville.

Mr. William Bryant and family of Edison Park, have moved to Cambridge.

A choir rehearsal will be held at the Point church this evening for the Sunday music.

City Clerk Keith announces the regulations for the joint caucus of Sept. 27 in this issue.

Lawyer Mackay left for New York this afternoon on a business trip, to be gone three days.

Miss Elsie C. Phillips of Quincy Point has accepted a position to teach at Abbot Hill, Wilton, N. H.

Milton academy opens on Tuesday, Sept. 20th. There are several students at the academy from Quincy.

It was on Sept. 10, 1900, that Lightship 72 was launched by the Fore River Ship and Engine Company.

"A labor motto" will be the subject of Rev. E. D. Webber of the Wollaston Baptist church Sunday morning.

Miss C. L. Crane of Quincy Point has gone to New Hampshire, where she has accepted a position to teach.

The cruiser Des Moines, built at Quincy, joined the United States European squadron at Cherbourg yesterday.

Services will be held at the Wollaston Unitarian church, Sunday, for the first time since the summer vacation.

The basket ball season is near at hand, and from present indications there will be plenty of this sport in town this winter.

The base ball games announced for this afternoon will probably be called off on account of the wet condition of the ground.

Mrs. John F. Gilbert will occupy her house on Chestnut street vacated this week by H. G. O. Newcomb. Mr. Newcomb lived there twenty years.

Work has started on a new house on Bigelow street, at the corner of Cherry avenue, for Mrs. Hunt, mother of John F. Hunt.

The fines imposed on the South Quincy gang by the court will probably be a lesson to many to be a little less forcible in their celebration next Fourth.

Granite Shipments.

Returns from the three railroad terminals for the month of August, shows that while business has apparently been quiet the amount of granite shipped compares favorably with the previous month. In July the total shipments by rail amounted to 15,007,480 pounds. In August the amount shipped was 14,328,590 pounds. Of this amount 7,164,995 pounds was sent from West Quincy; 5,179,845 pounds from South Quincy, and 1,983,750 pounds via Quarry railroad.

A Fine Musician.

Mr. George Monk has begun the season at the Tremont Theatre, making his 24th year in the Tremont orchestra. A very commendable record.

A Great Forest Belt.

The northern belt of forests is perhaps greater in extent than all the other timber belts and reserves of Canada combined. It extends from the eastern coast of Labrador north of the fiftieth parallel in a northwesterly direction to Alaska, a distance of some 3,000 miles, with an average width of perhaps 500 miles.

How High Birds Fly.

Balloonists say that birds' flight is limited to 1,315 feet above the surface of the earth.

Rameses.

The greatest builder in the world is depicted in a well preserved statue in the British museum. Despite the wonders of modern architecture and building construction there is no question who deserves this title. His name is of course Rameses and his immortal work the pyramids.

Catarrh

Is a constitutional disease.

It originates in a scrofulous condition of the blood and depends on that condition.

It often causes headache and dizziness, impairs the taste, smell and hearing, affects the vocal organs, disturbs the stomach.

It is always radically and permanently cured by the blood-purifying, alterative and tonic action of

Hood's Sarsaparilla

This great medicine has wrought the most wonderful cures of all diseases depending on scrofula or the scrofulous habit.

HOOD'S PILLS are the best cathartic.

ANIMALS WITH HANDS.

How the Kangaroos Use Their Forefeet In Eating.

Kangaroos use their hands very readily to hold food in and to put it into their mouths. As their fore legs are so short that they have to browse in a stooping position, they seem pleased when able to secure a large bunch of cabbage or other vegetable provender and to hold it in their hands to eat. Sometimes the young kangaroo, looking out of its mother's pouch, catches one or two of the leaves which the old one drops, and the pair may be seen each nibbling at the salad held in their hands, one, so to speak, "one floor" above the other. The slow, deliberate clasping and unclasping of a chameleon's feet look like the movements which the hands of a sleep walker might make were he trying to creep downstairs. The chameleon's are almost deformed hands, yet they have a superficial resemblance to the feet of parrots, which more than other birds use their feet for many of the purposes of a hand when feeding. To see many of the smaller rodents—ground squirrels, prairie dogs and marmots—hold food, usually in both paws, is to learn a lesson in the dexterous use of hands without thumbs. Nothing more readily suggests the momentary impression that a pretty little monkey is "a man and a brother" than when he stretches out his neat little palm, fingers and thumb, and, with all the movements proper to the civilized mode of greeting, insists on shaking hands.

The Boston and Maine Railroad.

President Lucuis Tuttle, of the Boston and Maine railroad, returned from Europe last month, to face the largest August business in the history of this well managed corporation. He is to be congratulated upon the development of this property since he came to its head. Here is an instance where individuality counts in a large sense. Lucius Tuttle has done great things for this railroad. There is loyalty to President Tuttle from the most humble to the best paid employee, and all feel that they will get just and patient treatment from the president. The Boston and Maine railroad is a model corporation in the two great essentials —caring for the public and for its employees. To think that the enormous August passenger business was possible without a serious accident of any kind shows the splendid system now governing the B. & M.—Lynn Review.

The Renewal a Strain.

Vacation is over. Again the school bell rings at morning and at noon, again with tens of thousands the hardest kind of work has begun, the renewal of which is a mental and physical strain to all except the most rugged. The little girl that a few days ago had roses in her cheeks, and the little boy whose lips were then so red you would have insisted that they had been "kissed by strawberries," have already lost something of the appearance of health. Now is a time when many children should be given a tonic, which may avert much serious trouble, and we know of no other so highly to be recommended as Hood's Sarsaparilla, which strengthens the nerves, perfects digestion and assimilation, and aids mental development by building up the whole system.

A CURIOUS TREE.

One of Nature's Queer Products That Are Found In Africa.

The Welwitschia mirabilis is a wonder of the vegetable kingdom. It grows on the barren land of the western side of Africa, where rain is almost unknown and the only moisture is that from dews which fall at night. This plant was discovered in 1860 by Dr. Welwitsch, an eminent scientific traveler. The welwitschia is a tree which lives for many years, many specimens being estimated as more than 100 years old.

Every year of its life increases its size, yet it never grows higher. Rising just above the ground this strange plant, looking like a rough round table, regularly enlarges by adding concentric layers to its circumference. The flat upper surface of the trunk is very hard and dark, resembling in color and texture the crust of an overbaked loaf. The trunk attains the size of from fourteen to eighteen feet in circumference, but is never more than a few inches above the ground.

The welwitschia is remarkable in the fact that it never loses its first two leaves and never gets any more. These leaves increase in size year after year until they attain the length of six or eight feet or more. They are flat and leathery and frequently split into numerous straps.

KEEPING WELL.

It Is Better and More Economical Than Getting Well.

I have often been horrified by finding people at Carlsbad or Marienbad or some other of these severe water cures who had come there simply on their own initiative and without any medical advice. This is really tampering with one's constitution.

I am coming to the conclusion in recent years that it is better to trust to air and to exercise than to waters for the renewal of the physical system. Since I have taken to golf I find so much improvement in my health that I no longer pine, as I used to do, for the water cure. But there again every man must judge for himself. If a man has too profound a love for the pleasures of the table it is almost a necessity for him to go to one of those places where the system seems to get a thoroughly complete washout.

But if a man be of moderate appetite and be able to keep himself well under control even when temptation is great, then he has no reason for going to Homburg or Carlsbad or Marienbad. He had better seek good mountain air, play golf and keep out of doors.—London M. A. P.

OUR FINGER NAILS.

Method by Which They Are Formed and How They Grow.

The nail is a special modification of the cuticle, the superficial cells being harder, more horny and more firmly adherent to each other than in the proper skin. The deep layer of the skin is peculiarly modified to form the bed of the nail, is highly vascular, and is studded with almost parallel ridges, the true skin overlapping the sides and root of the nail, which fits into the groove, as a watch glass into its rim. The surfaces of all these ridges are covered with growing cells which, as they flatten and change into horn, form one solid curved plate, the nail.

Nails grow both in thickness and length. The increase in thickness is caused by the formation of nerve cells on the bed of the nail; the increase in length, through the formation of new folds at the hinder part of the bed. The nail, thus constantly receiving additions from below and from behind, is slowly pushed forward over its bed till it projects beyond the end of the finger and is cut off at intervals or worn away.

A Curious Oath.

The following curious oath was until recently administered in the courts of the Isle of Man: "By this book and by the holy contents thereof and by the wonderful works that God has miraculously wrought in heaven above and in the earth beneath in six days and seven nights I do swear that I will, without respect of favor or friendship, love or gain, consanguinity or affinity, envy or malice, execute the laws of this isle justly between our sovereign lord the king and his subjects within this isle and between party and party as indifferently as the herring's backbone doth lie in the middle of the fish."

Burns' Best Poem.

It is said that a boy was once asked in the poet's presence which of Burns' works he liked best. After taking thought with himself for a little he declared that he liked the "Cotter's Saturday Night" by far the best, "although," he added, "it made me greet (cry) when my father bade me read it to my mither."

This statement seemed to impress Burns, for presently he said to the lad, "Weel, my callant (boy), it made me greet, too, more than once when I was writing it by my father's fireside."

Missed a Few.

"Yes," said the clerk at the Skinnem house, "we have 1,800 servants."

"Well," said the departing guest, "I must have overlooked four or five. I'm quite sure I haven't tipped that many." —Pittsburg Post.

BRAINTREE.

The King's Daughters are planning a grand entertainment and sale for October.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Elliot of Tremont street are entertaining Mr. Elliot's parents of Newport, R. I.

The sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be observed at the Union church next Sunday, Sept. 11, immediately after the preaching service.

At the home of Mr. H. B. Whitman a family gathering was throroughly enjoyed on Monday. His grounds face Sunset lake. On the hill tents were spread and a large party were served a substantial lunch.

The Ladies' Aid of the M. E. church gave an excellent fifty-cent clam chowder dinner in the vestry Friday noon, charging the small sum, twenty cents. There were many present.

Puritan lodge No. 179, I. O. O. F. will work the first degree next Tuesday night on one candidate. A full attendance would be appreciated.

Antietam camp 32, S. of V., auxiliary observe their third anniversary next Monday evening in G. A. R. hall. An invitation has been extended the S. of V., G. A. R., W. R. C., and the auxiliaries at Quincy, East Weymouth, Whitman, and Brockton, to participate with them in celebrating the event.

The picnic of the G. A. R. at Great pond on Labor day was well attended. Mr. Drollett was engaged to attend to the getting of the members to the grove and two large barge loads went from South Braintree square. Many more joined at the picnic grounds.

Mrs. George Stevens of Tremont street spent several days of last week at Somerset, Mass., attending the meeting of the Grange of which she is a prominent member.

Master Elisha Parker of Hancock street is in the Children's hospital, Columbus avenue, Boston. The operation was of a serious nature but hopes of a speedy recovery are entertained.

Rev. E. C. Stover conducted the funeral of James McGouch of Brockton, formerly of South Braintree, Tuesday, and accompained the remains to the family lot in Woodlawn cemetery, Everett.

The funeral of Mr. Samuel Vinton Arnold was held Wednesday at 2 o'clock at the First church, Braintree. He was 73 years old and a former resident of South Braintree, but for several years had made his home in New Hampshire. His wife will remain in Braintree for some time.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Cunningham and daughter returned to their New York home Friday after a month's visit with relatives in Brockton and Braintree.

One of the most enjoyable festivities of Labor day in this town was the reunion of the family of Deacon Whitman at his attractive home on Pond street. Deacon Whitman has always conscientiously followed the maxim, "Train up a youth in the way he should go, and in maturer age he will not depart from it;" and the teaching and example in temperance, honesty and all virtues that characterize a christian home have borne fruit hundred fold, and he and his estimable wife are justified in regarding with pride their family circle.

The old time Braintrees will play this season's Braintrees on French's common this afternoon. While it is expected there will be lots of fun it is believed that there will be considerable good ball playing mixed in.

On Wednesday of this week the 9.07 South Shore train carried a party from the Methodist Ladies' Aid to spend the day with Mr. and Mrs. Warren Dickinson at their home in Scituate Center. The Rev. and Mrs. Legg, Mrs. Heath, Hale, Hollis, Belcher, Cook, Chandler and Miss King made up the party and all found the old-time welcome from their genial host and hostess.

The social and entertainment given by Puritan lodge to the members and their families last Tuesday night proved a success and an enjoyable evening was spent. The entertainment consisted of vocal and instrumental music and several addresses by the members, closing with a dance. During the evening ice cream and cake were served.

It is conceded that the First Norfolk Senatorial District is entitled to the new member on the board of County Commissioners. The Republicans will present the name of the associate county commissioner, John Everett of Canton, for promotion to that office. No one is more popular with the workingmen, farmers, soldiers, sailors and sons of veterans than Mr. Everett. His promotion is well earned and his nomination is equivalent to an election.

An alarm of fire was sounded from Box 26 at 2.20 Thursday afternoon for a stubborn blaze in the woods owned by Henry A. Johnson in the rear of his residence on Quincy avenue. The fire had been raging for some time and it was not until the residences on Shaw street were in danger that the call was rung in. The department quickly responded and in a little over an hour the all-out was sounded.

Mr. H. Philips of Quincy has lately placed a boat in Little pond. Although other ponds were as near to him he prefered Sunset lake. The townspeople perhaps do not appreciate the beauties of this sheet of water.

The East Norfolk Christian Endeavor societies held a picnic Labor day afternoon in the Mayflower park chapel.

Frank Russ Arnold has returned from his trip aboard and will soon resume his labors in the Utah University, Salt Lake City.

Master Frederick W. Burrows observed his fourth birthday on Wednesday, by inviting a few of his little friends to tea. Frederick was well remembered with gifts, conspicuous among them being a birthday cake, holding four candles and a "surprise pie," which were enjoyed by the little folks at supper time.

The will of Amos W. Stetson, late of Braintree, was allowed at probate court this week, and William A. Stetson appointed executor and trustee. Bonds of $600,000 were required.

Rev. E. C. Stover will deliver a sermon on "What Jonah Saw in the Whale," at the Baptist church tomorrow evening at seven o'clock.

The second annual field day of the members of the St. Francis' church which was held on French's common on Monday was socially a success and it is hoped when full returns are received that it will not fall far below the great financial success of last year.

The funeral of Mr. Charles I. Craibe, who past away at the Soldiers' Home, Togus, Maine, was held from the chapel of the Weymouth cemetery Wednesday afternoon, Rev. Frank B. Cressy officiating. The deceased was a veteran of the civil war and a member of the 42 regt. Mass. infantry. A delegation from post 58 under command of Oliver Houghton, P. C., escorted the body to its final resting place. For many years he was a resident of Hayward street and well known throughout the village.

—Hon. Peter T. Fallon has withdrawn from the Legislative contest and is looking for something higher.

Socialist Caucuses.

The Socialists of the City of Quincy are requested to meet in caucus in their respective wards, on for the purpose of electing delegates to the State, County, Councillor, District Attorney and Senatorial Conventions, also to nominate a candidate for representative in Congress from the 10th district, and to nominate two representatives for the General Court from this fifth Norfolk District.

Caucuses are called and will be held under the provisions of Chapter eleven of the Revised Laws and Acts in amendment and addition thereto.

Nomination papers may be obtained from the chairman or secretary of Socialist City Committee. All nomination papers must be filed with the Secretary at basement of Hancock Hall, Quincy, between TUESDAY, Sept. 13, at 7.30 P. M. and THURSDAY, Sept. 15, at 5 P. M.

The Wards are entitled to the following delegates: State,—Ward One, 2; Ward Two, 1; Ward Three, 2; Ward Four, 2; Ward Five, 1; Ward Six, 2. To all other conventions, Wards 1-2-4-5-6 have two each; Ward Three has 3.

Socialist City Committee,

Kuropatkin's Bedraggled Army Is Safe at Mukden

A LOSS OF 50,000 MEN

Three-Fifths of Those Who Fell In Battle Were Japanese--Review of the Battle of Liaoyang --Oyama's System of Moving and Handling Armies Indifferently Followed by Kuropatkin--Troops Have Endured Terrible Hardships

St. Petersburg, Sept. 10.—It seems to be definitely established that Field Marshal Oyama's tired troops practically abandoned on Wednesday the attempt to head off General Kuropatkin, and the latter's army has arrived safely at Mukden after frightful experiences in floundering through mud and mire. Some descriptions of the scenes along the line of retreat are almost incredible. They tell how the men lay down in the mud and slept in a drenching rain and without shelter.

It is evident that the last determined effort of the Japanese to bring Kuropatkin to bay was made on Tuesday, but the Russian commander-in-chief faced about, and two corps with artillery beat off the Japanese while the remainder of the troops continued the march to Mukden. After that the Japanese could only hang onto the flanks and try to shell the retreating columns from the hills. The outposts are still in contact, but they are not even exchanging shots.

A dispatch sent last night from Mukden describes the horrible plight of the tentless and shelterless soldiers. The detailed statement of Russian losses will approximate 20,000 against 30,000 for the Japanese.

The work of burying the dead was left to the Japanese, who were forced to attempt the task as a matter of self-preservation, but it was almost impossible. The awful rains handicapped the work of cremation on which the Japanese relied, and only shallow trench burials were possible under the circumstances. Not only is this work one of the greatest difficulty, but it is almost valueless from a sanitary point of view, the storms undoing it soon after it is accomplished.

The care of the wounded has taxed the hospitals to the utmost. One correspondent says that 12,000 wounded had passed through Mukden hospitals up to Sunday and only the most severe cases could be attended to by the nurses and surgeons. Many, therefore, had to be left to the rough, but well-meant, care of their comrades.

Now that the battle of Liaoyang belongs within the domain of history, officers of the general staff are more disposed to discuss some of the circumstances of the fight, although they still lack specific information, which makes it impossible for them to speak authoritatively on many points. General Kuropatkin's army at Liaoyang consisted of 200 battalions, 147 squadrons of cavalry and 700 guns, approximately 108,000 bayonets, 15,000 sabres and 10,000 gunners. Portions of two European corps and one Siberian corps had been left at Mukden, and a number of these reserves were brought into the fight.

The size of the Japanese army has not been definitely established, but its actual fighting force is supposed to have had a superiority in numbers of from 50,000 to 60,000 men, and a considerable superiority also in artillery.

One of the chief advantages possessed by Field Marshal Oyama, according to the Russian experts, consisted in the greater elasticity in movement and in handling, on account of the separation of the three respective armies of Generals Kuroki, Oku and Nodzu. Kuropatkin very late also introduced the same system, after a fashion, when he created the eastern and southern armies under the respective commands of Generals Ivanoff and Zaroubaieff, but these armies had not been acting independently for months, while the Japanese armies had been so acting.

On his arrival at the seat of war General Bilderling took over the command of General Ivanoff, who, though a seasoned and tried commander, familiar with his men, with the field of battle and with the tactics of the Japanese, had to give way to a man older in years, who possessed none of these advantages. The change in commanders at such a critical time is considered here to have been extremely unfortunate. Although it is admitted that the eastern army had to face Kuroki, who has earned a reputation as the most skilful of the Japanese leaders, the poor showing which it made in comparison with the southern army under Zaroubaieff might be attributed to this change of commanders, and the battle might have been won if Bilderling had been able to duplicate in the east the splendid fight which Zaroubaieff made against Oku.

Sleeping In Mud and Water

Mukden, Sept. 10.—Last evening around Mukden occurred the greatest downpour of rain of the whole campaign and with it a terrifying accompaniment of thunder and lightning. There was the greatest difficulty in preventing the cavalry stampeding by the double guards and all the horse lines were tied. Troops are sleeping exhausted in mud and water, indifferent to the weather if they can snatch much needed rest. One advantage is that the rain has entirely checked the movements of the Japanese eastern and southern armies—in fact quiet reigns over the whole front.

Trying to Create Revolution

St. Petersburg, Sept. 10.—Intense activity is being displayed by some anti-Russian revolutionary organizations abroad. Incendiary proclamations have been smuggled across the border and distributed broadcast, calling upon the population to take advantage of the government's preoccupation owing to the war to rise against the authorities and overthrow the autocracy.

Deserters From Russian Army

Ogdensburg, N. Y., Sept. 10.—Three Russian army deserters arrived here without funds or passports and were sent back to Canada. Several others who entered here and who are working as farmhands came well supplied with money. One Russian, who is still wearing a part of his army uniform, said that he deserted with an entire outpost of 50 men.

Important Railroad Deal

Pittsburg, Sept. 10.—A railroad deal affecting Pittsburg was closed in New York, when the Wabash interests, for the sum of $12,000,000, purchased the Pittsburg Terminal Railroad and Coal company, the West Side Belt road and its branches, including all the associated companies of the coal company. The purchase covers 15,000 acres of coal in fee simple, 1000 acres of surface land, seven mines and 36 miles of railroad, with valuable terminals in Pittsburg and Clairton.

Business Is Improving

New York, Sept. 10.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says that retail trade in fall lines of nearly all wearing apparel shows a healthy growth, and for hardware, household utensils and kindred lines there is a broader demand. The best development of the week was the resumption of work in many industries that have suffered through strikes, while several serious controversies were averted. Crop progress is better than average.

A Banker's Bad Predicament

New York, Sept. 10.—Dressed as a laborer and aimlessly asking passersby where he was, William Conlin, a rich banker and broken ox Telluride, Col., was taken in charge by the police last night and removed to a hospital. He is said to have come here from the west to consult an alienist. At the hospital he complained that some one had taken his good clothes and $8000 in money, but he could not remember the circumstances.

Boat Butted Into Bridge

New York, Sept. 10.—During a drive at top speed on the Harlem river, the new 70-foot motor boat Speedway was wrecked at an abutment of a railroad bridge. Charles L. Seabury, owner and designer of the boat, who was at the wheel, was thrown overboard by the force of the shock and was nearly drowned. Two tugs saved the motor boat from foundering, and a policeman in a rowboat rescued Seabury.

British Mission Fulfilled

Lahassa, Sept. 10.—Colonel Younghusband of the British mission and the Thibetan officials signed a formal treaty yesterday at Potala. Details of the terms of the treaty will be published later by the foreign office at Simla. The Dalai Lama is on his way into Mongolia, and the officials insist that his action amounts to abdication. The administration is now carried on by a council of regency.

Careless Jail Official

Glens Falls, N. Y., Sept. 10.—Three prisoners, named Case, Bettys and Sullivan, walked out of the Warren county jail last night, the under sheriff who took supper to the prisoners having left the outer door open. Case was one of the trio who dug through the jail wall last week, but after 10 days' wandering gave himself up. The three men were all awaiting indictment for burglary.

Confesses Dastardly Conspiracy

Topeka, Sept. 10.—B. F. Slagel, a deported negro miner, under arrest here for burglary, has confessed to complicity in the Independence depot and Vindicator mine explosions in the Cripple Creek district last June, by which 15 non-union miners were killed outright and others injured. Slagel implicates 12 other men. The confession was sworn to before a notary public.

Conductor and Engineer Blamed

Montreal, Sept. 10.—In the verdict of the coroner's jury rendered in the case of the collision on the Grand Trunk, in which a number of lives were lost, Conductor Atkinson and Engineer Swager were held responsible. The jurors were not prepared to say that the engineer and conductor were criminally negligent, however.

To Be Married at Berlin

Berlin, Sept. 10.—The wedding of Crown Prince Frederick William and the Duchess Cecilia of Mecklenburg-Schwerin will take place in Berlin, where the visiting members of royal families can be entertained better than at the bride's home. The marriage will probably take place early in the new year.

WOMAN'S WORLD

MRS. M. E. WENDEROTH.

She Is About the Most Versatile Woman In Chicago.

Mrs. Minnie E. Wenderoth, whose Chicago home is in Ravenswood, is probably the most versatile of womankind. She designs and models the most exquisite dreams of headwear and dainty shirt waists which are used as patterns for fashionable millinery and stylish suits, rivaling the best importations.

Besides this, if you please, the same woman, although scarcely five feet high and weighing hardly more than a hundred pounds, owns, manages and actually works a fruit farm in Michigan. And in addition to modeling styles and running farms she utilizes her time between Chicago and Michigan by acting as inspector on the boat, and an able inspector she is too.

Then, further, she is a real estate agent, sales agent for a Michigan furniture house and exclusive designer of pottery for an eastern manufacturer, for whom she is western representative. She handles her own business, buys and sells real estate, loans money and examines her own abstracts.

Mrs. Wenderoth is also a Sunday school teacher, a fine amateur photographer, a pianist of some account and often sings for charity entertainments. She sketches well, and one of her clever cartoons, "A Turkish Bath," occupies a prominent place in a Grand Rapids hotel. When she is not busy she writes poetry. Besides her farm in Michigan and her Ravenswood home Mrs. Wenderoth owns a pretty rose vined cottage in Los Angeles, Cal., and a 300 acre farm near Portland, Ore.—Chicago Tribune.

Simple Points In Cookery.

A few points for the American cook to remember if she is to emulate the gentle art of the French chef may not be found amiss.

Never make pie crust in a warm room and never mix it with a spoon, but with an ice cold knife. Use only ice water in moistening the pastry and shortening. The shortening should be cold and firm. Butter makes the best pastry. It is false economy to substitute anything else for it.

Bake pie crust in a very hot oven, not so hot that it will burn before the lower crust is done and yet hot enough to prevent the shortening from melting before it browns. If an oven is more or less slow the lard or butter will ooze out and make the dough a heavy mass. All pie crust should be thoroughly chilled just before it is put in the oven.

Never beat and stir whites of egg, but "whip" them in light, firm strokes. If the recipe calls for well whipped whites never use eggs that refuse to be whipped to a froth stiff enough to be cut with a knife. Too long a whipping of egg whites, however, will sometimes make them tough.

In boiling or steaming puddings never allow the water to stop bubbling for more than a moment. Have ready boiling water to pour immediately into the kettle when the water begins to boil down.

Selecting a Hat.

Let the woman who has prominent features think twice before she buys a hat that sets back or off the face. Such a woman should wear a hat brought well forward, her hair should be as fluffy as possible, and a becoming veil will do wonders. Sharp outlines in hats should also be avoided by her. Lace edges and indented brims are good.

If the features are irregular, a hat with a brim crushed here and there is usually a suitable setting. The woman with a prominent nose has much to contend with. Her hats should avoid severeness in outline and should be set well forward, so that the prominent feature will appear a little less in size. On the other hand, the woman with a small or flat nose should not wear a hat that projects sufficiently to make the nose appear even more insignificant, nor a large hat that dwarfs it.

A hat under medium in size and with small flowers or short tips or bows of moderate size should be worn. With a small face and features huge picture hats should never be worn, even if the figure be tall and slight enough to carry them.

The Art of Powdering.

The application of a harmless face powder is a decided beautifier to most complexions, but while the majority of girls use powder very few understand the art of applying it properly.

In the first place, the tint of the powder should be suited to the coloring. A very dark person using white or pink powder looks absurd. The tint called Rachel is intended for a brunette, while a blond will find pink or white the more becoming.

Never use powder because it is powder and you imagine it a necessary toilet adjunct.

To make powder adhere to the skin an application of skin food or cold cream is necessary. All surfaces of grease should then be wiped from the face and the powder dusted off with a puff.

Powder the forehead, chin and nose before touching the cheeks, and then so dust round the cheeks that a small circle is left practically untouched by the powder. This allows for a little deeper color to be seen in this particular spot and adds to the effect.

Homemade Baby Walker.

A convenient and inexpensive "baby walker" can be made at home from an old chair. Take out the perforated seat and cut off the back. Shorten the legs if necessary so that the edge of the frame will come just under the baby's arms when standing. Put small casters on the legs. Make a triangle (about fourteen inches on the edges) of ticking for the seat. Suspend this seat from the frame by three strong straps. Adjust the seat so that the child can just touch its feet when sitting astride of one strap. In this contrivance baby learns to use his feet without resting his full weight too soon and soon learns to propel his walker at his own sweet will, thus amusing himself many an hour when otherwise he would want to be "danced" on his feet. It saves mother's back as well, for it can be pushed from one room to another without taking baby out.

Household Disinfectants.

A duty of the housewife is to see that every inch of her home is freed as far as possible of any accumulation of sebaceous matter that will serve to breed millions of germs of all sorts. The cellar, the kitchen and the bathroom should be subjected to the searchlight of investigation; then to the cleansing of a liquid disinfectant. Soap is not always best; it is usually not properly rinsed off, where disease germs may thrive and multiply. Any respectable druggist can prepare a strong liquid disinfectant that may be used and will also give explicit directions as to quantity. It costs but little, can be kept on hand and applied daily. The bathtub should be washed all over; the bowl, etc. Carpets, rugs, etc., are made brighter by wiping with a weak germicidal solution once a week.

The Hips.

If one hip is larger than the other go to work to learn the cause. Do you stand with them uneven? It is said that you can even the hips by persistently standing with the low one thrown up, thus reversing the error. Do you carry articles or hold up your skirt always on one side? Change the habit. A famous physician ordered a pair of shoes made for a patient, one shoe having a cork sole which raised the low hip, and the result was that the hips became even, so that the patient returned to common shoes. You can easily try this.

Oil Bottles.

When you wish to use glass bottles which have contained oil for some other purpose and find it difficult to remove traces of the oil try the following: Fill the bottle with ashes and place it in cold water, which should be heated gradually till it boils. Let it boil for an hour, and let the bottle remain in the water until cold. Then wash it with soapsuds, rinsing in clear water.

Quick Toast.

An easy way to prepare toast is to use end pieces of bread loaves. Over them pour quickly boiling water, allowing it to run off, or use pure milk over the pieces. Slash the pieces, not severing the crust, and put butter in between the cuts, also on top. Then set all in the oven in a deep plate. By the time coffee, chocolate or tea is made the "easy toast" is done.

Looking Glasses.

To clean looking glasses you must first wash the glass all over with lukewarm soapsuds and a sponge. When dry rub it with a buckskin and a little prepared chalk, finely powdered. A splendid gloss may be also given to glasses by rubbing quickly with newspapers.

Skin Food.

A satisfactory skin food that will not induce hair to grow on the face is witch hazel cream made by heating one ounce each of white wax, spermaceti, lanolin and witch hazel together, then adding three ounces each of almond oil and rose water with one dram of tincture of benzoin.

One or two pairs of rubber gloves each month are an expense, of course, but two pairs a month will enable any one to have smooth hands and yet cook and wash dishes and scrub for a good part of each day.

Keep busy. Idleness is a great friend of age, but an enemy of youth. Regular employment and mental occupation are marvelous youth preservers.

Many housekeepers do not realize that filters need frequent cleansing and that a poor filter is worse than none.

To make cut glass sparkle it should be sprinkled with sawdust and then rubbed with chamois.

MANEUVERS ENDED

Victory Awarded to Both the Contending Armies

GOOD WORK BY BROWNS

Deployed In Woods, Waded Stream and Got In Position Within Twenty Yards Behind Blue Defenders

Gainesville, Va., Sept. 10.—The second maneuver problem ceased with General Bell, commanding the Brown army, demolishing General Grant, commanding the Blue army, east of Bull Run. This result awards victory to the attacking force in each of the two problems and makes Grant the first victor and Bell the second, so far as results can be estimated without bullets.

The maneuvering and fighting yesterday was far the most spectacular and exciting of the campaign. The first day of the second problem had developed nothing but a rear guard action on the part of Grant, while Bell had spent his time endeavoring to make a demonstration on the left wing or to the south of the Blue line.

During the night the situation was changed. Grant's main position remained the same, behind or to the east of Bull Run. He withdrew his First brigade under Wint, who had fought the rear guard action the day before, to the famous stone bridge across Bull Run, along whose eastern shores the trenches dug by the federal troops still remain and in which Grant posted Wint's line after it had been driven across the bridge with the loss of one brigade.

General Bell executed a magnificent march with the forces which the day before were on the left wing of his enemy. He drew them during the small hours of the night from the left to the right of Grant's position. When daylight came they were put across Bull Run at Sudley, or to the extreme north of the maneuver scene. His centre remained practically the same and fought a brigade action at Stone bridge.

It was here that the fighting of the day began. The Brown forces charged up to the bridge, which was constructively blown up, but were repulsed and ordered back. A second charge likewise did not meet the approval of the umpire, but the third was accompanied by a most brilliant action.

A part of the Brown forces, a section of the Ninth infantry, had deployed in the woods, gone downstream and waded across. They crept up on the east bank and got in position not 20 yards behind the Blue defenders, when the Eighth Massachusetts and Twelfth New York, who were making the charge on the west side, came up the third time. It did not take the umpires a second to rule out the entire Blue force at this point and the Brown army crossed the run at will.

In the meantime the force which had crossed to the north at Sudley had been coming down towards the pike. They struck Grant's line to the rear and the maneuver ended when this force appeared in a flanking movement on a Blue line which was facing a Brown line that had crossed at the stone bridge.

In summing up the situation, Colonel Wagner, chief umpire, gave the precise movement of each brigade during the night, after which he commented on the maneuver as follows:

"The Blue cavalry accomplished nothing during the day, General Bell having taken the precaution to change his base. Among the Blue regiments that lost most heavily in constructive killed or captured were the South Carolina, the Alabama and the Florida regiments. The withdrawal of General Grant to a defensive position east of Bull Run was effected most skilfully.

"General Bell's plan of action was an able one. Menacing the left flank of the Blue, he had a long, prompt night march, by which he placed himself on the enemy's right flank in a way that promised brilliant result. What the result would have been in actual warfare it is impossible to say. The Blue right was badly shattered, but Price's brigade was still intact and immediately available for support. Reinforcements could have been drawn from the brigade of Frost. Whether the frontal attack across Bull Run would have been sufficient to hold these two brigades in check, or whether the brigades in question would themselves have been carried away in the general rush, it is idle to speculate."

In relinquishing command of the maneuver force, General Corbin issued a general order expressing his approval of the work done by each commander and the force under him.

Over $1,500,000 Loss by Fire

Progreso, Mex., Sept. 10.—A fierce fire which raged unchecked all day wiped out an entire block of business houses occupied by firms engaged in the general merchandise business. The loss is estimated at from $1,000,000 to $1,200,000, with but little insurance.

Trust of Vast Proportions

New York, Sept. 10.—Directors of the American Tobacco company, the Consolidated Tobacco company and the Continental Tobacco company have called meetings of the stockholders of the three organizations for Sept. 30 next, at which plans will be made for a consolidation of the three concerns into one corporation. The earnings of the three companies it is proposed to merge amounted to about $22,000,000 in 1903.

California Forests Ablaze

San Francisco, Sept. 10.—Forest fires are doing great damage in several sections of California. Thousands of acres of land have been swept by flames and many houses have been destroyed. Some of the largest and finest redwood trees in the state seem doomed to destruction, though hundreds of men are fighting the fires. None of the fires are yet under control and no estimate of the total loss can be made.

Miners Give Up the Contest

Zanesville, O., Sept. 10.—After an idleness of nearly six months, 2000 coal miners have declared off the strike which was begun because of a request that they accept a greater reduction than that contained in the Indianapolis convention agreement. The miners have lost $320,000 in wages and the operators about $2,000,000 income since the suspension of work. The miners will resume work Monday.

Terms of L Road Settlement

New York, Sept. 10.—A written contract covering the conditions agreed to by officials of the Interborough Rapid Transit company and representatives of the unions of all classes of employes on the elevated road prohibits the motormen from striking in the next three years. The motormen are to receive $3.50 a day for 10 hours' work, instead of for the nine-hour day which they demanded.

Met Deserved Fate Legally

Charlotte, N. C., Sept. 10.—Jesse Allen, a negro, was legally executed at Oxford, N. C., for criminally assaulting a little girl. The hanging was private.

Wheeling, Sept. 10.—George Williams, the negro who waylaid and criminally assaulted Laura Knade, was hanged at the state prison last evening. He never lost his nerve and declared to the last his innocence.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Judge S. A. Kingman, the first chief justice of Kansas, died at Topeka. He was one of the most prominent Kansas pioneers and was a native of Massachusetts.

In a letter to the trustees of Pembroke (N. H.) academy, Mrs. H. W. Potter of Portsmouth has offered to furnish a room in the new school library building, provide $1000 for new books and donate a bond of $1000 in memory of her late husband.

The keel of a new North German Lloyd line steamer has been laid at Stettin, which in size and speed is designed to surpass the new turbine steamers of the Cunard line.

Within the next few days a test will be made at the United States naval proving grounds of a new form of smokeless powder. The change in the smokeless powder used in the navy was directed in view of the numerous serious accidents aboard ship.

With the payment of the recently declared semi-annual dividend of 2 percent on the first preferred stock of the Reading company the voting trust of the corporation was dissolved. Its affairs will in future be in the hands of the shareholders.

Which End of You Is Uppermost?

By Mrs. FRANK LESLIE

EVERY stick has two ends.

So has every fact and every truth. So has every trait and every action, and it is one of the most amusing diversions to find out what the other end looks like.

NOTHING IN THE WORLD IS SO INTERESTING TO A MAN AS HIS OWN SELF. I know a very handsome man who has an album filled with pictures of himself at different ages and in different costumes and who declares, with a somewhat brutal frankness, that it is to him by far the most interesting collection of pictures the world could produce.

Another man, far from handsome, but very bright, cynically proclaims that he lives to the glory and for the advancement of Mephistopheles or Iago or by whatever name you choose to supply his real name.

Well, then, granted that the most captivating study of mankind is himself, I WILL SUGGEST TO MY FRIENDS PINING FOR AMUSEMENT THE LITTLE GAME OF HUNTING UP "THE OTHER END" OF THEIR OWN PET VIRTUES, and if they have any faults or can get some friend to point out one or two they may solace themselves by discovering that every fault has its alternative virtue.

For instance, our friend M. I., who lives for his own glory and advantage, is only the other end of the man who lives to spread abroad some great discovery and advantage to the world, which becomes incidentally glory and advantage to himself.

The "lovely woman who stoops to folly" for love's sake is one who is HOLDING THE SCEPTER OF WOMANHOOD BY THE WRONG END and misusing the noble virtue of love and self sacrifice. The lawyer who sells his gift of eloquence and defends the criminal who pays him is only holding by the wrong end that weapon which is mightier than sword or pen—the tongue of the ready speaker.

When you ran and helped grandmamma up the steps and seated her so prettily in the easy chair and brought her some tea and waited upon her, as she said, "like an angel," it was very filial and sweet and affectionate and dear, wasn't it? At any rate, you felt yourself very good while you did it and were not surprised at her praise and petting, but didn't you know, in the depths of your deceitful little heart, that a nice young man was looking on and that he declares sweetness, docility and domesticity a woman's chiefest of charms?

NOW COMES THE LITTLE GAME. THAT ACTION HAD TWO ENDS, ONE OF THEM ALL ABLOOM WITH THE FAIR LILIES OF WOMANLY VIRTUE AND THE OTHER CARVED INTO THE SIMILITUDE OF A GRINNING IMP OF FALSEHOOD AND PRETENSE. WHICH END REALLY WAS UPPERMOST?

A queer thing about this is that very often we see one end of the staff while the world cries out at the other. Did you never find yourself blushing and ashamed at praise and laudation and popularity bestowed most lavishly upon some action which the world considers very self denying and generous when YOUR OWN CONSCIENCE told you the motive was to gain this very laudation or perhaps money or position or some other price?

And were you never astonished and grieved at finding yourself accused of just these same base motives when really you had for once lost sight of tiresome self and been working purely and simply for other people?

WELL, IT WAS IN BOTH CASES BECAUSE THE WORLD GOT HOLD OF THE WRONG END OF THE STICK, WHILE YOU KNEW MORE ACCURATELY WHICH END YOU REALLY HELD.

America Has Too Many Women Teachers

By Rev. HERBERT B. GRAY, Warden of Bradfield College, England

I AM credibly informed by the master of a well known secondary school in New York that not more than 7 per cent of the male teachers stay in the profession more than five years, and not more than 5 per cent make it their life's vocation. The result is that even in the secondary schools in the cities THERE HAVE BEEN A GRADUAL DWINDLING AND ELIMINATION OF MEN TEACHERS AND AN UNHEALTHY PREPONDERANCE OF WOMEN TEACHERS.

I think that it is not straining a point to say that THE PREPONDERANCE OF FEMALE TEACHERS in the higher or secondary schools—I say of set purpose preponderance and not presence—HAS AN EFFEMINATING EFFECT ON THE CHARACTER OF AMERICAN BOYHOOD.

There is a tendency for women teachers when dealing with boys of such advanced age TO INSTILL UNCONSCIOUSLY, NO DOUBT, SENTIMENTAL VIEWS OF FACTS rather than to derive the principles of conduct from them.

What Our Navy Should Be

By the Hon. PAUL MORTON, Secretary of the Navy

THE NAVY OF THE UNITED STATES OUGHT TO BE A FIRST CLASS FIGHTING MACHINE. IT OUGHT TO BE THE MOST FORMIDABLE ONE IN EXISTENCE. Its military efficiency must receive the most watchful care, and after the proper ships and weapons have been provided it should be the study of those in charge to see that the ships are handled right.

There should be unlimited maneuvering and target practice, that the gunners may shoot straight, while AN ESPRIT DE CORPS FROM THE ADMIRAL DOWN TO THE TAR SHOULD BE THE ACME OF CO-OPERATION.

NOTES ABOUT TOWN.

Communion will be observed Sunday morning at the Wollaston Congregational church.

Charles F. Haven has been appointed administrator of the estate of Sarah J. Haven late of Wollaston.

The meetings of the Wollaston W. C. T. U. will be resumed Tuesday, Sept. 13, at 2.30, with Mrs. E. A. Sprague, 346 Belmont street.

The pastor will preach at the Washington Street church, Sunday, and the Lord's Supper will be celebrated in connection with the morning service.

Administration was granted at probate court this week on the estate of Julia A. Mitchell, late of Quincy, to William F. Merritt of Boston; bond $10,000.

The Boston Bicycle club started yesterday on its annual "wheel around the Hub," spending last night at the Massapoag Lake hotel at Canton. Today the trip was continued to the South Shore, returning to Boston tonight and ... Sunday.

... Landis Snyder, our well ... supervisor of music, has opened his ... studio for business again at 1632 ... Hancock street and will receive a limited number of pupils in voice culture. A specialty of which he has made a great success. His advertisement appears in another column.

THE MEDITERRANEAN.

Although Called a Tideless Sea, Its Water Rises and Falls.

Why are there no tides in the Mediterranean? asks a reader. As a matter of fact, there are tides in the Mediterranean. The general rise and fall are, however, so insignificant, owing to the comparatively small area and the mass of water involved, as to have escaped detection until scientific methods were brought to bear, and hence the Mediterranean has come popularly to be looked upon as a tideless sea.

A similar want of knowledge and experience of tidal phenomena cost Caesar the loss of most of his fleet on his invasion of Britain in 55 B. C., when his vessels were dashed to pieces upon the coast.

At Algiers a self recording tide gauge was set up by Aime, and from its records he deduced a rise and fall of eighty-eight millimeters, or three and one-half inches, at springtide and half that amount at neap tide, a fluctuation which would escape ordinary observation, as it would be masked by the effects of atmospheric disturbance.

At Venice and in the upper reaches of the Adriatic the true lunisolar tide seems to be more accentuated than at other parts, but here also its effects are subordinate to those of the wind. —London Answers.

Suicide by Asphyxiation

Manchester, N. H., Sept. 10.—Howard Offutt, aged 55, unmarried, committed suicide last evening. He was found upright in a chair with his feet in another and with the tube from a gas stove tied about his neck. The end had been placed in his mouth and the gas turned on full.

Irish Leader Visits the Hub

Boston, Sept. 10.—John E. Redmond, M. P., and his party arrived in this city last evening. A reception committee greeted the visitors at the depot. As soon as Redmond reached the hotel he was handed checks aggregating $1100, a contribution to the Irish fund.

Stowaways Ordered Deported

Boston, Sept. 10.—Three stowaways who came over on the Philadelphia from Antwerp were ordered deported yesterday. They embarked at Antwerp, crawling into one of the coal holds, whence they were pulled out by the crew, looking like negroes.

Earthquake Came With Eclipse

Guayaquil, Ecuador, Sept. 10.—Guayaquil was almost in complete darkness from 4 to 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon on account of a solar eclipse, which was preceded by a slight earthquake shock. At a few minutes before 5 the sun reappeared.

Train Wreck Killed Four

Monroe, N. C., Sept. 10.—A train, consisting of an express car, a mail car, two day coaches and a Pullman sleeper, was derailed at a trestle 22 miles from here, resulting in the death of four persons and the injuring of 35 others. There is evidence of a malicious attempt to wreck the train, a number of joints having been found disjointed.

Insured for $2,000,000

L. Rodman Wanamaker, son of John Wanamaker, the eminent merchant of New York and Philadelphia, has taken out a policy in

The Prudential Insurance Co.

for $1,000,000, paying an annual premium of over $30,000. This makes him the most heavily insured man in the world, with the single exception of King Edward VII.

Mr. Wanamaker's total insurance is now $2,000,000.

Ask yourself WHY Mr. Wanamaker placed one-half this great amount with The Prudential.

Your business judgment will at once reply: "Because after full investigation and comparison, Mr. Wanamaker found that the company which could give him the best insurance for a given amount of money was The Prudential."

Undoubtedly you will agree that Mr. Wanamaker does not pay over $30,000 per year except for most excellent reasons.

These reasons apply to YOU precisely as well as they do to HIM.

AMERICAN NAMES.

Robert Louis Stevenson Was Impressed by Their Beauty.

Robert Louis Stevenson spoke in his own attractive way of the nomenclature of the states, towns and rivers of our land thus: "And when I asked the name of a river from the brakeman and heard it was called the Susquehanna the beauty of the name seemed to be part and parcel of the beauty of the land. As when Adam with divine fitness named the creatures, so the word Susquehanna was at once accepted by the fancy. That was the name, as no other could be, for that shining river and desirable valley.

"None can care for literature in itself who does not take a special pleasure in the sound of names, and there is no part of the world where nomenclature is so rich, poetic, humorous and picturesque as the United States of America. All times, races and languages have brought their contribution. Pekin is in the same state with Euclid, with Bellefontaine and Sandusky; Chelsea with its London association of red brick, Sloan square, and the King's Road is own suburb to stately and primeval Memphis.

"The names of the states and territories themselves form a chorus of sweet and most romantic vocables—Delaware, Ohio, Indiana, Florida, Iowa, Wyoming, Minnesota and the Carolinas; there are few poems with a nobler music for the ear; a songful, tuneful land, and if the new Homer shall arise from the western continent his verse will be enriched, his pages ring spontaneously, with the names of states and cities that would strike the fancy in a business circular."—Savannah News.

A GRAND OLD SAVAGE.

Poultney Bigelow, writing before the Boer war, gave a very interesting impression of ex-President Kruger. "The president of the South African Republic," he wrote, "is indeed a grand old savage from one point of view and a noble statesman from another. He is theoretically the first citizen of the most democratic community, yet in practice he surrounds himself with a tawdry splendor that would shock many a crowned head of Europe. When I first had the honor of meeting this anachronistic phenomenon he was drinking coffee and throwing out a cloud of strong tobacco smoke, but a still stronger volume of violent language, emphasized by the thumping of his massive fist upon the table. The room in which he received was crowded with long haired, full bearded and stolid featured fellow burghers, who reminded me partly of Russian priests, partly of Californian miners and partly of certain alleged portraits of the apostles. I feared that I had unwittingly interrupted a cabinet meeting, but later it turned out that this was Mr. Kruger's usual 'at home.' When the president is not at his office he delights in nothing so much as entertaining his countrymen with coffee, tobacco and political proverbs. He harangues his visitors with the voice of a bull in distress, and they like it. He governs by personal contact and spoken parables, and it is his boast that he knows personally every citizen of his republic."

An Old Time Rip Van Winkle.

The learned John Stow, known as the "London Antiquary," records the following: "April 27, 1546, was Tuesday in Easter week, and on that day William Foxley, potmaker of the mint, fell asleep, and he continued sleeping, and he could not be wakened with pinching, cramping or burning whatsoever until the first day of term, which was fourteen days and fifteen nights after his sleep began. The causes of this extraordinary sleep could not be known, although the same were diligently searched for after by the king's physician and many other learned men. He lived for forty years after he recovered."

Not to Be Wasted.

Mr. Bascomb was as firm about politics as about everything else. He made a boast that nobody could change his views when once they were formed, and it was true.

"But, father, suppose they don't even suggest having Liph Godding for representative?" pleaded Mr. Bascomb's son after a painful half hour of argument. "I don't believe anybody but you has thought of him."

"If they don't have Liph Godding for representative," said Mr. Bascomb calmly, "I shall winter my vote, that's all."—Youth's Companion.

Domestic Economy.

Mr. Younghubbe—Don't you think, my dear, that you are cooking twice as much as we shall need? Mrs. Younghubbe (artlessly)—I am doing it on purpose, darling. Tomorrow I want to try some of those "Hints For Housekeepers—How to Make Dainty Dishes From What Was Left Over From Yesterday."

Then Chaos.

"Why, Mary," said her mistress, "I told you to make up my room an hour ago, and here it is in terrible disorder."

"Yis, mum, and I did," said Mary, "but the master came in to put on a clean collar, mum, and he lost the stud."

The Impossible.

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS.

PARK THEATRE.

Boston's theatrical season has started out with a most emphatic comedy triumph and at the Park Theatre Ezra Kendall is testing the capacity nightly with latest and best success entitled "Weatherbeaten Benson." To say that this is funnier and more delightful in every respect than "The Vinegar Buyer" is warm praise, but that seems to be the verdict of every theatregoer who has witnessed the production since it was first seen here on Labor Day. Mr. Kendall has taken a long step forward with his newest impersonation and by general consensus of opinion is now fully entitled to the position on the American stage which has never been filled since the death of the late Sol. Smith Russell. Liebler & Co. have staged "Weatherbeaten Benson" with great liberality and the scenes are wonderfully picturesque and carry the spectator to the region in the Indian Territory where flowers around and where all nature is especially charming.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

The chief item of note in connection with the Keith vaudeville for the week of Sept. 12 is the announcement that it will bring to a close the long and successful summer engagement of the Fadettes women's orchestra. For the last week a program of selections from the most popular music played during the past five months will be given. It is understood that the numerous friends and admirers of the orchestra are preparing to give them a "send off" similar to that which marked the closing week of last season. The surrounding variety bill includes: Fred Herbert's troupe of dogs,just over from Europe; Brandow and Wiley, a couple of lively "real coons" comedians, singers and dancers; Mr. and Mrs. Gardner Crane, in their farcical sketch, "Am I Your Wife," one of the best things of the kind done in vaudeville; Rice and Prevost, two of the cleverest and most amusing acrobatic comedians in America, and the famous Sandor trio of acrobats. Charles Hawtrey, the noted English actor, is underlined for the week of Sept. 19.

TREMONT THEATRE.

Boston has never had a more pronounced theatrical success than the new Ade-Luders' opera "The Sho-Gun," which began its third week at the Tremont Monday evening. Since the opening night the theatre has been packed at every performance, and the enthusiasm of the audiences leaves no room for doubt as to the popular success of this attraction. "The-Sho Gun" is conceded to be the most magnificiently mounted production that Henry W. Savage ever has offered Boston play goers, and the piece is sure to enjoy unlimited prosperity throughout the remainder of its engagement. George Ade's bright, witty, satirical lines seem even better after hearing them two or three times. The work he has done in the new opera is of the sort that will live, and the public evidently appreciates the efforts of everyone connected with the attraction to make it touch a higher artistic plane than is common in the musical entertainments of today. Gustav Luders' music is conceded to be the best he has written. The score is tuneful throughout and a number of his ensembles, particularly the one in the finale of the first act, are stirring and inspiring. Boston has never seen prettier stage pictures and groupings than George Marion, Mr. Savage's general stage director, has arraigned in the new opera. Announcement comes that the engagement of "The Sho-Gun" is a limited one.

MAJESTIC THEATRE.

Wright Lorimer will begin a six weeks' engagement at the Majestic theatre, Boston, on Monday, October 3d, in the much discussed Biblical romantic drama, "The Shepherd King." This is said to be the largest and most beautiful theatrical production ever made,—no less than eight cars being required to transport company and production. The drama deals with the career of young David from the time he was tending the flocks until he became king, and never fails to be interesting in unfolding the marvelous rise of David and the gradual undoing of Saul. Scenically "The Shepherd King" is of marvelous beauty. The first act shows the home of David, the shepherd boy, near Bethlebem; the second act, the camp of Saul in the Vale of Elah; the third, the palace of Saul at Gibeah; and the fourth, which is in two scenes, the cave of the Witch of Endor, and a court adjoining the palace at Gibeah.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

The management of the Castle Square theatre announce as next week's attraction at this play house the world famous drama "L'Article 47" a play that has perhaps been discussed in dramatic circles more than any other known to the stage of today. It was Clara Morris who established this play in America and her presentation of Cora,its leading character, made this great artist the subject of comment by reason of the fidelity with which she depicted its remarkable characteristics. Miss Morris made some changes in the play as it came from the hands of the French dramatist, Belot, and it is this version which will be given by the Castle Square company. "L'Article 47" is announced for only a single week and the usual distribution of souvenir boxes of chocolate bonbons will be made at the Monday matinee.

CHICKERING HALL.

Instead of death being the end, it is merely the beginning in the unique production of "Beyond," which will be seen for the first time at Chickering hall in Boston on Thursday evening, Sept. 29th. There is but one scene in "Beyond" laid on earth. All the others are in spheres between heaven and earth. The drama tells in what is said to be the most exquisite imagery the story of the soul's flight, and, with the exception of the first scene, all the characters are immortals.

$100 Reward, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Restful Mattresses.

Just think, people everywhere trying to get enjoyment and comfort out of this life, and the queer thing about it all is, that very few start in the right place.

There isn't any money that will bring such rest and comfort to tired folks as the money you spend for one of our famous Cotton Felt Mattresses.

These Mattresses are as unlike the one you are now using, as night is unlike day. They are soft, soothing, springy, restful, dreamy. They fit the body from top to toe, and afford you rest, comfort and enjoyment, unequalled by anything else that money can buy in all this great world of ours.

They range in price from $7.50 to $15.00. We have them for immediate delivery.

MERRYMOUNTS

Showed Up in Good Form on Saturday.

Whitewashed the Porter A. A. Team.

The Wollaston Parks Win and the Atlantics Lose.

At Merrymount park Saturday afternoon the Merrymounts whitewashed the Porter A. A. team by the score of 5 to 0.

Kolson pitched a good game and was batted freely only in the fourth inning when the Porters had three men on bases but good fielding prevented scoring.

The Merrymounts outbatted the Porters, Baker leading with a three-bagger and a double. Gill's playing at second was a feature. He covered a lot of ground and some of his chances were quite difficult.

H. Quinn of the Porters made a sensational running catch of a short fly in left-field.

Atlantics Lose.

At the end of the fourth innings at the Atlantic game on Saturday the score was 4 to 4, and again at the end of the seventh it was 7 to 7, but the South Ends of Boston scored two each in the eighth and ninth and won by the score of 11 to 7. The visitors excelled at the bat and in the field, having 15 hits to 5, and 2 errors to 6 for Atlantics.

A Big Score.

The Wollaston Parks A. A. defeated the Boylston church nine of Jamaica Plain at Merrymount park on Saturday by the score of 13 to 8. The home team made 14 hits and 1 error, to 7 hits and 2 errors for the visitors.

The score by innings:

Anxious for Challenge.

Referring to the piece in last Thursday night's Ledger about the Merrymounts wanting to challenge the South Quincys for another game for $100, would say the South Quincy management is ready for any challenge and is willing to put up either $100 or $200. The team having defeated the Merrymounts three times we are confident that we can trim them every time. M. Maggiani, Manager South Quincy B. B. C.

Y. R. A. Championship.

The championships in the Y. R. A. classes for the yachting season of 1904 were won by the Chewink IV in Class C, Clotho in Class E, Vera II in Class T, Hayseed in Class I. If all the races of the season were included, the Bat, owned by ex-Commodore C. F. Adams of Quincy, would lead the Hayseed.

TOOK A LARGE ROLL

Boys Confess to a Theft from a Houghs Neck Cobbler.

Cornelius Coakley, aged 13 years, whose home is in Cambridge, and Francis Dole, aged 14 years, of South Boston, were arrested by Inspector Bradley on Saturday for the larceny of money from Napoleon Corteau, a Houghs Neck shoe cobbler. It is alleged that the two boys who have been spending the summer at Houghs Neck, entered Corteau's shop on Friday and found him drunk and helpless. Corteau asked for water, and it is alleged that while Coakley was giving him the water Dole went through his pockets and relieved him of his roll.

When Corteau sobered off and found his roll gone he lost no time in reporting the matter to the police. He says that he had $54 in his roll. Inspector Bradley was detailed on the case, and the arrest of the boys followed.

They at first denied that they had anything to do with the robbery, but later confessed. They claimed that they only took $49 which they turned over to Inspector Bradley. The boys were arraigned in court and their cases continued until Thursday.

Fatally Burned.

There was a serious burning accident at 5 Hill street, Saturday, when Josephine, the 7-year old daughter of James Hastings, was so badly burned that she died. The little girl was playing with matches when her clothing took fire the mother aroused by her daughter's screams frantically tore the burning clothing from her and extinguished the blaze, but was also badly burned in doing so. Another daughter was also slightly burned. The mother and daughter were taken to the City Hospital in the police ambulance. The child died at the City Hospital on Sunday.

Farewell Reception.

Miss Mary Elcock, who leaves in a few weeks for Kenosha, Wis., where she has accepted a position as instructor in physical culture in a girls' seminary, was tendered a complimentary dance Saturday evening at the Quincy Yacht clubhouse. The affair was in charge of Philip Coveny of Hyde Park and John Sullivan of Roxbury. There was a large attendance of young people and a most enjoyable evening resulted. Miss Elcock received many well wishes for success in her new position.

EXCELLENT SERMON.

The Outer Man Perisheth, but the Inner Man is Renewed Day by Day.

Rev. W. E. Gardner, rector of the Episcopal church gave Sunday a convincing and interesting sermon from the text—"The outer man perisheth; but the inner man is renewed day by day."

God having fixed certain inimitable laws, all made and enforced for man's temporal as well as eternal good and happiness, cannot unmake these laws, even to save man from calling Him unjust in His dealings with us. He has made man a creature with freedom of choice between good and evil. God's power could do no more. It is impossible for our just and loving God to create evil. But the evil is here. Why or how, we shall know when we can speak "face to face," when we shall see no longer "through a glass darkly."

If we are His loyal children we shall believe Him also oppressed with the evil in the world and as eager to join His forces against it. He has created us with a power of choice between the evil and the good.

If He had created man without this power of choice, he would have created but a mere animal. But a man will break the laws of bodily and spiritual health, and he suffers in consequence, and then he blames God.

We wonder and exclaim at a great disaster with its suffering and loss of life. Fire or flood break loose though man's power of choice could have prevented it. Some one had been false to his trust, and through him a natural law had been broken. What comforts at such a time, and what compensates the individual and the world at large?

The spiritual law is studied anew and not found wanting. The natural law is more earnestly guarded. The public official, or the private care-taker is roused to a fuller sense of his duty, and life begins more earnestly.

Thus the natural law and the spiritual law work together. God is an all-wise and just God. He has made a square a square, and a circle a circle. He cannot change their outline, and not change their shape. He is not a God to juggle with squares and circles.

But granting there are fixed and immutable laws governing body and mind, granting these are fixed by God himself, and also granting they are made with the same love and thought for his children that the faithful earthly parent has, who, when his children ask for bread, gives bread and not a stone.

The question naturally rises, what are these natural and spiritual laws and where are they written. Define them and give reasonable authority. The laws of nature are an open book, who runs may read, and it also "heavenly truth imparts."

Within us and around,
Are pages in that Book, to show
How God Himself is found.

Thou, who hast given me eyes to see
And love this sight so fair,
Give me a heart to find out Thee
And read Thee everywhere."

Funeral of Miss Smith.

Miss Elizabeth Smith, daughter of the late Thomas W. Smith, who died Thursday, the 8th, after a long sickness, was buried from her late residence, Independence avenue, Sunday afternoon. Funeral services were conducted by Rev. W. E. Gardner of Christ church. Singing was lead by Mr. E. Landis Snyder, assisted by members of choir.

The many friends of deceased showed their love and sympathy through the following floral offerings:

Joseph C. Morse Having the Trip of His Life.

The Templars Entertained Everywhere.

B. J. Weeks Wished to be Remembered to All.

San Fransisco, Sept. 6, 1904.

Quincy Daily Ledger:

I drop you a line to say that our Commandery, the DeMolay of Boston, have had a most delightful trip thus far. Marched in the 29th Triennial Conclave today without having a man drop out.

We have had a perfect day for the march, in fact we have had very good weather all along the trip.

We made stops at Niagara Falls, and Chicago, and spent five and one-half days going through Yellowstone Park, travelling one hundred and forty miles in stage coaches through the most wonderful scenery that God has made. And by the way your humble servant had the pleasure of catching salmon trout in Yellowstone Lake.

We also made stops at Spargo, North Dakota, and when our party arrived at Spokane, Washington, Mr. B. J. Weeks and wife formerly of Quincy, met my wife and myself at the depot, with a barouche and took us for a drive around the city, showing us all the principal points of interest. Spokane is one of the smart cities of the West, having some 165,000 inhabitants, with fifteen school-houses, all brick, their High school having recently been enlarged (No talk being made in their city government about building another one in a different part of the city) so as to accommodate twenty-five hundred pupils.

Mr. Weeks is very pleasantly situated being connected with the electric railroad, and his family are all enjoying life. Benny wanted to be remembered to all the boys in Quincy, and especially to the Granite City Club boys.

We also made stops at Seattle, Wash., took the steamboat trip down Puget Sound to Tacoma, Wash., there to Portland, Oregon, and arrived in San Francisco Sunday last at 10 A. M.

At all the cities that we have stopped we have been most cordially entertained, and shown over their cities in carriages or electrics.

We leave here Thursday, the 8th, having completed about one-half of our journey. We have travelled thus far about 4,600 miles by the route we have taken. I saw Arthur W. Stetson and Horace E. Spear here today, and they are both O. K.

We have 132 people in our party, and are having the trip of our lives. Have three doctors with us, and have only had to leave one man behind.

The weather has been cool and very comfortable for traveling, and everything is moving along first rate and the goose hangs high.

Joseph C. Morse.

Democratic Caucuses.

The Democrats of the City of Quincy are requested to meet in Caucus in their respective wards, on for the purpose of electing delegates to the State, County, Councillor, District Attorney and Senatorial Conventions, for nominating a candidate for representative in Congress from the 10th District, and for nominating two Representatives in the General Court from the 5th Norfolk District.

These caucuses are called and will be held under the provisions of Chapter eleven of the Revised Laws and Acts in addition and in amendment thereto.

Nomination papers may be obtained from the Chairman or Secretary of the City Committee, and when signed as the law requires must be filed with the Secretary of the Committee, at 1453 Hancock Street, Quincy, between TUESDAY, September 13, at 7.30 P. M., and THURSDAY, September 15, at 5 P. M.

The wards are entitled to the following number of delegates:

To the State Convention, — Ward One, 1; Ward Two, 1; Ward Three, 1; Ward Four, 2; Ward Five, 1; Ward Six, 1.

To all other Conventions, — Ward One, 2; Ward Two, 2; Ward Three, 3; Ward Four, 4; Ward Five, 1; Ward Six, 2.

Insured for $2,000,000

L. Rodman Wanamaker, son of John Wanamaker, the eminent merchant of New York and Philadelphia, has taken out a policy in

The Prudential Insurance Co.

for $1,000,000, paying an annual premium of over $30,000. This makes him the most heavily insured man in the world, with the single exception of King Edward VII.

Mr. Wanamaker's total insurance is now $2,000,000.

Ask yourself WHY Mr. Wanamaker placed one-half this great amount with The Prudential.

Your business judgment will at once reply: "Because after full investigation and comparison, Mr. Wanamaker found that the company which could give him the best insurance for a given amount of money was The Prudential."

Undoubtedly you will agree that Mr. Wanamaker does not pay over $30,000 per year except for most excellent reasons.

These reasons apply to YOU precisely as well as they do to HIM.

UNCLE SAM.

Between 1896 and 1903 Uncle Sam increased the expenses of his government from $434,000,000 to $640,000,000, an increase of $206,000,000, or $79,000,000 less than the increase in receipts.

UNDER PROTECTION.

Drift of Opinion.

—The announcement of Postmaster-General Payne that negotiations are now in progress to effect a reduction in the rate of postage between this country and those in the postal convention, from five cents to two cents per half ounce, is interesting. The next step in the direction of postal progress will doubtless be the demand for a lower rate of domestic postage in this country. The conviction is general among thoughtful people that with an honest and economical administration of the Post Office Department some part of the advantage extended to postal cards and printed matter may be shared by first-class mail matter per unit of weight. If the postal card is not a loss to the government, a half-ounce letter could be carried as well for one cent as one of an ounce can be carried for two cents. Postage cannot be too cheap if costs are covered.—Banker and Tradesman.

☞ While we are gratified with the growth of our foreign trade and with the prospect of its continued increase, we regret we are so dependent upon foreign shipowners for shipping facilities. We furnish the trade, and foreign capital and labor produce the ships with which to carry it. Only about 9 per cent. of our commerce with other countries is carried in our own vessels and under the protection of our flag. Nearly 91 per cent. is carried in foreign bottoms, and we pay therefore upward of $150,000,000 a year. This is certainly not good business judgment. There is something wrong about it. There is no good reason why the United States should be so entirely dependent upon foreign vessels for carrying their commerce. There is no good reason why we should not have a merchant marine sufficient to carry our fair share of the trade between the United States and all ports of the world. If we are to increase our foreign commerce we shall find it to our national interest to carry it more largely in vessels bearing American register—Senator Fairbanks.

☞ Keeping a yacht has become child's play compared to eating steak. The Beef Trust, ably assisted by its employees, is educating the people to such an extent that the next President will look about him for an attorney-general who can reach the principal monopolies on the solar plexus. At the bottom of all illegal monopolies is the railroad, with its illegal rebate. Let the spellbinder come forward with clear and burning words and help the public formulate its fury, so that each party will be compelled before November, to lay down a program that will promise us quiet and innocent householders emancipation from the most ferocious octopi. The strikers may have been most to blame in this particular controversy, but strikes cause us the most acute distress only when their opponent is a trust. Therefore, the first great practical step is to give the final blow to law-breaking monopolies in food and fuel, and we can turn our attention to other combinations when we have seen the result of drastic treatment of those which cause the greatest suffering. What kind of freedom is it when a group of round-bellied magnates, meeting in some small room, can dictate terms by which the people freeze or starve.—Collier's Weekly.

CAMPAIGN ISSUES

Roosevelt Would Like to Know Where Democrats Stand

LETTER OF ACCEPTANCE

Discusses the Navy, Pensions, Finance, Trusts, Tariff and the Philippines, and Says Republicans Intend to Continue Present Policies

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Sept. 12.—President Roosevelt's letter accepting the Republican nomination for the presidency says in part:

It is difficult to find out from the utterances of our opponents what are the real issues upon which they propose to wage this campaign. Having abandoned most of the principles upon which they have insisted during the last eight years, they now seem at a loss both as to what it is that they really believe and as to how firmly they shall assert their belief in anything.

Our opponents can criticise what we did in Panama only on condition of mis-stating what was done. The administration behaved throughout not only with good faith, but with extraordinary patience and large generosity toward those with whom it dealt. It was also mindful of American interests. It acted in strict compliance with the law passed by congress.

Similar misrepresentation is the one weapon of our opponents in regard to our foreign policy and the way the navy has been made useful in carrying out this policy. If continued in power we shall continue our foreign policy and our handling of the navy on exactly the same lines in the future as in the past.

When our opponents spreak of "encroachments" by the executive upon the authority of congress or the judiciary, apparently the act they ordinarily have in view is pension order No. 78, issued under the authority of existing law.

It is easy to test our opponents' sincerity in this matter. The order in question is revocable at the pleasure of the executive. If our opponents come into power they can revoke this order and announce that they will treat the veterans of 62 to 70 as presumably in full bodily vigor and not entitled to pensions. Will they now authoritatively state that they intend to do this? If so, we accept the issue.

So much for what our opponents openly or covertly advance in the way of an attack on the acts of the administration. Being unable to agree among themselves as to whether the gold standard is a curse or a blessing and as to whether we ought or ought not to have free and unlimited coinage of silver, they have apparently thought it expedient to avoid any committal on these subjects and individually each to follow his particular bent. Their nearest approach to a majority judgment seems to be that it is now inexpedient to assert their convictions one way or the other. We, on the contrary, believe in the gold standard as fixed by the usage and verdict of the business world and in a sound monetary system as matters of principle—as matters not of monetary political expediency, but of permanent organic policy.

The anti-trust and interstate commerce laws are now being administered with entire efficiency, and as in their working need is shown for amendment or addition to them, whether better to secure the proper publicity or better to guarantee the rights of shippers or in any other direction, this need will be met.

So far as the rights of the individual wage worker and the individual capitalist are concerned, both as regards one another, as regards the public and as regards organized capital and labor, the position of the administration has been so clear that there is no excuse for misrepresenting it and no ground for opposing it unless misrepresented.

When we take up the great question of the tariff we are at once confronted by the doubt as to whether our opponents do or do not mean what they say. They say that "protection is robbery" and promise to carry themselves accordingly if they are given power. Yet prominent persons among them assert that they do not really mean this and that if they come into power they will adopt our policy as regards the tariff.

The question of what tariff is best for our people is primarily one of expediency, to be determined not on abstract academic grounds, but in the light of experience. It is a matter of business. From time to time schedules must undoubtedly be rearranged and readjusted to meet the shifting needs of the country, but this can with safety be done only by those who are committed to the cause of the protective system.

We are on record as favoring arrangements for reciprocal trade relations with other countries, these arrangements to be on an equitable basis of benefit to both the contracting parties.

It is difficult to know if our opponents are really sincere in their demand for the reduction of the army. If insincere there is no need for comment, and if sincere, what shall we say in speaking to rational persons of an appeal to reduce an army of 60,000 men which is taking care of the interests of over 80,000,000 people?

Our opponents contend that the government is now administered extravagantly and that whereas there was "a surplus of $80,000,000 in 1900" there is a "deficit of more than $40,000,000" in the year just closed. This deficit is imaginary and is obtained by including in the ordinary current expenses the sum of $50,000,000 which was paid for the right of way of the Panama canal out of the accumulated surplus in the treasury.

During the last five years more has been done for the material and moral well being of the Filipinos than ever before since the islands first came within the ken of civilized man. Alarm has been professed lest the Filipinos should not receive all the benefits guaranteed to our people at home by the 14th amendment to the constitution. As a matter of fact, the Filipinos have already secured the substance of these benefits. In our several commonwealths here in the United States we as a people now face the complex problem of securing fair treatment to each man regardless of his race or color. We can do so only if we approach the problem in the spirit of courage, common sense and high-minded devotion to the right.

SURELY REPUBLICAN

Size of Plurality the Only Question In Maine Election

Portland, Me., Sept. 12.—It is anticipated by all parties that Maine in today's biennial election will choose the Republican candidate for governor, William T. Cobb, return the present Republican delegation to congress, elect a large majority of the Republican candidates for the legislature and select Republican sheriffs and other officers in all 16 counties.

As in Vermont last week, the only difference of opinion regarding the outcome is the size of the plurality for governor. The Republicans claim 15,000 to 25,000 for Cobb, while the Democrats declare that one vote less than 33,384, the plurality of 1900, will be a victory for them.

The campaign has been brief, brisk and broad. It did not begin until the last of August, both parties had the benefit of national talent, while rallies were held in every county, all the cities and a large number of the towns.

It is generally conceded that these rallies were as a rule poorly attended.

Real Campaign Is On

Chicago, Sept. 12.—With the issuance of President Roosevelt's letter of acceptance today the Republican national campaign may be considered as formally open. It now depends upon the various state organizations to arrange for their meetings and the national committee will assign the speakers who are to do the work. A number of state chairmen are being called in to see Chairman Cortelyou.

Contest Unlikely

Saratoga, N. Y., Sept. 12.—Sunday was a day of informal conferences among the Republican leaders gathered here in advance of the state convention called for Wednesday noon. There seems to be a general impression that there will be no contest in the convention over the nomination for governor; that the matter will be practically settled not later than tomorrow night.

Soldiers Stopped at Esopus

Esopus, N. Y., Sept. 12.—The Eighth Massachusetts regiment, on its way home from the maneuvers at Manassas, stopped at Esopus and enthusiastically greeted Judge Parker as he was boarding a train for Kingston to attend church services. The judge shook hands with as many of the soldiers as he could before his train started.

CITY BREVITIES.

Rather warm and sultry this morning.

W. J. Tilley of Sea street has gone to New York on a business trip.

Quincy's school army, upwards of 5000 strong, trudged to school again this morning.

The rain of Friday and Saturday morning with that of Sunday night did an amount of good.

There will be no meeting of the City Council tonight. The next meeting will be next Monday evening.

Dr. William Everett has returned from his extended trip abroad in good health.

Miss Blanche Bliss of Thetford, Vt., is the guest of Mrs. J. N. Fox of Franklin street, for a few weeks.

Mrs. Owen Gibson of Granite street, is the guest of her daughter, Mrs. John Lennon of Upland road for a few weeks.

Mrs. Saunders of Lakeport, N. H., has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Burgess of Whitney road, the past week.

Mrs. George Ewell is the guest of her uncle, John Shaw, for a month at his summer cottage at Orleans on the Cape.

Mrs. Charles H. Hardwick of Chestnut street, has so far recovered from her recent serious illness as to be able to sit out on the piazza.

From Sept. 13 to 17 were rather warm last year, the noon temperature for the five days being 84, 85 or 86. After the 17th there were no 80 degree days in 1903.

W. J. Tilley of Sea street, Houghs Neck, has purchased a thirty-six foot steam launch at New York, and it is expected to reach this city some time this week.

Miss Annie H. Leonard and Miss Alice E. Townsend of the City Hall clerical force, who have been doing the World's Fair, are now at the LaCorona, Montreal.

Miss Hannah Dorane of Buckley street has severed her connections with Chase's bakery in City Square, and will be greatly missed by her many friends and customers.

Miss Laura DeLorie, who was accidentally shot by a pistol on July 4th, has so far recovered as to able to return to her home at Prince Edwards Island, leaving last week for that place.

Francis L. Sellew of Miller Stile road is moving his household goods to South Carolina where he is now located as engineer in building a large dam. Mr. Sellew was the engineer in charge of the Metroplitan sewer built through Quincy by Belding & Co.

Miss Alice B. Hultman of Washington street, who has been the guest in the family of Judge Baker at Helena, Montana, during the summer months, returned on Saturday evening. She says the climate in Montana is delightful and that her visit was one round of pleasure.

The marriage of Miss Beatrice Brady of Newcomb street, and Alexander Marnock of Bennington street, will take place at the bride's home on Wednesday evening. After their return from a wedding trip to New York and other places, they will reside on President avenue, South Quincy.

Sunday was a beautiful day and the street cars did a good business. Through cars were run between Neponset and Nantasket, and the cars to the beach until late in the afternoon were well loaded. Then the tide of travel turned and the cars for Neponset bridge were packed.

Armies In Far East Having a Much-Needed Rest

THE FIGHT AT LIAOYANG

Advantage Gained Over Russians Step by Step Under Adverse Circumstances -- Baltic Fleet Leaves Cronstadt

London, Sept. 12.—What little news was received from the Manchurian theatre of war indicates the almost entire suspension of active operations by both Russians and Japanese. The last dispatch from Mukden was filed Sunday evening. It said that all was quiet in that region and the understanding was that the main force of the Japanese had retired to Yental on the railroad, about 10 miles northeast of Liaoyang. Kuropatkin briefly reports that there was no fighting Saturday except small patrol encounters.

A dispatch to Reuter's Telegram company from St. Petersburg says it is understood that Viceroy Alexieff, in view of the paramount military exigencies in the far east, has placed his resignation in the hands of the czar, but that no decision with regard to it has yet been taken.

All today's newspapers agree in the belief that a somewhat prolonged lull in the operations of the Japanese and Russian forces around Mukden will ensue.

Detailed accounts of the battle of Liaoyang confirm the general belief here that the Japanese have not paid an excessive price for their success and that they were balked in achieving another Sedan by Kuropatkin's generalship.

The situation at Port Arthur, especially in view of the sailing from Cronstadt on Sunday of the Baltic fleet, receives renewed attention in the newspapers. Spencer Wilkinson, in The Morning Post, says it depends entirely on how long Port Arthur can hold out whether the Baltic fleet will be of any effect. The general tendency of the London nwspapers, however, is to the belief that Port Arthur will soon be worn down by the tenacious attacks of the Japanese, while little importance is attached to the sailing of the Baltic fleet.

The Standard declares that the fleet will never get beyond Suez, but says if, by any inconceivable chance it should reach Chinese waters, "it would only give Togo fresh opportunities for adding to his category of successes. We cannot credit the Russian government with any intention of sending its last maritime reserve to destruction."

The Morning Post's correspondent in the field with General Kuroki describes the operations against Liaoyang as 12 days of the hardest possible fighting and marching on short rations, with a temperature of 100 degrees in the shade and frequent falls of rain. All of this, he says, was borne splendidly, though the men were worn out after the tense struggle. Recounting the gneral lines of fighting, the correspondent says:

"On Sept. 2, while the other armies were pressing Liaoyang from the south, the turning force continued stubbornly fighting the stubborn foe, but steady advance was made and step by step was the only advantage gained.

"On Sept. 3 the attack of the Japanese first army had been checked. The enemy were much stronger than we, they having five divisions holding the northeastern heights. Our position for the time was critical in view of the possibility that the enemy might have attacked us in force. But a mixed brigade, and later the left column reinforced us, making our position safer.

"On Sept. 4 the enemy was in full retreat and the first army was ordered to pursue. General Kuropatkin's retreat was masterly. He held the northeastern heights to the last possible moment and secured a safe retirement for his army and his guns."

Sailing of Baltic Fleet

Cronstadt, Sept. 12.—The Baltic fleet sailed Sunday for the far east. The vessels of the fleet consisted of eight battleships, four cruisers and several torpedo boats and torpedo boat destroyers. The fleet will touch at Libau, where it will be joined by 12 transports, colliers and supply ships already waiting there and will then proceed direct to the Orient.

Japs Lost 17,539 Men at Liaoyang

Tokio, Sept. 12.—An approximation of the Japanese casualties in the battle of Liaoyang shows that the Japanese killed and wounded amount to 17,539 men, divided as follows:

In the right army, (Kuroki's) 4866 men; centre army, (Nodzu's) 4992; left army, (Oku's) 7681. These casualties include 136 officers killed and 464 officers wounded.

Czar Calls Out Reserve Force

St. Petersburg, Sept. 12.—The czar has called to arms the reserve troops in 22 circuits of the governments of Khorson, Bessarabia, Ekaterinoslav and Taurica, belonging to the military district of Odessa, and also one category of reserve officers throughout the empire.

Russian "Transport" at 'Frisco

San Francisco, Sept. 12.—The Russian transport Lena, Captain Berlinsky, has put into this port for repairs. The Lena is 31 days from Vladivostok via Bayaiwa, Sakhalin islands. The Lena has a crew of 497 men and 21 officers and carries 23 guns.

Captain Berlinsky, who officially declares the Lena to be a transport, states that her engines and boilers are in need of repairs. After passing quarantine the Lena anchored off the Union Iron works, where she now lies.

According to Brassey's naval annual, the Lena formerly was the Kherson of the Russian volunteer fleet. Brassey refers to her as a "volunteer cruiser" and also as a "transport vessel."

The Lena has a speed of 18¼ knots. Her hull is of steel and her displacement is of 10,225 tons. She is 493 feet long, 54 feet 3 inches wide and has a draught of 24 feet. She has two propellers. Her indicated horse-power is 12,500. She was built at Hebburn, Eng., in 1895.

Modern Science In War

Chefoo, Sept. 12.—A Chinese who left Port Arthur Sept. 6 says that at Port Dalny the Japanese are using, with great success, an airship, which he describes as cigar-shaped with a car suspended. The propelling device is so efficient that it is moved at will in making observations directing Japanese observations.

Met Death Through Poisoning

Providence, Sept. 12.—Medical Examiner Perkins has performed an autopsy on the body of Florence R. Moore. The woman was found in an unconscious condition on the floor at the Gaspee building and died at a hospital a few hours later. Dr. Perkins stated that the woman had met her death through poisoning, either corrosive sublimate or arsenic, but that he was undecided as to whether he should order an inquest or not. Charles Moore, husband of the deceased, told the police that he thought it a case of suicide, as the woman had been acting queerly of late.

Commotion In Westminster Abbey

London, Sept. 12.—In Westminster Abbey yesterday, at the middle of the morning service, a series of loud explosions started the kneeling congregation to its feet, causing an almost dangerous rush for the doors. Canon Duckworth succeeded in reassuring the people and in preventing a panic. It was discovered that the cause of the explosions was a firecracker, the label attached to which showed the outrage to be the work of a fanatical adherent of the late John Kensit, the anti-Ritualistic crusader. The culprit escaped.

Fire Close to Hospital

Brookline, Mass., Sept. 12.—The patients in Dr. Channing's private hospital on Chestnut Hill avenue were thrown into a panic at 1 o'clock this morning when a fire broke out in a stable owned by Dr. Channing and located about 75 feet distant. It was only by hard work that the attendants calmed the excited inmates of the hospital. The fire was confined to the stable, which was destroyed. The loss was about $3000.

Betrothal Suits the Kaiser

Schwerin, Sept. 12.—Emperor William and Empress Augusta Victoria arrived here last evening, accompanied by Crown Prince Frederick William and his betrothed, Duchess Cecilia of Mecklenburg-Schwerin. At a state dinner the emperor expressed great joy at the betrothal of the crown prince and the duchess and said that the latter would be received with open arms and honored by the imperial house.

Fatality Worries Melba

Paris, Sept. 12.—Mme. Melba, the singer, while driving in an automobile, accompanied by two cousins, ran over a man over 84 years old and killed him instantly. The chauffeur was not to blame, as the old man got in the way of the automobile while endeavoring to escape being run over by a cab. Mme. Melba was greatly distressed and is now confined to her apartments.

Evident Work of Wreckers

Savannah, Ga., Sept. 12.—A train from Savannah for Atlanta was derailed at Ogeechee in precisely the same manner that a train was derailed Saturday at Rocky Ford. Fireman Polite was killed. The switch was found open and the lock broken and on the ground, as in the case of the Rocky Ford accident. The stations are six miles apart.

Rising Against the Jews

St. Petersburg, Sept. 12.—Anti-Semitic rioting took place at Rovno, during which many persons were injured and shops pillaged. A similar outbreak occurred at Smela, where the troops were called out. Ninety-eight houses and 145 shops were pillaged, and several persons were wounded by the troops. Many of the rioters were arrested.

Eight Lives Lost

Philadelphia, Sept. 12.—The Delaware river steamer Columbia, on its way from this city to Bristol, Pa., last night, crashed into a steam launch about 10 miles north of here, grinding it to pieces and causing the drowning of eight of the dozen occupants of the small boat. All of the party were Philadelphians.

Sloop Struck a Ledge

Boston, Sept. 12.—Sailing before a light breeze, the sloop yacht Violet, owned by Henry McKee, was wrecked on a ledge off Thompson's island last evening. A big hole was stove in her bottom, but her six passengers were saved by taking to the tender. The Violet finally sank.

A SAVAGE SLASHER

Italian Almost Severs Woman's Head With a Razor

REFUSED TO MARRY HIM

Attack Made on Woman as She Sat on Doorstep of Her Home --Murderer Kills Himself by Severing His Jugular Vein

Boston, Sept. 12.—A murder and suicide attended by harrowing circumstances occurred yesterday afternoon in the Italian quarter in the North End, when John Guinasso, 30 years of age, killed Reina Fopiano, a widow, about 25 years of age, by cutting her throat with a razor, and then took his own life in a similar manner. The murderer, who was induced to the crime by the woman's refusal to marry him, nearly severed his victim's head from the body. The slaying of Mrs. Fopiano was not witnessed, but several neighbors saw Guinasso, after uttering a shout of triumph at what he had done, draw the razor across his own throat. He was dead by the time the ambulance bearing him had arrived at the relief hospital.

Mrs. Fopiano was murdered as she sat upon the front steps of her aunt's lodging house at No. 6 Stillman place. The family had just eaten the noonday meal. Suddenly Guinasso appeared in the narrow courtway which leads from Cooper street, rushed to the steps, and assaulted the woman with a razor.

Several times the murderer must have cut his victim, for when she staggered into the kitchen to fall dead not only was her head nearly severed from the body, but the neck and shoulders were hacked in a horrible manner. Spectators tried to stop Guinasso, but after crying out about his crime, he committed suicide by cutting open the jugular vein.

According to the police Guinasso had been an unwished for suitor for the hand of Mrs. Fopiano, ever since the death of her husband about a year ago. Despite the fact that the woman repulsed him always, the man continued his attentions. Several times he is said to have threatened her. On July 25 he was fined in court for assaulting her with a club.

Massacre of Missionaries

Brisbane, Queensland, Sept. 12.—Natives in German New Guinea attacked the Catholic mission and murdered Fathers Raschen and Ruttar, Brothers Bley, Plarschaert and Schellekens and Sisters Sofia, Agatha, Annie, Agnes and Angela. Thirty-six natives were captured and 16 of them were executed for the crime. The design of the natives was to murder all the whites, but this was frustrated.

Canadian Train Held Up

Montreal, Sept. 12.—The trans-Continental train was held up by train robbers 43 miles from Vancouver. There were four men in the party. They compelled the train crew to uncouple the mail and express car from the remainder of the train and run ahead two miles. Here they looted the mail and express cars. They got $6000 from the express safe.

Negroes In Triple Tragedy

New York, Sept. 12.—After shooting Maggie McGill, his woman companion, twice in the head, causing wounds which may prove fatal, and wounding Claude Gardinen, John Isaacs, 25 years old, drank carbolic acid and died a few hours later. They all are West Indian negroes. The police have not learned the cause of the shooting.

Alcohol Lamp Exploded

North Brookfield, Mass., Sept. 12.—An attempt by Mrs. Charles Duncan, aged 55, to fill a lighted alcohol lamp resulted in an explosion which caused her death. Mrs. Duncan's clothing was set on fire and she was quite badly burned, but it is thought that her death was caused by the inhaling of fumes.

Walthour Downs Foreigners

Berlin, Sept. 12.—"Bobby" Walthour, the American cyclist, won the international bicycle race here. His time was 1h. 23m. 18s. Dickentmann and Hall of Holland, and Robl of Germany finished as named. Walthour won easily and without having to change his motor pace.

Government Troops Defeated

Buenos Ayres, Sept. 12.—A further heavy engagement between the insurgents and the troops of the government, in which the latter are reported to have been defeated, is said to have occurred in Uruguay.

Football Player Killed

Harrisburg, Sept. 12.—Blaine Hoffman, 19, received such serious internal injuries at a game of football at Lykens, when the opposing players piled upon him, that death resulted.

NEWS IN BRIEF

George W. Badger of Nashua, N. H., prominent in Grand Army and Masonic circles, is dead, aged 72.

Henry F. Jenks, inventor and manufacturing machinist, died at Pawtucket, R. I., aged 67. He was a veteran of the Civil war and had served in the Rhode Island general assembly.

James Laguein, 40, fell in front of an electric grip car at Providence and sustained injuries which caused his death 10 minutes later.

IN LEAKING SUBMARINE

Twenty-One Persons Had a Bad Scare at Revere Beach

"they are drowned" created great excitement and a big crowd gathered in front of the Nautical Gardens, Revere beach, yesterday afternoon, and the word rapidly spread that the submarine boat had sunk and that 25 people had been drowned.

Amid much excitement, with women screaming and men yelling, the boat slowly came to the surface. The cap was lifted and 21 men and women hurriedly emerged from the boat badly scared and a number of them with drenched clothing, but otherwise uninjured.

Several got quite a soaking and were escorted to the state bathhouse, where they were supplied with a temporary suit of clothes while theirs were being dried.

C. L. Ridgeway stated that the cause of the inflow of water in the boat was due to the improper closing of the cap, which left a small space where several gallons of water poured in and gave the passengers a bad five minutes.

Perhaps Fatally Stabbed

Boston, Sept. 12.—As a result of a fight at the corner of Dacia street and Blue Hill avenue, Carmen Palliano, 35, was removed to the city hospital with a deep and serious knife wound in his back. Patrolmen Smith and Bostwick a short time after the stabbing arrested Fred Mungini on suspicion. Palliano asserts that he had been entertaining a party of his friends at his home, when a dispute arose and he ordered his guests to leave the premises. Spectators say that the injured man was held by two men, while a third stabbed him.

Steamfitters' Strike Threatened

Boston, Sept. 12.—A strike of 480 steamfitters, affecting 33 shops, will be declared today unless the employers grant the demands of the men. At a meeting of Steamfitters' union 22 it was voted unanimously to declare a strike if the employers did not accede to the union's terms. The union men are not dissatisfied with their wages, but they insist upon the repeal of certain shop rules; demand recognition of the union, and the "closed shop."

Perhaps a Quadruple Drowning

Bridgeport, Conn., Sept. 12.—Grave fears are entertained for the safety of W. F. Robertson and his wife, their daughter, Mrs. R. F. Kolb, and her husband, who left this city Thursday in a naphtha launch for Oyster Bay, L. I. A few hours after the launch sailed out of the harbor a furious thunderstorm swept over the sound. No trace of the boat has been reported or no word from any member of the party has been received.

Burning Will Result Fatally

Lynn, Mass., Sept. 12.—Edward Houston, 89 years old, was mixing floor stain in the basement of his house here and the flame of the gas lamp ignited some turpentine. An explosion followed and Houston was drenched with the blazing fluid. He rushed out of doors, screaming for help. A neighbor extinguished the flames, but not until after Houston had been horribly burned. He cannot recover.

Will Not Recognize Union

Boston, Sept. 12.—The position taken by the Clothing Manufacturers' association in reference to the strike declared by the Garment Workers' union was emphatically declared last night in a letter from the association to the union, saying that the Clothing Manufacturers' association would neither recognize nor treat with the union, and that the association insisted on operating open shops.

Irish May Dominate Situation

Boston, Sept. 12.—John Redmond declared last night at a mass meeting in the Boston theatre that, owing to the complications arising from the stand taken by Joseph Chamberlain and his followers on the question of free trade, and with the Liberal and Unionist parties divided, the Irish-Nationalist party would have a good chance to control the next British parliament.

Settlement Still Far Away

Fall River, Mass., Sept. 12.—With 26,000 striking textile operatives still confident that they will win the great industrial strife now being fought here, and with the manufacturers just as sure of their cause, the eighth week of the textile strike has begun. Both parties to the struggle are unyielding and there are no prospects of any compromise.

Wreck Off Nantucket

Nantucket, Mass., Sept. 12.—Evidences that disaster has occurred to some vessel in the vicinity of Nantucket island are apparent from the quantity of wreckage which is drifting ashore on the eastern beach, and the thousands of bundles of laths which are afloat. A fleet of catboats secured a total of 1200 bundles yesterday.

Railway Conductor Killed

Revere, Mass., Sept. 12.—Harry G. Forristall, a conductor on the Boston and Northern railway, was on the running board of the car taking fares, and as the car swung around a curve in the track he was thrown violently to the ground, fracturing his skull. He was at once removed to a hospital, where he died shortly after arriving.

Tired Soldiers Reach Home

Boston, Sept. 12.—The Ninth regiment militia was the first of the state troops to return from the war maneuvers at Manassas. The regiment arrived at 10 o'clock last night. Every member of the regiment showed the effects of the hard week's work. The other two regiments reached Boston early this morning.

Won by Hall.

The remaining match of the semi-finals and finals of the Quincy Tennis club's tournament in open handicap singles were played off Saturday. In the semi-final round A. W. Hall (scratch) easily defeated C. Barker (half fifteen) in straight sets: 6-2, 6-4.

In the finals A. W. Hall defeated A. F. Arnold (half thirty) in a well played match, Arnold winning one set and carrying the last one to deuce. The score 6-4, 6-2, 2-6, 7-5.

Foresters' Jubilee.

Quincy Foresters are taking a prominent part in the arrangements for the silver jubilee of the order to be celebrated at the Mechanics Building on Thursday, which is expected to bring together 20,000. More than 200 courts will be represented. William T. Shea and Mrs. Mary Sheahan are members of the reception committee, William P. Hughes, a member of the entertainment committee, and on the general committee, are William H. Warner, James H. Elcock, Miss Catherine Shea and Cornelius Duggan.

FIVE CANDIDATES.

For the Republican Nominations for Representatives.

Unless there are some withdrawals, those who call for a Republican ballot at the caucus Sept. 27, will find the names of five gentlemen who desire to receive the nomination as candidates for the General Court.

The official nomination papers are furnished by the City Clerk and must be obtained from the political committees. The five Republicans who have taken out nomination papers are:

Albert G. Dolliver.
Richard R. Freeman.
John O. Hall.
Harry S. Nicoll.
Edward J. Sandberg.

They will appear upon the ballot in the above order.

The nomination papers will be opened by the City Committee on Thursday evening at 8 o'clock at headquarters in the Master Builders' rooms. The nomination papers for delegates to the several conventions will also be opened at the same time.

Q. Y. C. Championships.

The Quincy Yacht club concluded its racing season Saturday afternoon with a club championship race. The fleet was greeted with a light easterly breeze and went over the course under whole sail.

As a result of the season's races the Marvel secures the championship pennant in class A, the Usona in the 21-foot class, and the Betty B in the one design class.

Welcome Home.

On Saturday evening a number of friends called on Mrs. Rebecca McLellan, of Phipps street, to give her a royal welcome back, she having been on a visit to "Bonnie Scotland." During the evening William A. Kelley, on behalf of her friends, and with his usual eloquence presented her with a handsome lounge to rest herself after the strenuous life she has had on the other side of the "herring pond." William B. Norrie, Alex. D. McGregor, and George Clark also made remarks. Mrs. McLellan, in thanking the guests, said that she would ever cherish the memory of that night. The evening was spent with song and story. Some of the old Scottish ballads and Irish melodies were rendered in grand style. Refreshments were served, and before parting Mrs. McLellan presented each guest with a sprig o' heather frae the auld sod. Each and every one enjoyed themselves to the limit.

How Horace Walpole Dressed.

In the early part of the eighteenth century, says the author of "Social England," a fashionable gentleman ordinarily wore a toupee of curls raised high over his forehead. For daily wear most gentlemen were dressed like George I., dark tie, wig, plain coat, waistcoat and breeches of snuff colored cloth and stockings of the same color; for ceremony, like Horace Walpole, in a lavender suit, the waistcoat embroidered with a little silver or of white silk embroidered in the tambour frame, partridge silk stockings, gold buckles, ruffles, lace frill and powdered wig. The linen for shirts was bought in Holland, costing from 10 to 14 shillings the English ell.

Corelli and Caine.

Marie Corelli's first story, "A Romance of Two Worlds," which made her name, was sent to the London publishing house of Bentley. Hall Caine was the principal reader of that house, and his report condemned the book so strenuously that it was rejected. Miss Corelli was deeply discouraged, but after some time she was persuaded to send the manuscript to another publisher. He accepted it eagerly and made a big fortune out of it and out of her later novels.

Letter Perfect.

Rustic poets do not always find rhymes come easily and naturally. At least the following epitaph in a country district would seem to suggest it:

Here lies the body of William Lee.
This was him, this was he,
A B C D E F G.

Nevertheless there is no fault to be found with the actual rhyme as such.—London Globe.

Now They Are Strangers.

Edyth—Jack proposed last night, and after I accepted him I thought he would never stop kissing me. Mayme—How nice of him! But, then, that's the way he always does.

THE HIGH CROWDED.

Head Master Harper Too Busy This Morning to Give Figures.

To say that the High school is crowded would be putting it mild. At 1.30 the school was still in session and Head Master Harper had not found time to summarize his pupils. The total enrollment of the school, however, will not be far from 700.

The exact number of the freshmen class that entered today is not known, but it was about 250. As the freshmen have another week to enter it is safe to say this class will not be far below 300, about as many in this class alone as the building should accommodate.

All that the old High school building will accommodate were sent there, and every available space at the new building will be utilized. Aside from this there will be about 75 who will have to attend the afternoon session.

Woodward Popular.

The Woodward Institute opened today with about 160 pupils. The new class numbers nearly 50. The entering class is the largest in the history of the school.

New Pupils.

A partial list of the children who began their school life today follows:

Adams School, — Elizabeth Welsh, Melia Della Lucca, Hazel Coutts, Sidney McLaughlin, Annie Marcani, Belle Donohue, Paul Barsanti, Josie Hanlon, Leon Rosa, Viola Ford, Roy Westland, Anna Ford, Channing Deacon, Grace Goodhue, Charles Johnson, Gertrude Driscoll, Joseph McDonnell, Mabel Jacobson, Catharine Little, Lawrence Beaton, Catharine Krasenski, Bessie Laughorn, Helen Collins.

Margarite Smith, Eleanor Goodhue, Dorothy Ferguson, Gabriel Starbile, Peter Sarbile, Francis Belluci, Helen Coutts, Frank Boer, Agnes Curry, Frederick Anderson, Margaret Horrigan, Willie Buckley, Alma Hunter, Grace Towle, Teresa Cahill, Mabel Dixon, Antonio Pulpia.

TODAY'S COURT.

Thomas Neimi was fined $3 for drunkenness at Quincy.

Charles Johnson and Jeremiah Danahy were arraigned for drunkenness at Quincy. The former case was continued until Sept. 19 and the latter until Oct. 10.

John Carthy was fined $10 for speeding an automobile at Milton.

Timothy Sullivan was fined $3 for drunkenness at Quincy.

Thomas Mulkarain was fined $5 for drunkenness at Quincy.

Edwin E. Baxter waa arraigned for drunkenness at Weymouth. Case continued until Sept. 19.

Lugi Conderi and Antonio Shelter were fined $2 each for fishing at Quincy reservoir.

Cornelius Coakley and Francis Dole were arraigned for larceny at Quincy.

Onslow McCaull was araigned for assault on Michael Nicholson at Quincy. He was discharged on payment of costs.

$100 Reward, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Minutiae In Detective Work

[Original.]

The most important case, at least the most important to me, I have had since I entered the detective business was the Hinton case. Besides, it is the best illustration that has ever passed under my notice of the fact that attention to minutiae is the main feature in detective work.

One day I received a call from a young lady, who told me that she was interested in running down a gang of counterfeiters. She had rented a house next door to where she suspected they were at work, and that was as far as she could go. She could not shadow the occupants, for women can't go where men can go without attracting attention. Therefore she must have the services of a detective. Her interest in bringing the people she suspected to justice was this: Her brother had been made the dupe of counterfeiters and had been arrested while passing their spurious money. He was lying in jail waiting his trial. Her object was to fix the responsibility on the proper person.

Miss Henrietta Stowell interested me at once. How she had worked up the case thus far is too long a story to be given here, but that this young girl unaided had succeeded in locating the gang filled me with astonishment and admiration. I say "located the gang" because there was every reason to believe that they were the persons who had used her brother for a catspaw. But she had been unable to secure one item of proof, and that was what I was expected to do.

I began to watch the suspected house and soon noticed that it was occupied by an eminently respectable looking man and an old woman, who acted as housekeeper. There were no visitors, the housekeeper never went out, and the respectable looking man went out very seldom. I learned that the name by which he was known was Cochrane.

I divided the twenty-four hours of the day into three watches, taking one watch myself and leaving the other two to assistants. My experience tells me that the finest crooked work is done in broad daylight. Therefore I took the watch from 9 in the morning to 5 in the afternoon. Mr. Cochrane's tours from the house were to a news stand a few blocks away, where he went twice a day to buy a morning and an evening paper. Besides this he went marketing every day and carried everything home himself. A few days' watching showed plainly that he and his housekeeper were either enormous eaters or he was marketing for others.

However, after watching the house for a fortnight I was no nearer bagging the game than when I commenced. Counterfeiters are the slipperiest kind of lawbreakers, being always prepared for a raid. Besides, in this case there was no certainty that there was anything wrong with Mr. Cochrane.

On the fifteenth day of my watch Mr. Cochrane, at 10 o'clock in the morning, came out of his front door, stood idly swinging a cane, gaped, then, slowly descending the steps, seemed uncertain for a moment which way he would go. At last he strolled down the street aimlessly. I, disguised as a workingman, followed him to a building used for stores below and rooms above. I waited for him to come out, but waited a long time in vain. About half an hour after he entered a man about his build, but much older—he wore a white beard—came out, but it did not occur to me that he could be Cochrane. I clung to my post till noon, when the old man returned, and as he passed very near me I noticed that his white linen cuff had been bespattered with mud, doubtless by a passing vehicle.

In twenty minutes more I was rewarded by a sight of Mr. Cochrane stepping unconcernedly from the building, and as he passed me I noticed some yellow marks on his cuff. In a twinkling I put two and two together and had a definite result. Cochrane and the old man were one and the same person. He had gone to a room he doubtless rented in the building, disguised himself, gone out and returned. He had undoubtedly noticed the dirt on his cuff and brushed it off, leaving the stain.

But what had he done all this for? He had likely visited some person or persons to whom he had turned over the "queer" to be placed in circulation. At least that was my inference. I was tempted to proceed at once against him, but prudence bade me wait. I had no evidence, and I was in a fair way to get the best of evidence. What troubled me was that I must wait for another one of Cochrane's exits in disguise, and in the meantime the gang might change their quarters.

It was ten days before I was again rewarded by seeing Mr. Cochrane go to his rented room, disguise himself and go out. This time I followed him. His object was to get rid of counterfeit money, but in a way that surprised me. He visited a number of places, in each of which he bought some trifling article, for which he paid with a ten dollar bill, receiving a large proportion of change. I telephoned to police headquarters, and he was arrested, a descent being made on his house at the same time. Nothing was found there, and I inferred that the gang had arranged to escape to the roof and down through another building. However, Cochrane, alias Hinton, was convicted, and in his trial it came out how he had used Miss Stowell's brother, the boy being innocent of wrong.

Yes, in our business the minutiae count. Though we had the counterfeiter located, we would have lost the game had I not noticed the dirt on Hinton's cuff.

Why was the case important to me? I married Henrietta Stowell.

THE FRENCH DINNER.

It Is Not Only a Meal, but an Entertainment as Well.

Generally speaking, the table of the American is provided for the purpose of feeding; for the Frenchman it is for the purpose of refreshment, says Flora McDonald Thompson in Harper's Bazar.

"It must nourish—yes, but of equal necessity it must please, please the mind also as the body—and there must be provided, too, diversion and repose. Thus is cooking an art with the French people, and a meal, whether of the rich man or of the poor peasant, is one of his finest ceremonies. The employees of Paris business houses are allowed from one to two hours for the midday meal, and it is an unwritten law of the French household that the servants shall have at least an hour for dejeuner and for dinner alike, during which time they are not to be called, except for grave reason, but are left free to seat themselves at table in the kitchen, where, even in very humble kitchens, they tuck their napkins under their chins and laugh and talk while eating and drinking, so enjoying a degree of leisure nearly unknown among all classes of Americans.

"As a rule, the Paris business man takes his midday meal in the bosom of his family. This is deemed such an important feature of domestic economy that the whole scheme of living is adjusted to that end; and one finds families of wealth and social distinction housed throughout the business sections in order thus to make it possible that the hour or two allotted to dejeuner may be spent by the man in his home."

"I LIKE ICE CREAM."

Everybody likes it. We can all have as much as we want now for it is very easy to make when JELL-O ICE CREAM POWDER is used. All ingredients in the package; no cooking or fussing, simply add a quart of milk and freeze. A great success; try it and you will be delighted. Each package makes nearly two quarts. Four kinds: Vanilla, Chocolate, Strawberry and Unflavored. Order today from your grocer. Two packages for 25c.

Increased Enrollment at the Quincy High.

Some Buildings Show a Decrease

Large Entering Classes at Several Buildings.

All of the public schools with the exception of the Willard opened Monday. The attendance was 4442. With the opening of the Willard and additional pupils who will come in during the month there will be about the first of October 5,500 school children.

The entering class in the primary schools numbered 428. As the children have two weeks in which to enter, this number will be increased nearly one hundred.

The following table shows the total number enrolled in each building on Monday, as compared with the enrollment at the end of the first week in past years:

* Estimated.

The school buildings that are the most cramped for room are the Adams, Coddington and Quincy.

Several of the grades at the Adams are overcrowded, but the school will be able to get along by transferring some of the pupils to other buildings, more particularly the Cranch.

The John Hancock and Lincoln buildings have their full complement of pupils in every room. There is some little crowding in some of the grades but nothing that can not be readily taken care of.

The Gridley Bryant will have no trouble, as it has room enough, and there will be no crowding.

The same also may be said of the Cranch building although some grades have more pupils than they should have.

The attendance at the new Washington is very large but there will be no difficulty as another room in the building will be put into use.

The Coddington is crowded and it will be necessary to let the Cranch building relieve this school.

The Wollaston and Massachuusetts Fields have their full complement of pupils, but while some of the lower grades are somewhat crowded they can get along without difficulty.

The worst trouble of all is at the Quincy school, and it is a problem what to do with its 454 pupils. Every available place in the building has been utilized.

In addition the overflow rooms near the Norfolk Downs depot are over crowded. It is probable that the committee will find it necessary to rent another outside room to accommodate the pupils.

It is no news to say that the High is crowded, for the fact is well known. Some of the pupils will be housed in the old building on High School avenue. The remainder will attend the afternoon session at the main building.

Parents do not take kindly to the afternoon session and the protests have already begun to come in. The School Committee, however, say they know of no other way until the City Council provides the necessary accommodations.

HODGES-GRAHAM.

Popular Young Lady of Milton Marries Son of Former Mayor.

The wedding of Miss Margaret J. Graham, daughter of Mrs. John Graham of East Milton, and Mr. Edward Tisdale Quincy Hodges, youngest son of Hon. and Mrs. William A. Hodges of Hancock street, Quincy, was solemnized at East Milton on Monday evening at seven o'clock. Rev. Theodore I. Reese of St. Michael's church, Milton, officiated and Miss Mary McKay played the wedding march.

Miss Frances M. Farrell of East Milton, a cousin of the bride, was maid of honor, and Mr. Hodges was attended by his cousin, Mr. Frederick Howe, of Bigelow street, Quincy. The bride was given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Mr. J. E. Quimby. Her gown was a gray travelling suit with gray hat to match, and the maid of honor wore a tan colored broadcloth.

The best man was the recipient of a handsome diamond stud from the groom, and the bride gave her maid of honor a locket, and the organist a gold pin as souvenirs of the happy occasion.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. J. E. Quimby from seven until nine. There was a display of valuable gifts of silver, cut glass, china and pictures. Owing to the recent death of the bride's father the wedding and reception was very quiet and informal.

Mr. and Mrs. Hodges left on a wedding trip to St. Louis where they are to spend a month. On their return they are to reside at Reading, Mass., where they will receive their friends on Fridays after November first.

QUINCY DIVORCES.

Three Women Secure Decrees in the Norfolk Court.

Decrees in three uncontested divorce cases were granted by Judge Sherman in the Norfolk Superior court this week:

Ida E. Eaton of Quincy vs. George H. Eaton of Boston, nisi for neglect to support, wife given custody of minor children and $5 a week alimony, payable monthly.

Ella D. Case of Quincy vs. George H. Case of Brockton, nisi for adultery.

Hannah C. Johnson of Quincy vs. August Johnson of Jamestown, N. Y., nisi for desertion, with right to resume her maiden name.

Rose E. Reynolds vs. Orrin E. Reynolds, both of Randolph, nisi for neglecting to provide maintenance.

Bethany Brotherhood.

The Brotherhood of Bethany Congregational church will resume its monthly meetings this evening, and will be entertained by an instructive lecture on "Bacteria—Our friend as well as our foe" by Prof. Franklin T. Kurt of the Chauncey Hall school. The president this year is William F. Sidelinger, and the usual committees have been appointed on religious work, entertainment, fellowship, membership and outlook. There are now fifty-seven members.

THE FORE RIVER SECRET.

Fleet of Submarines Building May Be for the Japanese Navy.

Work Is Being Rushed on Them Nights As Well as Days.

The New York World and other papers this morning print the following story of local interest:

With unceasing labor, attended by scrupulous secrecy, the Japanese government is having rushed to completion in this country a fleet of submarine torpedo boats intended to excel any war craft of their type in the world.

No more remarkable instance of the secret initiative which has marked the movements of Japan in the war with Russia is afforded than that presented in this work by American ship builders.

Screened by two unfinished American battleships and two steel barges of the Standard Oil company, two cigar-shaped steel hulls are on the stocks in the Fore River iron works at Quincy Point, Mass.

All today a force of men were working with might and main on the hulls. When night came another force took up the work. Thus it has been since the last week in July, and thus it will be until the boats disappear from their stocks with even greater secrecy than has attended their construction.

It is highly improbable that the U. S. government can hinder the growth or prevent the delivery to Japan of this formidable fleet. International law forbids a neutral power to increase the belligerent capacity of a nation at war, and it is under obligation to see that its citizens do not transgress in this respect.

But official investigation of the secret work on those torpedo boats would be met with the reply that the fleet is being constructed on contract for private parties.

This is not only technically, but literally true, because the Fore River works are building the submarines for the Holland company, which has heretofore done a large amount of work on speculation, boats being built before a buyer was secured.

It is certain that no records exist by which the U. S. government can prove that the fleet is intended for a nation at war.

Explanation of the meaning of this important move in the Russo-Japanese war game goes back to early in the summer, when Japanese spies notified their government that German ship builders had received from the Russian government contracts for several submarine torpedo boats.

Agents of the Japanese government in this country notified the Holland submarine boat company that it would be well to send a representative to Japan at once.

A representative sailed for Tokio, and on June 4 entered into a contract with the Japanese government to build five submarine torpedo boats of greater speed and deeper diving capacity than is possessed by any submarine boat now known.

Quite as important as the specifications of the boats and the necessity for prodigious activity in completing them was the demand for absolute secrecy. Japan desired to catch her enemy unawares with the most formidable, if not the largest submarine fleet possessed by any power.

The three features which will give to the boats of this fleet a supremacy over any other submarine craft now in service or under contract are ability to attempt long sea voyages, made possible by bilge keels, which have not heretofore been installed on submarines; greater speed to be accomplished by a secret method of utilizing both electricity and gasoline for motor power, and greater powers of submersion, due to diving rudders of secret design.

The submarines are known as Nos. 123, 124, 125, 126 and 127. They are identical in design and will cost when completed about $175,000 each. The contract calls for their delivery at the yard in January next, but a pressing demand was made in the last fortnight to complete the work earlier.

In deference to this, No. 123 will probably be finished early in November and the other boats will surely be completed in December. They are constructed of the best steel, reinforced amidships by a 10-foot strip of tobin bronze plates, half an inch in thickness. This feature is an important one over other types of submarines, and is calculated to lessen their vulnerability if sighted by the enemy while riding on the surface of the water.

They are 58 feet 9 inches from stem to stern and have an extreme width of 11 feet 9 inches. Their guaranteed speed is from 8 to 10 knots under water. This is considerably in excess of the speed of the latest types of submarines.

The Moccasin and the Adder, the two crack submarines of the U. S. navy, claim a maximum speed under water of only six knots. The Japanese boats are also guaranteed to maintain their speed at a depth of 125 feet.

Submarines of other nations seldom attempt to dive deeper than 40 feet and the prodigious advantage possesed by this fleet is therefore apparent. It will be able to dive far lower than the submarines said to be building for the Russian navy.

It is the feature of the bilge keel which appeals perhaps most strongly to the Japanese. This keel will enable the submarine to accompany a fleet of other fighting ships to sea without a tow. It is intended to obviate the danger encountered by the Moccasin and the Adder when they nearly foundered in a rough sea off the Atlantic coast some time ago.

This keel is made of a steel plate, three-eighths of an inch in thickness, 9 inches wide and extending along the hull 24 feet and 6 inches.

The two compressed air tanks usually found in submarines have been increased to four. The boats will have a continuous running capacity of 28 hours without recharging.

This extraordinary capacity is made possible by the introduction of two gasoline tanks, one on each side of the boat. The method of utilizing gasoline, however, is a secret. There are storerooms for compressed food in the after end of the midship section.

It is intended to minimize the dangers with which the crew of a submarine are always confronted. The crew will consist, besides the captain of three engineers, two electricians, three gunners and four helpers. Each submarine will carry one whitehead torpedo.

Mr. Fagataru is the Japanese representative in this country who is supervising the formation of the fleet.

Ex-Rear Admiral Bowles, U. S. N., who was before his retirement chief of the bureau of construction and repair in Washington, is in full charge of the Fore River iron works and is supervising the work of the fleet.

Active supervision, however, is had by William Bush, who was formerly head man to the Nixon shipyards at Elizabethport, N. Y.

Preparations are already being made for getting the boats safely out of the United States. It was at first planned to take them apart and ship the various sections "flat" in cargoes of grain.

This plan was abandoned, however, the latest order being to deliver the boats at the yard in three sections. The problem of shipment is by far the greatest which now confronts the Japanese. It is certain that they have a plan satisfactory to themselves, because of the painstaking care which is being observed in preparing the sections.

Each boat will be set up as complete as if expected to enter Boston bay. Absolute fidelity in each bolt and rivet is demanded. After being pronounced satisfactory, the unsectioning will begin. This done, each boat will consist of the forward end, forming the torpedo-tube chamber, the mid-section, containing the engine and driving and steering apparatus and the after compartments.

When received in Japan the submarines can be put together with great speed, and with the assurance that they will be air and water tight.

The hulls of the boats are now complete and the fleet has been turned over to electricians and expert machinists for interior work.

UNDER PROTECTION.

Drift of Opinion.

☞Old-fashioned names for girls are in favor again, after these years of Gwendolen and Eloise, Marguerite and Aileen, Katharyne and Mamie. The girl who would once spell her name Carrye now signs it demurely Caroline, and rejoices in the beautiful old-fashioned name. Sara has resumed her final "h," which she once dropped in scorn. Mollie, Marie and May are now Mary, that most beautiful of all names. Lizzie would be horrified if you called her anything but Elizabeth, and Jennie wants to be known as Jane, and no mistake about it. Suzette and Suzanne are glad to return to the plain, dignified old name of Susan, and Nan calls herself Nancy with more pleasure than she ever dreamed of. Lou, Louie and Lulu are now Louise, and one girl who was christened for her grandmother, but always called herself Annie, is proud of displaying Hannah on her cards. It is a revival quite in keeping with the other old styles in dress and house-furnishing which have been with us of late. The plain, old-fashioned names possess a dignity and charm which no other can. The most abused of all names, Catharine, which has been distorted in all sorts of ways, with such variations as Kate, Katie, Kathryn, Katharine, and so on, has come into its own with this revival.—Buffalo Commercial.

☞It is the spirit of President Roosevelt's letter, rather than its detail, which recommends it to the Republican voter, and which we are confident will commend it to a majority of all the voters of the country. We do not think it either wise or reasonable to assume that Mr. Roosevelt is infallibly right in every act or word. He can be honored and confided in without setting up for him any such ridiculous standard of perfection. "We have," he says, "striven both for civic righteousness and for national greatness; and we have faith to believe that our hands will be upheld by all who feel love of country and trust in the uplifting of mankind. We stand for enforcement of the law and for obedience to the law; our government is a government by orderly liberty equally alien to tyranny and to anarchy; and its foundation stone is the observance of the law, alike by the people and by the public servants. We hold ever before us as the all important end of policy and administration the reign of peace at home and throughout the world; of peace, which comes only by doing justice." That is right; and that is the reason that Theodore Roosevelt should be re-elected president of the United States.—New Bedford Standard.

☞There is one less Sunday paper in Boston, the Journal dropping out of the bunch, for the present, the publishers concluding that there are a good many occupations more inviting just now than that of forcing another big Sunday newspaper upon the readers of Boston and New England." Even now there are four mammoth Sunday publications in Boston, and eight or ten more from New York are dumped upon the market, so that Sunday reading makes the day burdensome where there might be rest. The competition among the publishers has forced the papers up to such proportions that no one can hope to read all of any one, to say nothing of the attempt to look through them all. We are sorry to see any enterprize abandoned, but the disappearance of several more, or the reduction of the number of pages would be a blessing.—Lynn Item.

WAS UNEXPECTED

Entry of Lena at San Francisco a Disagreeable Event

JAPAN MAKES A PROTEST

Question of Cruiser's Right to Make Repairs Must Be Settled Between United States and Russia--Carried 25 Guns

Washington, Sept. 13.—The expected protest of Japan against allowing the Russian auxiliary cruiser Lena, which arrived at San Francisco Sunday, to remain longer than 24 hours, came when the Japanese consul in that city, through the collector of customs, made formal demand that the vessel be required to leave at the end of that time.

The collector's telegram, officially notifying the authorities of the arrival of the Lena and of Japan's protest, was addressed to the secretary of the treasury, who at once sent copies to acting Secretary of State Adee and acting Secretary Murray of the department of commerce and labor, who has direct jurisdiction in the matter.

After a conference with the commissioner of navigation, acting Secretary Murray sent a dispatch to the collector asking for the hour of steamer's arrival at the port and a concise resume of the steamboat inspector's report, and if repairs are necessary, the probable time required to complete them.

The collector's telegram came after office hours and the officials were somewhat puzzled that there should have been so much delay in sending it. There was a good deal of reticence on the subject on the part of the officials of the department of commerce and labor and of the bureau of navigation, who preferred to await the report of the steamboat inspector before making any statement. The Lena will have been in port over 24 hours before the question of her right to lie up for repairs is determined.

Mr. Takahira, the Japanese minister, returned here last night from a brief visit to New York. His course regarding the Lena will depend altogether on the state department's action, but it can be stated that the minister has every confidence that this government will act promptly and in strict accordance with international law. He will see Acting Secretary of State Adee today.

Depending Upon Inspectors' Report

San Francisco, Sept. 13.—At the conclusion of a conference between Collector Stratton and the Japanese consul neither would say in detail what had been said. Collector Stratton, however, gave out a statement, in which he said:

"I have decided not to allow the Japanese to go aboard the Lena to make an examination. This matter is between the United States and the Russian government. The neutrality of the United States will be maintained without regard to any request or act of the Japanese consul."

The United States inspectors of hulls and boilers have been ordered to make a thorough examination of the Lena and on their report will largely depend the duration of the stay of the vessel in this bay. If it is decided that repairs are required they will be made as rapidly as possible, and it is generally anticipated that this is what will be done. In the meantime the collector, in view of the fact that the repairs are said to be imperative, has refused to order the Lena from the harbor within 24 hours without a full investigation.

Being asked how long he would remain here, Navigating Officer Speckneff said: "The Lena will probably remain here until the war is over. We expect that the officers and crew will be sent home by way of New York."

An inspection of the decks of the converted cruiser, to which no objection was made, revealed the fact that she had mounted 25 guns. The Japanese consul had little to say on the subject of the Lena's presence in the harbor.

Not Dealing With China This Time

London, Sept. 13.—The Morning Post Japanese critic in London, touching upon the arrival of the Russian transport Lena at San Francisco, says: That the United States will be resolute and prompt in the enforcement of its laws goes without saying. The subterfuges which served Russia's turn where Chinese neutrality had been in question will not suffice to secure a prolongation of the Lena's stay when Californian harbors are concerned. That the appearance of the Lena at San Francisco coincides with the projected shipments of large quantities of flour and other cargoes to Japan from the Pacific coast is a circumstance which United States officials assuredly will not fail to observe.

In No Great Hurry

St. Petersburg, Sept. 13.—The Baltic fleet, which sailed from Cronstadt Sunday, is expected to remain at Libau for about a fortnight. Thence it will sail for the Mediterranean.

Roosevelt's Influence Sought

London, Sept. 13.—E. D. Morel has been appointed to present a memorial to President Roosevelt setting forth that, as the foremost citizen of the United States, he should use his influence to promote the radical reform of the Congo independent state. The memorial is signed by many influential people in England.

NOTHING BUT RUMORS

Lull In News From Far Eastern War Zone Continues

London, Sept. 13.—Blood has ceased to flow in Manchuria. The sanguinary side of the Russo-Japanese conflict is not now in evidence, and with the practical suspension of news from the front the interest, for the time being, centers in rumors—that Viceroy Alexieff has resigned, as reported Sunday; that General Kuropatkin is to be replaced by Lieutenant General Linevitch, now in command of the forces at Vladivostok, and other statements which cannot be traced to authentic sources, but all of which, if true, would have a most important bearing on the situation.

One Russian correspondent points out that when the Japanese withdraw from the Russian front it is usually the precursor of their appearance on the flanks and he thinks the indications point to a winter campaign.

Interest again turns to Port Arthur and to the effect which the Russian defeat at Liaoyang is likely to have on the garrison there, and the fear is expressed that the siege will soon end in disaster for Russian arms.

Trouble on the French Shore

St. Johns, Sept. 13.—Within the past few days a British warship, on the demand of the French commodore, stopped a party of colonial lobster catchers on the French shore. On the fishing banks 14 armed men from a French vessel boarded a colonial vessel and carried off her whole store of bait. Another French crew did the same thing to another colonial vessel. A French vessel deliberately ran down and nearly sank a colonial fishing smack. Grave apprehension is felt respecting these outrages.

Waggaman Contests Receivership

Washington, Sept. 13.—Thomas E. Waggaman, in his answer to the petition for the appointment of a receiver, declares that a receivership for his real estate is entirely unnecessary because the pending proceedings in the matter of his estate make it impossible for him in any wise to change its status. He contends that there is no necessity for the appointment of a custodian for securities held by him until the appointment of a trustee in bankruptcy.

Irish Envoys Speak at Lawrence

Lawrence, Mass., Sept. 13.—John E. Redmond and Patrick O'Brien, members of the Irish parliamentary party, addressed the immense audience here last night upon the progress made by the Irish National party and the plans for the future. The call for funds to prosecute the cause was responded to by a contribution of over $500.

Fights In Chicago Stockyards

Chicago, Sept. 13.—Two savage attacks were made on non-union workers last night at the stockyards and in the fights that followed eight persons were injured, four of them so severely that it was necessary to take them to hospitals. The police say the attacks were made to frighten non-union men into quitting the stockyards.

To Discuss World's Questions

St. Louis, Sept. 13.—Speeches of greeting and felicitations by delegates of the 14 nations represented occupied the first session of the interparliamentary union. No questions were discussed nor business of any nature transacted. The union will begin the discussion of international questions at today's session.

Train Turned Into Shambles

Valdosta, Ga., Sept. 13.—In a row on a passenger train coming from Jacksonville, Fla., to this city last night a white man named Jackson Duncan was stabbed to death, two negroes were killed and Marshal Duncan was stabbed in several places. The killing was the result of a long standing quarrel.

Commerce With Far-Off Possessions

Washington, Sept. 13.—The commerce of the United States with its non-contiguous territories aggregated more than $100,000,000 in the fiscal year just ended. Under the term non-contiguous territory are included Porto Rico, the Hawaiian islands, the Philippine islands, Guam, Tutuila and Alaska.

Labor Organizations Disagree

Sioux City, Ia., Sept. 13.—The National Building Trades council opened its annual session here with 50 delegates in attendance. The session is a critical one in the history of the council, for the Structural Building Trades alliance, a formidable rival, is seriously threatening it.

Turkey Settles $25,000 Claim

Constantinople, Sept. 13.—The Ottoman bank has notified the American legation here that it holds $25,000 at its disposal, in settlement of the claim for land illegally seized and belonging to an American citizen at Smyrna.

Cotton Shippers Scared

Fort Worth, Tex., Sept. 13.—The presence of a Russian warship at San Francisco has caused cotton shippers here to take out war risks. Much cotton is shipped from Texas to Japan. Risks are from 10 to 15 cents a bale.

Business Blocks Wiped Out

Idaho Falls, Ida., Sept. 13.—Almost every business block in this city was wiped out by a fire that started in the Butte cafe and which burned seven hours. The loss will reach $300,000.

The Weather Forecast

Almanac, Wednesday, Sept. 14.
Sun rises—5:22; sets—5:56.
Moon sets—9:17 p. m.

CITY BREVITIES.

The Wollaston Park A. A. has won 16 games out of 19 this season.

Mayor Bryant will be one of the judges of poultry at the Brockton fair. Arrangements have been made to house about 4,000 entries.

Rally Sunday will be observed at the Washington Street Congregational Sunday-school on Sunday. It is hoped that all members and others will be present.

Miss Elsie Phillips and Miss Theo Crane, who have gone to New Hampshire to teach, were both members of this year's graduating class at Woodward.

The Woman's Home Missionary Society of the Washington Street Congregational church will meet Thursday afternoon with Mrs. Culver of South Central avenue Wollaston.

The Bethany church Brotherhood will give another first class entertainment course this fall, on Wednesday evenings, to be opened Oct. 5 by the Copley Square Trio. There will be five entertainments at the popular price.

$25,000 Educational Fund.

Every one remembers the famous contests which the Globe has conducted among it readers in the past—the greatest and fairest ever held under the auspices of a newspaper. The Globe now intends to beat its own record with a $25,000 contest, open to every one in New England, and in which more than 500 readers of the Globe will win.

This great fund of $25,000 is placed absolutely at the disposal of the readers of the Globe, all of whom are invited to take part in the selection of the beneficiaries.

In elections of this kind the young readers of the Globe are always the most active participant. As an incentive to them the Globe offers a chance for 500 boys and girls to win valuable rewards. Please read the conditions in the Boston Globe.

Political Potpouri.

Jay B. Crawford of Ward 16, Boston, and George G. Gates of Ward 14, are candidates for the Republican nomination for Congress in the Tenth district. Mr. Gates is also seeking the Democratic nomination.

How Fishes Talk.

Fishes undoubtedly communicate with their fellows. Even if they cannot "talk," they have other means of communication that are better adapted to their needs. We know how readily fishes recognize their mates and how quickly brooding fishes repel intruders of their own or other species. Something besides seeing them—perhaps some sense of which we have no conception—may do this. Many fishes communicate with their fellows by means of sounds produced through the medium of their air bladders, by grinding their teeth together and in various other ways.

The sense of touch is highly developed in many fishes and doubtless enables them to communicate. The sense of taste, located all over the skin in some fishes, in the fins in others, and the sense of smell, strongly developed in some forms of submarine life, also must be aids to communication.—St. Nicholas.

Landing In France.

A traveler in France in the early part of the nineteenth century describes his landing at Boulogne by means of a small boat as follows: "The boat rowed toward the nearest shore until it ran aground, which happened in the midst of the breakers. In an instant the boat was surrounded by a throng of women up to their middles and over, who were there to carry us on shore. Not being aware of these maneuvers, we did not throw ourselves into the arms of these sea nymphs so readily as we might have done, whereby those who sat in the stern of the boat were deluged with sea spray."

What It Costs
... AND ...
What It Pays

are two values of newspaper advertising that the merchant has to consider. But the most important thing is

WHAT IT PAYS.

The merchant can get space in papers of small circulation and little influence for a little less money than the same size space would cost in the DAILY LEDGER and the QUINCY PATRIOT.

DOES IT PAY

to throw away the certainty of the profitable returns which are sure to LEDGER and PATRIOT advertisers, because it costs less to advertise in a cheaper paper?

ON A FRAUD ORDER

Preferred Mercantile Company Under Postal Ban

ARREST OF TREASURER

Boston Concern Which Executed Leases and Sold Them on Instalment Plan In Numerical Order--Did Big Business

Boston, Sept. 13.—Guy C. Stillings, treasurer of the Preferred Mercantile company, with an office in the Winthrop building, was taken into custody by deputies from United States Marshal Darling's office, on the complaint of Postal Inspector Snow.

For several months the postoffice department, alleging an illegal use of the mail service, has been trying to stop the business of this concern, which is thought to be fraudulent. Months ago it issued a fraud order against a company of almost the same name in Kansas. The officers who were behind the scheme in that place are said to have come to Boston and resumed operations here of the same kind. Here a stop order was issued, because of evidence produced by Inspector Snow, and this tied up the mail so that the company's business virtually ceased for a while.

Through the United States circuit court the company secured a restraining order which temporarily released some of the mail; but the stop order remained in force and the company declared its intention to take the case before the United States supreme court to test the constitutionality of the postmaster general's supposed power to interfere in this way with the mail of a private concern. No such appeal was taken, however, and it was supposed that the concern had given up its business, until recently new evidence came to the attention of the postal authorities.

Now the government claims to have found that the treasurer, who was arrested yesterday afternoon, has been carrying on the business on exactly the same plan as the former company did, except that the business has been transacted in the name of the defendant or some agents who were not named in the fraud order. Furthermore it is alleged that the business has been even more prosperous since the fraud order was issued, and that recently an effort was made to buy the North American Trust company, which was broken up a few weeks ago when the trustees of that concern were arrested.

In the advertisements issued for the mercantile company it is claimed that up to last July it had written policies, or leases, to the amount of $1,655,630. It has 40 branch offices in various parts of the country, many of which were unknown to the authorities the first time action was taken against the concern. It is supposed, therefore, that some of the branch offices have been opened recently.

The plan of the concern is to execute leases, and sell them on the instalment plan to be matured in rotation, or numerical order. Customers buy these leases and pay $1.10 a week until they have paid $110, with the understanding that when such sum has been paid they can have $180 cash or a diamond ring worth $200. The time when they can have the values of the lease is dependent, however, upon how soon enough money is derived from other lease holders to pay it.

In the Winthrop building the concern occupies fine offices, its rooms being 402, 403 and 405. Guy C. Stillings is treasurer and secretary, and George E. Stillings president. J. F. Kingsley of this city is said to be state agent for the firm. President Stillings is at present in the west, but is expected to return this week.

Treasurer Stillings, when brought before Commissioner Fiske, pleaded not guilty and waived the reading of the complaint. The case was continued for one week and the defendant was held in $2000. It is said that more arrests will be made later.

No Pressure Upon Panama

Paris, Sept. 13.—M. Bunau-Varilla, former minister of Panama to the United States, has written a letter in which he states that the transfer to American control of Ancon and Cristobal was the free action of Panama, without duress from the United States. The letter maintains the correctness of the American course throughout the Panama transaction.

Canadian Challenge Accepted

Rochester, Sept. 13.—The Rochester Yacht club, holder of the Canada cup, has accepted the challenge of the Royal Canadian Yacht club of Toronto for a series of races between 30-footers in 1905. Several boats will be built on both sides of the lake to take part in these races.

Whole Town Under Water

El Paso, Sept. 13.—The flood of the Rio Grande river wiped away the town of Presidio del Norte with the exception of one house and that expected to go momentarily. The water is four feet deep in the town.

Diamond Showed His Heels.

New York, Sept. 13.—Diamond won the $15,000 produce stakes at Brighton beach. The produce is run in two parts, the first race being for colts and geldings. The second half will be for fillies.

Increase In Postal Receipts

Washington, Sept. 13.—In the statement of the gross receipts for August at the 50 leading points of the country by camparison with August of last year only two offices, Des Moines and Hartford, showed a decrease over last August. The net increase of the 50 cities averaged 12.79 percent, as against an increase of population, which probably does not exceed 3 percent.

Disobedience Caused Wreck

Reno, Nev., Sept. 13.—A. L. Hicks, fireman, and an unidentified man were killed and several passengers were injured by a collision between passenger trains at Lawton. Both trains were double-headers. All four locomotives were wrecked as well as the baggage and day coaches on both trains. The accident was due to disobedience of orders.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Secretary of State Hay has accepted the invitation of the international peace congress to be present at their meeting at Boston on Oct. 3 and to deliver a brief address.

The 50th anniversary of the opening of the Boston theatre, one of the largest in America, was appropriately celebrated. The "Wizard of Oz" was the piece selected for the anniversary bill.

Henry E. Jacobs, 58, of Bridgeport, Conn., local manager of the Equitable Life Assurance Society of New York, died suddenly at Boston. Death is believed to have been due to heart failure.

Large numbers of bankers from all parts of the United States have reached New York to attend the preliminary conference of the American Bankers' association.

The promoters of the Marcus A. Hanna Memorial Chair association state that the fund of $100,000 which they seek to raise is growing in a satisfactory manner.

Philip W. Moen, formerly vice president and director of the American Steel and Wire company, died suddenly from apoplexy at his summer home at Shrewsbury, Mass. He was 47 years old.

The Gage Paper company was incorporated at Albany with a capital of $150,000.

Judge Lanning, in the United States circuit court at Trenton, authorized Receiver Smith to lease the Atlantic Coast Electric Railroad company to the Sea Coast Electric line.

WRONGFULLY SEIZED

Massachusetts Regiment Did Not Lose Its Colors at Manassas

Boston, Sept. 13.—Regarding the seizure of the colors of the Fifth regiment of infantry, M. V. M., by a detachment of the Seventh U. S. cavalry during the army maneuvers at Manassas, Colonel Oakes, commander of the Fifth regiment, has made public the following letter received by him from Captain Sigerfoos, Fifth U. S. Infantry, and adjutant general attached to the headquarters of the First brigade at Manassas:

"The brigade commander directs me to inform you that he regrets exceedingly the seizure of the colors of your regiment on Sept. 6 by the mounted detachment of the Seventh cavalry. This was an act which was not only expressly forbidden by the rule governing the manauvers, but in actual warfare would have been impossible of accomplishment.

"This capture was especially out of place even had the rules permitted it, as this detachment of the Seventh cavalry had just been ruled out of action by an umpire as having been annihilated by the fire of a large force of infantry. The action of the company guarding the colors in not forcibly resisting the seizure was especially commendable, as very serious trouble might have resulted."

A Boston Mystery

Boston, Sept. 13.—The finding of a badly decomposed body, later identified by the police as that of Otto Coblenzer, a well-to-do coal dealer, by some boys in the thick of Young's woods, Dorchester, furnished the police with what they consider a big mystery. The police say Coblenzer disappeared from his home Sept. 2 under circumstances in which a love affair was blended. They claim to have gathered evidence that points almost equally strong to murder or suicide theories for a solution of the affair.

Weavers Win at Waltham

Waltham, Mass., Sept. 13.—The weavers of the cotton mills of the Boston Manufacturing company are at work again, after having been on a strike for the past six weeks, the cotton mill officials agreeing to the terms demanded by the strikers. The strike was caused by the mill owners demanding that each weaver run six looms, instead of four, and this the weavers refused to do.

Looking For "Gentleman Thief"

Newport, R. I., Sept. 13.—Rich cottagers have decided to wage a careful war of extermination upon the "gentleman thief" who is supposed to have already stolen some $308,000 worth of gems from society leaders, although a large part of it has been mysteriously returned. Besides these thefts, it is stated that as much more has been stolen, but that the losers have kept quiet.

Bequests to Hospital and Church

Brattleboro, Vt., Sept. 13.—The will of the late Colonel William Austine bequeaths $50,000 to establish a hospital in this town "for the temporary treatment of strangers and local invalids peculiarly situated." Other public bequests are $5000 in a fund for charitable uses by St. Michael's Episcopal church and $10,000 in a permanent fund.

Quarreled Over Marriage

Providence, Sept. 13.—From wounds alleged to have been inflicted by his brother Michaele, Giovanni Sylvestri died. The trouble between the two is supposed to have started over a younger sister of the men, Giovanni being opposed to her prospective marriage, while Michaele was in favor of the match. Michaele has fled.

Overdue Launch and Party Safe

Bridgeport, Conn., Sept. 13.—The launch Zolfo, with William Robinson, wife and daughter, and R. F. Kolb and wife on board, came into the harbor after having been held on Long Island shore since Thursday evening by a series of storms. Fears had been expressed that the party had been lost.

Boston's Many Schoolchildren

Boston, Sept. 13.—When the Boston schools open tomorrow for the year 1904-05, it is expected that there will be accommodations for all who may apply for registration. It is figured that 95,000 children will apply for registration.

Alleged Thief In Custody

Hartford, Sept. 13.—George Chapalts, a watchmaker and jeweler, was arrested last night by Hoboken detectives for alleged complicity in the theft of $3600 at West Hoboken, N. J., Aug. 7.

Ended Life With Poison

Lynn, Mass., Sept. 13.—Lillie Tucker, 18 years old, committed suicide by poisoning last night at her mother's home. No reason can be assigned for her act.

No Change In Hoar's Condition

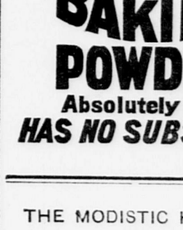

Worcester, Mass., Sept. 13.—The report from Senator Hoar's house is that he is very comfortable and there is no material change in his condition.

Still Fighting the Heroros

Berlin, Sept. 13.—The reinforcement of General Von Trotha, commander-in-chief of the forces in German Southwest Africa, which are operating against the Hereros, continues. A detachment of 450 is about to start for Africa.

Atlantic Wins Cape May Cup

New York, Sept. 13.—Wilson Marshall's three-masted schooner-yacht Atlantic won the race for the Cape May cup. She covered the 220-mile course in 38:28:06.

The Vogue of Painted Lace—Colors For Traveling Toilets.

There are indications no bigger than a man's hand on the modistic horizon that painted lace is again coming to the fore On one or two handsome coats seen at a Paris atelier it has made its appearance. In one instance the lace was introduced on a beautiful coat of pompadour silk, with a hood of real valenciennes, while a deep flounce of the same ran all round the bottom. The flounce was headed by tiny rosettes of pale pink, mauve and blue ribbon.

There is no reason to quarrel with painted lace any more than with painted chiffon, provided the lace subjected to this treatment is of the cheaper varieties. To paint old lace is almost a crime.

The colors most in vogue for traveling costumes just now are those which come under the general head of pain bruile, running up the scale from the palest buff to a bright and very charming nut brown.

In the millinery world the brilliant shades of parrot are still in great demand. Entire green hats are shown in the shops, and owls' heads, breasts or wings of vivid green are in high favor. The idea of having the hat match the costume is gaining popularity with amazing rapidity, and milady may find it necessary in the very near future to purchase a new hat with every gown. The large, short back sailors, with straight brims, or those bent down at the back have been christened the Charlotte Corday and are almost universally becoming. The crowns are square, round, oval or triangular and surrounded by velvet ribbon, arranged in conventional loops.

A white cloth frock is an indispensable possession of the smart woman, and the picture given is of this genre. The skirt is accordion plaited, while the stunning coat, with its three-quarter length basque, is bordered and trimmed with knife plaited frills of white taffeta glace, the upper part being arranged with frills that are curved to give a bolero effect.

NOTES ABOUT TOWN.

The temperature took a big drop during the night.

C. H. Tower is having a portion of his house reshingled.

George W. Jones has returned from a two weeks' outing in New Hampshire.

Mrs. Walter Gardner is slowly recovering from her recent serious illness.

Beginning today illustrated fashion hints will be an almost daily feature of the Ledger.

Frank M. Chubbuck and Jeremiah E. Ford left Monday on a trip to Halifax, Nova Scotia.

Mrs. Fanny Sampson has returned from a visit to her daughter, Mrs. Walter Gardner.

The City Council committees on Finance and Fire Department met Monday evening.

Miss Elizabeth Brown is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Brown of Washington street.

Perry Brayton, formerly of Quincy, was in town Sunday and called on some of his friends at Quincy Point.

Miss Adelia Barber of Botolph street is at home after spending part of the summer at North Woodstock, N. H.

Dr. Merrill and family have returned to their home in Wollaston, after spending nine weeks at their home in Pembroke.

Mrs. Edwin A. Wells and Miss Winnie Vance Wells of Leicester have been the guests of Miss Ida J. Cameron of Quincy street.

Mr. William Crawford, chief-draftsman of the hull department of the Fore River Shipbuilding Company is enjoying a week's vacation.

Charles H. Johnson is taking the annual school census of the city. He has completed Wards Three and Four and is now in Ward Two.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Blake have returned from their summer outing at Lake Pearl and have opened their house on Billings street.

Many will be pleased to learn that the Daily Ledger is to publish a serial by Mary E. Wilkins, formerly of Randolph. Opening chapter Saturday.

James E. Dinegan, driver of the Hook and Ladder Co. No. 3, of Wollaston, returned Monday, from his vacation which he spent in New York city.

The funeral of Mrs. Letticia M. Jameson, late of this city, will be held at her old home, Dunbarton, N. H., on Wednesday afternoon at two o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Collins were given a surprise at their cottage at Houghs Neck Monday and were presented with a silver service. There were refreshments and dancing.

Arthur W. Stetson is traveling with Hugh De Payens commandery, K. T., which met with a railroad collision in Nevada on Monday. A dispatch says none of the members were injured.

There was an addition to the Quincy reporters staff Saturday, when a son was born to Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Collins. Tim says this boy will probably be on the night shift for a while.

The Old Colony Grocers and Provision Dealers' Association will hold their monthly meeting tomorrow evening at the Squantum Inn. There will be a reception at 5 o'clock, and dinner will be served at 6 o'clock.

A HEAVY VOTE CAST

Both Parties In Maine Show Gains Over Ballots of 1900

COBB ELECTED GOVERNOR

Republican Candidates For Congress Are Also Successful--Republicans Have 15 Percent Increase, Democrats 31 Percent

Portland, Me., Sept. 13.—The Republicans carried the state for William T. Cobb of Rockland, candidate for governor, by a plurality of about 30,000 over Cyrus W. Davis of Waterville, his Democratic opponent.

Complete returns will not be received for several days, but 300 out of 522 cities, towns and plantations, give Cobb 59,705, Davis 38,399. The same places in 1900 gave Hill (Rep.) 51,705, Lord (Dem.) 29,302. These returns show a Republican gain of about 15 percent and a Democratic gain of about 31 percent over 1900. The vote for governor was the largest since 1888.

In the light of pre-election claims both parties should be satisfied with the result. The Republicans placed Cobb's plurality at 18,000. The Democrats stated that if the Republican plurality of 33,384 of four years ago was reduced by one vote that they should regard it as a Democratic victory.

All four of the Republican members to congress were re-elected. Amos L. Allen in the First, and Charles E. Littlefield in the Second, were returned by practically the same pluralities as in 1900, while in the Third Congressman Burleigh ran ahead of his vote of four years ago. In the Fourth district Congressman Powers was re-elected by about 6500 plurality, compared with 6800 two years ago.

The Democrats made slight gains in both branches of the legislature, but not enough to affect the re-election of United States Senator Hale.

Many of the contests for sheriff were bitterly fought. In Portland, the city in which the enforcement of the prohibition law has always been a subject of discussion, the present Democratic sheriff, William F. Pennell, was re-elected by a plurality of 1900. The Democratic forces regard this as a strong endorsement of the Pennell plan of enforcing the law, the chief feature of which is the virtual licensing of the more respectable hostelries in Cumberland county.

In Kennebec county Sheriff Ham (Rep.) was re-elected over Colonel Plaisted, the Democratic nominee.

A. H. Lang, present Democratic sheriff of Somerset county, was defeated, C. A. Smith, his Republican opponent, having a plurality of 27.

The election passed under conditions favorable for a large vote. The weather, dull and threatening early in the day, became clear and inviting before noon and the voters flooded to the polls.

While the various county contests were bitter and hard fought, general interest was fixed on the probable plurality for Cobb, the Democrats aiming to reduce it below the 33,000 of 1900 and the Republicans determined to prevent a falling off. To these ends the leaders put forth every effort, especially in the large cities and towns. Early returns showed that both parties had made gains over the election of 1900, and it was also seen that the Democrats had outstriped the Republicans in many instances.

Both candidates were successful in their own cities, Cobb carrying Rockland by 367, Davis winning his own city by 38 votes.

Lewiston also went for Davis by 576, which was the largest single gain made by the Democrats in the early returns.

Hendricks Not a Candidate

Saratoga, N. Y., Sept. 13.—The many conferences here have caused numberless rumors and increased the general interest in the political situation, but the question of the Republican nomination for the governorship remains unsettled, and until that is settled there can be no decision upon the nominations for the other state offices. Woodruff and Higgins are most talked of for governor and Hendricks has begun to be mentioned as a compromise candidate, though Hendricks himself declares that he is not a candidate.

Shurz to Speak to Germans

Chicago, Sept. 13.—The news that Carl Schurz will make 17 political speeches in Illinois for the Democratic national candidates is agitating Chairman Cortelyou, his lieutenants and the Republican state committee. There are many Germans in the Belleville district, many of whom came to America with Schurz in 1848.

Fairbanks Appears Satisfied

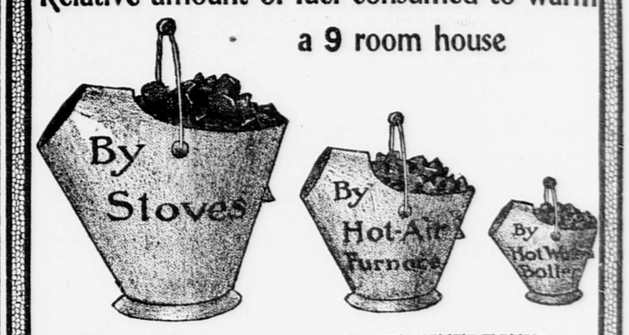

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Sept. 13.—Senator Fairbanks is a guest of President Roosevelt at Sagamore Hill. He arrived from New York last evening. He declined to discuss in detail his political observations, but indicated that so far as he could ascertain the situation was quite satisfactory from his point of view.

Hill's Long Talk With Parker

Esopus, N. Y., Sept. 13.—David B. Hill conferred with Judge Parker from noon yesterday until after 8 o'clock last night. It was given out that the visit was made at the request of Judge Parker. Senator Hill declared that there is no occasion for the Democrats to feel alarmed about the state ticket.

THE FULL SCORE.

How Wollaston Park A. A. Defeated the Boylston Church Team.

A more extended report of the game at Merrymount park on Saturday has been received, and is published by request.

The Wollaston Parks defeated the Boylstons Church base ball team at Merrymount park, Saturday, by a score of 13 to 8. This is the second time that they have met the Boylstons, winning the former game by an 8 to 7 score.

The Boylstons fearing defeat when they played on the Wollaston parks grounds, gathered together the best team that could be had in Jamaica Plain. They also secured a special battery for the occasion, but it was all the same to the Park boys. The Boylstons have the reputation of being heavy hitters, but Gram of the Park team took their measure in the first inning, and had things all his own way throughout.

The Park boys, knowing that the Bolystons won the former game by luck in the eighth inning, started in with a dash scoring three runs in the first inning and led throughout the game.

They made double the number of hits as the visitors getting fourteen to their seven. Kappler, Drake, Spargo and Patch got in some timely hits for the home team. While for the Bolystons, Lomberg and Schoenfuss, a harvard man, batted well, the latter getting a fine home run.

In the field the Parks played very fast ball, Kappler, Kelliher, Spargo and Patch getting in some fast work.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

ANOTHER ARREST

State Agent of Preferred Mercantile Company Arraigned

IS HELD IN $2000 BAIL

Government Claims That Concern Is Equivalent In Its Operation to a Lottery--Company's Officials Deny It

Boston, Sept. 14.—J. F. Knisely, state agent for the Preferred Mercantile company, is the second official of that concern to be placed under arrest. He surrendered himself to Deputy United States Marshal Pickering, in the federal building, and immediately was arraigned before Commissioner Fiske and held in $2000 bail for a hearing Sept. 16, the day on which the treasurer of the concern will have his preliminary hearing.

The treasurer, Guy C. Stillings, was previously arrested and his bail also was fixed at $2000. Both of these defendants had their headquarters in the company's head office in the Winthrop Building. Complaints against them had been entered by Postoffice Inspector Snow.

Knisely is alleged to be the man who caused to be inserted in the newspapers a few days ago an advertisement urging policy holders in the defunct North American trust to communicate with a certain address before accepting any settlement from the receiver of the North American trust. It is claimed that he received and answered the letters sent in reply to that advertisement, and that he offered to take their old policies and sell to them instead policies in the Preferred Mercantile company of Boston.

Large quantities of new circulars, giving testimonials, statistics and voluminous explanations have been issued within a few weeks.

The government claims that the business of the Preferred Mercantile company is equivalent in its operation to a lottery; and that the concern has no capital to meet its obligations and must depend upon the misfortune of some policy holders--those who allow policies to lapse—to pay the amounts due others. If the government claims are correct the use of the United States mail service in the transaction of this business is illegal, and one of the charges is that the company is making a fraudulent use of the mail service. Fraud orders have been issued against it, and the mail addressed to the company is being held in the Boston postoffice; but the members of the concern have been able to transact their business in the past few weeks, despite that order, by having their mail addressed personally.

Officials of the company say they are able to prove that they are doing a legal business; that they will be able to pay all the contracts that are carried on during the contract period. They advertise having four sources of income, or profit, namely: lapses, fines, transfer fees, and the difference between the wholesale and retail prices on the diamonds used to fill their contracts. In what is called the "forty-fifth monthly statement" the manager of the concern announces that the amount disbursed and paid to patrons up to May 10, 1901, was $6680, and that the amount has been growing steadily, so that up to Aug. 31, 1904, it was $436,841. It claims, also, that the business written up to Dec. 31, 1901, was only $220,380, whereas on July 31, 1904, it amounted to $1,655,030.

It has been located in Boston less than a year, and the government claims that it is the same concern that has operated in Kansas City and was driven out of there by a fraud order. Officials of the concern deny that a fraud order was issued against them in that city, and say that it is not the same company.

Attorney General Parker of this state has brought an information in the nature of quo warranto against the Preferred Mercantile company in the supreme court to prevent it from exercising certain corporate liberties and franchises, which it is alleged to have usurped. The concern is a Massachusetts corporation and it is for alleged abuse of the corporate powers that Parker has moved. He seeks to prevent the continuance of the corporation.

The abuse is alleged to consist in "issuing, selling and redeeming, as its sole business, a certain form of obligation called 'diamond lease.'" The company is also alleged to have been, without authority, selling the diamond leases on the instalment plan, which were not secured by adequate property.

THE BROTHERHOOD.

A Lecture on Bacteria, Followed by a Treat and Social Time.

Prof. Franklin T. Kurt of the Chauncey Hall school, Boston, interested a large attendance at the meeting of Bethany Brotherhood, on Tuesday evening, with lecture on "Bacteria: our friend as well as foe." He was introduced promptly at 8 o'clock by W. F. Sidelinger, the president, and spoke for an hour, holding close attention.

He said bacteria, was not of animal origin, as commonly supposed, but of the lowest order of plant life. That it was capable of multiplying very rapidly. While it was responsible for consumption, cholera and similar diseases, it was utilized to great benefit in many lines of business, and in nature itself. It was only recently that bacteria was fully understood, and the knowledge is a great value.

Questions were answered at the close.

President Sidelinger announced the attractions for the monthly meetings to follow, and then apples, pears, bananas and bags of pop corn were served in abundance. The new season was thus auspiciously opened.

Nude Figure Not Wanted.

Whether the figure of a woman representing Des Moines on the new city coat of arms, prepared for the bell to be given the cruiser Des Moes, built at Quincy, Mass., should be nude was the question of a warm debate at a committee meeting at Des Moines on Monday, says a dispatch from that city.

After art had been discussed pro and con the committee finally decided that nude figures or decollete costumes did not receive official sanction in Des Moines and Professor Cumming was requested to change the style of the maiden's dress.

THE POND HOME.

The King's Daughters Hear From One Who Appreciates it.

Nathan Weston, who is on a visit to Quincy friends, addressed Unity Circle of King's Daughters on Tuesday evening on the Pond Home for the Aged. He finds it a model home where the comforts of all the inmates are carefully considered, thanks to the generosity and attention of the King's Daughters and the wise selection of the manager.

It was the opening meeting of the season of Unity Circle in Bethany chapel and was largely attended. The business came first, and the work of this thorough organization takes a wide range and is doing good work where needed. A social hour followed the business; then the talk, and later refreshments.

Political Potpourri.

It looks now as though the two gentlemen who receive the Republican nominations for representatives to the general court at the caucus would be elected with but little opposition.

So far as known no Democrat is seeking the nomination. Chairman Carey of the Democratic City Committee informed the Ledger on Tuesday afternoon that no papers had been taken out for representative to the general court. As the nomination papers must be filed next Tuesday before 5 o'clock, the chances are that none will be and that the two Republicans nominated will receive little opposition.

As Albert G. Dolliver has accepted a government position since he took out his paper, the chances are that he will not file papers, as it is manifestly clear that he could not hold a government position and be a representative at the same time.

South African Boer War.

If I were asked to describe the South African Boer War at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition, I would answer that it can't be done. What the imagination cannot compass, words cannot portray. In the way of entertainment it is far ahead of other amusement features as the Exposition is ahead of all its predecessors. Its conception is a triumph of genius, its setting a work of tragic art, its execution a climax of fascinating and captivating entertainment. By comparison the exhibitions of the Roman gladiators were tame, and modern shows of the Wild West pale into commonplace. It surpasses all the other midway attractions rolled into one.

I could tell of the grand entree, in which are represented platoons of marching infantry, regiments of manouvring artillery: I might describe the hotly contested races between different nationalities, and I could possibly give in words a faint idea of the dancing horses, the wild antics of the Zulus, and the treking of the Boers with their oxen, mules and ponies; and real Boer wagons, but these are incidents, merely preliminary to the battles, which are the real show.

It is the fighting, struggles to the death, and dead and dying all around, that bring lumps to the throat, tears to the eyes, and cause the audience when all is over to relieve its pent up emotions by cheer upon cheer, as lusty and as loud as ever greeted true hero.

To characterize these scenes as origininal, fascinating, real, does not describe them; they are thrilling. In most sham battles the imitation is so apparent as to destroy the effect, here the fighting is so fierce, the struggle of the combatants so vividly realistic that one forgets the fallen forms are not dead, the surgeons are not binding real wounds, the burning wagons are not being consumed, or the bursting blaze from the exploding block houses is not what it seems. The thundering of cannon, reverberating above the rattle of musketry and the clash of steel, with men and animals reeling and falling to their death as one army dashes in deadly fray against the other, is a sight that thrills the soul and sets the audience wild.

Souvenirs of Bull Run.

Corp. H. J. Matthews who returned with the Eighth Massachusetts regiment, Monday evening, is much pleased with the experience obtained at Manassas. He says the boys were worked hard, obtaining very little sleep, and covered 15 to 20 miles per day. He brought the Ledger as souvenirs two of the new Springfield magazine rifle cartridges, 1904, which were furnished by the United States government.

—The power of an engine in India is sometimes given in elephant instead of horse-power, an elephant-power being equal to twenty-two horse-power.

ADVERTISE IN THE LEDGER.

ELECTROCUTED.

Employe at Power House Instantly Killed.

Received Current of 13,000 Volts.

One Hand Badly Burned and One Leg Discolored.

Christian Anshewitz, a Russian, employed as a laborer at the Old Colony power station at Quincy Point, was instantly killed at the station Tuesday afternoon by accidently coming in contact with a live wire, through which there was passing a current estimated at 13,000 volts.

Anshewitz with another man was engaged in sweeping out a corridor. On one side of the corridor were a number of recesses eighteen inches deep through which the feed wires were run. It is supposed that the unfortunate man entered one of these recesses to sweep out, when he accidently touched one of the wires with his left hand.

In an instant the current passed through him, and he dropped. Dr. W. J. Middleton worked over the man as did also Medical Examiner Jones who was notified, but without avail. The body was removed to Hall's undertaking rooms, where an examination was made.

His left hand was badly burned, the little finger being burnt entirely off. His right leg was also discolored.

The unfortunate man was 22 years of age, and lived at 595 Main street, Cambridge. The body was removed to Cambridge this morning.

An examination of the wires in the recess was made but no break could be found in the insulation which appeared to be perfect in every way.

Insured for $2,000,000

L. Rodman Wanamaker, son of John Wanamaker, the eminent merchant of New York and Philadelphia, has taken out a policy in

The Prudential Insurance Co.

for $1,000,000, paying an annual premium of over $30,000. This makes him the most heavily insured man in the world, with the single exception of King Edward VII.

Mr. Wanamaker's total insurance is now $2,000,000.

Ask yourself WHY Mr. Wanamaker placed one-half this great amount with The Prudential.

Your business judgment will at once reply: "Because after full investigation and comparison, Mr. Wanamaker found that the company which could give him the best insurance for a given amount of money was The Prudential."

Undoubtedly you will agree that Mr. Wanamaker does not pay over $30,000 per year except for most excellent reasons.

These reasons apply to YOU precisely as well as they do to HIM.

Drift of Opinion.

☞It is said that the sham battles at Manassas have been too severe for the men engaged. Not so bad as the real thing, however.—New Bedford Standard.

☞Men who have risen to eminence in trade, industry and professional life have not wasted their time in hunting up places where they would have little to do with comparatively small prospects of advancement. They have resolutely looked for openings which were accompanied by hard labor and plenty of it; and when they have secured such an opening they have usually proved that they had the right stuff in them by bucking down with energy to do their best.—Philadelphia Evening Bulletin.

☞This is pre-eminently the age of the young man. Great corporations, banks, railroads, newpapers, pulpits, the bar and nearly every business and profession is crying for young blood. It may be sad, but it's true, that in most places today age is at a discount. How great, therefore, the responsibilities, as well as the opportunities of youth! Make up your mind to do something and do it quickly, persistently and honorably. Every road to true success runs through a righteous purpose. Don't wait for "something to turn up," but go out and turn it up! The world admires a hustler. There is no promise in the Bible to either a lazy man or a coward. Humanity despises both.—Opportunity.

☞There are undoubtedly many among the vast numbers who enjoy swimming along our coast and river who realize that while they are enjoying this diversion, they are too, according to high authority, taking the most beneficial physical exercise. This is proven by Dr. Philip B. Hawk, demonstrator of physiological chemistry at the University of Pennsylvania, who has conducted a series of experiments. He visited the dressing rooms at the athletic field, and immediately before each athlete left for his exercise drew blood from him by means of the regularly prepared sterile needle. Then, when the athlete returned to the dressing-room, after running, jumping, pole-vaulting, or engaging in water-polo, the needle would again be brought into play, and a second sample of blood drawn. Analysis of the blood, to discover how far each exercise increased the number of red corpuscles, showed that the water-polo and other forms of swimming resulted in the largest increase. The swimming exercises were thus shown to be the most beneficial, for the greater the number of red corpuscles the richer is the blood. Swimming resulted in an average increase of twenty-one per cent. as against seventeen per cent. for the next best exercise—short-distance running.—Gloucester Times.

TWO CANDIDATES

Higgins and Woodruff Want Nomination For Governor

FORMER SEEMS TO LEAD

Friends Claim to Have Over 700 Votes Assured In His Favor--Woodruff Forces Will Carry Fight to Floor of Convention

Saratoga, N. Y., Sept. 14.—Unless the forces behind the candidacy of Lieutenant Governor Higgins change position before a vote is taken, there is every indication of his nomination by the Republican state convention to head the state ticket as candidate for governor. But one name is mentioned in opposition, that of former Lieutenant Governor Woodruff. All talk of a third candidate has been abandoned and the contest lies between these two men.

Governor Odell and his friends are outspoken in their advocacy of Higgins, and in a poll issued last night claim to have 709 votes assured in his favor. Senator Platt and Woodruff's advocates do not by any means admit this situation, and state most emphatically that they will carry the fight to the floor of the convention. Many believe, however, that Higgins will be the unanimous nominee of the convention.

The convention will hold only a preliminary session today, so that there is ample time in which an agreement may be reached. Higgins received many callers at his rooms last evening and hundreds of Higgins badges were distributed. Higgins declined to discuss the situation further than to say many of the delegates had assured him of their support.

Revised Figures From Maine

Portland, Me., Sept. 14.—Returns from the little towns and a careful revision of Monday night's figures place the Republican plurality for Cobb for governor at about 27,000. The Republican gain over 1900 is now estimated at 5 percent and the Democratic gain at 24 percent. All four congressmen are returned by pluralities ranging from 5000 to 7000. Next year's senate will stand 27 Republicans and 4 Democrats, as against 29 Republicans and 1 Democrat in the last legislature. The house will be 121 Republicans and 30 Democrats. The last house stood 131 Republicans and 20 Democrats.

The New Jersey Primaries

Trenton, Sept. 14.—Elections to the various conventions of both the Republican and Democratic parties were held in this state yesterday. The indications are that Edward C. Stokes will be the choice of the Republican state convention for governor. Of the Democratic state delegates elected Charles C. Black is prominently mentioned for governor. There are three other candidates.

To Hustle For German Vote

New York, Sept. 14.—The German bureau recently established by the Democratic national committee commenced active work today. It is the intention of the organization to work in all sections of the United States where there is a large German population. Large mass meetings will be held in New York, New Jersey, Connecticut, Illinois, Indiana and Wisconsin.

Roberts Has Inside Track

Hartford, Sept. 14.—In a vigorous defense of the Republican administration, United States Senator O. H. Platt opened the Republican state convention here last night. The indications are that Lieutenant Governor Roberts will be nominated for governor on the first ballot. In second place Rollin S. Woodruff will be named.

Treasurer Peabody's Assistant

New York, Sept. 14.—Charles R. Hall, a lawyer of this city, has been appointed assistant treasurer of the national Democratic committee. His position was created that the financial end of the campaign may be constantly in hand, as it is impossible for Treasurer Peabody to give his entire time to the work.

Peabody and the Labor Question

Denver, Sept. 14.—While the renomination of Governor Peabody by the Republican state convention is a foregone conclusion, surface indications point to a contest over the endorsement of the governor's action in connection with Cripple Creek labor troubles.

Gaston May Reconsider

Boston, Sept. 14.—Boston Democrats are urging Colonel Gaston to reconsider his informal announcement that he would not be a candidate for governor this year, and expect a favorable answer to their request. Richard Olney, according to information received by the state leaders, is practically out of it.

To Change Campaign Plans

Esopus, N. Y., Sept. 14.—Judge Parker expects to go to New York tomorrow to confer with political friends. It is believed that he has under consideration important plans of campaigning, intending to change completely the working methods in some sections.

Peace Negotiations Blocked

Buenos Ayres, Sept. 14.—Telegrams from Paraguay announce that there has been a break in the peace negotiations between the Paraguayan government and the insurgents.

GARVIN'S EXTRA SESSION

Met and Adjourned Without Discussing Recommendations

Providence, Sept. 14.—Governor Garvin's efforts to have passed amendments to the constitution providing for the constitutional initiative, for a moderate veto power for the governor, and for registry voters to vote for city councilmen proved futile, when the general assembly called in extraordinary session adjourned after about four hours' sitting without discussing in any way the recommendations of the governor made in his message. The entire time of the session was occupied by a struggle by the Democrats to block the Republicans' program of adjournment, but they were unable to prevent the majority from carrying out their plans.

A resolution to adjourn to Nov. 15 and incidentally severely condemning the action of the governor in calling the session was introduced by Senator Stines (Rep). A conflict which lasted three hours ensued on the adoption of the resolution, the Democratic leaders having the floor most of the time through their recognition by the governor.

Senator Stiness was continually on his feet, rising to points of order and appealing from the decisions of the chair. The senate finally passed the resolutions, and adjourned to await the action of the house.

Similar scenes in the house, though less lengthy, occurred, and that body also adjourned to Nov. 15. The senate, which meanwhile had reconvened, did likewise three minutes later.

Weavers' Union Gets a Loan

Fall River, Mass., Sept. 14.—The first serious signs of pecuniary distress in the unions has appeared. The Weavers' union is to make its fourth payment to members, beginning today. In order to make as large a distribution as usual it has been decided to accept a loan of $3000 from a local store, the loan to be paid by the union after the strike is over. The proceeds will be distributed in checks of $1 each, to be redeemed in goods purchased by the beneficiaries. The union will make a total payment of $8000, including the proceeds of the loan, and this will about exhaust its funds.

Willis Wilson Stricken

Boston, Sept. 14.—Willis H. Wilson, 23 years old, had an attack of apoplexy at 1185 Washington street and was taken to the city hospital in a patrol wagon. Wilson is the young man who was arrested on a charge of killing his mother and stepfather in Roslindale. The grand jury found no indictment against him and he was discharged. It was stated by Wilson and his friends at the time of the tragedy that he had for several years been afflicted with epilepsy. It is believed at the city hospital that it is that ailment from which he is suffering now.

Fifteen Jumped For Life

Boston, Sept. 14.—An explosion on a naphtha launch off Governor's island, caused by the holding of a lighted match near a leaking pipe, caused 15 of a party of 18 East Boston men to jump overboard, and in a period replete with danger and excitement loss of life was only prevented by the heroic action of John J. Douglas, James Glavin and James Lewis. Menaced by fire and water, they rescued unconscious and half drowned men, their exertions continuing until all the party had been accounted for.

Nashua Strike Settled

Nashua, N. H., Sept. 14.—The strike which has been in progress in the machine shops of Flather & Co. and the Mark Flather Planer company in this city since May 6 last has been declared off and the men have returned to work. The men charged that the two companies were making unjust discriminations against the union machinists. It is understood that a compromise was reached.

Identification of a Suicide

Exeter, N. H., Sept. 14.—The body of Hubert Gray, who committed suicide by poisoning at Hampdon Falls, was identified as that of the son of Edward G. Gray, a Cambridge, Mass., broker. The body had been buried by the town and it was necessary to exhume it when the father went to view the remains. He could ascribe no cause for his son's act.

Laid Near Car Track

Spencer, Mass., Sept. 14.—A trolley car struck Joseph Mayo, 48 years old, last night, inflicting injuries from which he died. Mayo lay beside the track with his head near a rail. The car was going down a steep grade and the motorman could not stop it.

For Making False Statement

Boston, Sept. 14.—The National Surety company of New York has been fined $1000 by the insurance commissioner for "wilfully making a false statement" to the insurance commissioner as regards its financial standing. The company paid the fine.

Suicide of an Editor

Portland, Me., Sept. 14.—Joseph W. Leathers, a lawyer and newspaper worker of this city, committed suicide by hanging while temporarily insane. He was 33 years old. For the past two years he has been editor of the Portland Advertiser.

Mrs. Mabel Hodges Hunt and infant son returned to their home in Hartford, Conn., today, having spent the summer with her parents and attended the weddings of two brothers.

The residents of Walker street do not lack for entertainment these days, for every fifteen minutes heavy gravel teams rumble past with dirt for the boulevard. The street already shows signs of wear in the deep ruts, and the people are becoming noticable by their nervousness. Thunder storms are nothing compared with the noise of the dump carts, and no sailor could rival the unique language with which the drivers urge on their weary steeds all day long. Verily, Walker street is the most undesirable location in Atlantic at present.

A ROMAN FIASCO.

The Colossal Show That Was Planned by Symmachus.

Symmachus, last of the great nobles of Rome, who, blinded by tradition, thought to revive the glories of his beloved city by reviving its shame, graphically describes the anxieties of the preparations for one of these colossal shows, on which he is said to have spent what would be about £80,000 of our money. He began a year in advance. Horses, bears, lions, Scotch dogs, crocodiles, chariot drivers, hunters, actors and the best gladiators were recruited from all parts. But when the time drew near nothing was ready. Only a few of the animals had come, and these were half dead of hunger and fatigue. The bears had not arrived and there was no news of the lions. At the eleventh hour the crocodiles reached Rome, but they refused to eat and had to be killed all at once in order that they might not die of hunger. It was even worse with the gladiators who were intended to provide, as in all these beast shows, the crowning entertainment. Twenty-nine of the Saxon captives, whom Symmachus had chosen on account of the well known valor of their race, strangled one another in prison rather than fight to the death for the amusement of their conquerors. And Symmachus, with all his real elevation of mind, was moved to nothing but disgust by their sublime choice! Rome in her greatest days had gloried in these shows. How could a man be a patriot who set his face against customs which followed the Roman eagles round the world? How many times since then has patriotism been held to require the extinction of moral sense?—Contemporary Review.

TO MAKE REPAIRS

The Lena Will Be Allowed to Remain at San Francisco

ADMIRARL GOODICH'S ACT

It Is Approved by President and He Will Continue to Handle the Case Under Instructions From Washington

Washington, Sept. 14.—The development so far as relates to the Russian cruiser Lena at San Francisco is the clearing up of the official muddle arising out of the doubt as to which of five departments of the government should deal with it. It was finally decided by the president that the state and navy departments should treat the case, acting jointly, a decision calculated greatly to simplify its handling.

A telegram from Admiral Goodrich at San Francisco showed that on his own initiative he had caused one of his expert officers to make a preliminary examination of the Lena and that temporary repairs would occupy six weeks' time and new boilers would involve eight months' delay. The president approved the admiral's action and decided that he should continue to handle the case in San Francisco under instructions from the state and navy departments.

This involved a further expert examination of the ship. The Russian government did not object; at least, the Russian consul at San Francisco gave that understanding, and within a day or two, with the assistance of expert mechanics, Admiral Goodrich will be able to report more closely on the repairs. The admiral also adopted the precaution of guarding the Lena with his own vessels, a course also approved by the departments.

Agreeable to the president's instructions, Acting Secretary Adee for the state department and Captain Pillsbury for the navy department had two conferences and the result was the preparation of instructions to Admiral Goodrich which, it is understood, were wired to the president first for his approval. There is good ground to believe that these instructions contemplate the allowance of sufficient time to the Lena to make temporary repairs.

However, there is a growing belief here that the vessel will be obliged to intern in the end, for it is altogether likely that by the time she could be made ready to go to sea one or more Japanese cruisers would be off the Golden Gate ready to sink or capture her.

Foreseeing such an event as a request for the right to intern, the officials have been considering what shall be done with the crew—whether they may be allowed to return to Russia on parole or must be interned on their ship in San Francisco harbor. On this point no decision has been reached.

It was stated last night that no formal statement had been received on behalf of Russia, the Russian officials indicating the nature of the request they would make regarding repairs to the boilers of the vessel. The matter probably now is under consideration by the Russian government. From the very nature of the case an early decision in the matter is imperative and will be insisted on by our government. At both the state and navy departments the statement was made last night that there had been no developments since the close of office hours.

KUROPATKIN'S SILENCE

It Gives Rise to Forebodings of Pending Disaster

London, Sept. 14.—There has been no renewal of fighting on a large scale between the Russian and Japanese armies in the far east. At St. Petersburg the people are harassed by rumors of impending disaster to General Kuropatkin, which find ready credence because of the lack of official information from the general's headquarters at Mukden, and for the moment the popularity of the head of the Russian armies in the field is in eclipse. In that capital, too, there is much uneasiness felt lest the Japanese advance in Manchuria should afford occasion for the growth of an anti-Russian spirit in China and the ultimate projection of that power into the conflict.

St. Petersburg denies the reported wounding of General Zassalitch, the story that he and his force of 3000 men have been captured, and the report that the Russians used dum-dum bullets at Liaoyang. Tokio hears that the bullets found in the city do not exactly fit any of the Russian rifles captured; evidence of their use is therefore lacking.

Blow Up Ships and Surrender

St. Petersburg, Sept. 14.—It is declared that the czar has commanded General Stoessel, in charge at Port Arthur, to make a final sortie with the ships there, blow up the ones which cannot join in the escape, and to surrender the port to the Japanese, to avoid further and useless loss of life. If he cannot escape with the ships which manage to get out of the port, they are to fight until crippled and then blow up their ships.

Incredible Indeed

St. Petersburg, Sept. 14.—While it seems almost incredible that the admiralty should remain in ignorance of the Lena's mission and whereabouts, such seems to be the case. It appears that the vessel was acting wholly under the orders of Vice Admiral Skrydloff and that he had not reported concerning the Lena, or that if he had done so, the report had not reached the admiralty.

Baltic Fleet Held Up

Berlin, Sept. 14.—The Tageblatt's St. Petersburg correspondent telegraphs that the departure of the Baltic squadron has at the last moment been deferred for several days, apparently to await news from the far east. The fleet will remain for the present at Reval.

Would Have President Mediate

St. Louis, Sept. 14.—At the interparliamentary conference Count Goblet D'Alviella presented a resolution calling for intervention in the Russo-Japanese war. He urged that President Roosevelt was quite the proper person to tender mediation. The resolution was adopted.

Something New in Police Line

New York, Sept. 14.—To curb and investigate crime in the Italian districts of New York Police Commissioner McAdoo has established an Italian police staff. The plan provides for the gathering of all the Italians on the New York police force into a quasi-detective contingent, whose work will be confined to the Italian districts. The commissioner believes that if there are such organizations as the Mafia and Black Hand, Italian policemen will find it easy to stamp them out.

Thinks Transfer System Dangerous

Philadelphia, Sept. 14.—The frequent transferring of steamboat inspectors from one point to another throughout the country is, in the opinion of Captain Joyce of New York, one of the principal causes of such accidents as the burning of the Slocum in New York harbor. This statement was made by Joyce at the annual meeting here of the the national board of steam navigation.

Cleaned Out Disease Breeders

Laredo, Tex., Sept. 14.—The fumigation corps which has been engaged in placing the towns along the Rio Grande river as far as Brownsville in a sanitary condition reports having completed its work. The corps encountered large quantities of yellow breeding mosquitoes and carried on a strict house to house canvass to exterminate the mosquitoes.

Long-Looked-For Comet Appears

Cambridge, Mass., Sept. 14.—A cablegram was received last nigat at Harvard college stating that Professot Kopff of Germany had succeeded in finding Encke's periodic comet, although it is very faint. This is an astronomical object of great historic interest, whose reappearance has been looked for by astronomers for several weeks.

Flood Extends 500 Miles

Austin, Sept. 14.—The big rise in the Rio Grande river has reached Carrizo, Tex., and the flood is inundating both sides of the river from there to Brownsville, a distance of 200 miles. The valley between Carrizo and Presidio del Norte, a distance of 300 miles, is largely under water. The river is still rising.

Wheat Prices Soar

Chicago, Sept. 14.—Killing frosts caused sensationally bullish trading in wheat and corn yesterday. At one time all deliveries of wheat were 4 cents above Monday's closing prices, an advance of 8 cents in 48 hours. May wheat sold at 1.18 3-4@7-8 a bushel, a new high record mark for the season.

Pullman Conductors In White House

Washington, Sept. 14.—William M. Johnson, a former Pullman conductor, who had charge of a majority of the trips made by the president to different parts of the country, has been made an usher in the White House. Johnson is the third Pullman conductor to be thus appointed in recent years.

Twelve Children Made Orphans

Brattleboro, Vt., Sept. 14.—William H. Chalmers, 45 years old, a private in the Vermont National Guard, died from dysentery on the boat at New London, Conn., while en route with his company from Manassas. His home was at West Topsham. He leaves a wife and 12 children.

No Liquor Handlers In Redmen

St. Joseph, Mo., Sept. 14.—The Redmen of the United States adopted an amendment to its laws, debarring saloon keepers, bartenders and retail liquor sellers from the order, and providing for the expulsion of any member who shall engage in the liquor traffic.

Big Steampipe Exploded

Worcester, Mass., Sept. 14.—By the explosion of a 12-inch steampipe in the works of the American Steel and Wire company five men were scalded and otherwise injured. Carl Erickson was fatally injured. It is thought the others will recover.

To Pay Half of Veterans' Claims

Havana, Sept. 14.—President Palma has decreed that payments of one-half of the amounts due revolutionary veterans shall begin on Oct. 1. The proceeds of the $35,000,000 will pay one-half of the recorded claims, with $4,000,000 to spare.

Train Went Into Culvert

Bar Mills, Me., Sept. 14.—A freight train ran into a culvert near Alfred and 10 cars were piled up. No one was injured. Workmen were making repairs to the culvert at the time. Traffic was blocked for many hours.

Cotton Trade Is Conservative

Memphis, Sept. 14.—After a week for deliberation over the showing made by the last monthly report of the department of agriculture, placing the condition of the crop at the abnormally high level of 84.1, sentiment among the cotton trade is very conservative. There is none of the desire to run in and sell cotton short that might naturally have been expected to follow the promulgation of the figures referred to. On the other hand, there is little more than a preliminary skirmish being conducted pending further developments in connection with the condition of the crop.

Abandoned Vessel Towed to Port

New York, Sept. 14.—Steamer Pathfinder, Norfolk for Boston with coal, arrived from Norfolk with the derelict schooner Theta in tow, which she picked up at sea last Sunday. The derelict's sails were all set and she evidently had been hastily abandoned after being in collision with an unknown vessel. The fate of her crew is unknown. She was leaking badly, but was kept afloat by the cargo of hard pine timber in her hold.

A Loophole For Ames

Minneapolis, Sept. 14.—County Attorney Boardman has moved to dismiss all the bribery and corruption indictments, 10 in all, standing against former Mayor Ames. Boardman explained that owing to the death and removal of witnesses and other reasons it would be impossible to secure conviction. Judge Harrison took the motion under advisement.

Verdict Considered Excessive

Lyons, N. Y., Sept. 14.—Supreme Court Justice Dunwell has handed down a decision setting aside as excessive damages of $35,000 in favor of John E. Pitts, a railway mail clerk, who sued the New York Central railroad. Pitts' leg and right hand were paralyzed by injuries received in a wreck, and he sued for $75,000, but was awarded $35,000 by a jury.

Story of Robbery Disbelieved

Cleveand, Sept. 14.—According to a statement made by police officials, John W. Newton, a prisoner here, has confessed to being implicated in the stealing of $74,000 from the government building in Chicago several years ago. Newton declared that he squandered his share. Newton has been drinking hard and but little credence is placed in his story.

Officers to Be Court Martialed

Atlanta, Sept. 14.—Governor Terrell has received the report of the Statesboro court of inquiry and on the findings of the court has ordered a court martial to take up the case of Captain Hitch and Lieutenants Mell, Griner and Cone. The hearing has been ordered for Sept. 29 in Savannah.

Robbers Were Poorly Paid

Kansas City, Sept. 14.—The Rock Island passenger train that was held up and robbed near Letts, Ia., reached Kansas City seven hours late. According to statements made by the express messenger on the train, the robbers secured no money or jewelry. The passengers were not molested.

NEWS IN BRIEF

THE WORLD OF CLOTHES.

The Indispensable Dinner Jacket—A New Voile Material.

The coffee coat, or, as many prefer to call it, the home dinner jacket, has ceased to be a fashion and has become an indispensable necessity. It is such a comfort to slip into a pretty loose dinner jacket after a strenuous day instead of getting into an elaborate dinner blouse. The coffee coat, too, is to the single girl what the tea gown is to the married woman.

SPOTTED CHALLIE WAIST.

Point d'esprit mounted on a lining foundation of brussels net is a delightful combination for a jacket of this sort.

A new material belonging to the volle family has recently made its appearance. It is very similar in weave to volle, but much finer and so glossy that when seen from a distance in certain lights it has been compared to spun glass. Gowns of this new material will be trimmed with heavy lace which sets off the pretty glossy fabric to the best advantage.

Could there be a daintier or more girlish waist than the one in the picture carried out in spotted challie, with cambric hemstitched yoke and pretty cavalier cuffs? JUDIC CHOLLET.

Eyeglasses fitted scientifically. No guess work.—Williams.

NOTES ABOUT TOWN.

The dry spell has been broken.

Heavy showers have fallen today.

Milton is resurfacing Adams street near the Quincy line.

The City Council Committee on Finance will meet Thursday evening.

Mr. Henry T. Brown of Chestnut street is confined to his bed by illness.

The Republican and Democratic nomination papers will be opened Thursday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Finch are located at Mr. Herbert Pinkham's, 199 Grand View avenue.

The illustrations in the "ad" of W. A. Bradford are a convincing argument in favor of hot water heating.

A surprisingly large number of Quincy young ladies are teaching out of town, and in many different states.

Trees are being cut down in Barker's woods off Woodward avenue. Rumor says a roadway is to be built and houses erected.

Mrs. Emma S. Leavitt will entertain the Paul Revere W. R. C. sewing circle at her home on Willard street tomorrow afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Smith of Arlington street have gone to the World's Fair, St. Louis. On their way they will visit relatives in Chicago.

Miss Margaret Hall, Franklin street, returned last Saturday from New Hampshire, where she has been visiting friends the past month.

Those who have fears regarding the old well on the lot at the corner of Coddington and Spear street will feel easy when they learn that the well was filled with dirt fully two years ago.

Stephen Birch of Squantum street, a young man of exceptional ability and aptitude, has gone into the tank business in Lansing, Michigan, and is pushing forward toward a successful future with meritorious energy.

A man from the west chanced to ride by Atlantic a few days ago, and as the train stopped at the station he looked out with interest and remarked to his companion: "What a town of possibilities!" He wasn't referring to the boulevard either.

Three Quincy gentlemen will be aids at the grand ball of the Foresters at the Mechanics Building, Boston, tomorrow night, which follows the musical and literary features, viz.: Representative Peter T. Fallon, Arthur B. Murphy and ex-Councilman William T. Shea.

—Rev. J. H. Whitaker, now located at Manchester, Mass., has just received a call to the pastorate of the Park Presbyterian Church of Buffalo, New York.

$100 Reward, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

TOOK A STROLL.

Long Walk for a Little Fellow Under Three Years.

The two and one-half year-old son of William L. Chase went off on a jaunt this morning and it was some time before he was missed. A search was then instituted and the little fellow was found at Quincy Point.

It seems that the boy left home about 9 o'clock with his cart, presumably to play with neighboring children. Instead of doing that he visited Johnson's lumber wharf and loaded his cart with shavings. He then continued his journey in the rain to Quincy Point.

Two girls found him on the street wet through to the skin. They tried to get him to go home with them to dry his clothing, but he would not. Although thoroughly soaked by the rain, and hungry, he did not seem to care, and was as happy as a lark when his parents found him.

BIELA'S COMET.

Its Sensational Career Before It Vanished From Our Sight.

All Europe was in pangs of terror when in 1832 it was announced that Biela's comet would cross the earth's path. People died of terror, and so serious did the scare become that a Parisian professor begged the Academy of Science to publicly refute the assertion.

The comet came, blazed awhile in the sky and vanished. Its period of revolution round the sun being just under seven years, it came again in 1839 and was due once more early in 1846. But in that year, instead of one comet, two appeared! The original comet had divided into two parts, each of which had a separate existence, though their paths were the same.

In 1852 the two comets again came flying into sight. Their path in 1859 was too close to the sun for telescopic scrutiny, but in 1866 it was expected that they would be plainly visible. But the double comet never turned up. Nor has it ever been seen since.

Comets are naturally somewhat unreliable. They are of very flimsy texture. One great astronomer indeed has said that you could pack the tail of the average comet in a portmanteau. So if they pass too near to Jupiter or any of the big planets they are very apt to get caught and so to disappear completely

NORMAN DISTRUST.

One Simple Way by Which a Traveler May Disarm It.

The greatest obstacle to agreeable pedestrianism in Normandy is the proverbial Norman distrust. The Norman's distrust of the stranger takes the form of a comical sort of terror of being financially duped, cheated or swindled, not to say robbed—probably because he is himself perpetually engaged in financial duping.

If the tramper does not succeed in disarming by one means or another Norman distrust his tramping life in Normandy will be made a burden to him. Norman distrust can be disarmed, but it cannot be disarmed in an instant, a l'Americaine. It takes time to do it—the Norman is the last person in the world to stand and deliver—and there is no social device to be mentioned in the same breath with drinking for courteously consuming time.

If the tramper asks a simple question at a farmhouse he cannot decently linger—not in Normandy—after his question is answered. If he makes a petty purchase in a store his situation is only a trifle less awkward, since he is morally obliged to retire as soon as the transaction is completed. On the other hand, he has only to order a drink—in this country of cider and applejack every store and nearly every farmhouse sells liquor—to be entitled to sit at a table for as long as he wills it and to talk.—Booklovers' Magazine.

Adams Academy Opened.

The Adams Academy opened today with an enrollment of 40 students. The new class numbers eleven. The corps of teachers with the exception of Mr. Hall is the same as last year. It is understood that the vacancy caused by the resignation of Mr. Hall will not be filled at present, but that the school will get along with three teachers.

—Rev. E. W. Burch has resigned his pastorate at the Holbrook M. E. church because of injuries received in an accident last May.

—The battleship Georgia will be launched at Bath, Maine, Oct. 11.

The Heart's Highway

BY MARY E. WILKINS

"I have a passion for the name of Mary"

wrote Byron, and you will have when you have become acquainted with Mary Cavendish, heroine of "The Heart's Highway,"

To Appear Serially in This Paper

Most of our readers have felt the spell of Miss Wilkins' genius in her short stories. In "The Heart's Highway" you can enjoy a serial.

PRAISED BY THE PRESS

Minneapolis Journal

Miss Wilkins makes Mary Cavendish so very lovely that most men will fall in love with the dear girl before they are half through the book.

Philadelphia Public Ledger

The anomaly of a semi-barbaric country and its colonists transplanted from a rich and luxurious old world setting is strikingly portrayed, and the triumph of love over untoward circumstances is all that the gentlest reader can desire.

Philadelphia Press

Mistress Mary on horseback must have been a literally resplendent figure, for she wore a "tabby petticoat, and a crimson satin bodice shining over her arms and shoulders like the plumage of a bird, and down her back streamed her curls, shining like gold under her gauze love hood."

Brooklyn Times

The whole story is full of stir and color and the tingle of heroism and love.

An Exception .....To a Rule

[Original.]

How did I become a barrister in England? That's a secret, but since you are my son I will tell you. The story illustrates how a man must take risks in his decisions, but I believe it is always safer to act from conscientious motives.

Soon after I was admitted to practice in Chicago one Christopher Rowan was accused of murder. I had a fancy for criminal practice and took his case; but, despite my best efforts, he was convicted on circumstantial evidence. I was not only convinced from the man's manner that he was innocent, but he told me certain facts, which I was unable to get before the jury, that confirmed me in my opinion.

I secured a stay of proceedings and in one way or another delayed the execution, but finally there was nothing more to do for him, and I saw the day near at hand when he would have to swing. The matter had a terrible effect upon me, not doubting, as I have said, that the man was innocent.

A few weeks before the execution a letter came for him from a distant part of the world. The sheriff took possession of it and instead of giving it to the condemned sent it to me. It contained official information that Rowan, through the death of a cousin, had fallen heir to an entailed estate worth nearly a million. It was in itself proof that the man about to die came of an excellent family. This he had told me, but hoped that if he died on the gallows the matter might escape the notice of his relatives.

For awhile I was in a quandary; then, suddenly coming to a resolution, I called a cab and hurried to the jail to deliver the letter to its owner. I was not surprised that it did not have any very great effect upon him. The truth is he was stunned by his misfortune and the near approach of death, which he had for some time considered inevitable.

Instead of returning to my office I went to my room—I was then a bachelor—and, locking myself in, considered what I would do. In an hour I had made up my mind to use what money was necessary to save the man's life, though it must be applied illegally. I cabled in Rowan's name to know for how much I might draw on the estate, and a goodly sum was named. Then I told Rowan of my plan, and he signed a draft.

In due time the prisoner was put through the process, or, rather, an appearance of the process, the law had directed. The newspapers told of the brave manner in which the prisoner had met his death, though he had refused spiritual consolation. The name was spelled (as he had given it when arrested) Rowan, so that his relatives might not know of his fate. The coroner pronounced him dead, and his body was turned over at my request to me for burial. Instead of burying it I sent it in the guise of a negro to New York, where it sailed alive for Liverpool.

Rowan before leaving offered me any portion of his estate that I would accept, but I declined to take a penny. After his arrival in London he wrote me renewing the offer. I still declined. He made me different propositions at different times, but I declined them all. Meanwhile he had entered various enterprises and doubled his capital. Finally he wrote me that if I would come to London and practice he would see that I had the most lucrative clients. It was ten years after I had been the means of saving him from an ignominious death that I went to London and consented to act as his and his friends' attorney. In time I became a barrister.

I have left out the most important part of the story? How did I contrive Rowan's flight, the sham hanging and all that? Money, my dear boy; money. It will accomplish anything. We don't need to go to Russia for corruption; there is plenty of it in the United States. But it costs a big sum. I paid it all to one man in gold—$300,000—though I didn't pay more than a sixth of this at the time of the hanging, and the go betweens paid all the rest. Besides the sheriff, those in attendance and the coroner it was necessary to give plenty of hush money to any one who might have the slightest suspicion.

How did they fool those whose duty it was to see the man executed? Come here. The evidence has been in this safe ever since you were born. Do you see this rope loop? It fitted around Rowan's chest. I'll put it on and show you how it worked. I have no horror of it; it saved a life instead of taking one. You see it passes across the chest and under the arms. Higher, where the ends join, is a hook, small, but strong. On the hangman's rope close to the knot was a little loop made of a hundred fine steel wires, and just before the condemned was swung off the hook was pulled up under the coat collar and fastened to the steel loop. Hook and loop were lost in the hangman's knot behind the ear and the victim's coat collar.

Have I ever regretted my act? Never. In a sense I did wrong to work a right, and I don't believe in the principle of doing wrong that right may come. But an isolated case like this doesn't make a rule; it is simply an exception to a rule.

THOMAS KENT WATERMAN.

He Got His Choice.

Mother—Johnny, I see your little brother has the smaller apple. Did you give him his choice, as I suggested?

Johnny—Yes'm. I told him he could have his choice, the little one or none, and he took the little one.

Torrents of Rain Fall in Quincy

Accompanied by High Wind.

Buildings as Well as Lands are Flooded.

Seldom has there been a harder rain than that of today. It started in to rain Wednesday morning. While it rained hard at times it was not what might be called severe until after midnight. It was about 1 o'clock this morning when the change came.

At that time quite a high wind prevailed and the rain fell in sheets. Crevices and weak spots in roofs soon began to leak, and many houses had bad leaks. It rained hard for about an hour. Then it let up somewhat and the wind changed from northeast to northwest.

At daylight it began to rain hard again, and it kept it up steadily until nearly 8 o'clock. It rained hard at that hour but not as hard as it had been raining, and shortly after nine the sun appeared.

The new street railway barn on Hancock street came in for quite a soaking. That part of the building used by the motormen and conductors as a lobby has a flat roof, and during the storm the water came through it in some places in a regular stream. At 8 o'clock the floor of the lobby was covered with three inches of water.

The tracks in some places on the line was washed out and a car leaving the iron on Quincy avenue, disarranged the schedule during the early morning. Extra cars were put out, however, and before 9 o'clock things were pretty well straightened out and schedule time was being made.

AT HYMEN'S ALTAR

Miss Beatrice B. Brady Becomes Mrs. Alexander C. Marnock.

The residence of Rev. E. N. Hardy, was last evening the scene of the marriage of Alexander Charles Marnock of Bennington street and Beatrice Barton Brady of Newcomb street. They were attended by Edward D. Marnock, brother of the groom and Miss Mattie E. Brady, sister of the bride.

After the ceremony, they returned to the home of the bride, where a reception was held from 8 to 11 o'clock. Mr. and Mrs. Marnock were assisted in receiving by Mr. and Mrs. James Brady and Mrs. Alexander Marnock.

The house was beautifully decorated with cut flowers, potted plants and ferns and was illuminated with colored lights.

The bride looked sweet and charming and wore a champagne nuns veiling over taffeta silk with trimmings of duchesse lace and chiffon and carried a bouquet of bride roses. The bridemaid wore a pearl gray nuns veiling with trimmings of lace, silk and applique over taffeta silk and carried a bouquet of pink roses.

The house was completely filled with friends and relatives from Norwood, Forrest Hill, Jamaica Plain, Roxbury, Boston, Marshfield and this city. The presents were many and beautiful and showed the high esteem in which the young and happy couple were held.

At 11 o'clock, amid a shower of rice, old shoes and other mementoes, Mr. and Mrs. Marnock left for Boston, where they took the midnight train for New York. They will also visit St. Louis. After their return they will reside on Presidents avenue, South Quincy, and will be at home to their friends after Oct 1.

Jubilee Souvenir.

A souvenir program of 76 pages has been issued in connection with the "Silver Jubilee" of the Massachusetts Catholic Order of Foresters this week. It contains a brief history of the order, the year of the institution of the different courts; half tones of Archbishop Williams, High Chief Ranger T. B. Reardon, and other State officers; also of living incorporators, past high chief rangers, and others prominent in the order. A complete list of the committees on the jubilee, including several Quincy gentlemen and ladies also appears.

KAPLAN ARRESTED

On Complaint of Young Woman of Taunton.

The Brockton Enterprise says in a dispatch from Taunton, Sept. 14, that Albert Kaplan, a dancing master in this city, was arrested yesterday on complaint of a young woman. Kaplan came here about a year ago, and was very active in preparing entertainments in which large numbers of children figured. He leased Music hall for a dancing academy, and here the girl complainant met him. They went about together, and the past week went to Providence, where a marriage license was secured.

Kaplan had told his friends that he was to be married publicly at the dancing academy yesterday morning, but instead of a bride he met the father of the girl, his attorney, C. F. Sanford, and the deputy sheriff.

Mr. Sanford says the girl had determined to end her life, but had been persuaded to think better of this. It is stated that under no circumstances would the parents of the girl consent to marriage.

To the above the Herald adds: Albert Kaplan, the dancing master, was held in the district court at Taunton Wednesday on complaint of a prominent young woman of that city. Kaplan entered a plea of guilty and was bound over in $300. The arrest of Kaplan caused no little sensation.

Statements made by the attorney for the family of the girl are to the effect that Kaplan obtained a considerable sum of money from the girl to aid him in conducting the dancing academy of which he was the proprietor. The girl was not brought into court, disappointing hundreds of spectators who thronged every nook and corner of the court room.

Kaplan, dressed in a silk hat and frock coat, was taken to the judge's room, where he entered a plea of guilty. In default of bail he will be in custody until the November sitting of the superior court.

New Banking Rooms.

The officers and directors of the National Granite Bank have issued invitations to the opening of their new bank rooms in the Savings Bank building. Although occupied a few weeks, the move was made hurriedly, and not until now is everything as intended. The bank is to be congratulated upon its admirable banking rooms, which are richly furnished, commodious, convenient, light and attractive. They speak well for the solidity of the bank, and are a credit to the city.

TODAY'S COURT.

Dr. George T. Cushman of Roxbury was fined $3.55, the costs for speeding an automobile at Milton.

Herman Jones was arraigned for truancy at Holbrook. He was sent to the truant school at Walpole.

The meeting of the Finance Committee of the City Council called for tonight has been postponed until Friday evening.

SUPT. OF SCHOOLS.

Jacob Warshaw of This City Receives Appointment.

Jacob Warshaw of this city has been appointed Superintendent of Schools for the District of Humacao, Porto Rico. Mr. Warshaw ranked first in the competitive examinations for superintendents held last June. About thirty candidates presented themselves for the examinations, which required an extensive knowledge of the Spanish language—both written and oral—also English school supervision, correspondence in both languages, pedagogy, and a very intimate knowledge in Spanish of the School Laws of Porto Rico.

Humacao is one of the largest districts, and comprises three distinct school boards. The work connected with the duties of the position of superintendent of schools in Porto Rico is arduous, but we have no doubt concerning Mr. Warshaw's ability to successfully perform the requirements of his new position.

During the summer Mr. Warshaw was acting superintendent of San Juan. He is a graduate of the Quincy High school and Harvard 1900.

GROCERS' BANQUET.

Anniversary of Old Colony Association Celebrated at Squantum.

The Old Colony Grocers and Provision Dealers' Association celebrated its twelfth anniversary on Wednesday evening by a gathering at Squantum. There was a very large attendance of members from all the South Shore towns. At 5 o'clock there was an informal reception.

Dinner was served at 6 o'clock in the large dining hall at the Squantum Inn. President A. T. Faunce of North Abington presided, and briefly outlined the work of the association during the twelve years of existence, and the legislative work last winter.

Other addresses were made by Oscar F. Frost of Melrose, vice president of the Boston Retail Grocers association; Representative Frank G. Wheatley of North Abington, who spoke on "The Adulteration of Food Products;" Fred Humphrey of Hingham, past president of the Old Colony association; C. L. Keon of North Abington, and Josephus Sampson of Braintree.

The treasurer reported a balance of over $200 from the proceeds of the annual outing at Rocky Point in August.

At the close of the evening's banquet which had proved most enjoyable special cars conveyed the party to Quincy.

C. E. Convention.

The State Christian Endeavor convention to be held in Haverhill, Sept. 27, 28 and 29, promises to be in every feature a success. On Tuesday evening, Sept. 27, addresses will be given by the Rev. F. E. Clark and the Rev. Macy McGee Waters, while on Thursday evening, Sept. 29, the Rev. Charles E. Jefferson will deliver an address.

Many of the delegates and visitors to the convention will derive pleasure and profit not directly connected with the convention itself from a visit to Haverhill. Settled in 1640 and passing through the experiences of Indian treachery, Haverhill has emerged into the present day civilization a fine example of the modern small prosperous city. Its present population is not far from 40,000.

On Wednesday it is planned to visit Newburyport, the birthplace of William Lloyd Garrison, and to inspect the Old South Church, under the pulpit of which is the tomb of Whitefield.

UNCLE SAM.

Between 1896 and 1903 Uncle Sam increased his factories from 360,000 to 600,000, an increase of 240,000; his factory workers (in whole or partial works in 1896) from 3,500,000 to 7,000,000, an increase of 3,500,000; his yearly factory pay rolls from $2,000,000,000 to $5,000,000,000, an increase of $3,000,000,000; his factory output from $9,500,000,000 to $14,500,000,000, an increase of $5,000,000,000 yearly; his manufactures of iron and steel from $400,000,000 to $850,000,000, an increase of $450,000,000 yearly; his home consumption of raw cotton from 2,505,000 bales to 3,924,000 bales an increase of 1,419,000 bales yearly.

UNDER PROTECTION.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

Quincy not only furnishes teachers for many towns in Massachusetts, and states of the Union, but Alexis E. Frye, a former Quincy teacher successfully inaugurated American ideas in Cuba while Superintendent of Schools there, and now Jacob Warshaw of this city, graduated at the Quincy High, has been appointed District Superintendent of Schools at Porto Rico, with headquarters at Humacao.

Gov. Bates' participation in the laying of the corner stone of the new Quincy Y. M. C. A. building the latter part of this month, may be the first public appearance of His Excellency after his return from the World's Fair and his visit in Kansas. He may have something to say of the marvelous exposition and the great west, but a trip through any part of the United States only makes one's attachment for old New England, and Massachusetts in particular, the stronger. We cannot compete with the great west as an agricultural country, or in fruits or mineral wealth, but in manufactures, education and wealth Massachusetts is near the top, and we enjoy the comforts and pleasures of life. Our streets may not be as wide, and straight, and level, but there is not that absence of hills which makes some western scenery monotonous. Boston does not need a great World's Fair to attract the people of the country. The city has a warm attachment for people all over the United States and many make pilgrimages here every year.

Greek Sailors.

Sailors of the Grecian archipelago often equip trading schooners on a plan of profit sharing after the custom of New England whalers, and if their venture proves anything like a success they cannot easily be induced to take a berth in the merchant marine of the western nations. They detest subordination, but a chief cause of their preference for home enterprise is the difference of the night watch system. For a week or two a Greek sailor will watch all day and sleep all night—emergencies, of course, excepted—then take his turn at night working and day sleeping. English, French and German captains would dismiss him to his hammock for four hours and then rout him out in the midst of his sweetest sleep. In wages there may be no great difference, but his experience has convinced him that in the long run the long term plan can best be reconciled with perfect health.

RUSSIAN RETREAT

ORLOFF IS BLAMED FOR IT

Failed to Hold Heights In Vicinity of Sykwantum and Check Japanese Advance--Crippled Whole Russian Scheme

London, Sept. 15.—Inactivity of the opposing armies of Russia and Japan continues, and no fighting of a general character is reported. Information coming from an authoritative source in St. Petersburg is that the Russians will winter at Harbin, but the fact that there is probably two months of good weather for military operations before extreme cold weather sets in leaves room for a revision of this purpose in the light of events that may transpire. The Japanese are reported to be collecting taxes and otherwise administering affairs in Manchuria as though that country was conquered territory.

General Kuropatkin's official report, which was given out at St. Petersburg last night, sets at rest alarmist stories of the loss of guns, the cutting off of divisions and the death or capture of prominent commanders which have been freely circulating. The report, which is a very long one, enters at considerable detail into the various phases of the battle of Liaoyang and entirely bears out the declaration at the time that General Orloff's failure to hold the vital position at the Yentai mines was responsible for the breaking down of the whole of Kuropatkin's plan of battle, and turned a potential victory into defeat.

The manner in which the retreat was carried out, in the face of the terrible condition of the country and the determined pressure of the Japanese armies, does much to restore Kuropatkin's prestige in military circles. It was practically a company commander's fight, commands becoming separated in the darkness and independent units acting upon their own initiative with the one object of carrying out the commander's orders to retake the heights.

The necessity of retaking the Sykwantum heights formed the first break in Kuropatkin's plan, lost him a whole day, Sept. 2, and thus delayed launching the blow against Kuroki, and when the Russians had just regained a foothold on the coveted position Orloff's failure to hold the Japanese advance against the Yentai mines threatened the envelopment of Kuropatkin on the north, crippled the whole Russian scheme and forced the now historic retreat to Mukden.

The report as given out does not state the casualties, but it is authoritatively stated that they were under 17,000.

The war office is extremely reticent regarding the present situation and future plans at the front. It is stated in general terms that the army is concentrated around Mukden, leaving the inference that it is ready to make another stand.

DAMAGED IN ACTION

Story That Japanese Cruisers Inflicted the Lena's Injuries

St. Paul, Sept. 15.—Count Yama Osichi, a Japanese nobleman and a relative of General Kuroki, passed through this city en route to Seattle. Speaking of the Lena incident in San Francisco, he said:

"I heard two weeks ago, when in Washington, that the Lena was watching for vessels bound to Japan from Puget sound and I also heard that two light cruisers of my country had been detailed to take the ship. They followed the Lena when she broke away from the Vladivostok squadron and the facts that will come out when the officers of the Lena make official reports to their government will show that somewhere in the vicinity of Redfield Reef, hundreds of miles west of Cape Flattery, there was another action that has not been heard of so far.

"The Lena is badly damaged, I understand, but the ship is being so carefully protected from investigation by her marines and the United States government that the nature of the injuries cannot possibly be determined. I am certain that the injuries are the result of gun shots inflicted by our little cruisers.

"Somewhere off to the westward of the Farallone islands, I am confident, there are two Japanese cruisers patrolling the coast, watching for the Russian to come out. Their captains know that the United States government will not allow the Lena to remain longer than is absolutely necessary to complete her repairs and when she leaves the Golden Gate there will be a sea death for her."

Waiting For Goodrich's Report

Washington, Sept. 15.—The report of the inspector of boilers and hulls who inspected the Lena says that the boilers and engines are both badly in need of repairs. To put in new boilers will require from four to six months. The tubes of the boilers are badly pitted, but the Lena has on board 200 additional tubes which could be put in in a short time, and the inspector says that the vessel can be put in a seaworthy condition in from 20 to 30 days and repaired so that she would be able to make about eight knots. This is regarded by officials of the navy department as entirely within the term "reasonable time" used in the president's proclamation. The state department is now awaiting the detailed report of Admiral Goodrich before taking further action.

The Lena Strongly Guarded

San Francisco, Sept. 15.—Guarded by several American warships, the Russian auxiliary cruiser Lena lies at anchor in the bay. An outcome of the arrival of the Russian cruiser probably will be the maintenance permanently in San Francisco harbor of a number of warships to be prepared to deal with any similar emergency during the Russo-Japanese war. Had the Lena arrived 24 hours later San Francisco would not have had a single American war vessel, as the squadron had been ordered to sail the next day to other waters for target practice.

To Keep Tabs on the Lena

Victoria, B. C., Sept. 15.—H. M. S. Grafton, flagship of the Pacific squadron, which left here some days ago to get her annual heavy gun practice at Comox, has returned unexpectedly to Esquimault, making the trip under forced draught and in record time. She is now in Esquimault harbor getting ready for sea. The cause of the Grafton's return is connected with the sudden appearance of the Lena at San Francisco. The Grafton is under cabled orders from the British admiralty to protect British shipping on the American side of the Pacific at all costs. All shore leave of her officers and men has been indefinitely suspended.

Critical Situation at Port Arthur

St. Petersburg, Sept. 15.—A high personage says that the czar has received a report from Lieutenant General Stoessel to the effect that for a week there has been no meat and only a small quantity of flour at Port Arthur, while the ammunition there is not sufficient for the blowing up of the fortifications in the event of a successful Japanese assault.

A Trunk Murder Mystery

Cleveland, Sept. 15.—The body of Mrs. Inez Smith, a young white woman, was found in a trunk floating in the lake. Her husband, Samuel Smith, a negro, had been recently sued for divorce. The police claim that on Sept. 6 the woman went to her husband's home, that they quarreled and that she has not been seen since. Neighbors allege that late the same evening two trunks were taken away from the house by an expressman, one of which was delivered at a depot. The police arrested Eugene Minor and Gertrude Smith on suspicion.

Injured Seaman's Sorry Plight

Perth Amboy, N. J., Sept. 15.—Semi-delirious and with his body crushed from hips to armpits, Edward B. Graham, second mate of the schooner Theta, who drifted for 30 hours on a single stick of wreckage after the Theta was run down at sea Sunday night, arrived here on the schooner Cohasset. Graham had been given up for lost. A short time after the collision all the crew except Graham were picked up by the S. S. Mohican and landed at Wilmington, N. C.

Butchers and Allies Resume Work

Chicago, Sept. 15.—Nearly 20,000 of the former striking butcher workmen and allied tradesmen have been re-employed and are at work in "Packingtown" and in the independent plants outside the yards. The strikers still out will be employed at the rate of about 150 a day until all available places are filled. Hundreds of strike breakers were paid off on request and taken out of the yards under police protection. It is estimated that about 5000 still remain.

Rain, Wind and Earthquake

Washington, Sept. 15.—Heavy storms have prevailed in North and South Carolina and Virginia. Much damage was done by wind and water. Three fishermen of Charleston are known to have been drowned and it is feared 11 others lost their lives. Two men at Wrightersville, N. C., were drowned. Many buildings were blown down in various parts of the south and two shocks of earthquake were felt in Augusta, Ga.

Big Cutdown of Expenses

St. Louis, Sept. 15.—The Philippine World's Fair board announces that more than 50 employes of the government exhibit, including several high officials, have been dismissed for reasons of economy. It is expected that a saving of $7500 a month will result from the reductions.

Sensational Story Denied

Mexico City, Sept. 15.—The police of the city were interviewed last night concerning a story published in the United States regarding an alleged conspiracy on the part of two Spaniards to assassinate President Roosevelt. The police denied that there was any truth in the report.

Where Law Is Not Respected

Savannah, Ga., Sept. 15.—Major Wylly of the local militia has been ordered by the governor to report at Camilla and take charge of military forces ordered there for the protection of a negro named Williford, who killed two men a year ago and who is about to be tried.

War Veteran Indeed

Greenville, Ala., Sept. 15.—James McWilliams, 107 years old, a veteran of the Indian, Mexican and Civil wars, died here last evening.

CITY BREVITIES.

How it did rain!

Wonder if the storm last night will pass for the line storm.

Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Myers are visiting relatives in Maine.

An unusually large class entered the Washington school this year.

Mrs. Frank Hobart of Mill street, visited friends in Winchester this week.

Miss Matilda Burkhardt of Stockbridge is visiting friends in Wollaston.

A new shoe-shop has been opened in the McCullar block on Claremount avenue.

Work is being rushed along on the new store on Washington street opposite the Point church.

Miss Isabel L. Albee of Prospect avenue is expected home from the Berkshires this week.

The paving on the north side of Water street, where the sewer was recently built, is being relaid.

The time for filing nomination papers of candidates to be voted for at the caucuses expires at 5 o'clock tonight.

The public schools get a holiday the first week, because of the rain, but school this morning was out of the question.

Mrs. Frank McQuestion and children have returned to their home in New York after a pleasant visit with relatives at Quincy Point.

The Ladies' Auxilary of Division 10, A. O. H., will observe its seventh anniversary Friday evening at Faxon hall. There will be dancing and refreshments.

Chester Jones returned to Somerville this week, and will soon resume his studies at Tufts college. During the past few weeks Mr. Jones has been working at the Washington street cash market.

Miss Eva Marden gave a musicale to eighteen of her friends and relatives from Weymouth, East Weymouth and Hingham, at her home on Coddington street Wednesday evening, which was highly enjoyed by all. The house was profusely decorated in pink and green. Cake and ices were served during the evening.

Another Book by Gen. King.

"Comrades in Arms," by General Charles King, is a tale of two hemispheres. In this new story by this popular author will be found a plot entirely different from anything he has previously done, but of the most intense and exciting interest. It begins with a most strange complication at a frontier post in the Black Hills of Dakota shortly before the outbreak of the Spanish war. The leading characters are then transported to far distant scenes in the Philippines, and the closing chapters bring them and the story back to America. The reader will renew acquaintances with some old friends and will be richly entertained by the experiences of men and women of army life, which none can better depict than this charming writer. It is illustrated by George Gibbs and E. W. Deming. Published by The Hobart Company, 114 Fifth avenue, New York city.

BRIEF TWILIGHT.

At the Equator It Lasts Only a Little Over an Hour.

As twilight is caused by the refraction of the atmosphere, without which we should be instantly in darkness at sunset, all parts of the earth have twilight, though of varying duration. When the sun has sunk eighteen degrees below the horizon no more light can be refracted anywhere, but the path of the sun at the equator is so nearly vertical that its disappearance is proportionally rapid.

The shortest twilight at the equator is one hour and twelve minutes at the equinoxes in March and September; the longest is one hour and nineteen minutes at the solstices in June and December.

In London from May 22 to July 21 it is twilight all through the night. No wonder, with a disparity so great, people speak of night in the tropics as coming on almost suddenly. Farther north still, in the Shetlands and Norway, we speak of the midnight sun, where men never lose sight of the orb of day and twilight is unknown.—London Spectator.

—In the astronomical periodical Sirius, Dr. H. Voigt expresses the opinion that the so-called craters in the moon are nothing but coral structures. If the sea were dry, the earth, he declares, would present a similar appearance.

"I have a passion for the name of Mary"

wrote Byron, and you will have when you have become acquainted with Mary Cavendish, heroine of "The Heart's Highway,"

To Appear Serially in This Paper

Most of our readers have felt the spell of Miss Wilkins' genius in her short stories. In "The Heart's Highway" you can enjoy a serial.

PRAISED BY THE PRESS

Minneapolis Journal

Miss Wilkins makes Mary Cavendish so very lovely that most men will fall in love with the dear girl before they are half through the book.

Philadelphia Public Ledger

The anomaly of a semi-barbaric country and its colonists transplauted from a rich and luxurious old world setting is strikingly portrayed, and the triumph of love over untoward circumstances is all that the gentlest reader can desire.

Philadelphia Press

Mistress Mary on horseback must have been a literally resplendent figure, for she wore a "tabby petticoat, and a crimson satin bodice shining over her arms and shoulders like the plumage of a bird, and down her back streamed her curls, shining like gold under her gauze love hood."

Brooklyn Times

The whole story is full of stir and color and the tingle of heroism and love.

MAY BE A ROLLCALL

New York Republicans Disagree on Head of Ticket

HIGGINS IS PICKED TO WIN

Woodruff Has Not Given Up the Fight, However, and Says His Name Will Go Before Convention--Criticism of Odell

Saratoga, N. Y., Sept. 15.—There is every reason to believe that the following ticket, chosen by the Higgins supporters, will be nominated by the Republican state convention: For governor, Frank W. Higgins; lieutenant governor, M. L. Bruce; secretary of state, J. F. O'Brien; attorney general, J. M. Mayer; state treasurer, J. D. Wallenmeier; state engineer and surveyor, H. A. VanAlstyne; chief judge of the court of appeals, E. M. Cullen; associate judge of the court of appeals, W. E. Werner.

Although there is no assurance that this ticket can be nominated without a rollcall on the nomination for governor the air is still full of rumors that a settlement may be reached and the unanimous nomination of Higgins accomplished on the first ballot.

The conference which resulted in the completion of the Higgins ticket was attended by about 25 men, but none of the Woodruff or Platt men were present. L. E. Quigg of New York, who had been considered one of the Woodruff supporters, was present, and he stated he would support Higgins. The selection of Bruce was something of a surprise after the naming of Mayer Tuesday evening for attorney general, as it gives New York county two places on the slate.

Mr. Woodruff came from his headquarters after a protracted conference with friends at 11:30 last night and said: "My name will go before the convention tomorrow." Replying to an inquiry as to the number of votes he would have, he said: "I don't know. That does not have much to do with the matter, anyway."

The position of Woodruff as a candidate for governor was the most interesting feature of the day's political situation. From the time the Kings county delegation met and declared for an individual vote for governor until late at night, the only question that seemed to absorb the delegates was whether Woodruff's name would go before the convention or be withdrawn for the sake of harmony in the state organization. Mr. Woodruff himself, discussing the situation, said:

"It had been asserted from the outset that there would be an open convention, but it ceased to be such as soon as Governor Odell declared for Higgins. The state leaders brought pressure to bear on their individual delegates, as they desired to follow the lead of the governor and chairman of the state committee. The individual ballot, however, will cut both ways. It has resulted in screwing the lid on tighter than ever and more influence has been brought to bear on the delegates, resulting in the control of several large counties by its leaders. Of course I will support the ticket nominated."

Peabody Again

Denver, Sept. 15.—The Republican state convention nominated a full state ticket headed by James H. Peabody for governor. The platform endorses the administration of Governor Peabody and calls on all citizens to support him in his efforts to "rebuke the spirit of lawlessness which would turn popular government into irresponsible despotism and keep alive class hatred, lawlessness and treason. The platform pledges the candidates to restrain any excess whether practiced by capital or labor. An eight-hour law is favored.

Roberts Gets the Nomination

Hartford, Sept. 15.—The Republican state ticket placed in nomination by the state convention in this city was as follows: For governor, Henry Roberts; for lieutenant governor, Rollins Woodruff; secretary of state, Theodore Bodenwein; state treasurer, J. F. Walsh; comptroller, A. W. Mitchell; congressman-at-large, G. L. Lilley. The platform adopted was short, and was an endorsement of the party's policies in the state and nation.

Narrowed Down to Two

Boston, Sept. 15.—The Democratic gubernatorial situation as a result of a conference held at Young's hotel yesterday after a four hours' session is that: William A. Gaston refuses to reconsider his declaration. Richard Olney absolutely will not listen to the suggestion of being a candidate. John R. Thayer says he will not take any more offices. This leaves the governorship nomination between William L. Douglas of Brockton and Charles S. Hamlin of Boston.

Wisconsin Row In Court

Madison, Wis., Sept. 15.—The contest over the regularity of the Republican ticket is before the supreme court. Counsel for the anti-third termers claim that the Republican national committee is the highest party authority and they ask the court to enforce the decision of the committee. Attorneys for the La Follette ticket contend that the state central committee is the only legal authority to decide which is the regular ticket. The brief of the La Follette faction attacks the national committee, the credentials committee and the national convention itself. Arguments are unfinished.

Gathering of Old-Timers

Saratoga, N. Y., Sept. 15.—Rain which fell in torrents did not prevent a good attendance at the Republican party's semi-centennial. Senators Fairbanks and Depew were the principal speakers. The celebration was brought about by a committee composed of surviving delegates to the first regular Republican state convention, held here on Aug. 16, 1854. Occupying seats on the platform were 125 white-haired veterans who voted for John C. Fremont.

Complete Returns From Maine

Portland, Me., Sept. 15.—A Republican plurality of 27,130 is shown by complete returns from the state election of Monday. While these figures show a Republican gain of 4990 votes over 1900, they also indicate a Democratic gain of 11,244, or a net gain for their party of 6254. The total vote for governor as tabulated was Cobb (Rep.) 78,460, Davis (Dem.) 51,330. The vote in 1900 was Hill (Rep.) 73,470, Lord (Dem.) 40,086.

Tammany Ratifies Parker Ticket

New York, Sept. 15.—Tammany opened its campaign last night by a rally, ratifying the nominations of Parker and Davis. Resolutions pledging support to the nominees were adopted. The principal speakers of the evening were Congressmen Cockran and Sulzer. Mr. Cockran said the returns from Maine indicated that the Democratic ticket could be elected.

Conspiracy Charge Clinched

London, Sept. 15.—William Thomas has pleaded guilty to the charge that he was convicted in 1877 under the name of John Smith, and served a term of five years' imprisonment for obtaining money and jewelry from women under false pretences. It was in mistake for Thomas that Adolf Beck, who was recently granted a "free pardon," served two terms of imprisonment on the same charges, owing to police conspiracy, it is claimed, for which the government offered as compensation the sum of $10,000, which Beck refused as insufficient.

Fraud and Deceit Alleged

New York, Sept. 15.—Mrs. Ida E. Wood, widow of former Mayor Wood, has filed a summons and complaint with the clerk of the supreme court of Nassau county to recover $225,000 damages. The defendants are the Commonwealth Trust company, its directors and the Mercantile Trust company and John J. McCook. Mrs. Wood claims that fraud and deceit was practiced on her by inducing her to purchase 200 of the first mortgage bonds of the United States Shipbuilding company through an alleged false prospectus.

Consul McWade Removed

Washington, Sept. 15.—Notice of the removal from office of Robert M. McWade as consul general at Canton has been received from Oyster Bay. The consul general's name had been connected with improper issuance of certificates to Chinese bound for the Philippines or the United States. There was also talk of excessive fees.

A Jail Without Occupants

Camden, Ala., Sept. 15.—All the prisoners confined in the Wilcox county jail, including four murderers, broke jail last evening. Bloodhounds will be put on their trail.

NEWS IN BRIEF

The 12th conference of the Interparliamentary union, which has been in session at St. Louis, has adjourned to meet next year in Brussels.

Lawrence Sullivan, thought to be the oldest man in Massachusetts, died at Boston, aged 104. He had been failing for nearly a week. He was born in Ireland.

The smart morning toilet will be of checked tweed as well as of a rather heavy broadcloth. The coat de rigueur for this mode is of the long double breasted variety, with gigot or rather narrow coat shaped sleeves.

White and gray felt sailors with very broad crowns trimmed with bands of crepe de chine are shown for morning wear. One model is trimmed with bands of burnt orange velvet, with a fancy buckle at the side and a close drapery of tambour lace on the brim. Another new hat model of moderate size is in blue felt and round in shape, with the brim slightly upturned. Blue coq feathers curling outward encircle the crown.

Tailor made suits for the fall as well as coats to be worn while driving or automobiling will be made of shantung pongee in the natural or dyed shades. The tan and ecru tones are delightfully cool in appearance, but later on will be too "summery," so blotting paper—blue, geranium, green and cocoa brown—will prove more popular as the season advances. Trimmings of fine satin faced cloth or the thinnest suede imaginable make a strong contrast to the rough surface of the fabric. If lace is employed it is dyed to match the gown, while button molds, covered with pongee and embroidered in spiders with coarse silks, make effective trimmings.

A very chic French hat to wear with a blue serge is in a mixture of plaited straw and felt of Robespierre shape, the crown simply trimmed with a fold of dark blue velvet and a bright orange paradise plume at the side.

Examine the pretty costume pictured and see how easy it is to copy. The double skirt is trimmed with arabesques of cut-out cloth. A tan gown of this description would be smart carried out with the cutwork of leaf green.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. Fall River Strikers Said to Be Hard Pressed For Funds

Fall River, Mass., Sept. 15.—After eight weeks of idleness here, it is stated that the mill treasurers claim to perceive a weakening among the Textile union men, who they consider are now beginning to face the necessity for work. It is stated that the strike funds are becoming exhausted and that a break may reasonably be looked for at any time.

A total of about $60,000 has been paid out to strikers from weavers, carders and loomfixers' unions, since the beginning of the strike. Slasher tenders and mule spinners are also being supported by their unions. It is claimed, however, that some of the unions are showing signs of financial weakness.

The stocks of all kinds of printing cloths are now believed to be less than 250,000 pieces, and there are not more than 400,000 pieces of other kinds of goods on hand. The loss in wages thus far has been $1,250,000 in round numbers, and the loss in production of all kinds of goods is nearly 2,500,000 pieces.

Boston Has 100,000 Schoolchildren

Boston, Sept. 15.—Boston's schools opened for the year yesterday with an attendance of more than 92,000. A number of new school buildings were ready for use and there was no lack of accommodations in any districts. The school committee expects the number of pupils enrolled to increase gradually until the total is more than 100,000, as usually the lists, by the first of January each year, show between 8000 and 9000 more than at the time of the beginning of the fall term.

Sues to Recover $40,000

Boston, Sept. 15.—Former Treasurer Glines of Haverhill, who is serving a term of from five to seven years for the larceny of $43,000 in securities from that city, has brought suit against the firm of Burnham & Haynes, stock brokers, for the recovery of $40,000, which he says he lost with them. Although the securities were bearer bonds, when his defalcation became known there was every reason to believe that they belonged to the city of Haverhill.

Missionaries In Need of Money

Boston, Sept. 15.—The American Board of Foreign Missions has received reports from various sections of eastern Turkey showing that serious disturbances have taken place during the last three months. Secretary Barton states that not less than 15,000 persons are now in a most desperate condition. The missionaries of the American Board are distributing the relief money in their possession, but this is said to be nothing compared to the need.

Dense Fog In Boston Harbor

Boston, Sept. 15.—One of the densest fogs in years practically laid an embargo on Boston harbor last night. All the afternoon great banks of fog had been rolling in. Coastwise steamers and fishing vessels were compelled to stay in port or else obliged to wait outside until the heavy blanket should lift. It was at reduced speed and only by the exercise of the greatest care that the ferryboats were able to navigate the inner harbor in safety.

Offer of $10,000 For Dog Rejected

Worcester, Mass., Sept. 15.—Lucius J. Knowles, the millionaire dog fancier, now travelling in England, has been offered $10,000 for a prize bulldog by King Edward's master of hounds. At an exhibition in London the dog attracted the attention of the king, and the next day the offer came. Knowles refused to part with the dog.

Endeavorers Show Great Growth

Boston, Sept. 15.—At the quarterly meeting of the executive committee of the United Society of Christian Endeavor it was reported that during the vacation season over 500 new societies had been reported, more than four-fifths of these coming from the United States. The present total enrollment is 64,904 societies.

Woman Twenty-Two Years In Jail

Providence, Sept. 15.—Miss Kate Judd has been released from the state prison at Cranston, her 25-year sentence, less three years for good behavior, having expired. The woman was sentenced in 1882 for setting fire to the residence of Edward Weaver in Newport, where she was employed as a domestic.

Had Thrilling Experience

New Haven, Sept. 15.—After having 33,000 volts of electricity pass through his body Lawrence H. Lee, 30 years old, still lives and the chances are that he will recover. He fell on some high tension wires in a power house and received the full current. He is now in a hospital.

Held For Assault on Wife

Concord, N. H., Sept. 15.—Thomas Gregory, wanted on the charge of murderously assaulting his wife with an axe at their home in Contoocook, was arrested on board a train at South Newbury. He was brought to this city and taken to the local jail.

Paddock Not Implicated

Springfield, Mass., Sept. 15.—The grand jury reported "no bill" in the case of Fred E. Paddock, who was under bonds on the charge of having aided in the escape from Hampden county jail of L. O. Hoffman, the hotel swindler and forger.

Three Cubans Killed American

Havana, Sept. 15.—The prosecutor at Puerto Principe has recommended the infliction of the death penalty upon the three Cubans who beat to death Alfred Simmons, an American farmer, in June last.

NOTES ABOUT TOWN.

Considerable fruit was blown from the trees by the storm this morning.

Mr. L. A. Chapin and wife left yesterday for a few days visit at Hartford, Conn.

Quincy will have a large representation tonight at the silver jubilee of the Foresters in Boston.

R. Garfield Wright left this week for Hanover N. H., to resume his studies at Dartmouth, N. H.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sampson of Granite street left this morning for a brief visit at Amesbury.

On six days out of the last seven the noon temperature has been below 70 degrees, and on one day 60.

Mrs. Laura F. Tirrell gave a mucicale, and entertained a number of friends, at her rooms in Adams Building Wednesday evening.

The closing smoker of the Quincy Yacht club will be held at the clubhouse tonight, and a rare good time is promised the members.

Robert E. Courtney of South Quincy is reported to have been killed on a railroad in New York on Tuesday, while "jumping freight trains." He leaves a widow and children in this city.

Grand Instructor Webber visited Mt. Wollaston lodge of Odd Fellows on Tuesday evening and received a hearty welcome. He addressed the lodge, and as usual was entertaining and gave the members some good points.

Coleman Bros., the contractors, have purchased the vacant lot of 61,000 square feet on Jefferson avenue and Birch street at Norfolk Downs, from William Cook, paying much higher than fifteen cents per foot, the taxed value.

The improvements of I. O. O. F. hall in the Adams building are nearly complete, and it is now bright and attractive. The carpets have been taken up and cleaned, the canopies removed, the walls retinted, and the woodwork varnished.

—A long time ago, at the entrance to one of the old English taverns, there was placed a box with a slit in it bearing the initials "T. I. P." These little letters spelling "Tip," were meant to stand for the words, "To Insure Promptness." It is a far cry to the time when this little word was coined, and the visitors at the coffee-house began to drop in their coins to secure greater alacrity on the part of the aproned Ganymedes, who served meat pies and small beer.

TO FROZEN NORTH

Peary Will Make Another Attempt to Reach the Pole

CONTRACT FOR NEW SHIP

Will Be Built Along Lines Intended to Overcome Obstacles Hitherto Met With--Explorer Will Start Next Summer

New York, Sept. 15.—Commander Peary, the Arctic explorer, announced last night that a contract has been signed for a new Arctic ship which he is to use in another attempt to reach the North Pole and that he expects to start north next summer.

The announcement was made at a dinner tendered by the American Geographical society to those in attendance upon the eighth international geographical congress, which is being held here. Commander Peary, who presided, delivered an address, and said in part:

"Tonight I have the pleasure of saying to you that the contract for my new Arctic ship has been signed and that her keel is being laid now. This means that the expedition upon which I have been putting my energies for the past two years is lifted out of the realm of uncertainty, and that if I am alive I shall start north again next summer in another attempt upon the North Pole.

"It does not mean that I have all the money necessary, but it does mean that I have now until the first of next July in which to secure the additional funds necessary to fit out and equip the ship, and I do not believe that my countrymen would permit the expedition to fail for lack of this additional necessary funds.

"The ship will, I believe, be the ablest ship that ever pointed her nose inside the Arctic or Antarctic circle. She will possess such shape as will enable her to rise to the pressure of the ice floes and escape destruction. She will possess such features of bow as will enable her to smash ice in her path, and will contain such engine power as will enable her to force her way through the ice.

"In maximum dimensions, viz: length over all, breadth of beam and draft, this ship will be of the size of the British Antarctic ship Discovery; in displacement she will be somewhat less, in power she will compare with our largest ocean-going tugs.

"My plan of campaign in a very few words is to force this ship to the north shores of Grant Land, taking on board at Whale Sound the pick and flower of the Esquimaux, with whom I have worked and lived so long; to go into winter quarters on that shore, and to start with the earliest returning light on the sledge journey across the central polar pack, utilizing these Esquimaux, the people whose heritage is life and work in that very region, entirely of the rank and file of my party."

Lightning Struck Skyscraper

New York, Sept. 15.—During a severe storm that passed over New York and vicinity last night considerable damage was caused by lightning. In Newark lightning struck the building of the Prudential Insurance company and ripped out some of the heavy granite blocks which form a cupola 264 feet above the ground. Many of the blocks went crashing through roofs of houses adjoining the skyscraper. In this city a number of buildings were struck by lightning.

Divorce Granted Millionaire Phipps

Denver, Sept. 15.—Lawrence C. Phipps, the Pittsburg millionaire, has been granted a divorce from his wife, on the ground of desertion, by the district court. No defense was made and no evidence was introduced to support the charge. It was ordered by the court that the financial agreement entered into between the husband and wife be made a part of the decree.

Fifteen Shots Without Result

New York, Sept. 15.—A pitched battle between three alleged highwaymen and two policemen was fought in Central park within the hearing of residents of a block of apartment houses. At least 15 shots were fired. After the battle two men were placed under arrest. They gave their names as Thomas Hannan and Edward Rafter. No one was wounded.

Intended to Assassinate

Madrid, Sept. 15.—Senor Apolo, manager of an anarchist journal here, and Cesar Flores, who recently arrived here from France, have been arrested. Flores, who had a dynamite cartridge in his pocket, confessed that he was concerned in a plot to assassinate an eminent political personage.

Autoboat to Cross the Atlantic

London, Sept. 15.—S. F. Edge is building for a wealthy American a cruising motor boat to cross the Atlantic. He says the boat ought to stand a good chance of securing the prize of $10,000 offered by C. L. Charley, the automobilist of Paris, for the first autoboat to cross the Atlantic.

Storer Roosevelt's Guest

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Sept. 15.—Bellamy Storer, ambassador to Austria, is a guest of President Roosevelt. He says his visit to the president is of a personal nature and practically devoid of official significance. He will remain in this country until after the November election.

MILTON.

Rev. and Mrs. Theodore I. Reese left Thursday for a two weeks' trip to New Hampshire.

Walter J. Farrell of Boston University, '04, began his duties Monday as principal of the Dartmouth High school.

The Alvin Leavitt estate on Willard street is to be sold.

Schools opened Monday with a good attendance.

The funeral of Stanley Dowden, who died Saturday was held Wednesday from his home on Belcher circle. Services were conducted by Rev. T. I. Reese.

The fire department was called out twice on Monday evening. The first time at 7.45 on a still alarm from Box 67, for a fire in the basement of the Rugby block. Loss slight. The second alarm came from Box 24 at 9 o'clock. This was for a fire in the laundry at Charles Johnson's house on Brush Hill road. It was caused by a lamp exploding, which did a damage of $300.

Today is the eightieth anniversary of the birth of Mrs. A. D. T. Whitney, a resident of Adams street, near Randolph avenue. Almost coincident with this event, which, by the way, will not be celebrated to any extent if she can help it, is the coming of the final proof sheets of her 27th book, just announced by her publishers. It will be out next month.

Bethany Rally Day.

The annual Rally Day of Bethany Bible school will be held a week from Sunday, when special exercises will be held in the church auditorium. There will be a roll call of classes, and Rev. E. N. Hardy, the pastor, will tell "What our school has been doing, and what it ought to be doing the coming year."

HOBBIES ARE GOOD.

They Aid One In Forgetting Sorrow, and They Help Health.

How often does one hear the expression, "Oh, that is So-and-so's hobby," spoken rather disparagingly. It is the tendency of the average mind to regard a person who has a pronounced enthusiasm as a species of harmless lunatic, rather to be pitied. The truth of the matter is that any one who has any especial fad is greatly to be envied, as it probably provides more interest and amusement for its possessor than anything else. Any decided interest in life, whether it is dignified by the name of an occupation or is simply an enthusiasm or even mentioned slightingly as a fad, is eminently desirable.

"I have never seen a genuine collector that is not happy when he is allowed by circumstances to gratify his tastes," remarked a student of human nature, "and a bent in that direction should always be encouraged. It is a curious phase of our humanity that we will work diligently to make provision for our material needs when we are old and quite neglect to store up mental resources that will interest and amuse us until we are called hence."

Hobbies help one to forget sorrow and give us pleasure in the present. They are among the best things in life, promoters of health, peace and happiness.—New York Mail.

The Gentianl Plant.

Gentius, king of Illyricum, the eastern boundary of the Adriatic, was taken prisoner by the Romans about a century and a half before the Christian era for encouraging pirates and died in custody. He discovered that a certain plant was a very good tonic, and that plant has ever since been called gentianl, after him. This plant is generally supposed to have been the tall, coarse alpine, common in mountainous districts in central Europe, and known to botanists as G. lutea, a preparation of which is still in high repute as a medicine.

Belated Weddings.

The love of independence and the freedom and pleasure of today make girls less and less anxious to marry before they are past five and twenty. Perhaps it is better that there should be that disinclination, for our modern life may fit a woman better to marry late than early.—Lady Jeune in London Opinion.

CHOIR REUNION.

Choir and Organist of Nineteen Years Ago Meet Again.

Mr. and Mrs. Marcus E. Wight entertained on Wednesday evening in honor of Mrs. Ada Brown of Brooklyn, N. Y. The chorister, organist and quartette forming the choir at the Quincy Point Baptist church nineteen years ago were represented by Mrs. Brown, soprano; Mrs. Sarah Newcomb, alto; Mr. Wight, tenor; Mr. Charles Tower, bass; and Mr. Herbert A. Hayden organist. The reunion proved pleasant for all. Mr. Hayden showed his old time willingness to furnish music, and the quartette sang the anthems with the old time sweetness and spirit. It is hoped the reunions in the future may be frequent occurrences.

Appears next in our list of famous authors in a fascinating love romance of colonial times entitled

The Heart's Highway

You would read a story by this distinguished writer without having it recommended, but perhaps you would be interested in what the critics say about "The Heart's Highway."

Fine Piece of Literature

The love story in "The Heart's Highway" is a very pretty one and there is a perplexing mystery running through it which helps to sustain the interest. "The Heart's Highway" is a thoroughly fine piece of literature and is deserving of the widest popularity.—Memphis Commercial-Appeal.

A Most Delightful Story

Miss Wilkins has written a most delightful story, thereby proving the versatility of her genius.—Richmond (Va.) Times.

The Childishness of Love

[Original.]

In 1895 there was a girl named Marguerite Bouryenval in France who had then been asleep or in a trance for eleven years. Corinne Butterfield, a little Yankee girl, went to sleep one night and did not awaken for ten years, but when she did awake she found as great a change in her surroundings as did Rip Van Winkle after his long slumber.

One night as Corinne was going to bed she was very badly frightened. She had lain her doll down on the bed, where it would be beside her when she slept, and had said her prayers when a burglar entered the room. Corinne lost consciouness and from that time forward lived in a trance. Her mother would not permit anything in the room to be changed, and when ten years later Corinne awoke there about her were the same walls, curtains, furniture—indeed, everything—just as it had been when she had gone to sleep ten years before, even to her doll beside her. There was no one in the room when she emerged from her trance, and she was obliged to get her bearings as best she could. She had no remembrance of her fright, but it seemed to her that she had passed a very bad night, sleeping heavily. She drew her doll up to her, but somehow it did not seem to have the same place in her affections as the night before. She sat up in bed, and there in the mirror on the dresser, where she had been used to seeing herself reflected, was the image of a girl of twenty.

Corinne started. Who was that lovely creature with a long coil of plaited hair hanging over her shoulder? From the image she turned to herself and saw that her limbs and body had grown, her breast had filled out—indeed, she was a woman. And by looking from herself to the reflection she was soon convinced that she and it were one and the same.

It would be impossible to portray the feelings of this girl, so suddenly awakened to the fact that since what was to her the night before she had become a woman. On a chair beside her bed was a complete set of clothing which her mother had always kept there, changing it as Corinne grew older and larger. Getting out of bed, she sat on a chair—for she did not at once dare stand—put on the clothes and as soon as she had done so, holding on to the furniture as she proceeded, left her room.

When Corinne had gone to sleep she had a little sweetheart, Bennie Hoyt, a fine little fellow thirteen years old. Bennie had watched the sleeper, seeing her grow from childhood to womanhood, and the love of a boy had passed to that of a man. He was used to coming to the house where lay his sleeping love every morning before going to business. When Corinne reached the landing and was about to go downstairs the front door opened, and a young man entered. Looking up, he saw her. A thrill of joy lighted up his face. He stretched out his arms to her and exclaimed, "Thank God!"

Corinne stood holding on to the banister, while the man, quickly mounting the stairs, took her in his arms, drew her to his breast and covered her face with kisses.

Corinne's sensations at this treatment were very different from anything she had ever experienced before. There was nothing unusual in being kissed by a man—she had sat on a man's lap, with her arms around his neck—but now these caresses brought the blood to her cheek.

"Tell me," she exclaimed, "who are you? Who am I? What does it all mean?"

"You have slept for ten years," he said. "Come; I will tell you all about it."

Young Hoyt was eager to spread the good news that the sleeper had been awakened, but there was no one just then in the house except the servants, so he led Corinne downstairs to the library, where he told her of her scare of ten years before, how it had thrown her into a trance, how she had been cared for by those nearest to her and how his childish affection of a decade before had grown while she slept to the love of a man.

"And now, dear heart," he said, "your love for me has stood still. I shall have to win you as a man. This I hope to do, and soon you will be my wife."

"And shall we have a little house of our own, with dinner sets and furniture and a place for dolly"—

The last few words were spoken hesitatingly, with a glimmer of consciousness that her doll would give place to a doll of a different kind. She blushed and hid her face on his breast.

Hoyt started. He had often thought of this awakening and had endeavored to prepare himself for a mind that had not been developed with the body. He had feared that Corinne's deficiency would dissolve the love he bore her.

Some one has said that lovers are nothing more than grown children. Hoyt discovered that, instead of wishing to bring Corinne up to his standard, he, as a lover, sank to hers. She was to him "my sweet little girl," "my own pet," "dear bunny." A dozen times a day he asked her: "Are you growing to love me?" "Are you sure you don't love any one else?" "Would you miss me if I should go away?" "What would I do if I should lose my little birdie?"

The courtship was a long one, for Corinne must condense eight or nine years' schooling into three or four. When she was twenty-three they were married and began to talk about practical things like men and women. But, had it not been that lovers are children, when she awoke Hoyt would have left her for a mentally developed woman.

WEAVERS ARE FIRM

Answer to Reports That They Were to Surrender

WILL NOT RETURN OCT. 3

Some Fall River Treasurers Strongly Inclined to Opening Mill Gates and Making Fight an Open One

Fall River, Mass, Sept 16.—At a mass meeting of union weavers it was unanimously voted not to return to work Monday, Oct. 3, but to hold a mass meeting of union and non-union weavers on that day. This is the answer given by the weavers to the reports published to the effect that operations were to be resumed soon. The weavers met yesterday for the second time since the strike began, and the temper of those who attended—nearly 1500—is shown by the vote. News of the weavers' action has greatly cheered the other union strikers. A financial report made to the weavers showed that $24,400 had been paid out to members since the strike began, exclusive of a payment being made this week.

Developments indicate that manufacturers are preparing to take a more aggressive attitude in the matter of the strike. It is becoming clear that the unions will not make an advance to the Manufacturers' association for some weeks. In the meantime the suffering, which is already acute among many non-unionists, will become more general. Manufacturers find little or no warrant in market conditions for reopening the mills, as cotton has advanced again in the past two days and the cloth market is almost at a standstill.

At the same time, it has become apparent that many of the operatives have given up all idea of winning, and that further resistance means an aggravation of suffering. The union funds are becoming depleted. The officials are trying now to retain the funds they have left, so that when the manufacturers open the gates they can concentrate their efforts toward supporting those among the unionists without whose work the mills cannot operated profitably for some time. They are also pressing the American Federation of labor for financial support to maintain these unionists who have saved their money and made the fight a success thus far, from the trades union viewpoint. Should these appeals net $5000 for two or three weeks, the unionists could prolong resistance well into October.

It is not likely that an attempt will be made to start next week. Possibly it will not be made until a week from Monday, but the matter was talked of seriously by some mill men, and a change in the policy of closed doors may be looked for soon. The earlier the mills try to open the harder the unions will fight, but some treasurers think an open fight at the end may not be a bad thing for the mills. One reason for the growth of a desire among the mill men to open the gates is to follow out the plans they had in mind when the strike was inaugurated. It was said at that time that the wage reduction was but part of a plan so to reduce the cost of production in Fall River mills that they could compete with mills elsewhere. The wage reduction was but an incident, the main purpose being to lessen the number of operatives.

President Borden of the Cotton Manufacturers' association says he knows of no agreement to open the mills Oct. 3, or any other definite date. He is positive that there is no break in the ranks of the manufacturers. "The mills will be opened some time," he said, "but up to the present I have seen no indications that the great mass of operatives or the union members desire to have them opened. While market conditions remain as they are I fear there will be little done in the way of reopening."

Two corporations are known to be desirous of starting up, but their managers have not talked very decisively with the members of the executive committee.

Barge and Schooner Lost

Detroit, Sept. 16.—The barge Gardner caught fire on Lake Huron and sank seven miles above Sanilac. Schooner Singapore was dashed to pieces on the beach near Kincardine, Ont. She had become waterlogged. No lives were lost on either vessel.

Troops Guarded Murderer

Camilla, Ga., Sept. 16.—A special term of the superior court convened here to try Whitley Willford, the negro accused of murder, for whose protection the militia had been called out. Willford was found guilty and sentenced to be hanged Oct. 6.

BURGLARS ABOUT.

Police Make a Prompt Arrest and Find Stolen Goods.

The variety store of Henry A. Clark at Braintree was entered by burglars last night, in the vicinity of 10 o'clock. The store was ransacked and the burglars carried of a miscellaneous assortment of goods valued at from $6 to $8.

Later in the evening Officers Hunt and Gallivan arrested Frank and William Billings at their home at Sunnyside Park. Some of the goods stolen were found in their possessions.

The burglars gained entrance to the store by breaking a glass in the door. The men were arraigned in court at Quincy.

Public Library Entered.

Burglars entered the Thomas Crane Public Library sometime last night and stole $3 in money that had been received for fines. Entrance was had by opening one of the windows that had been left unfastened. The parties who entered left the steel nail pulled, with which they had opened the window, behind them. Some mischief was done.

Unwelcome Visitor.

G. H Murray, who lives at the corner of North Central and Newport avenues, went into his cellar, Tuesday evening and discovered a negro asleep there. He obtained the assistance of a gentleman nearby, and together they went into the cellar, only to find that the man had left. The police were notified, but as yet no trace of the intruder has been found.

Suit Against Masons.

A petition for a writ of mandamus brought by John H. Whitehead of Quincy, against Theodore C. Gram of Wollaston lodge of Masons and Baalis Sanford and the master warden and members of the grand lodge of Masons in Massachusetts, with a view to have the defendents install and recognize the petitioner as junior warden of the Wollaston lodge, came up before Judge Lathrop in the supreme court on Thursday, says the Globe.

The lodge refused to install Whitehead on the ground that he was a member of the supreme council, Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite for United States of America, which is not recognized by the Grand lodge of Masons.

By reason of his membership in the supreme council named, it is contended that Whitehead is not eligible to hold office, and his election last December was delared void and another man was elected in March.

Hip Fractured.

The Globe reports that Agnes F. Marston, 60 years old, of 37 Washington street, Quincy, came to Boston Thursday to look at the vacant house at 56 Chandler street. While she was going over it she slipped and fell into the coal bin in the basement, fracturing her right hip. She was taken to the City hospital.

Deciding Game.

The Wollaston Parks will play the Warrens of Neponset Saturday at the Neponset playground, for the championship of Boston and vicinity. This game will be the third and deciding game of the series, as the Wollaston Parks won the first game, and the Warrens took the second game. A good contest is looked for as both have strong teams with good records especially the Park team, which has won 29 games out of 34 in the last two years. With Gram and Drake in the points for the Wollaston Parks, the boys feel pretty sure of taking the Warrens into camp.

Central Labor Union.

At a regular meeting of the Quincy Central Labor Union held in Wilson Hall on Thursday evening two young lady delegates from Fall River interested the delegates in a description of the great struggle in that city in the textile industry. The Quincy Central Labor Union endorsed their cause and will urge all local unions to donate as much money as possible. A committee will be appointed and a system of weekly assesment put into effect by which it is hoped to reach every union worker in Quincy.

Katzmann—Brown.

Among the Hyde Park news in the Globe is the announcement that Frederick G. Katzmann and Miss Grace Louise, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac F. Brown, were married Wednesday at Christ Episcopal church, Quincy, by the rector, Rev. William E. Gardner, a relative of the bride. The attendants were Arthur F. Brown, brother of the bride, and Miss Cora M. Gunn, a relative of the groom. The bride was attired in a traveling dress. Mr. and Mrs. Katzmann have gone on a wedding trip to Nantucket. They will reside at 16 Dell avenue.

CANDIDATES FOR THE CAUCUSES.

Nomination Papers Opened by the Republicans, Democrats and Socialists.

Nomination papers for representatives and congressman, and for delegates to caucus conventions to be voted for at the joint caucuses, were opened by all parties Thursday evening.

Those of the Republicans were publicly opened at the Master Builders' room at 8 o'clock. The opening of the papers for Representatives occasioned some surprise.

It was well known that there were five papers out, but for some unexplainable reason but three papers were filed. One of the papers that failed to materialize was that of ex-Mayor John O. Hall. There have been many rumors about Mr. Hall withdrawing from the contest but he has emphatically denied that he intended to withdraw, and has said he was in it to the finish.

The other paper that failed to be filed was that of Albert G. Dolliver. It was quite widely rumored that Mr. Dolliver took out papers to beat Mr. Hall, and he has said that should Mr. Hall withdraw from the contest he should also withdraw. Another thing that would keep Mr. Dolliver out was that he has recently accepted a position in the railway mail service which would disbar him from serving.

This therefore leaves the contest for the representative nomination between Messrs. Freeman, Nicoll and Sandberg, two to be nominated.

It was not thought that the Democrats would place anyone in nomination for representative. Almost at the last moment, however, they decided to nominate candidates and James H. Elcock and Timothy J. Carey will be the nominees.

For Congressman the Republicans and Democrats each have two candidates seeking the nomination, but all are Boston Men.

Insured for $2,000,000

L. Rodman Wanamaker, son of John Wanamaker, the eminent merchant of New York and Philadelphia, has taken out a policy in

The Prudential Insurance Co.

for $1,000,000, paying an annual premium of over $30,000. This makes him the most heavily insured man in the world, with the single exception of King Edward VII.

Mr. Wanamaker's total insurance is now $2,000,000.

Ask yourself WHY Mr. Wanamaker placed one-half this great amount with The Prudential.

Your business judgment will at once reply: "Because after full investigation and comparison, Mr. Wanamaker found that the company which could give him the best insurance for a given amount of money was The Prudential."

Undoubtedly you will agree that Mr. Wanamaker does not pay over $30,000 per year except for most excellent reasons.

These reasons apply to YOU precisely as well as they do to HIM.

UNDER PROTECTION.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

A few days ago, when Judge Parker made an address to the Democratic editors who called upon him at Rosemount, he said: "I shall not take up your time with any reference to the great issues upon which our party appeals to the people." This was certainly very wise and conservative on his part, since the public is gasping to know what the issues are and what Judge Parker thinks about them. As the case now stands it would puzzle a Philadelphia Lawyer to state the issues. A bill of particulars would be very acceptable from the judge; so that the jury can determine whether there is any issue save Parker vs. Roosevelt. But the American people will soon decide the case.

☞ The Wall Street Journal calls upon the business men of the country to look forward instead of backward. ☞ The very foundation of character is sincerity—honesty and truthfulness are but other names for the same thing—and if parents continually set their children an example of insincerity, of what avail are sermon and maxims from their lips? In every way children fashion their conduct after that of the adults about them. Fortunate are the children whose training and environment are such as to establish habits of all the virtues, who are trained in habits of reverence, honesty, courtesy, etc. Habit is indeed 'ten natures,' and will stand by one under stress and strain that would weaken the average moral fibre; hence, it behooves us each day to see that uninterrupted habit has an opportunity to perform its marvelous work in the moral nature and in the wonderful brain cells which register with such unerring accuracy all that is said and done.—Mrs. Theodore W. WILL BE DISARMED

Our Naval Authorities to Have Charge of the Lena

ORDER OF THE PRESIDENT

Action Taken on Request of Commander of Russian Cruiser --Question Regarding Officers and Crew Not Yet Settled

Washington, Sept. 16.—Acting Secretary of State Adee gave out the following statement regarding the Russian ship Lena:

"The president has issued an order, through the acting secretary of state, directing that the Russian armed transport Lena, now at San Francisco, be taken in custody by the naval authorities of the United States and disarmed. The main features of the conditions prescribed are that the Lena be taken to the Mare Island navy yard and there disarmed by the removal of small guns, the breech-blocks of large guns, small arms, ammunition and ordnance stores and such other dismantlement as may be prescribed by the commandant of the navy yard, and the captain give a written guarantee that the Lena shall not leave San Francisco until peace shall have been concluded; that the officers and crew shall be paroled not to leave San Francisco until some other understanding as to their disposal may be reached between the United States government and both the belligerents; that after disarmament the vessel may be removed to a private dock for such reasonable repairs as will make her seaworthy and preserve her in good condition during her detention, and may be so repaired at the navy yard, if the Russian commander should so elect; that while at a private dock the commandant of the navy yard at Mare Island shall have custody of the ship, and the repairs shall be overseen by an engineer officer to be detailed by the commandant and that when so repaired, if peace shall not then have been concluded, the vessel shall be taken back to the Mare Island navy yard and be there held in custody until the end of the war.

"This action has been taken on the written request of the commander of the Lena, addressed to Rear Admiral Goodrich, setting forth that as the vessel is incapable of putting to sea without needful repairs she must disarm, and asking that needful repairs be permitted after disarmament.

"The secretary of the navy has telegraphed the president's order to San Francisco and given instructions to Admiral Goodrich and to Captain McCall, the commandant of the Mare Island navy yard, to carry out its instructions."

The main question regarding the Lena having thus been settled, officials of the administration and of the two belligerent governments now will devote themselves to reaching an understanding regarding the officers and crew of the vessel.

It is not likely that the officers and crew of the Lena will be allowed again to participate in the war unless the government of Japan should waive its prerogatives in that regard, which is not thought to be at all probable. An arrangement will be effected whereby the men either will be permitted to return to Russia or be interned in the United States, as the transport is to be, until the close of hostilities, at the expense of the Russian government.

British Watching the Korea

Victoria, B. C., Sept. 16.—Members of the crew of the H. M. S. Grafton report the presence of the Russian armed auxiliary vessel Korea in the Pacific, off the northern coast of Vancouver Island, steaming slowly southward. They expect that the Korea will come to Esquimault or Victoria. She is described as a larger vessel than the Lena and is commanded by an officer of high rank in the Russian navy. The news has caused much excitement at Esquimault, where preparations to deal with her case, should she enter, are now being made.

Work Ahead For the Grafton

Victoria, B. C., Sept. 16.—H. M. S. Grafton, flagship of the Pacific squadron, entered dry dock at daybreak this morning for a "rush" cleaning. She is to be out in 24 hours. H. M. S. Flora is at her moorings in Esquimault harbor under steam, ready to put to sea on an instant's notice.

Breathing Spell For Both Armies

London, Sept. 16.—There has been no renewal of fighting since the retreat of the Russian army under General Kuropatkin to Mukden. Conditions there, both within the Japanese and the Russian lines, indicate that a month may elapse before the great armies in central Manchuria will again enter upon a general engagement. At St. Petersburg the expectation is that the next conflict of moment will occur at Port Arthur.

Has a Clear Conscience

Madison, Wis., Sept. 16.—Justice Siebecker yesterday announced that, as the Republican factional fight now before the supreme court has developed features that involve the personal and political fortunes of one of his relatives, he had decided it was not proper for him to participate in the case and left the bench. The arguments are not yet finished.

A GALE-SWEPT COAST

Numerous Disasters Along New England Shore and South

New York, Sept. 16.—A number of lives were lost, much property damaged and several ships were wrecked in the storm which swept up the Atlantic coast Wednesday night and yesterday. It was one of the fiercest September storms on record—thunder and lightning adding terrors to a howling gale, which swept drenching sheets of rain over sea and land.

The greatest loss of life was near Wilmington, Del. The tug Israel W. Durham, with 10 persons aboard, was swamped in the Delaware river and eight of the 10 men drowned. From further down the coast comes the report that five men were drowned off Charleston.

Nineteen coal barges went adrift in New York bay and their wreckage strews the shore from the Battery to the Narrows, but no lives were lost. Several small vessels also went ashore on various parts of the coast near New York.

The fishing steamer Joseph Church of Greenport, N. Y., struck on Peaked Hill bars, in Massachusetts bay, and was smashed to pieces. The captain and crew of 21 men were saved. From Wilmington, Del., cames the news that great destruction was caused by the storm. Trees were uprooted, houses flooded and crops ruined. In Chesapeake bay the storm was particularly fierce. The storm was accompanied by a cold wave.

Block Island, Nantucket and Highland Light reported wind velocities of over 60 miles an hour. After strewing Vineyard sound, Nantucket, Cape Cod and the Maine coast with many wrecks, the storm kept on to the provinces.

It is believed that the disturbance will be accountable for a property loss east of New York amounting to more than $1,000,000.

Great Fire at Halifax

Halifax, Sept. 16.—A fortunate shift of wind undoubtedly saved Halifax from a disastrous conflagration, but the city suffered a loss of $500,000 from a fire which swept the water front and whose progress was only stayed by the dynamiting of a dozen buildings. The fire consumed six wharves, two coal piers, two hotels, a dozen large warehouses and a number of retail shops. During the fire a tree fell, killing Flora Ring, aged 28. One fireman was fatally injured by a live wire.

Son and Heir to King of Italy

Racconigi, Italy, Sept. 16.—Queen Helena was safely delivered of a son at 11 o'clock last night at the royal palace here. Mother and child are doing well. The infant has received the name of Humbert and the title of Prince of Piedmont.

Queen Helena was married to King Victor Emanuel, then Prince of Naples, in 1896. Their first child, a girl named Yolanda, was born June 1, 1901. The second daughter, Mafalda, was born on Nov. 19, 1902.

Seven Thousand Miles on Foot

St. Louis, Sept. 16.—Louis G. Madrigal, 19 years old, who started from Lima, Peru, Sept. 2, 1902, has arrived here after a walk of 7000 miles. Madrigal is a deaf mute. He carries as a witness of his remarkable exploit a set of 14 books which contain the certificates of the mayors, postmasters, railroad agents and officials in cities and towns through which he has passed on the trip.

Paraguayan War Continues

Buenos Ayres, Sept. 16.—There has been a complete failure of negotiations between the Paraguayan government and the revolutionists. The rebel vessel Sajonia attacked the port of San Antonio yesterday, a simultaneous attack being made by land with cavalry and infantry. The combat lasted three hours and resulted in the defeat and dispersal of the government forces.

Sheep Butchers Still on Strike

Chicago, Sept. 16.—Because of alleged discrimination against sheep butchers employed at the Union stockyards, the Sheep Butchers' union has decided to remain on strike. All of the packing companies excepting Armour & Co. are alleged to be discriminating. The packing trades council has agreed to support the union.

Supplias For Panama Ditch

Washington, Sept. 16.—Coincident with the return of the isthmian canal commission from Panama is the giving of orders for the purchase of a large quantity of material necessary for carrying on the work. A complete code of laws for the government of the canal strip has been prepared by the commission.

Troops Surround Jail

Huntsville, Ala., Sept. 16.—The Madison county jail is guarded by two militia companies because threats have been made that parties indicted by the grand jury in connection with the lynching of Horace Maples and placed in this jail would be taken out by their friends. Pickets guard all approaches to the jail.

Happy Day For Prisoners

Lhassa, Thibet, Sept. 16.—According to the treaty between the British and the Thibetans, signed Sept. 7, prisoners on both sides were released yesterday. Some of the prisoners released by the Thibetans had been in captivity over 20 years. One old man had been kept in a dungeon and had gone blind.

CITY BREVITIES.

A beautiful morning.

Less than eight weeks to the Presidental election.

It is now too late to file nomination papers for the caucuses.

A regular meeting of the City Council will be held next Monday evening.

Visitors to the World's Fair will find the Daily Ledger on file at the Massachusetts building, with the compliments of the publishers.

"The Heart's Highway," a fascinating love romance of colonial days by Mary E. Wilkins, will begin in the Daily Ledger tomorrow.

A Happy Meeting.

Miss Julia M. Little of Spear street was delighted yesterday by the arrival of her two sisters and niece from California, Mrs. L. J. Hardy of Oakland and her daughter, Mrs. W. C. Halsay, and Miss E. C. Little of San Francisco. After a stop of a week or more here the three sisters will visit Corinth, Vermont, their native town, and enjoy the pleasures to be found in their girlhood home, from which they have wandered so far away.

Thursday, October 13, is the Date. $5.00 is the Rate.

For the final grand excursion of the Boston & Albany, through Worcester, Springfield, Pittsfield, the Berkshire Hills to Albany; the Hudson River boats (either night or day.) to New York, the Fall River Line to Boston for $5.00. Stop-over in New York to Oct. 25 for $2 extra. From stations west of Boston, Oct. 12. Send for descriptive leaflet. A. S. Hanson, General Passenger Agent, Boston.

Prettily Illustrated.

The Ledger's new story by Mary E. Wilkins is profusely and artistically illustrated. There are four illustrations in the opening chapter in the Saturday Ledger, two of which are given below:

Mary Cavendish and Merry Roger

In all there will be nearly fifty illustrations similar to these.

Captain Calvin Tabor

Please tell your friends that the opening chapter of "The Heart's Highway will apear in the Saturday eight-page Ledger.

—Everybody marries in Japan and large families are the rule. Young men of 20 or 21 who are not married are regarded as a discredit to the community in which they live. There are comparatively few bachelors or spinsters. Polygamy is lawful—a man may have as many wives as he is able to support—but it is seldom practiced. The emperor has 12 wives, selected for him by the privy council, but the prince imperial has only one, and the privy council has decided that he shall have no more. Polygamy, even at the imperial palace, is regarded as a relic of Oriental barbarism.

MARY E. WILKINS

Appears next in our list of famous authors in a fascinating love romance of colonial times entitled

The Heart's Highway

You would read a story by this distinguished writer without having it recommended, but perhaps you would be interested in what the critics say about "The Heart's Highway."

Fine Piece of Literature

The love story in "The Heart's Highway" is a very pretty one and there is a perplexing mystery running through it which helps to sustain the interest. "The Heart's Highway" is a thoroughly fine piece of literature and is deserving of the widest popularity.—Memphis Commercial-Appeal.

A Most Delightful Story

IT GOES TO HIGGINS

Unanimous Nomination For Governor of New York

NO DEFINITE ALIGNMENT

Woodruff Withdrew After It Became "Obvious to His Practiced Ear" That the Convention Was Against Him

Saratoga, N. Y., Sept. 16.—The Republican state convention adjourned at 2:30 p. m. yesterday after nominating unanimously the ticket for state officers as forecasted:

For governor, Frank W. Higgins; lieutenant governor, M. L. Bruce; secretary of state, J. F. O'Brien; attorney general, J. M. Mayer; comptroller, Otto Kelsey; state treasurer, J. G. Wallenmaier; state engineer and surveyor, H. A. VanAlstyne; chief judge of the court of appeals, E. M. Cullen, (Dem.); associate judge of the court of appeals, W. E. Werner (Rep).

The unanimous action of the convention in the nomination of Lieutenant Governor Higgins for the governorship was made possible by the withdrawal of former Lieutenant Governor Woodruff from the race at the very last moment, as the convention was preparing for the rollcall by the individual delegates as called for in the resolution introduced in the interest of Woodruff's candidacy and at the demand of the Kings county delegations.

It was only when, as he himself said, it became "obvious to his practiced ear" that the convention was almost solidly against him; after his name had been placed in nomination in a speech by W. A. Prendergast, in which the management of the Higgins campaign was bitterly attacked, that Woodruff took the platform, withdrew his name from further consideration, moved that the nomination of Higgins be made unanimous and pledged the fullest effort of himself and his Kings county forces in aid of the ticket about to be nominated. There was no contest whatever over any other place upon the ticket.

Up to the very moment when Chairman Malby announced the call of the roll of individual delegates, it was expected by the vast majority of the convention that there would be a definite alignment and individual count of the forces behind Higgins and Woodruff, and the recognized importance of the bearing of the result upon the entire state organization produced a feeling of intense interest on the part of everyone present. If anyone outside of Woodruff's immediate circle of personal confidants knew what he was about to do, they kept the secret well, and to nearly every person in the convention it was a complete and dramatic surprise.

Candidate Swallow at Boston

Boston, Sept. 16.—Rev. Dr. Silas C. Swallow, Prohibition candidate for president, addressed a large audience here last evening at the opening rally of the state campaign. Dr. Swallow declared that the Prohibition party has the issue. It stands for dissolving the partnership between the government and the liquor traffic; for arbitration between capital and labor and international arbitration, and for the initiative and referendum. "When we are paying, as we are today," said Dr. Swallow, "$16 for every $1 we receive from the liquor traffic, common honesty would say that the partnership between the government should be dissolved and that traffic compelled to take its place with other nuisances and other crimes."

Parker's Mysterious Movements

New York, Sept. 16.—Judge Parker yesterday conferred with more than a score of prominent party leaders who called on him at his apartments at the Hotel Astor. All guests who by appointment called to see Judge Parker were ushered in through a private entrance, and no person without the proper credentials were permitted on the fifth floor, where the candidate's apartments were situated. His actions throughout the entire day were shrouded in the deepest mystery.

Majority In Favor of Douglas

Boston, Sept. 16.—At a meeting of the Democratic state committee here to arrange for the fall campaign both William L. Douglas of Brockton and Charles S. Hamlin of Boston were favored for the nomination for governor. No vote was taken on the matter and the meeting was adjourned with Douglas and Hamlin as nomination possibilities, although the former had the support of the majority of those who gave voice to their preference.

Black Had Easy Lead

Trenton, Sept. 16.—Charles C. Black was nominated for governor by the Democratic state convention. One ballot was taken, Black receiving 919 votes to 74 for T. M. Ferrell, 50 for F. S. Katzenbach and 27 for William Gephart. The nomination was made unanimous.

Populists Denounce Democrats

Indianapolis, Sept. 16.—The fusion Populists of Indiana nominated a state ticket headed by Leroy Templeton for governor. The platform denounced the Democratic party which, it is declared, is dominated by plutocrats and Wall street.

CONCERNS TWO STATES

Murder on Border Line of Massachusetts and Rhode Island

Pawtucket, R. I., Sept. 16.—Mrs. Dennis Crowley, aged 65, whose mutilated body was found by two young men at noon yesterday in the woods just over the state line, died at a hospital here four hours later without regaining consciousness.

John Allingham, sometimes known as Captain Harrington, a veteran and pensioner of the Civil war, is held on suspicion of being the perpetrator of the murder. Blood spots on the prisoner's shirt, articles belonging to the murdered woman in his possession, the conflicting stories told by him, the condition of the woman's bedroom, the fact that Allingham occupied a room in the house, and his apparent attempt to quit the scene before the arrival of the police, lead the authorities to believe that they have the right man.

The house, which has been occupied by Mrs. Crowley for some years, is situated about two feet from the line dividing Massachusetts and Rhode Island. The main portion of the house is in Rhode Island, while an L extended over the line into Massachusetts, so that one could cross the border without leaving the house. The house bore an unsavory reputation and has been the cause of much trouble to the police of this city and Attleboro.

An interesting question as to the arraigning of Allingham has arisen and been submitted to Attorney General Stearns. The local police are uncertain whether action should be brought in this state or Massachusetts. It is evident to the police that the assault was committed in this state, but it is also apparent to them that it was continued and concluded in Massachusetts, and it was upon Massachusetts territory that the body was found, although the woman died in this state. It is also stated that Allingham was upon Massachusetts territory when placed under arrest by Officer Hodgman of Attleboro.

Youngsters Had a Hard Time

Boston, Sept. 16.—With seven boys weak from hunger and exposure on board, schooner Adeline Adams, with her light spars broken and very much the worse for her battle with the furious gale, was towed into port last night by the tug Pallos. The boys had been on a fishing trip about two miles off Nahant and the schooner was driven before the storm. When picked up by the Pallas the boat was 14 miles southeast of Boston light, with five feet of water in her hold. The boys were putting up a brave fight for their lives.

Will Get Share of Fortune

New Haven, Sept. 16.—Decreed legally dead by the probate court of New Haven last May, Miss Mary A. Gilbert, formerly of this city, has presented proof of her existence in life to Judge Cleaveland through United States Consul General Ozmun of Stuttgart, Germany, and also entered claim for her share of the estate of $80,000 left by her brother. Miss Gilbert will receive about $15,000, no opposition being offered by other relatives. Miss Gilbert has spent most of the time since 1883 traveling about the world.

Snell Convicted of Murder

New Bedford, Mass., Sept. 16.—Guilty of murder n the first degree was the verdict returned late last night against Angles Snell, charged with murdering Tillinghast Kirby at Westport on Sept. 9, 1903. Snell received the verdict with apparent unconcern. Counsel for the defense asked that the exceptions made by him during the trial be noted, and he also filed exceptions to the verdict. The trial of Snell occupied nine days.

Rather Bold Proceedings

Monticello, Me., Sept. 16.—The general store of James Gray was entered last night, the safe rolled out, loaded into a wagon stolen from Gray, and taken some distance into the woods, where the wagon and safe were found. Although the latter contained money and valuables, no attempt had been made to open it. Four tramps are under arrest on suspicion.

Charged With Counterfeiting

Boston, Sept. 16.—William O'Brien, a plumber of South Framingham, is under arrest here on the charge of counterfeiting 5-cent pieces. Before Commissioner Fiske he was held until Sept. 22 for a hearing. The South Framingham chief of police says that that dies for the manufacture of the coin were found in O'Brien's house.

Adams Charged With Murder

Bridgeport, Conn., Sept. 16.—A true bill of murder in the first degree was returned by the grand jury against Henry Adams, charged with setting fire to the Workingman's hotel at Stamford. One man was burned to death.

Montana Democrats Against Fusion

Helena, Mont., Sept. 16.—The Democratic state convention voted down propositions to make an effort to fuse with the Labor, Populist and anti-Trust parties. J. K. Toole was nominated for governor.

Perished With His Child

Vienna, Pa., Sept. 16.—Fighting his way through flames to save his 4-year-old son, Seymour Clark was cremated, together with the child, in a fire which destroyed his residence.

From Frying Pan to Fire

Cincinnati, Sept. 16.—After satisfying the police that he was innocent of the charge of passing fraudulent checks in Washington, for which he had been arrested, E. E. Parkin, a traveling man, was rearrested on a charge of embezzlement preferred by the American Surety company, which alleges that Parkin embezzled $800 from the Capewell Horseshoe Nail company of Hartford while acting as the nail company's agent several years ago. The surety company, which had been on his bond, made good the shortage and has been looking for Parkin ever since.

For Peace and Gospel of Peace

Denver, Sept. 16.—W. J. Bryan opened the Democratic campaign in Colorado with a speech here last night. He maintained that the strengthening of the army was as much for the purpose of aiding capital in enforcing its demands against labor as anything else. He characterized President Roosevelt as a dangerous man because of his love of power and warlike demonstrations. He said that, though a believer in free silver, he loved peace and the gospel of peace infinitely more than he loved either gold or silver.

Eight Men Lost From Tug

Wilmington, Del., Sept. 16.—Eight men were drowned by the sinking of the tug Israel W. Durham in the Delaware river. The tug was swamped during a heavy storm. Her captain and crew of five men and four employes of a dredging company were aboard when the tug sank. Of this number two were saved.

Fire Fighters Fatally Hurt

Chicago, Sept. 16.—Two firemen were fatally hurt and seven others sustained lesser injuries at a fire which destroyed a building at Flournoy street and Western avenue. A wall suddenly collapsed and nearly every member of the fire company was knocked down by the debris. The financial loss is $75,000.

Mexicans Celebrate Diaz' Birthday

Mexico City, Sept. 16.—President Diaz's birthday was enthusiastically celebrated at the completion of his 74th year. One of the features of the day was the presentation of a portrait of the German emperor, the personal gift of the kaiser to Diaz. The city was splendidly decorated in honor of the event.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Emperor William's partiality for Americans is shown by the dispatch of a number of large signed portraits which he is sending as personal gifts to Americans with whom he has had social relations.

A painting of Admiral Dewey and a bust of tthe late Hiram A. Huse have been placed in the Vermont state house. Huse was for 30 years the state librarian.

William H. Pugh, formerly auditor for the navy department, and who had held other government positions of responsibility, died at Washington, of apoplexy, aged 70. He served in the army in the Civil war.

The postoffice department has issued advertisements inviting proposals for carrying the mails on all the star and steamboat routes in New England.

It is estimated that $10,000,000 of warrants issued by the Cuban government to its war veterans are held in the United States. The disbursements will be made during the next few months in the principal Cuban cities.

riod. A beautiful wedding frock which will appeal to the very youthful wearer is of softest white satin veiled with priceless lace falling from an empiecement of the same lace studded with tiny seed pearls.

One of the evening toilets in a recently created trousseau is of embroidered cream mousseline de soie made with a Louis XVI. bodice finished with quaint little paste buttons in the center of old rose choux. A scarf of old Venice lace draped around the shoulders forms the elbow sleeves. The skirt is very full and trimmed with an entredeux of point de venise outlined with old embroidery.

Dark Lincoln green will be a novel feature among the braided autumn gowns, and bright red and dark red will have a short run of popularity.

The dainty bodice pictured is of white crepe de chine. The very bloused effect hangs from a lace yoke and is fulled into a deep girdle of white suede. The caught up puffed sleeves have a ruffle of lace as a finish.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

NOTES ABOUT TOWN.

The afternoons are rapidly growing shorter.

Miss Katherine Sibley of Wollaston has gone to Syracuse, N. Y.

William J. Parker has returned from a two weeks' trip to Philadelphia.

The city bathhouse on Town river will be closed for the season tomorrow.

Mrs. Corlew will open her class in dancing at Wollaston the first week in October.

Arthur Parker returned this week from a two weeks' visit at his home in Philadelphia.

The Willard school will reopen next Monday, work on the new heating system being well advanced.

James Sweeney of Quincy, employed at the East Milton post office, is enjoying a trip to the St. Louis fair.

Miss Bernice Endora Wright will sing at the Sunday morning service at the Memorial Congregational church.

The regular weekly prayer meeting will be held this evening at the Washington street Congregational church.

The alarm from Box 174 at 4.18 Thursday afternoon was for a chimney fire in the Faxon house on South street.

Mrs. John Curtis and daughters, Belle and Abbie, of Franklin street have gone to Danvers, where they will spend Sunday.

There is some talk among Democrats of the Plymouth county district of nomination Dr. William Everett of this city for Congress.

Mrs. Jennie McCarty of Wollaston and Miss Nellie Gerry of Atlantic have returned from a visit to New Haven, Conn., and New York city.

Commissioner Knowlton reports that Thursday's storm did but little damage to the streets. The streets were gutted out in a few places but a little gravel fixed them all right.

William T. Shea attended the meeting on Thursday of the Democratic State Committee, which is reported to be favorable to Hon. William L. Douglas of Brockton for Governor.

Considerable kicking is heard by pupils and their parents because of the High school accommodations, especially because of the afternoon session. It is up to the City Council to give relief.

Mrs. Ada Driscoll Brown, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Charles Mueller of Washington street, left Thursday for Webster, where she will visit relatives. Mrs. Brown's home is in New York.

A. A. Hunt of the Merrymount Golf club was tied with W. F. Hollis of Kenilworth club for the net prize at open tournament of the Allston club. F. K. Fletcher of Merrymount also made a good score.

Sagamore street was changed into a beautiful river Thursday morning, and those who were fortunate enough to have rubber goods enough to brave the storm, were obliged to swing wide from their course before they reached Prospect street, not having a canoe to cross the canal that greeted them. It is sometimes an advantage to live at e top of a hill.

TO NEW YORK CITY.

Popular Autumnal Trip All for $5.00.

Through Deerfield Valley and the Hoosac.

Down the Hudson by Steamer—Back by Steamer or Train.

The vacation season in New England takes a new start in the fall of the year. The early vacationists have a desire to secure one more respite from the cares of business for a day or two, and a great many have made their preparations for a trip during autumn, when nature adorns in her most beautiful colors the foliage; when the song birds are whistling their farewell refrains; when the atmosphere is invigorating and healthful and the orchards are rosy in their display of mellow and ruddy fruit. This is the month when the Boston & Maine Railroad announces its grand annual New York Excursion from Boston, on October 6th, and from Providence, Worcester, Waltham, Concord, Ayer, Fitchburg, Athol, Gardner, Orange, Millers Falls and Greenfield, October 5th.

Going from Boston the train passes through Cambridge, Waltham, Concord and other beautiful historical towns, noted for their scenic beauty and their historic and colonial association, on to Fitchburg and Gardner, passing through a region famed for its pastoral beauty, and finally entering into the famed Deerfield Valley. The view from the passing train is perfect; winding along the course of the silvery Connecticut, the train follows towards the lofty mountains which we are gradually approaching.

We enter the Hoosac tunnel, and, emerging, Mt. Greylock, overlooking the town of North Adams, greets us. Williamstown, the site of Williams College, next appears to view, and here the Berkshire Hills in all their beauty may be witnessed to advantage.

On we go through New York State, rushing through the busy city of Troy, and crossing the river to Albany. At Albany the train journey is ended. Embarking you can stop over night in Albany and visit the numerous interesting sights and take the Day Line Steamer sail down the Hudson, or go down on the night line boats the same night, viewing the Hudson River scenery by searchlight and moonlight.

The inspiring and magnificent vision of the Hudson River flowing calmly and serenely at the foot of the giant Catskills is perhaps one of the most beautiful landscape pictures in this country.

The steamer passes Roundout, Kingston, Esopus, made famous by Judge Parker's debut into politics, West Point, Poughkeepsie, sailing under the noted bridge, and from the decks of the steamer, you can look up at the remnants of the Old Palisades; at the cliffs of Dunderberg and the rocky promontory of historic Stony Point the busy appearance of the bay is a scene worth witnessing—hundreds of craft of every description, darting back and forth or weighed at anchor, while their cargoes are busily being cared for, present a scene wholly unknown except to voyagers in New York Bay. The boat docks at Debrosses street and you are in the great Metropolis.

New York has attractions too varied to mention; and everybody knows just what he likes best—some for the parks; the stores; the theatres; the museums; or a trip to Coney Island. You can stop in New York until October 8th on Boston tickets and until October 7th on other tickets. If you desire, a stop-over of ten days may be had by payment of $2.00 at the Pier Line Office and depositing your ticket before the final limit of extension.

Leaving New York, the palatial steamers of the Fall River & Providence Lines, according to destination, carry the passengers for return trip. $5.00 via the Boston & Maine Railroad pays for the round trip.

Tickets will be on sale at Boston City Ticket Office, 322 Washington Street, and at Union Station, Boston, on and after Sept. 24th, 1904, also at above mentioned stations.

A beautiful illustrated souvenir and guide booklet, telling all about the trip and describing the interesting points passed, will be mailed to any address, free, by General Passenger Department, Boston & Maine Railroad, Boston. Send your address, requesting one, and it will be mailed to you.

SILVER JUBILEE.

Anniversary of the Foresters Exceeds All Expectations.

The silver jubilee of the Massachusetts Catholic Order of Foresters last evening, at the Mechanics Building in Boston, was a notable occasion, being attended by fully 12,000 gentlemen and ladies. The special guests were Lieut. Gov. Guild, representing the State, Mayor Collins of Boston, the Catholic clergy, mayors, and press of the State. The building was elaborately decorated with flags, bunting, emblems, mottoes, and five names of prominent members of the order were conspicuous.

The Salem Cadet band rendered the concert program, and also the music for dancing. There were also solos by Miss Grace M. Reardon and Thomas E. Clifford, which were encored, and beautiful selections by the Holy Trinity court male chorus.

Addresses were made by High Chief Ranger Reardon, Lieut. Gov. Guild, Mayor Collins, Rev. James H. O'Neil, and Capt. J. G. Fennessey.

A grand ball followed. Refreshments were served by Whittemore & Girard. Many from Quincy and vicinity participated.

Valuable Securities.

The vault in a Boston safe deposit company containing the valuables of the late clerk Joseph A. Willard, whose will is contested, was opened Wednesday in the presence of representatives of the various interests. Securities valued at about $75,000 were found. There is reason to believe that the property is entirely personal. If this is all there is, the value of the estate is much below the general estimate. All of the securities are high class.

Hotel Greenleaf.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Robbins Abrams have just returned from the seashore and have resumed business at The Greenleaf.

They invite friends and former patrons to call at any time. No effort will be spared to make the house and table agreeable to all.

TODAY'S COURT.

Peter Mains was arraigned for shooting three song birds at Braintree. He was fined $30.

Frank Billings and William Billings were arraigned for larceny from Henry A. Clark at Braintree. Frank was discharged, William was sentenced to six months in the house of correction.

The two men were also arraigned for breaking and entering. On this complaint Frank was discharged and William held for the grand jury.

Edward T. Hand was arraigned for drunkenness at Randolph. Case continued until Saturday.

Robber's Body Filled With Shot

Coschocton, O., Sept. 16.—Alva Rivers was shot by a posse of citizens while he was trying to rob the bank at Warsaw. His brother, Verne, was captured later after a desperate fight. Alva has 56 shots in his body and cannot recover.

Mistook Wife For Burglar

Rochester, Sept. 16.—Joseph Bastincic shot his wife by mistake while she was moving about the room early in the morning. He thought she was a burglar. She died several hours later. The husband became insane through grief.

The Heart's Highway

BY MARY E. WILKINS

"I have a passion for the name of Mary"

wrote Byron, and you will have when you have become acquainted with Mary Cavendish, heroine of "The Heart's Highway,"

To Appear Serially in This Paper

Most of our readers have felt the spell of Miss Wilkins' genius in her short stories. In "The Heart's Highway" you can enjoy a serial.

PRAISED BY THE PRESS

Minneapolis Journal

Miss Wilkins makes Mary Cavendish so very lovely that most men will fall in love with the dear girl before they are half through the book.

Philadelphia Public Ledger

The anomaly of a semi-barbaric country and its colonists transplanted from a rich and luxurious old world setting is strikingly portrayed, and the triumph of love over untoward circumstances is all that the gentlest reader can desire.

Philadelphia Press

Mistress Mary on horseback must have been a literally resplendent figure, for she wore a "tabby petticoat, and a crimson satin bodice shining over her arms and shoulders like the plumage of a bird, and down her back streamed her curls, shining like gold under her gauze love hood."

Brooklyn Times

The whole story is full of stir and color and the tingle of heroism and love.

TEAS THAT ARE WORTH FORTUNES

Twelve Hundred Kinds Are In China's Show at the World's Fair---The Most Populous Nation of the World For the First Time Makes an Exhibit Worthy of Her Greatness.

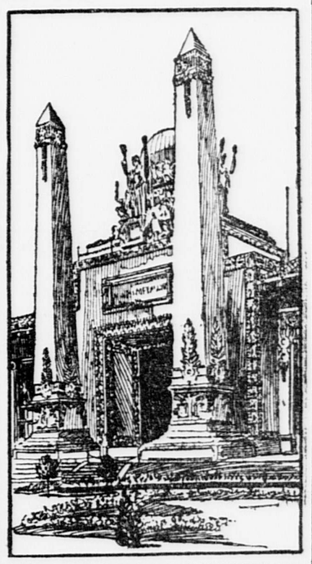

Many expositions of stupendous character make up the World's Fair of 1904. Each part is a vast and distinct show. Each building shelters many acres of wonderful things—wonderful because they are the choicest of their kind. Every nation on the globe is represented. Every state and territory is here with its best and making the most of its greatest opportunity.

The fact that China has not been a large exhibitor at world's fairs gives to her great exhibit here a prominence quite exceptional. It is a wonderland of ingenious productions. We know China best by reason of her extensive exports of teas, which have found a vast market in the United States for generations. Her commercial interests therefore prompted her to make a display of teas that we should not forget.

In sealed glass jars China displays in the Liberal Arts Palace some 1,200 kinds of tea. Young Hyson and Old Hyson have a string of tea relations longer than the genealogical chain of a Plymouth Rock. They are neatly selected "chops," in the language of the tea farmer, and these classes do not embrace medicinal teas, which are quite another lot in the rather modest number of 400.

The teas exhibited vary in price from a few cents a pound to some rare and exclusive kinds that are worth their weight in gold, the tea in the latter cases being placed on one side of the scales and pure gold on the other—that is to say, the tea of this expensive kind is worth about $20 gold an ounce. Only a very small quantity of this exclusive leaf is exhibited, and it is grown in carefully guarded tea plantations or gardens right under the shadows of the great wall of China. Its cultivation is prohibited for any use save for the imperial family of China and a few of the favored high officials.

Mention has been made of the word "chop" in connection with tea, and it may be interesting to the everyday reader to know what the word actually signifies. The tea leaf is grown in various districts of the Chinese empire on large areas of ground which are often mistaken for single plantations. This is hardly ever the case, as the large tracts are very often owned by hundreds of different men, whose individual plots of ground bearing the tea plants are carefully mapped out, so that each individual owner may cultivate and pick his own crop of tea. Each owner likewise markets his own tea and puts his own special mark, or "chop," on the packages. Hence the term "chop" signifies an individual growth or picking of tea by one owner. In an area of tea land of, say, a thousands acres, all apparently under one ownership, there may be some forty, fifty or more owners of the plantation and consequently a like number of "chops" of tea.

It must not be imagined that all these different owners of the tea get the same price for their commodity—far from it, as each of these individual tea growers has his own secrets for improving the quality and flavor of tea. Take, for instance, the Amoy and Fuchau districts, whence most of the tea for the United States comes. The owners of "chops" of tea varying from 10 to 200 chests of 56 pounds each bring samples of their goods to the various foreign merchants for sale. These latter turn the Chinese tea growers over to the good offices of the foreign or American professional tea taster, who passes on the goods as to price. The tea taster has the samples infused, not boiled, in his presence and passes upon the quality, flavor, twang and manner of curing, fixing a price accordingly, from which there is never any variation and which the tea grower must accept or go elsewhere to dispose of his wares. In a single tract of tea land like the one cited above the price has ranged from 14 cents, the lowest, to 48½ cents, the highest, per pound among sixty-one different tea producers. A matter of great moment that also figures in the price of tea is that very often tea from the same district will have the various "chops" blended together in order to produce special flavors.

The Heart's Highway

By MARY E. WILKINS

Copyright, 1900, by DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & CO.

CHAPTER I.

IN 1682, when I was thirty years of age and Mistress Mary Cavendish just turned of eighteen, she and I together one Sabbath morning in the month of April were riding to meeting in Jamestown. We were all alone except for the troop of black slaves straggling in the rear, blurring the road curiously with their black faces. It seldom happened that we rode in such wise, for Mistress Catherine Cavendish, the elder sister of Mistress Mary and Madam Cavendish, her grandmother, usually rode with us—Madam Judith Cavendish, though more than seventy, sitting a horse as well as her granddaughters and looking, when viewed from the back, as young as they and being in that respect as well as others a wonder to the countryside.

But it happened today that Madam Cavendish had a touch of the rheumatics, that being an ailment to which the swampy estate of the country rendered those of advanced years somewhat liable, and had remained at home on her plantation of Drake Hill. Catherine, who was a most devoted granddaughter, had remained with her, although I suspected with some hesitation at allowing her young sister to go alone, except for me, the slaves being accounted no more company than our shadows.

Mistress Catherine Cavendish had looked at me after a fashion which I was at no loss to understand when I had stood aside to allow Mistress Mary to precede me in passing the door, but she had no cause for the look nor for the apprehension which gave rise to it. By reason of bearing always my burden upon my own back I was even more mindful of it than others were who had only the sight of it, whereas I had the sore weight and the evil aspect in my inmost soul. But it was to be borne easily enough by virtue of that natural resolution of a man which can make but a featherweight of the sorest ills if it be but put in the balance against them. I was tutor to Mistress Mary Cavendish, and I had sailed from England to Virginia under circumstances of disgrace—being, indeed, a convict.

I knew exceedingly well what was my befitting deportment when I set out that Sabbath morning with Mistress Mary Cavendish, and not only upon that Sabbath morning, but at all other times. Still I can well understand that my appearance may have belied me, since when I looked in a glass I would often wonder at the sight of my own face, which seemed younger than my years and was strangely free from any recording lines of experiences which might have been esteemed bitter by any one who had not the pride of bearing them.

When my black eyes, which had a bold daring in them, looked forth at me from the glass and my lips smiled with a gay confidence at me, I could not but surmise that my whole face was as a mask worn unwittingly over a grave spirit.

I rode a pace behind Mary Cavendish and never glanced her way, not needing to do so in order to see her, for I seemed to see her with a superior sort of vision, compounded partly of memory and partly of imagination. Of the latter I had, not to boast, though it may perchance be naught to boast of, being simply a kind of higher folly, a somewhat large allowance from my childhood. But that was not to be wondered at, whether it were to my credit or otherwise, since it was inherited from ancestors of much nobler fame and worthier parts than I, one of whom, though not in the direct line, the great Edward Maria Wingfield, the president of the first council of the Dominion of Virginia having written a book which was held to be notable.

This imagination for the setting forth and adorning of all common things and the common things of life I meant not to include Mistress Mary Cavendish therein, for she needed not such gilding, being one of the most uncommon things in the earth, as uncommon as a great diamond which is rumored to have been seen by travelers in far India. My imagination when directed toward her was exercised only with the comparing and combining of various and especial beauties of different times and circumstances, when she was attired this way or that way, or was grave or gay, or sweetly helpless and clinging or full of daring. When, riding near her, I did not look at her, she seemed all of these in one, and I was conscious of such a great dazzle forcing my averted eyes that I seemed to be riding behind a star.

That morning Mistress Mary glowed and glittered and flamed in gorgeous apparel until she seemed to fairly overreach all the innocent young flowery beauties of the spring with one rich trill of color, like a high note of a bird above a wide chorus of others. Mistress Mary that morning wore a tabby petticoat of a crimson color, and a crimson satin bodice shining over her arms and shoulders like the plumage of a bird, and down her back streamed her curls, shining like gold under her gauze love hood.

Mistress Mary wore a mask of black velvet to screen her face from the sun, and only her sweet forehead and her great blue eyes and the rose leaf tip of her chin showed.

The road was miry in places, and then I would fall behind her farther still that the water and red mud splashing from beneath my horse's hoofs might not reach her. Then, finally, after I had done thus some few times, she reined in her Merry Roger and looked over her shoulder with a flash of her blue eyes which compelled mine.

"Why do you ride so far away, Master Wingfield?" said she.

I lifted my hat and bent so low in my saddle that the feather on it grazed the red mud.

"Because I fear to splash your fine tabby petticoat, madam," I answered.

"I care not for my fine petticoat," said she in a petulant way, like that of a spoiled child who is forbidden sweets and the moon and questions love in consequence, yet still there was some little fear and hesitation in her tone. Mistress Mary was a most docile pupil, seeming to have great respect for my years and my learning, and was as gentle under my hand as was her Merry Roger under hers, and yet with the same sort of gentleness, which is as the pupil and not as the master decides and lets the pull of the other will be felt.

I answered not, yet kept at my distance, but at the next miry place she held in Merry Roger until I was forced to come up, and then she spoke again and as she spoke a mockbird was singing somewhere over on the bank of the river.

"Did you ever hear a sweeter bird's song than that, Master Wingfield?" said she, and I answered that it was very sweet, as indeed it was.

"What do you think the bird is mocking, Master Wingfield?" she said, and then I answered like a fool, for the man who meets sweetness with his own bitterness and keeps it not locked in his own soul is a fool.

"I hope not," said I, "but he may be mocking the hope of the spring and he may be mocking the hope in the heart of man. The song seems too sweet for a mock of any bird which has no thought beyond this year's nest."

Mistress Mary's blue eyes, as helpless of comprehension as a flower, looked in mine.

"But there will be another spring, Master Wingfield," she said somewhat timidly, and then she added, and I knew that she was blushing under her mask at her own tenderness, "and sometimes the hopes of the heart come true."

She rode on with her head bent as one who considers deeply, but I, knowing her well, knew that the mood would soon pass, as it did. Suddenly she tossed her head and flung out her curls to the breeze and swung Merry Roger's bridle rein and was away at a gallop, and I after her, measuring the ground with wide paces on my tall thoroughbred. In this fashion we soon left the plodding blacks so far behind that they became a part of the distance shadows.

Then all at once Mistress Mary swerved off from the main road and was riding down the track leading to the plantation wharf, whence all the tobacco was shipped for England and all the merchandise imported for household use unladen. There the way was very wet, and the mire was splashed high up on Mistress Mary's fine tabby skirt, but she rode on at a reckless pace, and I also, much at a loss to know what had come to her, yet not venturing, or rather, perhaps, deigning to inquire. And then I saw what all had doubtless seen before, the mast of a ship rising straightly among the trees.

When I saw the mast I knew that the ship belonging to Madam Cavendish, which was called the Golden Horn and had upon the bow the likeness of a gilt horn, running over with fruit and flowers, had arrived. It was by this ship that Madam Cavendish sent the tobacco raised upon the plantation of Drake Hill to England.

But even then I knew not what had so stirred Mistress Mary that she had left her sober churchward road upon the Sabbath day, and judged that it must be the desire to see the Golden Horn, fresh from her voyage; nor did I dream what she proposed doing.

As we came up to the ship lying in her dock we saw sailors on deck grouped around a cask of that same wine which they had taken the freedom to broach in order to celebrate their safe arrival in port, though it was none of theirs. The sight aroused my anger, but Mary Cavendish did not seem to see any occasion for wrath. She sat her prancing horse, her head up and her curls streaming like a flag of gold, and there was a blue flash in her eyes of which I knew the meaning. The blood of her great ancestor, the sea king, Thomas Cavendish, who was second only to Sir Francis Drake, was astir within her.

She sat there with the salt sea wind in her nostrils and her hair flung upon it like a pennant of victory and looked at the ship wet with the ocean surges, the sails stiff with the rime of salt and the group of English sailors on the deck, and those old ancestral instincts which constitute the memory of the blood awoke.

Then as suddenly that mood left her as she sat there, the sailors having risen and standing staring with shamefaced respect and covertly wiping, with the hairy backs of hands, their mouths red with wine. But the captain, one Calvin Tabor, stood before them with more assurance, as if he had some warrant for allowing such license among his men. He himself seemed not to have been drinking. Mistress Mary regarded them, holding in Merry Roger with her firm little hand, with the calm grace of a queen, although she was so young, and all the wild fire was gone from her blue eyes.

The sailors had ceased their song and stood with heavy eyes sheepishly averted in their honest red English faces, but Captain Calvin Tabor spoke, bowing low, yet, as I said before, with assured eyes.

Captain Calvin Tabor

"I have the honor to salute you, mistress." He spoke with a grace somewhat beyond his calling. He was a young man, as fair as a Dutchman and a giant in stature. He bore himself also curiously for one of his calling, bowing as steadily as a cavalier, with no trembling of the knees when he recovered and carrying his right arm as if it would grasp sword rather than cutlass if the need arose.

"God be praised! I see that you have brought the Golden Horn safely to port," said Mistress Mary, with a stately sweetness that covered to me, who knew her voice and its every note so well, an exultant ring.

"Yes, praised be God, Mistress Cavendish," answered Captain Tabor, "and with fine winds to swell the sails and no pirates."

"And is my new scarlet cloak safe?" cried Mistress Mary, "and my tabby petticoats, and my blue brocade bodice, and my stockings, and my satin shoes and laces?"

I wondered somewhat at the length of the list, as not only Mistress Mary's wardrobe, but those of her grandmother and sister and many of the household supplies had to be purchased with the proceeds of the tobacco, and that brought but scanty returns owing to the navigation act, and scrupled not to say so, being secure in the new world, where disloyalty against kings could flourish without so much danger of the daring tongue being silenced at Tyburn.

It had been a hard task for many planters to purchase the necessaries of life with the profits of their tobacco crop, since the trade with the Netherlands was prohibited by his most gracious majesty, King Charles II., for the supply, being limited to the English market, had so exceeded the demand that it brought but a beggarly price per pound.

Therefore I wondered, knowing that many of those articles of women's attire mentioned by Mistress Mary were of great value and brought great sums in London, and knowing, too, that the maid, though innocently fond of such things, to which she had, moreover, the natural right of youth and beauty such as hers, which should have all the silks and jewels of earth, and no questioning, for its adorning, was not given to selfish appropriation for her own needs, but rather considered those of others first.

However, Mistress Mary had some property in her own right, she being the daughter of a second wife who had died possessed of a small plantation called Laurel Creek, which was a mile distant from Drake Hill, farther inland, having no ship dock and employing this. Mistress Mary might have sent some of her own tobacco crop to England wherewith to purchase finery for herself.

Still I wondered, and I wondered still more when Mistress Mary, albeit the Lord's day and the penalty for such labor being even for them of high degree not light, should propose as she did that the goods be then and there unladen. Then I ventured to address her, riding close to her side, that the captain and the sailors should not hear and think that I held her in slight respect and treated her like a child, since I presumed to call her to account for aught she chose to do.

Harry's horse resents Mary's lash

"Madam," said I as low as might be, "do you remember the day?"

"And wherefore should I not?" asked she, with a toss of her gold locks and a pout of her red lips which was childishness and willfulness itself; but there went along with it a glance of her eyes which puzzled me, for suddenly a sterner and older spirit of resolve seemed to look out of them into mine. "Think you I am in my dotage, Master Wingfield, that I remember not the day?" she said. "And think you that I am going deaf that I hear not the church bells?"

"If we miss the service for the unlading of the goods, and it be discovered, it may go amiss with us," said I.

"Are you then afraid, Master Wingfield?" asked she, with a glance of scorn and a blush of shame at her own words, for she knew that they were false.

I felt the blood rush to my face, and I reined back my horse and said no more.

"I pray you have the goods that you know of unladen at once, Captain Tabor," said she, and she made a motion that would have been a stamp had she stood.

Calvin Tabor laughed and cast a glance of merry malice at me and bowed low as he replied:

"The goods shall be unladen within the hour mistress," said he, "and if you and the gentleman would rather not tarry to see them for fear of discovery"—

"We shall remain," said Mistress Mary. "I pray you order the goods unladen at once, Captain Tabor." Then the captain laughed again in his daredevil fashion as he turned to the sailors and shouted out the order, and straightway the sailors so swarmed hither and thither upon the deck that they seemed five times as many as before, and then we heard the hatches flung back with claps like guns.

We sat there and waited, and the bell over in Jamestown rang and the long notes died away with sweet echoes as if from distant heights.

I waited and listened while the sailors unloaded the goods with many a shout and repeated loud commands from the captain, and Mistress Mary kept her eyes turned away from my face and watched persistently the unlading and had seemingly no more thought of me than of one of the swamp trees for some time. Then all at once she turned toward me, though still her eyes evaded mine.

"Why do you not go to church, Master Wingfield?" she said in a sweet, sharp voice.

"I go when you go, madam," said I.

"You have no need to wait for me," said she. "I prefer that you should not wait for me."

I made no reply, but reined in my horse, which was somewhat restive, with his head in a cloud of early flies.

"Do you not hear me, Master Wingfield?" said she. "Why do you not proceed to church and leave me to follow when I am ready?"

She had never spoken to me in such manner before, and she dared not look at me as she spoke.

"I go when you go, madam," said I again.

Then suddenly, with an impulse half of mischief and half of anger, she lashed out with her riding whip at my restive horse, and he sprang, and I had much ado to keep him from bolting. He danced to all the trees and bushes, and she had to pull Merry Roger sharply to one side, but finally I got the mastery of him and rode close to her again.

"Madam," said I, "I forbid you to do that again," and as I spoke I saw her little fingers twitch on her whip, but she dared not raise it. She laughed as a child will who knows she is at fault and is scared by her consciousness of guilt and would conceal it by a bravado of merriment. Then she said in the sweetest, wheedling tone that I had ever heard from her, and I had known her from childhood:

"But, Master Wingfield, 'tis broad daylight and there are no Indians here-abouts, and if there were, here are all these English sailors and Captain Tabor. Why need you stay? Indeed, I shall be quite safe—and hear, that must be the last stroke of the bell."

But I was not to be moved by wheedling. I repeated again that I should remain where she was. Then she, grown suddenly stern again, withdrew a little from me, but sat still, watching the unlading with a gravity which gave me a vague uneasiness. I began to have a feeling that here was more than appeared on the surface, and my suspicions grew as I watched the sailors lift those boxes which were supposed to contain Mistress Mary's finery. In the first place, there were enough of them to contain the wardrobe of a lady in waiting; in the second place, they were of curious shape for such purposes; in the third place, 'twas all those lusty English sailors could do to lift them.

"They be the heaviest furbelows that ever maiden wore," I thought as I watched them strain at the cases, both hauling and pulling, with many men to the ends to get them through the hatch, then ease them to the deck, with regard to the nipping of fingers I noted, too, an order given somewhat privately by Captain Tabor to put out the pipes, and noted that not one man but had stowed his away.

There was a bridle path leading through the woods to Laurel Creek, and by that way, to my consternation, Mistress Mary ordered the sailors to carry the cases. 'Twas two miles inland, and I marveled much to hear her, for even should nearly all the crew go, the load would be a grievous one, it seemed to me. But to my mind Captain Calvin Tabor behaved as if the order was one which he expected. Neither did the sailors grumble, but straightway loaded themselves with the cases raised upon a species of hurdles which must have been provided for the purpose and proceeded down the bridle path, singing to keep up their hearts another song even more at odds with the day than the first.

The captain marched at the head of the sailors, and Mistress Mary and I followed slowly through the narrow aisle of green. I rode ahead, and often pulled my horse to one side, pressing his body hard against the trees that I might hold back a branch which would have caught her headgear. All the way we never spoke. When we reached Laurel Creek, Mistress Mary drew the key from her pocket, which showed to me that the visit had been planned should the ship have arrived. She unlocked the door, and the sailors, no longer singing, for they were well nigh spent by the journey under the heavy burdens, deposited the cases in the great room. Laurel Creek had belonged to Mistress Mary's maternal grandfather, Colonel Edmond Lane, and had not been inhabited this many a year, not since Mary was a baby in arms.

The old furniture still stood in the accustomed places, looking desolate with that peculiar desolateness of lifeless things which have been associated with man. The house at Laurel Creek was a fine mansion, finer than Drake Hill, and the hall made me think of England. Great oak chests stood against the walls, hung with rusting swords and armor and empty powder horns. A carved seat was beside the cold hearth, and in a corner was a tall spinning wheel, and the carved stair led in a spiral ascent of mystery to the shadows above.

When the cases were all deposited in the great room Mistress Mary held a short conference apart with Captain Calvin Tabor, and I saw some gold pass from her hand to his. Then she thanked him and the sailors for their trouble very prettily in that way she had which would have made every one as willing to die for her as to carry heavy weights. Then we all filed out from the house and Mistress Mary locked the door and bade goodby to Captain Tabor; then he and his men took again the bridle path back to the ship, and she and I proceeded churchward on the highway.

When we were once alone together I spurred my horse up to hers and caught her bridle and rode alongside and spoke to her as if all the past were naught, and I with the right to which I had been born. It had come to that pass with me in those days that all the pride I had left was that of humility, but even that I was ready to give up for her if necessary.

"Tell me, madam," said I, "what was in those cases?"

"Have I not told you?" she said, and I knew that she whitened under her mask.

"There is more than woman's finery in those cases, which weigh like lead," said I. "What do they contain?"

Mistress Mary had, after all, little of the feminine power of subterfuge in her. If she tried it it was, as in this case, too transparent. Straight to the point she went with perfect frankness of daring and rebellion as a boy might.

"It requires not much wit, methinks, Master Wingfield, to see that," said she. Then she laughed. "Lord, how the poor sailor men toiled to lift my gauzes and feathers and ribbons!" said she. Then her blue eyes looked at me through her mask with indescribable daring and defiance.

"Well, and what will you do?" said she. "You are a gentleman in spite—you are a gentleman, you cannot betray me to my hurt and you cannot command me like a child, for I am a child no longer, and I will not tell you what those cases contain."

"You shall tell me," said I.

"Make me if you can," said she.

"Tell me what those cases contain," said I.

Then she collapsed all at once, as only the citadel of a woman's will can do through some inner weakness.

"Guns and powder and shot and partisans," said she. Then she added, like one who would fain readjust herself upon the heights of her own resolution by a good excuse for having fallen: "Fie, why should I not have told you, Master Wingfield? You cannot betray me, for you are a gentleman, and I am not a child."

"Why have you had guns and ammunition brought from England?" I asked. But in the shock of the discovery I had loosened my grasp of her bridle and she was off, and in a minute we were in Jamestown and could not disturb the Sabbath quiet by talk or ride too fast.

We were a good hour and a half late, but there was to my mind enough of preaching yet for my soul's good, for I thought not much of Parson Downs nor his sermons. But I dreaded for Mistress Mary that which might come from her tardiness and her Sabbath breaking, if that were discovered. I dismounted and assisted Mistress Mary to the horse block, and off came her black velvet mask, and she clapped a pretty hand to her hair and shook her skirts and wiped off a mud splash. Then up the aisle she went, and I after her, and all the people staring.

I can see that church as well today as if I were this moment there. Heavily sweet with honey and almond scent it was, as well as sweet herbs and musk which the ladies had on their handkerchiefs, for it was like a bower with flowers. Great pink boughs arched overhead, and the altar was as white as snow with blossoms. Up the aisle she flashed, and none but Mary Cavendish could have made that little journey under the eyes of the governor in his pew and the governor's lady and all the burgesses and the churchwarden half starting up as if to exercise his authority and the parson swelling with a vast expanse of sable robes over the book, with no abashedness and yet no boldness nor unmaidenly forwardness.

There was an innocent gayety on her face like a child's and an entire confidence in good will and loving charity for her tardiness which disarmed all. She looked out from that gauze love hood of hers as she came up the aisle, and the governor, who had a harsh face enough ordinarily, beamed mildly indulgent. His lady eyed her with a sort of pleasant and reminiscent wonder, though she was a haughty dame.

Mary and Harry Wingfield walking up the aisle

The churchwarden settled back, and as for Parson Downs, his great, red face curved in a smile and his eyes twinkled under their heavy overhang of florid brow, and then he declaimed in a hoarser and louder shout than ever to cover the fact of his wandering attention. And young Sir Humphrey Hyde, sitting between his mother, Lady Betty, and his sister, Cicely, turned as pale as death when he saw her enter, and kept so, with frequent covert glances at her from time to time, and I saw him and knew that he knew about Mistress Mary's furbelow boxes.

LINGERIE NOVELTIES.

The Craze of the Moment Is For Thin Underwear.

The craze of the moment for lingerie de luxe is shown in beautiful and dainty clear white French lawn worked with patterns of the simplest description. The finest hand stitchery is used in making up the garments. Every woman likes dainty lingerie. A little patience in stitchery and the following of French designs solve the problem of cost at once.

A charming simple nightgown is made of lawn with a square or round lawn or lace collar cut in points. Collars admit of a good deal of variety, for they may be of the same fabric as the nightgown itself, or they may be composed of lace, embroidery or lace and ribbon insertion with cuffs to match. Here many of the sale remnants will prove useful.

For practical everyday wear lingerie of fine French linen, hand embroidered and buttonhole stitched, is excellent.

The manufacturers of shoes have added one article to the list that could be bought and included in a costume of "one color." Only a few seasons ago it was considered ultra fashionable to have slippers for evening wear match the gowns with which they were worn, and colored shoes for street wear were almost unheard of. Now in any high class shoe store one can buy white, champagne color, tan, brown, blue, green, red and violet colored shoes in several shades, the most fashionable tones being in evidence. To be sure, there are some women who have their shoes dyed to order, but as a rule they can be secured in almost any color. Huge silver or gilt eyelets are made in laced shoes, and fancy buttons are quite a feature in the buttoned models.

Herewith illustrated is an attractive shirt waist made with a V shaped yoke outlined with braid.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

AT BUDDHA'S SHRINE

Tommy Atkins Camps In Shadow of Lama's Palace.

LASSA'S MYSTERIES REVEALED.

Door of Magic City, Closed For Many Centuries, Opened by Anglo-Tibetan Trade Treaty—A Prophecy Fulfilled—The Golden Temples as Seen Through British Eyes.

The flight of the dalai lama and the signing in his palace at Lassa of an Anglo-Tibetan treaty mark the elimination of the last vestige of Russian influence and the firm establishment of British control in Tibet. They mark also the end of the remarkable exclusiveness which has been preserved for so many centuries by the mysterious inhabitants of "the roof of the world."

The veil has been lifted from the magic city of Lassa, the "seat of the gods," and today Tommy Atkins, 650 strong, camps beside the palace of the dalai lama, while General MacDonald tramps through the streets of the lama's capital.

Above the heads of the British soldiers rear the massive gold covered roofs of Potala, the famous "Red palace," as it is called, and of the Jovo Khang, or temple of the "Lord Buddha," of the Kunduling or residence of the regent or "king" of Tibet and the massive buildings of the upper and lower schools of mysticism.

Seven miles in circumference is Lassa, in the form of a great oval, but the densely populated part of the town is comparatively small, and its golden roofs and minarets cluster thickly together.

The reports from the British forces all agree that the first view of the town in approaching it from the west is remarkable. On the left is a conical hill, on which is situated the dalai lama's residence, with its lofty buildings and its roof of gold, between which and the town winds a broad avenue of ancient trees.

To the right is Changpa hill, surmounted by the medical college, an immense structure over a quarter of a mile long and several stories high. Between these two regal hills, crowned by their wonderful structures, the visitor to Lassa catches sight of the Forbidden City. It appears a closely packed mass of well built, white houses, surmounted by roofs of blue, glazed tiles, with here and there the glittering minarets and spires thrusting upward toward the cold, clear sky overhead and over all the dominating presence of temples and palaces.

The most striking feature of the city is undoubtedly Potala, the palace of the dalai lama, Buddha's vice regent on earth. The palace is an aggregation of several temples, the middle one, which dominates the rest, being the Red palace, containing the great audience hall, where the dalai lama, clad in yellow and seated on a throne supported by carved lions, was wont to receive pilgrims.

The Red palace is crowned by a dome covered entirely with plates of gold, and from this roof at the great festivals the dalai lama contemplated his worshipers as they advanced along the plain and prostrated themselves at the foot of the sacred mountain.

Three-quarters of a mile to the southwest is Norbu Ling, the summer palace of the dalai lama, situated in the midst of a beautiful garden, in which the British force is now encamped.

The Jovo Khang, or Temple of the Lord Buddha, is an immense building with three Chinese roofs covered with gold, the upper stories of the edifice being supported by great wooden pillars ten feet in diameter. Here is an exquisitely modeled image of Buddha, said by the priests to have been made during the life of the great teacher. Around this are placed many golden lamps, which are kept burning constantly, supplied with melted butter.

North of this temple stands the house of the astrologer royal and his hundred retainers, with an enormous golden cupola which is visible for many miles.

There is enough gold in Lassa to pay the national debt of Great Britain and the United States if the rumor constantly repeated be true, and something of the truth of this statement is inferred from the massive plates of gold which cover the roofs of the buildings.

On the southern side of the city flows the Kyichu river, while a canal diverted from the river flows to the north, inclosing the city entirely by water. Across the canal is the huge stone bridge over which crossed the British forces.

As yet no accurate idea of the population of Lassa has been obtained. It is the home of the very heart of Buddhism, and every tenth person is a priest of Buddha.

Those who are not priests are more or less intimately connected with the administration of the religious government of Tibet either as the servants of the priests or laborers in the temples or as subordinate lay officials of the priesthood government.

Human life is held so cheaply that the slightest offense, the most trivial infraction of the rules of the order of Buddha, is punished by death and usually death by torture. The people of Lassa are temperate, drinking nothing but tea, but the priests, it is said, are immoral, given to drunkenness on barley wine and leading lives within their monasteries which are hardly fit for publication.

Lassa is constantly in the throes of some form of religious ceremony. The priests of Tibet believe the race sprang from the union of a monkey and a hobgoblin, and in the streets of Lassa are celebrated "devil dances," in which the priests disguised as monkeys and hobgoblins whirl dervish-like or perform weird antics in order to accustom the worshipers of the Buddhist faith to the sight of the creatures when they shall have passed into the presence of the monsters of the after life.

Wild, wailing music rings through the streets of the mystic city as the priests in their hideous masks chant their fearsome rites and perform the frightful parade that is marked by a trail of blood, for human sacrifices are required for the performance of these ceremonies.

In the town are many strange classes of hangers on of the Buddhist monasteries—the ragyabas, the men who cut up the bodies of the dead and feed them to the pariah dogs; the low caste creatures who wash the bones of the dead and clean them that the relatives may make prayer disks of them for rosaries, and the thousands of temple attendants.

It is a curious fact in connection with the establishment of British control in Tibet, with all that it portends, that long years ago it was prophesied that the reincarnation of Buddha in the person of the grand lama would cease after his thirteenth transmigration. The dalai lama, who has fled into Mongolia, is the thirteenth lama since the incarnation myth was first started for his own purpose and upheld my force of arms by Lozang the Eloquent.

KUROPATKIN'S WILL.

It Found the Way to Kokand and to Fame.

In 1866, when General Kuropatkin was only an obscure lieutenant, he went to the chief of his battalion and asked to be sent along with the expedition to Kokand, which at the time was being prepared. After meeting with a flat refusal he addressed himself to his comrades, who, according to Russian usage, elected him paymaster, with the hope that the new distinction would procure the chief's consent. They then went en masse to ask that their lieutenant be sent, according to his desire, along with the expedition to Kokand, but the chief was as firm as ever. Kuropatkin accompanied them on the mission, but when they departed he remained in the hall like a sentinel on guard.

Two hours later the chief happened to discover him there and sternly demanded what he meant.

"I am waiting for you to send me to Kokand," coolly replied Kuropatkin.

"Never! You understand? Never!" stormed the chief angrily as he turned away.

Eighteen hours afterward the chief in passing found Kuropatkin still standing in the same place.

"Well, the devil take you!" he exclaimed softly. "What can any one do with a head like yours? Since there's no way to keep you from going, go on. The army has need of officers like you. As for paymasters, I can find them anywhere."

How British Churches Are Filled.

A startling explanation is given of why some British churches have large congregations while others remain empty.

Rev. John Urquhart, a Glasgow minister, preaching at Highgate Road Baptist chapel, London, in the absence of the regular minister, said he could mention churches in which a congregation could not be obtained "unless the minister kissed all the young ladies."

So low indeed had they descended that such tricks must be played in order that they might obtain a congregation. Unless such things were done, he said, the churches were sneered at as being too straitlaced.

Swan Song of the Mosquito.

It was an old mosquito; he was very, very weak;
His voice was all a-quaver, and he found it hard to speak.
He lit upon a victim, and he begged: "I pray, take thought!
Consider what you're doing ere you land that fatal swat.

"Know that the bluest blood of all is flowing through my veins
(Although it moves but sluggishly now that the summer wanes);
I've only sipped the choicest draughts this happy land affords—
I never quaffed the ichor of the hind who cheaply boards.

"My jubilant existence has been on a joyous plan—
I've taken juleps from the neck of some Kentuckian;
A maraschino titillant to give me appetite
I've gotten from the magnate who plays poker every night.

"Occasionally through the day I stooped to common stuff;
A soupcon from a cocktail slave was always quite enough.
But frequently, to cool my brain that always was awhirl,
I tarried on the temple of a soda water girl.

"At night I sang my liveliest, my rollicksingest hums, While flitting through and through the crowd that opens lots of Mumm's."
(And here his jaunty speech grew slow; he seemed completely fagged—
The old mosquito plainly was unfortunately jagged.)

"And so," he sighed, "you see that I'm a sated connoisseur,
That never have I yearned to bite a common cheek or ear.
In spite of this, however, I'm a hounded Ishmaelite,
And everybody's hand's against me all the day and night.

"I'm carbolized and gasolized and petrolized and slapped
And naphthalined and benzolined and kerosened and rapped
And sulphurized and etherized and chloridized and filled
With fumigating vapor till at times I'm nearly killed.

"Yet, all I wish"—all faint and far away his murmur seemed,
And, lulled to slumber by the song, the victim sweetly dreamed
Until he awakened with a start—he thought he felt a gaff.
There lay the dead mosquito with his punctured autograph.

NOT BY MEDIATION

Far Eastern War May End Much Sooner Than Expected

JAPANESE ADVANCING

Fresh Troops and Supplies Actively Pushed to the Front—Mikado Said to Have Ordered an Immediate Attack

London, Sept. 17.—The Daily Telegraph's St. Petersburg correspondent declares that a Russian statesman whose name, if revealed, would wing his utterance with lightning rapidity over the globe, asserted that it was his impression that the war might end sooner than people imagine, not through mediation, but through mutual recognition of the ruinous nature of the conflict, which would lead to negotiations that would result in a Russo-Japanese alliance.

He contended, the correspondent says, that although Russia in the end could exhaust and crush Japan, yet Japan could hold out long enough to place an intolerable and useless strain upon Russia. Russia, therefore, was confronted with the alternative either of Japan's ruin, purchased by ruinous sacrifices, or of a treaty of cordial friendship, followed in the fullness of time by that offensive and defensive alliance which for years constituted the ideal of the Japanese government.

General Kuropatkin's latest reports indicate that the Japanese advance upon Mukden is already beginning. He says that strong forces of Japanese infantry are massing three miles north of Yentai, and near Bentsiaputse, 20 miles southeast of Mukden, while other troops are moving up the Liao river valley.

The period of exhaustion after the battle of Liaoyang was expected to last some weeks, but various reports seem to show that Japan has been very active in pushing fresh troops and supplies to the front. Her line of communications is so much shorter than the Russian that Oyama's army may well be fresher and more fit for battle now than is Kuropatkin's. All dispatches tend to confirm previous reports of a wide flanking movement by the Japanese.

A Tokio dispatch to the London Express says that the mikado has inspired a stringent order to Oyama to attack Kuropatkin as soon as possible, and to pursue him if he escapes from Mukden. The general staff is reported as much chagrined by the failure to crush Kuropatkin at Liaoyang.

It is said that 100,000 seasoned Japanese troops from the northern part of the islands will reach the front, with large amounts of supplies, by the first of October. It is declared that Japan is ready to undertake a winter campaign in the pursuit of the Russians.

A new attack on Port Arthur is expected by St. Petersburg. The Japanese are said to have captured a fort on the northeast of the town, 10 miles from Golden Hill.

Inspection of Lena Completed

San Francisco, Sept. 17.—The board of inspection appointed by Rear Admiral Goodrich has completed its inspection of the Lena's boilers and machinery. As their report has not yet been officially considered at Washington, the findings of the engineering experts have not been made public here. The Lena was taken to Mare Island navy yard last evening under escort of the cruiser Marblehead.

The Lena is now under the local jurisdiction of Rear Admiral McCalla of the navy yard, the responsibility of her safe keeping having been transferred from Rear Admiral Goodrich. The entire crew of the Lena will doubtless be detained at Mare Island pending an official decision as to their disposition. The work of dismantling the Lena will be commenced at an early date.

Russia's Reply on Contraband

St. Petersburg, Sept. 17.—Russia's reply to the representations of the United States and Great Britain regarding contraband of war has been communicated to their respective embassies. Russia recognizes the principle that provisions are not contraband when consigned to private parties, but only contraband when intended as military or naval stores.

Russian Losses at Liaoyang

St. Petersburg, Sept. 17.—Exact figures of the Russian losses in killed, wounded and missing in the operations before Liaoyang from Aug. 13 to Aug. 26 have been received by the general staff. These amount to two generals, 256 officers and 21,800 soldiers. In addition 133 guns were lost. The material losses include fortifications costing $30,000,000.

Victoria a Haven of Safety

Victoria, B. C., Sept. 17.—Naval men at Esquimault say that they anticipate the early arrival of the Russian auxiliary cruiser Korea. The opinion is expressed by naval men that once Russian vessels come here they will not leave until the war ends.

Prince Adelbert Promoted

Berlin, Sept. 17.—Prince Adelbert, third son of Emperor William, after 3½ years' service as a sailor, has passed the examination for naval officers, and will shortly begin a year's service on the east Asiatic station, as a lieutenant on board the cruiser Hertha.

AN INACTIVE LIVER
A CONSTIPATION HEADACHE
soon set right by

BEECHAM'S PILLS

TO SET YOUR LIVER WORKING RIGHT
is absolutely imperative if you are to get any comfort from life or nourishment from food. A torpid liver can be a very dangerous condition and should not be neglected. Few medicines act as thoroughly, promptly and safely as Beecham's Pills. They are vigorous but mild, and cause no inconvenience or nausea.

TO BE RID OF CONSTIPATION
There is no remedy quite as good as Beecham's Pills, not only to loosen the bowels but in the after effects. There is no binding up afterwards, as these Pills aid Nature in a natural way. Persons chronically constipated can become regular and be rid of the consequent discomforts formerly theirs by use of BEECHAM'S PILLS.

SEEING THE FAIR IN DETAIL

How It Seems to Hold a $10,000 Peachblow Vase In Your Hands—Chinese Treasures of Great Price—Getting New Ideas About China — Li Hung Chang's Confusion About Missionary Claims — A Chinese City Block In Miniature — The Carpenter's Shop. The Jeweler's Store—The Tea House. A Rice Store—Home of a Chinese Gentleman—Hat and Shoe Store—The Umbrella Maker.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE BY MARK BENNITT.]

Mr. Wang unlocked the big glass door and placed in my hands a peachblow vase eight inches high valued at $10,000. My chief sensation was not one of admiration, but of fear that I might drop it. Many a better man than I has dropped $10,000. Some have dropped it in wheat and some in corn and cotton. A friend of mine dropped his watch in some wheat and found it again the next spring, but sums of $10,000 dropped in grain are not so easily recovered. I turned the vase over to see where the value might be secreted. A delicate mottling was all that I could discover. I was then permitted to return it to the custodian representing the great Chinese government. Then I was handed another vase of the famous peachblow make, value $8,000, and, as if I had not already had honors enough, a third was thrust upon me, value $6,000. In a space of five minutes I examined $24,000 worth of peachblow vases, three of the greatest treasures of the Chinese government, the product of a lost art in the coloring of pottery. The vases are 300 years old and far more scarce than sums of $10,000, strange as this may appear to the inexperienced among us. You, too, may see them in the Palace of Liberal Arts, which in this instance is a palace of lost arts.

China is an unopened book of wonders to most of us. The great Chinese wall between the empire and other nations is the complex language that produces brain fag and discouragement to most of those who attempt to master its intricacies and entanglements. But here are men speaking the English tongue whose mastery of the Chinese is equally facile. Wong Kai Kah, the imperial vice commissioner to the world's fair, is a Harvard graduate. Francis A. Carl, the other imperial vice commissioner, is an Englishman who has been more than twenty years in China. Mr. D. Percebois, the secretary of the commission, is a Frenchman who has been thirty years in China and is intimately familiar with the affairs of the country, owing to his high connection with the customs service. Mr. J. A. Berthet is another Frenchman who has been twenty years in the empire and is here doing valuable service in dispensing a correct knowledge of the Flowery Kingdom. The catalogue which Mr. Percebois has just completed is one of the most valuable books on China in the English language, for the reason that the exhibit contains something of everything important to the Chinese, and the book describes them all.

China is our greatest missionary field. It is no secret that the Chinese do not like our missionaries. Their aggressive ways are irritating. It was Li Hung Chang who said: "You send us your Presbyterians, your Catholics, your Methodists and Baptists, your Episcopalians and others. You all claim one Christ, yet each missionary says his way is the best. Now, which are we to believe? China has her own religion. Why should we adopt another about which we are so much confused?"

But the work goes on from year to year and decade to decade, and whether worshiping Confucius, Tau or Buddha the Chinese are a wonderful people, a fact proved by the vast exhibit here in the Palace of Liberal Arts. I can scarcely name a single article for personal or household use or adornment not here catalogued. I think perhaps the Americans have more gimcracks, but the Chinese seem to have overlooked nothing that might meet a human need, even to their square holed money that is worth but ten for one, but sells here at three for 5 cents.

Let's walk around this miniature city block, which so graphically shows life just as it is in China. Here is a carpenter's shop, with carpenters in miniature. A shrine is at the back, for the Chinese are a pious people and venerate their ancestors, whose virtues are ever before them. One of these carpenters is planing a square stick. Another is wielding an ax. A third is gluing together the parts of a frame. The proprietor is talking to a customer, who is distinguished by the bright fan which he carries. Peeping through the lattice of the upper story we may see a painter at work upon a half painted window sash. Could any scene be more commonplace? Yet how interesting it is to know that the Chinese are the counterpart of ourselves in ten thousand little commonplaces that make up our lives! Our Chinese friend clasps his two hands over his heart and by this sign expresses the thought, "I place you nearest my heart." We in America reach for each other's right hand and send a reverberation through our frames that makes our teeth chatter. The salutations are equally hearty and sincere. We differ only in the manner.

Let us look into the jeweler's store. The signs outside are painted boards dangling from strings. With all the signs whirling and flashing in the sun on a breezy day in a Chinese business street, the scene is surely one of life. How very like an American jeweler's store! Two groups of statuary are on either side of the door as you are well within. Several chandeliers promise a brilliant interior at evening. The proprietor is behind a counter. His stock of jewels is in a number of drawers at the side of the room. A large show case in the corner contains specimens of faience too large for the drawers. A customer appears to be buying something, just as one might do in America.

Here is a tea house, or restaurant. Perhaps in China they will call their tea houses restaurants some day, just as we have adopted the word "cafe" from France. On the ground floor the great teapot for hot water—as big as a ten horsepower boiler—is ready always to supply the steaming cup. The tea rooms are above, extending over several other stores. The farthest is an opium room, with its wide benches and stools of equal height, upon which the devotees may fall back, lulled by the pipe dreams induced by the insidious drug that is responsible for China's most deplorable of vices. This little model is the only evidence discoverable in all the great exhibit that China admits the existence of the opium smoking habit among her people. But, then, we have opium rooms in New York and San Francisco.

Beneath the tea rooms is a rice or grain store. The signs probably bear a legend as familiar throughout China as the "Grain, Flour, Feed and Baled Hay" signs are to Americans. Rice is the great staple food of China. At his meals the Chinese has his bowl of rice as we have our potato. His meats, bread, cakes and fruits are his delicacies and are to be partaken of only sparingly. "I have never seen a drunken Chinese," said a gentleman to me who had traveled 3,000 miles from the coast into China. Yet the Chinese drinks his wine, but by thimblefuls and upon appointed days only. Gluttony and unbridled indulgence are not for the Chinese. Opium smoking was originally the white man's vice, and the better class of Chinese deplore its presence within the empire's boundaries.

Here is a Chinese gentleman's town house with two outer rooms where the cooly porter stands to receive the guests of his master. Glancing in, we may see the gentleman taking a sip of tea. In the far room is the shrine with ancestral tablets and incense jars. If we look about in the exhibit all around us we may see the real furniture with which a gentleman's house in China is furnished. Note the great rugs with long pile and fine pattern. The Chinese are thorough in what they do, and here is the proof of that thoroughness. The sedan chair, carried by two coolies, sits upon the floor of the large entrance room, waiting the master's convenience, as a wealthy American's carriage waits at the curb or in the stable.

Hats and shoes are a Chinese business combination. In the hat and shoe store the round hats with button decorations that indicate the social standing and the shoes with felt soles that insure a comfortable physical standing are ranged in glass cases on the walls, just like any American store might be. The coarser grades are at the back part of the store on open shelves, where moth and rust and dust may corrupt if the proprietor fails to advertise in the local paper. Everything is graded in China in much the same way as elsewhere in the world. The refined and elegant things get their proper settings—the good hats and shoes in the glass cases and the coarse ones unprotected. The cultured people have the good houses because culture demands them, and the rough and unrefined dwell in the humbler abodes, all graded by the common natural law that knows neither clime, country nor creed.

The Chinese "umbrellas to mend" man has a most respectable looking store. Below are the finished goods, and we peep through a lattice to see him at his labors on the second floor. Shoes are a part of his stock—shoes that never saw any animal's back, except perhaps to ride to market. So, while "there's nothing like leather when well put together," the Chinese shoemaker can get along very well without it. Fans as well as shoes go with the umbrella stock, and the fan is as commonly used as the other articles.

You might mistake the silk store for a tea house, for tea drinking is the most noticeable occupation of those within view. But the tea is everywhere. Tea is a part of every social and business conference. Tea is the Chinese promoter of good fellowship—the balance wheel that keeps head and heart steady when there is business to do or personal experiences to recount. The silks are seen above, whither some of the little tea parties have adjourned to examine colors and qualities and to strike a bargain. One of the little wooden men is washing his face with both hands just as you or I might do when taking a thorough sousing. These little details go far to give us a correct picture of the real China.

Fair Grounds, St. Louis.

Worse Than the Puritans.

James Gill of Toledo, O., has married a girl whose father insisted on having her full name of "Missouri Arkansas Napoleon Four Hundred Miles Below the Mouth of the Ohio Absher" placed on the records when the license was obtained. Henry Absher, the man guilty of inflicting such a dreadful combination of words upon his daughter, explained that she was named in honor of an aunt who lived at Napoleon, on the Mississippi river, in Arkansas, 400 miles below the mouth of the Ohio.

Capital and Labor Must Unite

By CARDINAL GIBBONS

NO MAN WAS CREATED FOR HIMSELF. THE MOST POWERFUL MAN CANNOT SAY TO THE POOREST MAN, "WE NEED THEE NOT." IF A MAN BE AS POWERFUL AS ALEXANDER AND AS RICH AS CROESUS HE CANNOT SAY TO HIS POOREST HUSBANDMAN, "I NEED THEE NOT."

If you journey to New York you will see one of those ocean leviathans at its dock, idle, quiet, without strength—a hulk. The crew, officers, stokers and scores of other humble workmen come aboard. The captain touches a button and the great thing glides into the water and rushes to the ocean like a monster of the sea, bearing its burden of treasure and men.

THIS IS THE UNION OF LABOR AND CAPITAL, AND WITHOUT THIS UNION THE WORLD MUST BE LIKE THE HULK OF THAT QUIET, SILENT LEVIATHAN. All I have said goes to show that the strongest man is weak without the help of his neighbor.

Whatever be your power you are but a link in the chain of human society. Take the influences of the moon on the tides and its pale, white light that we receive as a blessing. Are not these but portions of the sun's rays? Every one should co-operate with one another and no one should stand aloof.

Cain said, "I am not my brother's keeper." If Christ had put forth that doctrine we would today be groping in darkness and the shadow of death. YOU ARE YOUR BROTHER'S KEEPER, AND HE HAS A CLAIM UPON YOU. You cannot imitate Christ by performing miracles as he did, but you can perform miracles of grace and blessing which rejoice the heart of God, give pleasure to others and thereby bring more pleasure to yourself.

WHEN YOU CAUSE THE FLOWERS OF JOY AND GLADNESS TO GROW IN THE HEARTS OF OTHERS YOU HAVE PERFORMED THE CROWNING MIRACLE OF A GOOD LIFE.

The Peculiar Strength Of the United States

By Rear Admiral GEORGE W. MELVILLE

WE have little to fear from Europe in naval warfare, because NO SINGLE POWER could successfully blockade our coast. Our commercial reserve and ability to produce would sustain this nation for an indefinite period in warfare. On the other hand, a portion of the British navy, for instance, would be required to guarantee a food supply to England.

The naval protection of the British is too small for its merchant marine. The mercantile marine is disappointing as an auxiliary to a navy, because every nation's ships are manned partly by aliens.

England's other chief difficulty would result from an inadequate coal supply.

We are fortified also by a system of quick dispatch. At a critical moment A RAILROAD MAN might render greater service in moving a great army than a commanding general in the field. Fighting in Cuba was no comparison in importance to the problem of the business management of the war with Spain.

OUR NAVY IS NOT AS STRONG AS IT OUGHT TO BE, and we should be progressive. We will expend $400,000,000 for the completion of the isthmian canal and require $300,000,000 for protection—forts, battleships and soldiers.

WE NEED TO BRING THE NAVAL SERVICE IN TOUCH WITH THE PEOPLE. MAKE IT AS EASY FOR THE OFFICER NOT A GRADUATE OF ANNAPOLIS TO OBTAIN A COMMISSION IN THE NAVY AS FOR MEN NOT FROM WEST POINT TO RISE IN THE ARMY.

Technical schools should be made auxiliary to West Point and Annapolis in training men for war.

Women Control the Stage

By WILTON LACKAYE, Actor

WOMEN CONTROL THE STAGE, AND THEATRICAL MANAGERS RECOGNIZE THAT FACT AND CATER TO IT. In other countries the man says, "My dear, I have tickets for such a play on a certain night," and his wife is delighted at the chance to go to the theater, but in this country it is different. The women say to their husbands, "Don't come home tonight without tickets for the theater," and they don't.

If a play is a success, then it must be a success with the women. If women make the stage A DUMPING GROUND FOR DIVORCE COURTS AND THE PRIZE FIGHT, then they are the means of driving artists from the stage, for the stage presents only such plays as are acceptable to women. The men are too busy with commercial interests to give their attention, so the standard of plays rests with the women. It should have A HEALTHFUL, NORMAL TONE, for the stage is a mirror reflecting the emotions and passions of the world.

The theater can't be restricted entirely to plays that are suitable for a fourteen-year-old girl. THE PROBLEM PLAY IS A GREAT THING, BUT IT SHOULD NOT BE SEEN BY ALL. IT IS FOR THOSE WHO HAVE PROBLEMS IN THEIR OWN LIVES.

Why the American Succeeds

By General WILLIAM BOOTH of the Salvation Army

I BELIEVE in the possibility of an American, not only in HIS SCIENTIFIC AND COMMERCIAL ENTERPRISE, BUT IN HIS ABILITY TO SECURE GREATER CONQUESTS THROUGHOUT THE WORLD, his inventiveness, his freedom from shackles and conventionalism and his readiness to adopt new methods where they are likely to realize his aims more efficiently and quickly.

Between 1896 and 1903 Uncle Sam increased the total resources of his national banks from $3,263,000,000 to $6,310,000,000, an increase of $3,047,000,000.

UNDER PROTECTION.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

Those contemplating a visit to that grandest of all world's expositions, the World's Fair at St. Louis should not delay going. The days are shortening rapidly, and it is necessary to close most of the large exhibit buildings at sunset. Then if one is compelled to wear or carry a coat or wrap it will only add to the burden of travelling. To properly see the exposition one should take at least two weeks, and as much longer as possible; a month is none too long. The exhibits by foreign countries expecially, and the million dollar Philippine exposition, will claim attention.

The exhibits by the different departments in the government building are particularly instructive. The fine art exhibit includes many of the masterpieces of the world, and is very extensive. The buildings of the foreign countries and of the different states are of great interest, some being replica of historic houses. The main exhibit buildings are very large, and one will find much to claim his attention; the Agricultural palace is of 20 acres, the palaces of Manufactures and Varied Arts of 14 acres each, and others of 10, 9 and 8 acres.

Probably "The Pike" has been the best advertised feature of the exposition, but is generally left for the evening, when it is indeed a lively place. To take in all the shows on both sides of a street a mile long would require just $37 for admission fees. Some of the best are: Hale's fire fighters, the naval exhibit, under and over the sea, the Tryolean Alps, the incubators, the Creation, etc. Off the Pike are the Ferris wheel, the Boer war, the life saving exhibit, and other attractions which should not be missed.

Today is "Massachusetts day," and will be a notable one. Gov. Bates and party, a company of the Fifth Massachusetts regiment, and others from Massachusetts will take part, including the Knight Templars who are returning from the pilgrimage to California. On St. Louis day this week nearly half a million people were present, and the daily attendance is between 100,000 and 200,000.

It is the greatest World's exposition ever held, and its equal may not be seen this generation. The electrical display in the evening is alone worthy of a long journey.

No one would ever know from the opening of the nomination papers for the caucuses that there were any contests within party lines for nominations. In none of the parties are there rival lists for delegates to any convention, not even to the senatorial or county conventions of the Republicans, where there are contests.

The Socialists appear to be united, having no contests whatever.

The only contest for the Democrats is for Congressman. No delegates will be elected, but Democrats will vote directly for either James F. O'Connell or William S. McNary, as their candidate in the Tenth district. The vote of Quincy for each man will be added to the votes of Milton, and the Boston wards in the district, and the one receiving the largest vote will be the party candidate.

The Republicans have but two contests. They will vote directly for J. B. Crawford or George B. Gates as their candidate for Congress, and will select two out of these three names as their candidates for Representatives: Richard R. Freeman of Ward Five, Harry S. Nicoll of Ward Three and Edward J. Sandberg. Representative Freeman is a candidate for a third term, while the other two gentleman have never served in the General Court.

A story by Mary E. Wilkins is always good and the Ledger, therefore, does not hesitate to recommend its new serial "The Hearts Highway," the opening chapter of which appears in this issue. It will be continued from day to day for several weeks, as it is a long story of nearly one hundred columns. You will do the publishers a favor if you will tell your friends that the Ledger begins today the publication of the serial.

Mrs. Jameson.

The funeral of Mrs. Letticia M. Jameson late of Putnam street, Quincy, was held at the Congregational church in Dunbarton, N. H., Wednesday afternoon.

Rev. T. E. C. Banton of Henniker, who was for many years her pastor, officiated and spoke in a touching and appreciative manner of her life and character.

The Mendelssohn Ladies' quartette of Concord feelingly rendered "Lead Kindly Light," "Home Land," and "Nearer My God to Thee."

The floral tributes were many and beautiful. The burial was in the family lot in the Dunbarton Cemetery, six nephews of the deceased acting as pall bearers.

Over 4,600 Voters.

The Registrars of Voters held their first meeting last evening for registration and added 55 voters, largely from Wards One and Five.

On Sept. 22 there were 4,559 voters, Ward three leading with 864, Ward One close with 862, then Ward Four with 841, Ward Five with 788, Ward Two with 609, and Ward Six with 595.

Old Folks' Reunion.

The eleventh reunion of the Weymouth Old Folks' Association was held yesterday at the Union church, South Weymouth. There were 150 present and their combined ages aggregated over 12,000 years. Dinner was served at noon, after which there were addresses by Bates Torrey, Rev. Daniel Waldron and John J. Loud.

False Report.

The reported death of the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Luard of Wollaston proves to have been false. The little fellow is seriously ill, but the prospects are now that he will recover. The Ledger is pleased to make the correction.

A COLLEGE FOR BRIDES

Philadelphia's Newest Institution of Feminine Learning.

TEACHES ART OF PLEASING MEN

The Fourteen Commandments Promulgated by the Instructress—"Feed Your Husband Substantially" the First—Courses In Marketing, Cooking and House Furnishing.

"Brides trained here" might well be the inscription on the shingle of a new institute of learning at Logan, a fashionable suburb of Philadelphia, says a correspondent of the Chicago Tribune.

There are twenty-three students in a class presided over by Miss Ethel Hendrickson. The whole course is grounded upon the idea that the man is the "whole thing."

At the beginning of the term girls start their notebooks with fourteen headings, leaving blank spaces for comment and elaboration of the main ideas. A glimpse at the headings is enough to make eligible bachelors want to rush to Philadelphia on a chance of annexing a graduate of the school for brides, one who can show her degree of "M. H."—model helpmate.

Here's a bride's duty as outlined in the preliminary talks of the instructress:

Be cheerful.
Practice repose.
Feed him substantially.
Train your servants well.
Spend money prudently.
Keep the home bright and comfortable.
Keep little household worries to yourself.
Be ready always for the unexpected friend.
Divide your time between baby and husband.
Be interested in his business and in his pleasure.
Take pains to be an entertaining, cheerful and interested companion.
Be as careful in your attire and as anxious to please as before marriage.
Encourage your husband to spend at least one night a week at the club or with the "boys."
Encourage him to bring his friends home and have at least one "man's" room where he can entertain with perfect freedom.

It is all done on a practical basis. "Feed him substantially" is the first edict. Students are taught that this doesn't mean anything like stuffing a husband with fearfully and elaborately constructed dishes that would puzzle a French maitre de cuisine. It means that they are to find out what he likes best and have it cooked in fashion. Make him forget that mother ever knew the rudiments of the culinary art.

The process begins in marketing. Girls are taught how to choose the best cuts of meat, how to select a proper fowl and how to distinguish fresh vegetables from those in a rummage sale condition of usefulness, and they learn to market without draining the pocketbook. They are taught that "enough for two" does not mean a supply for a regiment, and they are coached in those details lack of knowledge of which makes the average young bride an easy mark for a shrewd tradesman and keeps the garbage pail better stocked than the pantry.

Having mastered marketing, the prospective bride sets to work making meals. Supplies in every detail are taken up in routine until the pupil has mastered the entire cooking and serving of a full course dinner, even into brewing a favorite punch.

Chafing dish cookery is another branch of instruction practiced until the proud girl with the "M. H." diploma is a veritable wizard with the alcohol flame apparatus. There is no begging the question or cheating the censor, for every girl has to eat of her triumphs and failures. Worse still, all the other girls in the class partake of them, and criticism is unrestrained. The newcomer gets some hazing on this account, but the girls are all jolly and much in earnest generally, so no discord is engendered.

Perhaps the most trying ordeal in the culinary course is one of the "open nights," when the big brothers and fathers "and perhaps others are invited to partake of the products." Criticism is barred on these occasions, but the rule isn't necessary.

Room arranging and decorating is practiced and reduced to a science. The furniture is arranged and placed for various effects. Hangings are rehung and cushions are disposed of to get the best results in comfort and appearance. Girls are taught the magic of the skilled and artistic touch in so slight a matter as the placing of a chair or a table. Extremes are taught from the rigid primness of a Puritan room to the luxurious piling, color and splendor in an oriental apartment. The instructor's purpose is to give full scope to the individual tastes of pupils in these matters, but to develop them in accordance with standards.

Furnishing a house from top to bottom is one of the practical lessons that come under the head, and students are required in theory to buy every article of equipment from nutmeg grater to a grand piano and to decorate various rooms in the house and to fit them with all appurtenances ready for immediate occupancy.

Taken all in all, the girl with an "M. H." deservedly won is decidedly to be coveted. The worst part is that they are not eligible to school until they have been courted and won or during the early stages of the honeymoon, while yet groping in the maze of running their own establishments.

An International Japanese Lantern.

A favorite design for lanterns used in the processions to celebrate the Japanese victories is one having on its four sides the rising sun, the union jack, the Italian flag and the stars and stripes.

MILITARY DISCIPLINE.

A Little Passage Between a German Colonel and a Lieutenant.

The noted soldier and historian Theodore Ayrault Dodge was educated in Berlin, and at a dinner party, apropos of Germany military discipline, he once said:

"The German soldier must never appear in public except in uniform. Even when he is on furlough he must not under any circumstances wear civilian dress.

"Well, Swartz, a young lieutenant of cavalry, during my residence in Berlin was one day engaged in some adventure or other and put on, to disguise himself, a suit of black cloth. Dressed in this suit, he was passing down an unfrequented street when he came face to face with his colonel.

"Detected in so grave a misdemeanor, Swartz proved himself the possessor of a resourceful mind. He said to the colonel in a bass voice different from his own:

"'Can you tell me, sir, where Lieutenant Swartz lives? I am his brother from the country, and I have come on to pay him a visit.'

"The colonel readily and politely gave the required information and passed on.

"The lieutenant congratulated himself on his escape. He hurried home and put on his uniform. Duty late that afternoon called him before the colonel again. He saluted with confidence. The colonel regarded him oddly.

"'Lieutenant Swartz,' he said, 'I wish you'd tell your brother from the country that if he pays you another visit I'll put him in close confinement for ten days.'"

THE FIRST RAILWAYS.

When Sixteen Miles an Hour Made the Passengers Dizzy.

In 1830, when the railway was opened between Liverpool and Manchester, the Liverpool terminus was at Wapping. Lime street tunnel was not completed until about six years later.

At first the service consisted of three trains each way on week days and two on Sundays, but this was soon found to be insufficient. After Lime street station was opened there were six first class trains and six second class trains each way on week days and two of each description on Sundays. The journey of thirty-one miles occupied nearly two hours, which led to complaints that the speed was too great to be pleasant and caused dizziness. On the other hand, sanguine expectations were indulged in that in course of time the average rate of traveling would be at least double the ordinary speed of the swiftest conveyances drawn by horses. It was anticipated that the general adoption of railways would lead to "a vast decrease in the consumption of oats and hay by the substitution of steam engines in lieu of horses, and that portion of the soil which has hitherto been allotted to the growth of such produce may be appropriated to the raising of food suitable to the human species"—an important consideration in the time of the corn laws. It could not have been foreseen that the railway system, so far from superseding horses, would lead to an immense increase in the demand for them.—Liverpool Post.

MacVeagh Adjourned the Court.

On one occasion Wayne MacVeagh succeeded in adjourning the supreme court before the usual hour. Mr. MacVeagh never remained in Washington overnight if he could help it, and on this occasion he greatly desired to take the 4 o'clock train for Philadelphia. Although talking to the court he kept his eye on the clock and at 3:45, giving himself just enough time to reach the station, he ceased his argument and said: "May it please your honors, I move that the court do now adjourn. I want to catch the 4 o'clock train for home." The cool audacity of the request seemed to paralyze the justices, but the chief justice made the customary order without a protest, and Mr. MacVeagh got his train.

Majesty of the Law.

A great deal is said of the majesty of the law, and a sonorous phrase has been coined to express it, but its majesty resides in the sternness, promptness, impartiality and fearlessness with which laws are enforced and the authority of the courts vindicated. If the law has ever been brought into contempt it has been done by no act of criminals or of intending offenders, but by the weakness and failures of the officers of the law and the ministers of justice to maintain the majesty with which the law should clothe them.—New Orleans Picayune.

Took Nothing.

Mrs. Green (who thinks of engaging a servant)—But is the girl honest? Can she be trusted? Mrs. Brown (the girl's former mistress)—You need not be in the least alarmed. She is perfectly honest. All the time she was with me I never knew her to take a thing—not even my advice as to how things should be done.

A Team.

"Between the two, Jones and his wife cover a good deal of lingual ground."

"How so?"

"Well, he makes a good after dinner speech and she makes a good before breakfast one."—Detroit Free Press.

Rare.

"Harduppy tells me he never destroys a receipted bill."

"No, he's more likely to have them framed and hung up in his parlor as curiosities."—London Judy.

If you want to retain your faith in a critic you ought never to see the things he criticises.—Pall Mall Magazine.

LONG MARRIED.

Mr. and Mrs. John T. Sherman Reach Sixtieth Anniversary.

When a couple reach their golden wedding anniversary, it is generally considered that they have lived together a remarkably long time. There are only three or four such anniversaries in a city of the size of Quincy in a year; but living quietly on Greenleaf street, at the residence of their son Dr. C. T. Sherman, are Mr. and Mrs. John J. Sherman who will on Monday next reach their sixtieth wedding anniversary, three score years.

Both were born in the same year, 1826, Mr. Sherman in Fairfield, Vt., Jan. 22, and Miss Martha E. Tyler in North Brookfield, Mass., July 20. They were married at the age of 18 years, and for fifty years lived in North Brookfield. Of the eight children who blessed the union only two are living, Dr. C. T. Sherman of Quincy, and Mr. S. A. Sherman a school teacher at Providence.

They have seven grandchildren, four in Quincy who received their daily watchful care, and three in Providence.

Few people of the age of Mr. and Mrs. Sherman are as smart. They are about town considerable, and regular attendants of Bethany Congregational church, where their son is a deacon.

No great preparations have been made for the anniversary, as they are unostentatious and avoid social events, but they will be pleased to have their friends call next Monday afternoon. The Patriot extends congratulations.

TWO ARRESTS

For Breaking and Entering at Wollaston.

Paul Pitts, aged 16 years, and Fred Oxner, aged 15 years, were arrested yesterday by Inspector McKay for breaking and entering the store of Charles R. Sherman at Wollaston last week.

It is alleged that the boys broke into the store during the night and stole three ticket books between Wollaston and Boston, and $8.30 in money. They gained entrance by breaking the glass in a basement window and turning the catch got into the basement.

The door leading from the basement to the main store was fastened but they got through here by cutting out one of the panels. They were arraigned in court and held in $200 each until next Monday.

CITY BREVITIES.

A beautiful day.

Mr. and Mrs. Allan Claflin have again taken up their residence in Wollaston.

Rev. A. A. Ellsworth is to preach tomorrow at the Union church, East Braintree.

During September Miss Spear will receive pupils in piano voice and harmony at 148 Goffe street.

The subject of Rev. Frank Wright Pratt's sermon on Sunday will be, "Why is it good to be alive?"

Blakeslie Estabrooks of Wollaston, formerly of the Quincy High school, Class of 1906, is now attending Thayer academy.

Rev. B. F. Eaton, well known to Quincy Universalists, is to preach tomorrow at the Third Universalist church North Weymouth.

The Quincy W. C. T. U. will meet in the Council chamber, City Hall, Tuesday next at 3 P. M. A full attendance is requested.

Mr. Henry L. Cobb has severed his connections with Charles C. Hearn and has gone to New Hampshire for a much needed rest.

Unity circle of King's Daughters will give its annual reception on Thursday evening next at Bethany chapel, to the older people of the church.

The many friends of Miss Annie C. Healy of Adams street are pleased to have her at home. Miss Healy has been teaching in Attleboro and Pawtucket, R. I.

Amos E. Damon, Henry P. Kittredge, Harry S. Nicol, William T. Richards and Adam S. Vogel are on the jury at Dedham at the criminal session of the Superior court.

Miss Lillian Baker of Milton is a new teacher in the sixth grade at the Lincoln school. Miss Baker is a graduate from the Milton High school and the Bridgewater Normal and this is her first year at teaching.

Commissioner Knowlton has completed the work grading Edison Park street and now has gangs of men at work grading Edwin street, Atlantic, and putting in the paved gutters and edgestones on Whitwell street.

The Park and Downs Congregational church will give a supper and social next Wednesday evening. There will be ice cream, cake, and candy on sale, and games for those who wish to play. Supper will be served from 5.30 to 8 o'clock.

MARY E. WILKINS

Appears next in our list of famous authors in a fascinating love romance of colonial times entitled

The Heart's Highway

You would read a story by this distinguished writer without having it recommended, but perhaps you would be interested in what the critics say about "The Heart's Highway."

Fine Piece of Literature

The love story in "The Heart's Highway" is a very pretty one and there is a perplexing mystery running through it which helps to sustain the interest. "The Heart's Highway" is a thoroughly fine piece of literature and is deserving of the widest popularity.—Memphis Commercial-Appeal.

A Most Delightful Story

Miss Wilkins has written a most delightful story, thereby proving the versatility of her genius.—Richmond (Va.) Times.

The Social Realm.

To some is given to climb the peak,
To scan expanse of sea, of land,
But most of us stop in the foothills bleak
Though some of us chafe 'neath The Ruler's hand.
On that dizzy height there's room for but one
Of the many who stop at its base below,
For some of us die with our goal unwon.
Is it chance? Is it skill? God made it so.
—W. H. Cox in Sunset Magazine.

AT GERMANTOWN.

Former Residents Have a Very Enjoyable Reunion.

A grand reunion of the former residents of Germantown was held yesterday in the cottage of Frank F. Crane. Among those present were: Mrs. Wm. Emerson of Tampa, Florida; Mrs. Belle F. Lapham of Quincy, Mrs. Albert Rich of Charlestown, Mrs. Nettie Rich Woodward of Boston, Miss Edith May Rich of Charlestown, Mrs. Ernest Rich of Dorchester, Mrs. Mary R. Lord of Germantown, Mr. and Mrs. Ephraim Marsh of Germantown, Mrs. C. A. Upham of Lynn, Mrs. Lucy M. Brock of Charlestown, Mrs. Carrie C. Harris of Quincy, Miss Mollie E. Harris of Quincy, Mrs. Clara B. Smith of Charlestown, Mrs. Walter Hayden of Quincy, Mrs. James McConnell of Quincy, Mrs. William Hodgkinson of Quincy, Mrs. Elisha B. Holmes of Quincy, Mrs. C. F. Lord of Atlantic, Mr. Isaiah Rich of Germantown and Mrs. Byron Rich of Charlestown.

At 1.30 a first class fish dinner was served under the direction of Mrs. Ephraim Marsh. While the party was still seated at the dinner-table, Mrs. Jesse Freeman and Mrs. Nancy B. McKenney, both of Roxbury, appeared on the scene of gayety each carrying a spray of golden-rod and singing "Auld Lang Syne."

During the afternoon the party visited their old homes and well remembered spots dear to the hearts of all. In front of Mrs. Winslow's cottage, the former home of Mrs. Wm. Emerson, pictures were snapped of the entire group. Later the Sailors' Snug Harbor was visited.

After a dainty lunch was served the party broke up about half past seven, and started for home, well satisfied with their day's outing and expressing many hearty wishes that all might meet again next year.

Douglas for Governor.

Hon. William L. Douglas, the big Brockton shoe manufacturer, will be Democratic candidate for Governor. At a meeting of the State Committee on Thursday it was decided to favor Mr. Douglas. The meeting was very harmonious, and although no vote was taken the sentiment was very largely in favor of the shoe man. Among the prominent gentlemen present was William T. Shea of this city.

To Lay Corner Stone.

An important event in the history of All Souls church Braintree will be the laying of the corner stone on Friday next, at 4.10 P. M. Rev. F. R. Griffin, the pastor, will be master of ceremonies and will be assisted by Rev. James Eells and Rev. Charles Conklin of Boston. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

Anniversary Dance.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of Division 10, A. O. H., celebrated its seventh anniversary last evening at Faxon hall by a social dance. Thomson's orchestra furnished music and dancing was in order from 8 to 12. The affair was largely attended and was very enjoyable. Refreshments were served during the evening. The ladies in charge were Mrs. Michael Griffin, Miss Mary Costello, Miss Mabel Collins and Miss Julia Lyons.

Impaired Digestion

May not be all that is meant by dyspepsia now, but it will be if neglected.

The uneasiness after eating, fits of nervous headache, sourness of the stomach, and disagreeable belching may not be very bad now, but they will be if the stomach is suffered to grow weaker.

Dyspepsia is such a miserable disease that the tendency to it should be given early attention. This is completely overcome by which strengthens the whole digestive system

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Pupils and Parents Kicking Over Afternoon Session at High.

Quite a number of pupils have entered the schools this week since the opening day, so that the total number will be much larger than expected. No report of the complete enrolment will be made however, until after the opening of the Willard next week.

The number at High school has increased considerably and there are now 75 at the afternoon session. There are also 75 families who are kicking because their children cannot attend the morning session.

They realize, however, that the fault is not with the School Committee, but with the City Council, and threats have been made to make some changes in the Council at the coming municipal election.

THE ODOMETER.

It Was Known to Engineers of the Alexandrian School.

The odometer, an instrument for measuring distance traversed in a carriage, is no modern invention. The first description of it is to be found in a fragment of a Greek treatise and was known to engineers of the Alexandrian school.

Passing to more modern days, we find that on Jan. 1, 1598, a book was published in Nuremberg which professed to give a "succinct, detailed and positive explanation" of various systems of measurement by means of such an instrument. This "divider," as the author calls it, had a wheel which carried in its axle an indicator worked by the circular movement; at each turn a needle made a stroke, which was transmitted to the dial.

This odometer, divided into 10[illegible] equal parts, had a long hand and [illegible] short, like modern clocks, the [illegible] moving one stroke as often [illegible] brother made a complete [illegible] dial.

Another odometer, said to h[illegible] invented by Peter the Grea[illegible] shown at the Moscow polytechn[illegible] exhibition in 1872. It was called a "verst counter" and worked excellently.

WESTMINSTER HALL.

Its Bargain Counters, State Trials and Coronation Banquets.

Westminster hall, whose old gray walls have seen coronation banquets and state trials, used to echo with the bargains driven at shops or stalls which at one time fringed its walls like a modern bazaar. These were kept by booksellers, toy dealers, sempstresses and milliners. The rents and profits went by right to the warden of the Fleet. An engraving of the busy scene was made by Mosely and prints taken therefrom by Gravelot before 1773 showing how,

In hall of Westminster,
Sleek sempstress vends amidst the courts her ware.

In "Tom Brown's Amusements" (1770) we read: "We enter into a great hall where we were surprised to see in the same place men on one side with baubles and toys and on the other taken up with fear of judgment. In this shop are to be sold ribbons and gloves, towers, headdresses, etc. On the left hand we hear a nimble tongued painted sempstress with her charming treble invite you to buy some of her knick-knacks."—London Mail.

A PECULIAR COMPOUND.

Cryostase Thaws In the Cold and Freezes Under Heat.

According to a German medical journal, very anomalous is the conduct of a peculiar chemical compound known as "cryostase." This consists of a mixture in equal parts of phenol, saponin and camphor, with a little turpentine oil.

This weird substance possesses the remarkable quality of becoming liquid, or we may say of "thawing," in the cold, and again becoming solid, or, as it were, "freezing," when heated.

It is true that some other bodies—as, for instance, the white of an egg—possess a similar property of becoming solid, or coagulating, with heat, but in the case of these, when once the solidification has taken place, no degree of cold will restore them to the liquid state, whereas with cryostase the experiment can be repeated and the process reversed any number of times.

We have thus a substance which absolutely defies all rule and precedent, but of whose exceptional behavior no satisfactory explanation has as yet been given.

CLUBBED TO DEATH

Allingham Killed Mrs Crowley by Beating Over the Head

SAYS HE DID NOT USE AXE

Woman Threw His Breakfast to Her Dog and Dashed Cup of Tea In His Face--Aged Slayer Makes Full Confession

Pawtucket, R. I., Sept. 17.—John Allingham, who, in a confession made to the local police, admitted clubbing Mrs. Dennis Crowley prior to her death, was subjected to searching questioning last evening and finally broke down and confessed that he and no other person was responsible for the woman's death. He said that after clubbing the woman she ran out of the house and that he also ran out and, sitting on a bench, watched her until she finally fell to the ground, a little over 100 feet from the house on the Massachusetts side of the boundary line.

As far as the blood-stained axe which was found between the house and the body was concerned, he still denied having used it. There are wounds on the woman's head which could not have been made with other than a sharp implement like an axe and the man's statement that no one touched the woman after she left the house until Frank Quinn and Arthur Bradshaw appeared was enough to satisfy the police. The axe, Allingham says, he had not seen since he chopped wood the day before the murder and that he then dropped it near the woodpile.

Benjamin P. King of Attleboro appeared at the police station here and told of seeing Allingham and Mrs. Crowley on a car Wednesday evening and that they were quarrelling so violently that the conductor was obliged to remonstrate with them in order to secure quiet on their part. They were still arguing when they left the car and it is the belief of the police that the same quarrel was continued the next morning and resulted in the killing of Mrs. Crowley.

In his confession Allingham said that he had been at Mrs. Crowley's house for three days. "We were on good terms until Wednesday, when she began to pick at me. Thursday morning, when I came up from the cellar to get my breakfast, she threw a cup of tea in my face, ordering me, at the same time, to leave the house.

"I told her I would not leave until I got good and ready. Then she grabbed my meat off my plate and threw it to a cur dog that sat in front of the stove. As she did this she darted into her own room. I was mad and I grabbed a hickory club and went after her. I found her lying on the bed, and gave her a rap over the head. She jumped up and grabbed the club and almost got it away from me. I pushed her back on the bed and struck her with all my strength over the head. She ran screaming from the house, and I saw her fall about 100 yards away on the path.

"I never used any axe. There was no use for it. She was all in after I hit her the last time. If she had gotten the club away from me she would have killed me. I never stepped from the house during the whole time the fight was on, and I know that every blow struck was delivered in Rhode Island.

"After the fight I threw the club under the bed and then went out to the woodshed and drank the balance of a jug of whiskey. That was how I came to be drunk when the police arrested me."

Lost Two Barges and Crews

Norfolk, Va., Sept. 17.—After losing two of the three barges she was towing from Boston to Norfolk, having one of her own crew washed overboard and drowned and nearly foundering in her efforts to rescue him, the tug Merrill limped into port last night with the barge Camden. The two other barges with their crews of 10 men are somewhere on the ocean if they weathered Thursday morning's gale.

Ninety-Four Years a Republic

Mexico City, Sept. 17.—This city was gayly bedecked with the flags of all nations yesterday, the Mexican banner predominating. The occasion was the 94th anniversary of the achievement of independence by the Mexicans from the Spaniards. The president formally convened congress and delivered his annual message.

Schooner and Cargo on Fire

Savannah, Ga., Sept. 17.—Steamer Alleghany yesterday passed an unknown, waterlogged three-masted schooner with a deckload of lumber on fire. The schooner's burgee was at half mast. The Alleghany remained by until satisfied that there was no one on board the burning vessel.

Musicians Accept a Compromise

Washington, Sept. 17.—A compromise has been reached by the terms of which the striking members of the orchestras of three of the Washington theatres will return to work next week. The men struck for an increase of pay to $18 and $20 a week, according to the number of performances given.

King Starts Old Age Fund

Rome, Sept. 17.—To celebrate the birth of the crown prince the king has donated the sum of $204,000 towards an old age fund for workmen.

TESTIFIED FALSELY

Woman Admits Perjury Which Sent a Man to State Prison

Cambridge, Mass., Sept. 17.—Mary A. Kean, a domestic, has made a sworn statement to the effect that her testimony upon which John J. Fitzgerald, a peddler of this city, was convicted of criminal assault and sentenced last April to the state prison for five years, was false, and that Fitzgerald was innocent of the charge preferred against him. The woman is at present serving a short sentence in Cambridge jail for a misdemeanor and last night Attorney Donovan, counsel for Fitzgerald, succeeded in getting her signature to an affidavit acknowledging that she had testified falsely in the Fitzgerald case.

When the woman's sentence has expired she will be arrested for perjury. An attempt will be made to have Fitzgerald released from prison or else to have a new trial granted him.

Alleged Breach of Promise

Fall River, Mass., Sept. 17.—A breach of promise suit for $20,000 has been brought by Miss Ida A. Murphy, assistant in the public library, against David R. Smith, a druggist. Miss Murphy alleges that Smith began courting her soon after the death of his first wife, and that he asked her to marry him. The wedding, she says, was set for Sept. 7. On July 11 Smith married Miss Celia Gesner. On the Saturday previous Miss Murphy had her engagement to Smith publicly announced. Previous to his marriage with Miss Gesner, Smith transferred to her his property, which has been attached for $20,000.

Shock Killed at Three Miles

Greenwich, Conn., Sept. 17.—Abbie Merritt, while on her way to school with her younger sister, espied lying in the road a telegraph wire which had been broken in the storm. She grasped it and fell to the ground. Her sister grasped her and also fell, but in falling released her hold. It is believed electric light wires in the village three miles away had crossed the telegraph wire and made it deadly. Abbie died before she could be removed to her home, but her sister will recover, although she was badly burned.

Retires With Clear Conscience

Nashua, N. H., Sept. 17.—City Marshal Eaton has sent his resignation to the police commissioners, to take effect Jan. 1, 1905. Eaton has been city marshal for nearly 14 years. In speaking of the position, he admitted that it had many opportunities for graft, but he had never yielded to temptation. At a special meeting of the police commission Eaton's resignation was accepted.

Nightgown Caught Fire

Boston, Sept. 17.—In the midst of her little flock of seven small children, whom she was putting to bed, Mrs. James Brown was nearly burned to death last night by the explosion of a kerosene lamp. She was taken to the city hospital, where there is little hope of her recovery. Mrs. Brown attempted to blow out the lamp, which exploded, igniting her nightgown.

President of Trust Indicted

Boston, Sept. 17.—The federal grand jury reported before Judge Lowell in the United States circuit court yesterday. The most important case considered was that of John M. Barry, president of the North American Trust, who was arrested last July on the charge of using the United States mails in a scheme to defraud. He was indicted and pleaded not guilty.

A Straw Bail Lawyer

Boston, Sept. 17.—Edward J. Ader, a young lawyer who has been identified with politics, pleaded guilty in the superior court to an indictment charging him with perjury. He is a "straw bail" man and went on the bail bond given for John J. Mahoney, who was accused of larceny. Ader left the city and was found in New York. He will be sentenced later.

Walked Into Elevator Well

Boston, Sept. 17.—Albert L. Cotton, employed by A. W. Wheeler at 63 Hanover street, walked into the elevator well at that place and fell from the fourth floor to the street floor. He had several bones broken and also sustained internal injuries from which he died just as he arrived at the city hospital relief station. He was 32 years old.

An Alleged Kidnapper

Boston, Sept. 17.—Mrs. Bertha Natino, the Boston woman who was arrested in New York, charged with the kidnapping in Boston on March 24 last of Caroline Romana, 8 years old, a New York child actress, was brought to this city last night by Police Inspector Rooney. Mrs. Natino was taken to jail, pending her arraignment next week.

Suffered From Old Age

Boston, Sept. 17.—William Dennett, 89 years old, a widower, attempted to commit suicide by cutting his throat with a razor at his home. His daughter found him upon going to his room. The man was taken to the city hospital. It is expected that he will recover. Suffering from old age is the only cause the police could find for the deed.

Flour May Reach Ten Dollars

Boston, Sept. 17.—No hope is entertained by Boston flour agents of a decrease in the price of flour. All fear that the price will continue to go up. If the present demand increases it is hard to estimate what the price of flour will be. It is estimated that the $10 mark will be reached within a fortnight.

GORMAN AS A LEADER

One of the Questions Settled at New York Conference

New York, Sept. 17.—Several important questions were settled by the visit of Judge Parker to New York and his conferences with Democratic leaders. It was determined that Senator Gorman should have an active place in the campaign, but that Chairman Taggart was not to be superseded. A conference of Tammany leaders with Judge Parker resulted in the settlement of differences in greater New York so far as they relate to national and state issues.

The selection of a temporary chairman of the Democratic state convention was made and his name will be officially announced later. The candidates for the governorship and other state offices were discussed, but it was stated that nothing definite as to a selection will be determined until next week. Another matter left open is whether or not Judge Parker will make a series of speeches during the campaign.

Judge Parker received about 80 members of the National Bankers' association yesterday afternoon. There were no speeches, the judge simply greeting each banker present.

All of Judge Parker's visitors left him shortly before 6 o'clock and a few minutes after that hour he took a train for Esopus.

State Senator Dowling said last night: "Judge Parker has asked me to say that he feels extremely jubilant and is very hopeful of the outlook at present. In particular he is gratified at the many evidences of harmony that exist on every hand. I can say safely that he feels hopeful in the extreme."

Freedom and Serfdom

Lyons, N. Y., Sept. 17.—Senator Depew, speaking at the Wayne county fair, said: "While the voters of the United States, representing 80,000,000 people, are now getting ready to elect a chief magistrate and representatives in congress, where will be decided questions on the tariff, revenue, a circulating medium, standards of value, domestic and foreign policies, which have to be made by the president and congress, 130,000,000 of Russians have their destinies, prosperity and very existence dependent absolutely upon the judgment of one man who cannot be reached by vote or voice."

Candidate Not After Votes

Providence, Sept. 17.—Charles H. Corrigan, presidential nominee of the Socialist Labor party, addressed about 200 men here last night. He said that "hard times" result from the inability of the luxury class to spend their big profits on the laborer's work, and when the latter is stored to await consumption the laborer goes unemployed, which condition is called "overproduction." Corrigan stated that he was not pleading for votes.

A Nominee of 1908

Cumberland, Md., Sept. 17.—Senator Fairbanks was introduced to 1500 persons here by Senator Scott as the prospective Republican presidential nominee in 1908. In a five-minute speech he said a visit to the industrial centres of the country would show ample evidence of the virtue of Republican policies.

Another Gubernatorial Candidate

New York, Sept. 17.—The state committee of the People's party, meeting as a convention, has selected a full state ticket. The names will be placed on the petitions to be circulated through the state for signatures. The ticket is headed by Alfred J. Boulton of Brooklyn for governor.

Delegations to Visit Esopus

New York, Sept. 17.—Arrangements are being made through the Democratic national committee for the visit of delegations to Esopus. The delegations will be addressed briefly by Judge Parker. This method of reaching the public was adopted by President McKinley during the campaign of 1896.

Stevenson's Services Enlisted

Bloomington, Ills., Sept. 17.—Former Vice President Stevenson has accepted an invitation from the national Democratic committee to take an active part in the presidential campaign. He will travel through many states, delivering one or more addresses each day.

Delay In Wisconsin Tangle

Madison, Wis., Sept. 17.—The supreme court of Wisconsin, before which is being tried the case involving a decision as to which of the two Republican state tickets is entitled to recognition, has adjourned until Sept. 27.

Davis Worries Over His Son

Elkins, W. Va., Sept. 17.—Former Senator Davis returned last night from his eastern trip. He is feeling well physically, but shows much worry over the condition of his son, who is still very ill with typhoid fever.

Break In Wheat and Corn

Chicago, Sept. 17.—A break of 2 cents occurred in wheat prices here as a result of heavy liquidation due to warmer weather and lower prices in foreign grain markets. The market closed almost at the lowest level. Corn was down 1@1 1-8.

King Peter's New Headgear

Paris, Sept. 17.—The crown made in Paris for the coronation of King Peter of Servia, was sent to Belgrade last evening.

Insured for $2,000,000

L. Rodman Wanamaker, son of John Wanamaker, the eminent merchant of New York and Philadelphia, has taken out a policy in

The Prudential Insurance Co.

for $1,000,000, paying an annual premium of over $30,000. This makes him the most heavily insured man in the world, with the single exception of King Edward VII.

Mr. Wanamaker's total insurance is now $2,000,000.

Ask yourself WHY Mr. Wanamaker placed one-half this great amount with The Prudential.

Your business judgment will at once reply: "Because after full investigation and comparison, Mr. Wanamaker found that the company which could give him the best insurance for a given amount of money was The Prudential."

Undoubtedly you will agree that Mr. Wanamaker does not pay over $30,000 per year except for most excellent reasons.

These reasons apply to YOU precisely as well as they do to HIM.

Better apply TODAY for information regarding Prudential policies to Mortgagees' Sale.

BY Virtue of the power of sale contained in a certain mortgage deed given by Hattie H. Walker of Boston, in the County of Suffolk and the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, to George E. Wales of Newton, in the County of Middlesex and Commonwealth aforesaid, dated the first day of November, 1899, and recorded with Norfolk deeds, Book 857, page 34, for breach of the condition of said mortgage deed, will be sold at public auction upon the premises herein described, the 28th day of September, at eleven o'clock in the forenoon, all and singular, the premises described in said mortgage deed, namely:

A certain parcel of land situated in that part of the city of Quincy, in County of Norfolk, called "Norfolk Downs;" being lot No. 1008, on the plan of "Norfolk Downs," by Charles D. Elliott, dated April, 1892, and recorded with said Norfolk deeds, Book of Plans, No. 14, plan 640, bounded and described as follows: southwesterly by Safford street, 50 feet; northwesterly by lot No. 1009 on said plan, 100 feet; northeasterly by lot No. 1005 on said plan, 50 feet; southeasterly by lot No. 1007 on said plan, 100 feet; containing according to said plan, 5000 square feet of land; said measurements and area being more or less. Subject to restrictions as set forth in deed of Henry H. Savage et als. to Hattie H. Walker, dated October 26, 1899, recorded with Norfolk deeds.

Said premises will be sold also subject to unpaid interest, taxes, assessments and outstanding tax deeds if any there are.

Two hundred dollars in cash must be paid by purchaser at the time and place of sale.

INVITED TROUBLE

Preferred Mercantile Gets It From Postoffice Department

SWEEPING FRAUD ORDER

Not Only the Company's Officers, but Agents In Many States Cannot Receive Letters Sent Them Through the Mail

Boston, Sept. 17.—By trying to circumvent a former order of the postoffice department the Preferred Mercantile company of Boston invited a most sweeping fraud order. The new order took effect yesterday in Boston, and in other cities it takes effect when it reaches the postmasters. It absolutely deprives about 50 persons in various states of the use of the United States mail service.

Many of these men, and perhaps most of them, had taken up the affairs of the Preferred Mercantile company on a side issue. They are connected with other business, some of them with insurance, but they are now completely deprived of the use of the mail. No letter sent through the mail can reach them. Every piece of mail addressed to any of them will be held at the postoffice, stamped "fraudulent" and returned to the sender if the sender's address be known, otherwise it will go to the dead letter office. There is no discrimination between personal and business letters. One of the postal officials in Boston says that not even the wife of any of these men can reach her husband by mail, for the letter would be returned to her, stamped "fraudulent."

When the fraud order reached the Boston postmaster it was sent to the various departments, with due instructions. The home addresses of the men who have business offices in Boston will be looked up, and the postmasters in those places will be instructed to withhold the mail from delivery. Clerks and carriers will be notified, so that they may identify any mail coming through their hands, and intercept it. If a letter be addressed "Preferred Mercantile company of Boston," it will be held in the Boston postoffice, as there is an injunction order pending in court preventing its return to the sender; but if it is addressed to Guy C. Stillings, or any of the other officials named in the order, it will be stamped and returned, whether addressed to the company's office or to their home addresses.

It is the most effective order ever issued against any company in this city, and is calculated to be so complete that the Preferred Mercantile company shall find no more loopholes through which to continue its business on the plan it was operated when the first orders were issued, or when the officials were arrested.

The company refused to recognize the right of the assistant attorney general for the postoffice department to stop its business and sought an injunction to restrain the postmaster general from carrying out the provisions of the order of the assistant attorney general. This matter is still in abeyance, and in the meantime the postoffice department claims to have discovered that agents of the Preferred Mercantile company were operating all over the country under their own names.

Immediately an investigation was begun and the fraud orders against every one of these men, who could in any way be connected with the Preferred Mercantile company, were issued. It is explained that this course has been taken because the company sought to circumvent the order of the postoffice department by employing agents who conducted the business under their own names, and seemed not to be in any way identified with the original company.

Increased Business In Sight

New York, Sept. 17.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says that industrial and commercial progress is slow, but definite. Low temperatures and some injury to crops provided the only adverse influence of the week, and this has little effect upon manufacturers and traders, who have started to prepare for increased business.

Troops Needed to Preserve Order

Jacksonville, Fla., Sept. 17.—The Altman-Duncan feud at Baxter has broken out again. It is reported that two men have been killed and a number wounded. Specials from Baxter say the situation is critical, and unless troops are speedily brought to the scene there will be further bloodshed.

Lumber Laden Vessels Abandoned

Wilmington, N. C., Sept. 17.—The captains and crew of the schooners Emily F. Nordham and James B. Jordan, both lumber-laden, have reached here, having been picked up and brought to Southport by the steamer M. F. Plant. Both schooners were abandoned at sea.

Expressman's Fatal Fall

Portland, Me., Sept. 17.—C. W. Megquier, aged 56, an express employe, fractured his skull while taking a box up a flight of stairs. He fell backward, with the box on top of him. He was taken to a hospital, where he died.

Over $2,000,000 For Friars' Lands

Manila, Sept. 17.—The civil commission is prepared to pay to the Augustinian friars $2,076,000, gold, for the lands in the islands held by their order.

Youth Charged With $25,000 Theft

New York, Sept. 17.—Charged with forgery and embezzlement of sums amounting to $25,000, Frank O'Donnell, 18 years old, was arrested at the Brighton Beach race track upon the complaint of Edward H. Jones, a lawyer, in whose office O'Donnell was employed until a few days ago. Young O'Donnell was found to be doing a good business as a bookmaker, having in his employ half a dozen sheet writers and runners.

Socialists Order a Strike

Rome, Sept. 17.—To protest against a conflict between strikers and the police, in which two strikers, a Sardinian and a Sicilian, were killed, the Socialists have decided on a general strike throughout Italy, which began at Milan, and threatens to spread through the whole peninsula. The government has taken extraordinary measures to suppress the strike, and has stopped all telegrams referring to it.

Death In Startling Manner

Williamsport, Pa., Sept. 17.—C. F. Overhiser, a manufacturer, drove down town and transacted some business, stopping at his office, where he wrote his will, and left it exposed on his desk. Shortly thereafter his carriage went past his residence, with Overhiser sitting upright, holding the reins, but dead. Death was due to heart disease.

To Size Up Cotton Scarcity

Charlotte, N. C., Sept. 17.—In response to information that a movement has been started to have a number of English spinners visit this country and see for themselves the causes leading to the scarcity of cotton, the Southern Manufacturers' club of this city has sent an invitation to the Englishmen to visit Charlotte.

NEWS IN BRIEF

The postoffice department has issued a general notice that the sale of the commemorative series of Louisiana Purchase exposition stamps at all postoffices will be discontinued Dec. 1 next.

All the Canadian Pacific boilermakers are on strike and they expect the support of the machinists.

Prince Herbert Bismarck is very weak and his condition is most critical.

John Newman, postmaster at Oldtown, Ark., was shot and killed by a river man named Jack Smith, who escaped.

Elias P. Smithers, aged 60, former register of wills of Philadelphia, died from injuries received in a fall down a flight of stairs.

TACT VERSUS SPANKS.

The Way One Woman Manages Her Obstinate Baby Girl.

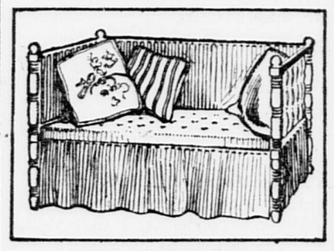

Let me tell you how I manage my little girl, three and a half years old. At times she is very obstinate. The thing I want her to do is not the thing she wants to do, though she may five minutes later. I was brought up in a good New England home to obey when spoken to and always intended to bring my children up the same, but find it no easy task. I would tell my little girl to mind. She would refuse. Perhaps I would deny her some pleasure. It was no punishment. I would make her stay in a room alone. It was no punishment. I would put her to bed. She would go to sleep and when she woke still refuse. I would spank her, and perhaps after a long struggle she would mind, and I was worn out. Many a time I had to resort to spanks, and it made me unhappy as well as sick to think I couldn't have obedience from my baby without such a trial. I tried to study her disposition and find some better way. I have at last hit upon this plan: I ask her to pick up her playthings, for instance. If she doesn't do it I seemingly take no notice of it, but go to doing something I know she will be interested in, play some game I think best, something to draw her attention, and before two minutes she is sure to ask me to do something for her. Then I say, "Have you done what I asked you to do?" and will not grant any request of hers until she has granted mine. Sometimes I simply turn her mind from her naughtiness by drawing her attention to something, no matter how trivial—a team passing, a bird flying—anything to get her mind on a new subject if only for a minute, and it answers the same purpose. In other words, I am now trying to use tact instead of spanks and find it a much better plan. —Designer.

A COZY SEAT.

How One Was Fashioned Out of an Old Wooden Baby Crib.

My baby had outgrown his crib, which was of the ordinary wooden variety with high ends and low sides, the foot side being hinged on. It had long been enameled white, but to make it look less like a crib a can of forest green enamel paint was bought, and a thin coat—so thin that the white almost showed through—was applied.

One of the sides was removed and firmly fastened to the top of the other side, making that the height of the ends. The legs were then sawed off to make it a convenient distance from the floor to use as a seat.

A quantity of hair—an old hair mattress, in fact—made a box cushion for it, looking exceedingly well covered with a green burlap having a large sprawling pink rose upon it. With a long darning needle and some pink floss the cushion was tacked in squares, the ends being tied tightly before cutting.

Next was made a very thick pad, the width of the sides and ends of the crib and just long enough to upholster them neatly. This was also covered with the green burlap, tacked firmly to the top and bottom and finished with upholsterers' braid put on with gilt headed tacks.

A box plaited valance of the burlap all around the crib, finished also with braid, completed the seat.

The whole cost of my cozy seat was about $2.50, but of course it was my own handiwork.—Ladies' World.

Pure Air Test.

If you want to know if the air of your bedroom is pure take an empty wide necked bottle capable of holding just nine and a half fluid ounces of water. Into this empty bottle pour half an ounce of limewater. Let the bottle remain uncovered in the room all night long. If in the morning the limewater is milky the ventilation is very bad indeed. If the limewater becomes milky on your covering the bottle mouth with your hand and shaking the vessel the ventilation is not sufficiently good. If the limewater remains clear the air of the room is pure.

Cleaning Tinware.

Acids should never be employed to clean tinware, because they attack the metal and remove it from the iron of which it forms a thin coat. We refer to articles made of tin plate, which consists of iron covered with tin. Rub the article first with rotten stone and sweet oil, then finish with whiting and a piece of soft leather. Articles made wholly of tin should be cleaned in the same manner. In a dry atmosphere planished tinware will remain bright for a long period, but will soon become tarnished in moist air.

A Delicious Dish.

A delicious breakfast or luncheon dish is potatoes stewed with tender bacon. Cut the bacon into large dice and fry until very slightly colored. The bacon should not be allowed to crisp. Drain and mix with creamed potatoes prepared in the usual manner—that is, cut in cubes and warmed in a rich cream sauce. Let the potatoes and bacon simmer for a few moments before serving, that the two flavors may have a chance to mingle. Sprinkle with minced parsley.—New York Post.

NOTES ABOUT TOWN.

Kindly forward all items of news to the Daily Ledger.

The new sign of E. J. Murphy, the druggist, is rich and substantial.

Miss S. Hubbard announces that she is ready for the fall trade and has some very desirable goods.

When looking for a desirable house consult the columns of this paper for reliable houses and real estate agents.

Miss E. J. Corlew will have two classes in dancing at Wollaston this season, one for beginners and one for advanced pupils.

Serial stories are always popular, but one by Mary E. Wilkins appeals to New England readers. Opening chapter of "The Hearts Highway" in today's eight page Ledger.

The lawn party which was to have been given last night, on the grounds of Mr. Edward Taylor of Hancock street, and was postponed until September, is now indefinitely postponed.

A social evening under the auspices of the W. C. T. M. will be held in the Wollaston Methodist church, October fourth. Mrs. Stevenson, the national superintendent, and others will speak during the evening. Supper will be served and all are invited to attend.

The home of Mrs. Mary Mackedon of Randolph, mother of F. T. Mackedon of this city, was entered in the absence of the family at Houghs Neck. Entrance was gained by taking out a pane of glass in the rear. It is not known what was taken, although the house showed evidence of being quite thoroughly ransacked.

Friends of Mrs. William Parker of Hancock court will be pleased to learn that she is recovering from her fall. While visiting her sister at Lancaster she fell down stairs bruising herself, necessitating several stitches on her head, but fortunately broke no bones and otherwise than the shock is enjoying her usual good health.

LIVING A LIE.

Those People Who Dress or Live Beyond Their Means.

Dressing or living beyond one's means is nothing less than absolute dishonesty. If you are trying to do what you cannot afford to do, you are living a lie; if you are wearing clothes that you cannot afford, they are perpetual witnesses against you. They are labeled all over with falsehood. If your jewelry, your carriages, your furs and your costly gowns tell me that you are rich when you live in a poverty stricken home and when your mother is obliged to make all sorts of sacrifices to enable you to make this false display, you lie just as surely as you would if you should try to deceive me by your words.

The consciousness of being well dressed and yet owing for it, of riding in carriages which one cannot afford or of patronizing expensive hotels and restaurants which one cannot by any stretch of imagination or sophistry afford, is destructive to self respect, to truth and honesty and to manhood and womanhood. You cannot afford to wear lies or eat lies any more than you can afford to tell lies.

There is only one possible result upon character of falsehoods, whether acted or told, and that is perpetual deterioration and demoralization. No one can act a lie or live a lie without being dishonest. When a man sacrifices his honesty he loses the mainspring of his character, and he cannot be perfectly honest when he is lying by frequenting costly restaurants or hotels, by wearing expensive clothing or by extravagant living which he cannot afford—

Ringmaster—What's the matter, Jack?

Clown—Oh, nothing much. I got a fearful bump just now. But I'll look pleasanter in a minute.

Ringmaster—No, no. Go into the ring at once looking just as you are. The audience will simply shriek with laughter.

BRAINTREE.

William P. Mitchie of Manchester, N. H., is vlsiting relatives and old time acquaintances about town.

Puritan lodge I. O. O. F. at their last meeting worked the first degree in charge of Degree Master A. A. Saunders. There was an unusually good attendance at this meeting.

Rev. Mr. Legg has decided to wait until October before giving his evening series on "With Christ in the School of Right Living.

Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Smith have returned from Houghs Neck where they have been spending the summer, to their home in Hancock street.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry T. Whitman started Tuesday for their home in Omaha, Neb. They will make short stops at Albany, N. Y., and the St. Louis fair reaching home about Sept. 20.

Harry L. Chase of Washington street had a rib broken last week at the W. L. Douglass shoe factory by a falling case of shoes.

Rev. F. H. Palmer and family are at Bay View, North Weymouth to spend the month.

Mr. W. A. Leonard and family of Monatiquot avenue have returned from North Scituate.

James T. Weeks has leased his house on Tremont street and will remove his family to Hollis block.

About one o'clock Thursday morning the fire alarm sounded number 46. An old vacant house near the Branley estate on Hancock street was burned.

Mrs. Ethel Brigham Hayden attended the biennial meeting of the Brigham Family association held at the American house, Boston Wednesday afternoon and evening.

Antietam camp 32 and S. of V. auxiliary No. 16 have received an invitation from the John A. Andrew camp 13 of Stoughton to attend a camp fire there September 22. There will be several good speakers and an enjoyable evening is promised.

The Jonas Perkins School association by invitation of Mrs. Loring are to hold an outing at the Loring cottage, Fort Point, this afternoon.

Miss Mary Scollard resumed her school duties in Canton Monday and Miss Annie Scollard in the city, Wednesday.

The fire bell was again rung last Tuesday evening this time for the loss of an old gentleman, Mr. H. S. Thayer of Central street. His relatives missed him from eleven o'clock in the morning and a steady search was made until nine in the evening, when public aid was solicited. He was found on Tremont street extension in a very weak condition. Dr. Burleigh gave him the required attention.

Oscar C. Gallagher has returned from his vacation and resumed his duties at Thayer academy.

The Miller Construction Co., are putting on an addition 30 by 50 to one of the buildings of the Norfolk Linen Co. on Adams street.

Mrs. Mary McDonough entered a plea of nolo contendere in the Superior court this week for sale of liquor at Braintree and paid a fine of $50. Mrs. Harry P. Madden paid a similar amount for an illegal sale.

Mrs. Charles and Mrs. Leonard Hunt have the sympathy of the neighbors in the loss of their mother Mrs. James Harris of Holbrook who died Wednesday night, Sept. 14, at the age of 67 years.

Mr. H. R. Drinkwater, who has served the sixth district so satisfactorily in the house of representatives for three years is not a candidate for re-election. He has notified the democratic town committees of Braintree and Weymouth that he will not take the nomination.

A number of friends from All Souls church visited Miss Annie Doane at Cohasset last Tuesday. A fine view of the town and seashore was obtained from Pinnacle hill. Lunch was enjoyed, served from beautiful old fashioned plates. The house with its fine antique furniture was thrown open for inspection and then a long walk to "Indian Pot" and the sea completed a very enjoyable day.

A goodly number were present at the Ladies' Aid supper Wednesday evening, the ladies serving including Mrs. H. S. Thayer, Mrs. F. W. Burrows, Mrs. S. S. B. French and Mrs. C. L. Plumer. The newly appointed chapel furnished a general topic of conversation, this being the first opportunity to inspect the work of the repair committee. On motion of Mr. Davenport a vote of thanks was extended to the pastor for his untiring zeal in the matter.

What might have proved a fatal accident occurred Friday forenoon at about 9.40. While driving on Washington street, Mr. Luther Scribner of Liberty street was thrown from his carriage and pretty badly shaken up. The horse became frightened by an automobile which he met, going at good speed, shied and struck an electric light pole near Mr. C. H. Hobart's residence. The carriage tipped, throwing Mr. Scribner to the ground. The horse cleared himself and ran but was caught in front of the Observer office by John Hill. The occupants of the automobile did not wait to see how much damage was done.

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

At the Castle Square Theatre next week a production of H. V. Esmond's modern comedy "when we were twenty-one" is to be the attraction. Its story is a simple one. It turns on the determination of an old bachelor to save the son of his dead friend from the follies of youth—the youth of today, with its vices and its decadent pride in degredation. He takes the boy's sins on his own shoulders and the sacrifice which he successfully makes results eventually in his own happiness. "When we were twenty-one" will be played a single week and be followed by an elaborate production or "Michael Strogoff" or "The Courier of the Czar." The usual free distribution of souvenir boxes of choice chocolate bonbons will be made at the Monday matinee.

TREMONT THEATRE.

The new Ade-Luders' opera, "The Sho-Gun," now running at the Tremont Theatre, Boston, is undoubtedly one of the most emphatic operatic hits that has been developed in many seasons. It is proving by all odds the most popular production Henry W. Savage ever has offered Boston playgoers, and in spite of the fact that it is now in its fourth week, it continues to draw capacity audiences. The piece is a happy return to the old style comic opera and the efforts of those who brought about the development of the theme to adhere to a strictly artistic plane has awakened very keen appreciation. George Ade's book is consistent, logical, and tells a decidely unique story. Gustav Luders' music is tuneful from beginning to end, and yet Mr. Luders has not once descended to the level of rat-trap and jingle. The production Mr. Savage has given the opera is perfect in every particular. The costumes are magnificent, the scenery imposing and always in the atmosphere, while the stage pictures and groupings reflect unlimited credit upon George F. Marion, Mr. Savage's general stage director, who arranged them. A positive limit has been placed upon the Boston engagement of this popular piece.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

Charles Hawtrey, the noted English actor, will be the star feature of the Keith vaudeville show during the week commencing Sept. 19. He will be supported by an excellent company in the presentation of a one-act play called "Time is Money," and the engagement is positively limited to one week. Music lovers will be especially entertained by Mme. Slapoffski, a noted English operatic prima donna soprano, who has been pronounced the best vocalist ever heard in the varieties. The principal "sights" act will be furnished by the Sisters Gausch, two of the greatest female acrobats ever seen in America, and a novelty feature will be the first appearence in Boston of the Jolly Veloes, French dancers and pantomimists, from the Folies Bergere, Paris. A. O. Duncan, Moore and Littlefield, Matthews and Harris, and other favorites, will be seen in new and attractive specialties.

MAJESTIC THEATRE.

Blanche Walsh, now the most famous dramatic actress of the American stage, will begin a two weeks' engagement at the Majestic Theatre, Boston, next Monday evening, Sept. 19th. She will then make her first appearance in New England in the epoch-making play "Resurrection." Those who have any interest in the thoughtful, substantial drama should not miss this opportunity, not only because "Resurrection" has been the dramatic sensation of the decade in Europe as well as America, but because Miss Walsh in the leading role of Maslova has achieved the most distinct personal triumph that has been recorded of any actress on the American stage in the serious drama in many years Though there have been several plays presented under this title, there is but one play that has been the basis for all the comment which "Resurrection" has called forth, and that is the play which Miss Walsh is about to present. It was first presented in Paris, then in London, and lastly by Miss Walsh in New York. It proved a dramtaic sensation abroad, but has enjoyed a much more prosperous career in America, thanks to Miss Walsh's portrayal of Maslova, which is more or less the play. The play will be given a massive scenic production, precisely as seen during its run of 150 nights at the Victora Theatre, New York.

PARK THEATRE.

At the Park Theatre, Boston, Ezra Kendall, America's foremost comedian, will enter upon the third and last week of his engagement in "Weather Beaten Benson," which has proved the greatest laughing success that he has ever produced since he became a star under the management of Liebler & Co. and which has surpassed all the records established by "The Vinegar Buyer" in which he has won such triumphs during the past two seasons. In his newest character Mr. Kendall has a type of American lite that is thoroughly amusing and therefore his powers of drollery are exercised to their utmost. The stage settings are wonderful for their effectiveness, and in one scene there is a rain storm introduced in dramatic climax which is the most realistic storm in modern theatricals. Thousands of gallons of water are used for this one scene and drench the luckless comedian as no star has been soaked in years. It is a veritable cloudburst and has scored one of the great hits of the production, which will be seen for a brief tour of the leading cities of New England upon the conclusion of the Boston engagement at the Park Theatre.

HOLLIS STREET THEATRE.

After having had a run of over a year in London and of nine months in New York City Chas. Frohman and George Edwards have presented at the Hollis Street Theatre, in Boston the English farcical comedy with music, "The Girl from Kay's." The piece has made the most emphatic kind of a hit, the critics and reviewers pronouncing it the best work of its kind that the stage has ever had. The praise of the work has been most lavish and it is destined to repeat in Boston the enormous success it scored in London and New York. Unlike most comedians of its class, "The Girl from Kay's" contains an interesting and diverting story. A young bride's jealousy is aroused by a kiss bestowed by a flirtatious young milliner upon her newly made husband. She goes off on her honeymoon heart-broken. There is another pair of lovers in the milliner and a rich but very vulgar man about town who believes his shortcomings should be overlooked on account of his riches. The complications all arise from the troubles of these contrasted couples. The comedy is to remain in Boston for a limited season during which there will be the usual matinees on Wednesdays and Saturdays.

MAJESTIC THEATRE.

The appearance of Wright Lorimer in "The Shepherd King" at the Majestic theatre, Boston, beginning Monday, October 3d, for six weeks, promises to be a theatrical event of unusual magnitude. "The Shepherd King" is a romantic drama in four acts and five scenes founded upon the Biblical story of David. The play is regarded by Orientalists, scientists and Biblical students as a most remarkable exposition of the monarchy of Israel under Saul, and has been the subject of wide and favorable discussion. A dainty love story involving David and Michal runs through it.

SOLID AND SAFE.

Inspection of New Banking Rooms.

Safe Deposit Boxes a New Feature.

The National Granite Bank to be Congratulated.

The people of the city of Quincy, as well as the officials of the National Granite Bank should be proud of the new banking rooms of the institution, which it was the pleasure of hundreds of ladies and gentlemen to inspect on Saturday. The business houses of the city were well represented, and quite a number came from Braintree and Weymouth. A general invitation had been extended, and from two to five P. M. it was the pleasure of the directors, cashier and others connected with the bank to escort through the rooms all who called. Cashier R. F. Claflin was happy at the realization of his efforts of many years, and his progressive board of directors shared the compliments which were bestowed.

The directors present were: Theophilus King, James Thompson, Clarence Burgin, Russell A. Sears and Joseph H. Vogel. Miss Mary E. Fletcher, the efficient assistant of Cashier Claflin, upon whom the arrangements for the reception devolved, was also on hand to greet all, and was special escort for lady guests.

It is a pleasure to do business with those who are up-to-date, and where there are appearances of prosperity. The new banking rooms of the National Granite Bank are commodious, richly furnished, well lighted, convenient, and certainly will invite business.

The front of the building to the depth of 28 feet is divided about equally between the public room and the business office, being separated by a high counter of solid mahogany reaching nearly to the ceiling. There are three windows for the tellers and book-keepers.

In the rear of the public room are two connecting rooms one with plate glass front, unique and convenient for consultation with the cashier. A telephone here allows the cashier to talk with the bank tellers, or with Boston and outside parties.

Opposite a corridor is the big vault which is not against any wall but has a space all around it. There is a solid foundation built up from the cellar bottom to the street floor. The vault is burglar proof as well as fire and water proof. Before any one could reach the inside of the vault, electric wires would give an alarm on a big gong in front of the building.

The directors' room is in the rear and is of ample proportions.—It is so situated as to afford a place for secret consultation. This room is richly finished in birch.

There are also toilet rooms, and a large basement.

A new departure is the establishment of safe deposit boxes. The Granite bank is making a determined effort to meet the wants of business men in this direction. Boxes as large as those of Boston institutions which cost $20 are offered for the low price of $5, while there are a few larger ones. The owner is supplied with one key to the box and a second one held by bank officials is also necessary. Before admittance to the vault, where the boxes are located, he must be admitted through two locked doors by bank officials. Then he is left to himself. If he wishes he may proceed with his box around the vault to one of three private rooms where he may clip coupons or make any examination of the contents he desires, or make changes. The testimony of most of the guests of the afternoon was that the boxes would supply a long felt want.

Messrs. R. F. Claflin and Clarence Burgin were the committee empowered to equip the banking rooms, and they succeeded admirably, seemingly leaving nothing undone.

On Saturday afternoon the rooms were made more attractive than usual by ferns, palms and cut flowers furnished by Patterson the florist. There was also a beautiful horseshoe of red and white pinks and ferns presented with the compliments of Henry L. Kincaide & Co., which occupied a prominent place on the desk near the entrance.

A dainty lunch was served by T. D. Cook, including sandwiches, cheese, salted almonds, olives, confectionery and coffee. Cigars were also passed.

NEW HYMNALS.

Used at Bethany Congregational Church for First Time.

There was a large congregation at Bethany church Sunday morning, when the pastor preached on "The pre-eminence of the spiritual." He thought a pastor derelict of his duty who did not at least once a year speak on this old message, which is the foundation of christian character. He said usefulness is determined largely by what a man puts first.

The new "Pilgrim Hymnal," printed this year and supplied by the ladies, was used for the first time. It is rich in hymns and tunes that appear for the first time, but three fourths are old tunes or recent favorites. The hymnal is issued by the Congregational Sunday School and Publishing Society, and contains 547 hymns, 78 responsive services, also aids to worship.

The first responsive service used was No. 71 from Philippians—"Going on unto perfection."

The first hymn sung was No. 10, a German translation for "The Worship of God," the first verse being:

"When morning gilds the skies,
My heart awaking cries
May Jesus Christ be praised!
Alike at work and prayer,
To Jesus I repair;
May Jesus Christ be praised!"

The second hymn was No. 291, "Whose service is perfect freedom," by Ella S. Armitage, the first verse being:

"O Lord of life and love and power,
How joyful life might be,
If in thy service every hour
We lived and moved with Thee,
If youth in all its bloom and might
By Thee were sanctified,
And manhood found its chief delight
In working at thy side!"

The third hymn of the day was No. 279, by Washington Gladden, the first verse reading:

"O Master let me walk with Thee
In lowly paths of service free
Tell me thy secret, help me bear
The strain of toil, the fret of care."

There are hymns written by ladies and gentlemen of different religious beliefs, and two by distinguished Quincy people.

Hymn No. 282, "Heaven on Earth," was written by John Quincy Adams (1846) the sixth president of the United States born in Quincy. It is given in full:

"Heaven is here where, hymns of gladness
Cheer the weary toilers rugged way
In this world where clouds of sadness
Often change to night our day.
"Heaven is here, where misery lightened
Of its heavy load is seen
Where the face of sorrow brightened
By the deed of love hath been.
"Where the sad, the poor, despairing,
Are uplifted, cheered and blest;
Where in others' labors sharing,
We can find our surest rest,
Where we heed the voice of duty,
Tread the path that Jesus trod,—
This is heaven its peace, its beauty,
Radiant with the love of God."

The other hymn is by Rev. William Everett, L.L. D., "Thy gentleness hath made me great." It is given in full:

"Deal gently with us, Lord,
The ways of sin are wide;
O take us by thy tender hand
And in thy pathway guide.
"Deal gently with us, Lord,
Our foes press thick and bold
O who shall fight the warfare through
If thou thine arm withhold?
"Deal gently with us, Lord,
Then we shall gently be,
And o'er our feeble brethern watch
In love and charity."

The new hymnal was also used in the Sunday School.

Holden—Sargent

There was a quiet home wedding on Saturday afternoon, at the home of Mrs. Charlotte E. Sargent on Elm street, when her daughter, Olive R., and Mr. Perley W. Holden of Boston, were united in marriage by Rev. William Gardner of Christ church. Miss Hattie Sargent, a sister of the bride, and Mr. W. C. Sampson, a cousin, attended the couple. Only the immediate families were present. The bride was married in a travelling dress and left immediately for Hartford, Conn. Their future residence will be on Massachusetts avenue, Boston.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

The Heart's Highway

CHAPTER II.

I KNOW not how it may be with other men, but of one branch of knowledge, which pertains directly to the human heart, and, when it be what its name indicates, to its eternal life, I gained no insight whatever from my books and my lessons, nor from my observance of its workings in those around me, and that was the passion of love. Of that I truly could learn naught except by turning my reflections toward my own heart.

I had loved Mary Cavendish like a father and like a lover, like a friend and a brother, like a slave and like a master, and it had been thus with me near sixteen years, since I was fourteen and she was a little maid of two, and I lived neighbor to her in Suffolkshire.

At fourteen I was as ungainly a lad, with as helpless a sprawl of legs and arms and as staring and shamefaced a surprise at my suddenly realized height of growth when jostled by a girl or a younger lad, and utter discomfiture before an unexpected deepness of tone when essaying a polite response to an inquiry of his elders, as was ever seen in England.

And I remember that I bore myself with a wary outlook for affronts to my newly fledging dignity and concealed all that was stirring in me to new life, whether of nobility or natural emotion, as if it were a dire shame, and whenever I had it in my heart to be tender was so brusque that I seemed to have been provided by nature with an armor of roughness like a hedgehog. But perhaps I had some small excuse for this, though, after all it is a question in my mind as to what excuse there may be for any man outside the motives of his own deeds, and I care not to dwell unduly, even to my own consideration, upon those disadvantages of life which may come to a man without his cognizance and are to be borne like any fortune of war.

But I had a mother who had small affection for me, and that was not so unnatural nor so much to her discredit as it may sound, since she, poor thing had been forced into a marriage with my father when she was long in love with her cousin. Then, my father having died at sea the year after I was born, and her cousin, who was a younger son, having come into the estates through the deaths of both his brothers of smallpox in one week, she married her first love in less than six months, and no discredit to her, for women are weak when they love, and she had doubtless been sorely tried.

They told me that my poor father was a true man and gallant soldier, and my old nurse used to talk to me of him, and I used to go by myself to think of him, and my eyes would get red when I was but a little boy with reflecting upon my mother with her new husband and her beautiful little boy, my brother John, a year and a half younger than I, and how my own poor father was forgotten. But there was no discredit to my mother, who was only a weak and gentle woman and was tasting happiness after disappointment and sorrow in being borne so far out by the tide of it that she lost sight, as it were, of her old shores.

My mind was never against my mother for her lack of love for me. But it is not hard to be lenient toward a lack of love toward oneself, especially remembering, as I do, myself and my fine ruddy faced, loud voiced stepfather and my brother John.

A woman, by reason of her great tenderness of heart, which makes her suffer overmuch for those she loves, has not the strength to bear the pain of loving more than one or two so entirely, and my mother's whole heart was fixed with an anxious strain of loving care upon my stepfather and my brother. I have seen her sit hours by a window as pale as a statue while my stepfather was away, for those were troublous times in England and he in the thick of it. When I was a lad of six or thereabouts they were bringing the king back to his own, and some of the loyal ones were in danger of losing their heads along his proposed line of march. And I have known her to hang whole nights over my brother's bed if he had but a tickling in the throat, and what could one poor woman do more?

My brother John looked like my mother, being, in fact, almost feminine in his appearance, though not in his character. He had the same fair face, perhaps more clearly and less softly cut, and the same long, silky wave of fair hair, but the expression of his eyes was different, and in character he was different. As for me, I was like my poor father, so like that, as I grew older, I seemed his very double, as my old nurse used to tell me. Perhaps that may have accounted for the quick glance, which seemed almost of fear, which my mother used to give me sometimes when I entered a room where she sat at her embroidery work.

I used to slink away as soon as possible when my mother turned her startled blue eyes upon me in such wise, that she might regain her peace, and sometimes I used to send my brother John to her on some errand, if I could manage it, knowing that he could soon drive me from her mind. One learns early such little tricks with women. They are such tender things, and it stirs one's heart to impatience to see them troubled. However, I will not deny that I may have been at times disturbed with some bitterness and jealousy at the sight of my brother and my stepfather having that which I naturally craved, for the heart of a little lad is a hungry thing for love, and has pangs of nature which will not be stilled, though they are to be borne like all else of pain on earth.

But after I saw Mary Cavendish all that passed, for I got, through loving so entirely, such knowledge of love in others that I saw that the excuse of love, for its weaknesses and its own crimes even, is such as to pass understanding. Looking at my mother caressing my brother instead of myself, I entered so fully into her own spirit of tenderness that I no longer rebelled nor wondered. The knowledge of the weakness of one's own heart goes far to set one at rights with all others.

When I first saw Mary Cavendish she was, as I said before, a little baby maid of two and I a loutish lad of fourteen, and I was going through the park of Cavendish Hall, which lay next ours, one morning in May, when all the hedges were white and pink and the blue was full of wings and songs. Cavendish Hall had been vacant, save for a caretaker, that many a day. Francis Cavendish, the owner, had been for years in India, but he had lately died, and now the younger brother, Geoffry, Mary's father, had come home from America to take possession of the estate, and he brought with him his daughter Catherine by a former marriage, a maid a year older than I; his second wife, a delicate lady scarce more than a girl, and his little daughter Mary.

And they had left to come thither two fine estates in Virginia—namely, these two, Laurel Creek, which was Mary's mother's in her own right, and Drake Hill—and the second wife had come with some misgiving and attended by a whole troop of black slaves, which made all our country fall agog at once with awe and ridicule and admiration. I was myself full of interest in this unwonted folk and prone to linger about the park for a sight and maybe a chance word with them, having ever from a child had a desire to look further into that which has been hitherto unknown, whether it be in books or in the world at large.

So I, with my book lesson done, but my mind still athirst for more knowledge, and maybe curious, for all thirst is not for the noblest ends, crawled through a gap in the snowy May hedge and was slinking across the park of Cavendish Hall with long, loose jointed lopes like a stray puppy, and maybe with some sense of being where I should not, though I could not have rightly told why, since there were no warnings up against trespassers and I had no designs upon any hare or deer.

Be that as it may, I was going along in such fashion through the greenness of the park, so deep with rich lights and shadows on it that May morning that is seemed like plunging thought-high in a green sea, when suddenly I stopped and my heart leaped, for there sat in the grass before me, clutching some of it with a tiny hand like a pink pearl, the sweetest little maid that ever this world held.

All in white she was and of a stuff so thin that her baby curves of innocence showed through it, and the little smock slipped low down over her rosy shoulders, and her little toes curled pink in the green grass, for she had no shoes on, having run away before she was dressed by some oversight of her black nurse, and down from her head, over all her tiny body, hiding all save the merest glimmer of the loveliness of her face, fell the most wonderful shower of gold locks that ever a baby of only two years possessed. She sat there with the sunlight glancing on her through a rift in the trees, all in a web of gold, floating and flying on the May wind, and for a minute I, being well instructed in such lore, thought she was no mortal child, but something more, as she was indeed, but in another sense.

I stood there and looked and looked, and she still pulled up tiny handfuls of the green grass and never turned nor knew me near, when suddenly there burst with a speed like a storm, and a storm indeed it was of brute life, with loud stamps of a very fury of sound which shook the earth as with a mighty tread of thunder, out of a thicker part of the wood, a great black stallion on a morning gallop with all the freedom of the spring and youth firing his blood, and one step more and his iron hoofs would have crushed the child. But I was first. I flung myself upon her and threw her like a feather to one side, and that was the last I knew for awhile.

When I knew myself again there was a mighty pain in my shoulder, which seemed to be the center of my whole existence by reason of it, and there was the feel of baby kisses on my lips. The courage of her blood was in that tiny maid. She had no thought of flight nor tears, though she knew not but that black thunderbolt would return, and she knew not what my ghastly silence meant. She had crept close to me, though she might well have been bruised, such a tender thing she was, by the rough fling I had given her, and was trying to kiss me awake as she did her father. And I, rude boy, all unversed in grace and tenderness and hitherto all unsought of love, felt her soft lips on mine and looking saw that baby face all clouded about with gold and I loved her forever.

I knew not how to talk to a little petted treasure of life like that, and I dared not speak, but I looked at her and she seemed not to be afraid, but laughed with a merriment of triumph at seeing me awake, and something she said in the sweetest tongue of the world, which I yet made poor shift to understand, for her baby speech, besides its incompleteness, had also a long drawn sweetness like the slow trickle of honey, which she had caught from those black people which she had about her since her birth.

I had great ado to move, though my shoulder was not disjointed, only sorely bruised, but finally I was on my feet again, though standing rather weakly, and with an ear alert for the return of that wild, careering brute and the little maid was close at my side, with one rosy set of fingers clinging around two of my rough brown ones with that sweet tenacity of a baby grasp which can hold the strongest thing on earth.

A FIELD OF HORROR

Absolutely No Mercy on Either Side at Port Arthur

FLAGS OF TRUCE IGNORED

Stench From Heaps of Dead Has Become Almost Unbearable--Men of Both Armies Venomous In Their Antagonism

Chefoo, Sept. 19.—According to Lieutenant Prince Radzivil of the Russian army, who reached here last night from Port Arthur, bearing dispatches from Lieutenant General Stoessel to General Kuropatkin, the temper of the belligerents at Port Arthur has reached an absolutely merciless stage. Prince Radzivil served with the British in the Boer war and he says that until he became aware of the state of affairs at Port Arthur he had no idea that war could be so horrible.

It was set forth in these dispatches some weeks ago that serious suspicions were entertained by both belligerents that the other was misusing the Red Cross flag. The suspicions have been increased by the commission of various acts by the soldiers of both armies, until now even flags of truce or surrender are not respected by either side.

In consequence of the fact that flags of truce are ignored, numbers of Japanese dead who have been lying on the slopes of the hills of the northeast defenses for weeks past are still unburied, and the stench in Port Arthur from decomposing bodies, when the wind is in the right direction, is almost unendurable. The Russian soldiers, who are in some cases posted only 50 paces from heaps of decaying dead, have constantly to wear over their noses handkerchiefs soaked in camphor, as otherwise they would be unable to remain at their posts.

In the course of the assaults which took place in the last four days of August, two companies of Japanese soldiers, according to Radzivil, found themselves at the mercy of the Russians and hoisted a white flag. To this, however, the Russians paid no attention and continued to volley rapidly into the helpless ranks of the enemy. In the meantime Japanese troops in the rear of the companies that had raised the white flag saw what their comrades had done and expressed their disapproval of the surrender by firing into their rear. As a result of this fire from friend and foe, 600 men were annihilated. The dead fell among the decomposing bodies of previous assaults.

For days afterwards the wounded men in this area raised fluttering handkerchiefs in their hands in pleas for help, but the Russians were afraid to venture out to give succor. Within a week the soldiers had made their last unregarded prayer for help and the shambles was a quiet but ghastly field of horror. Among the heaps of dead Radzivil saw two soldiers, one a Russian and the other a Japanese, lying locked in a death embrace. The teeth of the Japanese were sunk in the Russian's throat, while the Russian had forced two of his fingers into the eye sockets of his antagonist.

The prince cited this as merely an incident denoting the ferocity of the conflict at Port Arthur. The prince will leave here today to rejoin Kuropatkin.

Prince Radzivil, another Russian officer, two civilians and one woman, the wife of a Russian staff officer, left Port Arthur the night of Sept. 16 on a junk and arrived here last night.

Reinforcements For Japanese

St. Petersburg, Sept. 19.—General Sakharoff has reported to the general staff, under date of Sept. 17: "The arrival of considerable reinforcements is noticeable at the advance posts along the whole of the enemy's front." It is announced from Mukden that both the Russians and Japanese generals have promised to respect the tombs and palace there.

Mysterious Moves of Chinese

Mukden, Sept. 19.—The armies having recovered from the effects of the recent fighting before Liaoyang, an early development of the situation may be expected. A mysterious movement eastward is on foot on the part of bands of young Chinese suitable for military service. All the leading Chinese who have aided the Russians are leaving Mukden.

Hard Pressed For Necessities

St. Petersburg, Sept. 19.—Vehement complaints are again being made of the freight blockade of the Siberian railroad in consequence of its monopoly by the military authorities. It is stated that goods started last March for Sakhalin have not yet arrived. The whole northern Manchurian and Sakhalin regions are affected. Many localities in which winter communication is unsafe are rapidly running out of the absolute necessities of life, and there is a prospect of much hardship the coming winter if goods started for the far east under special permit of the authorities are not allowed to go through.

Firemen Killed In a Collision

New York, Sept. 19.—Arnold Cordts and Benjamin Roach, two locomotive firemen, were crushed to death in a collision between two passenger trains in the railroad yard at Long Island City. The engineers, who were not hurt, were arrested. The passengers on both trains were severely shaken up, but none was injured.

LOVE AND DYNAMITE

Combination In Tragedy Which Resulted In Murder

Martinsburg, W. Va., Sept. 19.—As the result of the jealousy of a rival lover, John Harris is dead, Jennie Smith has a broken back and will die, and Julia White is so severely cut that she cannot recover, a house on East Race street is blown up and Ernest Hollins and John Thompson are in jail, charged with murder—the result of a dance at the home of Julia White.

Hollins and Harris were rivals for the hand of the Smith woman. Saturday night it was intended to hold a dance at Julia White's and Harris took the Smith woman to the house shortly before 1 o'clock Sunday morning. Hollins, who was heard to remark earlier in the evening that she would not stay in the house over night, is supposed to have gone with Thompson, a friend, and stolen some dynamite from nearby railroad shops, placed it under the house and put it off. For squares around the houses were shaken, windows broken and the house itself so badly torn up that it will have to be destroyed.

Queer Course of Freight Cars

Newark, N. J., Sept. 19.—Three loaded freight cars jumped the track here, tore through a freight yard fence, crossed Sheffield street and crashed into the residence of Jaames Snape. The forward car was driven into the house, which is of brick, and fell into the cellar. The other cars piled up against the front of the house. Snape and his family were asleep on the second floor. Snape was thrown out of bed and bruised, but his wife and three children were not injured.

An Arctic Failure

Tromsoe, Norway, Sept. 19.—W. S. Champ, who was in charge of the relief expedition sent to search for the Arctic exploration steamer America, has arrived here on board the steamer Frithjof. Mr. Champ said: "I regret to report my failure to reach Franz Josef Land. The ice conditions were insurmountable, and the approaching winter and the heavy frost compelled us to abandon further efforts to get north."

Marble Workers Lose Strike

Rutland, Vt., Sept. 19.—The strike of 500 marble workers, which was inaugurated July 11, was officially ended last night and the strikers resumed work this morning under exactly the same conditions that prevailed when the strike was declared. The men demanded a nine-hour day, double pay for overtime work, the abolishment of piece work and the adoption of a union wage scale.

Part of Building Collapsed

Pawtucket, R. I., Sept. 19.—Thirty feet of a three-story chip stone building on Exchange street collapsed, carrying away three floors and demolishing a small barn in the rear of the building. The plant of the Pawtucket Times, which adjoined the collapsed building, was damaged considerably, practically all of the windows being smashed and some of the machinery ruined.

A Dastardly Deed

Cleveland, Sept. 19.—During a public band concert here last evening a lead pipe loaded with powder or dynamite was employed with malicious intent, the police believe, and Pasquale Ferrito and Walter Cox were fatally injured. Rivalry between two bands of the district is said to be the cause for much ill-feeling of the bandsmen towards each other.

Tube Workers Still Out

Somerville, Mass., Sept. 19.—The striking employes at the American Tube works will continue the strike and will not return to work today as had been reported. It was decided last night, by a vote of 331 to 19, to continue the strike. When the strike was declared several months ago 567 men quit work, and only a few of this number have returned to the shop.

Mission Proved Fruitful

New York, Sept. 19.—Miss H. Boyd, who was sent out by the Pennsylvania Archeological society to make investigations and excavations for ancient cities in Crete, was successful in finding a hidden city. Miss Boyd reached here on the Pannania and brought with her many specimens for the society.

Planning Starvation Policy

Buenos Ayres, Sept. 19.—The revolutionists of Paraguay are concentrating their land forces at towns parallel with the railway and have cut off supplies and communications with Asuncion. They are planning to make an early attack upon the capital or to starve the government into submission.

Street Murder at Chicago

Chicago, Sept. 19.—Resenting an accidental collision between himself and Charles Meyers, Kalvin Linden, a negro, shot Meyers, killing him instantly. He then turned the weapon against men who came to aid Meyers, shooting George Denards and Guy Jones. Denards may die. Linden escaped.

Killed at Baseball Game

Chicago, Sept. 19.—Edward Johnson, a member of the Oak Park Baseball club, was killed by a batted ball during a game here. The ball struck him just below the heart, and he died in three minutes.

CITY BREVITIES.

City Council this evening.

Sunday was another perfect autumn day.

How did you like the opening chapter of "The Hearts Highway?"

Boys wanted at Daily Ledger office at 3.40 each day to sell the Ledger.

Miss Ethel V. Merritt of Elm place is visiting relatives in Scituate.

Mr. Atkins of Newark, N. J., was the guest of Councilman A. W. Thompson last week.

Mr. and Mrs. P. Davidson of this city were registered last week at the Eagle Mountain house at Jackson, N. H.

A conference of Congregational churches will be held with Bethany church of this city on Thursday, Sept. 29.

Miss Lizzie Brewer of the National Granite bank is in Washington and Miss Fannie Ellsworth is substituting for her.

George W. Penniman of Brockton, formerly of Quincy, is travelling in the West. He is at present visiting the World's Fair.

Mrs. A. H. Philbrick of Waterville, Miss Blanch Sibley, Miss Lillian Mathews and Mr. and Mrs. J. V. Mathews of Augusta, Me., have returned home after a week's visit with Mr. and P. F. Carlin.

An unusually well attended prayer-meeting was held at the Quincy Point church, Friday evening, Sept. 16. It certainly looks as though the plans for the winter's work would be carried out successfully.

C. H. Sherburne, superintendent of the Washington Street Congregational S. S. has sent cards to all members and their friends requesting them to attend the Rally Day exercises, to be held Sunday at 12 o'clock.

A Boston paper reports that in the municipal criminal court on Saturday, James Brown of Quincy, charged with breaking into Winthrop school and stealing a clock worth $14, was held in $1,000 for the next sitting of the grand jury.

Henry J. Fleming, who was arrested in Chelsea Saturday night, for obtaining money under false pretenses claimed he represented the labor unions at Fall River in some cases, and in others that he was collecting funds for unfortunate employes of a manufacturing plant at Quincy.

John Gibbon of West Quincy is one of the leading candidates in the Globe contest in the division of Massachusetts cities. Harold P. Farrington of Wollaston is near the top among Massachusetts towns, but Wollaston is not a town, therefore he is not eligible in that division. There are other Quincy candidates.

False Report.

The reported death of the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Luard of Wollaston proves to have been false. The little fellow is seriously ill, but the prospects are now that he will recover. The Ledger is pleased to make the correction.

HAS MOST PLEDGES

But Stanchfield May Not Receive Nomination

IS OPPOSED BY TAMMANY

Shepard Is Picked as a Possible Winner, While Many Others Are Named as Possibilities--Jerome Boom Peters Out

Saratoga, N. Y., Sept. 19.—Although there are many well known Democrats here, the absence of some of the foremost leaders, who will be most influential in the selection of the ticket to be nominated at the Democratic state convention, which begins here tomorrow, prevents the situation from taking any definite form.

Everybody, regardless of particular political affiliations, agrees that no definite settlement has been reached as to the nomination for governor. It is conceded that so far as actual pledged delegates are concerned, John B. Stanchfield of Elmira has the lead. On the other hand, the name of Edward M. Shepard of Brooklyn is the one which most of those here seem inclined to place at the head of their speculative ticket, with Assemblyman George M. Palmer of Schoharie for lieutenant governor.

The Tammany people who are here mention four names, any one of whom would be acceptable to Tammany hall, Shepard, Palmer, Judge Herrick of Albany and Judge Gaynor of Brooklyn. They express themselves as opposed to Stanchfield and equally so to Comptroller Grout of New York. There is no movement here in evidence in favor of the nomination of District Attorney Jerome.

W. C. Ely, president of the International Railway Trolley system of Buffalo and Niagara Falls, and Daniel N. Lockwood of Buffalo are also mentioned by those who favored Charles Goodyear, who declined to allow the use of his name.

Where Murphy Is Interested

New York, Sept. 19.—Tammany hall men start for Saratoga in two divisions. The original plan was for both divisions to start early this morning, but many Hebrews found that their religious observances would prevent them from leaving before sundown, today being the day of atonement. Charles F. Murphy left this morning with the Anawanda club delegation. When asked why he had not gone to Saratoga yesterday as he had planned, to participate in the series of conferences preceding the convention, he replied: "I have no interest in conferences; my only concern is the election of a Democratic president."

Corregan Talks at Boston

Boston, Sept. 19.—Boston entertained, yesterday afternoon, a candidate for President of the United States. He was Charles H. Corregan of Syracuse, N. Y., the Socialist Labor party candidate. Mr. Corregan took the platform on Boston common. He is a short, stout man, about 45 years of age, has a penetrating voice, and his labor-hardened hands, together with the handkerchief around his neck, made a strong impression on his listeners. Mr. Corregan assailed the rich, who, he claims, in idleness, are becoming richer, while the poor workman through honest toil is growing poorer and supporting the rich. "We, in our 'slave pens,' are supporting the rich by the sweat of our brow—and so we will always do if the workingmen of the United States do not organize and stop it." Corregan's statements were warmly received.

Will Remain at Rosemount

Esopus, N. Y., Sept. 19.—Judge Parker will not go on a speech-making tour and all his speeches will be made at Rosemount. It is also announced that the judge will go to New York only when it is more convenient to meet his political managers in that city than at Rosemount.

Suicide of Minstrel's Wife

New York, Sept. 19.—Mrs. Mary T. Thatcher, 45 years old, wife of George W. Thatcher, the minstrel, committed suicide last night at her home here by inhaling gas. Mrs. Thatcher inherited $50,000 only a few months ago from an uncle in Philadelphia. She was said to have suffered from some nervous affection.

Investigating Maples Lynching

Huntsville, Ala., Sept. 19.—The military court of inquiry appointed by Governor Cunningham convened here today to investigate the conduct of the militia during the recent lynching of the negro, Horace Maples. It is known positively that several of the persons indicted have left the country.

To Adopt the Confessional

Chicago, Sept. 19.—John Alexander Dowie and the 11 other men to be proclaimed "Apostles of Jesus Christ" are to hear confession of sin. This is the version of the new rank to be bestowed on the overseer and his chief assistants current in Zion City.

Not Guilty of Murder

Charlotte, N. C., Sept. 19.—Dr. Julian N. Baker was acquitted on the charge of murdering Dr. H. T. Bass at Tarboro. According to the testimony the men, both prominent physicians, engaged in a fight at the postoffice and Baker shot Bass three times.

NEITHER SIDE YIELDS

No Prospect of Near Settlement of Fall River Strike

Fall River, Mass., Sept. 19.—The contest between $37,000,000 invested mill capital and the personal comfort of 26,000 mill laborers, which began in this city eight weeks ago, is apparently no nearer a settlement that at its very outset. Both sides remain firm, the mill owners claiming that it is impossible to resume operations unless the 12½ percent reduction is made in wages, while the operatives are just as determined against working under any such conditions.

With winter not far distant, the unions have already begun to husband their resources for the drain which must then be more severe than during the summer months. The operatives are still receiving money and greater care than ever before is used in handling it.

The exodus of foreign operatives has naturally been large, and lately many of the skilled help have joined the outgoing army, seeking other fields for their labor. Of the foreigners the Portuguese have left in largest numbers, and very few remain in the city.

Within the last few days there has been a persistent rumor of a resumption on Oct. 3, but Friday the weavers decided to hold a mass meeting on that day, which apparently shows the report to be without foundation as far as the operatives are concerned.

Panic In a Synagogue

Boston, Sept. 19.—A child's cry of "fire" ringing through the Beth Israel synagogue in Baldwin place last night in the midst of the evening service caused a momentary fire panic in which a large part of the 1500 worshippers struggled for the doors in their efforts to escape the supposed peril. For 15 minutes terrified members of the congregation struggled frantically to make their exit from the building. Only when those who had made their escape had discovered that there was no need for the alarm was the general excitement quelled. Although one woman fainted, no one was injured.

Baby Attacked by Rats

Lowell, Mass., Sept. 19.—Its fingers and head gnawed by rats, the 18-months-old child of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Smith is in a serious condition. The parents were awakened by a noise in the bedroom Saturday morning. Getting up they found the child's bed swarming with rats. All the fingers on both hands were bitten and in some cases the bones showed. The head was gnawed in some places to the skull. The family tried to dress the child's injuries themselves, but yesterday a doctor was called. The little one may recover.

Results of Recent Storm

Boston, Sept. 19.—Although the record of destruction left by Thursday's storm in its passage along the New England coast is probably still incomplete, returns thus far show that more than three score of the coastwise shipping fleet suffered more or less damage from the gale. So far as known, however, only one life was lost, and that was from the battleship Missouri, from whose deck a seaman was washed overboard. Four vessels were totally wrecked.

Jefferson May Not Act Again

Boston, Sept. 19.—"Mr. Jefferson will not go on the stage this fall, and it is perhaps doubtful if he ever will again," was the information given out at the Hotel Touraine by the actor's wife. "He is a very feeble man and needs an absolute rest before he will be in condition for active work. He will take this rest at Buzzards bay, and will stay there until the cold weather comes."

Triple Killing by a Train

Bethel, Vt., Sept. 19.—Three quarrymen were struck and killed by a freight train in the railroad yard here. The bodies were horribly mangled and it was only by means of the labor union cards found in the clothing of the victims that they were identified as Dennis Lynch, Edward Smith and Jerry Shea, three quarrymen.

Weary Life Ended

Boston, Sept. 19.—Thomas Oats, 69 years of age, was found dead in the cellar of the house 16 Connolly street. His wife died about three years ago. Since that time he had slept in different cellars in the neighborhood. He depended mostly on the neighbors for food and earned small sums doing errands.

Stabbing Affray at Portland

Portland, Me., Sept. 19.—Daniel J. Kaler of company E, Maine National Guard, was stabbed on Fore street. Two soldiers from Fort McKinley, Sergeant Shepherd and Musician Williams, are under arrest on suspicion. Kaler is in a critical condition.

Won't Recognize Union

Boston, Sept. 19.—The 26 firms of this city which employ steamfitters, most of whom are now on a strike, have agreed to hire both union and non-union help. Hitherto all the shops have employed only unionists.

Hoar's Condition Unchanged

Worcester, Mass., Sept. 19.—During the past week there has been no material change in the condition of Senator Hoar. While there has been no favorable reports their tenor has not been such as to cause any alarm.

Yacht Wrecked on Ledge

Rockland, Me., Sept. 19.—The yacht Brentwood, Portland for Northeast Harbor, was wrecked Sunday on Inner Bay ledge. Captain Bulger and crew escaped in a small boat. The yacht was valued at $7000.

HOPES SHATTERED

Prince Bismarck Did Not Reach Goal to Which He Aspired

LONG IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Had Been Trained to Succeed His Father, the "Iron Chancellor"--Career Nearly Wrecked by Elopement With a Princess

Friedrichsruhe, Sept. 19.—Prince Herbert Bismarck died Sunday. The end was painless.

Since he ceased to be foreign minister on the retirement of his father in 1890 the prince had taken part in public affairs only as a member of the reichstag. His attitude had been that of a man not appreciated by his sovereign and who was waiting in the background for an opportunity to resume his career. He always declined to join any political group, steadfastly calling himself an independent. His haughty and imperious manners of early life, when he was ever conscious of the fact that he was the son of the most powerful statesman in Europe, softened in later life.

Prince Bismarck's father trained him for his successor as chancellor of the German empire and advanced him rapidly in the diplomatic service until at the age of 40 he was minister of foreign affairs, in which position he took part in nearly every important international transaction.

An incident that nearly wrecked Prince Herbert's career and that caused the old chancellor great annoyance, was Prince (then count) Herbert's elopement with Princess Carolath Beuthen, the wife of Prince Karl. Count Herbert lived with the princess in southern Italy for a few weeks and then, at the command of his father, returned to Germany. The princess afterwards was divorced and has since died.

The title of Prince Bismarck and the large fortune of the deceased will go to his 7-year-old son, Otto. The late Emperor Frederick gave to Chancellor Bismarck extensive forests at Friedrichsruhe which have since increased in value. The chancellor gave to Prince Herbert $2,400,000 in securities and these forests. The estate is now estimated to be worth $4,000,000, exclusive of the lands.

Prince Bismarck, who was born in 1849, was the oldest son of the late Prince Otto Bismarck, the great chancellor of the German empire. He studied law, served in the Prussian army as a lieutenant of reserves during the Franco-German war of 1870-71 and was severely wounded. In 1873 Herbert became an official of the department of foreign affairs and was assistant to his father, then chancellor. He was attached to the German legations at Berne and at Vienna from 1874 to 1877. Later on the deceased became chancellor of the German embassy at London and subsequently occupied the same position at St. Petersburg. In 1884 he was appointed minister extraordinary at The Hague and in 1885 he became under secretary of state in the department of foreign affairs. This post Herbert held until the dismissal of his father from the chancellorship, when he left the service of the empire. From 1884 to 1887 Herbert was a member of the German reichstag and also from 1893 until the time of his death. He was married in 1892 to Countess Margaret Hoyos of the Hungarian nobility and after the death of his father he inherited the title of prince.

Prince Herbert leaves five children, two girls and three boys. His brother, William, who died in 1901, had four children, all of whom are still alive. Countess Von Renthau, his only sister, has no children.

Highwaymen Got $2700

Peoria, Ills., Sept. 19.—B. F. Cassell, cashier of the Great Western distillery, was held up on one of the principal streets of the city by three unknown men, who struck him over the head with a club and made away with a satchel containing $2700, which was to have been used to pay off the employes of the company. The thieves escaped.

Class Rush Overdone

Lafayette, Ind., Sept. 19.—After one of the roughest annual class rushes ever held at Purdue university, the sophomores danced about a group of 400 freshmen, bound hand and foot and fastened to a long chain. The clash resulted in injuries to 30 students. Some of the injuries may be serious.

Champion Lightweight Wrestler

Toledo, Sept. 19.—Max Wiley successfully defended his title of lightweight wrestling champion of the world here, defeating John Billiter of this city in two straight falls. Wiley was the aggressor at every stage and won as he pleased.

Thosophists In Convention

Chicago, Sept. 19.—The Theosophic society gained about 400 members during the past year, according to the report of the general secretary and treasurer at the 18th annual convention of the society. The present membership in the United States is about 2500.

Thief Killed Mayor

Thomson, Ills., Sept. 19.—Mayor Bennett was shot and killed by a thief whom the mayor was trying to arrest. The murderer was caught by citizens after he had been shot twice.

PENNANT TO HAVERHILL

Gifts to Manager Hamilton and Pitcher McGinley

Haverhill, Mass., Sept. 19.—The New England league season closed here with the home team winner of the pennant. Manager Hamilton was presented with a gold watch, chain and charm, a $20 gold piece, and a ring by his friends. Pitcher McGinley was presented with a clock and silver toilet set by his fellow-players as a farewell, in view of his departure to join the St. Louis Nationals next week.

Italy Disturbed by Strikes

Paris, Sept. 19.—The Journal's Genoa correspondent reports that the situation throughout Italy on account of the conflict between capital and labor is most serious. At Rome the council of ministers has called out two classes of reserves in order to reinforce the authorities. At Porto Novo crowds of people stopped the railway trains, many children lying down before the engines. The troops there were powerless and one person was killed and several were badly hurt. The situation is equally serious in other cities.

Double Drowning Accident

Salem, Mass., Sept. 19.—William Darby and Alex Maddison of Lowell were drowned by the capsizing of a small sloop-yacht off Beverly Farms. Henry O'Neill, the third member of the party, narrowly escaped drowning. He was rescued by Captain Tucker of Marblehead. None of the three men had ever sailed upon salt water or knew anything about the management of a sailboat. The accident was caused by the sloop being struck by a squall.

Barges and Crews Safe

New York, Sept. 19.—Captain Wagle of the Norwegian steamer Fri reports having passed off Five Fathom bank and Northeast End lightship the barges Gwennie and Powell, lost by the tug Morrill in Thursday's gale. The two barges were at anchor and wished to be reported all well.

Wreck of Schooner Gibson

New Bedford, Mass., Sept. 19.—Schooner Fred H. Gibson of St. John was abandoned in a sinking condition 80 miles southeast of New York and her crew was brought here by the whaling schooner Ellen A. Swift. Just after the crew of the Gibson left their vessel she went down.

Facing Severe March

Lhassa, Sept. 19.—The departure of the British expedition has been fixed for Sept. 23. The weather is extremely cold. The men are ill-supplied with winter clothing, and are likely to suffer in crossing the passes on the way to Gyangtse, where there are some stores of warm clothing.

To Consider Eight-Hour Day

Indianapolis, Sept. 19.—In accordance with the resolutions adopted at the recent convention of the International union that organization is about to begin a referendum vote of the members to determine whether or not the organization shall pledge itself to the eight-hour day.

Russians Capture Seal Poacher

St. Petersburg, Sept. 19.—It is announced from Vladivostok that an English seal poacher named Thomson, who took advantage of war to make the Pribiloff islands his hunting ground, has been captured and his schooner sunk. Thomson has been imprisoned.

Won Big Stake In Slow Time

New York, Sept. 19.—Africander, with O'Neil in the saddle, won the $10,000 Brighton beach. He was second choice. McChesney, the favorite, and admirably ridden by Redfern, was second, and Major Daingerfield last. The time, 3:55, was very slow.

Increase of Cent an Hour

Winnipeg, Man., Sept. 19.—The Canadian Pacific boilermakers' strike has been settled. The men were granted an increase of 1 cent an hour and resumed work today.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Jacob W. Manning, one of the best known nurserymen in the country, and noted particularly as a producer of evergreens, died at Reading, Mass., aged 80. He was a native of New Hampshire.

Frank W. Whitlock, a retired civil engineer, died at Great Barrington, Mass., as the result of falling down stairs. He sustained a fracture of the skull.

Edward Kakas, a Boston furrier, died suddenly of heart failure at his home at West Medford, Mass., aged 76. He was a native of Hungary and was exiled with Louis Kossouth in 1850.

H. L. Cobb, after three years faithful service has severed his connection with C. C. Hearn and after a short rest at the mountains will enter business for himself out of town. He will be greatly missed by his customers and the many friends he has made while in this city.

NEVER IN DOUBT.

Merrymounts Defeat the Quincys 13 to 5.

In an Interesting Game at Park.

The Wollaston Park Boys Win Rubber by Forfeit.

The Merrymounts defeated Quincys, former champions of the city, Saturday, in an interesting game.

Kelley's wildness coupled with Merrymounts fast work on the bases never left the game in doubt after the fourth innings.

Fultz's home run and Bennett's fine one-hand catch in deep center were the features.

Kolson pitched a good game, striking out 8, and not allowing a base on balls.

Won by Default.

The Wollaston Park A. A. took the third game from the Warrens of Neponset on Saturday through default. At the last minute the Warrens refused to play, giving no reason whatever. As this game was to decide for the best two out of three a large crowd of Wollaston people went to Neponset expecting to see a warm game, but were disappointed. As this game was forfeited to the Park nine, the Wollaston Park A. A. are now the holders of the 18-year-old championship of Boston and vicinity for 1904. The only thing the Parks regret is that they were not given a chance to defeat the Warrens in a played game.

American Boys, 12; Stars, 5.

At the cricket field it East Braintree on Saturday afternoon the American Boys of South Quincy defeated the Stars of Braintree by a score of 12 to 5.

In the fifth innings the Stars had a lead of two runs while Americans had not scored. The fighting spirit of Quincy's 13-year-old champions was again shown and although playing a much older team the American Boys by fine batting and base running earned 7 runs in the last of the fifth.

For the rest of the game the playing was close. Micheal, the Americans twirler received splendid support, especially in fast plays by G. Moorehouse, Schroeder and Spargo. While Starr at second and Maguire behind the bat, excelled for the losers.

Odd Fellows Play Ball.

Standish lodge, I. O. O. F., of Rockland, and John Hancock lodge of Wollaston met on the diamond at the Wollaston Golf link on Saturday for a challenge game. It was easy for the visitors who won 13 to 4.

After the game John Hancock lodge entertained the victors at their banquet hall, serving an excellent supper. Speeches followed and phonograph selections, and it was an enjoyable day for members of both lodges.

Fore Rivers Win.

The South Quincy and Fore River foot ball teams met on Saturday on the Ward Two playground, and played a game by Association rules. The South Quincys were unable to score, and the Fore Rivers won 3 to 0.

"I LIKE ICE CREAM."

Everybody likes it. We can all have as much as we want now for it is very easy to make when JELL-O ICE CREAM POWDER is used. All ingredients in the package; no cooking or fussing, simply add a quart of milk and freeze. A great success; try it and you will be delighted. Each package makes nearly two quarts. Four kinds: Vanilla, Chocolate, Strawberry and Unflavored. Order today from your grocer. Two packages for 25c.

Prompt Arrest.

Four boys of nine or ten years robbed the grocery store of G. G. Grant on Hancock street, near Billings road, Sunday afternoon.

The police obtained prompt information and notified Station 11 of Dorchester that the boys were headed toward Boston. Within an hour the Boston police had the boys, who are also wanted for breaks at Dorchester. They were arraigned in the Dorchester court today. At the Grant store they took cigars, tobacco, candy and a little change.

Experience Meeting.

The members of Bethany Congregational church have been widely scattered for their vacations during the summer, and it was a happy idea of the pastor to get them to relate at the Sunday evening service their experiences, particularly on Sundays.

Theophilus King told of Poland Springs, Miss Charlotte Kingman of the Missionary work at Northfield, Alden Blanchard of the Y. M. C. A. camp in Maine, John Evans of what he saw in Wales and abroad on ocean steamship, Mr. Roberts of his visit to Scotland, Dr. C. T. Sherman of Northfield, singing a solo which made an impression on him there. Miss Corrinne Hayward told of her work among the Indians at the Hampton Institute in Virginia, and Carl Hayward recited his experiences in a mining camp in Colorado.

Confirmation.

Confirmation was administered Sunday at St. Johns church to about 300 by Rt. Rev. Bishop Brady, assisted by Rev. A. F. Roche of West Quincy and Rev. Matthew McDonnell of South Braintree. The benediction was by Rev. Fr. Johnstone.

Quarrymen Killed.

Three quarrymen were killed on the railroad at Bethel, Vt., on Sunday, Dennis Lynch, Edward Smith and Jerry Shea.

TODAY'S COURT.

Peter W. Hanley, James Ready and Hugo Sevelius each paid the usual fines of $3 for drunkenness at Quincy.

Hugo Sevelius, for carrying a concealed weapon also contributed an extra $10.

Edward E. Sullivan for drunkenness at Braintree was fined $3.

Edgar A. Shepard for threat to commit assault and battery, also profanity; continued to Sept. 27.

Robert E. Apthorp and Albert T. Stuart for exceeding the speed limit for automobiles at the Blue Hills paid $5.

The continued cases of Charles Johnson and Humphrey Shea for drunkenness at Quincy were settled by the payment of $3.

Sentence was suspended in the continued case of Paul A. Pitts for six months, and the case of Fred C. Oxner was placed on probation for six months.

Edward Levon, Umo Ekbom and William Ekbom were arraigned for assault on Officer Curtin and William Ekbom for obstructing sidewalk at Quincy Point. Cases continued until Sept. 29.

Boys wanted at Daily Ledger office at 3.40 each day to sell the Ledger.

PARKWAY BIDS.

Opened This Morning by Metropolitan Board.

Work is to Begin Immediately.

Contract for Building Will be Awarded Tomorrow.

Bids were opened today for grading the Furnace Brook parkway in West Quincy between Adams street and the Blue Hills reservation.

There were nine bidders, the highest being for $20,666.25. The three lowest were:

Lowe & Berini, So. Framingham,	$15,604.70
H. Gore Co., Boston,	16,499.70
Hub Construction Co., Boston,	17,100.10

The contract will be awarded on Wednesday at the meeting of the Metropolitan Park Commission, and work will be commenced immediately, that it may be completed early in December.

A further indication that the parkway is to be a reality is the fact that the engineers office is being built on Cross street near the Corliss estate, the parkway crossing Cross street at this point.

Information from Arthur W. Stetson shows that he had a close call in the railroad accident in Nevada, Sept. 12, a gentleman beside him being injured. He is expected home this week. The accident caused two deaths and injured 19 or more.

When she was born her father requested the members of the Hessian regiments forming a portion of his cavalry brigade to be sponsors for the baby. When she was christened about 4000 soldiers stood for her as sponsors.

FASHIONS OF TOMORROW.

Advanced Fur Novelties and Handsome Gown Fabrics.

There is one piece of news that has leaked out before its time, as it were, and that is that velvet and velveteen will enjoy a great vogue this winter. This is always good news, for the becomingness of velvet, especially in conjunction with furs, is indisputable, and every woman is aware that she will look her best in a combination of the two.

It is decided, too, that ermine is to take premier rank among the coming furs, yielding pre-eminence only to sable. As a lining for those who can afford it, it will hold its own against every fur in the market.

Velvet and velveteen gowns will be smartest made in directoire and Louis XV. hunting styles, while the princess gown created from costly velours is regal in the extreme.

A good many fashionable tailors are making the real Newmarket coat, which always requires perfect fitting and a tall, well proportioned woman to show it to advantage.

A daring but effective mixture in fall colors is that composed of orange and blue, and some of the blue serge Eton coats have double breasted waistcoats of orange cloth, the otherwise plain serge coat and skirt being braided in black in a narrow twisted scroll design.

The illustration shows an exquisite wrap of plum velours lined with ermine. The long shouldered effect widens out into pagoda sleeves trimmed with oriental embroideries.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

RENOUNCED THE VIOLIN.

Wellington Never Touched It After He Became a Field Officer.

The Duke of Wellington played the violin as a subaltern, but gave it up when he became a field officer. The reason for this renunciation is supplied by the following extract from a letter written by Mrs. Stuart Mackenzie to the Duke of Sutherland in 1852: "Every one knows that to the last the duke was fond and a fine judge of music. In youth he was a performer on the violin, that, giving up a great deal of time to it, he began to fear lest the hereditary taste should get the better of him, and in one day he broke the spell, laid aside his violin and never afterward touched it. This circumstance occurred during the time of his early attachment to my dear friend the duchess, who has often repeated it to me with pride as an omen of what was to be expected from his great self command and firmness of decision."

It may be added that the Duke of Wellington inherited his love of music from his father, Lord Mornington, who was a doctor of music and a composer of no small merit.—Pearson's.

Costly Fishes.

The most beautiful and costly fishes in the world come from China, and the rarest of all is the brush tail goldfish. Specimens of these have sold for as high as £140 each, and in Europe the prices range from £50 to £100. The brush tail goldfish is so small that a half crown piece will cover it, and probably there is no living thing of its size and weight that is worth so much money.—London Mail.

Comparing Notes.

Mrs. Apollo—Your cook seems to have a very refined appearance. Mrs. Brooks—She says she is a Vassar girl. Mrs. Cunningham—She worked for me once and then said she was a Wellesley girl. Mrs. Devine—She told me she had been a cook at both colleges.—Smart Set.

The Exact Amount.

"Yes," said the man who had been generous with his friends, "I've lost faith in humankind to some extent."

"To what extent?"

"Well, to the extent of about $1,000 in blocks of $5 and $10 at a time."—Philadelphia Ledger.

The Difficulty.

The Wife—I fully realize that I ought to economize, Jack, but— The Husband—But what? Don't you know where to begin? The Wife—Oh, yes; but I can't decide on the time.—Town Topics.

"No," replied the latter. "Just at present I don't need the advertising."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

FIELD MARSHAL OYAMA.

A New Light on the Great Japanese Warrior's Character.

Far from being a hard eyed, shaggy browed general, as one might imagine, Field Marshal Oyama is the kindest, most amiable old gentleman it would be possible to meet, says a contributor to the Chicago Tribune. He himself declares that he has no liking whatever for war and that it is irony of fate, not personal inclination, which has made him the soldier he is today. Like most of Japan's great men, he is not rich in this world's goods. He is far too liberal to amass a fortune. It is told of him that during the Chinese war he bought provisions for his men and horses out of his own pocket rather than pillage the wretched homes along the route.

In fact, charity got to be such a mania with him that his wife, an extremely economical woman, had to act as treasurer and dole him out a small allowance daily.

During his residence in Paris he was often greatly upset by the way dumb animals, particularly horses, were abused. Once he got into a dreadful mess with a cabby, and both had to be marched off to the police station to explain their conduct. Though the marshal could speak but little French, he stormed around the terrified commissaire until justice was given him and he saw the jehu condemned to a twenty dollar fine. Japanese merchants in Paris as well as cabmen remember this active military attache, though in quite a different way.

One day, sitting in front of a cafe, he noticed a Japanese offering some beautiful fans at exceedingly low prices, lower even than the same article could be purchased in Japan. Beckoning the man to him, he asked how he could do it. The other told him how, owing to long illness, business had dropped off. He was unable to pay the rent, which would come due on the following day, so he and his wife rather than lose all their stock were selling what articles they could smuggle out on the streets of Paris. The attache had several important engagements on hand that afternoon, but he postponed all and hurried off with the unfortunate merchant. After thoroughly examining into the matters he paid the rent, suggested the man's moving into a better quarter of the capital and during the rest of his stay there did what he could to work up a clientele among his friends. From that day the merchant's affairs flourished, and two years ago he died worth a nice round sum. By his will he left $20,000 of it to his benefactor.

PEABODY AND PARKER.

How Much Democratic Committee's Treasurer Thinks of the Judge.

One of the crispest stories of the campaign is going the rounds at Lake George. George Foster Peabody, treasurer of the Democratic national committee, is spending the summer there. He is an exceptionally distinguished looking man and attracts newcomers. A youth taken with his wit and learning ventured to ask advice on political matters.

"I'm in a quandary," said he to Mr. Peabody. "I don't know which ticket to vote, Democratic or Republican. Tell me, do you think much of Judge Parker?"

"About forty-eight hours a day," was the curt reply. "I'm the treasurer of his campaign."—New York Times.

A Mexican Multimillionaire.

Pedro Alvarado, the Mexican multimillionaire miner who a few years ago was working in a mine for 85 cents a day, has ordered a train of five Pullman cars, in which he will make a tour of Mexico. He will be accompanied by a bodyguard of armed men. Alvarado has just built at Parral the finest residence in Mexico. Once he offered to pay the public debt of the republic, saying he had obtained his vast wealth from the ground and therefore that he ought to donate that much of it to the government. This offer was declined. The only time that Alvarado has been out of the Parral mining district was two years ago, when he chartered a special train and took his family with him to the city of Chihuahua to have a gold filling placed in one of his teeth.

Jones—Henry.

This remarkable wedding announcement recently appeared in a Greenville (Wis.) paper:

"Miss Jennie Jones and Bob Henry were married at the Jones mansion last night. The bride is the daughter of our Constable Jones, who is a good officer and will undoubtedly be re-elected next spring. He offers a fine house for sale in another column. The groom runs a grocery store on Main street and is a good patron of our ad. columns and has a fine lot of bargains this week. All summer he paid 2 cents more for butter than any store in town. The happy couple left on the 10 o'clock train to visit the bride's uncle in Milwaukee, who is reported to have lots of money and Bright's disease. Bob certainly has an eye to business."

Russian Field Nurses.

Of special interest at this time is the history of Mme. Bakounina, known as the Russian "Florence Nightingale," says the London Hospital. At the time of the Crimean war she was head of the Russian order of Sisters of Mercy and attended operations at the field hospitals regardless of danger. She and her sisters also had the courage to discard their uniform and don sheepskin coats and long boots and go out in the snow and render first aid and help bring in the wounded. This order of nurses, which was founded by the Grand Duchess Helena Pavlovna in 1854, has many members now at the front.

HIGH SCHOOL DEBATE.

Attendance of City Council Too Small to Risk a Vote.

Extended Report of the Arguments Pro and Con on Enlargement.

The City Council had a lengthy debate last evening on the order appropriating $65,000 for the enlargement of the High school, and several Councilmen put themselves on record, but as there was so much difference of opinion, and so many absentees, the order did not come to a vote, two-thirds being necessary to pass.

The absentees were Councilmen Hardwick, Holmes, Johnson, Langelier, Loud and Thompson.

JURORS DRAWN.

Acting Mayor Keith with the assistance of Councilman Reardon drew the following as traverse jurors for the October sitting: Thomas A. Whalen, Joseph P. Clark, Bartholomew McLane, Charles A. Furbish and William P. Reardon.

WATER FOR PEDDOCKS.

The Council received notice of a hearing relative to extending water pipes from Nut Island to Peddocks Island. Placed on file.

Applications for State aid and minor licenses were received and referred.

STREET REPORTS.

The Committee on Streets made a favorable report on the acceptance of Channing street. Second reading.

Leave to withdraw on the acceptance of Marion street was accepted.

An order reported for relocation of pole on Pleasant street was laid on the table.

An order for hearing was reported on petition of Telephone Co. on Arlington street.

An order for poles on Willard, Copeland, Arlington and Sea streets and Sea avenue was reported and ordered to second reading.

A report of leave to withdraw on the petition for track across Furnace avenue was laid on table.

An order granting the Telephone Co. locations for poles on Canal and Field streets was ordered to second reading.

ATLANTIC HOSE HOUSE.

The joint committee on Finance and Fire Department reported an amendment to the order appropriating $400 for connecting the Atlantic Hose House with the sewer, and the order was passed.

MONEY REFUNDED.

Orders were passed refunding H. T. Whitman a sewer tax of $12.76, W. Walsh a tax title of $5.59; W. T. Fuller tax titles of $13.84 and $22.00.

PARK CREDIT.

An order was passed crediting the Park appropriation with $100 received from pasturage.

MORE FOR REPAIRS.

Upon favorable report of the Finance Committee the $1500 order for repairs of public buildings was passed.

MORE FOR SCHOOLS.

The Finance Committee reported an order appropriating $3,000 for maintenance of schools. Read once.

HIGH SCHOOLS.

Upon motion of Councilman Stone the order appropriating $65,000 for the enlargement of the High school was taken from the table, and the question came on the passage of the order.

Councilman Stone spoke at length in favor. He said the people were getting nervous over the situation at High school. The fact is that the city of Quincy, at present, is not able to house its High school pupils. Further, it is a fact that a majority of the City Council are in favor of enlargement, but are held back by the minority. Was prepared to show the enlargement can be made for the sum of $65,000.

A letter had been read from the superintendent of schools at Springfield, but he would show that superintendent Balliet had been misled in the letter sent by the Councilman. Had a long talk with the superintendent and obtained his views. It was costing Springfield twice as much per capita to support two High schools as one in Quincy. It was not reasonable to build ward High schools.

Believed even lower bids can be obtained than those I shall quote. The City Council should get together and provide ample High school room.

Mr. Stone then read letters from contractors giving the following figures for work under the plans adopted, and agreeing to furnish bonds:

Heating and ventilating system,	$9,885
Plumbing,	4,875
Build north wing,	51,998
Total	$66,758

This shows we can go ahead and under competitive bids made the enlargement within the appropriation. The contractors were ready if the city was.

Quoting from the Springfield superintendent, it is expensive to establish two High schools. The second school would probably not be as good as the central building. Best results can be obtained in High schools of 800 to 1000 pupils. Buildings with over 1000 pupils not in favor. Each city must decide for itself on accommodations, and the judgment of the school committee should govern.

It was evident Supt. Balliet had been misled by the letter of Councilman Piper. The cost per capita in the Quincy High school was $31; in Springfield it was $60.35. The financial condition of Quincy makes it evident that she is not able to support two High schools as in Springfield.

Councilman Piper said the question was whether Quincy should have one building for 1,000 pupils or two for 500 each. He quoted from the Springfield report against costly school buildings, and in favor of locations on side streets.

The Ward Two Councilman has accused the minority with obstructing legislation, but the High school enlargement order had never received over 11 votes and 12 would be a majority. On the other hand the order for the purchase of the Lawton lot had received 12 votes. He was not in favor of proposed enlargement, Councilman Nickerson wanted Councilmen in favor of two buildings to analyze the per capita cost of Springfield and Quincy. The former with two buildings, although adjacent, cost twice as much as Quincy.

Councilman Whiton said he did not expect the order to pass. It would be miraculous if it did. But it was idle to talk of supporting two High schools in Quincy. This year we were unable in the annual budget to provide enough for our schools, and this evening an order for $3,000 more to be raised by loan had been reported. Ward Three men know we cannot support two.

Believed $65,000 would be sufficient for enlargement. The majority of the Council were in favor of enlargement even if vote did not show it. Why Nantucket was surprised at our ignorance on school matters. He querried if School Committee would be compelled to use a new building as a High school even should it be erected.

Councilman Reardon said it would be absurd to pass the order without bona fide bids. Did not know whether bids were on the plans accepted or not. He asserted that a majority was not favorable to enlargement. We are here to protect the interests of the city, financial and otherwise. It was not necessary to go to Springfield, or use it as a comparison, but to meet the needs of Quincy as they arise. Saw no reason why double sessions at the High school should not be continued. Hoped order would not pass.

Councilman Whiton—Do you favor two High schools?

Councilman Reardon—Yes.

Councilman Whiton—Have you bona fide bids on the cost of a new schoolhouse?

Councilman Reardon—When that question arises we will meet it.

Councilman Nickerson—The knowledge of our School Committee should have weight. They are almost unanimous for enlargement. The Council could not compel the School Committee to maintain two High schools. It was a question of expense. Did not see any way in which city could support two High schools within ten years. Two sessions were not satisfactory either to parents, pupils or to School Committee. He wanted to go on record in favor of enlargement. He stated emphatically that no schoolhouse would be erected in Ward Six or any other part of the city until the High school problem is settled.

Councilman Piper—Would it not cost more for maintenance in event of enlargement?

Councilman Whiton — Yes; but it would cost $5000 more to maintain two buildings than one.

Councilman Piper—As far as I know our School Committee have had very little experience with two buildings.

Councilman Whiton—What city with two buildings would you sight as an example?

Councilman Piper—Providence.

Councilman Stone—Would you place Quincy and Providence in the same class? How many High school pupils has Providence?

Councilman Piper—About three and one-half times as many as Quincy.

Councilman Stone—I should expect Providence to have more than one building. These bids for the enlargement are bona fide. Quincy does not want expensive school buildings and ornamentation is out of the qestion.

Councilman Piper—We should provide for the future.

Councilman Whiton—Are we in shape to provide for ten years hence?

Councilman Piper—It was well to look ahead five years.

Councilman Whiton—We must first meet present needs.

By request of Councilman Hughes an early estimate of the cost made by Mr. Lord, a builder, was read, as follows: North wing, $37,933; boilers and heating system, $18,689; south wing, $48,121; tower changes $26,002; a total of $107,386.

Councilman Stone claimed these figures were made on the original sketches and were only approximate estimates. There were no complete plans then.

Councilman Hughes—There was a strange variance in the figures. Then the $107,000 does not include plumbing, wiring or architect's fees. Neither did the bids furnished by the Ward Two Councilman include architect's fees. Opposed the order as it will cost $125,000 to complete building. Was weak argument to say minority was blocking legislation.

Councilman Whiton was surprised at the last statement, and did not think the Councilman really meant it. Even if new building and enlargement cost the same, the enlargement is preferable because cost of maintenance would be less.

Councilman Reardon—All the advocates of enlargement have been doing has been putting forth excuses for estimates and cost of enlargement. The plain fact is that $65,000 is not sufficient to complete building. Should bring in order to cover entire cost. Another fact, the people do not want enlargement on present plans. If Quincy is in such straitened circumstances it should continue the two session plan. Other cities may copy the idea.

Councilman Nickerson—Quincy does not need two High schools any more than two City Halls. The claim of Wards Three and Four is a personal matter. He found no one outside of these wards in favor of a High school there. Why not change the School Committee if its judgment is worthless. It was plain that the early figures on the plans were simply estimates, and not close or reliable.

Councilman Whiton—It was clearly Wards Three and Four against the city. A new building might cost $200,000. One just erected in Chelsea cost $250,000. The Ward Four Councilman says the people do not want the Gould plans; how does he know?

Councilman Reardon denied that he said so.

Councilman Bass offered a perfecting amendment relative to date of bonds, which was adopted.

A vote was then expected, but only 17 were present and a motion of Councilman Whiton to lay on the table prevailed.

LAWTON LOT.

Councilman Stone moved to take from the table the order for the purchase of the Lawton lot in Ward Three for a High school.

Councilman Reardon opposed.

Councilman Stone withdrew his motion.

Councilman Bass introduced an order appropriating $6.44 to pay interest due H. H. Rogers. Referred.

Adjourned at 9.40 until Monday evening, Oct. 3.

$1,000 EACH

For Three of Our Best Quarries.

Sold to Reorganization Committee.

The Lyons, Rogers and Blue Hill Plants.

John W. McAnarney, Esq., as special master, sold at public auction on Monday the Lyons granite quarry, the O. T. Rogers granite quarry and the Blue Hill granite quarry.

These are three of the best granite quarries in Quincy, worth $100,000 or more apiece, but each one was sold for the nominal sum of $1,000 to J. K. Hayward, trustee, representing the committee on reorganization of the Quincy Granite Quarries Company.

The only person present at the sale except those directly interested was Hon. Peter T. Fallon, the sale being a matter of form.

Ladies' Auxiliary.

The Ladies' Auxiliary to the Y. M. C. A. held their first meeting of the year at the home of the president, Mrs. E. W. Sheppard, Monday afternoon and was largely attended, seventy-five being present.

Delegates were chosen to the annual conference at Cambridge, Oct. 11-13, as follows: Mrs. William E. Gardner, Mrs. Wilson Marsh, Mrs. A. H. Gilson, Mrs. E. C. Gay, Mrs. J. F. Welch and Miss Margaret Thomas.

The informal talk given by Mr. Stacy Southworth, upon "Dr. Henderson's camp" was greatly enjoyed by all present. He spoke of the different phases of camp life and of the work being done there.

Mrs. Frank Page, whose singing is always enjoyed, rendered pleasing solos.

Post Office Examination.

The annual examination for the grades of clerk and carrier in the Quincy Post office, will be held in Room 142, post office building, Boston, beginning November 16. No application will be accepted for this examination which is filed with the board later than 4 P. M., Monday, October 17. The age limit is 18 to 45 years, and all male applicants must measure not less than 5 feet, 4 inches in their stocking feet, and weigh not less than 125 pounds.

The required application form and a pamphlet descriptive of the examination can be secured from E. E. Stebbins, secretary Board of Examiners, Room 141 Post office building, Boston, or John H. McDougal at the Quincy office.

Opening Night a Success.

Frank Ferris, the popular manager of the Granite Street bowling alleys has returned from a summer's engagement at Nantasket and on Monday evening reopened the alleys in this city for the winter season. Many of the local champion team were present, including the "fans," and the opening night proves that the alleys are bound to be more popular this winter than ever. Here's hoping that the champion Quincy team may again win the championship of 1905.

Nominations All In.

The time has expired for filing nominations with the City Clerk for the joint city caucus, but the Republicans, Socialists and Democrats filed their papers in the order named before the time expired Monday evening.

A New Song.

We have just received one of the most beautiful home songs that has of late come to this office. It is called "Your mother," written by J. T. Rider. This is a song that everybody ought to buy and everybody ought to sing. By sending 25 cents in postage stamps to the Theatrical Music Supply Co., No. 44 West 28th street, New York, a copy will be sent postpaid.

Call for a free Ledger if you have not started the new story "The Hearts Highway."

Insured for $2,000,000
L. Rodman Wanamaker, son of John Wanamaker, the eminent merchant of New York and Philadelphia, has taken out a policy in
The Prudential Insurance Co.
for $1,000,000, paying an annual premium of over $30,000. This makes him the most heavily insured man in the world, with the single exception of King Edward VII.
Mr. Wanamaker's total insurance is now $2,000,000.
Ask yourself WHY Mr. Wanamaker placed one-half this great amount with The Prudential.
Your business judgment will at once reply: "Because after full investigation and comparison, Mr. Wanamaker found that the company which could give him the best insurance for a given amount of money was The Prudential."
Undoubtedly you will agree that Mr. Wanamaker does not pay over $30,000 per year except for most excellent reasons.
These reasons apply to YOU precisely as well as they do to HIM.

OUR BIG CROPS.

The Harvests Here Are the Foundation of Our Prosperity.

[From the Wall Street Journal.]

In this country we raise one-fifth of the world's wheat, four-fifths of the world's corn, one-fourth of the world's oats and four-fifths of the world's cotton. This harvest is at the foundation of our prosperity. True it is that our manufacturing industries have grown more rapidly in recent years than the agricultural, but agriculture this year will produce commodities to the value of $4,000,000,000, and foreign customers will pay us not far from $900,000,000 for our agricultural products shipped to them over sea.

The west, with its billion dollar corn crops and its half billion dollar wheat crops and its quarter billion dollar oat crops, has been the country's bulwark in the storms of inflated finance. To form an adequate conception of the magnitude of the crops one must turn to the figures. The total volume in bushels of the six cereal crops—corn, wheat, oats, barley, rye and buckwheat—in the past three years has been: 1901, 3,160,000,000; 1902, 4,261,000,000; 1903, 3,839,000,000. The farm value of these cereals has been: 1901, $1,745,500,000; 1902, $1,828,600,000; 1903, $1,746,600,000. Adding the values of the cotton and hay crops, we have these remarkable results: 1901, $2,720,000,000; 1902, $2,784,000,000; 1903, $2,755,000,000.

Roosevelt and the Poets.

[From the Greenfield (Md.) Tribune.]

The campaign poets have a great deal of trouble in making rhymes with Roosevelt. Occasionally, however, a real gem appears from the most unexpected source. From an enthusiastic rural disciple comes the following:

American, German, Italian, Celt,
Norwegians and the banana belt,
All the westerners, you bet your pelt,
Are going red hot for Roosevelt.

Fall River Manufacturers Think Crisis Will Be Reached

PRESSURE TO OPEN MILLS

Real Test of Their Own Agreement Must Soon Come--Operatives Prepared to Take Action Quickly on Least Cause

Fall River, Mass., Sept. 20.—It is believed in manufacturing circles that the next 10 days will bring a crisis in the strike. Some brokers are predicting that trade will soon pick up and that it will be advisable for the mills to prepare to open before the demand moves prices upward. Some manufacturers say that a reopening of the mills will stop trading, as there is no prospect of a heavy demand for the common run of goods.

These two opinions reflect a feeling that is growing of an early demand for goods from printers and converters, which will result in higher prices, because goods are scarce. On the one hand, there is some feeling of uncertainty as to how great a strain the manufacturers' wage agreement will bear in the face of a better demand for goods, and, on the other hand, manufacturers are wondering how much of a struggle they will have to make with the gates open to induce the operatives to accept the reduction.

The executive committee of the signers to the agreement would much prefer to let matters drift for two weeks, at least, but the pressure to open the mills will grow stronger every day in proportion to the movement in goods, which several market observers say is at hand. The members of the executive committee are getting into closer touch with the manufacturers and every probability of a break is being guarded against.

There is no doubt whatever among them that even if a start is made by individual mills in another week or two, there will be no break in the wage agreement, as no notice has yet been served that it is desired to pull down the notices in 30 days. Without such a notice, or a general meeting of the signers to the agreement, nothing will be done looking towards a change in the determination to get to a lower wage scale.

Manufacturers realize that in the next few days they will have to meet the real test of their own agreement, regardless of how the operatives are feeling. The officials seem confident that no break will come, but there is a feeling of uneasiness among several treasurers which gives the unmistakeable impression that some manufacturers believe the time is at hand to force an open fight and give the operatives a chance again to say what they wish to do.

The leaders of the union are prepared to take action quickly at the least turn of the situation, and they are just as confident today that the operatives will not accept the reduction as they were nine weeks ago. President Golden of the U. T. W. and President Tansey of the Textile council say they are sure the operatives are not prepared to accept the reduction, and by this they mean the non-unionists as well as the others.

"Before Day" Club Threats

Talbotton, Ga., Sept. 20.—It was reported that a club had been formed among several negroes to kill T. A. Kimbrough, living near Poplar. Four negroes and a negress have been arrested and are now in jail, charged with being members of the club. It is reported that the lives of several prominent citizens near Poplar and Max have been threatened by the negroes.

Strikers Returning to Work

Central Falls, R. I., Sept. 20.—All the departments of the United States Cotton company's plant are in operation, some in full, others partly. The greater portion of those returning to work are said to be strikers who went out last July. The officials state that by next week they believe the plant will be in full operation throughout.

Shipwrecked Men Rescued

Ludington, Mich., Sept. 20.—Steamer Pentland, when 17 miles off Big Point Sauble, sighted the barge Pewaumee in a sinking condition and entirely at the mercy of the sea. With much difficulty the crew of 18 men were taken off and the barge towed to Ludington. The men were about to give up the fight when the Pentland hove in sight.

Seizure of a Merchantman

Madrid, Sept. 20.—A dispatch from Bilboa says that a Russian cruiser was seen off Cape St. Maria, and that she fired two shots at and took possession of a merchant vessel, supposed to be a British steamer. There is no confirmation of the report here.

A Raid by Arabs

Salonica, Sept. 20.—Three hundred Arab soldiers pillaged the port of Salonica and the bazaar. Strong patrols are now guarding the streets. Sherik Pacha is surrounded at Prisrend, and Suleiman Pacha with 16 battalions is proceeding to his relief.

Loss of $2,000,000 by Fire

Halifax, Sept. 20.—A fire, thought to be the work of incendiaries, broke out on the water front in the buildings which were burned Thursday. The total loss is estimated at $2,000,000.

GAS SALE IS VALID

Court's Decision In Case Where $11,000,000 Was Involved

Boston, Sept. 20.—Judge Barker, in the supreme court, has entered a decree in the case of the Bay State Gas company of Delaware vs. the Boston Gaslight company and others, which was heard by him.

The decree determines that the sale by the Mercantile Trust company of New York of the stock of the local gas companies to Kidder, Peabody & Co. for $11,000,000 is valid, and it is expressly stated that the court did not determine the right of the Delaware company to an accounting for breaches of trust by H. H. Rogers, Moore, Whitridge and the Mercantile Trust company of New York in respect to the pledging by them, in 1893, of 15,000 shares of the Bay State Gas company of Massachusetts.

The decree also is entered up without prejudice to a pending suit of Receiver Pepper vs. H. H. Rogers.

Murder Clues Vanish

Cambridge, Mass., Sept. 20.—Professor Wood of the Harvard Medical school, to whom was submitted the supposed pieces of "human flesh" found in a sawdust heap in Athol during the investigation of the Burns mystery, destroys another illusion by the announcement that the matter is not human flesh, and contains no animal tissue. More than that, he says that what appeared to be blood on the floor of the Bennett Hill schoolhouse is not blood at all.

Bostonians In Race Riot

Boston, Sept. 20.—Wild excitement reigned about 1 o'clock this morning outside of a South End dance hall, when a race riot broke out at a negro dance, where some white men got into an argument with some young negroes. Fists, razors, screams and hair filled the air for 20 minutes, until the patrol wagon came and carried away a load to a police station.

Looks For Light Sentence

New Haven, Sept. 20.—Douglas M. Smith, formerly paying teller of the National Tradesmen's bank of this city, charged with the embezzlement of $65,000 from the bank, intends to plead guilty to the charge. Judge Platt will be asked to impose the minimum sentence, which is five years' imprisonment. Smith is out on bail of $15,000.

Famous Lpwson Horse Dead

Scituate, Mass., Sept. 20.—Glorious Flying Cloud, Thomas W. Lawson's famous show horse, is dead. The end came suddenly and the veterinary surgeons are unable to state the cause. The stallion, for which Lawson paid $12,000 before the horse was trained, was 9 years old and had a record of never having been beaten at a horse show.

Shipbuilding Plants For $565,00$

Bath, Me., Sept. 20.—The Bath Iron works and the Hyde Windlass works, the local property of the United States Shipbuilding company, were sold at auction by order of a decree entered in the United States court for New Jersey. The property was secured for the reorganization committee. The two plants brought $565,000.

Plenty of Turkeys and Cranberries

Boston, Sept. 20.—The great New England thanksgiving products of turkeys and cranberries are reported as being sufficient to supply the demands. A splendid cranberry crop is being harvested in southeastern Massachusetts and growers are receiving $5 a barrel f. o. b. for their product.

Sentenced on Serious Charge

Lawrence, Mass., Sept. 20.—In the superior civil court Samuel Colomy of Methuen retracted his plea of not guilty and pleaded guilty of felonious assault on three young girls. He was sentenced to from four to seven years in state prison, one day to be in solitary confinement.

An Unknown Dead Man

Boston, Sept. 20.—A man of from 65 to 70 years of age, whose identity the authorities wish to establish, was found dead in the lavatory of the South station. The body was removed to the relief hospital. It is thought the man died from heart disease.

Attorney Wales' Big Bill

Binghamton, N. Y., Sept. 20.—The suit of Attorney Wales of this city against President Mitchell of the United Mine Workers to recover $200,000 for services in connection with the coal strike came before Justice Lyon in the supreme court here. After a lively debate between counsel it was agreed to go to trial on Oct. 3.

Girls Killed Their Father

Houston, Tex, Sept. 20.—Two daughters of S. C. Stuart, a prominent farmer of Falls county, who was found dead in bed with his head almost severed from his body, have confessed to the crime. They are 13 and 16 years old, respectively. They declare their father threatened to exterminate the entire family of four girls.

Waggaman Resigns by Request

Washington, Sept. 20.—Thomas F. Waggaman has resigned his position as treasurer and a member of the board of trustees of the Catholic university in response to a request contained in a letter to Waggaman signed by Cardinal Gibbons, chancellor of the institution. It became effective Sept. 1.

When Big Ditch Will Be Opened

Washington, Sept. 20.—Colonel Harrod, one of the Panama canal commissioners, is of the opinion that the great waterway connecting the Atlantic and Pacific oceans will be completed and thrown open to traffic within five years.

McCarren Says Grout Will Be Nominated For Governor--Pugsley Boom Is On--Tammany Has No Candidate

Saratoga, N. Y., Sept. 20.—All the state leaders here to attend the Democratic convention insist that the nomination for governor is still open, although they admit that good progress has been made towards an adjustment of differences and some express the confident belief that an agreement will be reached among the various contending interests before the convention meets.

There were many conferences last evening. The greatest activity was about the rooms of Hill and Sheehan. There was a constant stream of delegates to Hill's room. Occasionally some leader would be called into the inner room and given more time than the rank and file. In Sheehan's room there were Treasurer Peabody of the national committee and August Belmont and they were joined at times by Charles F. Murphy, the Tammany leader, and Senator McCarren. The Erie county delegation from Sheehan's old home called on him and it is understood gave assurance that they would be glad to support Sheehan's choice for governor.

State Senator McCarren expressed confidence in the success of Comptroller Grout. "It looks to me as if it was all over," said he.

A party leader says that, in his opinion, the contest has narrowed down to Palmer, Shepard and Herrick. He places Palmer first because it is known that Tammany prefers him to any of the men mentioned, although the New York organization stands ready to vote for any person who is indicated as the choice of Judge Parker.

From the time of his arrival the time of Charles F. Murphy was occupied in consultation with his lieutenants and with some of the state leaders. When Murphy was informed that there was considerable talk about Mayor McClellan of New York as a compromise candidate, he said that Tammany had no candidate to present.

The renewal of talk of Mayor McClellan as a possible candidate for governor was one of the interesting features of the developments, and attracted considerable attention, not alone among the Tammany people, but in some of the up state delegations. It is estimated that Murphy's apparent opposition to the McClellan talk is due chiefly to his desire to retain the mayor in his present position, his resignation from which to run for governor would create political complications in greater New York.

Most of the talk of W. Caryl Ely of Buffalo has ceased and it is said that Niagara and Erie counties are for Stanchfield.

Frederick E. Dunn, secretary of the New York Business Men's league, is in charge of the gubernatorial boom of Cornelius A. Pugsley of Peekskill. Mr. Dunn said that Pugsley has 140 delegates pledged and will undoubtedly carry that number into the convention. "About a week and a half ago," said Dunn, "Senator Hill told Pugsley that he was first in favor of Stanchfield, but that he considered Pugsley an admirable compromise candidate. He has also seen Judge Parker and learned that the presidential candidate had no objection to his going before the convention on this basis. In 1900 Pugsley was the only Democrat elected to congress between New York and Buffalo."

Senator McCarren has declared himself unalterably opposed to the nomination of Shepard and announced without qualification that if Shepard was nominated it must be without the aid or consent of Kings county.

Clear Field For Douglas

Boston, Sept. 20.—Charles S. Hamlin of this city, who has been prominently mentioned for the Democratic nomination for governor of Massachusetts this year, has formally announced that he will not be a candidate this year and at the same time pledged his support to William L. Douglas of Brockton. Inasmuch as the Democratic state committee has by a pronounced majority expressed itself in favor of Douglas for the nomination, with Hamlin as second choice, the latter's announcement is interpreted to mean that Douglas will be nominated at the convention next month.

Lodge Assured of Re-election

Boston, Sept. 20.—Senator Lodge has been thus far assured of a re-election to the United States senate by the votes of the Massachusetts legislators notwithstanding the opposition from various sources within his own party. Every representative and senatorial district has been carefully gone over and the result is in his favor. The Democrats count on 0 members of the next house and possibly 15 in the senate and these votes are to be cast for some leading Democrat.

Charged With Wife Murder

Charlottesville, Va., Sept. 20.—The grand jury has returned a true indictment against ex-Mayor McCue of this city for the murder of his wife on Sept. 4 last.

Stern Measures to Suppress Mob Violence In Italy

Rome, Sept. 20.—A meeting of workingmen was held here last night to protest against the intervention of troops. Fully 10,000 persons participated, well known anarchists taking prominent part in the proceedings. The chief speaker was the revolutionary Socialist deputy, Ferri, who delivered a violent address.

The streets in the vicinity of the meeting were occupied by soldiers, including detachments of artillery. An attempt was made by the demonstrators to invade the centre of the town, but the crowds were dispersed by cavalry charges in which about 20 civilians were wounded.

Conflicts in which a number of officers received injuries at the hands of the mobs occurred in Turin and Bologna. The strike has extended to Palermo and Leghorn.

Saw Two Wrecked Schooners

St. John, Sept. 20.—Captain Gale of the schooner Ida May, from Providence, reports that 44 miles north northeast of Cape Cod he saw the disabled schooner Sadie Cora. She was lumber laden, her mast was broken off and floating alongside, attached with gear. No sign of the crew could be seen. About seven miles to the northward another schooner was sighted, bottom up. Captain Gale could not ascertain her name. It appeared as if the schooners had been in collision.

Shadow Hangs Over Throne

Belgrade, Sept. 20.—The city, which is lavishly decorated, is filled with visitors, but there is no great enthusiasm over the approaching coronation of King Peter tomorrow. The weather is cold and rainy and threatens to spoil the festivities, while the meagre harvest tends to give the people the inclination to complain of the waste of money spent on the coronation. The memory of the regicides also casts a shadow over the court.

Must Remain In San Francisco

Washington, Sept. 20.—Admiral Goodrich has telegraphed the navy department that he has forwarded by mail a full report of the agreement he entered into with Captain Berlinsky of the Russian vessel Lena for the parole of the officers and crew of that ship. This provides for their freedom of the city of San Francisco, but they may not go beyond the bounds of the city during the continuance of the present war.

Universal Peace Plan

Washington, Sept. 20.—Delegates to the Inter-Parliamentary union will deliver to President Roosevelt a resolution passed by the union at its meeting in St. Louis asking him to invite the rulers of all other countries to join in a world conference for the establishment of a universal peace arbitration board, to which all disputes between nations will be submitted to avoid future wars.

Washington Broker Goes Under

Washington, Sept. 20.—Richard A. Johnson, a stock broker of this city and son-in-law of Senator Gorman of Maryland, has filed a petition in bankruptcy. He places liabilities at $429,457. The assets consist entirely of debts alleged to be due the petitioner as a partner of the late brokerage firm of Gurley & Johnson.

Carroll Decides Against Miners

Scranton, Pa., Sept. 20.—Decisions adverse to the miners have been rendered by Umpire Carroll D. Wright, in the grievances submitted to the conciliation board by the contract miners of collieries No. 1 and 2 of the Pennsylvania Coal company, Dunmore, and the employes of the Lehigh Valley Coal company.

Perhaps Double Murder and Arson

Macedonia, Pa., Sept. 20.—Mrs. Bigler Johnson and her 10-year-old niece, Annie Benjamin, were burned to death in a supposed incendiary fire which destroyed their home. Leading from the doorstep a trail of blood was found. The authorities suspect that murder has been committed.

General Wilder Has a Bride

Indianapolis, Sept. 20.—Among the first of the Civil war veterans to arrive for the annual reunion of the society of the Army of the Cumberland was General Wilder of Knoxville, who commanded the "Wilder brigade" during the Civil war. He brought his bride of 10 days.

Outrage on Italian Legation

Lugano, Switzerland, Sept. 20.—A meeting here to protest against the labor policy of the Italian ministry developed riotous proceedings. The rioters proceeded to the Italian consulate, from which they tore the Italian coat-of-arms and threw it into the lake.

Why Missionaries Were Slain

Berlin, Sept. 20.—Information has reached here that the recent murder of 10 missionaries in German New Guinea was due to attempts to enforce monogy. The prisons had been filled with polygamists apprehended upon information supplied by the missionaries.

Effort to Apprehend Lynchers

Atlanta, Sept. 20.—Governor Terrell has offered a reward of $250 each for the arrest and conviction of any of the men who took part in the lynching of John Ware, the negro hanged by a mob Sunday afternoon.

OFFICERS NEEDED

Evidence of Heavy Mortality Among Russian Troops

FIGHTING NEAR MUKDEN

Indication of Active Progress of Japanese Flanking Movements --Both Armies Reported In Condition For Severe Battle

London, Sept. 20.—Except for important reconnaissances by Generals Rennenkampff and Samsonoff, there seems to have been little interruption of the quiet that ensued after the hard fighting around Liaoyang more than a fortnight ago. Indicative of the mortality among Russian officers at the front is the report from St. Petersburg that about one-seventh of the officers in the regiments of guards stationed at the capital are to be drafted for service with regiments at the scene of war. The Japanese are reported to be advancing slowly upon the positions held by the Russians in a line extending about 27 miles.

General Kuropatkin's report that reconnoissances by the Cossack divisions have led to heavy fighting with large casualties points to active progress of the Japanese flanking movements east of Mukden. Previous reports, both Russian and Japanese, have said that Kuropatkin's cavalry was scouring the country east and southeast of the city, evidently with the object of discovering and, if possible, checking any repetition of Kuroki's strategy at Liaoyang.

The Japanese armies are said to hold the same relative positions now as at Liaoyang. This brings Oku on the west, perhaps working north in the Liao valley; Nodzu in the centre, probably in the region of Yentai; and Kuroki on the east, where he is said to be working round to get at the Russian left flank.

Both armies are now reported fit for active service, and the Russians are inclined to make a stand at Mukden. No attack by the Japanese centre is to be expected until the flanking movements are well advanced, unless a centre attack is necessary to keep Kuropatkin from detaching a large force from his own centre to strike Kuroki.

It may well be that the Japanese eastern army will be relatively stronger than at Liaoyang. While it may itself be flanked and cut off from its communications, it can retreat if necessary into a mountainous region of which it has partial control. With Kuropatkin especially on his guard against this attack, the Japanese right needs to be so strong that in a pinch it can cut loose for a blow at the Russian line of retreat, trusting in the Japanese centre and left to prevent the dispatch of a sufficient Russian force to check Kuroki.

While such a plan might involve great possibilities of disaster in the event of Japanese defeat, it remains true that the Japanese lines of retreat are numerous and easily defensible, so that the army would probably suffer more from scattering than from captures if Kuroki were cut off.

It is tolerably plain that Kuroki's flank movement must be stronger than at Liaoyang if it is to succeed. The fact that a defense to his attack at Liaoyang was made possible by the stubborn resistance of the Russian centre about the town shows how the southern and eastern attacks must be balanced by both sides. If Oku shall succeed in a flank movement, such as he was unable to effect at Liaoyang, the outcome of the next battle may be different.

Order Worries Officers

St. Petersburg, Sept. 20.—There is a story afloat that a sudden call has been issued to officers of the guard regiments stationed at St. Petersburg to report for service at the front. According to reports the order directs that eight out of a total of 56 officers of each regiment should be chosen by lot and drafted to serve with regiments now in the far east. It is stated that the order has aroused great discontent. Whole regiments are anxious to go to the theatre of war, but the officers intensely dislike the prospect of the organizations being split up. It is impossible at this time to obtain an authoritative confirmation or denial of the report.

Right to Sink Knight Commander

London, Sept. 20.—Russia's reply to the British protest on the subject of Russia's interpretation of contraband of war includes a decision in respect to the British demand in the case of the British steamer Knight Commander. It is understood that Russia upholds the principle that Admiral Jensen was justified in sinking the steamer. The British government is still hopeful of a settlement by means of an indemnity.

Japs Still Hold the Fort

London, Sept. 20.—A dispatch from Tokio says: A strong Russian force made a sortie from Port Arthur on Sunday and attacked the Itczshan fort, which was recently captured by the Japanese. The fighting lasted some hours and the Russians eventually were repulsed, with heavy loss.

A PROSPEROUS SEASON

New England Baseball League Carried Out Full Schedule

Boston, Sept. 20.—With the game between Fall River and New Bedford at the latter city yesterday, one of the most prosperous seasons in the history of the New England Baseball league came to a close. In each of the eight cities where the league is represented by a baseball club interest in the game has been sustained from the beginning to the end of the season, and for the first time in many seasons the schedule was completed.

The Nashua team led the league early in the season, winning a long string of victories, but were finally passed by Haverhill and New Bedford, the former team closing the season at the head of the league. The team played 122 games, winning 79 and losing 43, having a percentage of .648. New Bedford earned second place with a percentage of .533, having won 65 out of 122 games. Nashua and Fall River were tied for third place, while the other teams finished the season in the following order: Manchester, Concord, Lowell and Lawrence.

Widow Slain by a Son

Bristol, Va., Sept. 20.—Mrs. Minerva Greear, a widow 50 years of age, has been shot to death by one of her sons at her home in Scott county. Each of her two sons declare that the other fired the shot which ended the woman's life. It is said the boys were drinking in a room adjoining that occupied by their mother, firing their pistols, when she entered and asked them to stop. One turned his pistol on his mother and sent a bullet into her heart, causing death instantly.

Taken From Sheriff and Lynched

Royston, Ga., Sept. 20.—John Ware, a negro, who fatally shot C. Y. Daniel, was captured, and while being hurried to Carnsville by the sheriff was overtaken by a mob. He was taken from the officers, seated on a horse, a noose fitted about his neck and the end tied to a limb. The horse was then struck a blow and dashed away, leaving the negro swinging to the limb. The swaying body was riddled with bullets.

Contractor Is Missing

Rochester, Sept. 20.—A large posse is searching for A. R. Gates, a contractor, whose home is in Baldwinsville, who disappeared Sunday night. Gates carried a large sum of money which was to have been used to pay off his men and the authorities are working on the theory that he was waylaid and robbed. A large posse of men is searching for his body.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

A HAPPY EVENT.

Informal Observance of a Sixtieth Wedding Anniversary.

Many kind friends made the sixtieth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Sherman of Greenleaf street bright and cheerful by their congratulatory calls on Monday.

The affair was entirely informal, but will be held in grateful remembrance by both Mr. and Mrs. Sherman as long as they live. They wish to express their thankfulness to all who helped to make the occasion so pleasant and for the many gifts and beautiful flowers. Their fragrance will vanish but the memory will linger long.

About fifty called and there were many congratulatory letters received from friends and relatives at a distance, who were not able to be present.

Miss Alice Claflin wrote a most acceptable poem for the occasion entitled, "After a Wedded Life of Sixty Years," which is reprinted:

Manifold years, that were builded and wrought
With action uplifting and generous thought,
With patience unending, endurance and care,
Manifold years—they have builded thee fair.

Thy builders were two, but they labored as one,
To make thee endure when their work was done,
He, gave to thy work the strength of his heart,
With the truth of his nature he builded his part.
He fashioned thee upright, his faith was thy stay,
And he made thee to stand in Justice's Highway.

She, flooded thy window with charity's light,
Till each portal and casement was radiant quite,
With patience and courage she sculptored thy hall,
With loyal devotion she fashioned it all!

Oh! manifold years that thy builders have wrought,
Thou art a temple that time shall touch not!
As the work of thy builders, among life's creations,
Thou shalt endure through all generations!

The oldest grand-daughter at Providence contributed a painting which included the dates 1844 and 1904, and also an emblem.

Rev. E. N. Hardy of Bethany Congregational church was among the guests, and offered to marry Mr. and Mrs. Sherman over, if the knot had slipped any. Although tied in one minute sixty years ago, there was no indications that a second ceremony was necessary.

KNIGHTS TEMPLAR.

Another Party of Excursionists in Serious Railroad Accident.

Miss C. L. Bliss of this city, who accompanied the Rhode Island Knights Templar on their pilgrimage to California, was probably in a serious railroad accident on the Union Pacific railroad in Kansas, Monday afternoon. A dispatch to the Herald, says nearly all the party were injured, but her name is not in the list of those injured. Some will prove fatal.

The wreck occurred six miles west of Junction City, Kansas, and was due to the track spreading under the Pullman section of the train. The train was an hour late, and was going at high speed when the accident occurred.

The third Pullman car from the end of the train was the first to leave the track. It belonged to the regular train and the two Pullman's at the end of the train were extras occupied by St. John commandery 1, K. T., and Cavalry commandery 13, both of Providence, R. I.

The rear Pullman was the only one to go over the embankment, which is 15 feet high. It turned over three times, and finally stopped at the edge of the river. The passengers in this car, numbering 32, were nearly all injured. The injured were brought to Junction City, where they are being cared for at a hotel.

The party was due home on Saturday of this week.

Mrs. Craigie laughs at the report tdat she is writing three novels at once. Nevertheless she allows that she is accustomed to keep several themes in mind, just as painters have various portraits and subject pictures in their studios. Each of her novels represents at least three years of study and consideration, and she is never preoccupied with a single subject to the exclusion of other work. So perhaps the report is not so laughable, after all.—Herald.

CHAPTER II—(Continued).

And she kept on jabbering with that slow murmur of sweetness, and I stood looking down at her, catching my breath with the pain in my shoulder, though it was out of my thoughts with this new love of her, and then came my father, Colonel John Chelmsford, and Captain Geoffry Cavendish, walking through the park in deep converse, and came upon us, and stopped and stared, as well they might.

Captain Geoffry Cavendish was a gaunt man with the hectic color of a fever, which he had caught in the new country, still in the hollows of his cheeks. He was quite young, with sudden alertness of glances in bright black eyes like the new color in jewels when the light shifts. His daughter has the same, though her eyes are blue. Moreover, through having been in the royal navy before he got a wound which incapacitated him from further service, and was indeed in time the cause of his death, he had acquired a swift suppleness of silent movement, which his daughter has inherited also.

The baby that caused the accident

When he came upon us he stared for but one second, then came that black flash into his eyes, and out curved an arm, and the little maid was on her father's shoulder, and he was questioning me with something of mistrust. I was a gentleman born and bred, but my clothes sat but roughly and indifferently on me, partly through lack of oversight and partly from that rude tumble I had gotten. Indeed, my breeches and my coat were something torn by it.

Then, too, I had doubtless a look of ghastliness and astonishment that might well have awaked suspicion, and Captain Geoffry Cavendish had never spoken with me in the short time since his return. "Who may you be?" he asked, and his voice hesitated between hostility and friendliness, and my stepfather answered for me with a slight forward thrust of his shoulders which might have indicated shame, or impatience, or both. "'Tis Master Harry Maria Wingfield," answered he; then in the same breath, "How came you here, sir?"

I answered, seeing no reason why I should not, though I felt my voice shake, being still unsteady with the pain, and told the truth, that I had come thither to see if perchance I could get a glimpse of some of the black folk. At that Captain Cavendish laughed good humoredly, being used to the excitement his black troop caused and amused at it, and called out merrily that I was about to be gratified, and indeed at that moment came running, with fat lunges, as it were, of tremulous speed, a great black woman in pursuit of the little maid and heaved her high to her dark wave of bosom with hoarse chuckles and coolngs of love and delight and white rollings of terrified eyes at her master if perchance he might be wroth at her carelessness.

He only laughed and brushed his dark beard against the tender roses of the little maid as he gave her up, but my stepfather, who, though not ill natured, often conceived the necessity of ill nature, was not so easily satisfied. He stood looking sternly at my white face and my weak yielding of body at the bend of the knees, and suddenly he caught me heavily by my bruised shoulder. "What means all this, sirrah?" he cried out, but then I sank away before him, for the pain was greater than I could bear.

When I came to myself my waistcoat was off, and both men looking at my shoulder, which the horse's hoof must have barely grazed, though no more, or I should have been in a worse plight. Still the shoulder was a sorry sight enough, and the great black woman with the little fair baby in her arms stood aloof looking at it with ready tears, and the baby herself made round eyes like stars, though she knew not half what it meant. I felt the hot red of shame go over me at my weakness at a little pain, after the first shock was over, and I presumably steeled to bear it like a man, and I struggled to my feet, pulling my waistcoat together and looking, I will venture, much like a sulky and ill conditioned lad.

"What means that hurt on your shoulder, Harry?" asked my stepfather, Colonel John Chelmsford, and his voice was kind enough then. "I would not have laid such a heavy hand on thy shoulder had I known of it," he added. My stepfather had never aught against me that I wot of, having simply naught for me, and a man cannot in justice be held to account for the limitations of his affections, especially toward a rival's son. He spoke with all kindness, and his great ruddy face had a heavy gleam of pity for my hurt, but I answered not one word. "How came it so, Harry?" he asked again, with growing wonder at my silence, but I would not reply.

Then Captain Cavendish addressed me. "You need have no fear, however you came by the hurt, my lad," he said, and I verily believe he thought I had somehow caught the hurt while poaching on his preserves. I stood before them quite still, with my knees stiff enough now, and I think the color came back in my face by reason of the resistance of my spirit.

"Harry, how got you that wound on your shoulder? Answer me, sir," said Colonel Chelmsford, his voice gathering wrath anew. But I remained silent.

Then my stepfather's face blazed high and his mouth straightened and widened and his grasp tightened on a riding whip which he carried, for he had left his horse grazing a few yards away. "How came you by it, sir?" he demanded, and his voice was thick. Then, when I would not reply, he raised the whip and swung it over my shoulders, but I caught it with my sound arm ere it fell and at the same time the little maid, Mary Cavendish, set up a piteous wail of fear in her nurse's arms.

"I pray you, sir, do not frighten her," I said, "but wait till she be gone." And then I waved the black woman to carry her away, and with my lame arm. When she had fled with the child's soft wail floating back I turned to my stepfather, Colonel John Chelmsford, and he, holding fiercely to the whip which I relinquished, still eyed me with doubt.

"Harry, why will you not tell?" he said, but I shook my head, waiting for him to strike me, for I was but a boy, and it had been so before, and perhaps more justly.

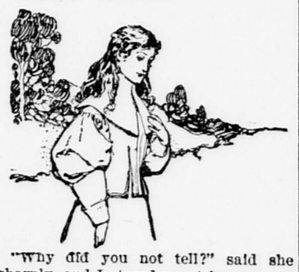

"Let the lad go, Chelmsford," cried Captain Cavendish. "I'll warrant he has done no harm." But my stepfather would not heed him.

"Answer me, Harry," said he. Then, when I would not, down came the riding whip, but only thrice and not hard. "Now go you home," said my stepfather, "and show your mother the hurt, however you came by it, and have her put some of the cooling lotion on a linen cloth to it." Then he and Captain Cavendish went their ways, and I went toward home, creeping through the gap in the May hedge. But I did not go far, having no mind to show my hurt, though I knew well that my mother, being a woman and soft toward all wounds, would make much of it and maybe of me on its account.

But I was not of a mind to purchase affection by complaints of bodily ills, so I lay down under the hedge in the soft grass, keeping my bruised shoulder uppermost, and remained there thinking of the little maid, till finally, the pain easing somewhat, I fell asleep and was presently awakened by a soft touch on my sore shoulder which caused me to wince and start up with wide eyes, and there was Catherine Cavendish.

Catherine Cavendish I had seen afar, though not to speak with her, and she being a year my senior and not then a beauty, and I being, moreover, of an age to look at a girl and look away again to my own affairs, I had thought no more of her, but I knew her at once. She was, as I said before, not a beauty at that time, being one of those maids which, like some flowers, are slow of bloom. She had grown so fast and far that she had outspeeded her grace.

Catherine Cavendish

"Why did you not tell?" said she sharply, and I stared up at her speechless, for I saw that she knew.

"Why did you not tell, and why were you whipped for it?" she demanded again. Then, when I did not answer: "I saw it all. I hid behind a tree for fear of the stallion. The child would have been killed but for you. Why were you whipped for a thing like that?" Then all at once, before I could answer had I been minded to do so, she burst out almost with violence, with a brilliant red surging up from the cords of her thin neck, over her whole face: "Never mind, I like you for it. I would not have told. I will never tell as long as I live, and I have brought some lotion of cream and healing herbs and a linen cloth, and I will bind up your shoulder for you."

With that, down she was on her knees, though I strove half rudely to prevent her, and was binding up my shoulder with a wonderful deftness of her long fingers.

I thanked her, or tried to thank her, I dare say, in such surly fashion that it was like a rebuff. Then I was off, but I felt her standing there close to the white blooming hedge, staring at me with that inscrutable look of an immature girl who questions doubly all she sees, beginning with herself.

Master's Notice of Sale

The Quincy Granite Quarries Co.

NOTICE is hereby given that pursuant to the decree of sale made and entered by the Circuit Court of the United States for the District of Massachusetts on the 13th day of September, 1904, in a certain cause in equity pending in said Court, entitled, "American Loan and Trust Company, Complainant vs. The Quincy Granite Quarries Company, Defendant, and John K. Hayward et. al., Complainants vs. The Quincy Granite Quarries Company, Defendant, Consolidated Causes," I, Walter B. Farr, Special Master, will sell at public auction to the highest bidder or bidders, upon the first parcel of land hereinafter described called the "Field Lot," situated in that part of Quincy, Massachusetts, known as West Quincy and near the Lyons Quarry, so called, on WEDNESDAY, the nineteenth day of October, 1904, at 10.30 A. M., all the real estate and personal property of every nature and description of The Quincy Granite Quarries Company not heretofore sold under the decree of foreclosure and sale entered in said Circuit Court in said cause in equity upon the twenty-sixth day of February, 1904, said real estate being particularly described in said decree as follows:

"All that certain parcel of land, situated in said Quincy, containing four and 69-100 acres, and bounded:—Northwesterly by land now or formerly of Fenno; and on all other sides by land of the Quincy Quarry Company, Excepting and reserving therefrom all that certain parcel of land, called the "Robbins Lot" situated in said Quincy and bounded and described as follows:—Beginning at a point on the line between Milton and Quincy on land now or late of Fenno near land now or formerly of heirs of one Root; thence running Northeasterly by the Town Line and bounding on said Fenno land to land of Glover (now or formerly) thence turning and running Southeasterly on said Glover land to land of Bowman; thence turning and running Southwesterly on land of said Bowman and land of Churchill to land of John M. Forbes; thence turning and running Northwesterly on said Forbes' land to the point of beginning, or however otherwise bounded or described.

Being a portion of the premises conveyed to the Quincy Quarry Company by Charles Breck, by deed dated June 30, 1893, recorded with Norfolk Deeds, Lib. 698, Fol. 3.

Also a certain other parcel of land situated in the Westerly part of said Quincy, containing two acres, more or less, bounded and described as follows:—Northerly on land now or late of Swithin; Easterly on land now or late of Swithin; Southerly on land formerly of James Graham; and Westerly on land now or late of Swithin.

Being the same premises conveyed to the Quincy Quarry Company by A. Milne, by deed dated June 26, 1893, recorded with Norfolk Deeds, Lib. 701, Fol. 70.

Also a right of way conveyed by deed recorded Norfolk Deeds, Lib. 735, Fol. 9. Beginning Southerly boundary of line formerly of Hall running Northwesterly and along centre line of grantee's railroad location as shown by red line on plan of land and railway of Quincy Quarry Co., about 640 feet to Prout Bros. Granite Co. Also second right of way 30 feet wide beginnig Southerly boundary of Hall, thence Northwesterly 625 feet to Prout Bros. Granite Co. Said second parcel being the spur track running to quarry of F. Wesley Fuller.

Also all other rights of way or other easements owned by said Quincy Granite Quarries Company in connection with lands owned by it for quarrying purposes."

And also all the right, title and interest of the Quincy Granite Quarries Company in and to a a certain parcel of land situated in said Quincy and bounded and described as follows, towit: Northerly by land of the town of Milton; Northeasterly by land formerly of Cunningham; easterly by land belonging to the White estate by a curved line; Southeasterly by land of Prout Bros. fifty-two and eighty-four one hundredths (52.84) feet; Southerly by said land of Prout Bros. four hundred and six and eight tenths (406.8) feet; and Westerly by land of the Quincy Quarry Company. Being the same premises conveyed to the Quincy Granite Quarries Company by Frederick J. Fuller by his deed dated October 25, 1899, recorded with Norfolk Deeds, Lib. 920, Fol. 498; it being understood that said parcel of land is included within the general description of the property to be sold contained in said decree to wit: "all of the property of said defendant (not heretofore disposed of under said foreclosure bill) both real and personal, titles, interests, franchises, choses in action, rights of way, easements, wherever situated," and without intending in any way to limit or restrict the generality of said description.

Said personal property consists of certain machinery, tools, derricks, quarrying apparatus, bills and accounts receivable and other choses in action more particularly described in the receivers' inventory filed in said cause.

Said real estate and personal property will be sold as one lot and without division. Such sale will be made, however, subject to any unpaid taxes, sewer assessments and all other liens imposed by law.

The Special Master is authorized to adjourn the sale from day to day or week to week and without further advertisement or notice to proceed with such sale on any day to which the sale may have been thus adjourned.

The Special Master will receive no bid for the property unless at or before the time of making the bid the bidder deposits the sum of one thousand ($1,000) dollars in cash or certified check satisfactory to him, as a pledge that such bidder will make good his bid and complete his purchase if upon being reported to the Court the same is accepted and confirmed.

The Court expressly reserves the right to reject any bid and also to retake possession of and resell such premises and property upon the failure of any purchaser for twenty days to comply with any order of the Court requiring any payment on account of the purchase price.

If any bid shall be accepted by the Court and the purchaser or purchasers shall fail to comply with the terms of the bid or with any orders of the Court relating to the consumation of the purchase, then the sums paid in by such purchaser or purchasers shall be forfeited as a penalty for such non-compliance.

Upon confirmation of the sale and upon a payment of the purchase price bid by the purchaser the Special Master will make, execute and deliver to the purchaser or purchasers or his or their assigns a deed or deeds of the real property sold and proper assignments of the personal property sold and upon confirmation of such sale and full compliance with the terms of sale by the purchaser or purchasers he or they or his or their assigns shall be entitled to proper deeds of further assurance to be executed and delivered according to law by the Quincy Granite Quarries Co.

For further particulars and for a more specific description of the property ordered to be sold reference is made to the above-mentioned decree of said Court.

Dated September 17th, 1904.

What It Costs
... AND ...
What It Pays

are two values of newspaper advertising that the merchant has to consider. But the most important thing is

WHAT IT PAYS.

The merchant can get space in papers of small circulation and little influence for a little less money than he same size space would cost in the DAILY LEDGER and the QUINCY PATRIOT.

DOES IT PAY

to throw away the certainty of the profitable returns which are sure to LEDGER and PATRIOT advertisers, because it costs less to advertise in a cheaper paper?

JOINT CAUCUSES

Will Not Have a Good Test in Quincy.

Very Few Contests on Hand.

Many Do Not Fully Understand the Law.

All voters attend one caucus this year, to be held Tuesday, Sept. 27. As at a party caucus, they can take part in the nomination of the candidates of only one party. That is, Republicans will call for a Republican ballot, Democrats for a Democratic ballot, and Socialists for a Socialist ballot. It is not an election, but simply a caucus, and it is no concern of a Republican, who the Democrats or the Socialists nominate or vice versa.

The polls will be open for nine hours, from 12 M. until 9 P. M., and the caucus officers will at this caucus be the regular appointed election officers of the city for precinct one in each ward. Their appointments by the Mayor have already been confirmed by the City Council.

The joint caucus will be an experiment, but it will hardly have a good trial in Quincy next week as there are very few contests; none at all for delegates, and but little for Congressmen and Representatives.

Many do not seem to understand the workings of the caucus act and probably they don't want to.

Homeward Bound.

Friends of Miss C. L. Bliss have not heard whether she escaped injury in the railroad disaster in the west on Monday. A Kansas dispatch to a Boston paper says: The Knights Templar party left at noon Tuesday for Providence. There are 59 persons in the party.

Most of the injured passed a restless night. All the physicians and surgeons from Fort Riley spent most of the night dressing the wounds of the injured.

All the members of the party were able to resume their journey east, although a number of the most seriously injured had to be carried to the cars.

With the party there are six physicians who will care for the injured on their way home.

Daughters of the Revolution.

October will bring forward general activity in the Massachusetts State Society, Daughters of the Revolution, of which Mrs. Adeline F. Fitz, wife of Judge Fitz of Chelsea, is State regent. The society is planning some interesting work for the coming season, the first meeting of which will be held at the Vendome on Oct. 5, when "The Customs and Fashions of Old New England" will be discussed. Following the custom of other years, Mrs. Fitz announces that on Oct. 19, the anniversary of the surrender of Lord Cornwallis at Yorktown, a pilgrimage to some historic spot will be made.

At the regular "at home" days during the past summer many distinguished guests from all parts of the country were entertained at the headquarters of the society in the Colonial Building in Boylston street, where the society's cosy and artistic rooms contain many rare antiques that have been loaned by the members. The "at home" days from October to June are to come on the first Friday of each month. The State regent usually attends and the various chapters throughout the State extend in turn the hospitalities to members and guests from three to five in the afternoon.—Boston Transcript.

Lost Children.

The lost child signal was given on the fire alarm at 6.50 Tuesday evening because of the absence of two children on Sumner street, about 4 years of age who were thought to have roamed off together. Their names were Snow and Marr, and they were soon found.

Officer Crooker also found a stray four-year-old in City Square shortly after 10 A. M. Tuesday. About 2 P. M. he was identified as Charles Wilbur of Wollaston, whose friends were searching for him.

William H. Puffer of Milton was one of the 66 candidates to take the 33d degree of Masonry at the annual meeting of the Supreme council, A. A. S. R., in Boston on Tuesday.

MEMBERS WANTED.

If Quincy Desires a Progressive Historical Society.

Editors of the Ledger:

In reply to John Smith's query as to what has become of the Quincy Historical society and why the John Quincy Adams birthplace was not open to the public, I think what is needed is for all good citizens to become members of the Quincy Historical society; pay membership fees regularly each and every year and interest themselves in all good work. Then plenty of money would be in the treasury to pay expenses. Caretakers that are responsible require pay for their services.

A lament was in the Ledger a few weeks since saying it was sad that for so many years visitors to Quincy could only see the outside of the birthplaces of Presidents John and John Quincy Adams. I will try and put their minds at rest on that subject. Previous to 1842 many visitors were entertained with a view of the interior of the Adams houses. From 1842 to 1868 I was a member of one family that received with pleasure a large number of distinguished visitors each and every year.

No record was kept to my sorrow but my memory serves me well. There was Governor Briggs with Hon. Charles Francis Adams, he who was afterward our minister to England in the most perilous times of our country and people from Washington, D. C., direct from conversation with the eloquent John Quincy Adams. One visitor, President Tyler's cousin, measured the window glass and joists of oak to be sure his account was correct. In 1848 the Congressional Committee which attended the burial services of our distinguished president, John Quincy Adams, came to his birthplace, anxious to visit the room he was born in. The family were all at the services and only faithful Dennis Sheehan was in charge but he told them to go into all the rooms and be sure they would get the right one. More can be said but this will suffice. Caroline Adams Spear.

As the result of a bright and happy thought on the part of one of their number, Paul Nixon of Braintree, says the Globe, a majority of the brainy young men who have won the coveted Cecil J. Rhodes scholarships at Oxford will sail from Boston on the Cunard line steamship Ivernia, Tuesday, Sept. 27, at 11 a. m.

There will be 35 in the party, representing all sections of the United States, and a special reservation of 20 staterooms has been set aside for their use on the promenade deck of the steamer.

Francis H. Forbes of Lexington represents Massachusetts, Paul Nixon of Braintree represents Connecticut; Julius A. Brown of New York will represent New Hampshire; David R. Porter, Maine; Walter A. Dane, Vermont; R. H. Bevan, Rhode Island; etc.

Almost all these young men have done something in athletics, representing their colleges on the diamond, gridiron or track, in addition to proving mentally capable and possessing the powers of leadership and the moral character specified by Mr. Rhodes as essential to election.

After conceiving his bright idea Mr. Nixon lost no time in putting it into execution. Early in the summer he wrote the Oxford agent of the Rhodes trustees asking him for a list of the names and addresses of the American winners of scholarships, and this was shortly forthcoming.

The young Braintree man then wrote a letter to each of his associates, suggesting that it would be very nice if they could all go together as a sort of family party from Boston to Liverpool. The idea struck the others so favorable that eventually 35 of the 43 signified their willingness to sail from here, and nearly all of them have been already booked by the Cunard company.

The young men who have won these scholarships, which have a yearly value of $1500, have passed one of the most rigid examinations ever given candidates for such honors. The examinations were held throughout the United States in April, and for every one of the winners there were many more who failed to pass the tests.

In each state the examinations were conducted by a board of the most representative educators to be found, the presidents of the leading colleges, as a rule, serving as chairmen. The first examination in Massachusetts was held April 13, ten candidates competing.

The scholarships are derived from an endowment fund of $10,000,000 left by Cecil Rhodes, the famous South African multimillionaire, who died at Cape Town, March 26, 1902, leaving a fortune of about $30,000,000.

By the terms of his will the $10,000,000 is set aside for the foundation of 60 Oxford university scholarships for England and the British colonies, and nearly 100 scholarships for the United States, or two for each state and territory in the union. Fifteen scholarships for students in Germany were also provided for.

The desire of Mr. Rhodes to bring about a closer relationship between the English-speaking people is supposed to underly his action in founding the American scholarships.

Paul Nixon, the enterprising Braintree prize-winner, who is to be regarded as the leader of the party, was selected as one of the Connecticut representatives, he having been a student at Wesleyan university, Middletown, Conn., at the time he decided to enter the lists.

He was born in Des Moines, Ia., 22 years ago, and is the son of W. G. and Mrs. Helen A. Nixon, the latter being a daughter of Bishop Andrews of New York.

The Nixons removed to Braintree about 12 years ago, after living for a time in Boston, and live in a cozy, old-fashioned mansion on Middle street.

Paul Nixon's education has been received in the public schools of Boston and Braintree, at Thayer academy and Wesleyan university. From the latter he received the degree of A.M. in June.

During his course at Wesleyan university he won five prizes, was a member of all class and secret societies and was on the varsity and track teams. He gratuated in three years with high honors and special honor in Latin. His fourth year was spent on work for the degree of M.A.

He will probably take for his special study at Oxford comparative literature as based on the classics. Several of his associates, so they have informed him, have decided to take up political economy, as related to the government of city.

Young Nixon expects to return home each summer during his three years' course abroad, and in the interval between terms he will also do considerable traveling through Europe. This will be his first trip abroad and, naturally, he is looking forward to the experience with pleasurable anticipation.

GIRL KILLED

While on Her Way to Work This Morning

On Railroad Near the Laundry.

Had Been Warned of the Danger She Run.

A fatal accident occurred at 7 o'clock this morning on the N. Y. N. H. & H. R. R. about half way between School street and Granite street, the unfortunate victim being Mrs. Christine Osterline, who for a year and a half has been employed at the Old Colony laundry in the rear of the Tirrell block.

The woman had rooms on Franklin street, and took breakfast and supper at the old Daniel Baxter house on School street. She was on the railroad on her way from breakfast to work and had crossed the bridge over Town brook.

In stepping from the outward or westerly track to get out of the way of the outward express, which passes this point at 6.59, she was struck by the locomotive of an inward construction train, and thrown about 40 feet.

The engineer of the inward train did not see her, but the rear brakeman did. Death must have been instantaneous, but the body was not badly mutilated. The base of the skull was fractured and there were a few scratches.

Her dinner basket and a bundle of laundry were found near the spot.

The body was viewed by Dr. F. E. Jones, the medical examiner, and removed to the rooms of Undertaker Hall.

It said that on more than one occasion engineers have blown their whistles to warn the woman, and she had been warned by others of the danger she ran, but she did not realize it.

She was about 23 years of age, and a Norwegian by birth. She did not live with her husband.

O'CONNELL RALLY.

McNary's Rival Speaks at Hancock Hall on the Issues.

About 200 gathered at the Democratic rally at Hancock hall last evening, when Joseph F. O'Connell, an aspirant for Congress in this district, addressed the voters.

He was introduced by Cornelius D. Austin, the secretary of the Democratic City Committee, who spoke briefly. Mr. O'Connell said in part:

"Mr. McNary has been so much occupied in playing politics in Boston that he has had no time to look after the interests of the district.

"He cannot represent the district, because everyone admits that Mr. McNary will do everything he can which will benefit himself. His time has been so much taken up that he has forgotten the district and neglected Quincy. He felt so sure that he would be renominated that he satisfied himself by going to Washington, arranging a few details with his secretary and hurrying back to Boston to dive into the mazes of ward politics.

"The fact should be borne in mind that Mr. McNary insists on remaining chairman of the state committee.

"This weakens him as a faithful representative for two reasons: First, because he must give a large portion of his time, if not the greater part of it, to the machinery of the party itself; and second, and the most important to you, that a democratic congressman in Washington, who is also chairman of the democratic state committee with the republican party in power, cannot expect the same consideration that another man who was not chairman would receive, because the national republican party are naturally trying to prevent the democratic party from achieving any success in this state, and the man whom they will oppose most strongly is the head of the party in the state."

Mr. O'Connell attacked the methods of Congressman McNary, and his connection with the South bay flats in Boston.

The speaker also told why he should be the candidate.

Mr. Davis, the Democraiic Vice Presidential candidate, says that if the United States expends $121,000,000 annually for war, it ought to spend more than $5,000,000 for agriculture. Well, it does. Look at all the agricultural colleges and stations scattered over the land, largely supported by public funds, established for the purpose of teaching the art of agriculture. Look at the bounties that have been paid to promote the cultivation of the sugar beet. Look at the vast sums of money spent for printing the Agricultural Year Book, and the so-called "Horse Book." Look at the forest reserves and the Arrigation enterprises in which the Government is interested.

Drift of Opinion.

☞The most interesting thing at the world's fair is the Philippine exhibit. A day's study of this exhibition is almost equal to a brief visit to the islands. One is impressed, first of all, with the fact that the Filipinos, educated and savage, are a very bright, precocious people. They are also peculiarly imitative, resembling the Japanese in this respect, as in many others. Give the Filipinos fifty years of stable government, education and a fair chance and you are likely to have another Japan—Beverly Times.

☞It is difficult for statute to keep up with science. No provision is made in the tariff schedules for radium, and it bothers the treasury experts. As a precious metal or a crude mineral, it would come in free; as a "crude metallic mineral substance" it would pay 20 per cent. ad valorem; as a chemical, it would pay 25 per cent. As a matter of fact it partakes of the characteristics of all these, but which it is most like is yet undecided. However radium in large quantities is not likely to be imported just yet; else with the stuff at $800,000 a pound, the question might be even more bothersome.—New Bedford Standard.

☞The conclusion of the smart series of papers on advertising which has been running in the Atlantic Monthly, in the September number, amounts to this—that notwithstanding its great and essential services, advertising mainly demonstrates Barnum's dictum that the American people like to be humbugged. Yet there is not the least difficulty in differencing the adviser of value and the catch-penny, provided the reader have a proper wit. It is the ignorant person who accepts a barn advertisement in five-foot letters as warrant for Dr. Humbug's medicine. Ignorance is the chief error of all mankind.—Springfield Republican.

Textile Strikers May Ask Gompers to Visit Fall River

MAY WIN THEIR CONTEST

Placing of Large Order For Raw Cotton by Leading Manufacturers Looked Upon as a Factor In Favor of Operatives

Fall River, Mass., Sept. 21.—The strike leaders say that if the talk about starting Oct. 3 is kept up, they will call the unions together and pass votes similar to that passed by the weavers last week, the purport of which was not to return, but to hold a mass meeting Oct. 3. Another possibility is the advent of Samuel Gompers, who is being appealed to on the ground that the present strike means the life or death of textile union affiliation with the American Federation of Labor.

Should Gompers be induced to come here and address the strikers it would interject an element of agitation which has been kept out so far. Some of the union leaders have felt that if a man like Gompers were brought here and an appeal for funds were made, it would be many weeks afterward before the enthusiasm would die out. Should Gompers come here on the day the mills open the chances of success for the mill men would not be good.

Some manufacturers realize this danger and one of them has said: "We are sitting on a powder magazine and we should not be the ones to touch it off by trying to start until the operatives show that they are ready."

Others minimize the possibility of trouble. President Golden of the U. T. W. is taking active steps this week to interest members of the executive committee of the A. F. of L. to send Gompers here, or some other man well known to organized labor throughout the country. He feels that a statement coming from such a one will carry more weight than anything which might be said by local leaders. There is a growing feeling, too, among manufacturers, that there is some danger in delaying the start too long.

If the market begins to revive and a start is made the leaders can appeal to the strikers to hold out for a time in the hope that the notices will be taken down. If some of the mills can run in full their managers will not stop them to aid other mills not so fortunate, and it is possible that the whole plan of wage reduction may be thus endangered.

The placing of a large order for raw cotton to be delivered at the mills of a well known cotton manufacturer here not later than the last of October and the fact that several of the manufacturers have been trying to place orders for the raw material became known last evening. These facts are taken by many to indicate that an early settlement of the great textile strike is in sight.

Inasmuch as it generally requires four weeks for raw cotton to be delivered after the orders have been placed, it is now believed that another month will see a resumption of work in the mills that are now closed on account of the strike.

Should there be an early settlement of the strike it is believed that the operatives will win their contest. The cotton market is stronger, the stock of manufactured goods is low, there is a continuous demand for textiles and the finished stock will command better prices, thus enabling the manufacturers to operate their factories without reducing the wages of the employes.

The strikers still express their determination not to return to work under the wage reduction of 12½ percent, which was the cause of the strike. The leaders of the strikers say that the only condition under which the operatives will return to work is the tearing down of the notices of the wage reduction which were posted in all the mills affected by the strike.

There is a little talk of compromise. Both sides realize that the strike so far has been merely a skirmish and that the crisis is yet to come. With the approach of winter the strikers will find it more difficult to earn a living outside the mills, and the manufacturers also will lose a large and profitable amount of business unless the mills can be operated. All propositions for a conference or compromise will have to come from the manufacturers, the strike leaders say.

Cotton Mills In Operation

Providence, Sept. 21.—The Quinebaug cotton mills in eastern Connecticut have resumed work after a two weeks' shutdown. The Ashland cotton mills of Jewett City will start Oct. 1. They have been closed for three months.

Wanted to See President

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Sept. 21.—A man, who gave his name as J. E. Newes and who is regarded as a dangerous crank by the secret service officers at Oyster Bay, was apprehended here. He said he was on his way to see the president on important business. He has been pronounced insane.

Died In Courthouse Doorway

New York, Sept. 21.—Francis Driscoll, a lawyer, died suddenly in the doorway of the courthouse in City Hall park. He had just argued a motion in the surrogate court. Death was probably due to apoplexy.

CHURCH WALL FELL

One Man Killed and Six Injured at New Bedford

New Bedford, Mass., Sept. 21.—With a crash that could be heard throughout the entire northern section of this city, the inner wall on the north side of the new St. Anthony's church collapsed yesterday, killing Gilbert Tremblay, a mason, 60 years old, and seriously injuring six others who were working on the structure.

The church, which was in process of construction, was being built for St. Anthony's French Roman Catholic parish. The structure occupied nearly an entire block on Acushnet avenue. The wall that fell was on the north side of the building and was 220 feet long. The outer wall was built of brick and stone from the foundation upwards to the eaves. The inner wall, however, rested on iron pillars, the lower part of the wall being more than 25 feet above the ground floor. On top of these pillars there was some iron and steel bridge work supporting a brick inner wall that rose 26 feet to the eaves.

The cause of the collapse is not known yet, but it is believed that one of the supporting pillars was of faulty construction and gave way, letting the wall down with it. It was feared last night that other sections of the wall might fall, as the collapse of the north wall carried away some of the supporting pillars in other sections of the building.

Big Fire In Maine Town

Gardiner, Me., Sept. 21.—The Gardiner Coliseum, a three-story wooden building, containing the largest roller-polo rink in Maine, was burned to the ground early this morning and the flames, blown by a stiff southerly gale, extended so rapidly to the adjoining property that at one time the entire business section of the city was threatened and help was summoned from neighboring towns. Before assistance arrived, however, the local department were able to confine the fire to the Coliseum and four wooden blocks. The loss is estimated at $25,000.

With Liabilities of $1,114,125

Boston, Mass., Sept. 21.—Owing $1,114,125 and with assets of only $1200, William B. Whaley, the financial supporter of several cotton manufacturing enterprises in the south, filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in this city. Whaley was the senior member of the William B. Smith-Whaley company of this city. For some time he has been interested in raising funds for textile industries in the southern states, which have not resulted favorably.

Nominations Without Contest

Concord, N. H., Sept. 21.—John McLane of Milford was nominated for governor by the Republican state convention here and four candidates for presidential electors were chosen. There were no other nominations to be made. As there was no contest for any office the proceedings were concluded at one session. The platform strongly praised the record and achievements of the national party.

Five Years For Stealing $70,000

New Haven, Sept. 21.—Douglas H. Smith, the defaulting paying teller of the National Tradesmen's bank of this city, was indicted by the federal grand jury on the charge of embezzlement of about $70,000 of the bank's funds, and was immediately taken before Judge Platt in court, arraigned, and on a plea of guilty was sentenced to five years in the state prison.

A Shortage of $5000

Boston, Sept. 21.—Karl Braun, treasurer of the Kossuth Hall association, is missing, and his funds show a shortage of at least $5000. Braun left Boston Aug. 14 and has not been heard from since. The day previous to his departure officers of the association had made a request for his books that they might be submitted to expert examination.

Milk May Be Higher

Boston, Sept. 21.—A conference was held here between the officials of the Boston Co-operative Milk Producers' union and the milk contractors regarding the price of milk during the coming winter. No agreement was reached and another meeting will be held. It is intimated that milk will probably be higher during the next six months.

Asks New Trial For Snell

Fall River, Mass., Sept. 21.—Hugo A. Dubuque, senior counsel for Angles Snell, who was found guilty of the murder of Tillinghast Kirby, has filed a motion in the superior court for a new trial. It is claimed that the verdict was against the weight of the evidence.

Boston Registration Figures

Boston, Sept. 21.—Registration of voters for the state primaries closed last night at the office of the election commissioners. The voting strength of the city is 106,483, an increase of 1111 over last year's figures for the primaries.

Senator Hoar May Recover

Worcester, Mass., Sept. 21.—Senator Hoar's attending physician states that the senator has taken his nourishment well, and while he cannot predict recovery definitely, as yet, he thinks that the condition is favorable.

Injured Men Coming Home

Junction City, Kas., Sept. 21.—The 59 Knights Templars whose cars were wrecked west of this city have left for Rhode Island. All the members of the party were able to resume their journey east, although a number of the most seriously injured had to be carried to the cars. With the party there are six physicians, who will care for the injured on the way home.

CITY BREVITIES.

Just a little shower last night.

A delightful morning; clear and bracing.

A copy of the Pike's Peak Daily News has been received and reports that Arthur W. Stetson and others of the Knights Templar party registered at the top Sept. 16, making the trip via. the picturesque and scenic Cog Wheel route.

The Unity Circle of King's Daughters give a reception to their parents and older friends tomorrow from 3 to 5 o'clock in the chapel of the Bethany church. During the afternoon an entertainment will be given, after which refreshments will be served. These are always enjoyable occasions.

Million a Week at Fair.

Last week, for the first time in the history of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition, the attendance for the six days exceeded one million. The record of admission for the week was as follows: Monday Sept 12, 112,432; Tuesday 110.616; Wednesday, 134,642; Thursday (St. Louis day) 404,450; Friday 131,111; Saturday (Massachusetts day) 134,607. Total 1,027,913. Total to Sept. 18, 11,022,430.

DRUGS AND THE EYES.

Certain Poisons That Have a Most Injurious Effect.

Certain poisons possess the property of acting in a decided manner on the eye. Atropine enlarges the pupil and for this purpose has become indispensable in ophthalmology. Santonin causes one to see yellow. Disturbances of vision have furthermore been observed as secondary effects of certain medicines; for instance, after the use of quinine, iodoform and naphthalin, which, in a case of intestinal catarrh, caused a cataract. The worm disease in the district of the Ruhr in Germany has furnished an opportunity for the observation that the popular fern root, much employed as a remedy, may give rise to serious ocular injury. The use of this remedy in the case of two miners led to incurable blindness.

In the trades there are also poisons which act especially upon the eye. Very dangerous, above all, is lead, which produces inflammation and atrophy of the optic nerve. "Workmen in mustard factories," says a German medical journal, "often suffer from inflammation of the cornea in consequence of the action of the mustard vapors upon the eye." Latterly serious visual disturbances have been produced by chloric oxide and chloric dioxide, poisonous vapors generated by the use of magnesium flashlight powders for photographic purposes.—Jewelers' Circular Weekly.

THE WORD "CHIC."

Probably Derived From a German Word Meaning Clever.

The word "chic," which comes to us through the French, but is probably derived from the German geschickt, clever, smart, has no exact equivalent in our language. Murray, in his standard work, suggests as another possible derivation that it may be an abbreviation of chicane, in the sense of a deft twist or turn.

"Chic," used either as a substantive or as an adjective, implies such style and clever finish as gives an air of distinction to a person or thing and marks some excellence of fashion or taste. Applied to the fine arts it denotes the faculty of producing effective work with ease and skill, and from this its society application to correct grace and elegance and smartness follows very naturally.

Lever, in "The Martins of Cromarty," says: "The French have invented a slang word, and by 'chic' have designated a certain property by which objects assert their undoubted superiority over all their counterfeits."

Some have connected the word with the Spanish chico, or chica, a diminutive expressive of approval.—London Standard.

General Assault on Port Arthur by Japanese

ST PETERSBURG ANXIOUS

Public Feeling at High Tension Because of Garrison's Sufferings--Japs Advancing Toward Mukden--Big Battle Imminent

St. Petersburg, Sept. 21.—Interest is again concentrated upon Port Arthur, owing to the receipt from foreign sources of news that a general storming of the fortifications there has begun. A few belated telegrams from General Stoessel, the commander at Port Arthur, recording the repulse of the Japanese and continued attacks, strengthens confidence in the ability of the defenders to hold out despite the furious onslaughts of the Japanese.

The last attack mentioned by Stoessel took place the night of Sept. 14, and was directed against redoubt No. 8, which protects the water supply of the city. The redoubt is about two miles beyond the line of permanent forts and the attack upon this shows that the Japanese were not then within striking distance of the main fortress. Reports from Shanghai that some of the defenses had fallen into the hands of the Japanese as a result of a general assault on Sept. 20 are not confirmed from Russian sources.

The latest telegrams brought to Chefoo by Prince Radzivill have not yet reached the war office. It is understood that these dispatches contain details of the landing of strong Japanese reinforcements at Dalny, which would tend to confirm the belief that it is the intention of the Japanese to storm the fortress and that the warships will probably take part in the attack. In this event Rear Admiral Wirens' division will doubtless go out and engage the Japanese fleet.

All Russia is anxiously awaiting news from the beleaguered garrison. Public feeling has been aroused to a high tension by the dreadful picture given by Radzivill of the sufferings of the Russian army there.

The sensational announcement that General Kuroki has crossed the Hun river unopposed and that the whole Japanese army is advancing upon Mukden is overshadowed by anxiety for Port Arthur. Moreover, the announcement does not receive complete credence here, as being in direct contradiction of official news issued by the general staff. A strong guard has been placed at the Fushan mines, which Kuropatkin will not give up without a struggle, as the loss of the mines would involve the cutting off of the coal supply for the whole Manchurian railway. Nevertheless, it is considered more than doubtful if Kuropatkin will make a decisive stand south of Tie pass.

Eight and possibly nine Japanese divisions are reported to be advancing on Mukden, and another battle between the armies under Generals Kuroki and Kuropatkin is imminent. St. Petersburg has heard that the Russian Baltic squadron has been reinforced by four warships purchased from Argentina.

Beyond Kuropatkin's report that the Japanese advance holds Bentsiaputze with a strong force of artillery, there is little light in the dispatches from the far east. Bentsiaputze is a hill town about 15 miles northeast of the Yentai mines, and is about 17 miles southeast of Mukden, on the road from there to Pensihu, which is on the Taitse river about 25 miles east of Liaoyang. At Bentsiaputze a branch of the road leads northeast to Funchun, which is on the Hun river some 25 miles east of Mukden.

The whole region between the Yental mines and Funchun, and further on the northeast of Mukden is hilly and easily defensible by the Japanese outposts, which are screening the main movements. The Japanese right wing is now reported to be advanced as far as Funchun, but the real state of the advance is well screened by the outposts. If Kuroki is to make the main flanking attack, his army must be taking a wide circuit through the hilly country just mentioned.

Assuming that to be the plan, the Japanese centre and left will be moved slowly forward, while no general engagement is to be expected until about the time that Kuroki is ready to strike.

Russia's Attitude on Contraband

St. Petersburg, Sept. 21.—Russia's position concerning contraband has been authoritatively stated as follows: Russia does not desire to interfere with the United States' legitimate commerce with Japan, but she has the right to, and must, protect herself as far as possible against shipments which may aid the enemy in prosecuting the war.

Story Was Incorrect

Madrid, Sept. 21.—Official denial is made of the story that a Russian cruiser had been seen off Cape St. Maria and that she had fired two shots at and taken possession of a merchant vessel, supposed to be a British steamship.

Confesses to Murder

Louisville, Sept. 21.—The mystery surrounding the murder of Mrs. Fannie Porter, who was found in a room with her throat cut, was cleared up by the arrest and confession of William VanBalsen. He admitted killing Mrs. Porter, of whom he was enamored.

Surprise For Boilermakers

Susquehanna, Pa., Sept. 21.—When the 300 boilermakers and their helpers employed in the Erie Railroad company's extensive locomotive shops here, reported for work, they were surprised to find the doors of the boiler shops locked and a placard stating that their services were no longer required. No reason is assigned for the action. Two carloads of non-union men have been set to work in the shops.

Matrimony and Exclusion Law

Portland, Ore., Sept. 21.—Commissioner Staden has given a decision in the case of a Chinese woman, held for deportation, which will throw open the doors of immigration to Chinese women so long as the women marry a regularly admitted Chinaman after their arrival. So long as such marriages conform with the marriage laws of the United States the woman is not liable to deportation.

Ex-Mayor McCue In Court

Charlottesville, Va., Sept. 21.—Ex-Mayor McCue, accused of wife murder, was arraigned before Judge Morris and entered a plea of not guilty. McCue's counsel moved that the indictment be quashed on the ground that one of the nine special grand jurors has not been resident of Charlottesville a proper length of time. The court adjourned to consider this point.

Officer and Funds Missing

Washington, Sept. 21.—The war department has asked assistance of the department of justice in trying to secure the arrest of Captain Ira Keithley, Philippine constabulary, who has disappeared from the Philippine exhibit in St. Louis, leaving a reported shortage of $4000 in the funds which had been entrusted to him.

Bishop's Election Questioned

Halifax, Sept. 21.—The executive of the diocesan synod of Nova Scotia met here to consider the question that has been raised regarding the election of Archdeacon Worrall as bishop of Nova Scotia. After a spirited discussion it was decided to place the whole question before a judge of the supreme court of Nova Scotia.

A Judge's Sudden Death

Albany, Sept. 21.—Former Supreme Court Justice Learned was found dead while seated at his desk in his law office. He was 83 years old and had kept up his active professional practice. He had been apparently in good health. Death was probably due to heart disease. Judge Learned was born in New London, Conn.

Trolley Passengers Fatally Hurt

New York, Sept. 21.—Slippery rails, owing to damp air, caused a street car to run away down a steep hill at Kearney, N. J., last night. Two passengers were fatally hurt. Five other passengers and the motorman and conductor were painfully hurt. The motorman and the conductor were arrested.

War Veterans' Reunion

Indianapolis, Sept. 21.—Veterans of the Civil war assembled last night for the public exercises which marked the closing of the first day's session of the 35th annual reunion of the society of the Army of the Cumberland. The exercises closed with the singing of the "Star Spangled Banner."

Another Hunt For the Messiah

Rosthern, N. W. T., Sept. 21.—Dukhobors, the religious enthusiasts who are settled in this district in large numbers, have created the greatest excitement among Canadian settlers by once more leaving their agricultural pursuits and starting on a pilgrimage in search of the Messiah.

PECULIAR DOINGS

Alleged Secret Service Man Is Finally Landed In Jail

Farmington, Me., Sept. 21.—Leroy A. French, claiming to be a member of the United States secret service force, drove to this place from Rangeley and lodged in jail G. A. Harlow of Pittsfield. French charged Harlow with being a counterfeiter. Later in the day W. L. Butler of Rangeley, a livery stable proprietor from whom French secured the horse and buggy, had French landed in jail on a charge of stealing the horse and vehicle.

According to Butler, French called at the stable in Rangeley and told him that he had discovered a counterfeiter at a farm about a mile distant and wanted a horse and buggy to go after the culprit. Securing the team, French drove to the Rangeley Lake house, at which Harlow had been staying. Harlow joined French and the two came to this place, a distance of 40 miles.

They drove to the jail, and French assured the jailor that, as a secret service man, he had the right to arrest Harlow and place him in jail, even without a warrant. Harlow was then locked in a cell.

Shortly after French went to the People's National bank and sought to have three checks, aggregating $400, payable to G. A. Harlow, cashed, attempting to establish his identity through Jailor Fowler. But the jailor had only French's own testimony as to his official standing and that did not satisfy the bank.

While they were yet discussing the matter, Deputy Sheriff Gould entered the bank and placed French under arrest on a warrant sworn out by Butler, charging him with horse stealing. French was taken to the jail and placed in a cell next Harlow.

Extensive inquiry has been made and none of the police of this state know of a secret service agent named French, nor has there been knowledge of counterfeiting. Harlow seemed to be in a more or less dazed condition.

Running Mate For Douglas

Boston, Sept. 21.—The Democrats, having decided practically upon William L. Douglas as the candidate for governor, are now looking for a candidate for lieutenant governor and the most prominent name mentioned is that of James B. Carroll, who was Governor Russell's running mate in 1892. There is considerable talk in favor of Charles S. Hamlin, and among the others under consideration are Representative Schofield of Ipswich, ex-Senator Currier of Methuen, ex-Mayor Hayes of Springfield and ex-Representative Dewey of Westfield.

Fraudulent Naturalization

New York, Sept. 21.—That a large percentage of the naturalization papers held by persons of foreign birth here are fraudulent is shown by an official investigation. Regarding this investigation Deputy Superintendent of Election Stowell said: "Our investigations show that at least 10 percent of the Italian citizens in New York hold fraudulent naturalization papers."

Buried Under Tons of Rock

New York, Sept. 21.—Three miners were crushed to death at the Old Andover iron mine at Hibernia, N. J., and one was so badly injured that he will probably die and two others were seriously hurt. Nearly 20 tons of rock fell on the men. The three killed could hardly be recognized when taken from the mine.

Old Collector an Alleged Thief

New York, Sept. 21.—Cyrillus L. Robinson, city collector of revenue of Bayonne, N. J., was arrested last night on complaint of Mayor Brady, charged with the defalcation of $9000. Robinson has been collector for 12 years and is 70 years of age. He was held under $10,000 bail for examination.

Affair Was Unimportant

Geneva, Sept. 21.—The report cabled to the United States of an assault upon H. L. Washington, the American consul here, greatly exaggerated the incident. Washington drove his automobile into a herd of cattle and an enranged herdsman attacked him, injuring him slightly.

Brighter Strike Situation

Rome, Sept. 21.—The strike situation here is gradually improving and it is expected there will be a general resumption of work tomorrow. A meeting of strikers at Naples ended in a conflict with the police, and the latter, by firing in the air, frightened and dispersed the mob.

Big Crowds Attend Mission

Bolton, Eng., Sept. 21.—The attendance at the mission here of the American evangelists, R. A. Torrey and C. M. Alexander, has been unprecedented. On Saturday and Sunday 27,000 persons attended the meetings. The mission will continue here another week.

Payment on Friars' Lands

Washington, Sept. 21.—The first payment of $2,000,000 on account of the purchase of the friars' lands in the Philippines has been authorized by the war department. There is on deposit in New York a fund of $7,236,000 for this purpose.

Coke Ovens In Full Blast

Connellsville, Pa., Sept. 21.—An order has been issued by the H. C. Frick Coke company to place all available ovens in the region in blast. The increasing demand of the United States Steel corporation for coke is the cause.

Break In Steamship War

London, Sept. 21.—The first break in the steamship rate war occurred when the North German Lloyds raised its steerage rate to New York to $15. The Hamburg-American line also raised its steerage rates to $15.

Roses Are Much Used as Adornments For Gowns.

Some charming little hair accessories are emanating from the Rue de la Paix. The daintiest is an amber pin carried out in the form of an oak leaf, over which a pearl caterpillar is seen wandering. Another is an amber serpent, with a pair of gleaming ruby eyes, which coils into an attractive wide comb for the back of the hair. A third is a casque comb in dark shell representing a series of buds and leaves arranged in symmetrical array. These little hair adornments are quite a novelty after the stiff "tabs" folding over the hair which have generally characterized this style of comb.

The most fashionable way of wearing roses as a gown adornment is to choose the tiny kind, form them into empire wreaths and tack them on the front of the skirt and bodice. Many of the old fashioned brocades will be made to open over a white front trimmed with flowers that appear in the pattern.

Here is a stunning home gown of gray voile simply made with tucks. Medaria lace is inset in the skirt and forms a bolero on the waist.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Empire State Democrats In an All-Night Conference

ALL PLEDGED TO SECRECY

Believed That Claims of Various Candidates Were Thoroughly Threshed Out, but Nothing Was Definitely Accomplished

Saratoga, N. Y., Sept. 21.—After a conference among the Democratic state leaders, lasting from 12:15 p. m., yesterday until 1:25 this morning in an effort to harmonize the conflicting elements in the party, the members of the conference separated to meet again today. The conferees were mute as to the details of their discussion, the announcement only being made that no final agreement had been reached and that the situation would remain in that condition until today's meeting.

Immediately following the close of the conference Senator McCarren went into conference with Mr. Sheehan, accompanied by Senator Dowling, representing Charles F. Murphy. The three were together in Sheehan's room for about 15 minutes. Senator McCarren would not discuss his meeting with Sheehan and Dowling, nor would Senator Dowling make any statement whatever.

Pressed for some kind of an announcement, Sheehan said: "The situation at the adjournment of the conference is exactly where it was at the beginning."

"Was it an amicable conference?" was asked.

"Not a bitter word was said," he replied.

"Was Mr. Shepard's candidacy discussed?"

"Every name that has been mentioned was discussed."

"Was any new or compromise candidate suggested?"

"I do not recall any name that has not been suggested before."

"And no result?"

"No result."

"Are you preparing for an extended stay here?"

"This is a nice place. We have comfortable rooms and the waters are good," Sheehan answered.

"Do you think an agreement will be reached before the convention begins?"

"I cannot discuss that," he replied, and would say no more.

The best information obtainable of the conference indicates that it included the beginning at least of a thorough threshing out of the claims of the various candidates, but that nothing of a definite character was accomplished.

Senator Dowling went after the conference to see Palmer, after which the latter became more than ordinarily reticent.

Senator McCarren returned from Sheehan's room to that of Senator Murphy, where the door closed upon him and Eugene Wood of Albany. It was stated by all the members of the conference that they were pledged to secrecy as to the proceedings.

When the conference broke up inquiries were referred to Sheehan, who, it was said, would make a statement. When Sheehan was seen he was asked: "Was any decision arrived at?"

"No, nothing was settled," replied Sheehan.

There being no contests, the committee on permanent organization merely made formal appointment of Professor Duncan C. Lee as permanent chairman of the convention and adopted the usual list of honorary vice presidents and secretaries, 50 of each.

A remarkable feature of the convention is the fact that with the exception of a few Grout badges there are none to be seen upon the lapels of the people here except colored buttons bearing the likeness of Judge Parker.

In spite of the fact that the 24 Erie county delegates declare that they are solidly for Cunneen, they caucused last night in two divisions and elected separate chairmen. The 12 Cunneen men chose John J. Kennedy and the 12 Goodyear men Daniel N. Lockwood. The delegates still say they will vote in a body for the ticket placed before the convention. They insist upon the right of Erie county to a place on the ticket, and in case Attorney General Cunneen fails to receive the endorsement of the leaders for the court of appeals, they have another candidate in George A. Rickert, whose boom for state engineer is being held in abeyance to see what will become of Cunneen's candidacy.

New Jersey Republicans' Choice

Trenton, Sept. 21.—In a state convention the Republicans of New Jersey nominated Edward C. Stokes for the governorship. The nomination was made by acclamation after nomination speeches had been made. The platform adopted provides for the taxation of second-class railroad property at local rates. Second-class railroad property is property used for railroad purposes that is outside of the main line. Beside nominating the candidate for governor, the convention named two electors-at-large and 10 district electors.

Pardo President of Peru

Lima, Sept. 21.—The Peruvian congress, by a vote of 101 against 50, proclaimed Jose Pardo president and Salvador Cavero first vice president of the republic.

THE WRANGLERS.

Why Cambridge University Honor Men Are So Designated.

In the middle ages when learning was elevated to respectability in European colleges exercises consisted largely of disputations, and those who engaged in them were called disputants or wranglers. One candidate was pitted against another or against a college don to thrash a question out. Wrangle is a very suitable word, for the process often consisted of a battle royal, carried on by twisting an opponent's words so as utterly to baffle or confuse him.

In the University of Cambridge in the fifteenth century 'an ould bachelour," as representative of the university, had to sit on a three legged stool (hence the word tripos) "beffore Mr. Proctours" to test the abilities of the candidates for degrees by arguing with "the eldest son" of them.

If these trials turned out satisfactorily the moderator would compliment the candidates by saying to each, "Summo ingenii acumine disputasti" (you have wrangled excellently) to the foremost, or "optime quidem" or "optime" only to what are still called senior and junior optimes. Not till 1753 was the word wrangler used of the highest honors class.

SALLY LUNNS.

Named For a Famous Eighteenth Century Pastry Cook.

The sweet, light tea cakes, nowadays familiar to us under the name of Sally Lunns, are called after a young pastry cook of that name who was famous for the quality of her wares at the close of the eighteenth century and was constantly to be seen carrying them in a basket, morning and evening, and crying them through the streets of Bath, temptingly displayed in snow white linen. She is said to have kept a cake shop which became a favorite resort for old and young in the old west country town.

Dalmer, a musical baker, bought her recipe, made a song in praise of these tea cakes and set it to music. This soon caught on and was sung and whistled as a popular air. Sally Lunns were distributed on special barrows, and Dalmer's fortune was assured.

Sally Lunn herself is said to have baked her tea cakes for the prince regent, through whom they became known to the celebrated chef Careme. He calmly adopted them as his own invention and sold them to his customers in Paris as Sollemes, an evident plagiarism for Sally Lupns.—London Mail.

CROWN OF A TOOTH.

It Is Composed of the Hardest Known Organic Substance.

The crown of a human tooth is covered by a brilliant white cap of extreme density, the enamel, which is not only the hardest tissue of the human body, consisting, as it does, of 96.5 per cent of mineral and of 3.5 per cent of animal matter, but also the hardest known organic substance.

The whole of the friction entailed by the mastication of food falls upon the cutting edges of our teeth, and these are protected by an extra thickness of enamel. So hard is this that only in extreme cases, in persons who live on very hard food requiring much mastication, has it been known to wear off.

This enamel cap is composed of a vast number of microscopic rods, one end of each of which rests upon the dentine, and the other reaches the free cutting surface. These rods vary in shape and position, some being five and others six sided, some straight and others sinuous, but they are all arranged so that the maximum degree of compactness and strength is secured.

TODAY'S COURT.

Alice F. Hawley, John Hawley and Cornelius B. White, for being drunk at Weymouth, were fined $5 each.

John Kelley of Braintree, for malicious business, case continued to Sept. 28.

Joseph Rogers for larceny at Braintree, continued to Sept. 22.

Ralph Mangini for speeding an automobile on the Metropolitan parkway at Milton paid a fine of $15.

George H. Berg arraigned on a similar complaint made a contest. He had a speedometer on his machine, and he and a companion testified that the recorded speed was less than eight miles an hour when stopped. The case was placed on file.

A New Song.

We have just received one of the most beautiful home songs that has of late come to this office. It is called "Your mother," written by J. T. Rider. This is a song that everybody ought to buy and everybody ought to sing. By sending 25 cents in postage stamps to the Theatrical Music Supply Co., No. 44 West 28th street, New York, a copy will be sent postpaid.

—One of the unique features of the U. C. T. fair in Mechanics building, Boston, will be the art and fancy work exchange in the Women's Department, which will be in charge of Mrs. Inez E. Fox, Chelsea, a writer of the Women's Department, New England Grocer. Articles will range in value from ten cents to fifty dollars, many old time industries being revived, such as lace making. Lessons will also be given in basketry, embroidery, etc., free of charge.

CHAPTER III.

ALTHOUGH I was heir to a large estate, I had not much gold and silver nor many treasures in my possession. I never knew rightly why, but my mother, having control until I was come of age and having indeed the whole property at her disposal, doubtless considered it best that the wealth should accumulate rather than be frittered away in trifles which could be of but passing moment to a boy. But I was well equipped enough as regarded comforts, and, as I said before, my education was well looked after.

Though never having much regard for such small matters, it used to gall me not at all that my half brother, who was younger and such a fair lad that he became them like a girl, should go clad in silks and velvets and laces, with a ready jingle of money in his purse and plenty of sweets and trinkets to command. But after I saw that little maid it went somewhat hard with me that I had no bravery of apparel to catch her sweet eyes and cause her to laugh and point with delight, as I have often seen her do, at the glitter of a loop of gold or a jeweled button or a flash of crimson sheen from a fold of velvet, or the wherewithal to sometimes purchase a comfit to thrust into her little hand, reaching of her nature for sweets like the hands of all young things.

Having no ribbons nor sweets nor silver buttons to give her, I was fain to search the woods and fields and the seashore for those small treasures, without money and without price, with which nature is lavish toward the poor who love her and attend her carefully, such as the first flowers of the season, nuts and seed vessels and sometimes an empty bird's nest and a stray bright feather and bits of bright stones, which might, for her baby fancy, be as good as my brother's gold and silver and shells and red and russet moss.

Her father, Captain Geoffry Cavendish, seemed to regard my devotion to his daughter with a certain amusement and good will. Indeed I used to fancy that he had a liking for me and would go out of his way to say a pleasant word, but once it happened that I took his kindness in ill part, and still consider that I was justified in so doing.

I was already, although young, as sensitive to all slights upon my dignity as any full grown man. So when one day, lying at full length upon the grass under a reddening oak with a book under my eyes and my pocket full of nuts if perchance my little sweetheart should come that way with her black nurse, I heard suddenly Captain Cavendish's voice ring out loud and clear, as it always did from his practice on the quarter deck, with something like an oath as of righteous indignation to the effect that it was a shame for the heir and the eldest son, and a lad with a head of a scholar and the arm of a soldier, to be thrust aside so and made so little of.

Then another voice, smoothly sliding, as if to make no friction with the other's opinions, asked of whom he spoke, and that smoothly sliding voice I recognized as Mr. Abbot's, the attorney's, and Captain Cavendish replied in a fashion which astonished me, for I had no idea to whom he had referred—"Harry Maria Wingfield, the eldest son and heir of as fine and gallant a gentleman as ever trod English soil, who is treated like the son of a scullion by those who owe him most, and 'tis a shame, and I care not who hears me."

Then, before I had as yet fairly my wits about me, Mr. Abbot spoke again in that voice of his which I so hated in my boyish downrightness and scorn of all policy that it may have led me to an unjust estimate of all men of his profession. "But Colonel John Chelmsford hath no meaning to deal otherwise than fairly by the boy, and neither, unless I greatly mistake, hath his wife." And this he said as if both Colonel Chelmsford and my mother were at his elbow, and for that manner of speaking I have ever had contempt, preferring downright scurrility, and Captain Cavendish replied with his quick agility of wrath, as precipitate toward judgment as a sailor to the masthead in a storm:

"And what if she be? The more shame to them that they have not enough wit to see what they do! I tell thee this poor Harry hath a harder time of it than any slave on my plantation in Virginia, I"—

But then I was on my feet and, facing them both with my head flung back and my face, I dare say, red and white with wrath and demanding hotly what that might be to them, and if my treatment at the hands of my stepfather and my own mother was not between them and me and none else, and, boy as I was, I felt as tall as Captain Cavendish as I stood there. Captain Cavendish stared a moment and reddened and frowned, and then his gaunt face widened with his ever ready laugh which made it passing sweet for a man.

"Tush, lad," he cried out. "And had I known how fit thou were to fight thy own battles I had not taken up the cudgels for thee, and I crave thy pardon. I had not perceived that thy sword arm was grown, and henceforth thou shalt cross with thy adversaries for all me." Then he laughed again, and I stared at him grimly, but softened, and he and Mr. Abbot moved on, but the attorney in passing laid his great white hand on my black mane of hair as if he would bless me, and I shrank away from under it, and when he said in that voice of his, "'Tis a gallant lad, and one to do good service for his king and country," I would that he had struck me that I might have justly hit back.

It was both a great and a sad day for me when I came to go to Cambridge—great because of my desire for knowledge and the sight of the world which has ever been strong within me, and sad because of my leaving the little maid without a chance of seeing her for so long a time. She was then six years old, and a wonder both in beauty and mind to all who beheld her. I saw much more of her in those days, for my mother, whose heart had always been sore for a little girl, was often with Captain Cavendish's wife, for the sake of the child, though the two women were not of the best accord one with another.

Madam Rosamond Cavendish was, I suppose, a beauty, though after a strange and curious fashion, being seemingly dependent upon those around her for it, as a chameleon is dependent for his color upon his surroundings. I have seen Madam Cavendish, when praised by one she loved or approached by the little maid, her daughter, with an outstretch of fair little arms and a coercion of dimples toward kisses, flash into such a radiance of loveliness that, boy as I was, I was dazzled by her.

Harry Wingfield facing Captain Cavendish and Mr. Abbot

Then, on the other hand, I have seen her as dully opaque of any meaning of beauty as one could well be. But she loved Captain Cavendish well, and I wot he never saw her but with that wondrous charm, since whenever he cast his eyes upon her it must have been to awaken both reflection and true life of joy in her face. She was so small and exceeding slim that she seemed no more than a child, and she was not strong, having a quick cough ready at every breath of wind, and she rode nor walked like our Englishwomen, but lay about on cushions in the sun. Still, when she moved it was with such a vitality of grace and such readiness that no one, I suspect, knew how frail she was until she sickened and died the second year of my stay in Cambridge.

When I returned home I found in her stead Madam Judith Cavendish, the mother of Captain Cavendish, who had come from Huntingdonshire. She was at that time well turned of threescore, but a woman who was, as she had always been, a power over those about her. She looked her age, too, except for her figure, for her hair was snowy white and the lines of her face fixed beyond influence of further smiles or tears.

My imagination has always been a mighty factor in my estimation of the characters of others, and I have often wondered how true to facts I might be, but verily it seemed to me that after Madam Cavendish arrived at Cavendish Court the influence of that great strength of character which when it exists in a woman intimidates every man, no matter who he may be, made itself evident in the very king's highway approaching Cavendish Court, and increased as the distance diminished, according to some of my mathematical rules.

Saves Ten Dollars A Year In The Kitchen

Any worn out range burns at least three cents more in fuel every day than a new Glenwood. That's putting it small. 3 times 365 is $10.95

You see it doesn't take long to waste the cost of a new Glenwood and the expense isn't all, the chances are the old range is the "worry kind."

Terrible Accident on Melrose Street Railway.

STRUCK DYNAMITE

Electric Car Wrecked and Nine Persons Meet Death.

Many Also were Seriously Injured.

Mangled Bodies Greeted Sight of Those Who Hurried to Aid Unfortunates--Box of Deadly Explosive Dropped From Express Wagon In Front of Car

Melrose, Mass., Sept. 22.—An electric car containing 32 people was blown to pieces at 8 o'clock last night near the corner of Wyoming avenue and Main street, this city, by striking a 50-pound box of dynamite that had fallen off an express wagon. Six people were killed outright, three more died of their injuries within an hour, and 19 others on the car were taken to two hospitals, suffering from all sorts of wounds. At least a score of people in the immediate vicinity of the explosion were treated for cuts from flying glass and splinters.

So great was the force of the explosion that all but 10 feet of the rear portion of the 40-foot car was blown into small pieces, while windows within a radius of a quarter of a mile were shattered.

The immediate vicinity of the accident presented a fearful spectacle when those in the neighborhood reached the scene. The ground was strewn with legs, arms and other portions of the bodies of those who had been killed, while shrieks and groans came from the writhing forms of the injured.

The car contained mostly men on their way to their homes in this city, the accident taking place only a quarter of a mile from Melrose Center. Within a few minutes a great crowd had collected and the injured were tenderly cared for until the physicians, not only from Melrose, but from Medford, Everett and Malden, reached the scene.

For more than three hours the greatest confusion existed, and it was difficult to obtain the names of any of the dead or injured, or to ascertain the cause of the accident. Thousands of people rushed about trying to find relatives and friends, and the hospitals were besieged. By 11 o'clock the police had succeeded in identifying five of the dead at the undertaking rooms and a long list of injured was given out at the hospitals.

The police at once began an investigation of the accident and soon had in custody Roy Fenton, the driver of the express wagon. Fenton was on his way to the local express office. He had placed on the tailboard of the express wagon two 50-pound boxes of dynamite consigned to the city of Melrose. He drove along Main street and did not know until he reached the express office that one of the boxes had dropped off. He hurried back toward Main street in the hope of picking it up, but the electric car reached the box first.

The force of the explosion was terrific and the report was heard many miles. Directly opposite the scene was the Masonic building, every window of which was shattered, and through one of the windows a human form was blown. There were more than a score of people within 100 yards of the car, nearly all of whom were knocked down and rendered deaf by the concussion. Glass and splinters were blown in nevery direction and few of the passers-by escaped receiveing some sort of wound.

The car was No. 14 of the Boston and Northern street railway. It was a closed car, 40 feet long, with a vestibule at each end. It left Boston in charge of Conductor Blanchard and Motorman Rowe. When the explosion occurred every seat was taken and several people were standing up. The car proceeded up Main street and had begun to slow up for a passenger. According to those on board, it was not going more than five or six miles an hour when the explosion occurred.

The force of the explosion tore off and hurled in all directions the front portion of the car, and it was here that the deaths occurred. Further back in the car the sides were blown out and the roof tumbled in, pinning down many of the passengers. On the rear platform the conductor and four or five others escaped without injury.

The paving stones beneath the car were ground into powder by the force of the explosion and the car rails curled up. The hole, however, in the ground was shallow, the force of the explosion being extended upward and outward. The faces of all the passengers were blackened as if by powder, while the clothes of many were torn into shreds. Several persons were pinned beneath the rear trucks of the car and it took 30 men to lift up the greater portions and pull them out.

While practically escaping injury, Conductor Blanchard's clothing was torn into shreds and hung in tatters upon his body. Blanchard said he had rung in 42 fares on the trip from Boston.

On Wyoming avenue, to the westward of the scene of the explosion, a human heart was found lying on the street by searchers late last night. Not a scrap of wreckage of any description was within 15 feet of the organ.

The damage to surrounding property will be considerable. Windows are shattered and the plastering thrown down.

BY ELECTRICITY.

President Mellen Favors It for Suburban Railroad Traffic.

President Charles S. Mellen of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. in his annual report of the company, says, "The present cost of doing the suburban business upon our lines is excessive, and it is only by increasing the volume largely we can hope for renumeration. To handle the same as at present is a burden, and to increase the volume and reduce cost through substitution of electricity for steam seems the only solution.

The report shows that the total gross earnings from operation were $48,282,-909, of which amount the operating expenses were 72.82 percent., or $35,-159,210 leaving the net income from operation $13,123,608. The income from all other sources was $906, 435, making the total income $14,030,134.

The increase in gross earnings was entirely in the first six months of the year, namely, from July 1 to Dec. 31. Since Jan 1 there has been a noticeable decrease.

This decrease was much larger than that usually occurring in a presidential year, and is attributable partially to a very cool summer and to the depression in the cotton textile industry.

The severity of the winter season, which was unprecedented and caused material increase in the cost of operation, the losses occasioned by strikes and the depression in business rendered necessary serious reductions in the operating expenses to offset.

Wedding Bells.

At Hillside cottage, the spacious residence of Mr. and Mrs. James Patterson of Hunter River, an auspicious event took place Wednesday evening, Sept. 14, at eight o'clock, when their daughter, Miss Maria, was united in marriage by the Rev. George Miller to Mr. John A. Campbell of Quincy.

The bride carrying a bouquet of white chrysanthemums and attirred in a beautiful gown of cream crepe de chine was indeed lovely, while the bridesmaid, Miss Madge Patterson, sister of the bride, carrying a bouquet of pink chrysanthemums, looked charming in pink mousseline de soi.

The groom was supported by Mr. William D. Docherty of Kingston. About one hundred guests enjoyed the sumptuous repast served after the ceremony, and spent an evening with music, mirth and social gayety that must long serve them as a date from which to reckon time. Judging by the immense array of choice presents this interesting couple are extremely popular and if good wishes can add to their felicity they will be supremely happy. Congratulations.

Grand Army Fair.

The dates for the annual fair of Paul Revere Post, 88, G. A. R., held to replenish the relief fund, are Oct. 17 to 22 inclusive, opening three weeks from next Monday. The fair this year will be held in the Coliseum, which is commodious and will permit of more attractions than in some years past. Season tickets have been placed at the low price of 50 cents, and $300 in cash will be distributed among season ticket holders; in fact everyone will get a present.

HELD FOR ASSAULT.

Two Quincy Men Arraigned in the Newburyport Court.

William J. Fallon and Arthur G. Lord of Quincy were arraigned in court at Newburyport on Wednesday, says the Herald, charged with assault on John McPhee. In default of bail of $5,000 each they were taken to jail, but friends of Fallon bailed him later in the day.

Fallon is a member of a contracting firm at Quincy who are building jetties at the mouth of the river, and Lord is his engineer. McPhee's injuries may be fatal. He is a foreman on construction work at the local coal pocket.

McPhee and a party of five friends last night met three men who were engaged in blasting rocks at Piper's quarry and they engaged in an animated discussion over their work. The attention of an officer was called and the men were separated. Later the two gangs met and again they were separated, the McPhee party promising to take the next car for the north end of the city, but they did not and again the parties met on Merrimac street.

In the melee which followed McPhee was struck over the left eye and was rendered unconscious. He was sent to the hospital and officers arrested the three men said to have been quarreling with McPhee and his friends earlier in the evening.

NEW PRESIDENT.

Miss Sheahan Retires as President of County L. A. A. O. H.

The sixth convention of Norfolk County L. A. A. O. H. was held in Deacon hall Boston on Saturday. Miss Eliza C. Sheahan of Quincy as county president presided.

Miss Katherine E. Sheridan of Randolph, national vice president of the Ladies' Aux. A. O. H., was guest. Rev. Fr. Chittick of Hyde Park, county chaplain, addressed the convention. Ninety-nine delegates representing different towns and cities of Norfolk county were present. Report for the last two years showed a remarkable increase in the membership and standing of the order.

Miss Sheahan retiring from her office of county president, Miss Margaret Donovan of East Weymouth was unanimously elected.

Mrs. Mary McCarthy of Dedham was re-elected vice president.

Miss Elizabeth Hennessey of Weymouth was unanimously elected county secretary.

Mrs. Mary Callahan of Franklin was reelected treasurer.

Miss Sheridan, national vice president, made a few remarks and congratulated members on their force of officers.

Miss Sheahan is to be congratulated on her good work in the order during her term of office of four years as county president. Her work has been rewarded in a way as she was honored at the last State Convention of L. A. A. O. H. held in Holyoke, in being unanimously elected to the position of state vice president of L. A. A. O. H.

MORE TO COME.

Over 600 Children Enter Primary Grade.

Enrollment at the High 657.

Total Enrollment in Quincy Schools 5,607.

The public schools have now been open less than two weeks but 657 children have entered the lowest primary grade and the total enrollment in the primary, grammar and High schools of the city is 5,607, and more are expected. In the grammar school buildings alone there are 4,985 pupils, and the total is sure to go over 5,000 this month. The number of voters in the city is 4,614, and will probably be about 5,000 at the close of registration Oct. 19. There are therefore more pupils than voters.

The number in each building appears in the last column in the summary below, the other years being given for comparison.

Next to the Willard the Adams has the most pupils, but the Quincy to the surprise of many is a close third. The Coddington and the Lincoln a tie with 446 each, and the Washington has only 5 less. The Cranch has the smallest number of pupils, but the Gridley Bryant, John Hancock and Wollaston each have less than 400.

	1900.	1901.	1902.	1903.	1904
Adams,	418	393	428	443	491
Coddington,	414	400	401	424	446
Cranch,	—	232	289	287	316
Grid'y Bry't,	228	307	328	319	324
John Hanc'k,	305	359	364	358	367
Lincoln,	412	426	453	428	446
Mass. Fields,	281	345	368	372	390
Quincy,	372	415	436	471	480
Washington,	291	339	365	402	461
Willard,	819	837	912	885	862
Wollaston,	285	313	351	348	367
	4,125	4,366	4,695	4,737	4,985
High,	499	541	536	572	622
	4,624	4,907	5,231	5,309	5,607

The Willard school is the only building with less pupils than a year ago. When this building has been open two weeks, as have the others, it may also report a gain.

The entering classes number over 600 the number at each building being compared with the number at the end of the first week in past years:

	1900.	1901.	1902.	1903.	1904.
Adams,	46	52	65	72	69
Coddington,	22	30	51	44	56
Cranch,	—	43	27	35	45
Gridley Bryant,	20	29	40	39	37
John Hancock,	39	42	56	42	39
Lincoln,	27	50	59	57	60
Mass. Fields,	21	49	42	40	40
Quincy,	23	53	50	62	65
Washington,	17	32	54	48	60
Willard,	49	110	138	103	109
Wollaston,	15	38	35	46	42
	279	528	617	588	657
High,	202	228	205	257	281

The Coddington, Cranch, Lincoln, Quincy and Washington beat the record in the size of their entering classes. The Massachusetts Fields is the same as last year, while the others are smaller. The Willard of course has the largest number in its entering class. The Adams is second, the Lincoln and Washington a tie, and the Coddington close behind. The John Hancock has the smallest class.

The number of pupils by rooms and grades is shown by the third summary. Where there are marks against the figures the pupils share the room with pupils of another grade similarly marked, thus two with asterisks are together.

In all 113 rooms of various sizes are used for the 4985 primary and grammar pupils, an average of 44 to a room if it was possible to divide them that way, which is altogether too many for one teacher.

What shall be said of the rooms which have 60 pupils? One at the Cod-

Insured for $2,000,000
L. Rodman Wanamaker, son of John Wanamaker, the eminent merchant of New York and Philadelphia, has taken out a policy in
The Prudential Insurance Co.
for $1,000,000, paying an annual premium of over $30,000. This makes him the most heavily insured man in the world, with the single exception of King Edward VII.
Mr. Wanamaker's total insurance is now $2,000,000.
Ask yourself WHY Mr. Wanamaker placed one-half this great amount with The Prudential.
Your business judgment will at once reply: "Because after full investigation and comparison, Mr. Wanamaker found that the company which could give him the best insurance for a given amount of money was The Prudential."
Undoubtedly you will agree that Mr. Wanamaker does not pay over $30,000 per year except for most excellent reasons.
These reasons apply to YOU precisely as well as they do to HIM.

UNCLE SAM.

Between 1896 and 1903 Uncle Sam had a total excess of exports over imports of $3,513,000,000, or $941,000,000 more than the increased deposits in his national and savings banks, and over $500,000,000 more than three times his public debt.

UNDER PROTECTION.

Drift of Opinion.

☞We hear a good deal about the decadence of county fairs, that the cattle show which used to be the main attraction has given way to the "Pike" and "Midway" and that fairs are not what they used to be. What of it? Of course they are not what they used to be. Nothing is what it was 40 years ago. The times change and the people change with them. What was once popular gives way to newer ideas and fancies. In the older days people enjoyed the cattle show and the exhibit of big pumpkins. Now they prefer the modern show with fat cattle and fine farm products in the back-ground. The result is the same in both cases. People had what they wanted then: they get what they want now. So what is there to find fault with?—Wakefield Item.

☞It is daugerous to pronounce the word "fire," even in a whisper, in a crowded audience room. A little girl who tried to whisper to her mother that there was a fire in the house at home started a panic in a Boston synagogue that for a few minutes threatened serious consequences. So many terrible tragedies have been caused by fires in places where large audiences were assembled that there is some excuse for a panic when the fatal word is spoken, and no amount of argument or protest can overcome the terror which the name inspires. Congregations have been dismissed, and audiences sent away by tactful speakers who were aware of the threatening danger and used some harmless pretext to break up the assembly, but they carefully avoided the word that has caused so much suffering.—Lynn Item.

☞Now it has been ruled that complainants against over-speeding automobiles must bring into court some other means of identification than simply the numbers of the offending machine, the owner of a machine which figured in a recent complaint having testified that he was out of the state at the time the affair happened. But what was all this red tape about numbered licenses and the regulations for the plain display of license numbers on the car for if it was not for the purpose of providing a means of identification for machines and making possible the enforcement of the restrictions upon them which would otherwise be impossible. If it is the individual driver, instead of the machine which must be held responsible for the offence against the law, the regulations ought to be changed so that the driver shall wear upon his back or upon his sleeve a number of sufficient size to be readily seen and identified.—Haverhill Gazette.

Knew Uncle's Appetite.

"Johnny," said Uncle Peter, "do you suppose I would sit at this table and eat as long as you have?"

"No, uncle," responded the truthful child. "There wasn't enough on the table to keep you busy for more than five minutes."—Chicago Tribune.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

NATIONAL NEEDS

Republican Principles Declared Well Suited to Them

PLEDGES WELL KEPT

Roosevelt Has Followed Plans Laid Out by McKinley on Lines Neither Sectional Nor Racial—Candidate Fairbanks' Letter

Indianapolis, Sept. 22.—The letter of Charles W. Fairbanks, accepting the Republican nomination for the vice presidency, is addressed to Elihu Root, chairman of the notification committee, and says in part:

In accordance with the promise made when you formally notified me of my nomination for vice president, I avail myself of this opportunity to submit to you, and through you, to my fellow-citizens, some further views with respect to the questions in issue before the people.

The principles which are so frankly and felicitiously expressed in the platform adopted by the Republican national convention meet with my heartiest approval. In the main they have been subjected to the test of actual experience and have been found to be well suited to our industrial and national needs. They have brought us to a high state of material development, and have made the nation's name respected among the powers of the earth.

The utterances of political parties must be interpreted in the light of that practical construction which they have put upon them when intrusted with power. It is not alone what they say, but what they will do which should weigh in determining their capacity to administer public affairs.

We have had two administrations in the last seven years which have been governed by the same policies. The convention did well in its hearty commendation of the administration of President Roosevelt. This is sharply challenged by the opposition. We accept the issue with confidence. The president assumed the responsibilities of chief executive with a pledge to carry out the policy of his predecessor. The pledge has been kept scrupulously; the promise has been fulfilled. Peace and good order have been maintained. Domestic and foreign trade have increased and relations of amity have been preserved with foreign powers.

The foreign policy of the administration has been conservative, just and firm, and has made for the advancement of peace. While we have enlarged our foreign commerce, we have increased our prestige abroad, not with the sword, but with the peaceful agency of enlightened diplomacy.

Thirty treaties have been concluded and proclaimed and stand to the credit of the administration. Some of these are of far-reaching importance. Among the number are the Hay-Pauncefote treaty, superseding the Clayton-Bulwer convention, which stood in the way of the construction of an isthmian canal; the Panama canal treaty, the Alaskan boundary treaty, and commercial treaties with China and with Cuba.

Events in the far east suggest the wisdom and necessity of a continuance of the present foreign policy. We have maintained exact neutrality between Russia and Japan. We favor the adjustment of international disagreements by an appeal to reason, rather than to arms. A great majority of the questions which arise between nations, may, without compromising the national honor, be submitted to arbitration.

Our relations with the world were never better. We have avoided all entangling alliances, and, in the language of the eminent secretary of state, "We are without an ally and without an enemy."

The convention wisely declared in favor of "protection which guards and develops our industries." The Democratic convention at St. Louis denounced "protection as a robbery of the many to enrich the few," and favored a "revision and gradual reduction of the tariff." The issue is thus distinctly made. It is by no means a new one, for while the Republican party has uniformly adhered to the policy of protection, the Democratic party has been consistent in its opposition. A revision of duties should be made only when conditions have so changed that the public interest demands their alteration, and they should be so revised as to preserve and not destroy the protective principle. The development of the country during the last 44 years is a complete vindication of the virtue and efficacy of a protective system.

Commercial reciprocity with foreign countries "consistent with the principles of protection," has long been one of the well recognized policies of the Republican party. The present administration, in the face of serious Democratic opposition, secured a treaty of reciprocity with Cuba, which promises to give us control of a large share of the commerce of that island. Both Presidents McKinley and Roosevelt attempted to negotiate a treaty of reciprocity with Canada. It is hoped that the two governments may be able to agree in due course to take up the subject of reciprocity with Canada according to the principles laid down in the Republican national platform.

The platform appropriately recognizes combinations of capital and labor as the outgrowth of our economic development, and as entitled to the equal protection and subject to the like restrictions of the law.

The administration has enforced the Sherman anti-trust act, which was of Republican origin, in cases where combinations have been formed in violation of its provisions. The law has been invoked by the president against combinations in restraint of wholesome commerce, and it has been upheld by the courts.

The convention very properly declared it "to be the duty of the Republican party to uphold the gold standard." The Republican convention did well not only to pledge anew our fidelity to the gold standard, but to declare its purpose to uphold "the integrity and value of our national currency." There should be no equivocation or doubt as to our inflexible purpose, not only to maintain the gold standard, but to keep all silver and paper currency at a parity with it. The assumption that the gold standard is "irrevocably established" does violence to the law. It was established by an act of congress, but the congress may alter, amend or appeal that act at any time. Sound money is so vital to our welfare, so important to our industrial development, that we should let its open enemies or negative friends know that we abate nothing of our determination to uphold and defend it.

The president's course in Panama merits the most generous approval. He dealt with a delicate and difficult situation clearly within our national rights in such a way as to make possible the early completian of an isthmian canal which has long been demanded in the interest of our commerce and national defense. The completion of this great work should be left to the administration which has done so much to carry it forward against formidable obstacles abroad and vexatious opposition at home.

The administration in the Philippines has been dictated by a broad sense of duty. It has not been subversive of our national ideals, but has been in conformity with the best traditions of the republic. The archipelago came to the United States as the result of a war, and it became the duty of the administration to enforce the laws there as elsewhere, to maintain the national sovereignty, and to inaugurate civil government.

Military rule was quickly succeeded by the civil authority. The people of the islands have been invited to participate in the work of government. The judicial system has been improved, corruption has been driven out, public schools have been established, and the people are already enjoying a large measure of self-government.

Congress has authorized a representative assembly to be chosen in due time by the people of the islands. The ballot-box is not the sign of imperialism. We may safely trust to the future to deal with the Filipinos in a manner consistent with their highest and best interest, and with the duty and honor of the United States.

The application of the proceeds of public land sales to the reclamation of irrigable portions of our arid and semi-arid public domain meets my cordial approval. Through the enlightened policy thus established under the present administration, the long-deferred hopes of the struggling settlers of the great arid and semi-arid west will be realized.

Only by unduly extending this letter could I consider all the declaration embraced in the platform of the convention. Further reflection but strengthens my opinion of their wisdom and I shall give them my earnest support. We are gratified that sectional differences have disappeared and that a fraternal spirit pervades the people of all sections of our country. We rejoice in a national inheritance which is our common pride. Republican policies are as broad as our country's needs. They are neither sectional nor racial in their generous design.

We are inspired with one high purpose, and that is, under divine guidance, to promote peace and good order, virtue and knowledge, justice, patriotism and prosperity among our countrymen and to increase to the utmost the strength and honor of the great republic.

Many Emigrants Left Behind

Liverpool, Sept. 22.—The streets leading to the steamship steerage offices are blocked by thousands of emigrants, clamoring for a last chance to get to America for $10. Steamer Baltic, which sailed yesterday, took over 2000 $10 emigrants, and many were left behind for lack of accommodation. Steamer Merion, which also sailed, was full up with the last $10 batch for Philadelphia.

Fire Destroyed Four Buildings

South Groveland, Mass., Sept. 22.—Four buildings were destroyed, many other structures were scorched and a property loss of $17,000 was suffered by fire here. The fire started in a barn owned by Mrs. Sarah Lanen. The cause of the fire is unknown. Mrs. Mary Caulfield was seriously injured.

The MacDonough's Fine Shooting

Crisfield, Md., Sept. 22.—The monitors and torpedo boat destroyers which arrived here a few days ago have begun target practice. The MacDonough practiced four hours, her range being 1600 yards, and she struck the target each time while running at the rate of 10 knots an hour.

Didn't Sell Warships to Russia

Buenos Ayres, Sept. 22.—The minister of marine of the Argentine Republic denies the report that four warships have been purchased from Argentina by Russia, although there have been numerous offers received recently for the sale of warships.

SOUTH AMERICAN ANTS.

The Most Dangerous and Troublesome Enemies of the Hunter.

"What are the most dangerous and troublesome beasts you ever encountered?" a famous big game hunter was asked, after he had finished telling a string of yarns about his adventures in South America.

"Ants," he replied. "They are far worse than bears, jaguars, alligators or any other beasts about whom hair raising stories are told. They give the hunter in tropical and subtropical countries more trouble than anything else.

"Once I rested my gun against a tree to take aim at a deer. There was an ants' nest in that tree. As soon as I fired the ants tumbled out in swarms and fell all over my guide and myself.

"We were nearly stung to death and had to tear our clothes off and wallow up to our necks in the mud of a nearby swamp before we could get any relief.

"Another time I climbed a tree to wait for mountain lions. I did not notice that there was an ants' nest in the trunk, for the ants were all indoors when I climbed up.

I shot a mountain lion and started to climb down, but the ants had been disturbed by the firing and they swarmed all around that tree trunk by millions. I had to slide over them, and I didn't forget it for a week."

ACADEMY OF BRAN.

A Celebrated Italian Literary Institution and Its Aims.

The Academy of Bran was the most celebrated of Italian literary academies, and its title was borrowed from a previous literary society at Perugia, the Accademia degli Scossi, or the Academy of the Well Shaken. The device of the earlier society was a sieve, and its motto "Il piu bel fior ne coglie" (It collects the finest flour).

The principal object of the Bran society, the Accademia della Crusca, was the purification of the Italian language, in order to effect which, in the spirit of pedantry common to the age, it reintroduced many obsolete words which had been replaced by more effective derivative forms or foreign adaptations.

Its greatest work was the Vocabulario della Crusca, the Vocabulary of the Bran, published in 1613. The whole tone of this work was archaic. It affected to regard the fourteenth century as the Augustan age of Italian literature and endeavored to make the standard of that period a standard for all time. The Accademia della Crusca is now incorporated with two older societies, the Apatici, or Impartials, and the Florentine academy.

ANIMAL TAILS.

Some That Are Quite Useful as Well as Ornamental.

The tail, or, more strictly speaking, the caudal fin, of a fish is, says Professor Seeley, "the great organ of motion," and among the mammalia we find several useful tails.

The most remarkable is, perhaps, that common to most American monkeys, which is as good as a fifth hand, owing to its prehensile powers. The yellow tailed howler, if it is shot when hanging by the tail, will remain suspended for some hours, so tight is the grip. Humboldt noted in South America how spider monkeys form themselves into clusters by means of their limbs and tails, the whole group being suspended from a bough by the tail of the strongest.

The long, thick tail of the kangaroo, which serves as a balance against the heavy hind quarters, especially when the animal leans forward to browse, and also aids in supporting it when in its characteristic upright position, is also a most valuable appendage.

HERRICK IS NAMED

Supreme Court Justice For Governor of New York

HARRISON FOR HIS MATE

Satisfactory to Hitherto Conflicting Interests and Endorsed Without a Dissenting Vote--Factional Warfare Disappears

Saratoga, N. Y., Sept. 22.—Out of a situation which at times seemed almost impossible of amicable solution, the leaders of the Democratic party found a way to unanimous action, and at 3:23 o'clock yesterday afternoon the state convention adjourned without day after having unanimously the following ticket:

For governor, D. C. Herrick of Albany; lieutenant governor, Francis B. Harrison, New York, now a representative in congress from the Thirteenth district; secretary of state, John Palface, Jr., now a member of assembly; attorney general, John Cunneen, present incumbent; comptroller, George Hall, now mayor of the city of Ogdensburg; state treasurer, William Muench; state engineer and surveyor, Thomas H. Stryker; chief judge of the court of appeals, Edgar M. Cullen, (Dem.) now an associate judge of that bench, and the Republican nominee; assistant judge of the court of appeals, William E. Werner, (Rep.) now of that bench by designation by Governor Odell, and the Republican nominee.

David B. Hill himself presented to the convention the name of Supreme Court Justice Daniel C. Herrick of Albany, and while it had been rumored for some time in the convention hall among the waiting assemblage that Herrick's name had been decided upon as a settlement of the conflicting interests, the nomination by Hill was received with great enthusiasm and endorsed not only without a dissenting vote, but with cordial speeches of support by representatives of three of the elements whose attitude had been an important factor in the serious situation which had formed the subject of the conference. Incidentally, Hill himself was accorded a reception which was little less than an ovation and almost every mention of his name thereafter was the signal for increased cheers and applause.

A notable feature of the convention was the disappearance of all open evidence of the factional warfare between the Kings county organization, headed by McCarren, and Tammany Hall, under the leadership of C. F. Murphy.

Recognition of the harmonious state of affairs which had followed the tense situation of the past few days was expressed in nearly every speech made.

Professor Lee of Ithaca, permanent chairman of the convention, made an extended speech in which he attacked the Republican state administration, charging it with extravagance, and criticised Governor Odell himself for his acceptance of dual role of governor and chairman of the Republican state committee.

The platform adopted includes a direct personal attack upon Odell as well as a denunciation of the Republican administrations, an endorsement of the Democratic national ticket, platform and resolutions, and a strongly worded discussion of state and national issues from the Democratic point of view.

Justice Herrick was essentially a compromise candidate as between Edward M. Grout and Edward M. Shepard, who practically drove each other from the field, Shepard being finally dropped from consideration because of the opposition of McCarren and the Kings county organization; Grout because of the positive opposition of Tammany Hall. There was mention also of Assemblyman Palmer, minority leader in the state assembly.

It is well understood that former Secretary of War Daniel S. Lamont would have been the nominee of the convention by acclamation had it not been for his positive refusal to be a candidate, and his unqualified statement that if nominated he would feel compelled to file with the secretary of state an official declination.

Landslide Predicted by Penrose

Reading, Pa., Sept. 22.—The first day's meeting of the convention of the Pennsylvania League of Republican Clubs was followed last night by a parade and a mass meeting. Senator Penrose said that reports from all the states showed that November would show a landslide favorable to the Republican ticket.

Taggart Satisfied With Outlook

New York, Sept. 22.—Chairman Taggart of the Democratic national committee, who has returned from the west, says that he is perfectly satisfied with the conditions as he found them there.

Peter Dons His Crown

Belgrade, Servia, Sept. 22.—Peter Karageorgevitch was crowned king of Servia yesterday. There were no hostile demonstrations, and no attempt to carry out the numerous threats which had been made against the new king's life.

Father Killed Son In Quarrel

Parkersburg, W. Va., Sept. 22.—While cutting corn James F. Linner and his son, Worthy, quarreled. They attacked each other with sharp corn knives and the father stabbed the son to death.

LACK OF WAR NEWS

Each Army Probably Trying to Feel Positions of Adversary

London, Sept. 22.—Whatever may be happening in the far east there is little definite information from any quarter. The armies in the vicinity of Mukden appear to be limiting their activities at present to feeling the positions of their adversaries. It is supposed to be the plan of the Japanese to possess themselves of the passes of the Da mountain range before making a direct movement on Mukden.

Strategic and political considerations seem to make it essential that General Kuropatkin make a stand there and prevent the town from being made the winter headquarters of the Japanese, while the lack of adequate facilities elsewhere for the housing of troops during a rigorous Manchurian winter make it necessary that the Japanese bend all their energies to the capture of that town.

There is nothing to confirm the report of a "general assault" on Port Arthur in which two forts were said to have been captured by the Japanese. General Stoessel's report, dated the 16th, states that two Japanese attacks on the fortifications guarding the water-works had been repulsed. St. Petersburg draws attention to the fact that these forts are situated two miles beyond the line of permanent fortifications, and the comment is made that the Japanese are not yet within striking distance of the main fortress.

Barbarous Treatment of Negroes

Talbotton, Ga., Sept. 22.—The negroes dismissed by the court here on the charge of belonging to a "Before Day club" were followed on their departure by a hack carrying four or five white men. About a mile from town some one in the hack party fatally shot a negro boy. Six miles from town the hack party called Ed Martin, a negro, and shot an eye out. He is not expected to live. These negroes were not charged with being members of the "Before Day club."

Paper Company's Big Purchase

St. John, Sept. 22.—C. M. Bostwick of this city has sold to the Pejepscot Paper company of Brunswick, Me., a tract of thickly wooded land estimated at 100,000 acres at Great Salmon river and Martin's Head. The sale also includes a mill and equipment, houses, store, church, schoolhouse and two schooners. None will give out the price, but it is said to be over $250,000.

England Behind the Times

London, Sept. 22.—The chief engineer of Charles T. Yerkes' tube railways in London, explaining the reason for placing an order for 100 steel cars with an American car company, said that it was impossible to find a single firm in this country which could make steel cars. The total value of the order is $500,000 and 300 additional cars will be ordered later.

What Age Pensions Costs

Washington, Sept. 22.—According to the latest figures available at the pension bureau, President Roosevelt's old-age pension order, of March 15 last, has increased the monthly cost of the pension system by $74,602, or $665,225 annually, plus the amounts that will have to be paid in arrearages accumulating between the time of filing the claim and its allowance.

For Free Hides--After Election

Washington, Sept. 22.—Recent visitors to this city assert that as soon as election is over, however it turns out, an immediate movement will be inaugurated against the duty on hides which is harmful to the boot and shoe industries and of practical benefit to only a few western packing houses. Its revenue yield is insignificant.

Embezzler Frye Goes to Prison

Cambridge, Mass., Sept. 22.—Despite the most pathetic appeals for clemency, Nathan A. Frye, ex-treasurer of the Watertown Savings bank, was convicted of taking the bank's funds and sentenced to not less than four nor more than seven years in the state prison. He took the sentence coolly, and smiled as he left the courtroom.

Hard Work For Deserters

Chicago, Sept. 22.—As a remedy for desertion in the army, Brigadier General Grant, in his annual report, recommends the abolition of the practice of sending deserters to post prisons, where there is very little work, and suggests sentencing deserters to military prisons with long terms at hard labor.

Boston to Have Oregon Flour

Portland, Ore., Sept. 22.—A local flouring mill has received an order for 10 carloads of flour to be shipped overland to Boston. This is the first order of the kind, so far as known, for the shipment of flour east. It is attributed to the scarcity of the cereal in the middle west and the high prices.

Standard Oil Sued by State

Gallatin, Tenn., Sept. 22.—The state of Tennessee has begun suit against the Standard Oil company on a charge of violating the anti-trust law. The specific charge is that the company has bribed parties to countermand orders to a rival concern.

Winter Price of Milk

Boston, Sept. 22.—The Boston milk contractors and the Boston Milk Producers' Co-operative union have agreed that the price of milk is to be the same as last winter—8 cents a quart.

Took Great Risk and Saved Life

Boston, Sept. 22.—William Wallace, the autoist, had a narrow escape from death while speeding his new 90-horse power car on Commonwealth avenue in Newton. While coming up a hill, he encountered a wagon loaded with log lumber. The wagon and horse occupied practically the whole of the way. To strike the rear meant probable death to Wallace, to run in close to the horse meant injury to the animal and its driver. Wallace therefore drove the car squarely into a tree. The car was wrecked, but Wallace escaped injury. Wallace had entered this car in the coming Vanderbilt race.

Shortage May Reach $12,000

Boston, Sept. 22.—While a warrant is in the hands of the police for the arrest of Karl Braun, the missing treasurer of the Kossuth Hall association, his wife and friends are busy trying to settle the amount of the shortage in his accounts, and thus enable him to return home. So far the experts at work on Braun's books have found a deficit of $6200 in his accounts, and it is said that this may be increased to $12,000 before the examination is finished.

Tragedy Shrouded In Mystery

New York, Sept. 22.—The police are unable to solve the mystery surrounding the fatal shooting of [illegible] M. McNally, a saloon-keeper, who was found dying at his home in Brooklyn and expired 20 minutes later. McNally was conscious when discovered and steadfastly refused to disclose the identity of his assailant. No weapon was found in McNally's room. On the bureau were $71 and a gold watch. McNally was unmarried.

Missing Man's Skeleton Found

Pelham, Mass., Sept. 22.—The skeleton of William O'Brien, who disappeared on the night of Sept. 2, 1903, was found last evening in the woods about three-forths of a mile from where O'Brien formerly lived. It is not known whether O'Brien committed suicide or was murdered and officers will continue their investigation to determine how he met his death.

Charges Against City Marshal

Salem, Mass., Sept. 22.—City Marshal Field was given a hearing before the board of aldermen last evening on charges preferred by ex-Mayor Little, who alleges that Field, who was a cigar manufacturer, failed to retire from business when he received the appointment and that he has been soliciting orders for cigars from liquor dealers.

Explosion Caused a Scare

Lynn, Mass., Sept. 22.—An explosion of gas in the Lee Hall building caused $800 damage to the building and stock and frightened the tenants greatly. No one was injured. A large amount of gas had escaped from the unsealed end of a pipe between the ceiling of a room in which a gasfitter was working and the floor above.

Next Session at Washington

San Francisco, Sept. 22.—The Sovereign grand lodge of Odd Fellows chose Washington as the meeting place for its next annual session, after a spirited contest. Washington received 98 votes against 20 for Buffalo, 18 for Philadelphia, 14 for Cleveland and 11 for Montreal.

Checks to Be Worn—New Embroideries and Walking Hats.

Checks are rampant again this fall. This, however, was a foregone conclusion, as the tendency has been that way since the spring, and perhaps—who knows?—we may succeed in rounding off the story during the autumn. The new checks are emphasized by a large overrunning plaid of definite color. A brown and white block check is plaided over with a line of red and white and black with blue or green, and so on. It will be quite the exception to see whole frocks made of the check, as most of the best creations will be deftly combined with some happy coloring in plain cloth.

WALKING HAT.

quill at the left side taken through a large ring of cut beads. It is early to prophesy as to just what shape of hat the modish woman will affect, but I am inclined to believe that flat and medium sized crowns will be chosen in preference to the very high ones.

A commonplace looking hat can be given an air of distinction by draping it effectively with a long veil. Veils made of crepe chiffon in light tones of gray, blue and lavender are bordered with taffeta ribbon in self color about three-quarters of an inch wide. The ribbon, although light, weighs down the edges and keeps them from flying about in the slightest breeze. Some of these veils are finished with deep hemstitched borders and have huge lozenge shaped spots of chenille at wide intervals in order that they may not interfere with the wearer's eyes. There is something truly feminine about a long veil, and to this may be attributed its extended vogue.

The smart looking walking hat reproduced in the picture is a model following the Romney lines. It is made of cream felt faced and trimmed with hunter's green velvet. Through the brim are stylishly stuck two speckled quills.

$100 Reward, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

NOTES ABOUT TOWN.

The Quincy Mansion School opened today.

Mrs. A. Hayden of South street continues seriously ill.

Miss Marion Barker is visiting her parents, on Farrington street, for a few days.

Work is progressing rapidly on the new store on Washington street, opposite South.

Miss Kelsey Suter of Pittsburg, Pa., is the guest of Mrs. W. A. Hodges, Jr. of Upland road.

It is rumored that another market is to be opened at the Point, sometime in the near future.

The Ladies' Aid society will give a whist party in G. A. R. hall tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock.

Mr. J. L. Bruff of Rochester, New York, and Mr. A. C. Bruff are at The Greenleaf for the winter.

Mr. Sturtevant of East Bridgewater has accepted a position with the Fore River shipbuilding company.

Mrs. Isaac M. Holt of Cottage street left Wednesday for a week's visit with relatives and friends at Norwell.

Those who are going on vacations next week will do well to take some of their winter clothes with them, if this weather continues.

Miss C. L. Bliss has returned to her apartments at The Greenleaf having enjoyed the past month with the Knight Templars in California.

John Gibbon of West Quincy heads the list of Massachusetts cities in the Globe contest today and Harold P. Farrington of Wollaston is fourth.

The body of Mrs. Christine Osterline, who was killed on the railroad yesterday, remains at the rooms of Undertaker Hall, not having been claimed by friends.

Miss Anna F. Whiteacre, of 226 Safford street, has just returned from her vacation, spent in New Hampshire, and will take up her studies in the Quincy Mansion school.

It is not the residence occupied by Alice G. Hayes on Cross street which will be sold by the Metropolitan Park Commission, but one occupied by tenants of Mrs. Hayes.

William B. Michael of School street, who died this morning after a lingering illness, was a member of the Masons, the Scottish Clans, and the Granite Cutters' Union. He was in his 57th year. Funeral services will be held Sunday.

MORE TO COME.

At the Coddington it is necessary to occupy a basement which was condemned years ago and vacated. There are 24 pupils in this room.

Grade VII of the Lincoln school is located in the John Hancock building.

In six different cases it is necessary for two grades to occupy one room.

Supt. Parlin found it necessary to transfer pupils from the Coddington school to the Cranch; from the Lincoln to the John Hancock, and from the Wollaston to the Massachusetts Field. A new room at the Washington has been opened, so that the whole building is now in use.

At the High School designed for 350 pupils there are today enrolled 657 and the total is expected to go to 675 or more. This is an increase of 100 in two years and nearly 200 in four years.

The entering class numbers 281, the largest in the history of the school.

A Popular Trip.

The trip over the Boston & Worcester Trolley Air line during the months of September and October is particularly interesting on account of the changing foliage. The cars run are among the best combining comfort with pleasure. It is a popular trip at any season of the year.

"Old Home" Thoughts.

Don't let your heart be troubled by the man who comes back and tells what wonderful success he has had as a result of leaving his home town. It is well enough for the sake of politeness to listen to his stories of immense business deals or fabulous salaries or wonderful offers which he was compelled to refuse because he was offered still more by some one else, but don't swallow the tales. The men who go away and succeed do not need to tell of their success. You hear of their success. It speaks for itself. You are doing better than the cheap monkeys that have to megaphone their success. Attempt to follow their example, and you will meet with disaster.—Atchison Globe.

Superstitions About Cats.

There are many strange superstitions extant about cats. When cats sneeze, it is said, it is a sign of rain. The cardinal point to which a cat turns and washes its face after rain shows the direction from which the wind will blow. When cats are snoring foul weather is sure to follow. Cats with their tails up and hair apparently electrified indicate approaching wind. If sparks are seen when stroking a cat's back expect a change of weather soon. When a cat washes its face with its back to the fire expect a thaw in winter.

Perversion by Abbreviation.

Mrs. Gadabout—People are saying you called on Mrs. Verdigris the other day and got a setback. Mrs. Upjohn—What a willful perversion of truth! I called on her and got a set of Dickens back that I'd lent her two years before.—Chicago Tribune.

The Status.

Miss Beach—I don't think he really cares for Miss Dollars. Mr. Trotter—I think he has a platonic affection for her, but he's violently in love with her father's money.—Puck.

A civil guest will no more talk all than eat all the feast.—Herbert.

Glad to Help.

"So you were able to send your daughter abroad to study music?"

"Yes. You see, the neighbors all pitched in to help."—San Francisco Examiner.

NEW BRIDGE.

Contractor Cashman Begins Work at Atlantic.

After months and years of delay work has actually commenced on the widening of Hancock street bridge over the railroad at Atlantic.

John Cashman of West Quincy is the contractor and he proposes to rush work through so as not to interrupt travel for many weeks.

It is said that the street railway has not made the necessary preparations, but they have had ample notice, and it is not proposed to wait for them any longer.

The new bridge which will be nearly twice as wide as the present one will be a great improvement at the entrance to our city, and a new street grade will be established which teamsters will find easier and appreciate.

CHURCH PROBLEMS.

To Be Considered at the Norfolk Conference at Quincy.

The Norfolk Conference of Congregational churches which will meet with Bethany church of Quincy next Tuesday, will hold sessions at 9.30 A. M. and 1.30 P. M. There will be a basket lunch at 12.30, when the ladies of Bethany church will provide coffee and rolls.

The morning theme will be "Present problems affecting the future prosperity of the church." Each address will be followed by discussion.

Rev. T. B. McAllister of Cohasset will lead the devotional service. Rev. C. E. Stowe of Bridgewater will speak on "The children the hope of the church." Rev H. W. Kimball will follow with an address on "The unchurched community," and Rev. Paris T. Farwell of Wellesley Hills will consider "The wonderful resources of the church."

At 1.45 P. M. Rev. W. L. Beard of Fouchow will deliver an address on "Our work in foreign lands" to be followed by an offering. A solo is promised by Mrs. Edith Cary Page. The sermon will be by Rev. C. F. Hill Crathern of Braintree.

Rev. Alan Hudson of Brockton, formerly of North Weymouth will be moderator of the conference. Thirty-six churches are affiliated, but a general invitation is extended to all church people of Quincy and vicinity.

Baker—Flagg.

A very quiet wedding took place at Wollaston, Wednesday evening, when Mr. Harold Baker of Safford street, was united in marriage to Miss Sarah E. Flagg of Norwood, by Rev. Frank Wright Pratt. Only the immediate relatives were present. After the wedding, Mr. and Mrs. Baker left for New York, and will be at home in Norwood after Nov. 1.

West Quincy Sewers.

It seems that the additional appropriation for sewers at West Quincy is wanted mainly for the new boulevard between Miller street. It is doubtful if the preliminary work of bringing this to grade is completed before January, and it is questionable if the sewer should be laid before this is down. Before the parkway is surfaced there will be plenty of time to construct the sewer.

Cool for September.

The local temperature at sunrise today was 38, and at noon it was 54, the lowest since May. It is the coolest September day since 1898, when 52 degrees was recorded at noon on the 25th.

Last year the lowest noon temperature in September was 58, and in 1902 it only dropped to 62. Not until Oct. 11 last year did Quincy get a day as cool as today.

Odd Fellow Dead.

Sumner P. Lawrence of Fitchburg recently grand master of the Grand lodge of Odd Fellows of Massachusetts died suddenly on Wednesday at Winnipeg, Man. He was on his way from the Soverign lodge which met in California this month, where he was a grand representative. Mr. Lawrence has visited Mt. Wollaston lodge of this city on more than one occasion, the last time being in March of this year at the 20th anniversary.

The Heart's Highway

CHAPTER III—(Continued).

There were in her no change and shifting to new lights of beauty or otherwise at the estimation of those around her; she rather controlled, as it were, all the domestic winds. Captain Cavendish bowed before his superior on his own deck, though I believe there was much love betwixt them, and as for the little maid, she tempered the willfulness which was then growing with her growth by outward meekness at least.

I used to think her somewhat afraid of her grandmother and disposed to cling for protection and mother love to her elder sister, Catherine. Catherine

In those two years had blossomed out her beauty. Her sallowness and green pallor had become bloom, though not rosy, rather an ineffable clear white like a lily. Her eyes, at once shy and antagonistic, had become as steady as stars in their estimation of self and others, and all her slender height was as well in her power of graceful guidance as the height of a young oak tree.

Catherine in those days paid very little heed to me, for her one year of superior age seemed then threefold to both of us, except as she was jealously watchful that I win not too much of the love of her little sister. I have never seen such love from elder to younger as there was from Catherine Cavendish to her half sister Mary after the little one had lost her mother. And all that the little maid did, whether of work or play, was with an eye toward the other's approbation, especially after the advent of her grandmother.

Catherine had lovers, but she would have none of them. It seemed as if the maternal love of which most maids feel the unknown and unspelled yearning, and which perchance may draw them all unwittingly to wedlock, had seized upon Catherine Cavendish, and she had, as it were, fulfilled it by proxy by this love of her young sister and so had her heart made cold toward all lovers. Be that as it may, though she was much sought after by more than one of high degree, she remained as she was.

For the last part of my stay at Cambridge I saw but little of her and not so much as I would fain have done of her sister. I was past the boyish liberty of lying in wait in the park for a glimpse of her; she was not of an age for me to pay my court, and there was little intimacy between my mother and Madam Cavendish. But I can truly say that never for one minute did I lose the consciousness of her in the world with me, and that at a time when my love might well be a somewhat anomalous and sexless thing, since she was grown a little past my first conception of love toward her and had not yet reached my second.

But oh, the glimpses I used to catch of her at that time, slim legged and swift, and shrilly sweet of voice as a lark and as shyly a-flutter at the motion of a hand toward her, or else seated prim as any grown maiden, with grave eyes of attention upon her task of sampler or linen stitching!

My heart used to leap in a fashion that none would have believed nor understood at the blue gleam of her gown and the gold gleam of her little head through the trees of the park or through the oaken shadows of the hall at Cavendish Court during my scant visits there. No maid of my own age drew for one moment my heart away from her. She had no rivals except my books, for I was ever an eager scholar, though it might have been otherwise had the state of the country been different. I can imagine that I might in some severe stress have had my mind, being a hot headed youth, diverted by the feel of the sword hilt. But just then the king sat on his throne, and there was naught to disturb the public peace except his multiplicity of loves, which aroused discussion which salted society with keenest relish, but went no farther.

I took high honors at Cambridge, though no higher than I should have done, and so no pride and no modesty in the owning and telling; and then I came home, and my mother greeted me something more warmly than she was wont, and my stepfather, Colonel John Chelmsford, took me by the hand, and my brother John played me at cards that night and won, as he mostly did. John was at that time also in Cambridge, but only in his second year, being, although of quicker grasp upon circumstances to his own gain than I, yet not so alert at booklore, but he had grown a handsome man, as fair as a woman, yet bold as any cavalier that ever drew sword—the kind to win a woman by his own strength and her own arts.

The night after I returned there was a ball at Cavendish Court, the first since the death of Madam Rosamond, and my brother and I went, and my stepfather and my mother, though she loved not Madam Cavendish.

And Mary Cavendish, at that time ten years old, was standing, when I first entered, with a piece of blue-green tapestry work at her back, clad in a little straight white gown and little satin shoes and a wreath of roses on her head, from whence the golden locks flowed over her gentle cheeks, delicately rounded between the baby and maiden curves, with her little hands clasped before her, and her blue eyes, now downcast, now uplifted with utmost confidence in the love of all who saw her. And close by her stood her sister Catherine, coldly sweet in a splendid spread of glittering brocade, holding her head, crowned with flowers and plumes, as still and stately as if there were for her in all the world no wind of passion, and my brother John looked at her, and I knew he loved her, and marveled what would come of it, though they danced often together.

Mary Cavendish when ten years old

The ball went on till the east was red and the cocks crew and all the birds woke in a tumult, and then that happened which changed my whole life.

Three weeks from that day I set sail for the new world—a convict. I will not now say how nor why; and on the same ship sailed Captain Geoffry Cavendish, his mother, Madam Judith Cavendish; his daughter, Catherine, and the little maid Mary.

And on the long voyage Captain Cavendish's old wound broke out anew, and he died and was buried at sea, and I, when I arrived in this kingdom of Virginia, with the dire uncertainty and hardship of the convict before me, yet with strength and readiness to bear it, was taken as a tutor by Madam Judith Cavendish for her granddaughter Mary, being by education well fitted for such a post, and she herself knowing her other reasons for so doing. And so it happened that Mistress Mary Cavendish and I rode to meeting in Jamestown that Sabbath in April of 1682.

Senator Vest's Pledge.

Just before his first election to the United States senate the late Senator Vest went to a caucus of Missourians who were members of the general assembly. Following a competitor who had talked three mortal hours, Vest spoke for three minutes, concluding with these words: "As for myself, I have to say, with the full knowledge that the pledge I now make will influence your votes tomorrow, that if I am elected to the United States senate during my entire term I shall draw my pay regularly like a gentleman and spend it like a thoroughbred." He was elected and served the state for twenty-four years.—Kansas City Star.

Peaceful, but Dull.

An Englishwoman with a serviceable sense of humor was she who is mentioned in a recent English book as having aided her husband in fighting "a good fight." The two were found one day, in their old age, by a caller, sitting one on each side of the fire, and the old man said proudly:

"Well, t' missis and me, we've been married nigh on fifty year and we've never had one quarrel."

The old woman looked up at the visitor with a twinkle in her eye.

"It war varie conscientious," said she, "but varie dool."

Wanted No Reminders of His Past.

"In my plans for your new home," says the architect, "I have provided for a large, ornate frieze in the hall."

"Don't want it," asserts Mr. Conjeeled.

"What?"

"Not a bit of it. Can't take any chances on having any one being reminded that I used to drive an ice wagon."—Judge.

A HARD BED.

Its Use Will Make the Flesh Firmer and Improve the Form.

"No matter how comfortable a soft bed and large, soft pillows may be," said Dr. A. S. Barnes, Jr., "they are not healthy, and women especially would do well to avoid them, for they assist materially in injuring her physical appearance. When the body sinks down in a soft bed a portion of her skin is robbed of its proper ventilation and the circulation is interfered with. It also helps to make the muscles flabby. A hard bed will make the flesh firmer, and the form must therefore appear somewhat better as a result. The large pillows are not good to sleep on because the head is too high when it rests on them, and this prevents that deep, regular breathing which gives good lungs and in consequence a better appearance to the bust and shoulders.

"One ought always to sleep on the left side, and preferably with the arms at the back. This may be a little awkward at first, but as soon as one becomes accustomed to it he will find it not only the most restful and easy, but the position in sleep is more easily conduced. The pillow ought to, of course, be small and the bed hard, or at least firm. The body is then in the correct position for sleeping and for helping the physical appearance of the person while at rest. The arms at the back throw the chest forward, make the shoulders broader and the back straighter, so that material assistance toward a good carriage is thus obtained. When one lies on his back, even though the pillow is small, it has a tendency to crook the shoulders."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

SHE MADE A FORTUNE.

Showing How a Woman With Gumption Can Make Her Way.

A Massachusetts woman who was trying to introduce an American invention found herself left alone in London by her husband's sudden death, says the Youth's Companion. She had $250 after the funeral expenses were paid, and rather than go home to be dependent she resolved to seek fortune on the spot. For a time she cast about for a promising opening, some occupation for which she was personally fitted and which would pay her enough to live on. At length the chance remark of a fellow countrywoman gave her an idea. She sent most of her money to the United States to pay for a supply of beans and cranberries, set up a cook stove in her room and mailed cards to American residents in London stating that after a certain date she would supply them with baked beans and brown bread on Wednesdays and Saturdays and cranberry pies every day. Orders came before she was fairly ready. She supplied food that "tasted like home." In three months she moved to larger quarters and employed five assistants, and at the end of a year she opened a regular shop, where she sold not only beans and cranberry pies, but every American thing the exile longs for, from shoes to confectionery, not omitting ice cream soda, which had been unknown in London. She is now a rich woman.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

Olive oil should be put into a dark corner of the cellar where light never penetrates.

Don't use a galvanized iron lemon squeezer. When brought in contact with the lemon it forms a poisonous salt.

Dry powdered whiting put thickly over an oil stain on a wood floor and left for twelve hours will absorb all the grease.

To clean nickel scour with pulverized borax, use hot water and very little soap. Rinse in hot water and rub dry with clean cloth.

Soap ruins the appearance of painted or varnished woodwork. It may be necessary to use it occasionally, but it should be done quickly and lightly and be well rinsed off.

Potato water is a thing that the most economical housewife throws away, yet it has its use. After scraping the potatoes allow the water to settle and then strain it. This liquid sponges dirt out of silk.

Pumice Stone For the Teeth.

Once a week the teeth should be cleaned with the finest pumice stone. Take a little of the very finely powdered pumice and place it on the tooth brush. Brush the teeth lightly and remember that while pumice is good in its way it will take off the enamel if used too vigorously. Just how much of the pumice to use is a question of judgment, but women who lightly touch the teeth with it once a week are never in need of having the teeth cleaned at the dentist's.

Children's Feet.

The feet of small children should be attended to more solicitously. Remember that the cuticle is more sensitive and provide your little ones with fine hosiery, which they should not wear badly mended, for roughness and unevenness of the darns will cause corns and blisters, says the Gentlewoman. Every mother should personally supervise the cutting of her children's toe nails in order to avoid ingrowing nails.

A Dainty Workbag.

Such pretty little workbags can be made on a foundation of basket work with a piece of dainty silk! The little flat trays to be found in all sizes at Japanese shops are chosen and the silk sewed on the inside rim. The basket is first lined and slightly padded with satchet if desired. The silk is gathered in bag fashion at the top, making a pretty and a substantial receptacle for sewing materials or embroidery.

SIX MORE MAY DIE

Survivors of Melrose Explosion In a Critical Condition

EXPRESSMAN IS IN JAIL

Unable to Furnish Bail When Arraigned on Charge of Manslaughter--City Had No Ordinances Covering Handling and Transportation of Explosives

Melrose, Mass., Sept. 23.—The death list of nine, resulting from Wednesday night's disaster, in which a well filled electric car was blown to pieces by dynamite, has not increased, although six of the injured are still regarded as being in a critical condition and may not survive their wounds. They are:

Miss Annie Flaherty, leg fractured; Mrs. May E. Conley, one leg fractured, and the other amputated; Dr. Henry C. Perry, leg fractured and internal injuries; George H. Andrews, left leg amputated; Edwin A. Waterhouse, left leg amputated; J. D. Patten, right leg amputated.

The principal action of the authorities was the haling before Judge Bruce of the Malden district court of Roy C. Fenton, the driver of the express wagon from the tailboard of which the 50-pound box of dynamite dropped, to be struck later by the ill-fated car. Fenton was charged with manslaughter and held in $1000 bail, in default of which he was taken to the county jail at East Cambridge. Judge Bruce will hold an inquest on the accident on Sept. 29.

While the court proceedings were in progress, Mayor Buttrick and other city officials were making an investigation into the city ordinances covering the handling and transportation of high explosives, but they soon found out that there were none for Melrose, although there are some in Boston, where the dynamite was obtained by Fenton, which forbids heavy shipments of explosives of this character through that city.

Crowds have visited the scene of the explosion, gazing at the shattered pavement, the demolished windows in Masonic hall and other buildings, and marvelling at the escape of so many with their lives from the stricken car. The funerals of the victims will take place tomorrow.

Suspended 35 feet in the air, on the crossbar of a telephone pole, a piece of human flesh weighing a pound or more, swayed slightly for hours in the wind yesterday, furnishing pedestrians with a grim reminder of Wednesday night's tragedy. Men and women averted their gaze from the grewsome spectacle, and in response to public clamor, the piece of flesh was removed by two linemen.

Assistant Medical Examiner Provandie viewed the bodies of the victims of the explosion and returned a formal finding of "death due to accident."

Accidents Cannot Be Prevented

Boston, Sept. 23.—Fire Commissioner Russell of Boston states that he intends to make a thorough investigation in connection with the Melrose accident.

"Every possible precaution is taken," he said, "to minimize the danger in the transportation of dynamite, but the greatest human foresight is inadequate to prevent such accidents as the one that happened. It is one that might happen at any time.

"The loading of dynamite and other high explosive material is done in one fire district, and a man from district 3 is always on hand to watch the work. When the loading is done this man returns to his station, as it has never been customary to send a man with the load, such a proceeding being considered unnecessary.

"Dynamite is never handled after dark. Wednesday four packages of 50 pounds each were turned over to the Melrose express at 4:30. Each package was marked 'Dangerous! High explosive!' The usual care was exercised in loading the material, and there is no accounting for the awful accident caused by it."

Englishman Captured by Brigands

London, Sept. 23.—The Times correspondent at Tangier telegraphs that Mr. Lee, a British merchant at Rabat, had been captured by brigands while fishing. A companion escaped after being fired at. The correspondent adds that there is an unconfirmed rumor that Lee has been liberated.

Bridgeworkers In Bad Accident

Vinita, Ark., Sept. 23.—The east pier of a steel tollbridge being erected over Grand river at Carrys Ferry fell, killing two men, fatally injuring three, and injuring 21 others. The pier collapsed with no warning, owing to a faulty construction of the foundation.

Fire's Ravages In Forests

Portland, Ore., Sept. 23.—Timbermen who have visited Columbia county report that recent forest fires in that section have destroyed timber to the value of $8,000,000. Most of the timber destroyed was owned by eastern capitalists.

Government Employes Drowned

Port Arthur, Ont., Sept. 23.—Robert Smith, Thomas Williams and Harry Shelly, engaged by the United States fish commission in getting trout spawn, were drowned in Moffatt's Straits by the overturning of their sailboat in a squall.

TO VISIT QUINCY.

The Mendon Historical Society is Expected Here Tomorrow.

Mendon Historical Society, which includes in its membership ladies and gentlemen residing in Worcester and neighboring towns, will visit Quincy, Braintree and Weymouth tomorrow, being the guest of Louis A. Cook, the clerk of courts for Norfolk county, at his cottage at Bay View.

They will reach Quincy by train at 9.50 A. M. and will visit first the Adams Temple and burial place of the Presidents. Then they go to the birthplaces of the Presidents and thence to points of historic interest in Braintree and Weymouth. Mr. and Mrs. Cook have a delightful summer residence and the society is sure to enjoy the outing.

Found on Railroad.

The police were notified about ten o'clock this morning that two young children residing on Newcomb place were missing, and a description given. Their names were Willie Smith and Joseph Gunderson both in their third year. They were found about an hour later on the railroad between School street and Granite street near the scene of the fatality of Wednesday.

Brockton Tubs Win.

The Hancock of Brockton captured the first prize at the Weymouth playout of hand engines on Thursday, playing 202 feet, 10 inches, and the Enterprise of Campello was second with 190 feet, 9 inches.

MANY ATTRACTIONS.

At a Fair Held by the Loyal Ladies Last Night.

At Malnati's hall, corner of Liberty street and Brooks avenue, Thursday night, the Loyal Ladies of Clan McGregor held a grand fair, with a flourish of music, by the City Band and a magnificent display of fancy and useful articles.

A glance at the tables showed that much rivalry had existed among the ladies in decorating, and although each table was superb in itself, the table named for Clan McGregor was most elaborate and distinctly characteristic. The Scottish plaids, flags and crests were conspicuous at this table. Margaret McDonnell, Mary Morrison, Fanny Wood and Christina Raleigh presided.

"Loyal Ladies Table" had a beautiful assortment of goods which attracted many buyers, and Mary Peters, Jennie McKay, Christina Mitchell and Mary Copeland were busy endeavoring to serve and please all who had a desire to charge their money for what could be had.

Another booth which offered inducement to those in quest of something handsome and superior, was that at the ex and vice presidents presided. Marjorie Milne, Margaret Souter and Margaret Hall were all attention and activity in trying to meet the pressing demands.

"Golden Rod Table" although not embellished with "heart-throbbing odds," to the splendid flower was a poem in itself. Golden Rod was in evidence at every possible opportunity. Mary Daly, Susan McRitchie, Kate Gordon and Maria Murray were the fair ones who smiled and traded as the admiring crowd jostled by.

"Charter Members Table" did not in any way conform to the state idea of the beginning of things, for no one would have suspected that Helen Kelly, Margaret Michael, Charlotte Howie and Isabella Kelman who were so radiant of face, so fleet and nimble to serve the many customers who patronized them, were really chartered members of the Loyal Ladies.

"Young Ladies Table" was a feature. Youth and beauty held sway and had they been selling hornet's nests, hornets and all a large crowd would have been there just the same. Mary Jane Kennedy, Lizzie Marnock, Nelly Craig and Jennie O'Hara did all that lively heads and nimble hands could do to serve all.

"Refreshment Table" was perhaps last, but not least, and if any body was left with a dime in their wallet, something to quiet their throbing heads or allay any qualms of prodigality was surely needed. Helen Kirkland, Emma Lavoie, Mary McLeod and Jemima Montgomery readily furnished, at reasonable prices, all sorts of tidbits and moisture highly delectable.

Of course there was a full, and what seemed at times, an ever increasing line of chances to spend and get, and those who went away without being aware of this feature of the show, and of highly enjoying the many devices to amuse and make profit, must have been under the influence of strong opiate.

The entertainment in the way of music, vocal and instrumental, was a decided success and added much to the enjoyment of the fair. Mrs. Edith C. Page was exceptionally well received for her soprano solos. The City Band was also greatly appreciated for the selections rendered.

President Stronach very ably conducted the entire proceedings, which were a decided success.

Quincy's Public Building.

Congressman McNary says: "Mr. O'Connell's complaint that I did not secure a federal building for Quincy at the last session of Congress shows that he is either woefully ignorant of affairs at Washington, or that he deliberately perverted the facts. The Republican majority determined at the last session of Congress not to report a public building bill or a river and harbor bill, hence I could not obtain for Quincy what no representative in Congress could secure for any city or town in his district."

NOT A CANDIDATE

City Auditor Sidelinger Not in Field for Re-election or for Mayor.

Duties of the Office Increasing and His Private Business Demands Attention.

City Auditor George A. Sidelinger authorizes the statement that he is not a candidate for the office which he has very efficiently held for several years with credit to himself, and to the advantage of the city. As a Councilman and as President of the City Council he was equally successful.

Many hoped that when Mr. Sidelinger was ready to relinquish the office of City Auditor that he would step into the Mayoralty chair. Undoubtedly he could have had the Republican nomination this year, and with it an election.

But again Mr. Sidelinger declines to be a candidate. His business requires all his time, and he has decided to withdraw from all city offices. He says the duties of City Auditor have increased rapidly, so that now they require considerable more time than formerly.

His administration of the office of City Auditor has been remarkably free from friction, although there have been some trying times. But he knew his duties as an official and as an auditor, and he was fearless and independent in the performance of his work.

It is, therefore, with considerable regret that many will learn of the decisions of Mr. Sidelinger not again to be a candidate for reelection, and at the same time declining to be a candidate for Mayor of our city.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

Evidently there is need all over Massachusetts of regulations for the transportation of dynamite and high explosives, and the suggestion to forbid its transportation through any street of our city between sunset and sunrise is a good one. It seems difficult to place the blame for the Melrose disaster, and it is doubtful if there is any law to reach the expressman. How would it be if a block of granite fell from a stone team, accidently, some evening, and was struck by an electric car, who would be to blame? Is there any ordinance which would reach the teamster?

Much of the extravagance of small cities, especially those contiguous to Boston, is caused by the apparent reckless expenditures of Boston. This is not confined to any particular city department, but is as true of the Street department as the Water department; of the Health department as the Sewer department. The School Committees of suburban cities find it almost impossible to keep the best teachers, because high salaries are paid in Boston. Many will therefore heartily endorse the veto of Mayor Collins, who is against the order to increase the salary of the director of music from $3000 to $3,600 per year. The Mayor further says:

"The school establishment, as the appended statements show, is enormously expensive—perhaps the most expensive in the whole world; it is a very severe tax upon the resources of our people; and there is a sensation in the community that we are not getting anything like "our money's worth" in educational results. Some sane and serious attempt should be made by your committee to reduce the system to a practical and economical basis, for in prevailing industrial and economic conditions the citizens of Boston can not afford to pay what you are spending, nor would the present expenditure be justified under any conditions.

"I most earnestly recommend, in advance of the passage of next year's appropriation bill, an entire overhauling of the school system, a return to essential and useful studies only, and the practice of economies by which a vast reduction in expenditure may be made."

Drift of Opinion.

☞ Robert Treat Paine, Jr., who has been a Democratic nominee for governor of Massachusetts, and who now announces his intention to vote for President Roosevelt, gives as his reason his dislike of the colorphobia of the south. He was bred a Republican, and he comes of old abolition stock. Men of that inheritance will be found to be pretty sure of being Republicans, for this trip, at any rate. They can scarcely help themselves. It is in the blood, so to speak, bred there by the intensities of the days when the issues of freedom and slavery dominated all other issues. Mr. Paine says he wants to see in the White House a man democratic enough to meet any man whose character deserves recognition at any function. In early Republican days such a statement would have been considered axiomatic. Massachusetts Republicans, led by such men as Andrew and Sumner, and accustomed to the inspiration of Phillips and Garrison, would never have dreamnd that any other principle was worthy of their attention.—New Bedford Standard.

—It looks as if Chauncy Depew was right when he said a while ago that President Roosevelt was going to be elected by the biggest majority given to any candidate for President since the Civil war.—Somerville Journal.

ITS ENGINE CRIPPLED

Presidential Train Held Up In Tunnel at Baltimore

TIRE OFF DRIVING WHEEL

Curled Up and Jammed Into Boiler, Necessitating Service of Another Locomotive--President and Party Not Alarmed

Washington, Sept. 23.—President Roosevelt and party arrived here from Oyster Bay at 6:52 o'clock last night.

The train was delayed 36 minutes by an accident to one of the rear driving wheels of the locomotive as it entered the tunnel at Baltimore. Another engine took the train to Washington. The accident caused no damage to the train.

Fortunately the train was proceeding at a very slow rate of speed when the accident occurred or the result might have been much more serious. It was not making more than three miles an hour when in some unaccountable manner the tire of the left rear driving wheel of the engine broke and curled off. One end of it protruded upward and jammed through the boiler of the engine, causing an almost immediate shutting off of the steam.

This soon deadened the engine and Engineer Weatherbee, realizing that something was wrong, promptly put on the air brakes, and the train came to a stop without delay. A hurried investigation convinced the engineer and his crew that the engine was useless for further service until repairs could be made, and word was sent to the yard to have another engine sent to the scene. After a delay of about a half hour, another engine was attached to the train, and it proceeded to Washington, where it arrived without further accident.

The cause of the tire breaking, according to the railroad officials, was quite inexplicable. The engine had been attached to the train just before leaving Philadelphia and had been thoroughly tested. The accident, railway officials say, was one of those which will happen in spite of every precaution.

The president and his party did not manifest any alarm. Some members of the train crew went back to the president's car to shake hands with him on the run from Baltimore to Washington and spoke of the accident. The president, however, assured them that he had not been alarmed, and remarked that if all his troubles were as slight as that he would be "getting along beautifully."

This accident is said to be the first which has happened to a train on which President Roosevelt has travelled during his administration.

The president was given a cordial welcome home by a large crowd of people as he came through the train shed and walked out to the street. When he made his appearance on Sixth street and stepped into his carriage he was enthusiastically cheered. In company with Mrs. Roosevelt and three of his children, Archie, Quentin and Ethel, he was driven to the White House.

The president and party travelled from Jersey City in a special train. In addition to the president and Mrs. Roosevelt the party included Secretary and Mrs. Loeb, Assistant Secretary Barnes and the White House clerical and messenger force of nine persons who have been on duty at Oyster Bay.

No Recognition of Union

Susquehanna, Pa., Sept. 23.—The lockout of the 300 boilermakers and their helpers in the Erie Railroad company's locomotive shops has taken on a new phase, the company having brought here 150 non-union men, and more are expected. The union men can re-enter the service of the company by making application as individuals.

Famous Indian Warrior Dead

Spokane, Wash., Sept. 23.—Chief Joseph, the famous Nez Perces warrior, is dead. He had been in poor health for some time. He was sitting by his camp-fire on the Colville reservation and was seen by Indians nearby to fall from his seat to the ground. When they lifted him it was found that he had died from heart disease.

Robbers Got Over $4000 In Cash

Kingstree, S. C., Sept. 23.—The postoffice here was robbed last night and there was taken from the safe a package of $4000 addressed to the Bank of Kingstree, $350 in cash in postoffice funds, $150 worth of stamps and $500 worth of jewelry belonging to Postmaster Jacobs.

Hunter Loses the Nomination

Somerset, Ky., Sept. 23.—After two days of heated discussion the Eleventh district congressional committee, by a vote of 15 to 1, awarded the Republican nomination for congress to D. C. Edwards over the incumbent, Dr. W. G. Hunter, former minister to Guatemala.

Bicyclist Butler Shot

St. Louis, Sept. 23.—Thomas Butler, well known in the east as a bicycle rider, whose parents live in Lowell, Mass., is suffering from a serious wound in the abdomen. Louis Dittlinger, a bartender, is under arrest, charged with shooting Butler.

Norfolk, Sept. 23.—Patrolman John McNierney was shot and killed last night by a safe-breaker in the store of W. A. Bonner & Co.

NO HEAVY FIGHTING

Russians Expect Attack to Come Upon Their Front and Flank

London, Sept. 23.—While the Japanese are reported to be slowly advancing upon Mukden, there has been no fighting worthy of note between the opposing armies under General Kuropatkin and Marquis Oyama. The latter, according to the military critics at St. Petersburg, is likely to pursue tactics quite different from those essayed by the Japanese at Liaoyang, and it is expected that the attack will come upon the Russian front and flanks rather than in the form of an enveloping movement.

Definite information from Port Arthur is very meagre. Conclusive and minor Japanese successes there are reported. Russian spies allege that a considerable force has been detached from the Japanese army which captured Liaoyang and sent back to aid in the operations against Port Arthur.

The formation of seven Russian rifle brigades for service in the far east has been ordered.

Victory For Bishop Blenk

San Juan, P. R., Sept. 23.—Recently, on the recommendation of Archbishop Chapelle, apostolic delegate to Cuba and Porto Rico, the Vatican decided to divide Porto Rico into two dioceses and to elevate Bishop Blenk to archepiscopal dignities. Bishop Blenk protested against the proposed change and declined the offered promotion. The authorities at Rome yesterday cabled Blenk their decision against the proposed division.

Crazy Italian a Slasher

Salamanca, N. Y., Sept. 23.—Seized with a sudden fit of insanity, an unknown Italian last evening drew a knife and attacked the passengers on an Erie train. Two foreigners were wounded by the insane man, who then plunged the knife into his own breast and jumped through the car window. When picked up the Italian was still alive, but his condition is serious.

End of Big Strike In Sight

New York, Sept. 23.—William E. Nason's resignation from the presidency of the Building Trades Alliance was followed by the return to work of 800 members of the Reliance Labor Club of Marble Cutters, of which Nason is the head. Employers assert that this action will be soon followed by the return to work of the 4000 members of other unions still out.

Travelers Will Appreciate It

Omaha, Sept. 23.—Beginning next week the Union Pacific railroad will issue a bulletin news service for the benefit of its passengers on the overland limited trains. This news service, which will be the first thing of the kind ever attempted by a railroad, will be sent out at noon and at 4:30 in the afternoon and posted in type-written form in buffet cars.

Navajos Will Play With Fire

Alburquerque, N. M., Sept. 23.—One of the attractions at the territorial fair to begin here Oct. 10 will be the Navajo sacred fire dance in which 100 Indians will take part. The climax will be reached on the last night in a shower of flaming brands handled and tossed among the participants, whose bodies are safe from burning by the use of a peculiar unguent.

Vanderbilt's Fast Autoboat

New York, Sept. 23.—W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., steered his autoboat Mercedes to victory in the first race for the American Power Boat association's challenge cup. The course was 30 nautical miles in length. The Mercedes made the course in 1:21:30, averaging 26.197 statute miles an hour. This is the fastest time made by an autoboat in these waters.

Increase In Cotton Yield

Austin, Sept. 23.—Chairman Johnson of the Texas state boll weevil commission, in a statement of the cotton prospects of this state, says that the yield will be about 2,640,000 bales, which is an increase of about 10 percent over the yield of last year. The increase in acreage planted is the cause of the increase of yield.

The Hyde Again Ashore

Cape Henry, Va., Sept. 23.—Ship Henry R. Hyde, before reported afloat near Dan Neck life saving station, broke her hawser and again came ashore during a heavy blow. Her crew of eight men were taken off by the life savers. She was recently floated and was being towed to Norfolk for repairs.

Speake Spoke For Alleged Lyncher

Huntsville, Ala., Sept. 23.—Thomas M. Higgins was acquitted last night of the charge of murder in the first degree in connection with the lynching of Horace Maples. Judge Speake charged the jury in favor of the defendant. There was no demonstration.

Decision Against Mormonism

Vienna, Sept. 23.—Count Tisza, the Hungarian minister of the interior, has rendered a decision prohibiting Mormon propaganda within Hungary, upon the ground that such a movement is undesirable both from the standpoints of state policy and religion.

THE ENGAGED GIRL.

Some of the Things That It Would Be Wise Not to Do.

Don't set your lover on a pedestal or imagine him to be endowed with great moral and intellectual qualities. He may not be able to live "up to it." Don't write to him sentimental letters, for he may keep them, show them or carelessly leave them open about his room. Tell him how you feel toward him, but never write it down. Don't drag his name in every sentence which you utter. Don't play constantly with your engagement ring or display it unduly. Don't assume a superior air or snub girls who are not in the same blissful state as you are. Remember that you are not the only girl in the world who has been engaged. It is nothing to boast of. There are many women who are sorry that they were once engaged. You may be one of those. No; don't boast about your engagement. You may as well boast that you are a good sailor while the boat is under a serene sky and on a smooth sea. Wait till the sea gets rough. Then, and then only, will you know whether you are a good sailor or not. "Engaged" life is no rehearsal of married life. Don't make your lover the sun of your life, the center of all your actions, for he is but human and may prove sadly disappointing. Don't lavish your attention on him to the exclusion of all other ties. Don't exhaust your vocabulary. Keep something nice to tell him after the wedding, something which he has not heard before.—Max O'Rell.

RIGHTS OF WOMEN.

The Question of Independence and Equality Before the Law.

Men are gradually discovering that they cannot deprive women of equal rights without suffering themselves. They pay the penalty of occupying a lower grade of civilization. The man who treats a woman as an inferior and refuses to accord her justice cannot attain the highest estate in this life. He stands on too low a plane. There is no man living who holds a commission which authorizes him to sit in judgment on the rights of women. Woman has precisely the same title and right to independence and equality before the law that man has. Both hold the title from the same source. She has just as much right to sit in judgment on man and limit his sphere and his actions as he has to limit hers.

Therefore any attempt by man to deny woman independence or equality of rights is simply the assertion of brute force. Brute force degrades those who successfully use it. Every time it is resorted to there is a reaction toward the brute creation. The story of the wrongs done to woman is as old as time, and the blight and curse of it has followed man through centuries.—Governor John P. Altgeld in "The Cost of Something For Nothing."

Salt Rheum

You may call it eczema, tetter or milk crust.

But no matter what you call it, this skin disease which comes in patches that burn, itch, discharge a watery matter, dry and scale, owes its existence to the presence of humors in the system.

It will continue to exist, annoy, and perhaps agonize, as long as these humors remain.

It is always radically and permanently cured by

Hood's Sarsaparilla

which expels all humors, and is positively unequalled for all cutaneous eruptions.

PARKER IN GOTHAM

Receiving Political Advice From the Party Leaders

TAGGART IS OPTIMISTIC

Says Democrats Are Strengthened In Doubtful States by Harmony In New York--To Fight For Decreased Republican Majority In Congress

New York, Sept. 23.—As on the first occasion, Judge Parker's time during his second visit to New York to confer with Democratic campaign managers was so fully occupied that he was compelled to take his luncheon in his apartments. He was joined at dinner last night by William F. Sheehan, Thomas Taggart and W. S. Rodie. Judge Parker has followed the program adopted on the first trip of keeping his own counsel concerning the business he has with his callers. From the time he arrived at the Hoffman House at 9:45 a. m., until nearly 11 p. m., the stream of visitors to his rooms was continuous.

Less mystery attended the present visit than that made by the judge last week. Newspaper men attached to Rosemount were fully advised that he would come to New York and were given ample time to make arrangements to accompany him. Detailed information relating to the trip was suppressed in order to further the candidate's desire to fill appointments made previously and not subject him at this time to a general reception from political associates.

It cannot be said with certainty now just how long Judge Parker will remain in the city. He told some of his visitors he should stay two or three days and that he was not certain of his plans. He may return home this evening and he may not leave here until Saturday.

Senator Gorman, who has taken up the important role of counsel to the national committee and is giving the benefit of his experience in the management of presidential campaigns, was one of the first visitors. He spent nearly two hours with the judge, but beyond remarking that he had a "pleasant chat" would not comment on his business with the candidate.

Chairman Taggart had a long conference with Judge Parker during the afternoon. He was in Wisconsin and Indiana last week and made his report on the work being done in these states. He said the chances of carrying Indiana for the Democrats are excellent and that he believed the party was strengthened in every doubtful state by the ability of New York Democrats to harmonize their differences in naming a state ticket.

Representative Williams of Mississippi introduced several members of congress and others who have engaged to make speeches during the campaign. Representative Cowherd, chairman of the congressional campaign committee, in the interest of a bigger fund to carry on his work, made a personal appeal to the national candidate. He urged the importance of decreasing the majority representation in the national house. Judge Parker is greatly interested in the congressional canvass and as a result of Cowherd's call it is expected a more stirring campaign may be expected.

Herman Ridder, editor of the New York Staats Zeitung, who has undertaken the campaign work among German-Americans in what he calls the six doubtful states, gave the national candidate suggestions for general work. These doubtful states as he defines them are: New York, New Jersey, Connecticut, Indiana, Illinois and Wisconsin. His plan is to have all the work of the national campaign concentrated on these states. Among Judge Parker's callers were several men of national note.

Davis Embarrassed by Applause

Wheeling, Sept. 23.—Henry G. Davis, the Democratic vice presidential candidate, spoke to a large gathering here last night at the opening of the campaign in Wheeling. When Mr. Davis arose to speak the long continued applause became embarrassing. The candidate spoke clearly and distinctly upon the issues of the campaign. Mr. Davis was followed by former Senator Towne of New York, who gave assurance of the situation in New York state and predicted success of the party. He said that if Abraham Lincoln was living today he would be a Democrat; that the Democratic principles were those of Mr. Lincoln.

Yielding to Popular Demand

Boston, Sept. 23.—After a conference of some of the Republican leaders, including Senator Lodge, former Governor Crane and Dana Malone, who has been selected as chairman of the platform committee at the coming state convention, it was announced that the platform will contain a plank favoring reciprocity with Canada.

Herrick to Leave the Bench

Albany, Sept. 23.—Justice Herrick will resign from the supreme court bench as soon as he can finish the legal work now before him. It will probably be two weeks before he can devote himself uninterruptedly to the work of the campaign. Governor Odell will appoint his successor, who will serve until January, 1906.

STRUCK WITH A CLUB

New Hampshire Man Supposed to Have Been Murdered

Barrington, N. H., Sept. 23.—While returning from the Rochester fair William Jenkins and Rus Brown, both of Northwood, became involved in a quarrel. Jenkins' dead body was found later in the road with a deep wound in the skull and the authorities are making every effort to apprehend Brown, as well as Frank Hill, who was in the carrirage at the time, and who disappeared with Brown.

Jenkins' body was found by Ed Otis, who claims that Brown and Hill stopped at his house and told him that they had a fight with Jenkins and knocked him into the road. The two men drove on and Otis went back up the road and found that Jenkins had been killed.

Otis soon notified the authorities, and a search was at once begun for Brown and Hill. Otis told the police that Brown gave him to understand that he hit Jenkins over the head with a club. Jenkins was married and leaves a family in Northwood.

The affair occurred in a somewhat remote part of the Rochester road, and, it is said, all three of the men had been drinking.

Bryan Suit Still Pending

New Haven, Sept. 23.—An appeal filed by Judge Stoddard, in behalf of Mrs. Philo Bennett, has been withdrawn in the superior court. The appeal was filed as a safeguard after the will had been admitted to probate and affected only the alleged bequests to William J. Bryan in his claim for the legacy in the famous "sealed letter." Mr. Bryan now has a suit pending against Mrs. Bennett in which he seeks to get possession of the $50,000, which, he says, is held by her in trust for him, and also for $30,000, in three alleged trusts for educational purposes to be distributed by himself and wife.

Eight Seamen Lost In Gale

Boston, Sept. 23.—According to advices received here, schooner Elvira J. French of Dennis, Mass., Newport News Sept. 10 for Portsmouth, N. H., has been lost at sea, and the crew drowned with the exception of the engineer and one sailor, who landed at Norfolk yesterday. Particulars of the disaster are not given, but it is believed that the vessel foundered during the hurricane of Sept. 15. She was commanded by Captain Connor of Lawrence, Mass., and carried a crew of nine men.

Tug Knocked Out by Steamer

Boston, Sept. 23.—Tug Vesta was going down the harbor to Fort Warren and met the steamer H. F. Dimock coming up. The weather was clear and through a probable mistake in signals the Dimock struck the tug, crushing in timbers and breaking a steampipe. The Vesta began to fill at once and Captain Foote headed for the nearest shore, Spectacle island, where she beached. Later she was pumped out and brought up to Boston.

Mayor Hits School Board

Boston, Sept. 23.—Mayor Collins has filed a veto of the order recently passed by the school committee increasing the salary of James M. McLaughlin, director of music in the public schools, from $3000 to $3600 a year. The mayor speaks plainly in his veto message, and suggests an overhauling of the entire school system, whereby a vast reduction in the expenditures may be made.

Battered Templars Reach Home

Providenc, Sept. 23.—Shortly after midnight this morning the special cars bearing Knights Templars injured in the train wreck at Kansas Falls, Kas., arrived in this city. A party of 500 friends greeted the train with cheers as it pulled into the station. All of the party, with the exception of Mrs. A. L. Peck, were able to walk from the train with assistance from friends.

Freezing Weather In Vermont

Chester, Vt., Sept. 23.—Unripe corn and garden produce in Windsor and Windham counties suffered by a falling of the temperature to 4 degrees below freezing point. In Windham county there was a genuine snow squall, lasting 10 minutes. The ploughed fields in this vicinity were covered with a quarter-inch crust and still water froze to an equal thickness.

New Haven Road's Acquisition

Worcester, Mass., Sept. 23.—The Worcester and Blackstone Valley street railway has been sold to the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company. The road was capitalized for $60,000, but its assets are over $460,000. This makes the third street railway entering Worcester to be bought by the New Haven road.

Stealings Almost All Recovered

Waterbury, Conn., Sept. 23.—While cleaning house, a sister of Samuel McCormack, the young man who was implicated in the $10,000 robbery of Farmer Davis some time ago, found $68 in a vase on a mantel. This brings the total of the money recovered up to $9108.

Girl Students In New Building

Boston, Sept. 23.—Simmons college for young women has opened its new building on the Fenway with a student roll of 400. With the enlargement of the student body the corps of instructors has been increased.

Shot Captain and Passenger

Genoa, Sept. 23.—Romulo M. Alcivar, a Mexican passenger on board the steamer Prinz Oskar, became suddenly insane upon the arrival of the steamer here and made an attempt to kill Captain Dugge of the Prinze Oskar and Frank R. Shattuck of Philadelphia. Alcivar first shot Captain Dugge in the mouth, and then shot Shattuck in his left shoulder. Alcivar was overpowered and taken to an insane asylum.

Danger In Skyscrapers

St. Louis, Sept. 23.—Skyscrapers are doomed, according to the prophecy of Professor Wuarin of the University of Geneva, who delivered an address on "the future city" at the international congress of arts and sciences. Professor Wuarin declared that from a sanitary consideration high buildings were detrimental to public health and would therefore ultimately disappear from the topography of the future city. Although property value would be curtailed, the increase in the value of property on the outskirts of cities would compensate for other restrictions.

Tried to Kill Chief of Police

St. Petersburg, Sept. 23.—While Chief of Police Neidgardt and his assistant, Prince Obolensky, were inspecting some new government buildings in the Boulevard Nicholas, at Odessa, a young man fired a revolver from a distance of six paces at Neidgardt. The bullet did not strike Neidgardt and the would-be assassin was about to fire again when he was seized by Prince Obolensky. A desperate struggle ensued, in the course of which Neidgardt was wounded in the hand with a dagger. The assailant was arrested. He refuses to give his name or any account of himself.

On a Three Years' Mission

Sydney, C. B., Sept. 23.—Steamer Arctic, with the Canadian expedition, has sailed from this port for Hudson bay and the north. The party will remain three years. They will take formal possession of the Arctic islands. The Arctic took provisions for 1200 days. In the party are 10 of the Northwest mounted police. The principal object of the Hudson bay expedition is to enforce the observance of the Canadian laws at Hudson bay and the Arctic islands by all, including United States whalers and fishermen.

Lorimer Belonged to the World

New York, Sept. 23.—The funeral of the late Rev. Dr. George C. Lorimer, who died on Sept. 8 in France, was held yesterday afternoon in the Madison Avenue Baptist church, of which he was pastor. Rev. Dr. R. S. MacArthur delivered an address, saying that no church, no country, no denomination could monopolize the activities of such a man as Dr. Lorimer. He belonged to the English-speaking peoples around the globe. He was a Cosmopolitan man, being truly a citizen of the world.

Sought Vengeance on Reporter

Cleveland, Sept. 23.—Lloyd F. Harms, a reporter, was shot and seriously wounded last night while at his desk in the office of the newspaper by which he was employed. John F. Stanton, a diver and tug owner, is charged with the shooting. It is alleged that Stanton, assuming that Harms was the writer of an article about him, fired a shot at Harms. The wound is not necessarily fatal.

World's Fair Ladies Disagreed

St. Louis, Sept. 23.—The board of lady managers of the Louisiana Purchase exposition has abolished the office of secretary. The action was taken as the result of friction between the incumbent and persons connected with the board of lady managers house.

FOR EVENING FUNCTIONS.

Rich Fabrics a Feature of Fall Gowns of the Moment.

The eighteenth century style of evening gown is the choice for the coming season, and the most charming creations will be materialized from the richest velvets in the softest colorings. The bodices are to be draped with old lace. This fashion is particularly good form for stately matrons.

A lovely evening toilet seen recently was of pink satin, the skirt long and full. Still, one could imagine it clinging to the figure over the fine muslin underskirt. The bodice was cut exceedingly low in an oval shape which fitted into an ordinary depth of low bodice made of finely gathered white net. The sleeves were long and almost tight reaching the wrist with a fullness of a mousquetaire glove. There was something charmingly picturesque about this gown.

BLACK EVENING FROCK.

A handsome black frock always stands out conspicuously at an evening function, and the confection herewith shown is a happy illustration of this fact. Spangled black net applied with motifs of chantilly lace composes the skirt, and the swathed bodice is of net and lace, the detached straps being of jet. JUDIC CHOLLET.

KITCHEN RULES.

A tablespoonful is measured level.

One teaspoonful of salt to one quart of soup.

One teaspoonful of salt to two quarts of flour.

One teaspoonful of soda to a cup of molasses.

One teaspoonful of soda to one pint of sour milk.

One teaspoonful of extract to one plain loaf cake.

One teaspoonful of extract to one quart of custard.

A cupful is all the cup will hold leveled with a knife.

One saltspoonful of white pepper to each quart of soup stock.

One quart of water to each pound of meat bone for soup stock.

Three heaping teaspoonfuls of baking powder to one quart of flour.

One scant cupful of liquid to two full cupfuls of flour for muffins.

Half a cupful of yeast or quarter of compressed cake to one pint of liquid.

One tablespoonful of extract to one quart of cream or custard for freezing.

Peanut Macaroons.

For peanut macaroons beat the whites of three eggs until foamy, add one-fourth teaspoonful of cream of tartar and beat until dry. Then beat in gradually half a cup of very fine granulated sugar. When all is in and the mixture is very light, fold in half a cup of sugar, one teaspoonful of flour and one pint of peanuts, crushed or chopped to a fine powder. Drop by teaspoonfuls on to a tin lined with a buttered paper, making smooth rounds. Sift granulated sugar on the top of each and bake on the floor of a quick oven from five to seven minutes. English walnuts or other nuts may take the place of the peanuts. A cherry or a bit of firm fruit jelly or marmalade pressed into the center of the top of each gives flavor when walnuts or pecan meats are used.—Boston Cooking School Magazine.

Sews With Her Mouth.

It would seem that the use of the hands would be a necessity to a seamstress, yet there is an expert in needlecraft living at Sag Harbor, N. Y., who has no use of either hands or feet. She does the most exquisite work holding her needle in her mouth. When she wants to thread a needle she sticks it into the soft wood of her work table with her mouth and then, biting off the cotton the right length, passes it through the eye with her lips with more quickness and dexterity than most nimble fingered women show. She can tie knots in her thread with her tongue and works quite rapidly. One of the specimens of her skill is a crazy quilt which contains over 300 different fancy stitches. She is also an artist of some skill in the use of brush and crayons.

NOTES ABOUT TOWN.

Rev. C. H. Emmons of Tufts college will preach at the Universalist church Sunday morning.

A. L. White of the Wollaston Golf club won the president's cup at the Lenox tournament this week.

Mrs. M. F. Curtis who has been at Great Hill, Houghs Neck, most of the summer, has returned to Brockton.

The funeral of Mrs. Kristine Osterlid, killed on the railroad, will be held Saturday afternoon from the residence of Mrs. Nelson on School street.

Miss Fannie Taylor of Main street, who has been spending the last three months at the Profile House, White Mountains will return to her home today.

Sunday will be home mission day at the Wollaston Congregational church and the subject will be: "The opportunity in our own state of Massachusetts."

The sunny corner on the south side of the Atlantic station is very popular these cold mornings. That one spot is the only place which is sheltered from the September zephyrs.

Chairman Cary of the Democratic City Committee met Thursday with other city chairmen at the headquarters of the Democratic State Committee for conference.

Lola A. West of Adams street has gone to Derry, N. H., to teach school. Miss West is a graduate of the Woodward Institute and Miss Symonds Training school.

Capt. Daniel Higgins addressed the Quincy Point Young Men's club Wednesday evening at the club rooms on Washington street. Capt. Higgins talked of his experiences at sea. The members and their lady friends were present.

The clouds of dust which Thursday's gale blew up on Walker street in the wake of the gravel teams were appeal enough in themselves for a watering cart to visit that vicinity at least once a week. It is a pity that the street which needs watering most should have to go without it.

Mrs. William Barry entertained the members of St. Ambrose Court of Foresters of West Quincy at her cottage The Oriole, Houghs Neck, Wednesday afternoon. A supper was served after which a beautiful bouquet of flowers was presented to Chief Ranger, Katherine M. Shea.

The new house on South street, opposite Claremont avenue, is nearly ready for occupancy.

The Quincy Granite Quarries Company has an order from the town of Milton for 2500 tons of trap rock.

The opinions of an expert on dynamite were in type for this issue, but were unavoidably crowded out.

Members of the Woman's Relief Corps met at the home of Mrs. William Hayden, River street, Thursday afternoon. The ladies meet at the different members' homes and sew for the fair.

The vacant lot, corner of South and East Howard streets, has been until recently a place for loafers to rest. Thursday morning one man thought he would take a quiet nap beneath a tree on the edge of the lot. It was not long however before Officer Larkin saw the man and called the patrol wagon. It is almost needless to add that the man was intoxicated.

Mrs. Beatrice Porterfield gave her first matinee whist at her home on Granite street Thursday afternoon and it was attended by quite a party, eight tables being in play. The highest score was 49, and the lowest 22. The souvenirs were awarded to Miss Annie Hobart Mrs. M. Phillips, Mrs. J. W. Young, Mrs. Mary Thomas, Mrs. Annie I. Jones, Mrs. G. F. Spooner, and Mrs. G. W. Hawes.

A CLASS OF 44.

Adams School Sends Largest Delegation to Woodward Institute.

The new class at the Woodward Institute numbers 44, and is the largest ever to enter the school. All the grammar school buildings are represented, but the Adams is preeminently first with 10. The Wollaston sends 6 and the Willard 5. From the John Hancock, Cranch, Quincy and Washington are 4 each; from the Coddington and Lincoln 2 each; and one each from the Gridley Bryant, Massachusetts Fields and the town of Braintree.

Seldom does one see a list of 44 names with such a variety of Christian names. There are over 30 different ones, but at the same time there are five Marys and three Annies.

The list follows with the building from which the pupils come:

Selma A. Anderson, Lincoln.
Bertha S. Badger, Quincy.
Ruth A. Bass, Washington.
Josephine M. Boudrow, Willard.
Irene M. Bradbury, John Hancock.
Margaret P. Brown, Coddington.
Rose Comi, Willard.

Annie M. Viden, Adams.
Mary P. Ward, Adams.
Edith M. Wilbas, Willard.
Abby K. Wilde, Wollaston.

He Spoke Too Hastily.

"Binkersnap told me a falsehood this morning."

"I don't believe it. Binkersnap is a truthful and honest fellow. I don't believe he ever told a lie in his life. You're prejudiced. I'd take Binkersnap's word for anything. What did he say?"

"He said that you were crazy and ought to be locked up in an asylum."

"What-h-h * * ! !"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

How to Manage Hens.

Mrs. Suburb—I don't see what's the matter with our hens. They don't lay at all. Farmer Meadow—You don't feed 'em right, mum. Just you give 'em about $2 worth of corn every week and they'll lay you a dollar's worth of eggs every seven days.—New York Weekly.

A Question of Color.

Jiggs—What's the difference between a hectic flush and a bobtail flush? Jaggs—A hectic flush makes some one red and a bobtail flush makes some one blue.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

AT SQUANTUM.

Daughters of the Revolution Entertained by Mrs. Titus.

Members of the Massachusetts Society of the Daughters of 1812 and Adams Chapter, Daughters of the Revolution, were royally entertained Thursday by their regent, Mrs. Nelson V. Titus, at the Huchins farm, Squantum.

About forty ladies went down on the half-past ten car from Neponset, and later cars brought others, so that over fifty enjoyed the steamed clams and sweet corn which were served on the lawn by the shore about one o'clock. The clams were steamed over a huge fire on the beach and were delicius.

Besides the clams, members had brought box lunches, and hot coffee and clam bouilon was served by the hostess.

Those who found the out door air too bracing enjoyed the log fire in the spacious parlor and were interested in the historic letters, autograph letters, pictures and souvenirs collected by the hostess.

Others walked the beach to Squam Rock to the Myles Standish cairn and to Squantum Inn. Most of the ladies left on the four o'clock car, after three cheers for the hostess. It was an outing long to be remembered.

Miss Elizabeth Porter Gould of Boston, was among the guests, and following her custom when visiting a new place, she washed her hands in the waters of the bay. She has dipped her hands into the water of streams and lakes of many climes and countries.

RECEPTION.

King's Daughters Entertain Parents and Older Friends.

The annual reception of Unity Circle of King's Daughters to their parents and older friends, held on Thursday afternoon from 3 to 5 o'clock in Bethany chapel, was an enjoyable occasion.

The Reception committee included Mrs. F. J. Moore, Mrs. C. W. Guy, Mrs. Eben W. Sheppard and Mrs. Charles F. Harper.

The decorations were elaborate and beautiful including hydrangea blossoms, asters, marguerites, etc. As each guest arrived she was decorated with a pink and at each table where refreshments were served there was a bouquet. The committee was the Flower ten, of which Miss Lillie Taber is leader.

The entertainment included a sweet solo by Mrs. Charles Sampson, an interesting reading by Mrs. Isabelle Davis, and rich solos by Mrs. F. J. Moore. The committee was the Music ten of which Mrs. Charles F. Harper is leader.

The refreshments were served at small tables at which six to eight were seated. They included sandwiches of different kinds, fancy cakes, cocoa and tea, sweet pickles, candy and peppermints. The committee included the Bethany and Entertainment tens, the leaders of which are Mrs. John F. Welch and Mrs. John T. Hunt.

Among those present were Miss Judith Spear of Saville avenue, who joined Bethany church in 1833, and is now in her 93d year. She it remarkably well preserved, does not use glasses, hears readily, and has a good memory.

Mr. and Mrs. John J. Sherman of Greenleaf street, who observed the 60th anniversary of their marriage this week were also guests, and the pastor, Rev. E. N. Hardy and wife and many others were present.

The King's Daughters were largely represented and took pleasure in entertaining the following guests:

CLOSED TO TRAVEL

Work Being Rushed on the New Bridge at Atlantic.

A large gang of men are at work at the site of the new bridge on Hancock street near the Atlantic depot, and have made considerable progress. The street railway has a gang at work relocating its track on the east side of the bridge, so that work may proceed on the west side.

Contractor Cashman gives notice that on and after tomorrow the old bridge will be closed to travel for a short time during construction of the new bridge, making it necessary for all teams to go via Squantum and Atlantic streets between Quincy and Boston.

Probably the bridge will not be closed many weeks, as the contractor realizes the importance of keeping this main artery from Boston to the South shore towns open for travel.

It is said that the grade of the bridge and approaches will not be changed, as many teamsters anticipated, and they are sorry to hear it, because it is one of the worse grades between Quincy and Boston.

$100 Reward, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

The Heart's Highway

By MARY E. WILKINS

Copyright, 1900, by DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & CO.

CHAPTER IV.

THEREFORE that April morning, though filled in my inmost heart with love and gratitude toward God, as I had always been since I had seen his handiwork in Mary Cavendish, which was my especial lesson of his grace to meward, with sweetest rhymes of joy for all my pains and reasons for all my doubts; and though she sat beside me, so near that the rich spread of her gown was over my knee and the shining of her beauty warm on my face, yet was I weary of the service and eager to be out.

As I said before, Parson Downs was not to my mind, neither he nor his discourse. Still he spoke with a mighty energy and a conviction of the truth of his own words which would have moved his hearers to better purpose had they moved himself as regarded his daily life. But beyond a great effervescence of the spirit, which produced a high mounting froth of piety like the seething top of an ale tankard, there came naught of it. Still was there in him some good, or, rather, some lack of ill; for he was no hypocrite, but preached openly against his own vices, then went forth to furnish new texts for his sermon, not caring who might see and judge him. A hearty man he was, who would lend his last shilling or borrow his neighbor's with equal readiness, forcing one to a certain angry liking for him because of his good will to do that for you which you were loth to do for him.

Yet if there ever was a man in harness to Satan as to the lusts of his flesh and his pride of life it was Parson Downs, in despite of his bold curvets and prances of exhortation, which so counterfeited freedom that I doubt not that they deceived even himself; and he felt not the while he was expanding his great front over his pulpit and waving his hands, on one of which shone a precious red stone, the strain of his own leash. But I have ever had a scorn which I could not cry down for any man who was a slave except by his own will.

Feeling thus, I was glad when Parson Downs was done and letting himself down with stately jolts of ponderosity from his pulpit, and the folk were moving out of the church in a soft press of decorously veiled eagerness, with a great rustling of silks and satin and jingling of spurs and swords and waving of plumes and shaking out of stronger odors of flowers and essences and spices.

And gladder still I was when astride my horse in the open, with the sweet broadside of the spring wind in my face and all the white flowering trees and bushes bowing and singing with a thousand bird voices, like another congregation before the Lord. I had not the honor to assist Mistress Mary to her saddle. Sir Humphrey Hyde and Ralph Drake, who was a faroff cousin of hers, and my Lord Estes, who was on a visit to his kinsman, Lord Culpeper, the governor of Virginia, and half a score of others pressed before me, who was but the tutor and had no right to do her such service except for lack of another at hand.

And a fair sight it was for one who loved her as I, with no privilege of jealousy and yet with it astir within him, like a thing made but of claws and fangs and stinging tongue, to see her with that crowd of gallants about her and the other maids going their ways unattended, with faces of averted meekness or haughty uplifts of brows and noses, as suited best their different characters.

Mistress Mary was no doubt the fairest of them all, and yet there was more than that in the cause for her advantage over them. She kept all her admirers by the very looseness of her grasp, which gave no indication of any eagerness to hold and thus aroused in them no fear of detention nor of wiles of beauty which should subvert their wills. And, furthermore, Mary Cavendish distributed her smiles as impartially as a flower its sweetness, to each the same, though but a scant allotment to each, as beseemed a maid. I could not, even with my outlook, observe that she favored one more than another, unless it might have been Sir Humphrey Hyde. I knew well that there was some confidence betwixt the two, but whether it was of the nature of love I could not tell.

Sir Humphrey kept the road with us for some distance after we had left the others, gazing beside the horse block, all equally desirous of following, but knowing well that it would not be a fair deed to the maid to attend her homeward on the Sabbath day with a whole troop of lovers. But Sir Humphrey Hyde leaped to his saddle and rode abreast with no ado, being ever minded to do what seemed good to himself, unless indeed his mother stood in the way of his pleasure. Sir Humphrey's mother, Lady Clarissa Hyde, was one of those unwitting tyrants which one sees among women, by reason of her exceeding delicacy and gentleness, which made it seem but the cruelty of a brute to cross her, and thus had her own way forever and never suspected it were not always the way of others.

Sir Humphrey was a well set young gentleman, and he was dressed in the farthest fashion. The broad back of his scarlet coat, rising to the trot of his horse, clashed through the soft gold-green mists and radiances of the spring landscape like the blare of a trumpet, his gold buttons glittered, the long plume on his hat ruffled to the wind over his fair periwig.

Behind us straggled the black slaves as on our way thither, moving unhaltingly, yet with small energy, as do folk urged hither and yon only by the will of others and not by their own; but presently through them, scattering them to the left and right, galloped a black lad on a great horse after Sir Humphrey, with the word that his mother would have him return to the church and escort her homeward. Then Sir Humphrey turned, after a whispered word or two with Mistress Mary, and rode back to Jamestown, and the black lad, bounding in the saddle like a ball, after him.

I still kept my distance behind Mistress Mary, though often I saw her head turn and caught a blue flash of an eye over her mask.

Then passed us, booted and spurred, for he had gotten his priestly robes off in a hurry, Parson Downs on the fast est horse in those parts and riding like a jockey in spite of his heavy weight. His horse's head was stretched in a line with his neck, and after him rode, at near as great speed, Captain Noel Jaynes, who, as report had it, had won wealth on the high seas in unlawful fashion. He was a gray old man with the eye of a hot headed boy and a saber cut across his right cheek.

QUINCY DAILY LEDGER.

Vol. 16. No. 223. QUINCY, MASS., SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 24, 1904. PRICE TWO CENTS.

ALL GOODS WILL BE DELIVERED FREE AT RESIDENCES IN QUINCY.

Pray's

Carpets, Rugs, Upholstery

Assortment the Largest,
Prices the Lowest for Quality Offered.

Our bargains are made by marking down our own stock to a low price, not by purchasing inferior goods to make an attractive price.

It is a mistake to infer that we carry only high-priced fabrics. We have medium grades as well, and our prices are low because our expenses are proportioned over a volume of business exceeded by few in our specialty in the United States, and equaled by none in New England.

Bargain Sale Of Carpetings.

Our annual bargain sale of carpetings is now on, and great savings are in store for carpet buyers. Among the many bargains we have are 100 Rolls of Tapestry Brussels Carpetings, extra heavy quality and of most attractive patterns. These carpets are selling at $1.00 a yard by dealers everywhere. Our sale price is 69 cents per yard. We have other grades of Tapestry and Tapestry Brussels at 49 and 59 cents per yard. Shrewd buyers will take advantage of these prices without delay.

The Social Realm.

When summer's birds their last sweet songs have sung,
And fled their changeful latitude;
When summer's flow'rs upon the air have flung
Their last incense; and when the wood
All blazoned is with cloth-of-red-and-gold;
When solemn hushes o'er the meadows brood
And wreaths of haze the mountain-crests enfold,
I turn me to the faded leaves
We gathered ere the first of snow,
And memory conducts me down
The paths we trod so long ago.
—Thorpe Wesley Wright.

POINTS OF INTEREST

Visited by the Mendon Historical Society.

Quincy was honored this morning by a visit of the Mendon Historical Society, one of the oldest and most enthusiastic in the State. They came as guests of Louis A. Cook, the popular clerk of courts at Dedham.

The first point of interest was the shrine of President and Mrs. John Adams, and President and Mrs. John Quincy Adams where they registered as follows:

Marcus M. Aldrich of Mendon, president.
Sarah J. Aldrich of Mendon
Louis A. Cook of Weymouth
Francis N. Thayer of Blackstone
Nancy A. Thayer "
Mrs. G. M. Darling of Mendon
Mrs. J. W. Esty "
Mrs. M. A. Davenport of Milford
Miss S. L. Staples of Mendon
Mrs. A. N. Darling "
George R. Ford "
J. C. Henry of Hopedale
N. H. Hook of West Medway
Ellen R. Cook "
William A. Mowery of Hyde Park
Mrs. Henry Capron of Uxbridge
Mrs. Helen A. Hanson "
Mrs. W. I. Johnson "
Mrs. A. A. Congdon of Mendon
Henry A. Whitney of Bellingham
Helen A. Whitney "
H. E. Franklin "
Louise Congdon of Mendon
Mrs. C. H. Towle of Concord
Helen S. Towle "
Ellery B. Crane of Worcester
Mrs. S. A. Bennett of Mendon
M. L. Hammond of Bellingham
Origen B. Young of Hopedale.

The auditorium of the historic church was then visited with its high pulpit and high boxed pews, and the mural monuments read. A group picture of party was taken on the front steps. The old Hancock cemetery was also visited.

The party then took an electric car and stopped at the birthplaces of the Presidents on Franklin street, where they found much of interest.

Continuing by car they went to Braintree and saw the old Storrs church, and then to North Weymouth, where they will be guests of Judge Cook at his summer residence at Bay View.

Corner-stone Laid.

Yesterday afternoon at 4.15 the corner-stone of the new All Souls' church at Braintree, was laid in the presence of about 300 people. The excercises opened by all uniting in singing a hymn to the tune of Federal street.

A short address was delivered by Rev. James Eells, prayer by Rev. Mr. Parks, laying of corner-stone by Mr. G. O. Wales, hymn and benediction concluded the exercises.

The trowel Mr. Wales used in laying the corner stone was made of silver with a black ivory handle. Upon the surface of the blade were engraved the following words "This trowel was used in laying the corner-stone of All Souls' church, Braintree, Friday, Sept. 23, 1904." Underneath the blade was engraved, "Presented to Mr. George O. Wales by the building committee."

Under the corner-stone is a small sealed box containing valuable papers. Among them is a list of officers, list of members, list of officers and teachers of the Sunday school, list of officers of the Ladies' aid, names of the building committee, two circular letters which were used in raising funds for the new church and a Braintree Observer-Reporter, dated July 30, 1904, which contained a pen picture of All Souls' church and sketch.

Mr. A. Harold Handley of Newton, formerly of Braintree, assisted the singing with his cornet.

Quincy Men on Jury.

Three Quincy men were on the jury which tried the Foxboro arson cases this week, Adam Vogel, Henry P. Kittredge and Amos Damon. In the case of Arakel O. Boyajian of Providence, charged with arson at Foxboro Feb. 13 last, announced a disagreement after being out 24 hours. In the case of Nijohos Hogopian and Sunpat Avedision, both of Providence, the jury had previously returned a verdict of guilty of arson. In these cases sentence was deferred and bail was fixed at $2000 each.

Battleship Repairs.

The battleships Missouri and Maine will receive extensive repairs at the Charlestown navy yard and sufficient work to keep the large corps of workmen busy for the next four months is now at hand, says the Herald. The battleships left New York harbor Thursday afternoon, and the Maine arrived in Boston harbor yesterday afternoon. It is expected that the Missouri will get in some time this morning. This is the first time that either ship has been at the yard for repairs.

THE PORTERS WIN.

Merrymounts Close the Season With a Defeat.

The Merrymounts played their last game of the season at the Weymouth fair yesterday afternoon with the Porter A. A. team. The Porters won 5 to 1.

The Porters fielded well and bunched their hits, while the Merrymounts found Cullen a rather difficult proposition.

The Merrymounts did not get a man on base until the fourth innings, when Baker hit for two bases where he was left.

In the eighth Eaton got to first on a grounder that hurdled French. He went to second on an out and scored on Saunder's double.

A GOOD RECORD.

Work of Wollaston Park A. A. for the Season.

The Wollaston Park A. A. ball team have completed their base ball schedule for 1904, having played 19 games and losing but three. This has been a very successful season and many strong teams have gone under to the Park nine, among them being the Warrens, Defender A. C., Boylston Church, Colonials, Manhattans, Lincolns, Quincy A. C., Victors, Forest Hills, Jr., Glendales, Norfolk Downs, Somerset A. C. and Athletics.

The Warrens, Boylston Church and Defender A. C. downed the Wollaston Parks early in the season but were later defeated. The Warrens of Neponset lost two out of three and surrendered their title of the 18-year-old championship to the Wollaston Park nine.

As the Park club started out this year with the same team as last year, it was found necessary to make a few changes, being scheduled to play some of the fastest teams. New material was found in Ewen, Fenno, Hoxie, Kelliher and Bean. Hoxie the former Adams Academy pitcher substituted for Gram when the latter was on his school vacation in Maine. He proved very effective, especially in the Defender A. C. game, they losing by the score of 18 to 1, having formerly defeated the Parks 5 to 1.

The team was also much indebted to Harry Drake, the well known Quincy catcher, who caught in some of our closest games.

The players who helped make this a successful season are: Fenno, c; Drake, c; Gram, p; Hoxie, p; Ewen, 1b; Kelleher, 2b; Kappler, ss; Hey, 3b; Welsh, 2b and rf; Bean, lf; Patch, cf.

Whitehead vs. Masons.

Judge Lathrop of the supreme court yesterday dismissed the bill brought by John H. Whitehead of Wollaston against Thomas C. Gram of Wollaston lodge of Masons and the grand lodge of Massachusetts with a view to have him installed and recognized as junior warden of Wollaston lodge, says the Globe.

Installation was refused to him on the ground that he was ineligible to hold the office by virtue of his affiliation with a body not recognized as Masonic by the grand lodge.

The court dismissed the bill for the reason that the complainant did not have recourse to his remedy before the grand lodge before coming to court. The case may go to the full bench.

Sentenced for One Year.

Miss Bessie L. Moody of Quincy entered a plea of guilty in the Norfolk Superior court yesterday on the charge of manslaughter, and was sentenced for one year.

The Heart's Highway

By MARY E. WILKINS

Copyright, 1900, by DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & CO.

CHAPTER IV—(Continued).

The parson saluted Mistress Mary as he passed, and so did Captain Jaynes, with a glance of his bright eyes at her that stirred my blood and made me ride up faster to her side.

But the two men left the road abruptly, plunging into a bridle path at the right, and the green walls of the wood closed behind them, though one could still hear for long the galloping splash of their horses' hoofs in the miry path.

Mistress Mary turned to me, and her voice rang sharp. "'Tis a pretty parson," said she. "He is on his way to Barry Upper Branch with Captain Jaynes, and who is there doth not know 'tis for no good, and on the Sabbath day too?"

Now Barry Upper Branch belonged to brothers of exceeding ill repute, except for their courage, which no one doubted. They had fought well against the Indians, and also against the government with Nathaniel Bacon some half dozen years before. There had been a prize on their heads, and they had been in hiding, but now lived openly on their plantation and were in full feather, and therein lay in a great measure their ill repute.

When my Lord Culpeper had arrived in Virginia, succeeding Berkeley, Jeffries and Chichely, then returned the brothers Richard and Nicholas Barry, or Dick and Ned as they were termed among the people, and as my Lord Culpeper was not averse to increasing his revenues there were those who whispered, though secretly and guardedly, that the two bold brothers purchased their safety and peaceful home dwelling.

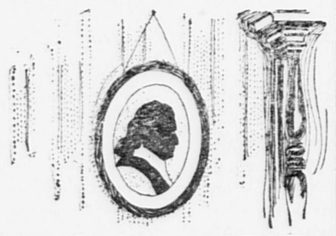

Barry Upper Branch was a rich plantation and had come into full possession of the brothers but lately, their father, Major Barry, who had been a stanch old royalist, having died. There were acres of tobacco and whole fields of locust for the manufacture of metheglin, and apple orchards from which cider enough to slack the thirst of the colony was made. But the brothers were far from content with such homemade liquors for their own drinking, but imported from England and The Netherlands and Spain great stores of ale and rum and wines and held therewith high wassail with some choice and kindred spirits, especially on the Sabbath.

Not a woman was there at Barry Upper Branch except for slaves, and such stories were told as might cause a modest maid to hesitate to speak of the place, but Mary Cavendish was as yet but a child in her understanding of certain things. Her blue eyes fixed me with the brave indignation of a boy as she went on. "'Tis a pretty parson," said she again, "and it would be the tavern, just as openly, were it on a week day."

I put my finger to my lip and cast a glance about, for it was enjoined upon the people under penalty that they speak not ill of any minister of the gospel. While I cared not for myself, having never yet held my tongue except from my own choice, yet was I always concerned for this young thing, with her utter recklessness of candor, lest her beauty and her charm might not protect her always against undesirable results, and not only were the slaves within hearing of her voice, but none knew how many others, for those were brave days for tale bearers.

But Mary spoke again, and more sweetly and shrilly than ever. "A pretty parson, forsooth! And to keep company with a pirate captain! Fie! When he looks at me I clutch my gold chain and turn the flash of my rings from sight, and Dick and Ned Barry are the worst rakes in the colony! Naught was ever heard good of them, excepting their following of General Bacon, but a good cause makes not always worthy adherents."

Mary's silhouette of Nathaniel Bacon

This last she said with a toss of her head and a proud glance, for Nathaniel Bacon was to this maid a hero of heroes, and naught but her sex and her tender years, she being but twelve or so at the time, had kept her from joining his ranks. But indeed in this I had full sympathy with her, though chary of expressing it.

Mistress Mary Cavendish had framed in black in her chamber a silhouette of this hero, and she wore in a locket a lock of his hair, by which she had come in some girlish fashion through a young gossip of hers, a kinswoman of Bacon's, from whose head I verily believe she had pilfered it while asleep.

more than that, I knew of her
Hyde strewing fresh blos-
f the York river, in been buried, on the is death and coming eyes red with tears

of heroic sentiment, which surely be not the most ignoble shed by mankind.

"'Twas the only good ever heard of them," repeated Mistress Mary, "and even that they must need spoil by coming home and paying tithes to my Lord Culpeper that he wink at their disaffection. I trow had I been a man and fought with General Bacon, as I would have fought had I been a man, I would have paid no price therefor to the king himself, but would have stayed in hiding forever."

With that she touched Merry Roger with her whip and was off at a gallop, and I abreast, inwardly laughing, for I well understood that this persistency on other and stirring topics and sudden flight when they failed was to keep me from the subject of the powder and ammunition unladen that morning from the Golden Horn. But she need not have taken such pains, for I while in church had resolved within myself not to question her further lest she tell me something which might do her harm were I forced, for her good, to reveal it, but to demand the meaning of all this from Sir Humphrey Hyde, who I was convinced knew as much as she.

CHAPTER V.

THUS we rode homeward and presently came in sight of the Cavendish tobacco fields overlapped with the fresh green of young leaves like the bosses of a shield, and on the right waved rosy garlands of the locust grove, and such a wonderful strong sweetness of honey came from it that we seemed to breast it like a wave and caught our breaths, and there was a mighty hum of bees like a hundred spinning wheels. But Mistress Mary and I regarded mostly that green stretch of tobacco, and each of us had our thoughts, and presently out came hers. "Master Wingfield, I pray you, whose tobacco may that be?" she inquired in a sudden, fierce fashion.

"Madam Cavendish's and yours and your sister's," said I.

"Nay," said she, "'tis the king's." Then she tossed her head again and rode on and said not another word, nor I, but I knew well what she meant. Since the navigation act it was indeed small profit any one had of his own tobacco, since it all went into the exchequer of the king, and I did not gainsay her.

When we had passed the negro huts, swarming with black babies shining in the sun as sleek as mahogany and all turning toward us with a marvelous flashing of white eyeballs and opening of red mouths of smiles, all at once, like some garden bed of black flowers at the sight of our gay advance, we reached the great house, and Mistress Catherine stood in the door clad in a green satin gown which caught the light with smooth shimmers like the green sheath of a marsh lily.

Her bare, slender arms were clasped before her, and her long, white neck was bent into an arch of watchful grace. Her face was the gravest I ever saw on maid, and not to be reconciled with my first acquaintance with her, thereby giving me always a slight doubt as of a mask, but her every feature was as clear and fine as ivory, and her head proudly crowned with great wealth of hair.

Catherine Cavendish was esteemed a great beauty by both men and women, which shows perchance that her beauty availed her little in some ways, else it had not been so freely admitted by her own sex. However that may be, Catherine Cavendish had had few lovers as compared with many a maid less fair and less dowered, and at this time she seemed to have settled into an expectation and contentment of singleness.

She stood looking at her sister and me as we rode toward her, and the sun was full on her face, which had the cool glimmer of a pearl in the golden light, and her wide open eyes never wavered. As she stood there she might have been the portrait of herself, such a look had she of unchanging quiet, and the wonder and incredulity which always seized me at the sight of her to reconcile what I knew with what she seemed was strong upon me.

When her young sister had dismounted and gone up the steps she kissed her, and the two entered the hall, clinging together in a way which was pretty to see. I never saw such love betwixt two where there was not full sympathy, and that was lacking always and lacked more in the future, through the difference in their two temperaments got from different mothers.

Madam Cavendish was still in her bedchamber, and the two sisters and I dined together in the great hall. Then, after the meal was over, I went forth with my book of Sir William Davenant's plays and sought a favorite place of mine in the woods and stayed there till sundown.

Then, rising and going homeward when the mist floated over the marshlands like veils of silver gauze and the frogs chorused through it in waves of sound and birds were circling above it, calling sweetly with fluting notes or screaming with the harsh trumpet clang of the sea fowl, I heard of a sudden, just as the sun sank below the western sky, a mighty din of horns and bells and voices from the direction of Jamestown. I knew that the sports which a certain part of the community would have on a Sabbath after sundown, when they felt so inclined, had begun. Since the king had been restored such sports had been observed now and then, according to the humor of the governor and the minister and the others in authority.

Laws had been from time to time set forth that the night after the Sabbath, the Sabbath being considered to cease at sundown, should be kept with decorum, but seldom were they enforced, and often, as now, a great din arose when the first gloom overspread the earth. However, that night was the 30th of April, the night before May day, and there was more merrymaking in consequence, though May was not here as in England, and even in England not what it had been in the first Charles' reign.

But they kept up their rollicking late that night, for the window of my chamber being toward Jamestown, and the wind that way, I could hear them till I fell asleep. At midnight I awakened suddenly at the sound of a light laugh, which I knew to be Mary Cavendish's. There was never in the maid any power of secrecy when her humor overcame her. She laughed again, and I heard a hushing voice, which I knew to be neither her sister's nor grandmother's, but a man's.

I was up and dressed in a trice, and sword in hand, and out of my window, which was on the first floor, and there was Mistress Mary and Sir Humphrey Hyde. I stepped between them and thrust aside Sir Humphrey, who would have opposed me. "Go into the house, madam," said I to her, and pointed to the door, which stood open.

Then, while she hesitated, half shrinking before me, with her old habit of obedience strong upon her, yet with angry willfulness urging her to rebellion, forth stepped her distant cousin Ralph Drake from behind a white flowering thicket, and demanded to know what that cursed convict fellow did there, and had he not a right to parley with his cousin, and was her honor not safe with her kinsman, and he an English gentleman? I perceived by Ralph Drake's voice that he had perchance been making gay with the revelers at Jamestown, and stood still when he came bullyingly toward me, but at that minute Mistress Mary spoke.

"I will not have such language to my tutor, Cousin Ralph," said she,

Ralph Drake and his shadow

"and I will have you to understand it. He is a gentleman as well as yourself, and you owe him an apology." So saying, she stamped her foot and looked at Ralph Drake, her eyes flashing in the moonlight. But Ralph Drake, whose face I could see was flushed, even in that whiteness of light, flung away with an oath muttered under his breath, and struck out across the lawn, his black shadow stalking before him.

Then Mistress Mary turned and bade me good night in the sweetest and most curious fashion, as if nothing unusual had happened, and yet with a softness in voice as if she would fain make amends for her cousin's rough speech, and fluttered in through the open door like a white moth, and left me alone with Sir Humphrey Hyde.

Sir Humphrey was but a lad to me, scarcely older than Mistress Mary, for all his great stature. He stood before me, scraping the shell walk with the end of his riding whip. Both men had ridden hither, and I at that moment heard Ralph Drake's horse's hard trot.

"If you come courting Mistress Mary Cavendish, 'tis for her guardians, her grandmother and elder sister to deal with you concerning the time and place you choose," said I, "but if it be on any other errand"—

"Good God, Harry," broke in Sir Humphrey, "do you think I am come love making in such fashion and with Ralph Drake in his cups, though I swear he fastened himself to me against my will?"

I waited a moment. Sir Humphrey had been much about the place since he was a mere lad and had had, I believe, a sort of boyish good will toward me. Not much love had he for books, but I was accounted a fair shot and had some knowledge of sports of hunting and fishing and had given him some lessons, and he had followed me about some few years before, somewhat to the uneasiness of his mother, who could not forget that I was a convict.

I cast about in my mind what to say, being resolved not to betray Mary Cavendish, even did this man know what I could betray, and yet being resolved to have some understanding of what was afoot.

"A man of honor includes not maidens in plots, Sir Humphrey," said I finally.

Sir Humphrey stammered and looked at me and looked away again. Then suddenly spake Mistress Mary from her window overhead, set in a climbing trumpet vine, and so loudly and recklessly that had not her grandmother and sister been on the farther side of the house they must have heard her. "'Tis not Sir Humphrey included the maid in the plot, but the maid who included Sir Humphrey," said she. Then she laughed, and at the same moment a mockbird trilled in a tree.

"Why do you not tell Master Wingfield that the maid and not you nor Cousin Ralph is the prime mover in this mystery of the cargo of furbelows on the Golden Horn?" said she, and laughed again.

"I shield not myself behind a maiden's skirts," said Sir Humphrey grimly.

"Then," cried Mary, "will I tell thee, Master Wingfield, what it means. He cannot betray us, Humphrey, for his tongue is tied with honor, even if he be not on our side. But he is on our side, as is every true Englishman." Then Mary Cavendish leaned far out the window, and a white lace scarf she wore floated forth, and she cried with a great burst of triumph and childish enthusiasm: "I will tell thee what it means, Master Wingfield; I will tell thee what it means. I am but a maid, but the footsteps of General Bacon be yet plain enough to follow in this soil of Virginia, and—and—the king gets not our tobacco crops!"

Cranberry Crop Suffers

Chatham, Mass., Sept. 24.—Reports from surrounding towns show that the unusually fine Cape Cod cranberry crop has suffered considerable damage from the recent frosts. One grower lost 500 barrels. As a rule the small growers suffered most, for they occupy low land and do not have the irrigation facilities of the large owners, who flood the bog during frost and thus often save the crop.

Found Bunch of Counterfeits

Meriden, Conn., Sept. 24.—Detective Henry of the United States secret service came here last night and confiscated the 65 counterfeit $5 bills found by boys near the railroad track in the south part of this city. Several bills were passed in Hartford, it is said, and all those given away by the boys in this city were found. The notes are poor imitations.

Little Girl Crushed to Death

Medford, Mass., Sept. 24.—Elizabeth Mahoney, 3 years old, was run over and almost instantly killed by a car of the Boston Elevated railway. The child started to cross the street and stumbled upon the track. She was not run over, but was crushed against the guard of the trucks. No blame is attached to either the motorman or conductor.

Burglars Active In Maine

Houlton, Me., Sept. 24.—The second burglary in Aroostook county in two nights occurred at New Limerick, and a quantity of goods was taken from the general store of W. I. Shaw. The first break was in a local store, where clothing valued at $500 was taken.

Discouraged by Ill Health

Boston, Sept. 24.—Henry F. Gerlach, aged 31, for a number of years official scorer at the Charles River bicycle park, committed suicide last night by shooting. Continued ill-health is said to have been the cause of his deed.

No Bill In Skillings Case

Alfred, Me., Sept. 24.—The grand jury reported "no bill" in the case of George Skillings of South Limington, whose bruised body was found in his well.

Insured for $2,000,000

L. Rodman Wanamaker, son of John Wanamaker, the eminent merchant of New York and Philadelphia, has taken out a policy in

The Prudential Insurance Co.

for $1,000,000, paying an annual premium of over $30,000. This makes him the most heavily insured man in the world, with the single exception of King Edward VII.

Mr. Wanamaker's total insurance is now $2,000,000.

Ask yourself WHY Mr. Wanamaker placed one-half this great amount with The Prudential.

Your business judgment will at once reply: "Because after full investigation and comparison, Mr. Wanamaker found that the company which could give him the best insurance for a given amount of money was The Prudential."

Undoubtedly you will agree that Mr. Wanamaker does not pay over $30,000 per year except for most excellent reasons.

These reasons apply to YOU precisely as well as they do to HIM.

OLD JUNK

By FRANCES McELRATH

Copyright, 1904, by Frances McElrath

"I SHOULD like to know any man that has a better right to charity than old Thomas White. He's done his part taking care of the county for forty years, and now I say he may go to the poorhouse holding up his head like a man—like a man, sir."

Old Reuben Marsh could advocate another's dependency as he stood secure behind the counter of his own shop. The notion shop was tiny, and the income derived from it was meager, but it afforded support for Reuben's simple household, and it meant all the sweetness of independence to the old man.

"I shall contribute willingly to Thomas White's support," he said, his voice rising to a shrill crack of emphasis. Then he peered closely at the paper in his hand. "This is my order, John," he said to the bright faced young traveling man to whom he was talking. "Have the stationery here by next week. Good morning, John."

Kathie came out of the sitting room behind the little shop. She waved her hand lightly to Reuben as she tripped across the floor. John Tracy opened the door for her, and they walked together down the street.

John turned his speculative, business seeing eyes on the window of the notion shop as they passed it.

"Your grandfather ought really to make a handsome thing out of his business way up at this end of town," he remarked, "but he's growing rather too shipshape in his methods lately. He keeps his goods packed away so carefully no one knows any more what he has for sale. But I expect," he said, turning to his companion, "you'll be looking out for that end of the business when you finish school."

Kathie's pretty face flushed pink.

"I must leave you here, John. Good-by!" she said.

She walked away briskly up the hill to the boarding house beside the girls' college. It was almost time for the college term to begin, and she knew that Jennie Fry was coming over from Nestor that afternoon to secure her room for the year.

Jennie met her at the boarding house door.

"Oh, Kathie," she exclaimed as they embraced, "Uncle Phil says he can get it for you! As soon as you graduate at Christmas you must make your application!"

"How splendid!"

"We shall have such good times together!" said Jennie, administering an anticipative hug. "I'm sure you'll like Nestor much better than Bilton."

"Couldn't help it," agreed Kathie. "Well, that's all I came for. I must run home again now and tell grandpa and Aunt Mary about it."

A little later when Kathie entered the sitting room behind the shop she found her aunt standing at the window holding a letter.

"Aunt Mary," Kathie began, "I know something fine!"

Mary Marsh turned toward her. There was an unusual flush on her face.

"Did father tell you?" she asked.

"What?"

"About Preston."

"Preston?"

"Yes. He's got a short leave to come home, and he wants me to go back to China with him at once."

"Why, Aunt Mary!"

"We're to be married next Monday."

"You are!" Kathie gathered her aunt's slim form into her vigorous young embrace. Mary Marsh's engagement had been a matter of such long standing her family had almost forgotten that it might ever terminate in a wedding.

"MISS ROME WANTS THESE THINGS FOR THE COLLEGE."

Mary's preparations absorbed the household until the wedding took place. Kathie managed the simple wedding. She was lately developing a considerable faculty for managing. Old Reuben, dressed in a well brushed ancient suit of black, gave his daughter away.

He looked across the table at Kathie as they were eating supper together the night after Mary left home.

"Well, Kathie," he observed, "so you're the only one I have left now to take care of!"

"Oh, grandpa," she returned earnestly, "I'm not going to be a burden on your hands! Indeed, I'm going to take care of you instead! I don't mean that you shall work much longer."

Reuben smiled indulgently. "There's a good deal of work left in the old man yet," he replied proudly.

"That may be, but you're not going to do it. As soon as I graduate at Christmas time I'm going to make you close your shop."

Reuben laid down his knife and fork.

"Hey!" he said reprovingly.

Kathie colored. "I mean," she explained, "that Jennie Fry's uncle says he can get me a position in the new school that's to be opened in Nestor the 1st of February, and then"—

"Then I shall be sorry to lose you, my dear," Reuben broke in, with dignified asperity. "But if it's for your happiness"—

"Why, of course, grandpa, you'll come with me! I want to take care of you now."

Reuben's steady blue eyes looked quietly at Kathie.

"I've supported this family during three generations," he said. "I've always been hardworking. When I was a boy at sea I supported my father and mother. Then when I settled down I had my own family to raise, and then"—

"And then after father died you took care of mother and me. Yes, indeed, grandpa, you've taken care of every one. You have certainly earned the right to be taken care of yourself now."

"I have certainly earned the right to go on taking care of myself!" quavered the old man in retort.

Kathie said no more. She never had argued with her grandfather. Of course she could not leave him. "I'll have to give up the school!" she thought disconsolately.

The college opened the day after Mary Marsh's wedding, and Reuben was up at daybreak polishing his little shop into shining brightness. The college was largely attended this term, and he had laid in a proportionately large supply of goods.

The old man's memory was failing slightly. As Kathie went through the shop on her way out to college she saw him peeping into various boxes carefully, noting their contents before customers should come in.

Her intention was to tell Jennie Fry that she must give up all idea of the Nestor school, but it was a hard thing to do, and when as she was opening the subject Jennie gave her a squeeze and began talking of how Kathie must join the musical club at Nestor her heart quite failed. "We'll play duets together," said Jennie.

"Yes," Kathie agreed slowly, "but—do you really think grandpa would be happy there?"

"Why, certainly," asserted Jennie. "There's the dearest little house back of ours that I'm sure you can get. It has a garden that your grandfather will just love."

"Kathie!" Miss Rome, one of the teachers, called. "Here, my dear," she said pleasantly when Kathie reached her desk, "is a list of the stationery we shall need through the term. Please see to getting it."

Kathie took the list and went out. She started mechanically for her grandfather's shop, but after going a few blocks she suddenly stopped. Then she turned abruptly in the opposite direction and walked very fast to Sam Green's large department store in the far end of town.

"Mr. Green," she said, "Miss Rome wants these things for the college."

Sam looked over the list.

"Why, Miss Kathie," he replied surprisedly, "I can fill the order, of course, but I usually leave things of this sort for your grandfather's trade."

"Well, Mr. Green"—Kathie's heart was beating rapidly with a new determination she had made—"I'm not working up grandpa's trade now," she said. "In fact, as soon as I graduate in December I'm going to take the school in Nestor and make him give up working."

Reuben waited expectantly for the large order of stationery supplies for the college to come in. He was in the habit of receiving this order every fall, and he had come to regard it as a regular source of income. After a week went by he mentioned the matter to Kathie. She evaded his questioning eyes as she answered him:

"They got the supplies from Sam Green this fall."

"Indeed!" Reuben uttered a note of consternation. "Ah, well," he said, cheerfully recovering himself, "I mustn't expect to get all the college trade."

"My dear," he said as Kathie was starting away next morning, "if the opportunity comes you might let the young ladies know that I've an exceptionally fine assortment of laces and veils this season."

The girls did not come to buy his veils. Kathie carefuly avoided speaking of them. In fact, she diverted such bits of trade as she knew of to the other stores.

As the days went by Reuben's genial old face took on a graveness new to it. He was not selling his goods, and that meant he was not supporting his household. The little shop did not yield large enough profits to lay anything aside.

"Don't worry, grandpa, if you do go a little into debt," Kathie said one evening. "If it seems best after all for me to take the Nestor school I can easily save something from my salary to pay up here."

Reuben gave a little sigh. Presently he got up and took an old mariner's compass down from a shelf. The instrument was closely associated with his days of vigorous manhood.

Kathie watched him. "Grandpa's failing!" she declared. And she told herself that it was well that just at the right moment she had been able to take matters into her own hands. She would not acknowledge to herself that her determined young will, overmastering her grandfather's, was breaking him.

"Grandpa," she said, looking up from her studies one evening, "there's the dearest little house that Jennie says we can get at Nestor. It has a lovely garden for your flowers next summer."

Reuben made no reply. He did not look at Kathie. He sat with his eyes fixed on his compass. All at once he made a last desperate move to hold the ground which was shifting from under his feet. He got up, put on his hat and coat, tucked his compass under his arm and went out. Kathie called after him, but he did not answer.

In about an hour he returned, however, still carrying his compass. He set it upon the table, still with a pathetic little smile.

"I guess," he said, pointing to the instrument, "that we've gone out of fashion together. Sam Green says it would only sell for old junk. I thought maybe if I could raise some money with it I'd put an advertisement for the shop in the newspaper."

"Now, don't you worry about that shop any more, grandpa!" Kathie cried energetically. "Just sit down here by the fire and drink this hot milk."

Reuben took the cup obediently. He drank the milk, but he did not relish it much.

Kathie was a good scholar. She graduated with honors just before the holidays. The 1st of January she was to go to Nestor to make final arrangements about the school and to engage the little house she and Jennie Fry had spoken of so often. The day before she planned to go to Nestor Jennie came in to talk matters over.

Reuben, hearing the girls talking, had slipped into the sitting room from his shop and listened to the conversation. He had been quite dropped out of family consultations lately.

After Jennie left Reuben went slowly away again to his shop. Kathie was busily packing a little later when she heard the shop door bell ring. The bell rang whenever the door was opened. Presently it rang again. "Grandpa seems to be having customers," thought Kathie. She was surprised a moment later to hear a third ring. Not long after there came a fourth ring, then a fifth.

"Well!" ejaculated Kathie.

She laid down her work and, opening the sitting room door on a crack, peeped into the shop. She could not see the customers, but her grandfather was talking to them animatedly.

"Who are the people?" thought Kathie.

"Yes, sir," Reuben was saying. "Just one moment, please, until I wait on this gentleman. Yes, indeed; take it to the light and examine it. Now, madam, this is the sample. Here is the very thing; not a shade of difference. You'll take three yards of the wide? Yes, yes, ma'am; I'm pretty busy. You see, I'm all alone just now. My granddaughter has stepped out on an errand, but she'll be in presently and help wait on my customers. Oh, indeed, she helps in the shop considerably. We keep our little business together. Kathie's a good girl, a very capable girl, and she turned to with a will to work in the shop when she finished school. Yes, ma'am, she stood by her old grandfather. She remembered how he'd stood by her ever since she was a baby. She was a weakly child, ma'am. Her mother and I used to walk the floor half the night with her sometimes when she was teething. She used to like to creep about the shop here when she was a little mite. Yes'm, we've always lived in this house. You see, I am too old to go away now. An old man is like a tree with deep roots; he can't be transplanted easily. And so we're going to stick to the little shop still. There, ma'am, is your parcel. Now, what can I do for you, sir?"

Kathie's face was a study of scarlet bewilderment.

"Who is grandpa talking to?" she murmured, and, overcome with curiosity, she stuck her head quite into the shop.

Save for Reuben it was empty. The old man, standing behind his counter, holding up this article and that, tying up packages, opening boxes, chattering away entertainingly, was waiting on a shopful of purely imaginary customers.

Kathie realized the soul of the situation with a hard pang. The scalding tears sprang to her eyes.

"It's a tragedy!" she said.

With a little sob she softly closed the door and ran to her own room. She threw on her things and hurried out of the house by the back way. She had seen John Tracy, the young drummer from whom her grandfather bought goods, on the street that morning.

"John's in town, and he'll help me," she thought.

John was readily found at Sam Green's. After talking with him a few minutes Kathie hurried back home.

There had been a long lull in the ringing of the shop bell, but after awhile it began again—once, twice, three times!

Kathie dropped her work excitedly and ran into the shop.

Her grandfather had fallen into a quiet reverie. When the bell rang he looked across the counter without changing his expression. John Tracy and two other men had come in, but old Reuben fancied them his customers—still the creatures of his recent dream. It was not until John spoke that he roused up.

"Good afternoon, Mr. Marsh," John said brightly. "I've brought some of my friends around to look at your neckties. I expect we'll all want a few of them."

"Hey?" said old Reuben. "Ah, yes, yes!" He turned to the shelves bewildered.

"Here they are, grandpa," said Kathie at his elbow. "And, see, there come Sallie Vane and Nettie Thurston. They want some veils, I know. Oh, see what a lot of people are coming!"

All that afternoon until dark the shop bell kept ringing. Kathie stood at her grandfather's side measuring goods and showing articles. Some of the people that came in bought goods; some merely asked to see them.

"Go to Marsh's, anyhow," John told every one he met, "even if you just look at something. It will encourage the old fellow."

When the shutter was set up at 6 o'clock Kathie threw her strong, penitent arms about Reuben's neck.

"Grandpa," she cried, "trade's picking up. We can never leave this, of course. Why, we'd always feel that we'd risked a fortune if we left here now for Nestor. I'll write Mr. Fry tonight that we can't possibly give up our business for the school. There are forty teachers he can get instead of me."

Reuben's face was like a ruddy old apple when he blew out the shop lamp and walked into the sitting room for supper.

"No need of you leaving home to teach just yet, Kathie, child," he chuckled cheerfully. "I'll just pilot this craft for us both awhile longer."

"And I'll just keep my hand on the rudder and do what I can to make it go straight," thought Kathie, planning how she and John should dress up the shop window the next day.

"HONEST, RIGHT, TRUE"

President Roosevelt So Described In Connecticut Convention of Republicans.

United States Senator O. H. Platt Rouses Great Enthusiasm In Happy Speech.

[Associated Press dispatch from Hartford, Conn., Sept. 13.]

In a vigorous defense of the Republican administration United States Senator Orville H. Platt, as temporary chairman, awakened much enthusiasm at the opening of the Republican state convention in the Auditorium tonight, the delegates and spectators cheering repeatedly the name of Theodore Roosevelt.

Senator Platt said:

"Theodore Roosevelt was not nominated as the standard bearer of the Republican party either by the efforts of designing and managing politicians or to please capitalistic Wall street. He was nominated in obedience to the express will of the people—nominated with the acclaim of the people. No man can ever be nominated for president of the United States by acclamation in whom the people do not heartily, thoroughly and enthusiastically believe. It only waits for November to show the overwhelming extent of this confidence. Sneers will not belittle him; denunciations will not frighten him; personal attack will not weaken him, for he has already won his place in a safe and sure stronghold—the hearts and homes of the American people.

"He came to the discharge of presidential duties under most fearful and trying circumstances. He has trod where the wisest and bravest might have feared to tread—in the footsteps of the illustrious and beloved McKinley. He has gone forward along the pathway of duty without hesitation, without flinching, strong in rectitude, honest in purpose, with lofty courage and unimpeachable wisdom. If the Democratic party chooses to make Roosevelt, the man, the issue to this campaign we welcome that issue without fear. Every citizen of the United States from the professional politician to the schoolboy in his teens knows that in the heart of Theodore Roosevelt, the president, there is one overshadowing purpose, and that is to do what Roosevelt, the man, believes to be honest, right and true. What has he done that was not honest and right and true? In the interest of all that makes for American honor let us have a president who has but one guiding principle, and that to do what he believes to be right for the honor of his country, for the upbuilding of its people, for the glory of its name. Would they have the people think him unsafe? No man is unsafe whose life is clean and pure and noble and who walks in one path only, the path where duty seems to him to point. In all that represents American manhood, American character, American progress, American welfare, Theodore Roosevelt stands forth today our most conspicuous example. It was because the Republicans of the United States recognized this that they demanded with one voice that he should be called to further duty and further service in that most exalted of all places, in that most responsible and wearing of all positions, the presidency of the United States.

"Unsafe? Who have been his advisers? Who stand as his supporters and admirers? Let me name three of them—three whom all men honor, all men trust—Elihu Root, John Hay, William H. Taft. Is the man unsafe who selects such advisers? It matters little that the man who has figured as chief adviser of the Democratic candidate has advertised that he is now playing a farewell engagement. Even Democrats would be glad to know that their candidate if elected would find as worthy and capable advisers."

A STRONG DOCUMENT.

Even His Opponents Say It Is Masterly.

[From the New York World, Dem.]

President Roosevelt's letter of acceptance gives further and stronger proof of his ability, astuteness and capacity for party leadership. It justifies the words used in the World's first open letter, which even some of his supporters thought were exaggerated. It reveals Mr. Roosevelt far more than did his colorless speech of acceptance as a "strong, able, ambitious, resourceful, militant, passionate personality."

The president shows equal acumen and cleverness in emphasizing the strong points in the Republican position and the weak points in the Democratic record. Putting aside the question of sincerity and of strict accuracy and making allowance for the heat and exigency of partisan combat, the letter is extremely clever and likely to prove effective unless corrected and exposed.

Comment upon other portions of Mr. Roosevelt's letter is reserved for other occasions. It should be said at once, however, that he is entitled to credit for frankly giving the voters due notice that in case of his election "we intend in the future to carry on the government in the same way that we have carried it on in the past."

Democracy and Its Discords.

[From the Pittsburg Dispatch.]

What the Democracy needs is a piano tuner. The sharps and flats of its keyboard are sadly discordant.

UNDER PROTECTION.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

The Boston and New York Americans are neck and neck in the finish of the base ball season. This morning the New Yorks led by three-tenths of one per cent. having won two less and lost two less than the Bostons. The Bostons have games to play with the Detroits, Clevelands, St. Louis, Chicagos and New Yorks, closing the season with their rivals in New York city Oct. 10. The New Yorks have games with the Clevelands, Detroits, Chicagos, St. Louis and Bostons in the order named. It will be an exciting finish.

When some of the local trains between Quincy and Boston were removed a few weeks ago, it was anticipated that they would be restored by the winter schedule. Some of these trains were popular and well patronized, and the crowded condition of many Quincy trains shows a large traffic. One of these trains in particular is wanted, the one just before 7 P. M. to Boston. The 7.12 train is usually late, and those who rely on it to reach the theatre at 7.45 or even 8, are often late.

The announcement of President Mellen of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R., that none of these trains will be restored, is therefore a matter of regret. Quincy is not particular about an express train, but if some of the expresses which pass through Quincy about 7 P. M. made the stop it would be an easy solution.

President Mellen says: "This whole question of suburban train service is one of the most perplexing problems that confront the company. As the matter stands we are losing money right along on this service, as the result of carrying passengers for a trolley-line rate, and in some instances the expense of maintenance is twice as much as the income.

"Under these circumstances, I do not see how we can afford to increase the number of these trains until some different system of propulsion is adopted. The service certainly cannot be profitably maintained on the present basis of steam power. As far as I know at present, there will be no additions made to the present number of suburban trains out of Boston, and I have not been advised that there is any urgent need of an increase.

"We have not yet been able to make any definite plans with respect to electrical equipment, with which the solution of this suburban problem seems to rest, and it is not likely that we will be able to do so right away."

Drift of Opinion.

☞The conclusions of the Naval Board appointed to inquire into the subject of liquid fuel for use on board warships have been given to the public. It is announced that the board regards the engineering and mechanical features of the problem as practically and satisfactorily solved, but it does not believe that the successful and exclusive use of oil on board a battleship can be brought about for some years. The board says: "For mercantile purposes the commercial and transportation features of the problem are existing bars which limit the use of oil fuel in merchant ships. For naval purposes there is the additional and serious difficulty to be overcome of providing a satisfactory and safe structural arrangement. While the board does not believe that oil will be immediately substituted for coal, it leaves the inference to be drawn that there is a future for this kind of fuel, and that the opportunity is open for our inventors to overcome the one difficulty of carrying a sufficient supply.—Lynn Item.

☞That no army officer be permitted to marry until he has first secured the permission of the secretary of war and satisfied that official that his income is sufficient to support himself and family and that he is entirely free from debt, is the recommendation made by Maj.-Gen. Corbin, adjutant general. Some people have said that Gen. Cobin should not interfere with the affairs of Cupid, and have chided him for his action in this important matter affecting human hearts. From a business point of view however, the general can be forgiven by sensible people. If there were a law compelling all citizens who contemplated marriage to prove their ability to support a family, there would be less unhappiness in the world, and there would be vastly less work for the courts and for the overseers of the poor. The book theory that humans can live on love and little else is disproven every day so thoroughly that nobody with the intellect of an army mule believes any longer but that marriage should be governed in a measure at least by common sense business principles. An army officer, accustomed as many are to extravagance and display and pleasure, oftentimes has all he wants to do to take care of himself.—Brockton Enterprise.

Funeral of Samuel Baxter.

The ceremonies attending the burial of the late Samuel Baxter of Washington, Saturday afternoon, Sept. 17th, were of a most pathetic and solemn character. Deceased was past master of Harmony lodge, No. 17, F. A. A. M., and the impressive service of the Blue lodge was conducted at the grave by Dr. Clarence A. Weaver, master of the lodge, while the service of the G. A. R. was performed by Alfred Shaw, vice commander of Meade Post, and the religious services by Rev. Mr. Bratenahl of St. Alban's church.

Samuel Baxter was said to be a remarkable man in his attachment to Masonry and was regarded as an authority on Masonic law and precedent. For years he had charge of every funeral conducted by Harmony lodge.

Mr. Baxter was a native of Quincy and a brother of the late James S. Baxter of this city. Aged 76 years and 4 months.

To the Republican Voters.

On account of certain rumors circulated in Quincy to the effect that Mr. Edward J. Sandberg is seeking the nomination for Representative as only the Swedish candidate, the friends of Mr. Sandberg feel called upon to repute any such statements, which certainly are inventions pure and simple, and put forth with the sole intention to prejudice his candidacy in the eyes of the voters. Mr. Sandberg consents to be a candidate purely on his merits as a true American citizen and a worker for the Republican party and realizes fully the responsibility and duty to represent the whole community and not any particular class.

MORE DRILLING NEEDED.

General Wheeler Says We Must Follow Europe In Training Soldiers.

Brigadier General Joseph Wheeler, retired, who attended the military maneuvers at Manassas, recently expressed the opinion that the maneuvers must not only be continued, but conducted on a larger and more scientific scale, says a Washington special dispatch to the New York Times.

"The old school of the army," said General Wheeler, "was the training of the pioneers in the forests of the south and the mountains and plains of the west. Having lost our old school, we must start a new one, and we are following Europe to that extent.

"The American, because of the destruction of his vast forests, is no longer the rifleman he was in the days of Washington, Jackson and up to the civil war. He must learn again. We are approaching the condition of Europe, where every man has to be taught the use of firearms by the authorities. Maneuvers are necessary. They are the best sort of schooling for officers and men alike.

"It is time the United States educated its troops regularly in the most modern tactics of warfare, and I believe the best way to do this is to drill them in maneuvers. We must have educated soldiers as well as officers to keep pace with other nations.

"In almost every case where the commanders had had time in the civil war to maneuver their troops before their battles they won victories. The defeat at Shiloh was due to the undrilled condition of the troops, the wagon trains and columns becoming irretrievably tangled.

"The recent maneuvers have been the greatest military school the United States has had since the war with Spain, and I hope that next year they will be held on even a larger scale."

Those who are going on vacations next week will do well to take some of their winter clothes with them, if this weather continues.

DANGEROUS.

Dynamite to be Handled with Care.

Silly Things are Said About Safety.

Disasters are Frequently Reported in the Press.

There are quarrymen and contractors in Quincy who claim that dynamite is not dangerous, if properly handled, and think they know all about the explosive, but experts say it is always dangerous. There is a feeling in Quincy, since the Melrose disaster, that the recently adopted city ordinance is not strong enough, especially as to transportation.

The Globe says:

Dynamite, which was the cause of the Melrose disaster, consists merely of nitroglycerin which has been absorbed by some porus material like a sliceous earth.

According to civil engineer, contractors and those dealing in high explosives, it is safe if treated with reasonable care.

Much has been said concerning the impunity with which this deadly explosive may be handled, but were there at hand a few pages of statistics touching on the dynamite disasters which have shocked the people within a decade any sane person would soon fix in mind an unshakable conviction that the material, under all conditions, should be handled with extreme caution.

The detonating composition of dynamite is nitroglycerin, and like all detonators it has no time to seek paths of least resistance when it explodes. Its force is every way-up and down and out on all sides. It is the basis of all high explosives, and is a blend of common dressing table glycerin and nitric acid.

An Italian named Sobrero discovered this potential liquid back in the middle 40s. but its transport from place to place and its use for blasting or for military purposes was attended with such danger that but little use was made of it until two years after the close of the American civil war, when a European named Nobel discovered a way to make it less sensitive to the effect of shock. His find was called dynamite.

Since its general adoption for blasting purposes lots of silly things have been said concerning its absolute safety. Agents for houses haudling it have extolled its virtues in this respect, assuring would-be purchasers that a stick of it might be thrown against a brick wall with all the force of a long-distance ball thrower without the least danger.

"Not long ago," said one of the engineers employed by the city, "I heard a man engaged in blasting out a corner of a foundation place tell another that a box of dynamite might be dropped from the top of the Ames building with perfect safety; that the 'stuff' couldn't be made to go off unless a detonating cap attached to a fuse were employed.

"Talk of that kind has a tendency to make those handling dynamite careless. The fact is, this explosive, which, weight for weight, is about four times more powerful than gunpowder, is not to be trusted. It has its moods, if you care to put it that way, and when least expected it lets go, killing or wrecking everything in close touch. It is heavier than powder, and bulk for bulk about seven times more powerful.

"Sticks of dynamite and even several pounds of it in a box have been dropped from considerable heights without disaster. Carloads of it have been smashed to flinders in railway wrecks without causing it to explode, yet it was not more than three or four years ago when a workman in Roxbury dropped a box containing several cartridges while crossing a ledge, and was blown to pieces.

"Well-made dynamite should withstand an immense amount of shock, and really not explode unless detonated in the usual way. But all dynamite is not normal, that is, some of it is imperfect. For instance, dynamite to be practically safe should possess a complete absorption of the nitroglycerin. One drop of the liquid left exposed would detonate with shock and set off all the explosives near it. Poor absorption renders this explosive dangerous.

"Quite likely such was the case with the Melrose dynamite, which, had the shock been greater, might have exploded when it fell from the cart. The car, however, hit it a severe blow, and away it went.

"It is nonsense for anyone to say that dynamite may be tossed about and let drop on the bricks or pavements with impunity, or that a stick of it thrown into a fire would simply burn up like a piece of wood.

"Dynamite will burn until the burning part raises the temperature of the part still unburned above the detonating point of 200 degrees farenheit, when an explosion would take place. Were a stick of it to be thrown into a brisk fire the probability is that an explosion would occur before conbustion got well under way.

"The press for a dozen years back has printed incidents innumerable to falsify the statement that dynamite cannot be exploded by shock such as might be received in a railway collision or from falling. Laborers have frequently been killed by striking old unexploded charges of dynamite with their picks. Such a thing occurred last January in New York.

"Men were engaged under the museum of Natural History in driving a tunnel to connect two cellars when a charge of dynamite that refused to explode 16 years years ago, when the museum was built, was struck by a drill and went off, killing one of the workmen and maiming several others.

"Within a twelve month a carload of the same explosive was exploded in a collision on the Southern Pacific railway 85 miles from Ogden, wrecking every building within half a mile. Then, too, there are instances of even a railway collision shock, in which the dynamite itself was smashed and crumbled, failing to explode it.

"The fact is dynamite is dangerous all the time and should be handled with extreme care."

Marketable dynamite is made in round sticks ranging in diameter from one-half an inch to three inches, and in length from two and one-half inches to a foot, and is exploded by a cap of fulminate of mercury like the large percussion caps of muzzle-loader days. A fuse or electric spark is used to set off the cap, which in turn explodes the dynamite by its spark and sudden concussion.

Seventeen years ago when several Chicago patrolmen were killed by a bomb hurled by an anarchist, it was said that the explosive used was dynamite. It was also said that the man who tried to kill Russell Sage a few years ago employed the same explosive, but it is more likely that bomb throwers get nearer to pure nitroglycerin that they may be sure of an explosion when the bomb is dropped or thrown.

They could not depend upon commercial dynamite to do their work, as the shock of the throw might not be great enough to detonate the cartridge.

There is nothing in the general belief that the force of a dynamite explosion is all in one direction. It is tremendous every way, rock weighing tons having frequently been shattered to roadbed filling by exploding dynamite on the op surface.

Reception.

The South church chapel at South Braintree, which is usually so quiet and sober wore an unwonted air of festivity on Monday evening, brilliant autumn leaves and fragrant flowers, adorned walls and tables whereas could be found a niche, loving hands made the place a bower of beauty the occasion being the welcome home of our most faithful church treasurer Mr. B. F. Dyer.

There was good cheer in the kitchen as well as a table with snowy white cloth and laden with sweets afforded very dainty refreshments. Cuff's Orchestra furnished delightful music and the people from church and parish besides many personal friends filled the chapel. Surely there could be no doubting the wish apparent to make glad the home coming of Mr. Dyer and daughter, handshaking and cordial words of greeting abounded and a pleasant hour spent, chatting of the old times and the new.

In a few well chosen words Mr. Crathern in behalf of the South Congregational church and parish presented Miss Annie Dyer with a lovely bunch of carnations as a mark of friendship and esteem, and to Mr. B. F. Dyer a very handsome silver loving cup.

Mr. Dyer expressed cordial thanks and appreciation and the after pause was filled by the strains of the old time song, "Shall old acquaintance be forgot."

Simmons college and the Museum of Fine Arts has arranged for a course of lectures on the History of Art for the teachers of Boston and neighborhood. The lectures are designed to serve as a means of acquainting teachers with the availability of the collections for illustrating their subjects of instruction. The course will consist of ten lectures to be given Saturday mornings at half past nine at the Museum, beginning Nov. 5th. Miss Annie B. Thompson of Thayer academy will lecture on Methods of Museum Work in connection with Greek and Roman History and Mythology.

Protection Wanted.

It is hoped that certain parts of last Saturday night's performances will not be repeated tonight. Residents of the Point are beginning to think that there is no more sleep for them after eleven o'clock on Saturday nights. Everything is quiet until about ten o'clock and then the noise begins. It does seem strange, says a resident, that no stop can be put to these disturbances.

Registration of Voters.

Sixty more names were added to the voting lists by the Registrars of Voters, making the total for the caucuses 4,680. The new voters are distributed as follows: Ward One, 15; Ward Two, 7; Ward Three, 13; Ward Four, 4; Ward Five, 26; and Ward Six, 1.

LINCOLN AND LONDON.

Tower Dedicated to Our President In an English Church.

"With charity for all and malice toward none"—these well known words of the great, brave, sagacious Lincoln—appear in large lettering in the creed of Christ church, Westminster road. It is fitting, then, that the imposing tower of this superb structure, costing over £62,000 ($310,000), should be dedicated to the liberator of a race. Rowland Hill, whose name is linked with the world's great preachers, founded Surrey chapel eighteen years before the close of the eighteenth century. Newman Hall was one of his successors, and under his leadership the church secured this splendid temple and center of Christian service. When the building was still in the hands of the architects Dr. Hall conceived the idea of dedicating the tower to Abraham Lincoln, the martyred president of the United States, and today within the tower you may read the following inscription:

LINCOLN TOWER.
Inaugurated 4th July, A. D. 1876, by Sir Thomas Fowell Buxton Bart.
The memorial stone was laid 9th July 1874, By the American Minister to this country.
The cost (£7,000) was defrayed equally by English and American contributions obtained by the Rev. Newman Hall, LL.B.
It was built in commemoration of the abolition of slavery effected in 1865 by PRESIDENT LINCOLN;
And as a token of international brotherhood.
GLORY TO GOD IN THE HIGHEST.
—St. Nicholas.

THE JAPANESE BABY.

Showered With Gifts Before It Even Makes Its Appearance.

A hundred gifts in various shapes are offered to the baby before its appearance—toys, big ones, of course; pieces of cotton, silk or crepe, invariably with a happy omen in their design, are a joy to the mother. The housemaids will be busy with the baby's dress under the supervision of the grandmother. It will be no slight affair if the baby is a boy—yes, especially if it be the first son.

Parties coming with their congratulations will begin to stream into the house the very next morning after the announcement. They will bring dried fish or a box of eggs to express their good wishes, which will be returned in some form of present when the baby is two weeks old.

On the seventh day after the birth comes the christening, and rice cooked with red beans—doesn't red mean happiness?—will be sent among the friends. Matsu (pine) is a favorite name, since it signifies bravery, keeping green even under winter's frost. Isn't Mume (plume) better, since it is the harbinger of spring, breathing out the most divine odor in the world? Mi amairi (going to temple) will take place on the thirtieth day. The boy will be dressed in a kimono. It must be silk, with the family's coat of arms on it. He will be put under the immediate protection of the deity. His fortune will be secured.—Good Housekeeping.

Stature and Illness.

According to a paper read by Dr. Shrubsall before the British association, sufferers from tonsilitis, rheumatism and heart disease are of a higher stature, and sufferers from tuberculosis, nervous and malignant diseases of a lower stature than healthy individuals.

It appears that blond sufferers from pulmonary tuberculosis respond to treatment better than brunettes, while in diseases of the heart the positions are reversed. It is believed that in successive generations of city life stature shows a progressive diminution and that there is an increase in brunette traits with each generation passing from rural to urban life. With increasing length of residence there is an increase of morbidity among the different classes of Londoners.

Changed His Mind.

A man of notoriously bad character, residing in a village, wished to emigrate. To obtain assistance from the emigration commissioners one must have a character, and the man accordingly asked one from his neighbors. Everybody was anxious he should go, any everybody therefore testified to his excellent reputation. No one was more astonished at this result than the man himself, and after looking at his certificate, with its long list of signatures, "Well," said he, "I had no idea I was so much esteemed in the neighborhood. I think I shall stay."—London Tit-Bits.

Against Precedent.

"De Riter is building a cottage for himself in the mountains, I hear."

"Yes, and for a poet he's displaying an atrocious disregard of the fitness of things. He's building right on the top of a hill."

"Well?"

"Well, by all the canons of poetry a cottage in the hills ought to 'nestle.'"—Philadelphia Press.

Younger Generation.

Judge—Can you prove an alibi, Casey? Casey—No, your honor, I can't, but me boy Patsy can do it for ye. He's all t'rough his arithmetic and way up in algebray.—Cincinnati Commercial-Tribune.

TO NEW YORK CITY.

Popular Autumnal Trip All for $5.00.

Through Deerfield Valley and the Hoosac.

Down the Hudson by Steamer—Back by Steamer or Train.

The vacation season in New England takes a new start in the fall of the year. The early vacationists have a desire to secure one more respite from the cares of business for a day or two, and a great many have made their preparations for a trip during autumn, when nature adorns in her most beautiful colors the foliage; when the song birds are whistling their farewell refrains; when the atmosphere is invigorating and healthful and the orchards are rosy in their display of mellow and ruddy fruit. This is the month when the Boston & Maine Railroad announces its grand annual New York Excursion from Boston, on October 6th, and from Providence, Worcester, Waltham, Concord, Ayer, Fitchburg, Athol, Gardner, Orange, Millers Falls and Greenfield, October 5th.

Going from Boston the train passes through Cambridge, Waltham, Concord and other beautiful historical towns, noted for their scenic beauty and their historic and colonial association, on to Fitchburg and Gardner, passing through a region famed for its pastoral beauty, and finally entering into the famed Deerfield Valley. The view from the passing train is perfect; winding along the course of the silvery Connecticut, the train follows towards the lofty mountains which we are gradually approaching.

We enter the Hoosac tunnel, and, emerging, Mt. Greylock, overlooking the town of North Adams, greets us. Williamstown, the site of Williams College, next appears to view, and here the Berkshire Hills in all their beauty may be witnessed to advantage.

On we go through New York State, rushing through the busy city of Troy, and crossing the river to Albany. At Albany the train journey is ended. Embarking you can stop over night in Albany and visit the numerous interesting sights and take the Day Line Steamer sail down the Hudson, or go down on the night line boats the same night, viewing the Hudson River scenery by searchlight and moonlight.

The inspiring and magnificent vision of the Hudson River flowing calmly and serenely at the foot of the giant Catskills is perhaps one of the most beautiful landscape pictures in this country.

The steamer passes Roundout, Kingston, Esopus, made famous by Judge Parker's debut into politics, West Point, Poughkeepsie, sailing under the noted bridge, and from the decks of the steamer, you can look up at the remnants of the Old Palisades; at the cliffs of Dunderberg and the rocky promontory of historic Stony Point the busy appearance of the bay is a scene worth witnessing—hundreds of craft of every description, darting back and forth or weighed at anchor, while their cargoes are busily being cared for, present a scene wholly unknown except to voyagers in New York Bay. The boat docks at Debrosses street and you are in the great Metropolis.

New York has attractions too varied to mention; and everybody knows just what he likes best—some for the parks; the stores; the theatres; the museums; or a trip to Coney Island. You can stop in New York until October 8th on Boston tickets and until October 7th on other tickets. If you desire, a stopover of ten days may be had by payment of $2.00 at the Pier Line Office and depositing your ticket before the final limit of extension.

Leaving New York, the palatial steamers of the Fall River & Providence Lines, according to destination, carry the passengers for return trip. $5.00 via the Boston & Maine Railroad pays for the round trip.

Tickets will be on sale at Boston City Ticket Office, 322 Washington Street, and at Union Station, Boston, on and after Sept. 24th, 1904, also at above mentioned stations.

A beautiful illustrated souvenir and guide booklet, telling all about the trip and describing the interesting points passed, will be mailed to any address, free, by General Passenger Department, Boston & Maine Railroad, Boston. Send your address, requesting one, and it will be mailed to you.

☞ Men, please your wife by ordering the Boston Sunday Globe delivered regularly at your home. Your meals will be better cooked and your home life made more pleasant by so doing.

☞ Main Spring while you wait. Watch cleaned $1.—Williams.

A GREAT SUCCESS.

Large Crowd at the Loyal Ladies' Fair Last Night.

Last evening at eleven o'clock closed the second day of the fair of the Loyal Ladies of Clan McGregor, held in Malnati's hall, South Quincy. A fair in this ward is a remarkable event and might well attract a couple of hundreds of the residents living in the vicinity, but when it is found that all roads lead to the fair, and the number seeking admission is far in excess of what can hope to get a peep into the place, let alone the chance of getting to the booths, then the fair is an event which suggests a people remarkable for their alacrity and ability to help on such occasions.

The sales of the previous evening had nearly depleted some of the tables, but the ladies can always be relied upon to meet all emergencies, and if a more attractive and artistic setting of the articles still on hand did not meet all the demands they easily found new devices for amusing and satisfying the people, for what money might be handed over. A large and varied assortment of articles were on hand however, and quick sales were in evidence.

A full orchestra of stringed instruments was present, and when one could give a moment's ear a sense of music's power to charm was the result.

The feature of the evening was the variety entertainment by Miss Helen Kennedy, who sang coon songs and made a favorite of herself. The South Quincy Mandolin and Guitar club gave a number of fine selections. A duet by Mrs. Lizzie Henderson and Miss Maggie Esson was received with applause, and they responded to an encore.

The Shirriff sisters, Miss Bessie Muir and Miss Helen Kennedy, in their Highland dancing, Irish reels and sailor hornpipes were a host in themselves and elicited round on round of applause.

Grab bags, guesses, and numerous other schemes to encourage business were in full swing and those who were investing their money seemed to be as well pleased as the fair ones who were taking the money in. Good humor and exemplary order marked the entire proceedings.

GOES BACK TO STEAM

Removal of Electric Traction Equipment on Railroad

Boston, Sept. 24.—The New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad is engaged in dismantling its third rail electric line between Nantasket Junction and Braintree, and the announcement is made that the electrical equipment and operation of its suburban lines will not be undertaken until the invention of new appliances or the perfection of those now existing makes such a step more feasible.

During the past few years tens of thousands of suburbanites living in the vicinity of Boston have been expecting electric transit, especially since the new South station was built with a subway intended for the handling of this traffic. It is now apparent that the experiments which have been made with the trolley and the third rail for roads otherwise equipped for steam operation have not proved satisfactory.

In an interview President Mellen of the railroad said: "We have not yet been able to make definite plans for electrical equipment and it is not likely that we shall be able to do so right away."

Killed With a Whiffletree

Rochester, N. H., Sept. 24.—An autopsy on the body of William Jenkins was performed by Dr. Sullivan. The skull was found to be broken and the brain clotted with blood. Frank Hill, a companion of Jenkins at the time the latter was killed, was taken into custody at Northwood and held as a witness in the case. Hill declares that he was driving with Jenkins and William Brown when a quarrel arose between Jenkins and Brown, and the latter struck Jenkins with the whiffletree. After Jenkins' body had been removed from the carriage Brown re-entered the vehicle and drove away, leaving Hill standing in the road with the body. Hill then proceeded to Northwood on foot.

To Raise the Price of Milk

Boston, Sept. 24.—The conference of milk producers of New England and the contractors who handle their products in Boston and vicinity has resulted in an agreement that the price to be paid by the contractors for six months beginning Oct 1 shall be 3½ cents a can, as asked by the producers. The contractors say that they must charge 8 cents a quart to pay themselves for their capital invested and the necessary expenses in handling the milk.

Prison Band Tried to Escape

Boston, Sept. 24.—The Herald says that an almost successful attempt to escape was made by 12 prisoners at the state prison. The men are members of the prison brass band and have been allowed to gather in the "schoolroom" for practice. Some of the men removed the cement and brick work of a wall with tools they had obtained from the prison shops and succeeded in making quite an impression on the wall before they were surprised by an officer.

Alleged Forger of Money Orders

Boston, Sept. 24.—The local postal authorities here have received word of the arrest in Wilmington, Del., of Philip Schweitz, an alleged forger of money orders. The authorities contend that he commenced operations in this city during the G. A. R. encampment, at which time, it is said, he forged money orders and received the cash. Since leaving Boston, Schweitz has traversed the continent to Vancouver, B. C., and back.

OUT ON $1000 BAIL

Counsel Secured For Expressman Who Carted Dynamite

SUITS AGAINST MELROSE

Experiments Indicate That Motorman Did Not See Box Which Caused Explosion Lying Upon the Track In Front of Car

Melrose, Mass., Sept. 24.—Roy Fenton, the express driver, from whose wagon the box of dynamite fell, and who has been placed under arrest and held in $1000, has been admitted to bail. His bondsmen, Charles J. McCarthy, Jeremiah Flanders, who is superintendent of the Boston Ice company, and John T. Fitzgerald, all of Melrose, appeared before Bail Commissioner Edward B. Malley and qualified. John Fenton, brother of Roy, accompanied the bondsmen and later took his brother home.

When released from custody, Fenton said: "I don't know what they are holding me for; I'm not to blame."

Mr. McCarthy, who acted as spokesman for the bondsmen, said that counsel had been retained for young Fenton and that any action against him would be fought to the end.

It was stated at city hall that four suits have been filed against the city of Melrose, two for personal injuries and two for property damage. The local authorities refused to state by whom the suits had been brought and for what amount.

The question which is asked most frequently is, "Who is responsible?" Stirred up as they are by the accident, there is evident a notable tendency to suspend judgment until further facts have been brought to light. The action of the police in holding Fenton is considered right and proper, yet much sympathy for the young man is to be heard on every side. The police have heard his story and have investigated the facts and found that he told the truth. He received the dynamite in Boston, at the corner of Causeway and Beverly streets, and brought it through Charlestown, Everett and Malden, stopping in Malden to see that his load was tight. Two other drivers of express wagons corroborated Fenton's statements, and deny the story that Fenton raced horses with other express drivers. They say that his team was heavily loaded, and that the horses went at a walk all the way from Boston. Neither of these drivers noticed that anything dropped from Fenton's wagon at Wyoming avenue, although one of them was driving directly behind him. These drivers claim further that the explosion occurred not more than three minutes after Fenton's wagon crossed Wyoming avenue.

Experiments seem to indicate that the dead motorman did not see the box lying upon the track. Although the moon was shining brightly, that part of the track where the explosion occurred was obscured by the shade of some high elm trees on Main street. Furthermore the moon was in such a position that the shadow cast by the car would be in front of it. There was no electric light going at the corner and the headlight on the car was insufficient to illumine the tracks. It has been brought out by the statements of Conductor Blanchard that the car was about to make a stop at Wyoming avenue to allow a lady and a child to alight. The motorman was therefore busy with the brakes and was probably not looking at the tracks.

Owners of property which was damaged are consulting with their attorneys preparatory to seeking recompense, but they do not know whom they shall sue. There appears to be no doubt that the dynamite was consigned to the city of Melrose, but the city denies liability on the ground that the explosive was not in its possession. The street railway officials claim that their employes were using due care and that the company is not to blame for the accident. It has been said on legal authority that the owner of the express company is liable, if it can be shown that his driver was careless in loading or handling the dynamite.

Contractors Sue For $2,000,000

Middletown, N. Y., Sept. 24.—Sundstrom & Stratton, contractors of this city, have brought suit against the Delaware and Hudson railroad to recover $2,020,000. The plaintiffs claim this amount as the balance due for the construction and reconstructions of the Chateaugay railroad, which extends a distance of 180 miles.

A Sensational Suicide

New York, Sept. 24.—Paul Schmidt, a waiter, 28 years old, in the presence of hundreds of on-lookers, committed suicide by leaping in front of an elevated train at the Eighth street station. Both the station platforms were crowded at the time.

SEEING THE FAIR IN DETAIL

Missouri Shines Brilliantly In the Corn Display—Uncle Sam's Outdoor Map Made of Cereals and Other Living Plants — The School Gardens and Demonstrations For Teachers — Lessons In the Cultivation of Hemp. Ideas About Grass That Are Worth Harvesting — Robbers' Loot From Pennsylvania Birds' Nests — Skins From Alaska That Would Startle a Pocketbook—Missouri Wild Animals.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE BY MARK BENNITT.]

One must keep noticin' all the time at the world's fair or he will miss many a good thing that he would have wished to see. But the brain becomes dull with much seeing, and often the eyes refuse to "look!"

"What's a' that?" asked a lank farmer, looking at a huge wall decoration in the great pagoda of corn erected by Missouri.

"W' that's a hawg—been afeedin' 'em for thirty years an' don't know a hawg!" replied his wife banteringly.

It was a corn "hawg"—if not a corn-fed hog, in all the colors of corn from white to black.

Wherever Missouri shines she shines brilliantly. She sets the pace for nearly all the states in nearly all the great buildings of the big exposition. The corn pagoda is but one, and here the visitor may sit and study corn in all its varieties as well as in all its decorative possibilities. Missouri has just taken first place as a corn state, and this pagoda may be regarded as a temple erected to celebrate that achievement. I may add that in taking first place as a corn producing state the distinction belongs almost entirely to the northern half of the state where most of the corn is produced. The magnificent corn exhibit is thoroughly representative, too, as the selections were made from local corn exhibits and prize contests held last fall in every corn county of the state.

I'm sorry you missed the outdoor map of the United States in July. It was prettier then, but the lesson is just as vivid today, so don't overlook its teachings even if you come late. The purpose of the map is to enable each sightseer to visit his particular state and its neighbors and note the proportionate plantings of the great staple crops. Then he is invited to look at the surrounding gardens, showing plants that he has heard about, but has never seen. Each state is labeled so that one may get at a glance the salient facts. For example, we read that Idaho has 54,000,000 acres, but not quite a million and a half are under cultivation. Wheat is her principal crop and alfalfa next, the other grasses and grains following. Idaho is developing her rich lands by means of irrigation from the great Snake river and its tributaries, so that these figures are fast changing. The entire map is made to scale, gravel walks forming the boundaries. Upon these paths we may journey over the country from ocean to ocean and from Canada to Mexico leisurely in a few minutes. We may observe the great cotton belt, the corn belt and the wheat belt in a general way, and then in each state learn the other crops for which it is noted.

Thirty school children of St. Louis have thirty gardens in the northeastern part of the map garden. They are outside the states, about where Labrador should be. Five of these children come each day to tend their gardens and to give a demonstration for the benefit of schoolteachers upon the management of school gardens. These demonstrations are conducted by Professor Charles F. Wheeler of the United States bureau of plant industry, for it was under this bureau that the map garden and all its adjuncts were brought into existence. Obstinate soil and excessive and violent rains have kept all hands busy, but the triumph is worth the effort. The garden is on the hill above the southwest corner of the Palace of Forestry, Fish and Game. That huge spiderlike contrivance of steel beams, a twentieth century wonder, the solar engine, stands at the corner of the map. Professor Wheeler's office is in the school tent, and there is nothing he enjoys more than answering questions.

Ninety per cent of the hemp grown in the United States is raised within twenty miles of Lexington, Ky. You may see not only the Kentucky hemp, but all other kinds of hemp and many fiber plants in the fiber section of the government garden. You may see the different leguminous plants upon whose roots live the bacteria whose function it is to fix the nitrogen of the air and make it available in the soil for plant life. In the northern part of the plot, the western Canada section, any farmer may learn how to create new varieties of corn, cotton and other plants. He may see the original corn known as pod corn, each kernel having a husk or pod of its own. Professor Wheeler will teach any seed buyer still another lesson in the matter of seed. Several plots were sowed with several grades of seed. The first plot, on which the cheapest seed was sown, appears to be all weeds. Only the highest priced seed gave what may be regarded as a satisfactory or profitable result. Other beds show the importance of a careful selection and curing of corn for seed.

Let us thank the government, too, for the grass gardens. The science of making a lawn or a meadow or a pasture is here taught with kindergarten blocks of grass. All the kinds of useful grasses are here in the life, side by side for comparison—the blue grass and redtop, the lawn mixtures and sand grasses. The farmer with much poor land who might raise sheep if the pasture held out will be interested in the sheep's fescue, a fine, luxuriant grass that the woolly herd finds palatable and that grows on otherwise hopeless land.

Somebody has been robbing birds' nests in Pennsylvania, and here is the loot, but since it was done in the interest of education the offense is somewhat mitigated. Nests, eggs and all have been brought to the world's fair and in the Pennsylvania section of the Palace of Agriculture you may see them. Bird lovers will find here a chance to improve their acquaintance with the songsters of the fields and groves, the hills and shady glens. Here is the huge white egg of the big bald eagle, and here, too, are the wee white eggs, almost transparent, of the humming bird. If you have a bit of curiosity about the eggs of the wild birds and fowls or the nests they build you will fly at once to these interesting cases on entering the Agriculture building. Tobacco is exploited as one of the great money making crops of the state, but a pretty show is made of all the common wild animals, the trees and nuts, the wool and other familiar things of rural Pennsylvania. A great number of farm scenes in revolving racks enable one to make a sightseeing tour of the state in a few moments.

Just to get a glimpse of the Russian sable skins, a little bigger than your hand and worth $50 apiece, it is worth one's while to stop in the Alaskan building. The sable skins are put away in a burglar proof safe every night and jealously guarded by day—so untrustworthy is the miscellaneous public. The big polar bear skin rug on the wall is priced at $500, but of course not for sale. The silver gray fox skin is almost worth its weight in gold, and the Siberian wolf skin, from the Aleutian islands, is valued at five double eagles. The kadiak is the largest of all bears; in fact, one of the largest of existing animals. To tell just how one of the kadiak skins happened to be here would make a thrilling narrative, for they are not animals of docile nature. The whitest of white things is a white fox skin. They are not of great value, but have genuine beauty. The only valuable fur bearing animal missing from the Alaskan collection is the sea otter, now a rare and elusive creature, seldom taken even in Alaska.

A study of the common wild animals of Missouri may be made from a safe distance in the hunters' park, just west of the Palace of Forestry, Fish and Game. The wild fowl of the state and some of the larger birds are on the right as you enter. At the far end is a hunter's lodge with a display of fowling pieces and stuffed game birds. The gray wolf, coyote, beaver, raccoon, skunk, woodchuck, deer and other animals are in roomy cages and generally in fine condition.

JAPANESE IN U. S. ARMY.

Little Brown Men In Sandwich Islands to Be Enrolled as Soldiers.

It may not be generally known that the United States army of the future will include a command of Japanese soldiers, but this is a fact, says the New York Herald. They will not come from the armies which are fighting in the far east, but will be enrolled from our Japanese citizens in the Sandwich Islands. It is needless to say that a very large portion of the population of the islands and especially of Honolulu is composed of this nation. They are found among the bankers, merchants and professional men and are included among the wealthiest residents of the city.

One of the principal schools of Honolulu is attended exclusively by Japanese children, and there has been enrolled a command of cadets which is to be mustered into the United States militia as soon as its members are old enough. It is drilled by a former Japanese army officer, and, although organized but a few years ago, this battalion has already attained a high standard of efficiency. It is frequently seen on parade in Honolulu and attracts much attention.

Japan's Rich Gold Fields.

The recently discovered gold fields at Iwate, in Japan, have been inspected by government engineers, and as the result of their report the government has issued a proclamation entirely reserving the fields, says a special cable dispatch from Tokyo to the New York American. The engineers estimate that the fields will yield gold to the value of $500,000,000 and are preparing to institute operations. The estimated yield is $50,000,000 per annum.

The Fall Fever.

Somehow when the fall comes on
And the leaves turn and come down,
Feel like throwing up my job—
Feel like getting out of town.

Want to ramble in the woods,
Want to hear the north wind blow,
Want to hear the chopper's ax,
Want to hear the cattle low,

Want to trudge across the field
When the night is drawing nigh,
To the home from which the smoke
Rises to the yellowing sky;

Want to sit down by the fire
In the evening in the fall,
While the blazes from the logs
Throw their shadows on the wall;

Want to lie down in the night,
Want to feel that rest of brain
That comes only when one hears
On the roof the fall of rain;

Want to go to sleep and rest
To the patter that comes down
On the shingles in the fall
Of the old house out of town.

CAMPAIGN PLANS

Leaders of Democracy Decide to Begin Canvass at Once

WANT THE BRYAN VOTES

Parker Doing Much Toward Conciliating Supporters of Nebraskan Four and Eight Years Ago--Won't Leave Rosemount

New York, Sept. 24.—Contrary to his expectations, Judge Parker was unable to complete his conferences with political leaders last night, so that he will not start home until some time today. More visitors were admitted to Judge Parker's apartments at the Hoffman House yesterday than Thursday. Among the callers were some of the most prominent Democrats identified with the campaign. The list includes Senator Gorman, Daniel S. Lamont, James M. Guffey, former Senator Jones of Arkansas, Danel J. Campau of Michigan and Thomas F. Ryan of Virginia.

Senator Gorman was with Judge Parker more than an hour. They went over the plans for the campaign and agreed that the canvass should be gotten under way without delay and be conducted in an energetic manner until November. Some of the details were considered and there was a discussion as to the strongest speakers to use in the doubtful states. The report that they are to invite former President Cleveland to take part could not be confirmed.

Party managers interested in the state campaign say that there are no longer any faction to harmonize and in support of the statement call attention to the fact that Comptroller Grout of Brooklyn has given out an interview repudiating a story that he intended to retire from politics. Grout has announced that he will go on the stump for the state and national tickets.

The national campaign was discussed with the candidate by Colonel Lamont and Mr. Campau, who were Parker's guests at luncheon. Soon after the luncheon Parker saw Colonel Guffey, Chairman Taggart, Senator Culberson, Representative Williams, Herman Ridder, Representative Cowherd, former Governor Hogg of Texas and others.

Messrs. Jones, Guffey and Campau had all been intimately connected with the last two presidential campaigns and the idea prevailed that the gathering had particular reference to bringing the supporters of Bryan in closer relations with Parker. A member of the national committee said that Parker, in meeting men who had been hearty supporters of the ticket four and eight years ago, was assisting materially in the efforts that were being made to conciliate those who had been holding aloof in the present campaign.

Many members of the national committee urged Parker to reconsider his decision not to make a speaking tour, but it is said he told everyone who broached the subject that all speeches would be from his own veranda at Rosemount.. Local campaign managers are arranging to open the New York campaign with a monster meeting in Madison Square garden. They wanted Parker to make a speech at this meeting. While he approves of the plan, it is said he will not depart from his program of remaining at home. The meeting will probably be held with other speakers of prominence participating.

A delegation representing the German-American Parker union called on Parker. The union will undertake to organize the German-American voters in the doubtful states. The work will be started immediately. Karl L. Hengl has been assigned to Connecticut. Chairman Taggart had an extended conference with Parker last night.

Dewey In Navy Fifty Years

Washington, Sept. 24.—Admiral Dewey yesterday received the congratulations of his fellow-officers and friends on the 50th anniversary of his entry into the naval service. Of the 73 midshipmen who entered the naval academy on Sept. 23, 1854, the admiral is the only one on the active list today and but seven of that number are on the retired list. The admiral is in his 67th year.

Wouldn't Ride In Jim Crow Car

Elkton, Md., Sept. 24.—The grand jury has found true bills against W. H. H. Hart, a lawyer, and James Griffith, charged with violating the "Jim Crow" law by refusing to ride in the car provided for negro passengers on the Pennsylvania railroad. This is the first case under the new law where a negro has been indicted.

Dynamite Created Havoc

North Branch, W. Va., Sept. 24.—A fast freight struck a wagon loaded with 750 pounds of dynamite at the crossing here. By the explosion which followed two persons were killed and nine were injured, three of them seriously. The railroad tower was wrecked, as were several residences nearby.

Europe's Loss Our Gain

Washington, Sept. 24.—According to Consul General Mason, at Berlin, the United States will have to help feed central Europe during the coming autumn and winter on account of drought in Russia, Austria, Germany, Switzerland and France. There has been a falling off from the yield of last year in wheat, rye, barley and oats. He predicts an increased demand not only for corn, wheat and rye from the United States, but for fresh and preserved fruits, dried and salted fish and such meats as the present inspection law of Germany permits to be imported.

Death of Reporter Harms

Cleveland, Sept. 24.—Lloyd F. Harms, a reporter on the Cleveland Tribune, who was shot Thursday night, died last night. John F. Stanton is charged with the shooting. Stanton took offense at an article printed in The Tribune and is alleged to have sought revenge in the manner indicated. Harms was supposed to have been the writer of the Stanton article.

Willed His Brain to Cornell

New York, Sept. 24.—Dr. George S. Conant, aged 51, who died here of diabetes, willed his brain to the medical faculty of Cornell university, that further investigation may be made of a theory that his disease could be traced to the brain. He suffered for several years and made an exhaustive study of diabetes, using himself as a subject for his experiments.

An Awe-Inspiring Sight

Naples, Sept. 24.—Vesuvius is gradually becoming more active. The crust around the crater has broken away and produces magnificent flurries of redhot ashes and sparks of fire, which rise occasionally in immense columns to a height of 700 feet. The eruption last night was the most spectacular witnessed in the last 10 years.

Washington Men Took First Prize

San Francisco, Sept. 24.—Announcement of the winners of the cash prize drills of cantons attending the sovereign grand lodge, I. O. O. F., was made last night. The first prize of $100 was won by the Washington canton.

Train Killed Four Persons

Pittsburg, Sept. 24.—Two men, one woman and a baby were killed at Braddock last night by a fast express train. The party had just alighted from a street car and started across the tracks on their way home from a christening.

Canada Has Fair Wheat Crop

Ottawa, Sept. 24.—Minister of Agriculture Sifton reports that the Manitoba and Northwest wheat crop is a fair one and the reports as to rust and frost are exaggerated. The crops will aggregate from 55,000,000 to 60,000,000 bushels.

Boiler Explosion Kills Four

Dukes, N. C., Sept. 24.—The boiler in the gin department of a mammoth cotton mill here exploded with terrific violence, instantly killing four men, scalding another so badly that he will die, and partially wrecking the engine room.

Effort to Patch Up Peace

Buenos Ayres, Sept. 24.—Peace negotiations between the government of Paraguay and the revolutionists have been resumed, but the basis for them is not disclosed. The situation in Uruguay is unchanged.

No Attempt to Kill Don Carlos

Venice, Sept. 24.—The report published in the United States that an attempt had been made to assassinate Don Carlos, the Spanish pretender, is without foundation.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Rear Admiral Ludlow, U. S. N., retired, has been assigned to duty as governor of the Naval home at Philadelphia.

The question of removing the headquarters of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen from Peoria, Ills., to a larger city is attracting the attention of the delegates to the convention of that order.

David Lynch, one of New Brunswick's most noted shipbuilders, died at St. John, aged 70. His wife and eight children survive. He built more than 60 vessels.

INTO A DEATH TRAP

Nine Schoolchildren Meet With Terrible Death

PERISHED IN OUTHOUSE

Floor Gave Way and Precipitated Thirty Into Deep Vault--Struggles of Topmost Ones Drowned Those Underneath

Cincinnati, Sept. 24.—Nine schoolgirls were suffocated in a vault during a recess at a school in Pleasant Ridge, seven miles north of Cincinnati. A score of others narrowly escaped the same horrible death. All the victims were from the primary grade.

The school building is devoted to pupils of all grades from high to primary. On opposite sides of the spacious grounds in the rear of the building are two outhouses. When recess was given about 30 of the smaller girls were in the outhouse assigned to them, when suddenly the floor gave way, precipitating them into the vault below. This vault is 12 feet deep and walled up with stone.

At the time of the disaster four feet of water stood in the vault. The depth was over the heads of those who were first precipitated into the water, but their bodies partially filled the space, so that the others were not entirely submerged. The girls fell eight feet from the flooring and the struggles of those who were on top kept at least nine underneath until they were drowned.

The frame sheds of these vaults were about 20 feet square, without windows, with but one narrow doorway. Only one girl escaped through the door and she hastily spread the alarm. The principal and teachers rushed to the rescue and they were soon reinforced by the police and almost the entire population of the town. The firemen immediately drained the vault.

Those engaged in the rescue work recite the most ghastly experiences. Even the children rescued alive presented such an appearance that many in the crowd of spectators fainted, but the sight within the vault beggared all description.

James Smith, aged 14, one of the pupils, climbed to the roof of the schoolhouse, untied the flag and ran to the vault. By means of this impromptu rope several were rescued. The city marshal had great difficulty in keeping the crowd from interfering with the rescuers. The importunities of friends, especially of the weeping mothers, almost allowed the people to get beyond the control of the officers. Two physicians used the school building for a hospital and a morgue until the dead and the rescued were taken to their homes.

Frank S. Johnson said: "I was standing across the street talking to Dr. Lambert when a little girl came crying for help. We found Principal Zimmerman pulling the children from the vault. The smaller girls were being forced to the bottom by the terrific struggles of the others in the vault. Some of the children climbed up the ladder drenched, gasping for breath, and fainting as soon as taken out into the fresh air.

"As fast as they came within reach of the door those who stood at the doorway lifted them from the ladder and passed them out to waiting friends. It was not possible to go down into the vault at first, for the reason that one would impede the little ones who were climbing out. Finally the last girl that could get to the ladder got out and then the men went in and rescued those who remained."

W. J. Card had three daughters in the place, of whom two, Charmian and Fausta, lost their lives. Rotha, the twin sister of Fausta, narrowly escaped death. When the crowd of girls rushed into the place Rotha was knocked out of the door into the yard just before the collapse occurred. Reports about the floor having given way last year are denied by the school trustees.

The town is rife with mingled excitement, sorrow and indignation, and those openly charging the calamity to official negligence are making serious threats, among them being many women.

Sharp Advance In Wheat

Chicago, Sept. 24.—Wheat for December delivery yesterday advanced to a point 3½ above Thursday's closing quotations. Intimations of a big export demand were the main factors in causing the advance. The market closed almost at the highest point.

Charged With Killing McLean

Montpelier, Vt., Sept. 24.—The grand jury returned an indictment against Charles Cory of Worcester for the alleged murder of Charles McLean at Worcester. Cory was arrested last evening and locked up in the county jail.

Blackburn Hit Too Hard For Hitte

Philadelphia, Sept. 24.—Charlie Hitte and Jack Blackburn were scheduled to fight six rounds here last night. In the third round, after Hitte had been knocked down and had taken the count, the police stopped the bout.

Work Laid Out For Bryan

Butte, Mont., Sept. 24.—W. J. Bryan will make a speaking tour throughout Montana in the interest of the Democratic national ticket before the end of the campaign.

VEILED IN SECRECY

Little Is Known of Movements of Japanese Armies

London, Sept. 24.—Secrecy veils the movements of the Japanese armies in Manchuria, and little that is indicative of developments in the situation is permitted to reach the correspondents. Apparently four Japanese armies are converging upon Mukden, but although the distance to be covered is not great, several days are expected to elapse before there ensues a battle with the forces under Kuropatkin. Improvement in the weather conditions is regarded as advantageous to the Japanese.

There is no news from the direction of Port Arthur, though it seems probable fighting is in progress there.

No confirmation of the report that the Russian cruiser Gromboi has left Vladivostok in pursuit of a Japanese transport has been received.

Demonstrations Against Vatican

Rome, Sept. 24.—After the adjournmentof the Free Tninkers' congress the delegates formed in a procession and marched to the monument of Giordano Bruno, the Dominican monk who was burned by the inquisition in 1600, and deposited wreaths upon it in testimony of their feeling of antagonism to the Vatican. Several violent speeches were delivered, one summing up as follows: "The Vatican is a corpse; we are life." Similar demonstrations were made at the Janiculum monument to Garibaldi.

Bank Was Loosely Conducted

Cincinnati, Sept. 24.—The estates of 19 stockholders of the American German bank of Sydney and the affairs of the bank have been thrown into the hands of a receiver by Judge Thompson. During the hearing it developed that the bank carried over $500,000 of deposits and that the safe contained only $4000. The liabilities will exceed $700,000. Experts reported that discrepancies of $140,000 in the books have been discovered.

Says Princess Louise Is Sane

Brussels, Sept. 24.—The Petit Bleu states that Princess Stephanie (Countess Lonyay), after visiting her sister, Princess of Coburg, at Paris, telegraphed to Prince Philip of Coburg indignantly denying that Louise is mad and declaring her intention to do her utmost to rehabilitate the reputation of her sister. The Petit Bleu adds that Princess Stephanie will appeal to the Austrian emperor.

American Fisherman Seized

Vancouver, B. C., Sept. 24.—The American steamer Alert and two large scows, one of them loaded with salmon and nets, were seized by a Dominion government fisheries protection steamer. The value of the property seized is about $15,000. It is alleged that the Alert was poaching on fisheries 125 miles from the American boundary. The seized steamer has been brought into this port.

Suit For Money Lost In Speculation

Chicago, Sept. 24.—Suit has begun against the stock brokerage firm of Tracy & Co. to recover $41,400, which, it is alleged, was lost by Francis B. Wright in speculations on margins with that concern. Wright is now in the penitentiary for embezzling nearly $80,000 from the First National bank of Dundee, Ills., of which he was cashier. The bank is behind the suit.

Went Through In a Hurry

Chicago, Sept. 24.—A special chartered train on the Pennsylvania railroad has broken all previous records on that line between Philadelphia and Chicago, making the 822 miles in 17 hours and 57 minutes. The train was chartered by a Chicago business man, desirous of arriving in Chicago in the quickest possible time to close a $250,000 business transaction.

Fall River Strike Endorsed

Washington, Sept. 24.—The executive council of the American Federation of Labor has officially endorsed the strike of the 25,000 textile operatives of Fall River, Mass. A circular issued to all labor organizations under the jurisdiction of the federation, signed by President Gompers, makes an appeal for contributions to aid the strikers in their contest.

Favorable Trade Conditions

New York, Sept. 24.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says that trade expands steadily as confidence increases with the harvesting of the crops and mercantile collections are less tardily met. Lower temperature stimulates the demand for fall and winter wearing apparel. This improvement is extending to all departments of manufacture.

Reception Was Cut Out

Washington, Sept. 24.—The special train bearing the Archbishop of Canterbury arrived here at 1:35 o'clock this morning. The reception by the standing committee of the local diocese planned in honor of the visitor was abandoned and the latter remained aboard the special all night, as did also other members of his party.

Vessel Captain Drowned

New York, Sept. 24.—The body of Captain Campbell of the schooner Minnie Lora was found floating in the bay near his vessel, which is lying at a dock in Jersey City. It is supposed he accidentally fell into the water while trying to board his schooner. He was 60 years old.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

CACHET OF THE MOMENT.

High Crowned Hats Are the Thing. A New Aigret.

High crowns are the cachet of the moment, and we are realizing that the high crown and broad brim are more becoming than the plateau, which has been repeated ad nauseam and is hard to give up. But, after all, the felt plateau has at best a forlorn and shapeless appearance. It may be trimmed ever so cunningly, propped up with a bandeau and wired at the edge; but, like the horse in "Pickwick Papers," which is kept up and going by being "strapped tightly to the shafts," so the plateau is kept going by its accessories.

With the high crowned hats the paradise plume is in favor and comes in lovely shades of lemon, toning to burnt orange, and in brown and pink, shading to subtle gradations of claret.

A novel aigret has been invented which takes on the characteristics of the paradise plume, but is shorter and is placed in an upright position on the hat.

Mohair receives considerable attention in the smart dress models. The lovely luster of this fabric is one of its principal features, but the fact that it comes in all the fashionable colors and several weights is also appreciated. Fancy mohairs in stripes, fine plaids or conventional figures of contrasting or self color are a change from the plain materials, and dresses developed in these figured mohairs are very stylish. Tailored styles predominate unless white is used, when any amount of hand sewing in the shape of French knots and fine feather stitching is seen.

A hat which represents a novelty is here shown. It boasts a brim considerably broader on the left side than on the right. It is lifted at the edge, and the trimming takes the form of a long sweeping plume caught with a buckle and a cluster of ribbons under the brim.

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

There will be a number of entertainers new to the patrons of Keith's Boston Theatre appearing during the week of Sept. 26. The list includes the Carter de Haven sextet, which was one of the big feature specialties, with beautiful electric light effects; Charles Hera, a skilful juggler, who is making his first appearance in America, and the Ford Sisters, two of the most graceful dancers in the varieties. Among the better known vaudeville entertainers are Sager Midgeley and Gertie Carlisle, who will present one of their charming "Sammie and Sarah" sketches the three Keatons, including "Buster" the most amusing midget comedian on the stage Allen Shaw, expert coin manipulator, and Dorothy Kenton, a charming and talented banjoist. It goes without saying that the operatic prima dona who has been scoring such a pronounced hit this week will be retained for another six days, but she will render an entire new selection of songs.

CHICKERING HALL.

At Chickering hall, Boston, beginning Thursday night, Sept. 29, "Beyond," one of the most remarkable productions ever made in this country, will be presented. The title "Beyond" conveys a slight idea of the nature of the production, but it can give no proper conception of its wonderful beauty and power. The drama is one that must be seen to be fully appreciated. A number of its exquisite scenes are laid in spheres between heaven and earth, and the characters that appear in them are immortals. Edgar Allen Poe, Aaron Burr, and other famous personages are shown in after-life. The scenic and electrical effects are novel and magnificent in the extreme. The company includes such well-known artists as James A. Young, Warren Conlan, Gordon Johnstone, Eugene M. Perkiss, Edith A. Pond, Edith Rick, and Helen Tyrell, with a chorus, symhony orchestra, etc. "Beyond" will be witnessed at Chickering hall. Boston, each night, and matinees Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday of each week.

TREMONT THEATRE.

It will be with genuine regret that patrons of the Tremont theatre hear the announcement of the beginning of the last two weeks of the remarkably successful Ade-Luders' opera, "The Sho-Gun." The closing fortnight begins next Monday evening, and after this week but sixteen more performances of this delightful opera will be given in Boston. It is doubtful whether any piece of a similar kind has scored such a great and unlimited success here as has "The Sho-Gun." The Tremont has been packed during the past five weeks of the engagement, and the outlook is for a continuation of this condition during the remaining two weeks. The farewell night will be on Saturday, October 8th, and after leaving here the production will be taken directly to Wallack's theatre, New York. So far as Boston is concerned, George Ade, Gustav Luders, Henry W. Savage and George F. Marion, the general stage director, have scored a big success in their endeavors to produce an opera that resembles what theatre-goers were accustomed to in the old days, and there can be no question but what their development of "The Sho-Gun" is a triumph in every particular.

MAJESTIC THEATRE.

Wright Lorimer and his company of over two hundred people, who are to appear at the Majestic Theatre on Monday evening, Oct. 3d, in "The Shepherd King," are busily engaged with rehearsals in Boston, using the stages of both the Majestic and Globe Theatres. Mr. Lorimer is being assisted by a large staff of experts headed by Walter Clarke Bellows, his general stage director. The chorus of 100 voices is being rehearsed by Frederick Arundel and the ballet by Signor Agramonti of the La Scala Theatre, Milan. "The Shepherd King" will be the largest and most sumptuous production ever seen in Boston. It rivals-Ben-Hur in its magnitude, while artistically the palm must be given to "The Shepherd King."

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

The announcement of "Michael Strogoff" or 'The Courier of the Czar" as the Castle Square Theatre attraction for next week is most apropos, the interest in Russian affairs just now, making the scenes of life in the Czar's dominions shown in the play of unusual value. The play was made from Jules Verne's novel of the same name, and few dramatic productions of the last generation have equalled its popularity, fully twenty different versions having been made of Jules Verne's novel for the stage. The Castle Square production will be the original version used throughout this country which proved the best in America.

Michael Strogoff is announced for only one week, the usual distribution of boxes of chocolate bonbons being made at the Monday matinee.

—Tree protection is one of the most important topics of the hour, and the United Commercial Travelers Fair management have decided to place one day at least, to be called Foresty Day, at the disposal of a committee who will present plans for fighting the advance of gypsy and brown tailed moths. Practical plans will be presented and the campaign of education begun all along the line. Mrs. Marion A. McBride organizer of the Arlington Heights Tree Protective association, will take charge of the work, and make the opening address.

What It Costs
... AND ...
What It Pays

are two values of newspaper advertising that the merchant has to consider. But the most important thing is

WHAT IT PAYS.

The merchant can get space in papers of small circulation and little influence for a little less money than the same size space would cost in the DAILY LEDGER and the QUINCY PATRIOT.

DOES IT PAY

to throw away the certainty of the profitable returns which are sure to LEDGER and PATRIOT advertisers, because it costs less to advertise in a cheaper paper?

IMPRESSIVE SCENE

Archbishop of Canterbury at an Open Air Meeting

SERMON BY BISHOP DOANE

Increasing Urgency For Protection of the Home--English Primate Makes a Stirring Appeal For Christian Unity

Washington, Sept. 26.—Most Rev. Thomas R. Davidson, Archbishop of Canterbury, appealed for Christian unity at the open air service held in the cathedral grounds at Mount St. Albans yesterday afternoon. Not since President McKinley was present at the erection of the peace cross on the same spot after the war with Spain have as many people gathered at that picturesque spot. The crowd was estimated at from 20,000 to 25,000.

Promptly at 3:30 the top of the first processional cross was sighted coming over the hill at the head of the combined vested choirs of the Episcopal churches in Washington, followed by the Marine band, also in vestments. After the choir came the clergy and then the visiting bishops, including Bishop Nelson of Georgia, Bishop Brent of the Philippines, Bishop Ferguson of Africa, Bishop Doane of Albany and Bishop Satterlee of Washington. Behind them all came the archbishop's party and in the rear the archbishop in the brilliant red vestments of the primate of all England. Awaiting them on the platform were prominent laymen.

The long procession, to the tune of "My Country 'Tis of Thee," made its way to the seats reserved for the various bodies represented. On the platform with the archbishop sat the visiting clergy, the bishops and the archbishop's chaplains. The versicles and opening prayers were read by Bishop Nelson. Bishop Ferguson read the Psalm and Bishop Brent read the lesson.

The sermon was preached by the bishop of Albany. He made a strong plea that all Christians walk worthy of their calling. He deprecated the continental idea of the Sabbath and said that if people were not more appreciative of a Sunday, which should be a holy day as well as a holiday, the time would come when commerce would step in and make of it a working day, like the other six. He called attention to the reverence of English-speaking people for the home and spoke of the increasing urgency for the protection of the home.

Bishop Satterlee, after thanking the archbishop for his presence and for his coming from across the water to show his interest and earnest desire for greater Christian unity, presented the primate, who said:

"I am called upon and privileged to give you on this great occasion what the paper in your hands calls a 'salutation.' I give it to you from a full heart, in the Holy name of our living Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ.

"It is not a little thing to me to be allowed that name to greet you here—here at the very pivot and centre of a national life, which for 130 years has had 'Liberty' as its watchword, and for more than 40 years has everywhere striven to make the word good. A vision rises before our eyes today whereunto this thing, with all that it implies, may grow. It has been given to us English-speaking folk to realize in practice more fully than other men the true meaning of liberty—the liberty wherewith Christ hath made us free. Be it ours to recognize that such knowledge is in itself not a heritage only, but a splendid and sacred trust. The trust must be determinedly and daily used.

"For that reason we want here, where the heart of your great nation throbs and sends its pulses through the whole, to keep raised overhead the banner of Him who has taught us these things, our Master, Jesus Christ. The principles He set forth are ours because they are His. He taught us that a man's life consists not in the abundance of things which he possesses. He taught us that society exists for the sake of the men and women who constitute society. He taught us that surrender even of individual rights for the sake of Christ is nobler than defense of privilege.

"What we are aiming at and striving after is the bettering of people's lives; to make men purer and manlier; to uplift the weak and wayward, and to trample under foot what is selfish and impure; to make certain that every one of Christ's children shall learn to know the greatness of his heritage, and shall have an ideal before him, an ennobling ideal of worship and of work.

"Christ charges us with that; we are trusted to work for Him among those for whom he died. No other period of Christendom can be compared with ours in the possibilities which are set within our reach. No other part of Christendom, as I firmly believe, can do for the world what we, on either side of the sea, can do for it if we only will. God gives us grace to answer to that inspiring call."

THE MERRYMOUNTS.

Baker Led in Hitting and Pushed Taylor in Runs.

The Merrymounts played their last game of this season at Weymouth Sept. 23. This season the team played twenty-five games, winning fourteen and losing eleven.

The team fell off in batting the last of the season, and several games were lost through inability to make a few hits when needed. Only two members of the team batted in the .300 class.

The team was handicapped by the absence of several of the regular players at different times during the season. Taylor, who did most of the catching, had his thumb broken in the Walkover game at Brockton in July, and was out of the game for several weeks. Cole, one of the best hitters was absent in several important games, and Bennett and Saunders were unable to play in a number of games.

Taylor scored the most runs, 29, and Baker was second with 28. Baker lead the team in hitting, with an average of .386, and a total average of .584. He made 6 doubles, 4 three-baggers and 2 home runs. Cole hit for .373 with a total of .418.

The averages of the rest of the team follow:

	Average.	Total.
Eaton,	242	290
Osgood,	233	290
Taylor,	215	215
Saunders,	211	281
Gill,	206	206
Kolson,	155	179
Bennett,	139	194
Atkins,	122	146
Chadbourne	121	143
Team	225	289

The team made 22 two-base hits, 8 three-base-hits and 2 home runs.

Kolson pitched in all of the games. He was batted hard in but a few games, and had good control throughout the season. He struck out 164, and gave 20 bases on balls.

The South Quincys, Quincys, Copeland club and other local clubs are requested to forward to the Daily Ledger similar summaries of the season's work.

Fore Rivers Win.

The Fore River team of this city which is entered in the Merrimac Valley Association Foot Ball league, won a hotly contested match with the Methuen team at Lawrence on Saturday. It was just before the time limit expired that the Quincy team rushed the ball for a goal, and they quickly followed it with another.

The summary:

Rally Day.

All departments of Bethany Sunday school, E. W. Branch superintendent, met on Sunday in the church auditorium, the total attendance being 333.

Rev. E. N. Hardy spoke briefly on the work and needs of the Sunday school. He spoke of the regularity of attendance, the great step made by grading the school, the new card catalogue of pupils and the hearty and loyal work. He would have all the church in the Sunday school; all the Sunday school in the church, and all for Christ. Efforts should be made to stop leaks, to prevent too early graduations, to stimulate growth, and to get the adults into the Sunday school. He would also have the pupils of the Sunday school join the church.

The school voted $30 to the Sunday School Publishing Society, $18 to the Congregational Educational Society, $13 to the American Missionary work, $13 to the Massachusetts Sunday school convention, and $25 to Bethany church.

The departments later went to their respective rooms.

Republican Conventions.

Most of the political convention in which Quincy Republicans are interested will be held next week, as follows:

Norfolk county, Oct. 3 in Boston.

First Norfolk Senatorial, Oct. 4, in Boston.

Second Norfolk Senatorial Oct. 5, in Boston.

Second Councellor, Oct. 6, in Boston.

District Attorney for Norfolk and Plymouth counties, Oct. 7, in Boston.

State convention, Oct. 7, in Boston.

No conventions will be necessary for the nomination of Congressmen or Representatives.

☞ Eyeglasses fitted scientifically. No guess work.—Williams.

FALL MEETING.

Pastorate of Rev. E. N. Hardy One of Longest in Conference.

There are 36 churches in the Norfolk conference which will hold its fall meeting with Bethany church tomorrow, two organized as long ago as 1623 and 1678, the former at Weymouth Heights and the latter at Milton.

In the list are the churches at Abington, Braintree, Bridgewater, Brockton, Easton, Milton, Weymouth, Randolph, Rockland, Stoughton, Cohasset, Sharon, Whitman, Hingham, Holbrook, Quincy and elsewhere.

Four of the Quincy churches are affiliated—Bethany, the Washington Street Congregational, the Swedish Congregational and the Finnish Congregational.

But two of the pastors of these churches were installed before Rev. E. N. Hardy of Bethany church, which dates back to 1895. The Rev. H. C. Alvord at the Old South in South Weymouth was installed in 1886, and the Rev. H. S. Huntington at Milton was installed in 1888. The Rev. K. F. Henrickson of the Finnish church was installed in 1896, the Rev. Leon H. Austin at Quincy Point in 1901, and Rev. A. Swanstrom at the Swedish church in 1903.

The sessions of the conference will be at 9.30 A. M. and 1.30 P. M.

JOINT CAUCUSES.

City Clerk Keith Issues Instructions to the Caucus Officers.

City Clerk Keith, who for the last month has found little time for anything else except arrangements for the joint caucuses, invited the election officers of the city to meet with him Saturday evening, and held a sodality or lodge of instruction relative to the new-fangled caucuses.

From 40 to 50 were present, and it is probable that everything will run smoothly at the first trial.

City Clerk Keith has issued the following instructions for the caucus officers tomorrow, which are of value to voters:

The provision of the election laws apply to joint caucuses except as hereinafter otherwise stated.

The ballots for each political party will be printed on paper of a different color. The color of the Democratic ballots is pink, the Republican ballots salmon, and the Socialist ballots blue.

When the voters presents himself at the guard rail, he must give his name, and, if requested, his residence, to one of the ballot clerks, who shall thereupon distinctly announce the same. If the name is found upon the voting list, the ballot clerk having charge of the list shall repeat the residence and name in a clear and audible voice and the name shall then be checked. The voter must then be asked by the ballot clerk in charge of the ballots the following question:—"Which party ballot do you desire?" The voter's selection must then be checked by the ballot clerk in charge of the voting list in the space indicated in front of the name, as follows:—

Democratic party, Dem.; Republican, Rep.; Socialist, Soc.; and the voter shall then be given such party ballot.

When the voter arrives at the ballot box, one of the inspectors in charge of the box, after finding the name on the check list, must check the same, but must not check the party selection.

When the ballots are removed from the box, they must first be sorted into three piles, one for each party, and each pile should be counted separately. Count the Democratic Party ballots first, the Republican Party ballots second, and the Socialist Party ballots third, and the Clerk should record each count as it is announced.

The votes must then be counted, beginning with those on the Democratic ballots, according to the rules set forth for counting votes at elections, that is, in blocks of fifty, and particular attention is called to the provision that "each block of ballots shall be called off and tallied by two election officers representing different political parties, and each election officer in so calling off and tallying shall be under the supervision of an election officer of a different political party." Thus four officers must be engaged in the count of each block of ballots.

The votes on the Democratic ballots having been counted first, the result must be announced and recorded, the ballots placed in the envelope for the Democratic ballots and this envelope sealed, before counting the Republican votes.

The votes on the Republican ballots must then be counted, the result announced and recorded, the ballots placed in the proper envelope, and the envelope sealed before counting the Socialist votes.

The votes on the Socialist ballots must then be counted, the result announced and recorded, the ballots placed in their proper envelope, and the envelope sealed.

The copy of the records of the caucus will therefore consist of three separate returns, one for each party, each of which must be signed by the election officers, as indicated by the book prepared for that purpose.

Two Rallies.

Joseph F. O'Connell, who aspires to the seat of Congressman McNary, addressed two rallies in this city Saturday evening, first at St. Mary's hall at West Quincy, then at Hancock hall. Other speakers were Charles M. Cooney, Thomas H. Glynn and H. Murray Pakulski.

Street Railway Men Not Satisfied.

The union of employes of the Old Colony street railway at Brockton voted Saturday night to inform the officials of the road, "That the union is not satisfied with the report of the committee."

Out of 6,287 applicants for teachers' positions in the Minnesota summer schools fifty-two per cent. failed to pass the required examinations. One hardly knows which to marvel at most—the ignorance that was displayed or the rush of the incompetents to obtain places for which they were not qualified.—New Bedford Standard.

PRIZES AWARDED.

Fair of Loyal Ladies Closes With a Dance.

The fair held by the Loyal Ladies of Clan McGregor, in Malnati's hall, South Quincy, was brought to a close Saturday night at quarter to twelve. Every feature of the enterprise was a complete success, and if those who so enthusiastically stood at their posts through the three days and nights and did the work, felt the need of a rest, they had compensation in the knowledge that success crowned their efforts, and much good might yet accrue from the money brought to the coffers of the society. The duties of the secretary, Mrs. Emma Richards, were arduous in the extreme, but to the last item they were faithfully performed.

Saturday afternoon was children's day, and the exercises of a group of children, especially trained for the occasion by Miss Annabella L. Troupe, were decidedly clever and amusing. The program consisted of dialogues, songs, lullabyes, piano duet, broom drill, motion songs, flower exercises, calisthenics and a chorus of patriotic selections.

The little ones who so cleverly performed were: Helen Cummings, Lizzie Grassick, Katie Laing, Mary Somers, Annie Cummings, Minnie Miller, Lilian Riddler, Hattie Daly, Jessie Kelman, Mabel Dickie, Jennie McDonald, Evelyn Cowe, Marion Chalmers, Hazel Taylor, Mary McDonald, Ruth Kelly, Helen Kennedy, Minnie Giles, Robina Lilian Mutch, Eleanor Smart, Elizabeth Osborne, Hughena McLaod, Violet Smith, Marion Nichols, Ardell McDonald, Margaret Raleigh, Lilian Mutch, Bella Laing, Pearl McDonald, Jessie Soudan and Maggie Kelman. Miss Helen C. Troupe acted as pianist.

Mr. Henry H. Faxon was present and made happy every child present by treating to ice cream. A large number of ladies were present and readily bought up most of what was left on the tables from the previous two days.

At night when the electric lights were turned on, the scene was changed from that of a busy mart to the rhymic swing and joyous laughter of gay dancers. Many a happy belle and chivalrous swain were there and the happy moments quickly flew to the strains of Thompson's orchestra.

At short intervals the results of prize contests during the fair were called out by President Stronach. Chief among these were the award of a full grown doll, splendidly attired in white silk, to little Miss Helen Kennedy. Though not quite so old as Helen, the doll was about as big, and if Helen had not been presented with a go-cart for the doll, she could never have carried it home.

Little Miss Violet Smith was another who was the winner of a handsome doll, and if Violet worked hard and had suffered from doubts and fears, all were forgotten when she heard her name called to go forward and take in her little arms such a dear sweet thing, and so big, and elegantly dressed. Violet set the doll on a chair and sang to the audience a pretty little song.

Lots of other prizes were given to those who were the lucky ones, each recipient being as happy as the predecessor.

Mr. Henry H. Faxon was again in evidence, not only in person, beaming with delight and wishing all a happy evening, but he saw that every young lady present was served with ice cream at his expense, and more than one fair belle declared him to be a "dear, sweet darling."

During the evening a number of dolls were given to little girls who had helped to make the fair a success.

The last hour came and the curtain dropped and closed an event which was marked throughout by order, and by management which redounds to the credit of the ladies who worked hard and were rewarded with a success beyond expectation.

James Smith.

At Quincy hospital, Monday, Sept. 19th, 1904, Mr. James Smith of Town hill died after a short illness of pneumonia, leaving a wife and daughter to mourn his loss. Solemn high mass was officiated by Rev. Fr. Powers at St. Mary's church, West Quincy, on Thursday. He will be greatly missed. There many beautiful floral tributes. His wife has the sympathy of all.

Hebrew Educational Club.

A meeting was held on Saturday evening by the Hebrew Educational club, and the following new officers were elected:

Hilay Berger, chairman.
Michael Leatler, vice chairman.
Rueben Berman, treasurer.
Reuben Grossman, financial secretary.
Harry Ritva, George Berman, James Brown, trustees.

It was voted by the club that a great interest should be taken in the coming state election.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

A Boston paper says Quincy leans to Edward B. Nevins of Weymouth as Republican candidate for Senator, but Hon. Albert A. Brackett will nevertheless receive most of the Quincy delegates. Senator Brackett is very popular in Quincy, and the district will make no mistake in giving him a renomination.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ A schedule of the assets of the estate of the late Senator Mark Hanna shows a value of $2,914,500. This is a great fortune, but is considerably under the popular estimate of Mr. Hanna's wealth during his lifetime. There is a proneness upon the part of the public to exaggerate the wealth of individuals. So common is this failing that it is rare that an estate when wound up shows proportions equal to previous popular estimate. There is an old saying that "a snake cannot be measured until it is dead," and is aptly applied to personal wealth. Senator Hanna was generally supposed to be worth between $5,000,000 and $10,000,000. Some even estimated his wealth at a much higher figure. An inventory shows a little over half of the minimum estimate. This exaggeration of wealth extends to millionaires and multi-millionaires to such an extent that the most careful estimate must be accepted with a grain of salt. This country manufactures rich men at a rapid rate, but not so rapidly as the public imagines.—Birmingham (Ala.) News.

NEW PHASE OF WAR

Russia Realizes Impotence of Present Army In Far East

IS TO BE REORGANIZED

Three Hundred Thousand More Men Will Be Placed In the Field, With View to Bringing War to Speedy Termination

St. Petersburg, Sept. 26.—The division and reorganization of the Manchurian army, regarding which there have been rumors ever since the battle of Liaoyang, was officially announced in an imperial rescript appointing Major General Grippenberg, commander of the third army corps in the province of Vilna, as commander of the second army now being mobilized for immediate dispatch to the far east, leaving General Kuropatkin in command of the first army.

The czar is personally convinced that the political as well as the military prestige of the empire is at stake and that every other consideration must give way before the exigencies of war. The resources of the empire in men and money must be drained, if necessary, in order to turn the scale and vindicate the power of Russia.

The reorganization amounts to formal notice to the world, as the czar frankly explains in his rescript, that he intends to vastly increase the number of troops at the theatre of war in order to force the struggle to a successful issue in the shortest possible time. It is intended to silence definitely all talk of foreign intervention by the announcement that Russia means to fight out the issue with Japan on the field of battle.

Probably 300,000 additional men will be placed in the field. Five corps—the third, fourth, fifth, eighth and sixteenth—are already destined for the front, and the talk is that five more corps will be sent forward.

Eventually the creation of this second army involves the selection of a commander-in-chief. Not only is there no intimation in the rescript that Kuropatkin will have command of both armies, but he is distinctly placed upon the same footing as Grippenberg.

In the best informed circles there is little idea that Viceroy Alexieff, the present nominal commander-in-chief, will exercise the actual functions of commander of the 600,000 or 700,000 men that Russia has resolved to put in the field. It is the best opinion that Grand Duke Nicholas Michaelovitch, inspector general of cavalry, will attain this high command, occupying in the war with Japan the position held by his father in the war with Turkey.

There are various reports regarding Viceroy Alexieff's ultimate destiny. It is declared in some quarters that he will be recalled, and Nicholas become viceroy as well as commander-in-chief.

Grand Duke Nicholas is still a young man, not yet 45. There is reason to believe that even with the memories of the horrors of the Shipka winter campaign against the Turks, of which he was the witness as a young captain of cavalry, he would favor a winter campaign against the Japanese.

Russia's recognition of the fact that the forces now in the far east cannot successfully prosecute the war against the men Japan is able to put in the field, and the knowledge that the latter power is now mobilizing 100,000 more men for the front, and the decision to reorganize the Russian army upon a gigantic scale in order to be able to assume the offensive quickly, marks a distinctly new phase of the war.

The physical difficulties to be reckoned with promptly in getting out such larger reinforcements over a single line of railway more than 5000 miles long are fully realized; but with the circum-Baikal railway completed, the authorities expect to practically double the present capacity for the transportation of men, munitions and provisions, and send out two corps instead of one monthly.

Within three months three corps are expected to reach Harbin, swelling the total number of Russian soldiers in Manchuria to considerably over half a million. In the meantime the armies at the front, continually augmented from fresh troops, will act as a buffer to hold in check the Japanese until the army will be able to assume the aggressive with a sheer weight of numbers.

Hopes of Early Peace Dispelled

Tokio, Sept. 26.—An increasing feeling of sobriety and seriousness marks the popular attitude toward the war. It is doubtful that the masses appreciated in the beginning the seriousness of the task of expelling Russia from Manchuria. The prolongation of the siege, the losses before Port Arthur and Kuropatkin's escape at Liaoyang have brought a general appreciation of the magnitude of the national task and dissipated the growing hopes of an early peace, based on the confidence of sweeping victories.

Advancing on Port Arthur

Chefoo, Sept. 26.—As a result of the battle before Port Arthur which began on Sept. 19, the Japanese succeeded in capturing several important positions, and today the Russian tenure of the big forts guarding the north, northeast and northwest sides of the town is seriously threatened.

BLAMEY SURRENDERS

Was Wanted For Stealing $10,000 From a Labor Union

Holyoke, Mass., Sept. 26.—John R. Blamey has given himself up to the police in San Francisco. He was for 18 years treasurer of the eastern division of the American Wire Weavers' association. He disappeared from this city during July last and a day or two later officials of the eastern division received a letter from him in which he admitted a shortage in his accounts of about $10,000. This amount represented the supposed bank account of the organization. An examination, however, showed a balance of only $1.75 on deposit. Blamey had been trusted implicitly and served without a bond. He left a family here.

The local police say that they had no warrant for Blamey and it is not known whether an indictment has been returned against him. His embezzlement is said to have been incident to extensive speculations. Blamey covered up his peculations by the use of duplicate bank books.

Young Dolan Safe and Sound

Marlboro, Mass., Sept. 26.—After nearly a week's search, Willie Dolan, 10 years old, who mysteriously disappeared from his home last Monday, was found safe and well at the home of William H. Emery at Framingham. Emery, who formerly lived in Marlboro, says he was not aware that search was being made for the lad until yesterday afternoon. During last week the local militia company, firemen and citizens generally engaged in the search for the boy, and fully 1000 citizens were engaged in searching the woods in the vicinity of Marlboro when word was brought that he had been found.

No Change In Fall River Strike

Fall River, Mass., Sept. 26.—The 10th week of the cotton operatives' strike began with no change in the situation. The operatives have renewed confidence, owing to the action of the American Federation of Labor in voting to give them financial assistance. The leaders say that the fight will now be indefinitely prolonged unless the reduction notices are taken down. The manufacturers say there is no change and deny all rumors that they are to make any attempt to start their mills.

Jenkins' Slayer Killed Himself

Northwood, N. H., Sept. 26.—William Brown, who murdered William Jenkins on a lonely road in Barrington while returning from the Rochester fair, committed suicide rather than face arrest. His body was found in the woods at Northwood Narrows, half a mile from his home, by Charles Kelley of this town. The disappearance of Brown, which proved so puzzling to the well organized posse of Strafford county officials, was explained by Kelley's discovery.

Senator Hoar Is Failing Fast

Worcester, Mass., Sept. 26.—The family of Senator Hoar last night issued a bulletin showing that the senator is gradually succumbing to the effects of his long illness. Only the immediate members of the senator's family are admitted to the sick chamber and he spends most of his time asleep. He has been weaker since Friday, passing most of the time in sleep and refusing to take his medicine and pourishment.

Rails Suspended In Air

Littleton, N. H., Sept. 26.—Slowly undermined by a small brook, the 125-foot embankment of the Maine Central railroad at Crawford Notch caved in, leaving nearly 100 feet of rails suspended in the air and cutting off telephone and telegraph communication for several hours. Railroad communication over this division will be interrupted until a temporary structure over the break can be erected.

School Destroyed by Fire

Boston, Sept. 26.—Eight persons were injured and a property loss of about $125,000 was caused at a fire which practically destroyed the large 4½-story brick building used for St. Augustine's parochial school. No pupils were in the schoolhouse at the time. Those injured included firemen and spectators. The fire presumably started from an explosion of chemicals.

General Chadwick Drowned

Barnstable, Mass., Sept. 26.—General W. P. Chadwick was drowned in the channel of Harbor Heights while bathing. General Cradwick was about 40 years old, unmarried and a resident of Exeter, N. H., where, as managing trustee of Phillips-Exeter academy, he had direct charge of the business affairs of that institution.

Dragged Down by Anchor

Fall River, Mass., Sept. 26.—The body of Henry Levesque, who fell overboard and was drowned while hauling in the anchor of his sailboat, has been recovered. When found the rope was wound about his hand and his body was held fast by the anchor.

Forgery Charge Against Him

St. Louis, Sept. 26.—Alonzo K. Wightman, who claims to be a former mayor of Duluth, a former speaker of the house of representatives of Minnesota, and a member of that body for six years, was arrested last night on information that he was wanted at Buffalo to answer a charge of forgery. Wightman declares he is innocent of the charge.

No Room For Old Men

Pittsburg, Sept. 26.—The Carnegie Steel company has issued a circular letter to the superintendents of the different plants and to the heads of the departments in the plants instructing them to employ no men over 35 years of age in certain departments and extending the age limit to 40 in others. The rule does not apply to laborers.

CITY BREVITIES.

Brockton fair next week.

The last week of September.

Sunday was more seasonable, and a lovely day.

Murdock Gillis is confined to his home on Chestnut street by sickness.

Joint caucuses in all wards of the city tomorrow. Polls open at 12 noon and close at 9 P. M.

The Merrymount Golf club will have an open amateur tournament at Norfolk Downs on Saturday.

W. F. Loud of West Quincy entered a carriage in the parade at the Weymouth fair on Saturday.

The Weymouth fair might have had a much larger attendance from Quincy, had the attractions been advertised in the Quincy newspapers.

Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester Miller of Bigelow street have been entertaining Mrs. Nancy E. Pratt and Mrs. Jeanette French of Randolph the past week.

William Tyler Shaw of Weymouth has sold his farm of forty-eight acres, situated on the Weymouth Back river, in Hingham, to Lewis Bass of Quincy.

The entries for the State Golf championship tournament, to be held at Manchester Oct. 5-8, must be made on or before Wednesday with R. R. Freeman at his Boston address.

It is probable that William V. Hayward and John T. Hayward of Chestnut street worshipped with the Mormons on Sunday. They left Boston Sept. 19, with a party of twenty-five gentlemen interested in a copper mine in Utah. They will return the first of next week.

The Brockton Fair.

October 4, 5, 6 and 7. Underline these dates to celebrate New England's greatest amusement festival: The Brockton Fair. This great carnival certainly improves with age, and when the management says it will be bigger and better than ever it is simply telling the truth. Fifty-five acres teeming with countless wonders to interest the sight seer, the old-time cattle show and the very much up-to-date Fair and Horse show combined. A department for everybody. If there is anything new in the amusement line you'll find it at the Brockton Fair. Just remember the dates: Oct. 4, 5, 6 and 7.

Afraid of American Shipping

London, Sept. 26.—The Morning Post, in a strong editorial on the shipping question, says that Germany's energy is conspicuous, but that there is even a greater need to keep a watchful eye on the shipping legislation of the United States.

Gasolene Wrecked Power House

Utica, N. Y., Sept. 26.—The power house which supplies water for the village was completely wrecked by an explosion of gasoline. The force of the explosion blew bricks and pieces of wood 500 feet in all directions. No one was hurt.

Oil Laden Bark Burned

New York, Sept. 26.—Among the passengers on board the steamer Saratoga, from Nassau, were Captain Boeman and 10 members of the crew of the bark James A. Wright, which took fire and became a total loss off Harbor Island. She was laden with crude oil.

Squires, Trustees of the Manet Land Associates, dated August 7, 1901, and recorded with Norfolk Deeds, Book 903, Page 422, and by said Trustees assigned to Everett D. Chadwick, Trustee under the will of Emeline A. Torrey, by assignment dated May 18, 1903, and recorded with said Norfolk Deeds, Book 947, Page 593, for breach of the conditions thereof and for the purpose of foreclosing the same will be sold at public auction on the premises hereinafter described, on TUESDAY, Oct. 18, 1904, at three o'clock P. M., all and singular the following premises as described in said mortgage, to wit:

"Certain parcels of land situated in Quincy, in the County of Norfolk, and said Commonwealth, comprising the lots numbered D. E G. H. and 141 in Section Two (2) as shown on the plan entitled Plan of Sea Shore Lots at Hough's Neck, Quincy, Mass., H. T. Whitman, Surveyor, owned by the Manet Land Associates, recorded Norfolk Deeds at the end of Book 668 and on Corrected Plan of Subdivision of Lots 139 and 140, Sec. 2, owned by Manet Land Associates, April 1, 1901, H. T. Whitman, Surveyor, and recorded with Norfolk Deeds at end of Book 892. Lots D. and E. are bounded northerly by Quincy Bay, one hundred (100) feet; easterly by lot C., one hundred and two (102) feet; southerly by a ten foot passageway, eighty feet; westerly by lot F., ninety-two and 8-10 (92.8) feet; and containing eighty-seven hundred and eighty-three (8783) square feet of land.

Lots G. H. and 141 are bounded northerly by said ten foot passageway about two hundred and five (205) feet; southeasterly by Winthrop Place, about one hundred and thirty (130) feet; southerly by lot 142, one hundred and twenty-three and 88-100 (123.88) feet; southwesterly, more westerly, by lot 143 about three (3) feet and by another ten foot passageway, about sixty-eight (68) feet; containing fourteen thousand two hundred and ninety (14,290) square feet. Together with a right of way over said ten foot passageways which are to remain open and unobstructed."

Two hundred dollars ($200) to be paid at time and place of sale. Balance within ten (10) days at the office of Barton & Barton, Attorneys, 82 Devonshire street, Boston, Mass.

Between 1896 and 1903 Uncle Sam's family increased the surplus funds of their savings banks from $148,000,000, to $188,000,000, an increase of $40,000,000.

UNDER PROTECTION.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

A Boston paper says Quincy leans to Edward B. Nevins of Weymouth as Republican candidate for Senator, but Hon. Albert A. Brackett will nevertheless receive most of the Quincy delegates. Senator Brackett is very popular in Quincy, and the district will make no mistake in giving him a renomination.

Drift of Opinion.

A schedule of the assets of the estate of the late Senator Mark Hanna shows a value of $2,914,500. This is a great fortune, but is considerably under the popular estimate of Mr. Hanna's wealth during his lifetime. There is a proneness upon the part of the public to exaggerate the wealth of individuals. So common is this failing that it is rare that an estate when wound up shows proportions equal to previous popular estimate. There is an old saying that "a snake cannot be measured until it is dead," and is aptly applied to personal wealth. Senator Hanna was generally supposed to be worth between $5,000,000 and $10,000,000. Some even estimated his wealth at a much higher figure. An inventory shows a little over half of the minimum estimate. This exaggeration of wealth extends to millionaires and multi-millionaires to such an extent that the most careful estimate must be accepted with a grain of salt. This country manufactures rich men at a rapid rate, but not so rapidly as the public imagines.—Birmingham (Ala.) News.

NEW PHASE OF WAR

Russia Realizes Impotence of Present Army In Far East

IS TO BE REORGANIZED

Three Hundred Thousand More Men Will Be Placed In the Field, With View to Bringing War to Speedy Termination

St. Petersburg, Sept. 26.—The division and reorganization of the Manchurian army, regarding which there have been rumors ever since the battle of Liaoyang, was officially announced in an imperial rescript appointing Major General Grippenberg, commander of the third army corps in the province of Vilna, as commander of the second army now being mobilized for immediate dispatch to the far east, leaving General Kuropatkin in command of the first army.

The czar is personally convinced that the political as well as the military prestige of the empire is at stake and that every other consideration must give way before the exigencies of war. The resources of the empire in men and money must be drained, if necessary, in order to turn the scale and vindicate the power of Russia.

The reorganization amounts to formal notice to the world, as the czar frankly explains in his rescript, that he intends to vastly increase the number of troops at the theatre of war in order to force the struggle to a successful issue in the shortest possible time. It is intended to silence definitely all talk of foreign intervention by the announcement that Russia means to fight out the issue with Japan on the field of battle.

Probably 300,000 additional men will be placed in the field. Five corps—the third, fourth, fifth, eighth and sixteenth—are already destined for the front, and the talk is that five more corps will be sent forward.

Eventually the creation of this second army involves the selection of a commander-in-chief. Not only is there no intimation in the rescript that Kuropatkin will have command of both armies, but he is distinctly placed upon the same footing as Grippenberg.

In the best informed circles there is little idea that Viceroy Alexieff, the present nominal commander-in-chief, will exercise the actual functions of commander of the 600,000 or 700,000 men that Russia has resolved to put in the field. It is the best opinion that Grand Duke Nicholas Michaelovitch, inspector general of cavalry, will attain this high command, occupying in the war with Japan the position held by his father in the war with Turkey.

There are various reports regarding Viceroy Alexieff's ultimate destiny. It is declared in some quarters that he will be recalled, and Nicholas become viceroy as well as commander-in-chief.

Grand Duke Nicholas is still a young man, not yet 45. There is reason to believe that even with the memories of the horrors of the Shipka winter campaign against the Turks, of which he was the witness as a young captain of cavalry, he would favor a winter campaign against the Japanese.

Russia's recognition of the fact that the forces now in the far east cannot successfully prosecute the war against the men Japan is able to put in the field, and the knowledge that the latter power is now mobilizing 100,000 more men for the front, and the decision to reorganize the Russian army upon a gigantic scale in order to be able to assume the offensive quickly, marks a distinctly new phase of the war.

The physical difficulties to be reckoned with promptly in getting out such larger reinforcements over a single line of railway more than 5000 miles long are fully realized; but with the circum-Baikal railway completed, the authorities expect to practically double the present capacity for the transportation of men, munitions and provisions, and send out two corps instead of one monthly.

Within three months three corps are expected to reach Harbin, swelling the total number of Russian soldiers in Manchuria to considerably over half a million. In the meantime the armies at the front, continually augmented from fresh troops, will act as a buffer to hold in check the Japanese until the army will be able to assume the aggressive with a sheer weight of numbers.

Hopes of Early Peace Dispelled

Tokio, Sept. 26.—An increasing feeling of sobriety and seriousness marks the popular attitude toward the war. It is doubtful that the masses appreciated in the beginning the seriousness of the task of expelling Russia from Manchuria. The prolongation of the siege, the losses before Port Arthur and Kuropatkin's escape at Liaoyang have brought a general appreciation of the magnitude of the national task and dissipated the growing hopes of an early peace, based on the confidence of sweeping victories.

Advancing on Port Arthur

Chefoo, Sept. 26.—As a result of the battle before Port Arthur which began on Sept. 19, the Japanese succeeded in capturing several important positions, and today the Russian tenure of the big forts guarding the north, northeast and northwest sides of the town is seriously threatened.

BLAMEY SURRENDERS

Was Wanted For Stealing $10,000 From a Labor Union

Holyoke, Mass., Sept. 26.—John R. Blamey has given himself up to the police in San Francisco. He was for 18 years treasurer of the eastern division of the American Wire Weavers' association. He disappeared from this city during July last and a day or two later officials of the eastern division received a letter from him in which he admitted a shortage in his accounts of about $10,000. This amount represented the supposed bank account of the organization. An examination, however, showed a balance of only $1.75 on deposit. Blamey had been trusted implicitly and served without a bond. He left a family here.

The local police say that they had no warrant for Blamey and it is not known whether an indictment has been returned against him. His embezzlement is said to have been incident to extensive speculations. Blamey covered up his peculations by the use of duplicate bank books.

Young Dolan Safe and Sound

Marlboro, Mass., Sept. 26.—After nearly a week's search, Willie Dolan, 10 years old, who mysteriously disappeared from his home last Monday, was found safe and well at the home of William H. Emery at Framingham. Emery, who formerly lived in Marlboro, says he was not aware that search was being made for the lad until yesterday afternoon. During last week the local militia company, firemen and citizens generally engaged in the search for the boy, and fully 1000 citizens were engaged in searching the woods in the vicinity of Marlboro when word was brought that he had been found.

No Change In Fall River Strike

Fall River, Mass., Sept. 26.—The 10th week of the cotton operatives' strike began with no change in the situation. The operatives have renewed confidence, owing to the action of the American Federation of Labor in voting to give them financial assistance. The leaders say that the fight will now be indefinitely prolonged unless the reduction notices are taken down. The manufacturers say there is no change and deny all rumors that they are to make any attempt to start their mills.

Jenkins' Slayer Killed Himself

Northwood, N. H., Sept. 26.—William Brown, who murdered William Jenkins on a lonely road in Barrington while returning from the Rochester fair, committed suicide rather than face arrest. His body was found in the woods at Northwood Narrows, half a mile from his home, by Charles Kelley of this town. The disappearance of Brown, which proved so puzzling to the well organized posse of Strafford county officials, was explained by Kelley's discovery.

Senator Hoar Is Failing Fast

Worcester, Mass., Sept. 26.—The family of Senator Hoar last night issued a bulletin showing that the senator is gradually succumbing to the effects of his long illness. Only the immediate members of the senator's family are admitted to the sick chamber and he spends most of his time asleep. He has been weaker since Friday, passing most of the time in sleep and refusing to take his medicine and pourishment.

Rails Suspended In Air

Littleton, N. H., Sept. 26.—Slowly undermined by a small brook, the 125-foot embankment of the Maine Central railroad at Crawford Notch caved in, leaving nearly 100 feet of rails suspended in the air and cutting off telephone and telegraph communication for several hours. Railroad communication over this division will be interrupted until a temporary structure over the break can be erected.

School Destroyed by Fire

Boston, Sept. 26.—Eight persons were injured and a property loss of about $125,000 was caused at a fire which practically destroyed the large 4½-story brick building used for St. Augustine's parochial school. No pupils were in the schoolhouse at the time. Those injured included firemen and spectators. The fire presumably started from an explosion of chemicals.

General Chadwick Drowned

Barnstable, Mass., Sept. 26.—General W. P. Chadwick was drowned in the channel of Harbor Heights while bathing. General Cradwick was about 40 years old, unmarried and a resident of Exeter, N. H., where, as managing trustee of Phillips-Exeter academy, he had direct charge of the business affairs of that institution.

Dragged Down by Anchor

Fall River, Mass., Sept. 26.—The body of Henry Levesque, who fell overboard and was drowned while hauling in the anchor of his sailboat, has been recovered. When found the rope was wound about his hand and his body was held fast by the anchor.

Forgery Charge Against Him

St. Louis, Sept. 26.—Alonzo K. Wightman, who claims to be a former mayor of Duluth, a former speaker of the house of representatives of Minnesota, and a member of that body for six years, was arrested last night on information that he was wanted at Buffalo to answer a charge of forgery. Wightman declares he is innocent of the charge.

No Room For Old Men

Pittsburg, Sept. 26.—The Carnegie Steel company has issued a circular letter to the superintendents of the different plants and to the heads of the departments in the plants instructing them to employ no men over 35 years of age in certain departments and extending the age limit to 40 in others. The rule does not apply to laborers.

CITY BREVITIES.

Brockton fair next week.

The last week of September.

Sunday was more seasonable, and a lovely day.

Murdock Gillis is confined to his home on Chestnut street by sickness.

Joint caucuses in all wards of the city tomorrow. Polls open at 12 noon and close at 9 P. M.

The Merrymount Golf club will have an open amateur tournament at Norfolk Downs on Saturday.

W. F. Loud of West Quincy entered a carriage in the parade at the Weymouth fair on Saturday.

The Weymouth fair might have had a much larger attendance from Quincy, had the attractions been advertised in the Quincy newspapers.

Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester Miller of Bigelow street have been entertaining Mrs. Nancy E. Pratt and Mrs. Jeanette French of Randolph the past week.

William Tyler Shaw of Weymouth has sold his farm of forty-eight acres, situated on the Weymouth Back river, in Hingham, to Lewis Bass of Quincy.

The entries for the State Golf championship tournament, to be held at Manchester Oct. 5-8, must be made on or before Wednesday with R. R. Freeman at his Boston address.

It is probable that William V. Hayward and John T. Hayward of Chestnut street worshipped with the Mormons on Sunday. They left Boston Sept. 19, with a party of twenty-five gentlemen interested in a copper mine in Utah. They will return the first of next week.

The Brockton Fair.

October 4, 5, 6 and 7. Underline these dates to celebrate New England's greatest amusement festival: The Brockton Fair. This great carnival certainly improves with age, and when the management says it will be bigger and better than ever it is smply telling the truth. Fifty-five acres teeming with countless wonders to interest the sight seer, the old-time cattle show and the very much up-to-date Fair and Horse show combined. A department for everybody. If there is anything new in the amusement line you'll find it at the Brockton Fair. Just remember the dates: Oct. 4, 5, 6 and 7.

Afraid of American Shipping

London, Sept. 26.—The Morning Post, in a strong editorial on the shipping question, says that Germany's energy is conspicuous, but that there is even a greater need to keep a watchful eye on the shipping legislation of the United States.

Gasolene Wrecked Power House

Utica, N. Y., Sept. 26.—The power house which supplies water for the village was completely wrecked by an explosion of gasoline. The force of the explosion blew bricks and pieces of wood 500 feet in all directions. No one was hurt.

Oil Laden Bark Burned

New York, Sept. 26.—Among the passengers on board the steamer Saratoga, from Nassau, were Captain Boeman and 10 members of the crew of the bark James A. Wright, which took fire and became a total loss off Harbor Island. She was laden with crude oil.

PARKER'S LETTER

Presidential Candidate Gives Views on National Issues

FAITH IN GOLD STANDARD

For Revision of Tariff and Freedom For Filipinos--Favors Liberal Pensions For Surviving Soldiers and Sailors--Reform In Expenditures Needed--Imperialism Denounced

Esopus, N. Y., Sept. 26.—Alton B. Parker's letter accepting the Democratic nomination for the presidency says:

I wish again to refer to my views previously expressed as to the gold standard, to declare again my unqualified belief in said standard and to express my appreciation of the action of the convention in reply to my communication upon that subject.

The issue of imperialism which has been thrust upon the country involves a decision whether the law of the land or the rule of individual caprice shall govern. The principle of imperialism may give rise to brilliant, startling, dashing results, but the principle of democracy holds in check the brilliant executive and subjects him to the sober, conservative control of the people.

Tariff reform is one of the cardinal principles of the Democratic faith, and the necessity for it was never greater than at the present time. It should be undertaken at once in the interest of all our people.

In the words of our platform we demand "a revision and a gradual reduction of the tariff by the friends of the masses, and for the common weal, and not by the friends of its abuses, its extortions and discriminations."

I pointed out in my earlier response the remedy which, in my judgment, can effectually be applied against monopolies, and the assurance was then given that if existing laws, including both statute and common law, proved inadequate, contrary to my expectations, I favor such further legislation within constitutional limitations as will best promote and safeguard the interests of all the people.

In my address to the notification committee I said that tariff reform "is demanded by the best interests of both manufacturer and consumer." With equal truth it can be said that the benefits of reciprocal trade treaties would enure to both. If we would run our mills to their full capacity, thus giving steady employment to our workmen and securing to them and to the manufacturer the profits accruing from increased production, other markets must be found. Furthermore, when our manufacturers are dependent on raw materials in whole or part imported, it is vital to the extension of their markets abroad that they secure their materials on the most favorable terms.

I am in hearty accord with that plank in our platform that favors doing for the Filipinos what we have already done for the Cubans, and I favor making the promise to them now that we shall take such action as soon as they are reasonably prepared for it. If independence such as the Cubans enjoy cannot be prudently granted to the Filipinos at this time, the promise that it shall come the moment they are capable of receiving it will tend to stimulate rather than hinder their development. And this should be done not only in justice to the Filipinos, but to preserve our own rights, for a free people cannot withhold a freedom from another people and themselves remain free.

The pledge of the platform to secure to our citizens, without distinction of race or creed, whether native born or naturalized, at home and abroad, the equal protection of the laws and the enjoyment of all the rights and privileges open to them under the covenants of our treaties, as their just due, should be made good to them.

The Democratic party stands committed to the principle of civil service reform and demands its just and impartial enforcement.

An isthmian canal has long been the hope of our statesmen and the avowed aim of the two great parties, as their platforms in the past show. The Panama route having been selected, the building of the canal should be pressed to completion with all reasonable expedition.

Our commerce in American bottoms amounts to but 8 percent of our total exports and imports. It is an arduous task to undo the effect of 40 years of decadence and requires the study and investigation of those best fitted by experience to find the remedy, which surely does not lie in the granting of subsidies wrung from the pockets of all the taxpayers.

Recent disclosures, coupled with the rapid augmentation of government expenditures, show a need of an investigation of every department of the government. A Democratic congress and executive will assure it.

We are justly proud of the officers and men of our army and navy. Both, however, have suffered from the persistent injection of personal and political influence. These and other abuses should be corrected.

The national Democracy favors liberal pensions to the surviving soldiers and sailors and their dependents on the ground that they deserve liberal treatment. It pledges by its platform adequate legislation to that end. But it denies the right of the executive to usurp the power of congress to legislate on that subject.

If elected I will contribute my effort toward the enactment of a law to be passed by both houses of congress and approved by the executive that will give an age pension without reference to disability to the surviving heroes of the Civil war and under the provisions of which a pension may be accepted with dignity because of the consciousness that it comes as a just due from the people through their chosen representatives and not as largess distributed by the chief executive.

The foreign relations of the government have in late years assumed special importance. Prior to the acquisition of the Philippines we were practically invulnerable against attacks by foreign states. Those tropical possessions, however, 7000 miles from our shores, have changed all this and have in effect put us under bonds to keep the peace. The new conditions call for a management of foreign affairs the more circumspect in that the recent American invasion of foreign markets in all parts of the world has excited the serious apprehension of all the great industrial peoples. It is essential, therefore, more than ever to adhere strictly to the traditional policy of the country as formulated by its first president.

There is not a sentence in the Republican platform recommending a reduction in the expenditures of the government, not a line suggesting that the increase in the cost of the war department from $34,000,000 in 1886 to $115,000,000 in 1904 should be inquired into, and not a paragraph calling for a thorough investigation of those departments of the government in which dishonesty has been recently disclosed.

Reform in expenditures must be had in both the civil, military and naval establishments in order that the national expenditures may be brought to a basis of peace and the government maintained without recourse to the taxes of war.

If it be the wish of the people that I undertake the duties of the presidency I pledge myself, with God's help, to devote all my powers and energy to the duties of this exalted office.

Predicts Democratic Success

New York, Sept. 26.—An interview with former Senator J. K. Jones, who was for eight years chairman of the Democratic national committee, was made public at national headquarters, in which confidence is expressed in Democratic success this year. Senator Jones says this confidence is exemplified in the class of men nominated for governor in all parts of the country. He believes the Democrats will be successful in a large majority of the state elections.

Half a Million For Endowment Fund

Philadelphia, Sept. 26.—The Public Ledger says that a contribution supposed to amount to $500,000 has been made to the University of Pennsylvania to form the nucleus of an endowment fund to meet the current expenses of the institution.

NEWS IN BRIEF

A seaman of the barge J. B. Walker, named Hanson, fell from between decks to the lower hold while the vessel was near Handkerchief Shoal, Mass., and was instantly killed.

The opening exercises in celebration of the 175th anniversary of the town of Bedford, Mass., were held in the ancient meeting house in the presence of a large audience.

Fire in a business block at Burlington, Vt., occupied by several tenants, caused a loss of $10,000. The fire started on a floor where explosives of various kinds were stored and a number of explosions resulted.

A crowd of Laurens, S. C., citizens lynched a young negro named James Stuart for attempted assault on a 14-year-old white girl.

A passenger train was derailed by striking a cow near Madison, Me., and the engine and tender went down an embankment.

Rear Admiral Fernando P. Gilmore, U. S. N., died at New York of Bright's disease, which he contracted during active campaigning in the Philippines and for which he was retired from active duty two years ago. He was born in 1847.

Louis Fleischmann, the millionaire baker and philanthropist, died at New York of paralysis. He was born in 1836 in Moravia. He fought in the war of 1866 against the Prussians and won distinction.

Mrs. Mary Collins, 50, committed suicide at Salem, Mass., by drowning She had been in ill-health.

Scrofula

Few are entirely free from it.

It may develop so slowly as to cause little if any disturbance during the whole period of childhood.

It may then produce irregularity of the stomach and bowels, dyspepsia, catarrh, and marked tendency to consumption before manifesting itself in much cutaneous eruption or glandular swelling.

It is best to be sure that you are quite free from it, and for its complete eradication you can rely on

THE TAILOR MADE WOMAN.

What She Should Wear In Order to Be Correct.

This is the season of the year when the tailor made coat and skirt form of costume appeals most strongly to the feminine heart. This gown for the early fall may be evolved from the thinnest of voiles over a silk lining or from heavy rough cloth, velvet or velveteen, which promises to be one of the winter's smart gown fabrics. The lines of the strictly tailor made are very severe, and the sleeves are comfortably tight. Indeed, we have come back to the real English ideal tailor made gown, which admits of elaboration only on the collar and in a pretty application of braid or buttons.

Novelties in waistcoats include pique velvet, suede and silk. They are, however, only worn with the severe type of tailor costume and particularly with the basque coats. White suede or kid waistcoats are more popular. Leather trimming of all kinds is the last cry in the world of dress.

TROTTEUR GOWN.

The trotteur gown sketched by our artist is of navy blue serge. The skirt is plaited and stitched with three tiered panels cut into points over a stitched underskirt. The natty little coat is also plaited, stitched and adorned with revers, epaulets and cuffs of ciel blue cloth outlined with open meshed black braid.

WILD ANIMALS.

Different Methods by Which They Are Captured.

The different methods by which various wild animals are captured in their native state are interesting. Lions are generally caught by being tempted to thrust their heads through nooses of strong cords composed of twisted hides. Pieces of meat are used for bait, but frequently the hunters have many days of hard chasing before the lion can be persuaded to try the noose. When he does, the cords are pulled quickly around his throat, stifling him, and other stout cords are bound around his legs. Tigers are more savage than lions and can rarely be captured when full grown. Recruiting is accordingly carried on among the cubs, the parent tigers being killed and the young, left without protectors, being easily caught. The cubs readily accustom themselves to captivity. Perhaps the most difficult of all wild animals to capture is the giraffe. In addition to being very rare giraffes are exceedingly timid and swift footed. There is no special way to capture a giraffe. Many different ways have been tried, and all have been equally unsuccessful. The method which has occasionally resulted in a capture is that of using a long cord, at each end of which is a round weight. This cord is thrown by the hunter in such a manner as to wind around the animal's legs, either bringing it to the ground or rendering it incapable of escaping before it is made a prisoner. Most of the giraffes in captivity have been caught by chance when young.

BROKEN MIRRORS.

Varying Phases of the Superstition That Clings to Them.

A young man with a hall bedroom atmosphere about him got off an elevated train at Rector street. He omitted to take a paper bag that a passenger who got aboard with him at Fifty-ninth street saw him carrying.

"Hi!" shouted his fellow passenger. "You've forgotten your luncheon."

The young man hurried off without appearing to hear. The train hand peeped into the bag. "Broken shaving mirror this trip," he said to the passenger. "We run across broken mirrors in bags or wrapped in neat newspaper parcels every few days. For my part, I put the pieces under the seat for the cleaners to take away. If one is superstitious at all it is just as unlucky to dispose of the pieces of a broken mirror as it is to break the glass. I don't want any secondhand bad luck handed out to me.

"Somebody has got to break shaving mirrors or there wouldn't be any sale for new ones, but young chaps who live in boarding houses don't like to leave the pieces around when they break one for fear of the landlady. There is no more superstitious person on earth, not barring the sailor, than the New York boarding house keeper. I have heard of cases where a man has been asked to give up his room because he happened to break a mirror."—New York Press.

Appalling Loss of Life

Knoxville, Sept. 26.—Running on a roadbed in a supposedly high condition of maintenance and having about them every safeguard known to modern railroads, two trains on the Southern railway came together in a frightful head-end collision. Fifty-nine people are dead and several of the injured will probably die. The accident resulted apparently from the disregarding of orders given to the two trains. Why the orders were disregarded or misinterpreted will probably never be known, as the engineers of the two trains were killed.

Vesuvius' Mighty Eruption

Naples, Sept. 26.—The eruption of Mount Vesuvius is now more violent than at any time since 1872. Red-hot stones are hurled to a height of 1600 feet, falling down the flanks of the mountain with a deafening sound. The director of the observatory says that between 5 o'clock Sunday morning and 6 o'clock in the afternoon his instruments registered 1844 violent explosions and that one stone thrown out weighed about two tons. All vegetation within a radius of one mile of the crater has disappeared.

Suicide Gave Croker Chills

Dublin, Sept. 26.—Richard Croker has taken a sudden dislike to his newly purchased home, French House, Glencairn, and the report is current in the neighborhood that it is a ghost, or, at any rate, a superstition, that has driven him from it. Last spring the wife of his stud groom committed suicide at French house, since which time Croker has manifested a rooted dislike to the place, never having spent a single night under his roof.

Plans of Irish Reformers

London, Sept. 26.—The report of the committee on organization of the Irish Reform association was issued last night. The report suggests the constituting of an Irish financial council committee composed of 24 members, 12 members to be elected by groups of existing parliamentary constituencies and 12 to be nominated by the crown, one-third of the members to retire every three years.

Will Do Right by the Jews

Vilna, Sept. 26.—Prince Sviatopolkkirsky, in an address before members of the Jewish community, said he was well acquainted with the wants of the Jews. He expected the Jews on their side to have perfect confidence in government measures. Jews might rest assured, he said, that, having been made minister of the interior, he would see that justice was always done them.

Peace Brings Financial Gloom

Buenos Ayres, Sept. 26.—The report of the conclusion of peace between the Uruguayan government and the revolutionists has been confirmed. It is expected that claims will be presented by foreign governments for damages and losses to foreign residents to the amount of several million dollars and the financial outlook is consequently gloomy.

Accident Followed Accident

Rochester, N. Y., Sept. 26.—Six people who were injured in a wreck near Lyons were brought to Rochester hospitals. Three sleepers on an express train left the rails because of a split rail and threw the passengers to the floors of the coaches. Just as the train came to a standstill a fast freight ran into the derailed cars.

Great Crowds at World's Fair

St. Louis, Sept. 26.—The department of admissions of the fair reports that the admissions for six days ending Sept. 24 totalled 770,418. The total number of admissions since the fair opened is 11,792,848.

New Record For Standing Jumps

New York, Sept. 26.—Louis Mang broke the world's record of 35 feet 8 3-4 inches for three standing jumps by an inch and a quarter at the Mohawk and Mott Haven Athletic club's games at Mott Haven.

The Weather Forecast

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

RUSSIAN PRISONERS.

Captives Confined In Buddhist Temples and Town Hall.

OFFICERS ARE ALLOWED SERVANTS

All the Prisoners Speak Well of Their Treatment and Regard Their Captors With Kindly Interest. Fight Them Only Because Ordered to Do So by the Czar.

"At 9 o'clock we took a special Liliputian train on the Iyo railway for Matsuyama," says George Kennan in the Outlook, writing about Russian war prisoners in Japan. "A heavy rain was falling when we reached our destination, and as we were driven from place to place in closed 'rikishas we saw little of the town except the temples, halls and improvised barracks in which the Russian prisoners were confined. We found the first lot of them in an old and rather dark Buddhist temple filled with church properties and the figures that we are accustomed to call idols. They were all noncommissioned officers or soldiers and had been captured in the first serious fight of the war—the battle of the Yalu. They were greatly astonished when I greeted them with 'Zdrastvuitia rebatta' (Good morning, boys), but their faces lighted up with interest and pleasure at the sound of their own language, and they responded in unison with a cheery chorus of 'We wish you health, your high nobility!'

"'How are you getting on here?' I inquired. 'Are you comfortable?'

"'Da nitchevo' (It's not so bad), said a sergeant, who was probably the starosta and who stepped forward as spokesman. 'Of course it's a prisoner's life, the place is rather close, and it's very tiresome, but what's to be done? Sudba' (It's our luck).

"'How do the Japanese treat you?' I inquired. 'They seem to me to be a very good sort of people, and I'm sorry you Russians are fighting them.'

"'They treat us very well,' he said, 'and I've nothing to complain of at all. I didn't come to fight them because I bore them any ill will, but I was a soldier, and when the gossudar (the czar) ordered me to fight I had to fight. As you say, they seem to be a very good people, and I wish them all prosperity.'

"This sentiment seemed to have the approval of the rest of the men, who numbered seventy-five or a hundred, and the feeling thus expressed is probably that of a majority of the common soldiers of the Russian army. They have some reason for hating the Turks, but they regard the Japanese either with indifference or with the kindly interest that the Russian peasant takes in all 'good people.' They fight them not because they hate them, but because the gossudar has so ordered.

"We went successively to three or four temples, or public buildings, in which common Russian soldiers were kept, but our stay in each place was so short that I had little time for inquiries. All the prisoners agreed that the Japanese treatment of them was good, but in one instance there was complaint that on the days when rice was substituted for bread the ration was insufficient. The hospital for the sick and wounded Russians was under the management of the Japanese Red Cross and was clean, well ventilated and apparently in excellent condition.

"From the hospital we were taken to see the officers, twenty-three in number, who were quartered in Matsuyama town hall. Partitions had been put up in the spacious apartment so as to give every two men a room to themselves, and their situation seemed to be fairly comfortable. In talking with some of them I asked them what they thought of the fighting capacity of the Japanese. 'Oh, they can fight well,' said a gray haired colonel who had taken part in the Russo-Turkish campaign of 1878. 'They are molodsti (fine fellows), everybody knows that. But what sort of a chance have we had? They've outnumbered us everywhere. On the Yalu we had only 8,000 men, and they attacked with 40,000. At Nanshan the other day they had two or three divisions, while we defended the hill with only two battalions of infantry, outside of the men who worked the guns. Think of that—two battalions against two or three divisions! Of course we were overwhelmed.'

"The Russian officers whom we met in the town hall of Matsuyama were educated and intelligent men, and several of them looked like students. One seemed to be possessed of considerable artistic taste and ability, and at the time of our visit he was amusing himself by painting in water colors Japanese flowers. They all admitted that their captors were making a special effort to treat them well, and they expressed grateful appreciation of the consideration shown them. I doubt very much whether Japanese prisoners are treated as well in Russia. The Russian officers at Matsuyama receive a daily ration consisting of one and a half pounds of bread, a pound of meat or fish, one and one-fifth pounds of vegetables and suitable quantities of tea, sugar, salt and 'appetizers.' Their allowance for clothing is ample, and, in the discretion of the commanding officer, canteens may be opened for their benefit. They are permitted to have servants, chosen from the ranks, in the proportion of one servant to every two officers, and if they swear they will not attempt to escape they are allowed to leave the 'asylum' (the Japanese are too courteous to call it a 'prison'), with a suitable guard, and wander about the adjacent country."

Some Campaign Expenses.

For printing and stationery alone it is calculated that each of the national campaign committees will spend half a million dollars, says Harper's Weekly. Of the scores of millions of documents sent out a great many are franked, but to distribute the residue requires a huge outlay for postage. Extremely expensive also is the house to house canvass, which is made by each party early in September and again about a fortnight before election day. No other item of expenditure is comparable with the sum paid for campaign speeches. It is expected that when the campaign is fully under way no fewer than 5,000 political orators will be placed upon the stump by each of the national committees. As at least five times as many "spellbinders" will be mustered by the state committees, the aggregate number of exhorters will not fall much short of 60,000. Some of the speakers receive $250 a week, together with their expenses, while others will accept no money for their services, but allow their actual disbursements to be made good.

The Dreaded Artist.

The thought of possible cartoons cannot well be absent from the minds of men whom all the world knows. Mr. L. A. Tollemache, the author of "Talks With Mr. Gladstone," told—not in the book—a story which presents the statesman in an attitude not familiar in ordinary representations of the great man.

One stormy day during one of Mr. Gladstone's visits to Biarritz he walked from his hotel to call on Mr. Tollemache, who was amazed to see that Mr. Gladstone came without an umbrella.

Mr. Gladstone laughingly explained that if the high wind had happened to turn his umbrella inside out a picture of him in that forlorn plight would have found its way into half the comic papers of Europe.

Names of Fruits.

The very names of many of our fruits at once suggest their foreign origin. Corinth was the sponsor of "currants" and Damascus of "damsons." We have borrowed the word "gooseberry" from the French "grosseille;" "apricot" is derived from Arabic; "peach" from the French or the Italian, and "tomato" from the Mexican Aztec "tomotel," while the word "cauliflower" is almost comically close in its derivation from the Spanish "col-y-flor," cabbage and flower.

Quite the Reverse.

"I declare," remarked the arctic explorer, "it can hardly be said that you people 'live on the fat of the land.'"

"That's so," replied the intelligent Eskimo. "We live on the fat of the sea mostly—whale blubber and such things."—Exchange.

The Heart's Highway

CHAPTER VI.

I HAVE always observed with wonder and amusement and a tender gladness the faculty with which young creatures, and particularly young girls, can throw off their minds for the time being the weight of cares and anxieties and bring all of themselves to bear upon those exercises of body or mind to no particular end of serious gain, which we call play and frivolity.

That very next morning after I had learned from Mary Cavendish, supplemented by a sulky silence of assent from Sir Humphrey Hyde, that she had, under pretense of ordering feminine finery from England, spent all her year's income from her crops on powder and shot for the purpose of making a stand in the contemplated destruction of the new tobacco crops, and thereby plunged herself and her family in a danger which were hard to estimate were it discovered, I heard a shrill duet of girlish laughs and merry tongues before the house. Then, on looking forth, whom should I see but Mary Cavendish and Cicely Hyde, her great gossip, and a young colored wench, all washing their faces in the May dew, which lay in a great flood as of diamonds and pearls over everything.

I minded well the superstition, older than I, that if a maid washed her face in the first May dew it would make her skin wondrous fair, and I laughed to myself as I peeped around the shutter to think that Mary Cavendish should think that she stood in need of such amendment of nature. Down she knelt, dragging the hem of her chintz gown, which was as gay with a maze of printed posies as any garden bed, and she thrust her hollowed hands into the dew laden green and brought them over her face and rubbed till sure there was never anything like it for sweet, glowing rosiness.

And Cicely Hyde, who must have come full early to Drake Hill for that purpose, did likewise, and with more need, as I thought, for she was a brown maid, not so fair of feature as some, though she had a merry heart which gave to her such a zest of life and welcome of friends as made her a favorite. Up she scooped the dew and bathed her face, turning ever and anon to Mary Cavendish with anxious inquiries, ending in trills of laughter which would not be gainsaid in May time and youth time by aught of so little moment as a brown skin. "How look I now?" she would cry out. "How look I now, sweetheart? Saw you ever a lily as fair as my face?"

Then Mary, with her own face dripping with dew, with that wonderful wet freshness of bloom upon it, would eye her with seriousness as to any improvement, and bid her turn this way and that. Then she would give it as her opinion that she had best persevere, and laugh somewhat doubtfully at first, then in a full peal when Cicely, nothing daunted by such discouragement in her friend's eyes, went bravely to work again, all her slender body shaking with mirth.

But the most curious sight of all, and that which occasioned the two maids the most merriment, though of a covert and even tender and pitying sort, was Mary's black serving wench, Sukey, a half grown girl, who had been bidden to attend her mistress upon this morning frolic. She was seated at a distance, square in the wet greenness, and was plunging both hands into the May dew and scrubbing her face with a fierce zeal as if her heart was in that pretty folly, as no doubt it was. And ever and anon as she rubbed her cheeks, which shone the blacker and glossier for it, she would turn the palms of her hands, which be so curiously pale on a negro's hands, to see if perchance some of the darkness had stirred. And when she saw not, then would she fall to scrubbing again.

Mary washing her face in the May dew

Presently up stood Mary and Cicely, and Cicely flashed in the sun a little silver mirror which she had brought and which had lain glittering in the grass a little removed, and looked at herself, and saw that her brown cheeks were as ever, with the exception of the flush caused by rubbing, and tossed it with her undaunted laugh to Mary.

"The more fool be I!" she cried out. "Instead of washing mine own face in the May dew, better had it been had I locked thee in the clothespress, Mary Cavendish, and not let thee add to thy beauty, while I but gave my cheeks the look of fever or the smallpox. I trow the skin be off in spots, and all to no purpose! Look at thyself, Mary Cavendish, and blush that thou be so much fairer than one who loves thee!"

And verily Mary Cavendish did for a minute seem to blush as she cast a glance at herself in the mirror and saw her marvelous rose of a face, but the next minute the mirror flashed in the grass and her arms were about Cicely Hyde's neck. "'Tis the dearest face in Virginia, Cicely," said she in her sweet, vehement way, and laid her pink cheek against the other's plain one. And Cicely laughed and took her face in her two hands and held it away that she might see it.

"What matters it to poor Cicely whether her own face be fair or not so long as it is dear to thee and so long as she can see thine!" she cried as passionately as a lad might have done, and I frowned, not with jealousy, but with a curious dislike to such affection from one maid to another, which I could never understand in myself. Had Cicely Hyde had a lover she would have said that fond speech to him instead of Mary Cavendish, but lover she had none.

But all at once the two maids nudged one another and turned their faces, all convulsed with merriment, and I looked and saw that the poor little black lass had crept on hands and knees to where the mirror flashed in the grass and was looking at her face therein with such anxiety as might move one at once to tears and laughter to see if the dew had washed her white.

But Mary Cavendish ceased all in a minute her mirth and went up to the black child and took the mirror from her and said in the sweetest voice of pity I ever heard, "'Tis not in one May dew nor two, nor perchance in the dews of many years, you can wash your face white, but some time it will be."

Then the black wench burst into tears and begged in that thick, sluggishly sweet tongue of hers to know if ever the May dew would wash her black away, and Mistress Mary answered as seriously as if she were in the pulpit on the Sabbath day that it would some time most surely, and she should see her face in the glass as fair as any.

Then the two maids, Mary Cavendish and Cicely Hyde, went into the house, and left me, as I said before, to wonder at that spirit of youth which can all in a minute disregard care and anxiety and risk of death for the play of vanity. But, after all, which be stronger, wars and rumors of wars or vanity? And which be older, and which fathered the other?

ADVERTISE IN THE LEDGER

CORNER STONE

Program for the Exercises on Thursday.

Gov. John L. Bates and Others.

To Speak at the New Y. M. C. A. Building.

The corner stone of the new Y. M. C. A. building will be laid by Gov.

John L. Bates on Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

It will be a great event for the association. It's not an easy matter to secure the presence of Massachusett's chief executive for any occasion, however important, and the association may well feel gratified in the prospects.

This will be the first large public affair connected with the new movement for a permanent equipment for the young men, and should be the beginning of a new epoch in the association's history.

The needs and work of the association will be brought to the attention of the public with new force, which should result in new confidence and influence many who have not yet contributed to the building to do so now, and in sufficient numbers and amounts to assure its immediate completion, without an embarrassing debt upon it.

Four other important cities in this state are erecting buildings for their young men. Northampton, Gloucester, and Chelsea will soon enter their plant and Somerville have their structure well under way.

Each of these equipments will cost from 25 per cent. to 50 per cent. more than that of this city, and all are successfully financed at the start.

Quincy shouldn't longer be behind, but get into line with hundreds of other cities and do the necessary thing for the boys and young men.

The exercises connected with the stone laying will be brief and of great interest. The public is cordially invited and urged to attend, both out of sympathy to the Association and of respect to the Governor.

Dr. H. M. Willard, chairman of the corner stone laying committee will preside.

Through the illness of Richard D. Chase, the president, Vice President George H. Brown, will speak for the association.

Mayor Bryant is expected to be present and will speak for the city.

After an address by Col. Edward Anderson, Gov. Bates will deliver the address of the day and formally lay the stone.

The exercises will close with prayer by Rev. E. N. Hardy.

A sealed box will be placed in the stone containing the following:

A copy of the constitution and by-laws of the Association.

The names of the present board of directors and officers.

Printed copy of the building plans.

The day's program and printed matter pertaining to it.

Copies of the Quincy Daily Ledger and Advertiser of September 27.

A photograph of the breaking-ground exercises of July 4, 1904.

An alphabetical list of the names of all who have contributed thus far to the building.

MANY FRIENDS.

Wish Miss Mary Elcock Success as Instructor in the West.

Many of the friends of Miss Mary A. Elcock were at the North station, Boston, yesterday afternoon to bid her success at Kenosha, Wis., where she will be instructor in physical culture at Kemper Hall, one of the leading seminaries of the west. There was also a gathering of friends on Sunday evening at the residence of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Elcock of Marsh street to say good bye.

Since her graduation from Sargent's school two years ago, Miss Elcock has been very successful teaching private classes in Quincy, Brockton, Malden and Milton. She has also had the supervision of the physical training of children at the Morse home in Mattapan for two summers. Her appointment to Kemper hall came early in the present summer and has been the subject of warm congratulation for Miss Elcock, as the position is considered a highly advantageous one.

Being one of the most popular girls of Quincy, Miss Elcock has been the recipient of many tokens of friendship the past week at several formal and impromptu farewell receptions. A dance given in her honor at the Quincy yacht club was followed by a surprise party at the home of one of her most intimate friends, Miss Mollie Lill, in Roxbury, where at the end of a string in a cobweb contest Miss Elcock found a handsome gold watch, marked with her monogram.

PROVED FATAL.

John McPhee Dies of Injuries Received in Assault.

John McPhee, whose skull was fractured in a row at Newburyport last Tuesday night died Monday at the hospital says a dispatch to the Herald. His alleged assailants, William J. Fallon and Arthur G. Lord of Quincy were arraigned in police court and bail in each case was fixed at $5000. Fallon secured bondsmen, but Lord went to jail. City Marshal Ayers awaits instructions from District Attorney Peters relative to summoning Fallon and Lord on the charge of manslaughter. The body of McPhee was sent to East Boston.

William J. Fallon is a member of the firm of John Fallon & Sons of Quincy, granite contractors. The firm recently took a sub-contract to build jetties off Plum island, in the Merrimac river at Newburyport. Fallon had charge of the work. He is 36 years of age, unmarried, and resides at 22 Common street with his parents. He is regarded as of temperate and industerious character. Lord is not known in Quincy. He is said to belong in Salem. McPhee lived at 298 Lexington street, East Boston with his wife and two children. He was 37 years of age and a carpenter.

Friends of Mr. Fallon claim that he was not in the assaulting party, although in the mix-up earlier in the evening, and expect that he will be discharged when the case comes to trial.

Too Many Drunks.

A lively skirmish took place Monday afternoon about 3.30 at the corner of Winter and East Howard streets. Not much time was lost, however, before Officer Larkin arrived at the scene of action and placed three men under arrest. The men were well under the influence of liquor. The question is, where do these men get the liquor?

It is an injustice to the respectable citizens of the Point to allow such goings on and the authorities would do well to step in and over-haul some of these boarding-houses in the Fore River district. The old residents of Quincy Point are justly indignant over the horrible state of affairs.

SMALL VOTE

Being Cast at the Joint Caucuses.

Almost Too Quiet for the Officers.

No Counting of Ballots Until the Polls Close.

For the first time the voters of Quincy are today making their nominations for the State election under the joint caucus act or the Luce law so-called.

The necessity of opening the polls in each ward at 12 M. is not apparent, but it may accommodate some voters who could not attend an evening caucus.

The vote up to 2 P. M. was very light, the aggregate vote for all parties probably being less than 100.

The polls will be open in all wards until 9 P. M. and voting during the early evening hours may be brisk.

There is no contest in the city for delegates unless it be by stickers. One candidate in Ward Five is running on stickers.

The Republicans have to select two Representative candidates from three names, and the Democrats are making choice between two for Congress.

The votes will not be counted until after the close of the polls at 9 P. M. and the result may not be known until midnight.

Ward One.

At 2 P. M. just 30 votes had been cast in the Quincy ward, and it was too quiet to be interesting.

The regular election officers were on duty: Messrs. Kittredge, Dunphy, Goodridge, Smith, Dunn and Welch, while Police Officers Stewart and Olson had a snap.

In the ballot box at 2 o'clock were votes of all parties.

A sticker for George P. Taylor for the Democratic nomination for Representative put in an appearance.

Ward Two.

The Quincy Point caucus is being held in Bett's stable on Washington street. It is centrally located, the only fault found being by the election officers who complain of the cold.

There is a contest on, aside from those on the official ballot. This is George P. Taylor of River street, who is seeking the Democratic nomination for Representative to the General Court. It was announced that Taylor stickers would also be given out in the other wards.

The caucus officers are Messrs. Connor, Mueller, Ring, Cain, Newcomb, Burrell. Police Officers, J. Donovan and Doran.

Ward Three.

It was 1.20 when the Ledger reporter visited the South Quincy polling place. Although the polls had been opened 80 minutes only 19 had voted. It was said that ballots of all parties had been used. Carriages were employed bringing voters to the polls.

The caucus officers on duty were Messrs. Cahill, McCalder, Elrick, Hobart, Sullivan and Kelly. Police officers Gordon and Frank Goodhue preserved order.

Ward Four.

The regular election officers are on duty, Messrs. Crowley, McCormick, Burke, King, Williams and Fuller.

Police officers, Matthews and Malone.

During the first hour 14 votes were cast, and the total at 2.30 was 30.

Ward Five.

Wollaston expects to poll a large vote at the caucus, although voting will be light until late this afternoon when the voters begin to arrive home from business. Carriages are in use to convey delinquent voters, and Representative Freeman was on hand all the afternoon looking after his interests.

As soon as the polls opened a sticker made its appearance bearing the name of James H. Broughton, who seeks an election as a delegate to the Republican Senatorial convention. Mr. Broughton favors the renomination of Senator Albert A. Brackett. It is said that the names on the printed ballot favor the nomination of Nevins of Weymouth.

The caucus officers are: Messrs. Sherman, Sargent, Olney, Richmond, Denneen, Lavery. Police officers Bradley and Duffy.

Ward Six.

There were no contests apparent in Atlantic at the opening of the polls this noon. Warden Pope read the call and Clerk Drew read the roll call of election officers. All of the regular officers, were present except Inspector Edwards and Deputy inspector Ryan took his place.

There were no hangers on about the polls, and but few votes are expected until after 6 o'clock when the voters come home from business.

The caucus officers are Messrs, Pope, Drew, Ryan, Dolan, Melzard, Sherwin. Police Officers,—M. Donovan and Hunt.

Insured for $2,000,000

L. Rodman Wanamaker, son of John Wanamaker, the eminent merchant of New York and Philadelphia, has taken out a policy in

The Prudential Insurance Co.

for $1,000,000, paying an annual premium of over $30,000. This makes him the most heavily insured man in the world, with the single exception of King Edward VII.

Mr. Wanamaker's total insurance is now $2,000,000.

Ask yourself WHY Mr. Wanamaker placed one-half this great amount with The Prudential.

Your business judgment will at once reply: "Because after full investigation and comparison, Mr. Wanamaker found that the company which could give him the best insurance for a given amount of money was The Prudential."

Undoubtedly you will agree that Mr. Wanamaker does not pay over $30,000 per year except for most excellent reasons.

☞Looked at from a strictly business point of view the Christian Endeavor convention, which is to open here Tuesday afternoon, is a valuable event for the city, with its hundreds of delegates coming from all over the state to receive impressions of Haverhill, many of them to see its activities and enterprises for the first time. It pays to advertise a city as well as to advertise anything else, and these conventions are the best kind of advertisements. More than that, there is no doubt as to the moral benefit of such a gathering. The enthusiasm which is bound to be created by the convention is a certain inspiration not only of the young people, but of the entire church-going public of the city, and even will become a sort of a contagion in the air, which will have its effect upon many who do not profess an active interest in those things.—Haverhill Gazette.

WRIGHT COMPLAINS

Deprecates Agitation For Independence of Filipinos

PRODUCTIVE OF INTRIGUE

Demoralizes and Weakens Conservative Natives and Tends to Restore Influence and Activity of Old Insurrection Leaders

Washington, Sept. 27.—President Roosevelt is in receipt of a letter from Governor Wright of the Philippines, in which the governor discusses some of the conditions which he encounters in directing the government of the islands. He says in part:

"The effect of the continued discussion as to the capacity of the Filipino for self-government and his immediate or ultimate independence is having its effect here and makes our task more difficult than it otherwise would be. The less a man is equipped with intelligence and those qualities which make for good citizenship the more easily can he be persuaded that he is the possessor of all these qualities. These people have their full share of ambition and vanity and they also have their full share of reckless, half-formed characters, who are ready for intrigue in any direction which promises them profit or power. It is this class which has largely given force and direction to the Aglipayan movement and has recruited its ranks from the ignorant and dangerous elements.

"In this general connection I may say to you as a matter of information that the agitation in the United States for Filipino independence and the spoken and written utterances of prominent men there who are urging it are all brought here and published in the native newspapers and are being made the text for editorials insisting that the Filipino people are now ready to become an independent nation.

"The effect of all this in distinctly injurious. Its tendency is to restore the influence of the old insurrection leaders and to make them active in preaching the old propaganda. This in turn has the effect of demoralizing and weakening the more conservative and thoughtful Filipinos, who fear that if they speak out as they really think they would be considered the enemies of their people and lose their prestige with them. Those of the more prominent and best educated, and who naturally have their ambitions, are inclined to join in the general cry."

Cuba Won't Prosecute Jackies

Havana, Sept. 27.—As the result of representations by Minister Squiers, the Cuban government has pardoned a sailor from an American warship who was sentenced at Santiago to two months' imprisonment for disorderly conduct. It is understood that hereafter sailors in such cases will be turned over to their commanding officers for discipline.

Long Conference With President

Washington, Sept. 27.—Chairman Cortelyou of the Republican national committee arrived here late yesterday afternoon and was in conference with President Roosevelt until midnight regarding the political situation. He refused to make any statement regarding his talk with the president, except in the most general terms.

Herrick Bids Attorneys Farewell

Albany, Sept. 27.—In closing yesterday's session of the supreme court, trial term, Justice Herrick, the Democratic candidate for governor, took occasion to bid farewell to the members of the Albany county bar. Since this was his last appearance upon the supreme court bench, the courtroom was crowded with attorneys.

Hunter Shot in the Back

Ogdensburg, N. Y., Sept. 27.—Frank Bushaw of Buckton was accidentally shot while hunting in the Adirondacks. Bushaw and two companions were crossing a stream on a log when a man named Flint, of Lowell, Mass., slipped off, and his gun, striking the log, was discharged, the bullet entering Bushaw's back, causing death.

TRAIN WRECK IN MAINE

Engineer, Fireman and a Government Employe Killed

Lewiston, Me., Sept. 27.—Three are dead, nine others seriously injured and some 20 more cut and bruised as the result of a passenger train on the Maine Central railroad running into an open switch and crashing into a freight train opposite the state fair grounds late yesterday afternoon. Fireman Chapman was killed instantly and Engineer Kimball survived but a few moments. Almon Hodgdon, government mail weigher, died later at a hospital.

The train was made up of an express, combination and mail car, smoker and two coaches.

The passenger train, going at a speed of about 30 miles an hour, took the open switch and smashed into the freight cars, which has just been unloaded of stock for the fair. The engine and express car and several freight cars were practically demolished. The parlor car was thrown on its side with the baggage and mail car piled on top. The smoker was turned at an angle of 45 degrees, while the passenger coaches remained upright, although derailed.

The wreckage caught fire from the engine and many of the passengers were panic stricken. Many passengers in the smoker and day coaches broke out the windows in an effort to escape. Some of them were cut, but not seriously. Although the parlor car was overturned, none of its occupants was fatally injured. Those who sustained burns were in the baggage and mail or express cars.

Girl's Body In Breakers

Beverly, Mass., Sept. 27.—Whether Bessie G. Davis of Beverly Farms was murdered and her body cast into the sea from the cliffs at Lee's beach, or whether with suicidal intent she jumped into the breakers and was drowned, is a mystery which is perplexing the authorities. Medical Examiner Stickney stated last night that after an examination of the body he was unable to state whether it was a case of murder or suicide. The investigation, as far as it has proceeded, has developed features which seem to indicate that the girl was murdered, her body thrown into the breakers, and her hat, coat and gloves placed where they were found.

Better Late Than Never

Malden, Mass., Sept. 27.—Mayor Dean sent a communication to the Malden aldermen last evening relative to the recent dynamite explosion in Melrose, in which he states that the fatality makes it necessary that Malden and other cities provide an ordinance relative to the transportation of dangerous explosives. An order authorizing the committee on ordinances to draft such a new ordinance was passed.

Miss Gould on Inspection Tour

Salem, Mass., Sept. 27.—Twenty-five hundred people attended the reception at the Y. M. C. A. building last evening, given in honor of Miss Helen M. Gould, and the occasion of the opening of the completed building. Miss Gould and party left here today to visit Fort Warren in Boston harbor and inspect the Y. M. C. A. work among the soldiers. This evening they will inspect the railroad branch of the Boston Y. M. C. A.

Officers Legs Peppered

Lowell, Mass., Sept. 27.—Charles H. Cutler, a special officer of Dracut, was fired upon by two men in the woods while trying to prevent them from shooting robins. His legs and thighs were filled with bird shot. Cutler's wounds are painful, but not serious. Two men have been arrested on suspicion.

Lodge on Reciprocity

Newton, Mass., Sept. 27.—Senator Lodge was the guest of the Newton club at a dinner last night, and in a speech following the dinner, advocated a policy of reciprocity that would bring compensation to the United States for concessions made, and not prove inimical to American interests.

Mother and Child Badly Hurt

Wakefield, Mass., Sept. 27.—A carriage containing Mr. and Mrs. Judson Hunt and their little daughter was struck and wrecked by an electric car here last night. The mother and child were terribly injured and the girl may die. Hunt's injuries are not serious.

Cotton Mills to Run Full Time

Chicopee, Mass., Sept. 27.—The Dwight Cotton mills of this city, employing about 1800 hands, have been on a four days a week schedule since April. Mills 1 and 2 will run on full time this week and next week the whole plant will be on full time.

Cote Again a Champion

Bath, Me., Sept. 27.—Arthur Cote regained the lightweight championship of Maine, which he lost to Jesse Savage, by defeating him last night in the sixth round of what was scheduled to be a 15-round bout. Cote won by two powerful blows to the stomach.

Providence Has $75,000 Fire

Providence, Sept. 27.—A spectacular fire practically wiped out the lumber yard of Burrows & Kenyon. The police are holding a suspect, it being the belief that the fire was the work of an incendiary. Three firemen were slightly injured.

The Big Brockton Fair.

From early morning till sunset there is something going on to entertain the thousands who annually attend the Brockton Fair. Not a patron has an opportunity to wonder what he will do next, but can only wonder at what he will see next. The races, the horse show, two big stage shows, 17 star acts, balloon ascensions, firemen's muster, music by three bands, a cattle and poultry exhibit of mammoth proportions are a few of the interesting features on the program of pleasure. The big grand-stand, enlarged by the addition of 1,600 seats, is a show in itself. Perfect order is always maintained on the grounds, and careful attention is paid to every detail that will tend to increase the comfort of the Fair's patrons. An information bureau, with telephone and telegraphic service, a free nursery where little ones can be left in the care of competent nurses, an emergency hospital with a physician and trained Red Cross corps, and a campus and club house for automobiles, all show that the Fair management are always looking to the comfort of their patrons. The dates of the big show are October 4, 5, 6 and 7.

Master's Notice of Sale

The Quincy Granite Quarries Co.

NOTICE is hereby given that pursuant to the decree of sale made and entered by the Circuit Court of the United States for the District of Massachusetts on the 13th day of September, 1904, in a certain cause in equity pending in said Court, entitled, "American Loan and Trust Company, Complainant vs. The Quincy Granite Quarries Company, Defendant, and John K. Hayward et. al., Complainants vs. The Quincy Granite Quarries Company, Defendant, Consolidated Causes," I, Walter B. Farr, Special Master, will sell at public auction to the highest bidder or bidders, upon the first parcel of land hereinafter described called the "Field Lot," situated in that part of Quincy, Massachusetts, known as West Quincy and near the Lyons Quarry, so called, on WEDNESDAY, the nineteenth day of October, 1904, at 10.30 A. M., all the real estate and personal property of every nature and description of The Quincy Granite Quarries Company not heretofore sold under the decree of foreclosure and sale entered in said Circuit Court in said cause in equity upon the twenty-sixth day of February, 1904, said real estate being particularly described in said decree as follows:

"All that certain parcel of land, situated in said Quincy, containing four and 69-100 acres, and bounded:—Northwesterly by land now or formerly of Fenno; and on all other sides by land of the Quincy Quarry Company, Excepting and reserving therefrom all that certain parcel of land, called the "Robbins Lot" situated in said Quincy and bounded and described as follows:—Beginning at a point on the line between Milton and Quincy on land now or late of Fenno near land now or formerly of heirs of one Root; thence running Northeasterly by the Town Line and bounding on said Fenno land to land of Glover (now or formerly) thence turning and running Southeasterly on said Glover land to land of Bowman; thence turning and running Southwesterly on land of said Bowman and land of Churchill to land of John M. Forbes; thence turning and running Northwesterly on said Forbes' land to the point of beginning, or however otherwise bounded or described.

Being a portion of the premises conveyed to the Quincy Quarry Company by Charles Breck, by deed dated June 30, 1893, recorded with Norfolk Deeds, Lib. 698, Fol. 3.

Also a certain other parcel of land situated in the Westerly part of said Quincy, containing two acres, more or less, bounded and described as follows:—Northerly on land now or late of Swithin; Easterly on land now or late of Swithin; Southerly on land formerly of James Graham; and Westerly on land now or late of Swithin.

Being the same premises conveyed to the Quincy Quarry Company by A. Milne, by deed dated June 26, 1893, recorded with Norfolk Deeds, Lib. 701, Fol. 70.

Also a right of way conveyed by deed recorded Norfolk Deeds, Lib. 735, Fol. 9. Beginning Southerly boundary of line formerly of Hall running Northwesterly and along centre line of grantee's railroad location as shown by red line on plan of land and railway of Quincy Quarry Co., about 640 feet to Prout Bros Granite Co. Also second right of way 30 feet wide beginning Southerly boundary of Hall, thence Northwesterly 625 feet to Prout Bros. Granite Co. Said second parcel being the spur track running to quarry of F. Wesley Fuller.

Also all other rights of way or other easements owned by said Quincy Granite Quarries Company in connection with lands owned by it for quarrying purposes."

And also all the right, title and interest of the Quincy Granite Quarries Company in and to a certain parcel of land situated in said Quincy and bounded and described as follows, towit: Northerly by land of the town of Milton; Northeasterly by land formerly of Cunningham; easterly by land belonging to the White estate by a curved line; Southeasterly by land of Prout Bros. fifty-two and eighty-four one hundredths (52 84) feet; Southerly by said land of Prout Bros. four hundred and six and eight tenths (406.8) feet; and Westerly by land of the Quincy Quarry Company. Being the same premises conveyed to the Quincy Granite Quarries Company by Frederick J. Fuller by his deed dated October 25, 1899, recorded with Norfolk Deeds, Lib. 920, Fol. 495; it being understood that said parcel of land is included within the general description of the property to be sold contained in said decree to wit: "all of the property of said defendant (not heretofore disposed of under said foreclosure bill) both real and personal, titles, interests, franchises, choses in action, rights of way, easements, wherever situated," and without intending in any way to limit or restrict the generality of said description.

Said personal property consists of certain machinery, tools, derricks, quarrying apparatus, bills and accounts receivable and other choses in action more particularly described in the receivers' inventory filed in said cause.

Said real estate and personal property will be sold as one lot and without division. Such sale will be made, however, subject to any unpaid taxes, sewer assessments and all other liens imposed by law.

The Special Master is authorized to adjourn the sale from day to day or week to week and without further advertisement or notice to proceed with such sale on any day to which the sale may have been thus adjourned.

The Special Master will receive no bid for the property unless at or before the time of making the bid the bidder deposits the sum of one thousand ($1,000) dollars in cash or certified check satisfactory to him, as a pledge that such bidder will make good his bid and complete his purchase if upon being reported to the Court the same is accepted and confirmed.

The Court expressly reserves the right to reject any bid and also to retake possession of and resell such premises and property upon the failure of any purchaser for twenty days to comply with any order of the Court requiring any payment on account of the purchase price.

If any bid shall be accepted by the Court and the purchaser or purchasers shall fail to comply with the terms of the bid or with any orders of the Court relating to the consumation of the purchase, then the sums paid in by such purchaser or purchasers shall be forfeited as a penalty for such non-compliance.

Upon confirmation of the sale and upon a payment of the purchase price bid by the purchaser the Special Master will make, execute and deliver to the purchaser or purchasers or his or their assigns a deed or deeds of the real property sold and proper assignments of the personal property sold and upon confirmation of such sale and full compliance with the terms of sale by the purchaser or purchasers he or they or his or their assigns shall be entitled to proper deeds of further assurance to be executed and delivered according to law by the Quincy Granite Quarries Co.

For further particulars and for a more specific description of the property ordered to be sold reference is made to the above-mentioned decree of said Court.

Dated September 17th, 1904.

ACTIVITY OF JAPS

Extensive Movement Looking Toward Capture of Mukden

RUSSIANS HOLD PASSES

Must Soon Retire or Become Involved In Heavy Fighting--Cheefoo Reports Continued Assaults on Port Arthur

London, Sept. 27.—Indications are discerned at St. Petersburg that the Japanese are planning a flanking movement against General Kuropatkin's left, to compel retirement from Sintsintin. General Kuroki is supposed to design crossing the Hun river at a point considerably east of Mukden, from which he is expected to move down that stream and co-operate with an army from Sianchan, while Generals Oku and Nodzu hold General Kuropatkin south of Mukden. Japanese attacks on Da Pass and Sanlingku are regarded as confirmation of this theory. Outposts of Generals Oku and Nodzu have been in conflict with Cossacks between Dentsiaputze and the railroad.

Kuropatkin reports that the Japanese turning movement on Mukden is being carried out on an extensive scale and that there are frequent skirmishes in the valley of the Hun. Oyama's attempt to force the Kaoutou pass, commanding the road to Fushun, so far has been frustrated. If the Japanese succeed finally in gaining a foothold in some of the defiles on the north side of the Hun east or northeast of Mukden, they will compel Kuropatkin's retirement northward toward Tie pass.

It does not seem likely that many days will have passed before the retirement of the Russian troops or some very heavy fighting will be reported.

Rumors of furious fighting at Port Arthur, with the advantage resting with the Japanese, continue to pour in from Chefoo, but they all are from Chinese sources. These stories give more or less detailed accounts of the fighting, and say that the Russians have lost three important forts. The Chefoo dispatches say that after a period of comparative quiet this last series of assaults began Sept. 19 and continued until the 21st at least—the date of the departure of the Chinaman who brought the information. The Russian version of the situation says that fighting began on Sept. 10 and culminated Sept. 19, in the repulse of the Japanese "with enormous losses." More definite information will be necessary before any accurate idea can be formed as to just what has taken place.

The official announcement of the proposed mobilization of a second Russian army apparently is the czar's way of announcing to the world that the war has only begun and that the loss of Mukden or Port Arthur will not be the signal for peace proposals.

May Account For Russian Failures

London, Sept. 27.—The Daily Mail's Liaoyang correspondent says: The discovery in abandoned Russian headquarters here of a number of documents and orders from Viceroy Alexieff cashiering officers for abandoning positions and for drunkenness, etc., and censuring officers for lawless treatment of Chinese, waste of ammunition and other offenses, proves an amazing lack of discipline in General Kuropatkin's army.

Most Awful War Yet to Come

Honolulu, Sept. 27.—Melton Prior, the British newspaper correspondent, who arrived here yesterday from Yokohama, says he feels absolutely certain that the war in the far east will lead to European complications and to the most awful war in the world's history.

What Wiren May Do

St. Petersburg, Sept. 27.—The naval organ, Kotlin, publishes an article predicting that Rear Admiral Wiren will attempt to break out of Port Arthur with his ships and return to Europe.

Police Chief Cowhided Minister

Albany, Ga., Sept. 27.—The trial of Police Chief Westbrook under the charges preferred against him three months ago by citizens of Albany has been called before the board of police commissioners. The charges were first made by Dr. Broughton from his pulpit, and resulted in Dr. Broughton being publicly cowhided by Westbrook the following day.

Brabrook's Case Sidetracked

Chicago, Sept. 27.—The suit brought some time ago by S. G. Brabrook against Senator Depew and the Penny Publishing company for an alleged debt of $200 has been dismissed on the ground that Brabrook waited too long before filing suit. The indebtedness was said to have been incurred in 1895.

A Slump In Wheat

Chicago, Sept. 27.—A break of 4 cents a bushel in the price of wheat occurred here, due to general liquidation and to the execution of numerous stop orders. Surprisingly heavy primary receipts contributed to the weakness.

New Governor In Office

St. Johns, Sept. 27.—Sir William McGregor, the new governor of Newfoundland, arrived here yesterday from Liverpool. Governor McGregor took the oath of office last evening and assumed executive duties.

Race Riot In Mississippi

Lynchburg, Miss., Sept. 27.—Two negroes were killed and three were fatally wounded in a race riot here last night. The shooting took place on the plantation of J. J. Johnson, who, with his two sons and two friends, went into a field to gather a load of corn. The field was worked on shares by a negro family named Kennedy. As the white men were driving their wagon from the field, a fusillade from a party of blacks met them. The fire was returned with the result that two negroes were killed outright and three fatally shot. A number of whites joined Johnson and his friends and are now searching for others of the attacking party.

Liberty Instead of Death

Washington, Sept. 27.—The president has disapproved the findings and sentence in the case of Fred Skow, who was tried by court martial and convicted under two charges of desertion and of misconduct in joining the enemy and sentenced to death. Skow had practically been discharged from the military service of the United States by competent military authority in the Philippines and at the time he was arraigned he was no longer amenable to trial by court martial. This action restores him to liberty.

Doukhobors Headed Southward

Winnipeg, Man., Sept. 27.—Word has been received from a Doukhobor colony near Saskatoon, N. W. T., that a large body of Doukhobors has started on a march for the United States. They are on the trek for a warmer climate. The affair is causing much excitement, as they may go to extremes to obtain their ends.

Steamer Quickly Sunk

Green Cove Springs, Fla., Sept. 27.—The steamers Heck and Ruby collided in the St. Johns river and the Ruby sank in three minutes. The six men who composed the crew of the Ruby were saved. The collision was due to a misunderstanding of signals.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Several monitors will probably be ordered to Annapolis during the autumn to allow members of the advanced classes at the naval academy to be instructed in ordnance aboard them.

A monument marking the birthplace of James K. Polk, 11th President of the United States, was unveiled near Pineville, N. C., in the presence of a large crowd of people.

What Parisian Artists Have to Say About Hats.

What is there about a Paris hat that differs from headgear of any other description? To the uninitiated in the mysteries of the milliner's art the difference is so slight that it can only be translated by the word chic. It is often thought that the secret lies in the poise of a feather or the placing of a flower. But it is a mistake. The arrangement of an adornment has little to do with the real success. There are two essential considerations that people are apt as a rule to ignore—that is, the quality of the material used and the exact angle at which the hat should be worn. A bow made of ribbon of an inferior quality has an altogether different effect from the one fashioned from a superior make, and therein lies the difference. In these nice little distinctions the French excel, and American artists are now fully alive to the fact. Among the popular hats for the coming winter will be the new Varennes, which has a high crown of funnel or conical shape. The trimming will consist of a double band of velvet in two tones, arranged in such a manner that the upper part of the crown is visible. A plume or panache of three small feathers will be placed in the center of the front and caught with a high narrow buckle.

MAUVE CHIFFON HAT.

The charming hat illustrated is created from mauve chiffon in two tones. One is of parma violets and the other so delicate in tone that it appears almost white. The feathers are in mauve and white, and the harmony is perfect. The high crown is surmounted by a ruching. JUDIC CHOLLET.

Promises Not to Hug.

The school board of Frackville, Pa., had not recently selected a successor to Professor I. G. Miller, who resigned after he was alleged to have hugged the larger girls of his school, says the Philadelphia Record. Though the salary is but $900 a year more have been received between sixty and seventy applications for the vacancy. A number of the applicants have sent strong guarantees that they will show no ardent feeling toward the young lady pupils, one of them stating that he "will not let his arm go to waist."

Baltimore-Washington Monorail Line

Baltimore, Sept. 27.—The Astors are going to build a monorail passenger railway line between this city and Washington. The monorail road now in service in Germany cost $200,000 a mile to build, but it is declared the Tunis system can be built for $15,000 a mile.

—A new harbor is to be built at Nelilla and one on the Chafarinas Islands, in Morocco. The Spanish Govenment will grant a subvention for said objects.

$100 Reward, $100.
The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

A TIP FOR COLOMBIANS

Insults Aimed at United States May Cause Unfriendly Visit

Colon, Sept. 27.—The American consulate at Cartagena having twice recently been besmeared with filth, Rear Admiral Sigsbee, with his flagship, the Newark, was ordered to proceed to Cartagena and investigate the circumstances. The gunboat Newport, Commander Mertz, joined the flagship on Sept. 16. In a communication to the governor, Luis Patron, Admiral Sigsbee says in part:

"I find your expressions of regret for the acts of indecency on behalf of yourself and your government satisfactory, but that they have not been given sufficient publicity. I suggest additional precautions to prevent a recurrence of such incidents and fuller publicity of the government's expressions of regret, in order to avoid a friendly visit assuming a more difficult feature."

Governor Patron complied by reiterating his regrets.

Bogota, Sept. 27.—President Reyes is meeting with much opposition in the Colombian senate to the resumption of amicable relations with the United States.

Gray Agrees With Wright

Scranton, Pa., Sept. 27.—Judge Gray, to whom was referred the controversy of the anthracite coal miners on the check weighmen question, and which had been previously adjudicated by Carroll D. Wright in favor of the miners, also has decided the issue the same way. The opinion makes a thorough review of all the issues presented by both sides and substantially is along the lines taken by Umpire Wright.

Returned at Reduced Wages

Chicago, Sept. 27.—Nine thousand men returned to work without union regulations of any sort, when the three Chicago branches of the International Harvester works and the Pullman company reopened their shops after a shutdown of two weeks. The men not only returned to their former places as individuals, but they also agreed to reductions in pay of 10 to 20 percent.

Hamel Finds He Is Mistaken

Havana, Sept. 27.—R. A. Hamel, former paying officer of the city of Montreal, who is charged with having cashed a forged check for $10,000 and who has been living in Havana in the belief that he could not be extradited, has been arrested on the request of the British foreign office, the Cuban government complying with the request in lieu of an extradition treaty.

Cold-Blooded Murder of Baby

Toronto, Sept. 27.—Alex Martin, aged 21, a soldier, and his wife, a waitress, are locked up on a charge of murdering their 10-months-old child. The body of the infant was found with its head crushed in. Mrs. Martin confessed that her husband had taken the babe out in a boat and killed it with an oar because it militated against her securing employment.

Mercantile Officers Held

Boston, Sept. 27.—The officers of the Preferred Mercantile company of Boston, who have been arrested on the charge of using the United States mail in a scheme to defraud, had their preliminary hearing before United States Commissioner Fiske, who found probable cause and held the defendants in $2000 each for the circuit court grand jury.

Military Company In Disgrace

Montgomery, Ala., Sept. 27.—The report of the military court of inquiry appointed to investigate the conduct of company F, Alabama National Guard, which was overpowered by the mob at Huntsville that lynched Horace Maples, a negro, recommends that company F be mustered out for inefficiency. Oct 14 was fixed for the mustering out of the command.

Good Gold Digging Season

Seattle, Sept. 27.—The Alaskan season for 1904 is closed so far as shipments to the north are concerned. All the north coast lines are preparing for the rush of outcomers from all points in Alaska. On the whole it has been a good season for gold diggers. The gold product of the entire northern district for the present year is estimated to be $26,000,000.

Poison For Judge's Family

Mount Sterling, Ky., Sept. 27.—An attempt was made to poison the family of Judge May of Salyersville. Arsenic was used and the meal was eaten without the family discovering anything wrong. Judge May and three others were affected. Judge May is in a critical condition, but the others are out of danger.

One Way to Get a Quorum

Havana, Sept. 27.—As a result of the continued absence of a quorum, Speaker Malberry of the house of representatives has ordered that all absentees be fined $10, the amount of the day's pay. Minority partisans and others will hereafter forfeit their pay unless they attend the sittings of the house.

Waggaman Declared Bankrupt

Washington, Sept. 27.—Chief Justice Clabaugh of the district supreme court has adjudged Thomas E. Waggaman a bankrupt and Andrew Y. Bradley was appointed referee. Waggaman was the former treasurer of the Catholic university of America.

Miss Drew who is going to Hampton, Virginia, to teach in the Hampton Institute was presented this afternoon with a handsome black walrus handbag. The presentation speech was made by Miss Irene Dasha in behalf of the class of 1904. Miss Drew expressed her thanks for the kind rememberance of the class.

Brotherhood Convention.

Arrangements are practically comp ete for the four days' convention of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew, which meets in Philadelphia beginning Thursday, September 29, and indications all point to a very large gathering of laymen of the Anglican Communion. The program contains a notable list of speakers, recent additions to it being the Hon. S. H. Blake of Toronto, Canada, one of the delegates from the Canadian church to general convention at Boston; the Rev. J. P. D. Lloyd, rector of St. Marks church, Seattle, Washington; and the Rev. John H. Ellison, Vicar of Windsor, England, and chaplain to King Edward VII. The speaker to whom greatest interest attaches, however, is the Archbishop of Canterbury, who is to speak to the convention at a mass meeting in the Academy of Music, Friday afternoon, September 30.

CONFERENCE

Very Large Attendance at Bethany Church.

Problems Discussed at Morning Session.

Missionary Address and Sermon This Afternoon.

The seventy-eighth fall meeting of the Norfolk Conference of Congregational churches is being held today with the Bethany church.

The morning session opened at 8.30 with a very large attendance. The body of the church being well filled. Many were present aside from the delegates.

Rev. Alan Hudson of Brockton was moderator, and Rev. D. M. Goodyear, Pb. D., scribe.

There was a short business session which was followed by a devotional exercise led by Rev. F. B. McAllister.

The theme for the morning session was "Present problems affecting the Future Prosperity of the church."

There were three addresses on this theme. The first was to have been by Rev. C. E. Stowe of Bridgewater but owing to his non-arrival the third address came first. This was by Rev. Edward Anderson of Quincy, who took the place of Rev. Paris T. Farwell of Wellesley Hills. His subject was "The undeveloped resources of the church." He gave his audience something to think about and act upon.

He was followed by Rev. C. E. Stowe of Bridgewater, whose subject was "The children the hope of the church."

The last address before intermission was by Rev. H. W. Kimball of South Weymouth whose subject was "the unchurched in the community.

An informal discussion followed each address.

Before the intermission the moderator announced the committee on nominations, business and time and place, who will report at the afternoon session.

The addresses were interspersed with congregational singing.

Many of the Bethany church people remained for the basket lunch at noon, serving coffee, rolls and fruit.

During the noon intermission many from out of town visited the shrine of the Presidents Adams under the Stone hurch.

The sermon this afternoon will be by Rev. C. F. H. Crathern of Braintree, aad there will also be an address on Missionary work by Rev. W. L. Beard of Fouchow, and solos by Mrs. Edith Cary Page.

TAX BILLS OUT.

An Itemized Schedule of Property Is Given.

The property tax bills made their appearance this week, and as usual many find they are richer than they expected. The tax rate of $18.00 per $1,000 is higher than usual, and in many instances there are increases in valuation, so that the totals are large.

Upon the bill is printed the following:

City tax,	$9.95
School tax,	4.19
County tax,	.62
State tax, including Metropolitan	3.24
	$18.00

Inasmuch as the city does not levy a "school tax," an explanation seems necessary for the appearance of the item, and it would be interesting to have the figures showing how it is determined that $4.19 of the tax rate goes to schools, and only $9.95 for all the other departments of the city.

Nothing is said about the amount which goes for debt and interest, yet the sum of $71,078.00 goes for city and park debt, and $28,083.24 for interest on municipal, park and temporary loans, a total of $99,161.24, and only $111,000.00 was appropriated this year for schools.

An innovation this year which will be appreciated, is the appearance on the back of the tax bills of the items as assessed: house, land, personal property, etc.

Inspector Detailed.

The orders issued by the Navy department on Monday detailed Lieutenant-Commander W. R. Rush, to navy yard, Boston, for duty in the equipment department of that yard; also to the works of Fore River Ship Building Company, Quincy, and the works of George Lawley & Sons, South Boston.

DIED.

CHAPMAN—In Milton, Sept. 25, Mrs. Mary Campbell, widow of Rufus L. Chapman, of Adams street, aged 75 years.

WHY HE FAILED.

No Appropriation by Congress for New P. O. Buildings.

A rally in the interests of Congressman McNary was held at Hancock hall last evening, which was largely attended, and at times enthusiastic.

Timothy J. Carey, chairman of the Democratic City Committee presided. The principal speaker was Mr. McNary, who said in part:

"Mr. O'Connell's statement that I failed in my duty to Quincy because I did not get an appropriation during the recent session of Congress shows that he is both ignorant as well as malicious. The plan of the Republican majority was to prevent a public building appropriation until after the presidential election, and accordingly no public building bill was reported, and no city or town in the United States received any appropriation for a public building. The same is true as to waterways of Quincy. No appropriation bill for rivers and harbors was reported under this plan of the Republican majority.

"I did succeed, however, on the presentation of Quincy's case to the compromises from the chairman and members of the committee that Quincy, one of the cities which has already purchased a site, would receive appropriation in the bill to be reported this winter. I was also successful in getting the committee on rivers and harbors, for the first time in its history, to visit the waterways of this city, and, after a careful inspection of their present needs and the opportunities they offered for future development of industry and commerce, I received strong assurances from the committee that the river and harbor bill which will be reported in the coming session would include items for the improvement of these rivers.

"Mr. O'Connell, my opponent for the nomination, poses as a political purist before the people of Quincy, whereas his political record in Dorchester has been that of a political highwayman."

AN OLD OFFENDER.

Pickpocket Arrested at Weymouth Sentenced at Quincy.

George Walsh, who was arrested Saturday at the Weymouth fair, for picking a man's pocket, turns out to be an old offender. His number in the rogue's gallery at police headquarters, Boston, is 5,005, and Chief Watts has an acquaintance with him extending over a period of twenty-five years. His last conviction was Dec. 2, 1898, when he was sentenced in the Boston municiple court to six months in jail for larceny. His case came up by continuance in court this morning and he was sentenced to six months in the house of correction.

SHIPYARD SOLD.

The Reorganization Committee Now Have All But One.

The Union iron works, one of the properties of the former United States Ship Building Corporation, was sold at public auction at San Francisco, on Monday, by order of the federal court says a dispatch to a Boston paper. The only bidder was Francis D. Pollock, representing the reorganization company of the New Ship Building Company, 70 per cent. of the stock of which is owned by Charles M. Schwab, who was present. The bid, the minimum allowable under the terms of sale, of $1,700,000 was accepted.

When the reorganization is complete the new company will be capitalized at $33,000,000, of which $3,000,000 will be in bonds.

The plant of the Harlan & Hollingsworth Company at Wilmington, Del., is now the only one of the former properties of the United States Ship Building Company not controlled by the reorganization committee.

RESULT SECRET.

Action of the Street Railway Employes Unknown.

The Quincy branch of the Street Railway Employes Association held a meeting last evening, and discussed the matter of their agreement with the railroad. After the meeting it was given out that negotiations were off for the present, and that no definite action was reached at this meeting.

—In twenty years the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers has not had a strike.

FINING OF GURNEY

May Be More Serious Than Regarded by Officials of Lee

IS HELD TO BE EXEMPT

Justice Said He Did Not Recognize International Law and Fined Legation Secretary For Speeding Auto and Contempt

Pittsfield, Mass., Sept. 27.—Hugh Gurney, third secretary to Sir Mortimer Durand, the British ambassador, who has been spending the summer in Lenox, was in the police court at Lee on two charges. For contempt of court he was fined $25. A similar fine was imposed in a case charging him with speeding his automobile in Stockbridge Sunday.

Gurney, when arraigned in court, positively refused to plead, claiming that as "he was the third secretary to his Britannic majesty he could not under international law be arrested or held for any crime." Special Justice Phelps said he did not recognize international law in his court, and informed the defendant that he must enter a plea. Despite this statement, Gurney continued in his refusal. Then a fine was imposed for contempt of court.

Gurney did not have in his possession sufficient money to pay the fine, and he was committed in the charge of the officer, Deputy Sheriff Noble, who had made the arrest. The officer accompanied Gurney to Lenox, where the money was secured.

Judge Phelps was seen at the close of the court. "I don't care to discuss the case for publication," he said. "I will say that members of the British embassy or of any other embassy will be treated the same as any citizen of the commonwealth in this court."

Washington, Sept. 27.—Notice of the action of a special justice at Lee, Mass., in fining Hugh Gurney, third secretary of the British embassy, was received at the state department in a telegram from Mr. Raikes, first secretary of the embassy, who is at Lenox. The department immediately transmitted this telegram in substance to the governor of Massachusetts, with the suggestion that he do whatever might be necessary to secure the diplomatic immunity of Gurney.

It is believed at the department that the matter may be far more serious than the local officials at Lee seem to regard it. In the first place by constitutional and statutory law the persons attached to an embassy are expressly relieved from any legal responsibility and the exemption even extends to domestic servants.

Section 4063, revised statutes, declares that any writ prosecuted in any court of the United States or of a state or by any judge or justice intended to cause the arrest and imprisonment of any public minister or his servant, shall be void. The succeeding section, 4064, revised statutes, provides that every person by whom any such protest is obtained or prosecuted, whether as party or attorney, and every officer concerned in its execution "shall be deemed a violator of the law of the nations and a disturber of the public repose, and shall be imprisoned for not less than three years, and fined at the discretion of the court."

It will remain for the governor of Massachusetts to take initial action in this case, which will require prompt redress. The last important precedent occurred in 1892 at the picnic resort of Bay Ridge, near Baltimore, when Dr. George, an attache of the Swiss legation in Washington, was arrested by a deputy sheriff on the charge of being a pickpocket and was searched and otherwise treated in a humiliating manner by the local authorities. The state department secured his release at an early moment through the governor of Maryland, who also caused the dismissal of the offending deputy and extended an apology for the incident. Though the Swiss minister might have pressed further punishment, he accepted what had been done as sufficient, but the matter was deemed of such importance that he could not give this notice to other governments until the Swiss federal council had formally considered the case and expressed itself satisfied.

Serious Automobile Smashup

Pittsburg, Sept. 27.—A collision between W. L. Dixon's automobile and a street car last evening resulted in the serious injury of W. L. Dixon, James Wilson and George Turner. Dixon and Wilson will be lame for life. The automobile was smashed to pieces. The accident was caused by the chauffeur of the automobile attempting to pass a slow-going west bound car and colliding with a car east bound.

Tug After Abandoned Schooner

Jacksonville, Fla., Sept. 27.—Captain Sharpe of the schooner Dorothea Bell reports that he passed the schooner Nathan Lawrence, of Bourne, Mass., water-logged and abandoned, on Sept. 24. Tug Admiral Dewey has left here to tow the vessel to Jacksonville, if available.

For More Pay and Shorter Hours

Wakefield, Mass., Sept. 27.—The employes of the lead-lined Iron Pipe company struck last night. They demand that men who have been receiving $1.50 for a 10-hour day shall receive $2 for a nine-hour day and be allowed a Saturday half-holiday throughout the year.

The Heart's Highway

By MARY E. WILKINS

Copyright, 1900, by DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & CO.

After the house door had shut behind the maidens, I too went out, but not to wash my grim man's face in May dew, but rather for a stroll in the morning air and the clearing of my wits for reflection, for much I wondered what course I should take regarding my discovery of the night before. I went down the road toward Jamestown and struck into the path to the wharf the same that we had taken the day before, but there were no masts of the Golden Horn rising among the trees with a surprise of straightness. She had weighed anchor and sailed away over night, and possibly before.

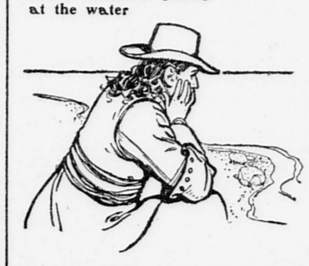

The more I reflected the more I understood that Mistress Mary Cavendish, with her ready wit and supply of money through her inheritance from her mother, might have concocted the scheme of bringing over ammunition from England to enable us to make a stand against the government, but the plot in the first of it could not have been hers alone. Assuredly Ralph Drake was concerned in it, and Sir Humphrey Hyde, and no one knew how many more. The main part for Mistress Mary might well have been the furnishing of the powder and shot, for Ralph Drake was poor, and lived, it was said, by his good luck at cards, and as for Sir Humphrey Hyde, his mother held the reins in those soft hands of hers, which would have been sorely bruised had they been withdrawn too roughly.

I sat me down on a glittering ridge of rock near the river bank and watched the blue run of the water and twisted the matter this and that way in my mind, for I was sorely perplexed. Never did I feel as then the hamper of my position, for a man who was held in such esteem as I by some and contempt by others, and while having voice had no authority to maintain it, was neither flesh nor fowl nor slave nor master.

Madam Cavendish treated me in all respects as the equal of herself and her family—nay, more than that, she deferred to me in such fashion as I had never seen in her toward any one—but Catherine treated me ever with iciness of contempt, which I at that time conceived to be but that transference of blame from her own self to a scapegoat of wrongdoing which is a resort of ignoble souls. They will have others not only suffer for their own sin, but even treat them with the scorn due themselves.

And not one man was there in the colony, excepting perhaps Sir Humphrey Hyde and Parson Downs and the brothers Nicholas and Richard Barry, which last were not squeamish, and would have had me as boon companion at Barry Upper Branch, having been drawn to me by a kindred boldness of spirit and some little passages which I had had with the Indians, which be not worth repeating.

I being in such a position in the colony, and considering the fact that Madam Cavendish and Catherine were stanch loyalists and would have sent all their tobacco to the bottom of the salt sea had the king so ordained, and regarded all disaffection from the royal will as a deadly sin against God and the church as well as the throne, and knowing the danger which Mary Cavendish ran, I was in a sore quandary. Could I have but gone to those men whom I conceived to be in the plot and talked with them on an equal footing I would have given my right hand.

But I wondered, and with reason, what hearing they would accord me, and I wondered how to move in the matter at all without doing harm to Mistress Mary, yet feared greatly that the nonmovement would harm her more. As I sat there I fell to marveling anew, as I had marveled many times before, at that yielding on the part of the strong which makes the power of those in authority possible. At the yielding of the weak we marvel not, but when one sees the bending of stanch, true men, with muscles of iron and hearts of oak, to commands which be manifestly against their own best interests, it is verily beyond understanding.

I reasoned it out within myself that one cause might lie in that distrust and suspicion of his neighbor as to his good will and identical interest with himself which is inborn with every man and in most cases strengthens with his growth. When a movement of rebellion against authority is on foot, he eyes all askance and speaks in whispering corners of secrecy, not knowing when he strikes his first blow whether his own brother's hand will be with him against the common tyrant or against himself.

Were it not for this lamentable quality of the human heart, which will prevent forever the perfect concerting of power to one end, such a giant might be made of one people that it could hold all the world and all the nations thereof at its beck and call. But that cannot be, even in England, which had known and knows now and will know again that division of interest and doubts, every man of his brother's heart, which weaken the arm against the common foe.

But, reflecting in such wise, I came no nearer to the answer to my quandary as to my best course for the protection of Mary Cavendish.

I sat there on that rock glittering like frostwork in the May sunlight and watched the river, and verily it seemed to me that the matter of the tobacco plot and Mary Cavendish's danger was of more moment than aught else in the century.

"Master Wingfield," said a voice so gently and sweetly repellent and forbidding, even while it entreated, that it shivered the air with discord, and I looked around, and there stood Catherine Cavendish. She stood quite near the rock where I sat, but she kept her head turned slightly away as if she could not bear the sight of my face, though she was constrained to speak to me. But I, and I speak the truth, since I held it unworthy a man and a gentleman to feel aught of wrath or contempt when he was sole sufferer by reason of any wrong done by a woman, had nothing but that ever recurrent surprise and unbelief at the sight of her to reconcile what I knew, or thought I knew, with what she seemed.

Accident at Wollaston.

Frank J. Perry, a well known resident of Wollaston, met with a serious accident Saturday. While at the top of a step ladder, doing some work at the Congregational church, he became dizzy, and fell, striking on the back of his head. At first it was thought he was very seriously injured but at present the doctors say he is in a fair way to recover.

TODAY'S COURT.

Hugh McEachen, Robert Elder, Frank Pendergass, William McIntire and William Rogers were arraigned for drunkenneas at Quincy. Cases continned until next Monday.

The continued case of George Walsh for larceny at Weymouth was called and he was sentenced to six months in the house of correction.

NEW CANDIDATE

John W. McAnarney Favorably Mentioned

For the Office of Mayor.

Regarded as Popular With Both Parties.

There have been many conjectures during the past few weeks as to who would receive the Republican nomination for Mayor at the coming municipal convention. Several names have been mentioned but they had all dwindled down to one, namely James Thompson, the Principal Assessor.

This week, however, a new name has been mentioned, that of John W. McAnarney ex-City Solicitor. It is reported that he is the candidate of the Republican City Committee.

It is also intimated that he may also receive a Democratic endorsement.

It is pointed out that not one word can be said against Mr. McAnarney, as he has a clean record. He is not a City Hall candidate, neither is he a Bryant candidate, if anything anti-Bryant.

It is figured out therefore, that Republicans could and would all unite in their support for him.

RECEPTION.

To New Pastor at Atlantic, Rev. M. C. Wright.

Rev. M. C. Wright, the new pastor of the Atlantic Methodist church, was tendered a reception by the church people Tuesday evening. The vestry was arranged to represent a drawing room, potted plants, palms and autumn foliage being used in abundance.

The reception was from 8 to 10 P. M. Rev. Mr. Wright being assisted in receiving by Mrs. Lillian Crosscup, and Mrs. Annie Barbour.

The ushers were Mr. John Ramsdell, Miss Nellie Mitchell, Miss Isabel Moir, Miss Ardelia Barbour and Miss Mabel F. Burr.

Mr. John C. Ward welcomed the pastor in behalf of the church and society, and there were addresses by Rev. Henry C. Megathlin of the Park and Downs church, Walter F. Blacke, L. B. Bradford and Rev. F. F. Lewis of Boston.

Rev. Mr. Wright made a few remarks during which he thanked all for their kindly greeting.

During the evening refreshments were served by Miss Jeannette Fanning, Miss Julia Barbour and Miss Marguerite Holbrook.

Rev. Mr. Wright comes to Atlantic from the northwestern Indiana conference, his last pastorate being at Greencastle, Ia.

Presentation.

On Tuesday evening, Walter F. Blake, the popular commandant of the Atlantic Boys' Brigade, was presented with a handsome hand-carved mahogany rocker by the company.

The presentation was held in the Memorial Congregational church and was a complete surprise to Mr. Blake. The drill hall was well decorated with flags and bunting and with the boys in full uniform it formed a very pretty scene.

After the presentation a short exhibition drill was given by the company, followed by an inspection. Refreshments were then served and the boys choir sang a few selections.

Governor Here Tomorrow.

The laying of the corner stone of the new Y. M. C. A. building on Washington street tomorrow by Gov. Bates promises to be an eventful day for the city and for the association. Quincy people are pleased to see that the Governor is neighborly, it being his third visit while in the Executive office.

Auto Capsized.

An automobile was capsized on Hancock street, just north of Squantum street about 4.45 Tuesday afternoon. The occupants were more or less injured and the machine somewhat damaged.

Foss Nominated.

In the Eleventh Congressional district Foss was nominated by the Republicans receiving 2993 votes, to 2271 for O'Meara, 394 for Hutchinson and 367 for Allen.

LARGELY ATTENDED

About 400 at Afternoon Session of Norfolk Conference.

At the afternoon session of Norfolk conference of Congregational churches on Tuesday the attendance was even larger than at the morning session. About 400 were served with a lunch at intermission.

At the business session it was announced that 33 out of the 36 churches in the district were represented, and that the conference was the largest held for many year.

Rev. W. S. O'Brien of Abington was elected moderator of next conference, and Rev. E. C. Camp of Whitman as scribe to fill an existing vacancy.

The Union church at South Weymouth was selected as the place for holding the next conference.

The sermon of the afternoon was by Rev. C. H. Hill Crathern of Braintree, and there was an address by Rev. W. L. Beard on "Our Work in Foreign Lands."

Mrs. Edith Cary Page sang a solo and there was congregational singing. Holy communion was held and the conference adjourned at 4 o'clock.

All Parties Vote Together In All Wards of the City.

RETURNS LATE.

From the Joint Caucuses of City.

Freeman and Nicol are Nominated.

Congressman McNary Wins in the City and in District.

The following summary will show that representative party caucuses were held in all wards of the city under the joint caucus act on Tuesday:

	Rep.	Dem.	Soc.	Total.
Ward One	253	34	14	301
Ward Two	85	42	5	133
Ward Three	270	142	16	428
Ward Four	146	104	1	251
Ward Five	280	15	7	302
Ward Six	56	31	6	93
Total	1091	368	49	1508

Some of the Republican caucuses were not as large as some years, but then it should be remembered that some have been in excess of the total Republican vote on election day. A total of 1091 registered as Republicans, Wards One, Three and Five having over 250 each.

The Democratic caucuses in all wards were more largely attended than usually, a total of 368 registering with that party. In Wards Three and Four the totals were each over 100 and in no ward less than 15,

In Ward Four but one Socialist voted, but there were 49 in the city.

The candidates nominated for the Legislature are:

Republican—Richard R. Freeman of Ward Five, and Harry S. Nicoll of Ward Three.

Democratic—Timothy J. Carey of Ward Two and James H. Elcock of Ward Four.

Socialist—Gustave B. Bates of Ward One, and Levi H. Turner.

It is a singular fact that above six candidates are equally divided among the six wards.

The vote was close in the Republican caucuses among the three candidates for the Legislature, there being a difference of only 42 between Mr. Freeman, the high man, and Mr. Sandberg, the low man. It was a closer call for Mr. Nicoll, who leads Mr. Sandberg by anly three votes, in a total vote of 1091.

Representative Freeman was the leading candidate in Wards Two, Five and Six; Mr. Nicols in Ward Three only, and Mr. Sandberg in Wards One and Four.

Mr. Freeman was second choice in Wards One and Three; Mr. Nicols in Wards Four, Five and Six; and Mr. Sandberg in Ward Two.

Mr. Freeman was low man in Ward Four; Mr. Nicoll low man in Wards One and Two, and Mr. Sandberg low man in Wards Two, Five and Six.

At the Democratic caucus Mr. Carey led Mr. Elcock in the city by 27 votes, being ahead in every ward except West Quincy, where he was only one behind.

The total number of Democratic votes cast was 368, a larger number than under the old caucuses.

The votes of Messrs. Bates and Turner at the Socialist caucuses did not vary except in Ward One where the former received one less. The total Socialist vote in the city was 49, and Mr. Turner received 47 and Mr. Bates 46.

The polls opened at 12 o'clock and remained open until 9 P. M. The vote during the afternoon was very light. Along toward 6 o'clock the several caucus officers were quite busy.

The principal contests were over the Republican Congressional and Representative candidates, and the Democratic Congressional candidate.

There were two candidates for Republican congressman, namely, Crawford and Gates. Comparatively few had any particular choice as but little was known of either man.

There was a great interest, however, in the Republican Representative contest. There were three names on the ballot and there was a fourth candidate who ran on stickers.

Who of the three names on the ballot would receive the nomination was an open question and was not actually settled until the last returns had been received. Then it was seen that Messrs. Freeman and Nicoll had received the nomination, Mr. Sandberg being defeated by three votes.

This probably means a recount. Up to midnight it looked as though Freeman and Sandberg would be nominees. Wards Three and Five had not been heard from however. Ward Three returns came in at 1.30, but it was 2.30 before Ward Five returns were received.

Mr. Crawford carried the city for Republican congressman.

On the Democratic ticket McNary was an easy winner.

The caucus officers were not permitted to begin counting until the polls closed which made the returns late.

There was another contest but it was confined to Ward Five. This was the delegation to the Senatorial convention. James H. Broughton, a Brackett man, tried for election on stickers, but he failed to receive the election, the regular list winning.

The vote for this delegation was as follows:

Bryant,	223
Lewis,	207
Nickerson,	199
Gannett,	187
Broughton,	105
Parker,	1
Blanks,	198

The first official returns were received from Ward Six about 11 o'clock. Ward Four was next in order, then came Wards One and Two. It was then midnight.

Then came a wait until 1.30 when Ward Three reported. Then came another wait of an hour or until 2.30 when Ward Five the missing ward was received.

The vote for Congressional and Representative candidates appears in another column. All the regularly nominated delegates to the various conventions as published were elected.

UNDER PROTECTION.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

Many of the school children have expressed a regret that they will not be permitted to see Gov. Bates while in Quincy tomorrow. Visits like the one planned are patriotic occasions at which Young America is wanted, and arrangements should be made to have him there. The public schools might begin tomorrow afternoon at 1 o'clock instead of 1.30 and dismiss at 3 instead of 3.30. Then there would be no loss of time, and thousands would be made happy.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ There is probably no citizen of Brockton who, if he has thought the matter over at all, hasn't expressed to himself at least the heartfelt hope that there will never be a street car men's strike in this city. Experience has shown that troubles of this sort are among the most spectacular and dangerous and altogether warlike of all labor troubles. The opportunity for hoodlumism entirely outside the unions of car men is two tempting for all the hoodlums to resist, and stone-throwing, shooting, injury to innocent people, and damage to property and to business in general, follow hard upon the heels of a big strike of car men in too many instances.—Brockton Enterprise.

☞ John Cotton Dana, the librarian, sees a future ahead for books. He is predicting five million copy editions of popular books within six months of their publication, and public libraries with a million of volumes—not this year, nor next, but sometime within the near future. Now ten million of the forty million in this country with the reading faculty are doing the reading, he says, but the other thirty million are coming into the reading fold. Everything in the past fifteen years indicates that the next fifteen years is going to see Mr. Dana's prediction fulfilled in part. Books and libraries were never so freely used as now and there is going to be no backward turning in this direction.—New Bedford Standard.

☞ For almost every person under 50, and for a great many people over 50, exercise is the nearest approach to a panacea for bodily ills that has yet been devised. Causing the body to move and stretch and push and pull makes the blood circulate, the liver do its work, and the nerves pick up their dropped stitches. Many a man has succeeded in the world without paying any attention to his body. But such men would probably have succeeded more easily, and certainly with more pleasure to themselves, if they had taken care of their bodies. A strong mind is certainly stronger and more enduring in a healthy body than in a sickly one. The best way to keep the body healthy is to use it.—Chicago Tribune.

Obstruction on the Ways of New Battleship Connecticut

DIVERS MADE DISCOVERY

Marine Guard Augmented by Special Watchmen, Who Have Instructions to Shoot at Any Suspicious Object In Water

New York, Sept. 28.—The Herald prints the following:

With the intention of ruining the hull of the battleship Connecticut, which will be launched at the New York navy yard Thursday, some person or persons placed an obstruction on the ways. When it was placed there, or by whom, is not known, for it was not discovered until divers were sent down to make an investigation. This investigation was made as a matter of precaution and the naval officers then learned that an obstruction had been placed on the ways that would have destroyed the work of months.

Officers at the navy yard would not discuss the matter at all yesterday and it would not have become known if, in addition to the special guard of marines, two watchmen had not been stationed at the stern in the vessel with loaded revolvers and instructions to fire at any suspicious object in the water. It is believed that the obstruction was brought to the yard and placed in position from a boat.

As is usual befoe a large ship is launched, divers were sent down to see that the ways were clear. They went down for the first time on Saturday and since the obstruction was found they have been making the most careful examination, and were working there yesterday afternoon. They will be sent down for the last time tomorrow morning before the ship is launched, and Naval Constructor Baxter, who has charge of the launching, will be satisfied that everything is all right before he gives the signal which will send the great battleship into the water.

A special guard of marines was placed around the Connecticut last week, for it was feared then that some crank or insane person would enter the yard and try to do some damage. It was not thought at that time that any attack would be made from the waterside and no special precaution was taken to prevent anyone from entering the yard that way.

While the naval officers would not discuss the nature of the obstruction found on the ways, it is known that it was not an explosive and also that if it had not been found and removed, it would have either torn a great hole in the bottom of the ship or would have thrown it over on its side. None of the naval officers or men who have worked around the large shipyards can recall another case where a malicious attempt was made to wreck a battleship.

Speaker Makes the Majority

Toronto, Sept. 28.—The petition against E. A. Dunlop, Conservative, was dropped yesterday, but Dunlop subsequently resigned his seat in the legislature. A. M. Little, Liberal, Norfolk, was last evening unseated for bribery. This leaves the standing of the legislature: Liberals, 46; Conservatives, 46; speaker, 1; vacant, 5. The Ross government is thus without a majority with the exception of the sepaker.

Advance In Price of Yarns

Charlotte, N. C., Sept. 28.—Pursuant to a recent call by leading cotton mill men, acting independently of any organization, about 50 spinners, representing a total of 447,494 spindles engaged in the manufacture of hard yarns in North and South Carolina, met here and agreed upon an advanced scale of prices, the average increase being about 2 cents over present prices.

Receptions In Miss Gould's Honor

Boston, Sept. 28.—Miss Helen M. Gould of New York was the guest of honor at the reception here last night of the Boston and Maine railroad department of the Y. M. C. A. Several hundred employes of the railroad were present. In the afternoon Miss Gould visited Fort Warren, where she was received by the coast artillery companies.

Another Mechanics' Bank Dividend

Nashua, N. H., Sept. 28.—Assignee Hoyt of the Mechanics Savings Bank of this city will pay a dividend of 10 percent on Oct. 10. This dividend will amount to $50,000. The Mechanics Savings Bank became defunct in 1893 with deposits of $900,000. Four dividends have since been paid, agregating about 45 percent.

Charged With Larceny of $88,987

New York, Sept. 28.—Charged with the larceny of $88,937, John E. Glimm, 61 years old, of Williamsbridge, and his brother, Christian P. Glimm, a commission merchant of this city, were locked up last night on the complaint of their sister, Mrs. Margaret C. Weinholz, also of this city.

Wreck on Iron Mountain Road

St. Louis, Sept. 28.—A passenger train on the St. Louis and Iron Mountain road known as the Hot Springs special was ditched near Piedmont, and 25 persons injured.

TEDIOUS VOTE COUNTING

New Caucus Law In Massachusetts Did Not Work Well

Boston, Sept 28.—The general results of the causes held by the Democrats throughout the state and by the Republicans in 22 cities and two towns developed but few surprises. Eugene N. Foss won the Republican fight in the eleventh district, and William S. McNary was renominated by the Democrats in the tenth district.

Congressman Roberts of Chelsea captured the entire Lynn delegation of 40 in the seventh district, which, with the 19 in his own city of Chelsea, will give him 59 delegates in the convention. His opponent was Frank P. Bennett.

The only caucus held in the fourth district by the Republicans was in Waltham, where Representative Doty secured the entire 16 delegates. The single caucus held in the twelfth district by the Republicans was in Newton, and former Mayor Weeks won the entire delegation of 23. In the contest for the Republican nomination for state treasurer, Mayor Chapin of Holyoke won a majority of the delegates in the four cities which held caucuses.

The new Luce law caused great delay in counting the vote, and in some cities was severely criticised.

Decision Against the Elks

Madison, Wis., Sept. 28.—The supreme court has rendered a decision holding that, under Wisconsin laws, the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks of America is not a benevolent organization and therefore any property it holds is not exempt from taxation under the statutory provisions exempting benevolent associations. This opinion was the result of a suit brought against the city of Green Bay and the city treasurer, to restrain that city from collecting taxes on real estate owned by the order.

Buried Under Wrong Name

New York, Sept. 28.—All doubt regarding the identity of the young woman who was buried in the Greenfield cemetery, near Mineola, L. I., as Martha Laimbeer, was removed when the body was exhumed and fully identified as that of Margaret Lynch of Brooklyn. The woman's body was found in the woods near the cemetery, death having apparently resulted from carbolic acid poisoning, and was buried under the name of Laimbeer for reasons not fully explained.

Suit Against Sugar Magnate

Providence, Sept. 28.—Suits were filed in the supreme court here against Henry O. Havemeyer, Jr., of New York, by Edwin T. Banning, and his wife. Mrs. Banning claims damages of $10,000 for injuries received by being thrown from her carriage in Newport, it being alleged that her horse was frightened by Havemeyer's automobile. Banning claims $5000 for the loss of his wife's services and for medical attention and nursing which she required.

Another Wildcat Scheme

Jacksonville, Fla., Sept. 28.—United States special agents arrested J. D. Anderson, representing Realty companies of Minneapolis and Des Moines. The arrest was made on order from the postoffice department, which claims that the two companies are "wild-cat" schemes. The scheme calls upon the subscriber to pay $2 per month with a promise that at the end of two years he shall receive a loan of $1,000.

Tibet Regent Thanked MacDonald

Lang, Tibet, Sept. 28.—The British Tibet expedition is now marching in the direction of the Chumbi Valley. In bidding farewell to General MacDonald, commander of the British military force, the venerable regent invoked the blessing of heaven on his head for sparing the monasteries from violation and presented him with a golden image of Buddha.

Roosevelt Plan Favored

Edinburgh, Sept. 28.—The Institution of International Law adopted a resolution expressing gratification at the initiative taken by President Roosevelt in deciding to call a conference of the nations of the world to continue the work of The Hague peace conference summoned by Emperor Nicholas in 1899.

Four Killed In Maine Wreck

Lewiston, Me., Sept. 27.—Joseph E. Cook, a traveling engineer on the Maine Central railroad, and one of those injured in the wreck of a passenger train bound from Farmington for Portland on that road, died at the Central Maine General hospital yesterday. This makes the fourth fatality as a result of the wreck.

Many Wrecks Off Labrador

St. Johns, Sept. 28.—The steamer Virginia, from Labrador, reports that the coast was swept by a heavy gale last week and that 11 vessels, mostly fish laden, were driven ashore, the greater portion of them being totally wrecked. Seven sailors were drowned.

Platform Was Insecure

Milford, Del., Sept. 27.—Two hundred persons were thrown from a platform and fell 30 feet at the launching of the schooner Charles J. Bumas. Fifteen persons were seriously injured. A spike which held the platform gave way and the entire structure fell.

Parker's Third Visit to Gotham

New York, Sept. 28.—Judge Parker yesterday met and conferred at length with Democratic politicians from half a dozen states, covering territory as far east as Connecticut and west to California. His visit to New York is the third of a series.

CITY BREVITIES.

Political conventions next week.

Were you surprised at the result of the caucuses?

Gene McCormick, bookkeeper for E. H. Doble & Co., is having a two weeks' vacation.

The Hospital Aid association meets tomorrow afternoon at half past two with Mrs. George S. Keyes of Alleyne terrace.

Dr. Ash and John F. Walsh leave this week for New York en route for St. Louis, where they will sojourn for the month of October.

The slimly attended caucuses show that many do not wish to declare themselves publicly as being affiliated with any particular party.

The regular meeting of the Hospital Aid Association will be held Thursday, Sept, 29 at 2.30 P. M. at the home of Mrs. G. S. Keyes, 15 Alleyne terrace. A good attendance is desired.

Brockton's Fair.

At many so-called "cattle shows" and county fairs the old-time features and exhibits are almost entirely eliminated, and the agricultural and cattle displays each year grow poorer and are gradually fading away. This is a direct contrast with the big Brockton Fair where these same departments, instead of fading away, are being strengthened each year. The cattle display at the Brockton Fair this year will eclipse anything ever seen in this section. In a roomy corner of its well kept grounds, brand new cattle barns, sheep and swine pens have been built, giving the best possible accommodations for the stock and the thousands who view it. This is but one feature of this big show. Trot, pace and running races; Horse Show, Firemen's Muster, stage show, music by three bands, hippodrome races, balloon ascensions and athletic sports are a few of the others. If it's new and novel it's at the Brockton Fair, where every visitor gets his money's worth and a little more.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

THE GURNEY CASE

Judge Is Asked For Official Report of Particulars

ACTION AT WASHINGTON

Attention of Bay State Governor Called to United States Statutes --Judge Will Be Required to Make Personal Amends

Boston, Sept. 28.—Acting Governor Guild received a telegram from Acting Secretary of State Adee, in which he requests the governor of Massachusetts to take such action as may be proper in the case of Hugh Gurney, fined at Lee $25 for contempt of court and $25 for violating the speed law relating to automobiles. Following is the telegram:

"British embassy informs me that Mr. Gurney, third secretary of that embassy, charged with driving his automobile at excessive speed, was arrested by deputy sheriff and taken, after entering protest, under threat of force, to the court at Lee, when, in spite of his protest, he was sentenced by H. C. S. Phelps, special justice of Lee police court, to pay a fine of $25, and on his declaring he could not admit the right of the court to sentence him, another fine of $25 for contempt of court and to go to prison if he did not pay. Scetion 4063, revised statutes of the United States, declares that any writ or process issued out or prosecuted by any person in any state court or any judge or justice whereby the person of any public minister of a foreign state is arrested or imprisoned, shall be deemed void. Section 4064 declares that any person obtaining or prosecuting such writ or process and every officer concerned in executing it shall be deemed a violator of the law of nations and subject to imprisonment and fine. I have to request that you take such action as may be proper in this case."

After a consultation with Assistant Attorney General Nash, Governor Guild sent the following telegram:

"Hon. H. S. C. Phelps, Special Justice, Lee, Mass.:

"The following telegram has been received from the State Department at Washington: (Here follows a copy of the telegram of Secretary Adee, printed above).

"The assistant attorney general informs me that if the facts are as stated above you have in your endeavor to enforce the laws of Massachusetts for the security of life upon our highways committed in this particular case a grave breach of international law. May I ask you to telegraph at once if Mr. Gurney was arrested and fined in spite of protest. Other channels of redress are open in case of the violation of Massachusetts law by the diplomatic representatives of other nations. Therefore, if fine was imposed and collected, the commonwealth will apologize, the fine must be remitted, and I need not suggest to one so respected as you the personal amend that you will, of course, desire to make to Mr. Gurney for the error in method adopted by your court in this unusual case.

"Kindly forward me affidavit of the evidence of any breach of our Massachusetts laws."

The telegram to Secretary Adee was as follows:

"Your telegram in regard to third secretary British embassy just received. Investigation already started. Immediate action will be taken."

Acting Governor Guild stated that no further action would be taken until he received a reply from Judge Phelps and was conversant with all the facts in the case.

It was found that Judge Phelps had no telephone either at his home or at his office, and that his home was located two miles from the nearest public telephone. Nevertheless, several telephone messages were sent to Judge Phelps. One of them was to the effect that an immediate answer to the governor's telegram of the morning was to be forwarded, or Judge Phelps must report in person at the state house. Late yesterday afternoon Acting Governor Guild received a telegram from Lee to the effect that Judge Phelps would report at the governor's office in this city today.

Judge Willing to Apologize

Pittsfield, Mass., Sept. 28.—Special Justice Phelps when interviewed was rather averse to discussing the Gurney affair. He said he did not wish to be paraded up and down the street. He felt enough of this had been done already. "This is a little matter," said Mr. Phelps. "The papers have not reported it properly. The secretary was not obliged to sit in the dock until all other cases were disposed of. If I find that I have made a mistake I will gladly apologize. I did only what I believed to be right. I have received no communication from anybody regarding this affair."

Women May Smoke In Public

New York, Sept. 28.—Women may smoke as much as they choose while riding in automobiles, so far as the police department is concerned, according to an announcement made by Police Commissioner McAdoo. This announcement came after the arrest of a member of an automobile party, the arresting policeman taking occasion to rebuke a woman in the automobile for smoking in public.

Thought to Be a Bad Crowd

New York, Sept. 28.—In a raid on an alleged pool room and bucket shop by agents of the Anti-Policy society and the police, one man, in seeking to evade arrest, was seriously injured by falling to the sidewalk from a window of the room, and 11 others were arrested, charged with being accessories to the crime of grand larceny, of which the injured man is alleged to be the principal. According to the police the majority of the prisoners are men whose pictures are in the rogues' gallery and who are believed to be the fore front of the swindle known as "wire tapping."

Cortelyou Is Uncommunicative

Washington, Sept. 28.—While members of the cabinet who are in the city remained with the president yesterday a considerable time, the meeting of the body was comparatively brief. At the conclusion of the meeting Chairman Cortelyou arrived at the executive offices. For an hour or more the president, Cortelyou and the members of the cabinet discussed the political situation. Mr. Cortelyou declined to discuss the campaign in any of its features.

Helped Out Dull Students

New York, Sept. 28.—Isidor Finkle and Louis H. Lobar, students at Columbia university, are charged with taking regents' examinations as proxies for others. Charles F. Wheelock, chief examiner of the examining bureau of the state department of education, says that in this city "there is a regular syndicate of bright young men who will pass an examination for anything for prices ranging from $20 to as high as $300. The two men were locked up.

Writer of Threatening Letters

Des Moines, Sept. 28.—Charged with writing and sending threatening letters to President Roosevelt, Miss Roosevelt and Helen Gould, Edward Dalheimer has been arrested and lodged in jail at Fort Dodge. The letter alleged to have been written by Dalheimer to the president threatens his life unless certain reforms are made. The one to Miss Gould proposes marriage. The letter to Miss Roosevelt is not made public.

OYAMA'S ACTIVITY

Sakharoff Reports That It Has Received a Check

JAPS FOLLOW OLD PLAN

Extend Possession of Mountainous Ridge, but Extensive Russian Outposts Must Be Dislodged to Bring Success

London, Sept. 28.—General Sakharoff's despatch announcing the repulse of a Japanese reconnaisance, gives a sign of the activity with which Oyama is preparing his forward movement. Available maps do not allow an accurate placing of the movement reported by Sakharoff, but it was apparently in the hilly region south of Fu pass, on the Hun river. More significant is the appearance of Japanese cavalry in the Liao valley.

The movement of the Mikado's armies, as far as they can be made out, follow the plan which has directed them ever since the passage of the Yalu, last May. The Japanese have steadily extended their possession of the great mountainous ridge of southern Manchuria, which is their defensive front against any Russian advance from the north. From Kai-Chow northward they have threatened from the hills east of the railroad the left flank of the successive Russian positions. The action at Liao-Yang was fought on this plan, and it is evident that a similar scheme is being applied to Moukden.

In the present instance the Russian outposts extend far to the east, and these have to be dislodged before a great turning movement on Moukden can be made with the secrecy needed for its success. If the line can be swung well to the northeast of Moukden before Kuropatkin draws north on Tie pass, the Liao-Yang positions will be roughly repeated, but perhaps with some greater advantage to the Japanese.

It is worth noting that when the Mikado's forces reach their offensive limit toward the northward, any subsequent Russian advance to the south will have to face precisely the conditions which caused Kuropatkin's retreat—namely hill positions held by the enemy on the left flank. A Russian advance will depend upon the reconquering of these mountain positions.

The entire absence of news from Port Arthur, it is feared, indicates a closer blockade there. Hitherto despatches from General Stoessel have been coming through semi-weekly.

Italy as a Peacemaker

Rome, Sept. 28.—Much interest is felt here in the report that Premier Giolitti of Italy is to meet Count Von Buelow, the German chancellor, at Homburg. One of the many reasons that might prompt such a meeting is possible discussion of mediation in interest of peace in the far east. It is said that the Italian government, in conjunction with Great Britain, would be willing to approach Russia with a proposition looking toward peace, but wishes to have assurances that in pursuing such a course she would have the support of her associates in the triple alliance.

London, Sept. 28.—The Daily Mail's correspondent at Geneva states that Giolitti's projected visit to Von Buelow is connected with the cause of peace in the far east and that he intends visiting all the European courts.

Investigating Pleasant Ridge Horror

Cincinnati, Sept. 28.—Coroner Weaver has sent his constable to Pleasant Ridge to ascertain officially when the flooring was put down in the vault that collapsed last Friday, killing nine schoolgirls. The coroner has evidence that a new floor was placed during the last summer vacation over old joists that have since been found to be rotten.

Vesuvius Taking a Rest

Naples, Sept. 28.—The eruption of Mount Vesuvius has greatly diminished. The stones ejected from the crater do not now rise beyond a height of 150 feet. The authorities have relaxed the restrictions placed upon the public when the eruption was at its worst and people are permitted to ascend the mountain.

Work For Many Thousands

Pittsburg, Sept. 28.—Preparations are being made for the resumption of operations at many window glass factories throughout the country, after a suspension of nearly five months. Within the next 30 days thousands of skilled employes and their helpers, who have been idle since last spring, will be back at work.

Difficult Digestion

That is dyspepsia.

It makes life miserable.

Its sufferers eat not because they want to, —but simply because they must.

They know they are irritable and fretful; but they cannot be otherwise.

They complain of a bad taste in the mouth, a tenderness at the pit of the stomach, an uneasy feeling of puffy fulness, headache, heartburn and what not.

The effectual remedy, proved by permanent cures of thousands of severe cases, is

THE CROWLEY MURDER

Question as to Jurisdiction In Prosecution of Allingham

Pawtucket, R. I., Sept. 28.—As a result of the inquest before Coroner Vance on the death of Mrs. Dennis Crowley, who was murdered in the "valley of death" on Sept 15, and for which Captain John Allingham is held, having confessed to the murder, the question has again been raised as to whether the death blow was struck in Massachusetts or this state and the relative question as to which state has jurisdiction. The finding of the coroner's jury on evidence is, therefore, given a new interest.

Testimony was offered by Dr. Harrington of the Pawtucket general hospital and Medical Examiner Holden of Attleboro. Dr. Holden gave it as his opinion that the fatal blow was inflicted with the axe and that the blows were administered where the woman lay.

The body of Mrs. Crowley was found on Massachusetts territory, while Allingham was arrested in Rhode Island, and is now awaiting the action of the grand jury. Dr. Cowle has also testified that death was caused by blows from the axe. Dr. Harrington testified that death could have been the result of blows from either the axe or the club. The inquest is unfinished.

Fraudulent Use of Transfers

New Haven, Sept. 28.—So extensive has bscome the fraudulent use of transfers among passengers on the New Haven trolley roads of the Consolidated Railway company that a coterie of Pinkerton detectives has been employed for some weeks past to entrap a few of the offenders. The road recently caused the arrest of nine business men for handing partially used transfers, or old transfers, to their clerks, to be further used. These were heavily fined. A tenth offender was given a jail sentence, and the road now gives notice that it will ask for jail sentences for this class of offences hereafter.

Admits Shortage of $20,000

New London, Conn., Sept. 28.—Jas. A. Brown, former treasurer of the People's Savings bank at Stonington, pleaded guilty in the superior court to four counts of making false entries in the bank's books, covering up an alleged shortage of $20,000. Brown threw himself on the mercy of the court and his plea for clemency was indorsed by a petition signed by many prominent officials. The court took the matter of penalty under consideration.

Business Men Tired of Strike

Fall River, Mass., Sept. 28.—A committee of the Retail Business Men's association has been appointed to see if some form of compromise cannot be secured by which the strike can be brought to an end. Thus far no definite plan has been agreed on, but it is desired to have the local newspapers unite in calling on the manufacturers to open the way to a conference. The committee has begun work.

Cannot Attend Peace Conference

Boston, Sept. 28.—In a despatch from Wilmington, Del., Judge Gray is quoted as declining the request to preside over the 13th annual session of the international peace conference, which will open in this city next Tuesday. The meeting of the United States circuit court of appeals, the judge says, will prevent his attendance at the peace conference.

Alleged Attempt to Murder

Lowell, Mass., Sept. 28.—James Papas was held in $1000 for a hearing Oct. 4, by the local court on a charge of attempting to murder Charles H. Cutter, a special police officer of Dracut, when the officer attempted to stop the man and a companion from shooting birds. Cutter will recover from his wounds unless blood-poisoning should develop.

Want Tools Furnished Free

New London, Conn., Sept. 28.—Granite cutters employed at the Booth Brothers' and Hurricane Island Granite Company's plant in Waterford and by Henry Gardiner, at Millstone, went out on a strike because these firms had refused to grant a demand made by the men to furnish certain tools used in rough work on stone.

Girl Probably a Suicide

Beverley, Mass., Sept. 28.—That Bessie G. Davis committed suicide by throwing herself into the sea at Lee's Beach is a theory which is fast gaining ground. Both Otis N. Davis, the young woman's father, and Chief of Police Ferguson incline to the belief that the young woman took her own life.

Found Dead In Woods

Lowell, Mass., Sept. 28.—The badly decomposed body of Francis Clancy, missing since Sept. 8, was found yesterday afternoon in a lonely spot in Westford. He was identified by his clothing. He is believed to have wandered away and to have become lost. He was 79 years old.

Domestic Troubles and Suicide

Athol, Mass., Sept. 28.—Despondent, it is believed, over domestic troubles, William Tyler, 31, unmarried, ended his life by shooting. He was found lying upon the floor of his home, a charge of shot having passed through his heart.

Hoar's End Is Near

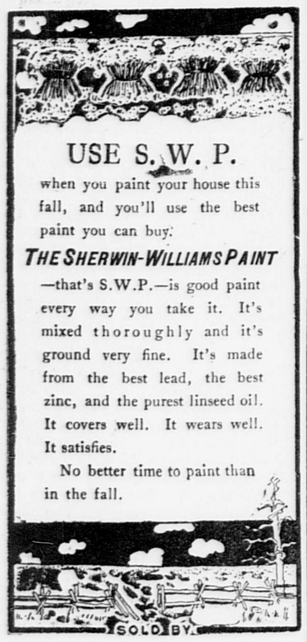

Worcester, Mass., Sept. 26.—The latest bulletin issued from Senator Hoar's house says that the senator is weaker than at any previous time, but may live two or three days.

NOTES ABOUT TOWN.

Saturday will be the first day of October.

It was close between the candidates for the Republican nomination for Representatives.

Herbert Pratt has built an attractive house on Newcomb street, which is an improvement to the neighborhood. It is for rent.

Mrs. Isaac Smith of Botolph street has returned from an extended trip through the west, where she has been entertained by her brother.

Wollaston lodge of Masons received a visit Tuesday evening from the district deputy grand master, and it was the occasion of a large attendance of members and visiting brethern.

The first entertainment in the Bethany Brotherhood course, by the Copley Square Concert Co., is announced for next Wednesday. There has been a large advance sale of tickets for this popular course.

The improvements on Hancock street bridge are progressing rapidly. The old gate-way from the street to the station is again open and the danger of crossing the track to get on to Sagamore street is over-ruled by the vast amount of time saved by taking this short cut.

The historic Stone church was thrown open without fee yesterday to all delegates to the Norfolk Conference and about 300 visited the church of the Presidents. There was a fee to visit the tomb of the Adamses, but several availed themselves of the opportunity.

Miss Bessie Drew of Walker street left Tuesday for Hampton Roads, Virginia, where she has accepted a position as teacher of music in one of the schools. Miss Drew sailed on the Juniata, and was waved off by many friends and relatives. She will arrive at her destination on Thursday.

Mrs. W. T. Babcock has invited the Home Science, Hospital Aid, and Day Nursery associations, and the two Friday clubs to meet Mrs. Lundberg, wife of the Danish Consul, and Miss Higginson, both of Brookline, Monday afternoon, Oct. third, at three o'clock. Plans for a synopsis of the Opera Parsifal will be discussed among other things.

Romance of a Statue.

The statue of Charles I. which now stands in London was sold to a brazier during the commonwealth with the understanding that it should be broken up. The buyer, however, saw a chance to make money and buried it instead. To cover his action he made a large number of bronze knives and forks, which were eagerly bought by both royalists and Puritans as souvenirs. When the monarchy was restored to power the statue was dug up again and bought by the government to be placed in its present position, where it has remained since 1674.

Striped Suit; Lively Walk.

Once in my callow days I accepted a wager that I could wear a prison suit and walk from Buffalo to Cleveland without serious molestation. It took me over four days to get thirty miles. I was arrested nine times, and at Dunkirk I came near being mobbed by a Sunday school picnic and was compelled to discard my uniform for citizen's clothes. Yet I was a free man and innocent of crime, and there was no law defining what I should wear so long as it was male attire.—Elbert Hubbard in Philistine.

Wollaston Couple Make the Trip in Ninety Days.

Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Chamberlin of Park street, returned from their vacation trip last evening. They visited California, Honolulu, Manila, Hong Kong, China, and from there to Egypt, and through Italy, Switzerland, down the Rhine, through Germany to France, returning on the Kaiser Wilhelm II, arriving in New York Tuesday morning. The trip round the world required ninety days. They found Honolulu the garden spot of the world, and Manila in the rainy season a perpetual Turkish bath. They are sound and well and as brown as a molasses doughnut.

Where Stanley Worked as a Boy.

He sometimes, but not often, spoke to me of his life as a boy. I remember in 1890, when we were staying in Cincinnati together, his asking me one afternoon to go for a walk with him. He took me through obscure back streets and down dirty alleys until we reached a wharf on the banks of the Ohio river. He stopped at the bottom of a street which ran steeply down to the river and pointed out a lad who was rolling a large cask of tallow from a cellar down to the wharf. He said: "I have brought you here because I wanted to show you this place. I was doing exactly the same work as that lad, and, if I mistake not, that is the same cellar in which I worked."—"Reminiscences of Sir Henry Stanley" in Scribner's.

This Topsy Turvy World.

This is a topsy turvy world. One man is struggling for justice, and another is fleeing from it. One man is saving to build a house, and another is trying to sell his "for less than it cost." One man is spending all the money he can make in taking a girl to an entertainment and sending her flowers in the hope eventually of making her his wife, while his neighbor is spending the gold he has got to get a divorce. One man escapes all the diseases man is heir to and gets killed on the railway. Another goes everywhere without being hurt and dies with whooping cough. Such is life!—Exchange.

Struck by Electric.

A team owned and driven by Solomon Cohen was struck by an electric car at the corner of Washington and Foster streets about 6.30 Tuesday night. Cohen drove through Foster street and as he turned into Washington street he failed to see the approaching car from East Weymouth. The car struck the rear end of the wagon which was smashed. Cohen was badly shaken up but not seriously injured.

I rose and stepped from my rock to the green shore, and she moved a little back with a slight courtesy. "Good morning, Mistress Catherine," I said.

"What know you of what my sister hath done, and the cargo that came yesterday on the Golden Horn?" she demanded with no preface and of a sudden. Her voice rang sharp as I remembered it when she first spoke to me by that white hedge of England, and I could have sworn that the tide had verily borne us thither and she was again that sallow girl and I the blundering lout of a lad.

"That I cannot answer you, madam," said I, and bowed and would have passed, but she stood before me. So satin smooth was her hair that even the fresh wind could not ruffle it, and in such straight lines of maiden modesty hung her green gown—always she wore green, and it became her well, and 'twas a color I always fancied—that it but fluttered a little around her feet in the marsh grass, but her face looked out from a green gauze hood with an expression that belied all this steadfastness of primness and decorum.

It was as if a play actress had changed her character and not her attire, which suited another part. Out came her slim arm, as if she would have caught me by the hand for the sake of compelling my answer. Then she drew it back and spoke with all the sharp vehemence of passion of a woman who oversteps the bounds of restraint which she has set herself and is a wilder thing than if she had been hitherto unfettered by her will.

"I command you to tell me what I wish to know, Harry Wingfield," said she, and now her eyes fixed mine with no shrinking, but a broadside of scorn and imperiousness.

"And I refuse to tell you, madam," said I.

Then indeed she caught my arm with a little nervous hand like a cramp of wire. "You shall tell me, sir," she declared. "This much I know already. Yesterday the Golden Horn came in and was unladen of powder and shot instead of the goods that my sister pretended to order, and the cases are stored at Laurel Creek. This much do I know, but not what is afoot nor for what Mary had conference with Sir Humphrey Hyde and Ralph last night, and you later on with Sir Humphrey. I demand of you that you tell me, Harry Wingfield."

"That I cannot do, madam," said I.

She gave me a look with those great black eyes of hers, and how it came to pass I never knew, but straight to the root of the whole she went as if my face had been an open book.

Such quickness of wit I had often heard ascribed to women, but never saw I aught like that, and I trow it seemed witchcraft. "'Tis something about the young tobacco plants," quoth she. "The king would not pass the measure to cease the planting, and the assembly of this spring broke up with no decision. Major Beverly, who is clerk of the assembly, hath turned against the government since Bacon died, and all the burgesses are with him, and Governor Culpeper sails for England soon, and what, is the lieutenant governor to hold the reins? There is a plot hatching to cut down the young tobacco plants." I could but stare at her. "There is a plot to cut down the young tobacco plants as soon as the governor hath sailed," she said, "and my sister Mary hath sent to England for arms, knowing that the militia will arise and there will be fighting."

I still stared at her, not knowing in truth what to say. Then suddenly she caught at my hands with hers and cried out with that energy that I saw all at once the fire of life beneath that fair show of maiden peace and calm of hers: "Harry, Harry Wingfield, if my grandmother, Madam Cavendish, knows this, my sister is undone; no pity will she have. Straight to the governor will she go, though she hobble on crutches to Jamestown! She would starve ere she would move against the will of the king and his representative, and so would I, but I will not have my little sister put to suffering and shame. God save her, Harry Wingfield, but she might be thrown into prison and worse—I pray thee, save her, Harry! Whatever ill you have done, and however slightingly I have held you for it, I pray you do this good deed by way of amends, and I will put the memory of your misdeeds behind me."

Even then my bewilderment at her mention of my misdeeds, when I verily considered that she, as well as I, knew more of her own, was strong, but I grasped her two little hands hard, then relinquished them and bowed and said, "Madam, I will save your sister at whatever cost."

"And count it not?" said she.

"No more than I have done before, madam," said I, and maybe with some little bitterness, for sometimes a woman by persistent goading may almost raise herself to the fighting level of a man.

Harry tells Catherine he will save Mary

"But how?" said she.

"That I must study."

"But I charge you to keep it from Madam Cavendish."

"You need have no fear."

"May God forgive me, but I told Madam Cavendish that the Golden Horn had not arrived," said she. "But what have they done with the rest of the cargo, pray?"

I started. I had, I confess, not given that a thought, though it was but reasonable that there was more beside those powder casks, if the revenue from the crops had been so small.

But Catherine Cavendish needed but a moment for that problem. "'Twill return," said she. "Captain Tabor hath but sailed off a little distance that he may return and make port, as if for the first time since he left England, and so put them off the scent of the Sabbath unlading of those other wares." She looked down the burnished flow of the river as she spoke, and cried out that she could see a sail, but I, looking also, could not see anything save the shimmer of white and green spring boughs into which the river distance closed.

"'Tis the Golden Horn," said Catherine.

"I can see naught of white save the locust blooms," said I.

"Locusts stand not against the wind in stiff sheets," said she. "'Tis the sail of the Golden Horn, but that matters not. Harry, Harry Wingfield, can you save my sister?"

"I know not whether I can, madam, but I will," said I.

UNDER PROTECTION.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

Greetings to the Governor of our Commonwealth! May his visit to the "City of Presidents" be an enjoyable one. Gov. Bates always has been popular with the people at large, and he has thousands of admirers in Quincy who feel honored by this visit. Gov. Bates is interested in the success of all good works—educational, religious, and for pure citizenship—and among these we must place the Young Men's Christian Association.

Each year, now, as the birthday anniversary of Henry H. Faxon comes round, we anticipate the event will receive some recognition from the people, especially the advocates of temperance in state as well as city. It was not the intention of Mr. Faxon to have any observance this week of his 81st anniversary, but many called to extend congratulations, and it was all the more enjoyable because of the informality.

Each year, more and more, Quincy recognizes what he accomplished in banishing the saloon from the city. They regret to see, of late, the increase in drunkenness and disorder, especially in the Quincy Point Ward, and wish Mr. Faxon was young that he might continue a vigorous campaign. People interested in temperance can show appreciation of the work of Mr. Faxon, by taking up the work themselves, at least by giving their moral support. Also by interest in elections, and the success of worthy candidates.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ There is some satisfaction in being a czar. He is the richest man in Europe and can afford to hire a trained nurse to walk the floor with the baby instead of doing it himself.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

☞ Physicians are now asserting that baldness is caused by the use of tobacco. Still there were bald people between Elisha's time and Sir Walter Raleigh's introduction of Milady Nicotine.—Washington Post.

☞ Once more the Russians are going to crush the Japs by the mere force of overwhelming numbers. That's what they said they were going to do 33 weeks ago when the Russian line was some hundreds of miles to the south, reaching even across the border into Korea. The Japs have been doing the overwhelming all the time since then, and at last report when Kuropatkin counted noses he found that with all his reinforcements he had about as many fighting men available as when he started. The difference between Russian purposes at St. Petersburg and Russian performances in Manchuria is something enormous.—Haverhill Gazette.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

PHELPS WAS WRONG

Technically Amenable to Federal Law For Fining Gurney

INVESTIGATION IS ENDED

Decision Kept Secret, but Is Thought to Make Due Amends --National Action Asked to Protect Life and Limb

Boston, Sept. 29.—Governor Bates transmitted to the state department at Washington by yesterday afternoon's mail the decision arrived at after an investigation of the arrest and fining of Hugh Gurney, third secretary of the British embassy, for violation of the state statute regulating the speed of automobiles and for contempt of court, by Judge Phelps of Lee.

Governor Bates declined to make public any information concerning the procedure adopted, giving as his reason that courtesy to the state department forbade publication of any hint of the decision here in advance of the receipt of the letter in Washington, and refusing to be moved from that position by the fact that the state department observed no such courtesy in regard to its original telegram of inquiry and protest. Accordingly, the first official statement of Massachusetts' position is likely to come from Washington some time today.

There is reason to believe, however, that the letter contains a recital of the facts in the case—which are not altogether complimentary to Gurney; that it admits that his arrest and fines were not within the province of the Massachusetts authorities; that it intimates that Judge Phelps will make due amends to Gurney, and possibly that the commonwealth will convey to the British embassy through the state department its regrets for the unfortunate action of its servants in exceeding their authority, and that it will state that Gurney's fines have been remitted.

But that is not all. Unless every indication is misleading, the communication to the state department will also intimate that if it is beyond the province of Massachusetts to protect the lives and limbs of its citizens by enforcing its laws against all who imperil them—as it appears that it is—the commonwealth looks to the federal government to take such action as to it seems wise to accomplish the ends which the Massachusetts laws contemplate and which Judge Phelps sought to accomplish by well-intentioned, though legally mistaken, procedure.

The letter probably does not suggest what the action of the state department shall be; but if the Washington authorities determine that the facts should be reported to the British government, Secretary Gurney has no reason to view the future with more equanimity than Judge Phelps.

Judge Phelps of Lee, who came to Boston in response to messages from Acting Governor Guild, appeared at the state house and was received by Lieutenant Governor Guild. The latter, having been apprised of the return to the commonwealth of Governor Bates, delayed action on the matter in hand until the governor's arrival from his home in East Boston. This was almost immediate, and the investigation, or conference, began in the executive chamber. The whole matter was spread before the governor, who entirely approved the acting governor's procedure up to the time of his chief's return to the commonwealth.

Judge Phelps told his story without reserve. The only matter really open to discussion was whether, in making the amends for the mistake, the character of the offense and the attitude of the offender toward the local authorities and the law of the state were such as to call for a counter-protest. The decision was embodied in the letter above referred to, and no authoritative statement was made of its nature.

Technically Judge Phelps is amenable to the law of the United States for his action in fining Gurney. Such action as shall be taken under federal law rests ultimately with the attorney general at Washington. The decisions of the state and federal governments in the matter will be reached, of course, by entirely independent methods, and the attitude of the one has no bearing upon that of the other.

Judge Phelps, it may be said, is not a lawyer. He is a large manufacturer of wire cloth and a prominent and highly respected citizen. Far from seeking the appointment as judge of the Lee police court, he accepted it only at the personal solicitation of Governor Crane.

Gurney Should Apologize

London, Sept. 29.—The Daily Telegraph says that Hugh Gurney, who was fined by Justice Phelps of Lee, Mass., for exceeding the automobile speed limit, was bound to stand upon his diplomatic rights in order to avoid creating a precedent, but that now that amends have been made it is to be hoped, if Gurney inadvertently contravened a law, he will tender an apology for his unconscious offense.

No little annoyance is exhibited in official quarters here at the claim by Gurney for diplomatic exemption, with the consequent publicity, over a trifling affair. The Westminster Gazette commends the attitude of the American press in the Gurney matter as "showing its good sense."

CAREFULLY WATCHED

Admission That Attempt Was Made to Damage Battleship

New York, Sept. 29.—At the New York navy yard armed marines patrolled the inclosure wherein the final preparations for the launching of the battleship Connecticut are under way. Naval Constructor Baxter, who has general charge of the shipbuilding plant, said:

"It is true that an obstruction was found on the ways down which the Connecticut is to slide into the water. It was sufficient to check the vessel. I will not say that it would have wrecked the Connecticut if it had not been discovered, and exactly what would have happened I am unable to tell. The obstruction was not a pile and no dynamite was found. It was, however, nothing that could have dropped from the ship or come there by accident."

Divers have gone down and inspected that portion of the ways which is under water every day since Saturday. A thorough inspection of the whole length of the ways will be made immediately before the launching.

Complaint of Armenians

Washington, Sept. 29.—Three dignitaries of the Armenian church called on President Roosevelt to pay their respects and to present to him a memorial setting forth some phases of the Armenian question which have arisen in Turkey. They informed the president that the Turkish government systematically suppressed the facts concerning outrages committed by the Turks on Armenians, and urged that the American government and other powers take action to prevent further massacre of Armenians. The president referred them to the state department.

Will Fatten County Treasury

Chicago, Sept. 29.—The gross receipts of all foreign insurance companies doing business in Cook county will be subject to taxation, according to a decision rendered here by Judge Kavanagh in the superior court. The suit was brought by the National Fire Insurance company of Hartford to restrain the collection of taxes upon the gross receipts as assessed by the board of review. The decision will affect 600 companies and will increase the revenue of the county $300,000 to $400,000 annually.

Maine Town Badly Scared

Island Falls, Me., Sept. 29.—An explosion in the grinder building at F. W. Hunt & Co.'s tannery started a blaze that threw the town into a panic, as it was believed that the entire plant and surrounding property, valued at $500,000, would be destroyed. The absence of wind and prompt action of the local firemen in razing several small sheds in the immediate vicinity of the fire confined the flames to the grinder building. The loss will not greatly exceed $5000.

Causes of Cotton Blockade

Savannah, Ga., Sept. 29.—President Hanson of the Atlantic Compress company, which controls the compressing of cotton in the south Atlantic states, says that the congestion of cotton at the compresses in the interior is due to an extraordinary rush of cotton to the presses and the scarcity of labor. Up to last Saturday night the presses of the Atlantic company had handled 282,000 bales since Sept. 1, as against 111,000 bales for the same period last year.

Dearth of War News

London, Sept. 29.—Outpost skirmishes constitute the sum total of disclosed activities on the Liao and Taitse rivers in Manchuria. General Kuropatkin is reported to be keeping in contact with the entire Japanese front. Chinese arriving at Chefoo report that Japanese attacks on Port Arthur have resulted in heavy losses to the assailing forces, while the Russians suffered comparatively little.

Plans to Visit the Arctic

Christiana, Sept. 29.—The Duke of Orleans has asked the permission of the government to hire the Arctic steamer Fram, in which Dr. Nansen made his voyage to the Arctic regions, for the purpose of an Arctic expedition in 1905. The University of Christiana will reap the benefit of at least a part of the scientific results of the expedition.

Land Frauds in Indian Territory

Kansas City, Sept. 29.—Senator Stewart, chairman of the senate committee on Indian affairs, has been investigating the land allottment question in the Indian Territory. He says that land frauds in that territory have grown to such proportions that they will have a bad effect in the fight for statehood.

New York in Grip of Typhoid

New York, Sept. 29.—Greater New York is at present threatened with what may be the severest epidemic of typhoid fever in its history. For the three weeks just ended the total number of cases reported at the health department was 441. The fatalities numbered 74, or a death rate of nearly 20 percent.

Blamey to Be Extradited

Boston, Sept. 29.—Governor Bates has issued a requisition on the governor of California for the extradition of John R. Blamey, who is wanted at Holyoke for the alleged embezzlement of funds of the eastern division of the American Wire Weavers' association.

Prof. Franklin, the hypnotist, is coming.

The City Council will hold a regular meeting next Monday evening.

The Swedish Lutheran church ladies are at work preparing for a grand fair the last of October.

The Woman's Relief Corps has taken the initiative for the observance of next Sunday as "Citizens' day." Committees have been appointed to see the various pastors of the city.

Foot Ball Season.

At a recent meeting of the Quincy High School Athletic Association the following officers were chosen for the coming year:
President, Mr. Harper.
Vice President, Mr. Boynton.
Treasurer, Miss Tucker.
Secretary, Miss Bates.
Boys' Manager, Mr. Parsons.
Girls' Manager, Miss Guild.
Executive Committee, Mr. Gilson, '04, Miss Cummings, '05, Mr. Savage, '05, Miss Packard, '06, Mr. Ewen, '06, Miss Barnes, '07, Mr. Nichols, '07, Miss B. Morrison, '08, Mr. Lacey, '08.

Owing to the late date of the opening of school foot-ball matters have been slightly delayed, but the management is now arranging a schedule; and the team under the direction of Capt. Saunders and with the assistance of Mr. Merry, who will act as coach, is practising daily at the park. The team will be practically a new one, but two of last year's team remaining, Ewen and Commins. It will necessarily be a light team and must depend largely upon speed this season.

BOND IS FORFEITED

McCauley, Accused of Theft of Nearly $750,000, Is Missing

DRAMATIC COURT SCENE

Counsel Charged With Having Aided In His Escape After He Had Raised a Large Amount of Money to Take With Him

New York, Sept. 29.—When the case of Thomas M. McCauley, former president of the International Mercantile agency, was called before Justice Wyatt of the court of special sessions, McCauley was not present. Assistant District Attorney Garvan announced that he had reason to believe that McCauley had defaulted his $5000 bail bond. He asked that the forfeiture be taken and urged the court to hold Attorneys House, Schurman and Baldwin, counsel for McCauley, responsible for the disappearance of their client. This the justice refused to do, and declared that if McCauley could not be produced in court today he would declare the forfeiture void.

Mr. Garvan, in requesting the forfeiture of the bond, made the announcement that for two weeks McCauley had been preparing to escape and had raised $136,000 by mortgaging his property in Chicago. There was a dramatic scene when Garvan declared that just prior to his escape, he understood, McCauley had been hiding in disguise in the home of one of his counsel.

Mr. Garvan said he had agreed to the acceptance of the $5000 bond in this case, where the defendant is charged with the larceny of nearly $750,000, because he relied on the assurance of three attorneys that the bail would not be forfeited. Now that McCauley has disappeared he asked that they be held responsible.

"I am informed that as far back as last Thursday," continued Garvan, "when those gentlemen asked for an adjournment, they knew at the time that the defendant had flown. As honest men they should have brought the fact of his disappearance to the attention of the district attorney, and in not so doing, they have aided in his escape. And I understand that while McCauley was preparing for his flight he was hidden in disguise in the home of one of these three counsel."

House, Schurman and Baldwin jumped to their feet. "Tell what you mean?" they shouted in chorus.

Garvan turned until he stood face to face with Baldwin and then said: "I mean Mr. Baldwin."

"That is absolutely false," said the accused lawyer. "McCauley never set foot in my home, so far as I remember."

Bail was then declared forfeited.

Mr. Garvan last night said that the large sum he had been informed had been raised in Chicago for McCauley had been raised through various trust companies there. He said that one loan of $25,000 had been raised on Chicago real estate through the Federal Trust company.

Judgment for $5000, the amount of the bail, was entered last evening. A bench warrant was issued for McCauley and Garvan said that the detective bureau was notified and had made arrangements to send McCauley's description and picture broadcast to the police of the country.

One Bullet Killed Man and Moose

New Glasgow, N. S., Sept. 29.—A party of three men in the woods at Fifteen Mile Stream came upon a moose. Alex McDonald, who was in the lead, fired, but missed the animal, and he then stepped out from the cover of a tree just as McLean, one of his companions, fired. The ball passed through McDonald's skull, killing him instantly, and, continuing on its course, also killed the moose.

Antithesis of Count Leo Tolstoi

Moscow, Sept. 29.—Count Sergius Tolstoi, brother of Count Leo, is dead. He resided on his estate in lordly style and lived the life of a veritable, self-indulgent epicure, while his brother, clad in homespun, leads the life of a ascetic. Count Sergius had two daughters, who adopted their uncle's ideas in refusing to marry, one of them selecting a coachman as her mate.

Another Batch of Caucuses

Boston, Sept. 29.—The Republicans completed their work of primary elections by holding caucuses yesterday in the rest of the 11 cities and the 318 towns. There were no great surprises. Of the delegates elected to the state convention J. J. Whipple of Brockton claims that he has sufficient number to give him the nomination for state treasurer.

Bubonic Plague Aboard Ship

London, Sept. 29.—Bubonic plague, it is officially announced, has broken out on board the steamship Bishopsgate, which has arrived here from Hamburg, the boatswain being ill. When the Bishopsgate was discharging her cargo from Rosario, Argentina, at Hamburg recently, a number of rats that had died of the plague were found on board.

Denver Completes Trial Trips

Newport News, Va., Sept. 29.—The U. S. cruiser Denver has returned from her final trial trip and test off this coast. The trial board left for Washington last night, where the report on the behavior of the cruiser at sea will be made.

WILL NOT OPEN MILLS

Fall River Manufacturers Say Conditions Are Unfavorable

Fall River, Mass., Sept. 29.—It is announced definitely that the mills will not be opened Oct. 3. With most of the print works of the country running short time and cotton prices out of proportion to the quotations for cloth, manufacturers say there is no sound business reason for trying to open up while the attitude of resistance among operatives is so strongly maintained.

The desire for an early settlement of the strike is increasing very materially, however, and a conference of manufacturers and labor leaders may be arranged at any time. At present there is no likelihood that the manufacturers' position on the wage reduction will be changed, but the disposition to clear up some other grievances is growing stronger in manufacturing circles, and, if a conference is possible, an attempt will be made soon to hold one and thresh out the situation as it now appears.

A positive statement has been made by one mill man that he will try to reopen his mills Oct. 10, and another man is reported as having told one of his directors that a general start will be made either on that date or on Oct. 17. Thus far no formal meeting of the executive committee has been held on the matter, and no meeting of manufacturers is being arranged for.

Mrs Potter's Beneficence

Boston, Sept. 29.—Widely beneficent are the bequests of public character contained in the will of Mrs. Sarah E. Potter of Commonwealth avenue, this city, who died last Friday. The bequests are most liberal and aggregate considerably more than $1,000,000. Mrs. Potter during her life gave liberally to many of the charities which she now further aids through the provisions of her will. Her entire estate probably will amount to between $3,000,000 and $4,000,000, the residue, above the public bequests, being disposed of to relatives, friends and through channels of private character.

Third Big Lumber Yard Fire

Providence, Sept. 29.—The third recent lumber yard fire, all believed by the police to have been of incendiary origin, broke out last night in the yards of the Hovey Lumber company and caused a loss of $30,000. The entire police and detective force are making an effort to run down the incendiary. On Saturday night a blaze in the Harris lumber yard caused a loss of $200,000, and on Monday night the yards of the Burrows & Kenyon Lumber company sustained a loss by a suspicious fire of $100,000.

Judge Takes His Own Life

Montpelier, Vt., Sept. 29.—The body of Judge C. E. Woodward of the local municipal court was found suspended by a rope from a wall peg in his office. He left a letter stating that he intended to commit suicide because his enemies were seeking the downfall of himself and his family. There had been considerable opposition to his reappointment as local justice, and it is believed he had become despondent as the result of this.

Shot Down While at Work

Hartford, Sept. 29.—Louis Mazenter, a butcher, 22 years old, was shot and instantly killed by George Lefebzre, aged 15, while working in an abattoir at Wilson's Station. The shot was fired through a window as Mazenter was dressing a steer, with his back turned to the gun. Lefebzre was arrested and admitted that he killed Mazenter, but said the shooting was accidental. He is alleged to be slightly unbalanced.

Unquestionably a Suicide

Salem, Mass., Sept. 29.—Medical Examiner Stickney has filed with District Attorney Peters his finding in the case of Bessie G. Davis of Beverly, whose body was picked up on the rocks at the edge of the harbor, which was that the woman's death was unquestionably one of suicide by drowning. The medical examiner reported that there were absolutely no indications of foul play.

Admits Killing Employer

Hartford, Sept. 29.—Joseph Watson, who is on trial for the murder of Henry Osborn, was put on the stand and said that he killed his former employer in self-defense. He said that during a quarrel over money matters Osborn threatened to do him bodily harm unless he left the place. A scuffle followed and he fired four shots.

A Stock Broker's Downfall

Boston, Sept. 29.—Convicted of one case of larceny, two of forgery and two of uttering, Frederick G. Gardiner was sentenced by Judge Holmes to serve not more than 10 nor less than eight years in the state prison. Gardiner operated in stocks and other financial papers, doing business in Boston, Providence and New York.

Hoar's Condition Most Critical

Worcester, Mass., Sept. 29.—Senator Hoar has not rallied from the sleep and stupor into which he fell Tuesday afternoon and it is feared that he is in his last sleep. He partakes of neither food nor nourishment, being too weak to swallow. The remarkable vitality he has shown may be sufficient to fight death until the last of the week.

From $10,000,000 to $29,000

New Haven, Sept. 29.—The administrator's report on the estate of Wilson Waddingham, the ranch owner who died in the west, has been presented in the probate court. There is $29,000 in hand to pay claims approximating $500,000. Not many years ago Waddingham was rated to be worth as much as $10,000,000.

Czar's Pictures Stamped Upon

St. Louis, Sept. 29.—When the Russian exhibit in the Varied Industries building at the World's Fair was opened yesterday it was discovered that several valuable oil paintings of Emperor Nicholas had been torn from the wall and mutilated. Another portrait of the czar, a panel done in colored silk, was torn from its support and subjected to the greatest indignity. The oil paintings were torn and there were marks showing that the features of the czar had been stamped upon. Every effort is being made by both the exhibitors and the World's Fair authorities to discover the guilty person or persons.

President Meets a Hero

Washington, Sept. 29.—Scores of visitors called at the White House yesterday, a great majority of them merely to pay their respects to President Roosevelt. The president was introduced to Mons Monssen, the gunner of the battleship Missouri, who, by flooding the vessel's forward magazine, prevented the total destruction of the ship and her crew at the time of the disaster which cost the lives of more than a score of men. President Roosevelt warmly congratulated Monssen on his personal bravery and praised the conduct of the officers and crew of the vessel.

Yale Freshmen Victorious

New Haven, Sept. 29.—The annual wrestling match between sophomores and freshmen of Yale was held last night on the campus. As heretofore the rush was managed by the senior class. The freshmen class won the lightweight and the middleweight bouts, the sophomores securing the heavyweight bout.

More Delay In Wisconsin Struggle

Madison, Wis., Sept. 29.—No decision has yet been handed down in the La Follette case. It would not cause much surprise among those interested if the decision was not made this week, and the impression is growing that the judges have not as yet even decided the case or written the opinion.

As to the Kaiser's Health

Berlin, Sept. 29.—Nothing has been published here confirmatory of the report cabled to the United States that Emperor William has been ordered to take a winter cruise in the Mediterranean for the benefit of his health.

Plymouth Express Leaves the Rails in Braintree.

Engineer, Fireman and Others Seriously Injured.

A railroad disaster which will result in the loss of lives took place this afternoon shortly before 1 o'clock at Braintree, on the route between South Weymouth and South Braintree.

From what could be learned, before the Ledger went to press, it appears that the engine of the train from Plymouth left the rail, while running at a good rate of speed. The engine then tipped over and the heavy train crushed into it piling up a wreck.

Engineer Will Adams of the Plymouth train, a Quincy man, was thrown from his engine and buried beneath the debris. He was alive when taken out, but is not expected to live.

The fireman of the Plymouth train was also seriously injured. It is reported that both his legs were cut off. Both the engineer and fireman were removed to the South Braintree depot.

Both were sent to Boston on the 2 o'clock train, but were not expected to live until they reached the city.

The train left Plymouth at 11.56 A. M. and South Weymouth at 12.45 and was due at South Braintree at 12.53. The train usually runs express through Quincy about 1.05 P. M.

The accident is said to have been caused by the spreading of the rails.

Conductor Wyman R. Lincoln was in charge of the train and was also seriously injured.

All of the passengers on the train received a general shaking up and many received injuries.

LATER.

A later dispatch from Braintree says that the accident occurred about a mile and a half south of the South Braintree depot and that Engineer Adams and his fireman were the only persons injured.

When the engine left the rail it broke away from the tender and toppled over and rolled down the enbankment.

Neither the tender or cars left the track but crashed together and the passengers were badly shaken up.

Three Candidates.

There may be a deadlock in the Firt Norfolk Republican Senatorial convention. The district includes the city of Quincy and the towns of Milton, Canton, Hyde Park, Weymouth, Braintree, Holbrook and Randolph.

There are three candidates,—Senator Albert A. Brackett of Milton, Wilbur H. Powers of Hyde Park and Edward B. Nevin of Weymouth.

Mr. Powers had only the 8 Hyde Park delegates. Mr. Nevin has Weymouth and Braintree and possible Holbrook and Randolph, and a part of Quincy and Milton. Mr. Brackett has the most of the Quincy delegates, all of Canton, some of Milton and counts on others.

Ex-Premiers vs Premier

St. Johns, Sept. 29.—Former Premiers Whiteway, Winter and Goodridge have formed a combination, and with their united forces hope to defeat Premier Bond in the general election a month hence.

REMEMBERED.

Henry H. Faxon Has Many Callers on His Birthday.

Yesterday prominent ladies in the W. C. T. U. planned a little surprise for Mr. Henry H. Faxon, who has been one of their best friends,—giving them encouragement in their work, and often supplying the sinews of war.

It was the 81st anniversary of Mr. Faxon's birth, but he had made no preparations for observing it. It was only a little while before the arrival of the ladies that Mr. Faxon became aware of the contemplated visit, and then he did not realize he would have so many guests.

But the Boston delegation was augmented by relatives and Quincy friends, local pastors and others, and Mr. Faxon was much pleased at the thoughtfulness of all. Several brought remembrances, notably flowers.

Among those present were Mrs. Marion L. McBride of the National W. C. T. U.; Mrs. Harriet T. Todd, State secretary; Mrs. Sarah A. Coffin, State treasurer; Mrs. Catherine D. Walker, former State secretary; Mrs. Charles A. Spear, representing the Quincy W. C. T. U.; M. J. Fanning, president of the Massachusetts Anti-Saloon League; Rev. D. M. Wilson of Northfield; Rev. and Mrs. E. C. Butler of the First church; Rev. E. N. Hardy, Rev. A. A. Ellsworth, representatives of the press and others.

Mrs. Catherine D. Stevenson, president of the State W. C. T. U., and others sent greetings, and regrets that they could not be present.

Music by Miss Venita R. Dudgeon of Boston enlivened the occasion. She is an accomplished artist, and her selections on the piano pleased all.

Friends of Mr. Faxon had prepared a birthday cake, and also served ice cream, fancy crackers, bonbons, coffee, etc.

Congratulations to Mr. Faxon. May he live many more years of usefulness.

LONG RESIDENT.

Death of Mrs. John Gray who has Lived Here Since 1835.

Mrs. Julia A. Gray, the widow of John Gray, passed away on Wednesday at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Charles B. Huston of High School avenue, in her 81st year. For some time she had been in poor health.

Since the age of twelve years she had been a resident of Quincy, living most of the time on Main street. She was born in Weymouth in 1823, being a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah Stetson, and a sister of the late David B. Stetson.

Mr. and Mrs. Gray were married at Quincy Point April 16, 1843, by the Rev. John T. Burrell and in 1893 observed their golden wedding anniversary. They had three sons and two daughters.

Mrs. Gray was for many years active in the work of the Universalist church, and the Rev. M. C. Ward, a former pastor will officiate at the funeral Saturday afternoon.

BOULEVARD WORK.

A Start Has Been Made by Contractor at West Quincy.

Work has been commenced on the sub-grading of the boulevard between the Blue Hills Reservation and Adams street. The contractors are Lowe & Berini of South Framingham, whose bid was something like $15,604.70.

The contract calls for the sub-grading and the building of the bridge over the brook near the residence of William B. Rice. The work has commenced off Willard street near the reservation.

Brockton's Big Fair.

All amusement lovers in this section are always on the lookout for the dates of the greatest of outdoor shows, The Brockton Fair. The dates this year are October 4, 5, 6 and 7. This big fair includes so many novelties and attractions it is next to impossible to enumerate them all. The Horse Show will be far ahead of all shows of former years. The show ring has been enlarged and constructed with straight sides. The Horse Show alone is a magnet that draws many thousands of lovers of blooded horse flesh from all over New England. The big stage show this season will include 17 star acts, including the season's most thrilling novelty, "Looping the Chasm." Three bands will furnish continuous music: The Martland Band, all the past season at Nantasket, Clark's Providence Band and Milo Burke's Band. The trotting will, as usual, be first class, and enlivened by the addition of running races. Reserved seats in the big grandstand, enlarged this year, can be obtained by addressing E. M. Thompson, Brockton, Mass.

RACE SEPARATION

Bishop Strang Declares It Would Be For the Best

GIVES ADVICE TO WHITES

Outside Political Interference In Questions Relating to the South Raises False Hopes and Arrays Race Against Race

New York, Sept. 29.—Before an audience that filled St. Thomas Protestant Episcopal church last night, and in the presence of Booker T. Washington, Rev. Dr. Strang, bishop coadjutor-elect of the diocese of South Carolina, declared that the one set factor in any real and practical solution of the negro problem was the entire separation of the races in social, scholastic, religious and domestic affairs.

When Mr. Washington arose to speak he virtually agreed with the bishop by saying the problem could not be settled by amalgamation or by deportation of the negroes, but by earnest sympathy and co-operation of the races, although his chief argument was for increased facilities for education and encouragement for those of his people in the south.

Bishop Coadjutor Greer presided over the meeting, and said the question was one to be solved only by Christian standards. He then introduced Dr. Stang, whose topic was "The Responsibilities of American Christian Civilization to the Negro Race."

"We are brothers in all the best feelings and we whites of the south feel our responsibility for the black man and are doing the best we can for him," said Dr. Strang. "We ask you that when anything happens down there that merits condemnation, to condemn that specific thing, and not the whole south, and to set your faces resolutely against any outside political interference in the question, which raises false hopes in the blacks, irritates the whites and arrays race against race.

"The whites of the south must see to it that there is a complete social separation of the races, in schools, churches and in domestic life. That is the one fixed factor. It is best for the whites and blacks, and best for human progress. That being settled absolutely, so as not to give the miserable machine politician a chance to sound his slogan, the whites must give the negroes all rights, privileges and qualities before the ballot box and elsewhere."

Doctors Disagree

Pawtucket, R. I., Sept. 29.—Coroner Vance concluded an inquest last night on the death of Mrs. Mary Crowley, who was murdered on the Massachusetts state line Sept. 15, and he finds that John Allingham was responsible for the crime. The coroner found that a difference of opinion existed among the physicians who testified as to the cause of death. Several of them thought that death was caused by a blow from an axe, while others decided that a blunt instrument was the weapon.

Train Wreckers Foiled

Lynchburg, Va., Sept. 29.—Two distinct efforts were made last night to wreck trains near Lynchburg. Several large boulders were placed on the track and a freight ran into them. As the train was moving slowly, no damage was done. The crew of a late passenger train was notified. This train approached carefully and found that the obstruction had been replaced. No motive is known for these attempts.

Dangerous Explosive at Large

San Francisco, Sept. 29.—Two torpedoes were lost from the United States submarine boat Pike, which has been experimenting in San Pablo bay. One has been recovered, but the other is still at large and it may be exploded by a passing vessel. It is charged with 200 pounds of gun cotton. The one already found had lost its compressed air, and was practically harmless.

Judge Parker Kept Busy

New York, Sept. 29.—At no time since Judge Parker was nominated as a candidate of the Democratic party for president has he met so many members of his party who occupy high positions, politically and commercially, as on his present visit to New York. The candidate's rooms at the Hotel Seville were over-run with visitors.

For the Good of Africa

Richmond, Ind., Sept. 29.—Bishop Hatzell, for 20 years a Methodist bishop in Africa, delivered an address here in which he declared he hoped to see the time when the American flag should float over a portion of African territory and that Africa can be divided by the great nations of the earth without war.

Bankers to Aid Receiver

Cleveland, Sept. 29.—A group of bankers has been named by the creditors of the Aultman company of Canton to co-operate with Receiver Sullivan in straightening out the affairs of the concern, which made an assignment recently with liabilities aggregating $1,500,000.

King of Saxony Dying

Dresden, Sept. 29.—King George of Saxony is much weaker. All the members of the royal family living in Dresden have assembled at Pillnitz, the summer residence of the Saxon court.

Braintree Delegates.

Delegates were elected at the Republican caucus at Braintree last evening favorable to Whipple for State treasurer, to Weeks for Congressman, to Nevin of Weymouth for Senator, and to George L. Barnes and Aubrey Hilliard for Representatives, as follows:

State,—James T. Stevens, J. Parker Hayward, T. Haven Dearing, George H. Arnold.

Congressional,—J. Wendell Gammons, B. Herbert Woodsom, Frank H. Palmer, Plummer C. Spring.

Congressional Contests.

The Republican caucuses resulted in overwhelming victories for Hon. John W. Weeks of Newton in the Twelfth or Norfolk county district, who has probably 103 of the 125 delegates.

Congressman Charles Q. Tirrell of Natick won easily in the Fourth district, the strength of G. H. Doty being confined to Waltham.

In the Seventh or Essex district, Congressman Roberts received 122 delegates to 15 for Frank P. Bennett.

Milton Caucus.

The Milton Republican caucus was one of the largest ever held, about 400 votes being cast. There was a contest for Senatorial delegates and it was a close fight, Senator Brackett winning some and Nevin of Weymouth some.

State,—Albert A. Brackett, Charles S. Pierce, H. Clifford Gallagher, Frederick P. Hall.

District Attorney,—Charles S. Pierce, Robert H. French, W. Newton Harlow, Jesse B. Baxter.

County,—William B. Thurber, Jesse B. Baxter, Edwin L. Crossman, C. Frank Kent.

Councillor,—John Swift, Ernest C. Libby, Thomas W. Pond, Arthur A. Hibbard.

Physicians Injured.

The automobile capsized on Hancock street, Atlantic, on Tuesday belonged to a Brockton physician. Besides the owner there was another physician and a letter carrier in the car. The letter carrier was acting as driver. While going along Hancock street the machine began to sway and increase its speed. Then the driver lost his head and the machine capsized. Both physicians were quite seriously injured and the car was made a total wreck. Fred Austin, superintendent of the Electric Light Co., brought the injured men to Quincy in his car. After having their injuries dressed at Murphy's drug store they returned to Brockton.

High in List.

At a recent civil service examination held in Schenectady, for the position of fireman, George Faircloth, formerly a driver at the Central Fire station in Quincy, was fourth in the list of eighteen applicants. His percentage was 92.5

Mr. Smith will occupy one of the new up to-date, commodious stores in FREEMAN'S BLOCK, corner Washington Street and Baker Avenue, directly opposite the old location.
He will make every effort to serve patrons with goods equal in quality, and give service as prompt as has characterized the business in the past.
Mr. Smith has received the appointment of Superintendent of Station 2. The old corps of assistants will be retained, viz.:—
MISS GLIDDEN, Money Order, Registered Letter Clerk, and Bookkeeper.
MR. CHARLES N. BOSWORTH, Salesman.
MR. SAMUEL C. MELVILLE, MR. W. HARRY REDDING, Clerks.
Mr. Smith is entirely familiar with the hustling newspaper business. All subscribers will be promptly served with Boston, Quincy and New York papers. His aids are Samuel C. Melville, W. H. Redding, John O'Brien, Edwin Lee, Irving Hayden, Ernest Smith, William O'Brien and William Paul.

I hereby extend my sincere thanks to all who have aided me by their custom, in conducting a steadily increasing business, and I bespeak for Mr. Smith the same liberal patronage that has been accorded me in the past.
The wants of all will receive prompt attention, and with the increased facilities,—a decidedly pleasant and well arranged store,—the present number of patrons should be greatly increased, by that best advertisement of all—Satisfied Customers.

CORNER STONE.

Laid by Governor Bates.

For New Y. M. C. A. Building.

Addresses by the Governor and Others.

Unfortunate weather conditions prevailed at the laying of the corner stone of the new Y. M. C. A. building Thursday afternoon. It was fortunate, however, that the building had so far progressed that shelter was provided for the speakers, and for the greater part of those who gathered to witness the exercises. The association was also fortunate in having the presence of His Excellency Governor Bates who laid the corner stone.
Two flags waved in front of the building.
Gov. Bates arrived with Representative Freeman on the 2.49 train, and drove immediately to the building on Washington street. Some chairs had been provided for the spectators, and a canvas awning erected over the corner stone.
It did not rain at that time, and it was hoped that there would be no showers until after the exercises. Unfortunately however, it was showery during the exercises, and there was a downpour just after the close.
Dr. Horace Mann Willard of the Quincy Mansion school presided, and in opening said that the laying of the corner-stone of this building was like another at which he participated on a stormy cold June day, but when the building was dedicated it was a beautiful day. He felt that when this building was dedicated it would also be a beautiful day. It was a great pleasure to have the Governor present, which accounted for the laying of the corner-stone after the building was well advanced. He then introduced Vice President George H. Brown.
Mr. Brown regretted that President Chase was unable to be present on account of illness, as one who had taken so much interest as had Mr. Chase ought to be here. The Y. M. C. A. was organized in 1891 and did a good work in rented quarters. Three or four years ago it suspended work, owing largely to the inadequacy of quarters.
Then the work of providing quarters was taken up. The new building would cost $35,000 to build and equip. We have $23,500 subscribed partly upon condition that the building shall be free from debt when completed. Unless we raise $12,000 more we shall be unable to complete the building.
There was great need of the Y. M. C. A. work here, doubly so since the advent of the Fore River Shipbuilding company. If we can complete the dormitories this fall we shall be able to fill them and add to our income.
Col. Anderson spoke at length in his usual interesting and entertaining manner. He said when we come to consider a Y. M. C. A. in a town so rich in churches, the question comes why cannot the churches do the work of the Y. M. C. A.? It cannot because what is needed is a class of work for young men, led by a trained leader, one who knows how to get at them to succeed. No church can do as a Y. M. C. A. for young men. Many people are prejudiced against the church. It is queer, yet it is so. If churches are only open two nights a week how can they look out for the young men? In the Y. M. C. A. there is a way to get together and plan for the young men, to improve them and keep them clean.
There is not a father or mother but what wishes their son saved from the ruin that is all about them, but they do not know how. The home can not do it for the reason that no young life can be hemmed in. There is no such thing as a sheltered life. They will come out. We cannot keep them from harm unless trained to avoid that sin. They come in contact with other boys older than they. It is a wonder more are not ruined by the contact of the older boys with the young.
They learn all kinds of things and parents at home cannot help it. Our boys don't direct the current. They find it. No boy is educated alone. It is absolutely impossible. To save your boy it is necessary to save other boys. The great bulk of days they are outside talking over and planning things. It is interesting today to see how many wear a badge or button telling that they are members of some organization. It means that there must be associations, clubs, the getting together. We must realize the fact that it is necessary to have boys come together as adults.
The place for boys is home, but there are many homes where the boy is forced out because the home is not congenial. These boys are soon to be young men. Our boys are growing and before we know it they are beyond our reach. We can form the wet clay into statues but after it gets hard no power can change its shape. It is but a picture of the boy mind. We can teach a dog new tricks but never make him forget the tricks learned when he was a puppy. The evil things that come to us cling, and we can not get rid of them.
The place where the Y. M. C. A. comes in. The things learned there always remain. It is not only your boys but the strangers. What are we going to do with them? The pastor of no church can look after them. Yet the first three days of his coming among us may determine his whole character. It is an awful fact when we realize strangers are coming to Quincy and there is no place for them. This will be a place for them.
What have we here in Quincy? Thank God and Mr. Faxon that we have no saloons. But don't be too sure. There are many young men who can tell you where to go and get a drink in spite of Mr. Faxon, who would stop it if he could. He needs help. The old iron dipper on the fountain is not the thing to tempt the young man when he can find someone to get him something that will tickle his throat. No one knows the courage it takes to resist the sneer of companions. What is the wonder that they fall, and that there is necessity of such an association as this for your sons and strangers.
What they want is a bath, a gymnasium, classes where they can study and incidentally a little religion. Here is where the great plea comes for that $12,000 to complete this building. He felt sure some citizen would throw himself into the breach and see that this will be completed.
R. M. Armstrong, State Secretary for Massachusetts and Rhode Island, believed the building would open the hearts and minds, and that it would not be long before the building would be completed. He then told of what was being done in the way of buildings in other places, several cities having buildings underway.
The great need was a building in your own community. He believed in the work for the homeless boy and other boys as well. As a parent he needed the influence of the Y. M. C. A. to save his boy and the boys next to him.
Gov. Bates was the last speaker and by that time the street was full of children just out from school. The Governor said that he should report that the boys and girls of Quincy were all right, and that what the State was expending for them for education is being well spent.
This building is but another evidence of what the State is trying to do for its children. There are two kinds of organization and two kinds of influence. One kind is ever looking out for itself and for its own enjoyment and pleasure. The other kind is just the opposite. It is totally unselfish. The Commonwealth of Massachusetts depends largely upon such organizations as the latter kind. We recognize the Y. M. C. A. as unselfish, but always tending for good and for what all should tend to uphold.
It was therefore fitting that a representative of the State should be present and express appreciation of the work of the association. He who builds a house intended for a home is doing a good thing for the community.
We find men endowing a public school. We say such a man deserves well of his fellow men. When we find men erecting a temple with its tall spire reaching heavenward we say that he also deserves well of his fellow men.
We are here today to lay the corner stone of a building that shall be a combination of all these. It is a home, a temple, a shelter and a bulwark in the community that will contend against all evil influences.
Here we will find that supplementary school, a temple where the soul is not overlooked; where character of soul will be moulded. Men who will respect the laws of the State and morality.
It was pleasant to congratulate all who are interested in this institution, a home school and church; all for the uplifting of the community.
Secretary Gay then read the contents of the copper box that was to be enclosed in the granite corner stone.
The party then gathered about the stone which was laid under the bow window at the northerly corner plumb and true by Gov. Bates.
The exercises closed with benediction by Rev. Edwin N. Hardy of Bethany Congregational church.
In the gathering were many of the clergymen of the city and some from out of town.

Locomotive Goes Over Stone Wall.

And Heads The Other Way;

Miraculous Escape for Passengers on Plymouth Express.

At last reports Engineer Will Adams was living, and his fireman, Edward Cook, was the only fatality in the disaster to the Plymouth express, Boston bound, at South Braintree on Thursday shortly before 1 P. M.
It was miraculous that all the 100 passengers and trainmen should have escaped injury when the extent of the disaster became known, and there is mystery as to the cause.
Probably something broke for the engine was switched violently to the left, as if whirled on a pivot, and was projected in a direction directly opposite from that in which it had been running. Clean over a stone wall it flew and landed on its back in a tangle of underbrush. Ninety feet nearer South Weymouth than the engine its forward trucks finally brought up. Two hundred feet back of the engine, and laying by the side of the track, was the tender.
Meanwhile, the three cars that comprised the train proceeded on toward Boston for a distance of nearly 100 yards from the point at which detrailment occurred, and bumped along, right side up, until the air brakes brought them to a standstill with a jerk. The trucks of one car were wrenched askew, but otherwise the physical damage to the cars was confined to two broken windows.
Both of the engineer's legs were crushed and he was otherwise badly injured during the meteoric flight of his beloved machine, and one of the fireman's legs was severed and he was otherwise terribly battered. This is the complete recapitulation of physical personal injury, and these two were the only ones out of the more than 100 passengers who had to be taken to a hospital.

Engineer Adams.

The writer was very well acquainted with Engineer William A. Adams and has ridden many miles with him in the engine. Once on the old engine number 610 (which used to pull the boat train through Quincy to Fall River leaving Boston at 6 P. M.) we timed the speed by mile stones, and made a mile in 54 seconds.
One of the best known railroad men on the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, says the Herald, was William H. Adams, sometimes known as "Wild Bill." This sobriquet was not the result of any dare-deviltry on his part, but because in his younger days he had been intrusted with the running of some of the fastest trains on the road and because of his aureola of long, curly hair.
He was one of the old Old Colony men. For 34 years he had been connected with the system, the greater part of that period as engineer. For years he and Asa Porter ran the "boat train." He had also had fast runs to Newport and to Woods Hole, and was regarded as one of the road's best pilots. He was a native of Quincy, but of late years made his home in Mattapan.
Edward Cook, his fireman, was a young man. During the summer he boarded at South Braintree, but the address in the possession of the railroad officials registered him at a lodging house on Shawmut avenue, but which is now vacant. The news of his death at the Massachusetts Hospital last night was received with especial regret by his railroad associates because of the fortitude he displayed while awaiting surgical assistance.
Railroad men will write down William H. Adams and Edward Cook as gritty members of a gritty craft. Although conscious the greater part of the time while they lay in the field and in the baggage car that transported them to Boston, they uttered no complaint. Indeed, as they writhed on the grass the one attempted to console and inspire the other.
"How are you, Bill?" asked Cook of his comrade.
"My legs pain me some," replied the other. "How are you?"
"So-so. One of mine's gone. Hurts some, though."
"We'll have to make the best of it."
"Sure," responded the other.
What happened, anyway," asked Adams, addressing the train boy.
He apparently had no intimation as to anything going wrong on his machine, or, if he had, had forgotten it.
"We left the iron, that's all," replied the little fellow, comfortingly, over and over again, in response to the constantly reiterated query. He couldn't answer the question more definitely; nor, indeed, could the man who propounded it.

Engine Hid from View.

One of the Ledger representatives visited the scene of yesterday's railroad accident at South Braintree this morning at nine o'clock and found about fifty men engaged in repairing the railroads and bed. Nearly all traces of the accident had been removed, and the engine, number 837, which rolled down a slight enbankment and over a stone wall, had been carefully banked in with branches to obscure it from the view of passengers. Sunday the engine will be removed to Boston where it will probably be rebuilt.

Mrs. James A. Hayden.

The funeral of Mrs. James A. Hayden was held from her home on South street, Tuesday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock. Rev. Leon H. Austin officiated at the services. Mr. Austin's remarks were brief but very impressive.
Mrs. Hayden leaves to mourn her loss, a husband and two daughters, Mrs. Bailey of Quincy Point and Mrs. George Maybury of North Weymouth.
The floral offerings were many and beautiful, which show in what high esteem Mrs. Hayden was held by her friends and neighbors. Among the floral tributes were:
Pillow with "Wife," James A. Hayden.
Spray of asters, Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Hayden.
Spray of asters, Mr. and Mrs. James Harris and family.

UNCLE SAM.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

While Brockton has 7,835 children in its public schools, and Quincy but 5,607, the High school at Quincy has 622 pupils and the one at Brockton 652.

The Luce law appears to have worked very satisfactorily at the caucuses in Quincy this week; very few adverse criticisms of any weight being made. Nearly 1100 voted with the Republicans, a representative number, as only 1877 voted at the State election last year for Gov. Bates. Last year, it will be remembered, there was considerable talk about Democrats voting at the Republican caucuses. This year the Democrats appear to have voted as Democrats, resulting in more representative caucuses by that party also. The Socialist vote was about the usual size.

A regular Republican or a regular Democrat has no objection to registering as a regular, and it is the regulars who should make the party nominations; not the independents. The independents can show their independence on election days.

All this talk by a few, that "one is marked politically for life" if he attends a caucus now, is all "rot." One thing the Luce law should accomplish, and that is the selection of Democratic election officers or Republican registrars of voters when the law calls for such. We will not have the spectacle of a man appointed as a Democratic election officer striving for nomination as a Republican councilman.

When the Mayor has election officers to appoint in the future he should consult the list of voters and see if the Democratic representatives are Democrats, and the Republican representatives Republican. The same with registrars of voters, and other offices where parties are expected to be represented.

Drift of Opinion.

☞Can a halt be called in the frightful accidents of almost daily occurrence? If so, it is time the call was sounded and sounded effectively. Last year was considered a record year of horrors, but its record is not up to that of 1904 with disasters on land and on sea, and with disasters where the exercise of the most ordinary prudence and attention to duty could have operated to prevention.—Cincinnati Commercial.

It may be more pleasant to turn and listen to the giddy remark of some girl of your own age rather than to that of some elderly woman, but it does not put your disposition in anything like so becoming a light. Do not neglect the elderly guest in your home. If you only knew how much the delicate attenions of youth particularly are appreciated by age you would be no niggard in bestowing them. You will, too, always be the gainer in wisdom, love and, above all, that greatest attraction in a girl's disposition, unselfishness.—Exchange.

DEATH OF MR HOAR

Distinguished Statesman Passes Away at Worcester Home

THE END WAS PEACEFUL

Members of His Family Present During His Last Moments--Had Been Unconscious For Some Time Before Death

Worcester, Mass., Sept. 30.—George Frisbie Hoar, senior United States senator from Massachusetts, died at his home in this city at 1:35 o'clock this morning.

The end followed a period of unconsciousness that had continued since early Tuesday and came so gently that only the attending physicians were aware of the exact moment of dissolution. The attending physicians dispaired of the senator's life six weeks ago, but such was the vitality exhibited by their patient that even they were surprised and the public was at times led to cherish a faith in an ultimate recovery.

SENATOR GEORGE F. HOAR.

On Sunday last, however, all hope was abandoned after a last unsuccessful attempt to administer medicine and nourishment. Brief lucid intervals were followed by longer durations of unconsciousness until Tuesday morning, when the venerable statesman sank into a state of coma from which all efforts to arouse him proved futile.

During the last hours there was not a movement of the body and only a scarcely perceptible pulse gave evidence of the final struggle. There were present at the bedside when death came the senator's son, Rockwood Hoar, his daughter, Mary Hoar, and Dr. Gilman, who for weeks has been in almost constant attendance upon the senator.

Senator Hoar had been in ill-health since last winter and even when attending the sessions of the senate he was obliged to exercise extreme care lest his exertions should overcome him. At that time he was troubled with lumbago, and the death of his wife in Washington proved such a blow that he never recovered entirely from its depressing effects.

George Frisbie Hoar was born at Concord, Mass., Aug. 29, 1826. After a preparatory course at Concord academy, he entered Harvard university, and was graduated in 1864. Then engaging in the study of the law, he took the regular course at the Harvard law school, and after graduation with the degree of LL.B., he began the practice of his profession at Worcester.

In 1852 he served as a member of the the legislature and in 1857 as a member of the senate. In 1860 he was appointed city solicitor of Worcester and president of the trustees of the city library.

He was elected in 1868 to the Forty-first congress and re-elected to the three following congresses, declining renomination for the Forty-fifth congress. His service in the house was especially distinguished by his efforts for the passage of the education bill prepared by him as chairman of the committee on education and labor. His service in the house on the committee on elections was also especially notable. The reports prepared by him are cited as of the highest authority in England as well as in this country in determining the law in contested election cases.

He presided over the Republican state conventions of 1871, 1877, 1882 and 1885, and was a delegate to the National Republican conventions of 1876, 1880, 1884 and 1888, presiding over the convention of 1880.

He was elected to the United States senate to succeed George S. Boutwell, taking his seat March 5, 1877, and re-elected in 1882, 1888, 1894 and 1900.

In conversation a few years ago he remarked regarding his ambitions of of younger days: "Before I came to congress I had built up a law practice that brought me an income of $20,000 a year, and I had every reason to believe that the practice would grow to $50,000. I had saved from my income about $100,000, and I believed I could keep my practice and still attend to my duties in congress. After more than 30 years in the public service, I find myself at 75 with my law practice gone and the accumulations of my young days dissipated. It is impossible to remain in congress and attend to one's duties and at the same time continue an outside business."

The position of minister to England was offered to Mr. Hoar by President Hayes and by President McKinley. These Mr. Hoar declined.

In the consideration of all questions affecting the elections of senators and their rights to their seats, Mr. Hoar had taken a leading part, while matters relating to the judiciary had also, especially in recent years, received his special attention. The federal election law, which was the leading public question for a time in 1890, was ably championed by Mr. Hoar, whose committee had it in charge. The national bankruptcy bill was also under his immediate direction in the senate. In fact, in the framing of constructive legislation, Mr. Hoar may be said to have had as prominent a part in this service in the senate as any man in that body.

One of his most notable speeches was on "Temporary Government in the Philippines," in which he said:

"The conflict in the Philippines has cost you $600,000, thousands of American soldiers—the flower of your youth—the health and sanity of thousands more, and hundreds of thousands of Filipinos slain. We have sold out the right, the old American right, to speak out the sympathy which is in our hearts for people who are desolate and oppressed everywhere on the face of the earth."

The senator's gentle dislike to strictly social duties was generally understood. Mr. Hoar was an early advocate of woman suffrage. In private and in public he lost no opportunity of aiding the cause.

Mr. Hoar was singularly amiable and exemplary in private life. He married, in 1853, Miss Mary Louisa Spurr of Worcester, who died a few years later, leaving a son, Rockwood, and a daughter, Mary. In 1862 he married Miss Ruth Ann Miller, who died a short time ago. His beautiful Worcester home contains one of the finest private libraries in America, selected by Mr. Hoar with scholarly taste and judgment.

CONNECTICUT LAUNCHED

Workman Relieves the Mind of Those Superstitiously Inclined

New York, Sept. 30.—Although successfully launched, the battleship Connecticut did not have her bottle of wine broken by Miss Alice B. Welles, who had been selected as sponsor for the ship. Miss Welles threw the bottle at the bows as the ship began to move off the ways, but it failed to break when it struck the vessel's side.

Secretary of the Navy Morton and Rear Admiral Rodgers stood beside Miss Welles. Rodgers attempted to grasp the bottle as it rebounded, but failed, and the ship was moving off into the water when a workman on the deck seized the string that held the bottle and dashed the glass receptacle of the champagne against the side of the ship, shattering it to pieces, to the relief of the superstitious. This was the only variation of the pre-arranged plan, despite the many sensational stories of attempts to do the vessel damage.

Almost 30,000 persons witnessed the launching. To the accompaniment of creaking timbers, booming guns, sirens and whistles, the big red hull slid into the water at 11:16. It took just 26 seconds for the Connecticut to clear the ways.

General Osterhaus Loses a Son

Berlin, Sept. 30.—Major Osterhaus, whose death in a hospital in Southwest Africa from wounds has just been gazetted, was the son of General Peter Osterhaus, who served in the Northern army during the Civil war in the United States. General Osterhaus had two sons. The other son is an officer in the United States navy. The deceased major was born in the United States.

Dived Through Car Window

Buffalo, Sept. 30.—Alonzo J. Whiteman, who was arrested at St. Louis on a charge of forgery, and was being brought to this city by detectives, jumped from the fast mail at Dunkirk and escaped by diving head foremost through a car window. The conductor, it is reported, refused to stop the train until it had reached a suburb of this city. Whiteman is still at large.

Would-Be Wreckers Got Nothing

Lynchburg, Va., Sept. 30.—The attempt to wreck a freight train near here evidently was planned by four men whose purpose was robbery. One of the men was on the train when it struck the obstruction and when it stopped he began throwing merchandise from a car. The attempt to loot the train, however, was unsuccessful.

Tests Proved Satisfactory

Washington, Sept. 30.—The members of the naval board of inspection which conducted the official trial of the protected cruiser Denver off the Virginia capes report that with the exception of a few minor defects, the ship is in excellent condition and meets all the requirements of a naval vessel.

Old Differences Patched

Chicago, Sept. 30.—Differences between the packing house teamsters and the packing firms which refused to reinstate some of the drivers who went on strike in sympathy with the butcher workmen were adjusted last evening to the satisfaction of the committee representing the Teamsters' union.

Concession to Labor Unions

Washington, Sept. 30.—An order was issued at the navy department providing that all employes of navy yards and stations in the United States shall be paid during working hours. The labor unions have long objected to having their members paid off after working hours.

The Weather Forecast

CITY BREVITIES.

City Clerk Keith attended the annual meeting on Thursday of the Massachusetts City Clerks Association at Youngs Hotel, Boston. The joint caucus act was discussed.

Mrs. P. P. Burke of Larry street and Mrs. Frank Jenkins of Billings street have returned from Warren, Mass., where they have been spending a few days with Mrs. Susan M. Pearce, formerly of Quincy.

Rev. George Benedict of North Abington, formerly of Quincy Point, was on the wrecked train at South Braintree on Thursday and assisted Dr. Frank Wheatley, another passenger, to apply a tourniquet to the leg of Fireman Cook, stopping the flow of blood.

Abuse of Free Transfers.

The street railways throughout the state are determined to put a stop to the passing along of transfers, and persons detected will be prosecuted.

In New Haven last week five prominent merchants were arraigned in court for trying to defraud the local railway company by passing along transfers. All pleaded guilty and paid fines ranging from $14.85 to $34.85.

The passing of transfers is not unknown in Quincy, and the judgments in the New Haven cases should serve as a warning to people who are in the habit of asking for free transfers which they do not intend to use personally, but merely to pass along to their friends.

If this scheme was general it can be readily seen that it would mean a great loss to the railway. The officials of the Old Colony system are alive to the situation and are constantly on the watch to detect any illegal use of its free transfers. An example will be made of anyone detected.

The Magazines.

The October Delineator is a many featured number, containing, in addition to a complete survey of the Autumn fashions, entertaining fiction and special articles of wide interest. There is a clever bit of fiction by Ellen Douglas Leland, entitled "The Mother of Emmeline," and also the first part of a story by Ethel Watts Mumford, "A Matter of Millions," a delightful commingling of hmor and pathos. A series on "The Loves of Great Composers" begins in the number with the story of Beethoven.

Collier's for October 1 is a Harvest Number. It contains a striking article by Arthur Ruhl on the "The Drama of the Harvest." The writer pictures the marvels of the great American harvest and shows how little our own people realize the real source and reason of our national supremacy.

The novelette in the current number of Lippincott's Magazine is a tale of the Great Lakes from the pen of Karl Edwin Harriman. Its title is "A Lad's Love," and through its pages the island fisher-folk are presented as only one who loves them in their atmosphere of simplicity could do. Many pages of "Walnuts and Wine" enliven this number.

The picturesque personality of Thomas W. Lawson is well to the fore in the October issue of Everybody's Magazine. Not satisfied with the allowance of space given to his "Frenzied Finance" in the body of the magazine, he has burst the bonds of editorial convention and appropriated several pages in the advertising section part of which he uses to reply to the scores of letters and inquiries which his remarkable articles have brought him. He deals with his critics in much the same spirit he handles the financiers—without gloves.

Too Much of a Good Thing.

It is a well-known fact that resting the cheek in the warm palm of the hand rapidly assists the fading of that cheek; but a doctor declares that this injury is not so rapid as that suffered by repeated kisses. The warm lips of another, it appears, create sad havoc on a fresh, rosy cheek and red lips when pressed there too often.

New York Excursion.

October 6 is the $5.00 New York City excursion. This is the only trip through the Hoosac Mountains and the Deerfield Valley through Troy, N. Y. to Albany, and then by steamer down the Hudson River to New York City; back via the Fall River Line.

The Boston & Maine Passenger Department, Boston, has issued a beautiful illustrated booklet describing the trip. This booklet will be mailed free upon receipt of your address.

—This year's fruit harvest throughout England is the most abundant ever known. Apples are showing a record crop. There is a glut of this fruit in the market. From Tasmania alone some 20,000 to 30,000 boxes are arriving weekly, and these are reported superior to the apples of Spain and Portugal.

SEEKING HARMONY

Parker's Efforts Appear to Be Meeting With Success

VISITS FROM "HEAVY" MEN

Truce Between Gorman and Raynor of Maryland--Supporters of Bryan Being Gathered Into the Judge's Fold

New York, Sept. 30.—Indicative of an effort on the part of Judge Parker to unite all factions and bring together individuals whose personal differences might interfere with harmonious work for the national ticket, his callers during the three days of his present trip to New York have included representatives of every wing of the Democratic party.

In this connection conspicuous among those who visited the candidate yesterday were Dr. J. H. Girdner, who has been the host of W. J. Bryan whenever he came to New York, and Alexander C. Troup of New Haven, who served as chairman of the Connecticut state committee and conducted an enthusiastic campaign for Bryan four years ago. Others prominent in Connecticut Democracy have called on Judge Parker.

The incident that has created the most notable comment was the meeting between Senators Gorman and Isador Rayner of Maryland, accompanied by an announcement from their close political associates that whatever differences heretofore existing between the Maryland leaders have been dissipated, at least so far as the present campaign is concerned. Former Representative Cable of Illinois, who called on the judge, is another whose coming is said to mean a unit of effort from opposing organizations of the Illinois Democracy.

The candidate has made many acquaintances on this visit to New York. Much of his time has been taken up by conferences with Chairman Taggart, Senator Gorman, William F. Sheehan, Delancey Nicoll, August Belmont and others attached to the national headquarters, but he has had the opportunity as well to see scores of leading Democrats who came to New York for the sole purpose of meeting him.

Garvin Again Nominated

Providence, Sept. 30.—The Democrats of Rhode Island, in state convention, nominated electors and then, separating into district conventions, named candidates for congress. The men selected for state officers are: Governor, L. F. C. Garvin; lieutenant governor, Adelard Archambault; secretary of state, J. R. Keenan; attorney general, G. T. Brown; treasurer, Edmund Walker. D. L. D. Granger was renominated for congress in the First district and Franklin P. Owen in the Second district. The platform endorsed the national platform adopted at St. Louis and pledged support to the national candidates, Parker and Davis.

Strife In Delaware

Wilmington, Del., Sept. 30.—The warring factions of the Republican party in Delaware made a vain effort to effect a compromise on a state ticket, both the Dupont, or regular Republicans, and the Addicks, or union Republicans, having held their conventions and nominated separate tickets, with the exception of presidential electors, which are the same. The hitch is over the choice of a candidate for governor, each faction insisting that it shall have the naming of the candidate.

Party Stands on Its Record

Missoula, Mont., Sept. 30.—With a stop of an hour at this point, Senator Fairbanks concluded his four days' speaking tour of Montana. Senator Fairbanks made an argument for the retention of the Republican party in power, saying that it had shown its capacity by the record already made, and urging that this record is the best guarantee for the future.

Odell Remains at the Head

New York, Sept. 30.—The authoritative statement is made that Governor Odell will not resign as governor or retire from the chairmanship of the Republican state committee of New York. Odell suggested to some of the Republican leaders that if he was unsatisfactory to the party he would retire, but the suggestion received no serious encouragement.

New England For Roosevelt

New York, Sept. 30.—Senator Aldrich of Rhode Island came to New York last evening to talk with the Republican national committee members about the campaign. Aldrich gave assurances that the electoral votes of New England would be cast for the Republican ticket.

City Officials In Disgrace

Buffalo, Sept. 30.—Mayor Knight has suspended from office Aldermen J. T. Harp, Orrin F. Pierce and Henry Moest, three of the seven men who were indicted as a result of the investigation into alleged municipal corruption.

Sample of July Weather

Pittsburg, Sept. 30.—A heat wave struck this city yesterday, sending the thermometer up from 69 degrees at midnight to 87 at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. A heavy rainstorm at 8 o'clock brought relief.

Congo Natives In Slavery

New York, Sept. 30.—Secretary Morel of the Congo Reform association has arrived in New York from Europe. He brings a memorial to President Roosevelt urging an international movement to change conditions in the Congo Free State. He says that for many years past gross outrages have been perpetrated upon the natives of the Congo by the Congo government. The whole system is virtually legalized outrage, and the whole people are practically enslaved.

Frosty Reception of New Play

London, Sept. 30.—Mrs. James Brown Potter opened her season under her own management at the Savoy theatre, and herself appeared as George Daring, a pen name which is understood to be that of her sister. The play was so poor that after many expressions of ridicule from the audience the curtain finally descended amidst chilling silence.

Primate Visits New York Slums

New York, Sept. 30.—The Archbishop of Canterbury, accompanied by Booker T. Washington, made a tour of inspection through the best and worst sections of the East Side, including the thickly packed barracks on Mulberry street and the tenements in the neighborhood of Mulberry Bend. The long rows of model flats along First avenue were also visited.

Postmaster General Laid Up

Washington, Sept. 30.—Postmaster General Payne is seriously ill. Marked symptoms of heart trouble have developed and his condition has become so serious as to cause grave concern. He returned recently from a trip in the west and appeared to be feeling much improved. He became very ill Wednesday night and has been confined to his bed ever since.

Speed Requirements Waived

Washington, Sept. 30.—The navy department has accepted the protected cruiser Des Moines, now attached to the European squadron. This vessel was built in a Massachusetts yard and fell short of meeting the complete contract requirements in the matter of speed.

Labor Trouble Settled

Montreal, Sept. 30.—The difficulty between the Canadian Pacific company and the car men employed on the system, which led to negotiations with a committee of the men in this city, has been satisfactorily settled.

Advance In Lake Seamen's Wages

Cleveland, Sept. 30.—The wages of all the seamen employed on the Great Lakes, numbering upwards of 10,000, will be advanced from 10 to 25 percent Oct. 1, in accordance with an agreement reached last spring.

NEWS IN BRIEF

The anniversary of the death of Emil Zola, who died Sept. 29, 1903, was commemorated by a large party of authors and artists visiting his former home at Medan, where addresses were delivered in his honor.

The report that the commissariat department's stores at Lisbon were destroyed by fire, involving the loss of $30,000,000, is incorrect. Forage storehouses were burned, involving slight loss.

Rusty.

A little three-year-old miss, while her mother was trying to get her to sleep, became interested in a peculiar noise and asked what it was.

"A cricket, dear," replied the mother.

"Well," remarked the little lady, "he ought to get himself oiled."—Young People's Paper.

The Phelps-Gurney Muddle

Boston, Sept. 30.—Governor Bates has made public the text of the communication forwarded by him to the state department at Washington, formulating the attitude of Massachusetts in the case of Hugh Gurney, third secretary of the British embassy, who was arrested for overspeeding his automobile in Stockbridge, and fined therefor by Judge Phelps, an additional fine being imposed for contempt of court. It is in three parts—a letter from Governor Bates, stating the facts and offering the commonwealth's regrets for their occurrence, but coupled with the suggestion that the federal government take suitable action to ensure the safety of Massachusetts citizens from those who are not amenable to her laws; a statement of the facts by Judge Phelps, and a letter from Phelps to Gurney, making personal amends for the error in procedure.

No Statement From Durand

Lenox, Mass., Sept. 30.—British Ambassador Durand says he has not received from Washington the communication sent to the state department by Governor Bates concerning the Gurney case. He refused to make any statement or comment of the case in the absence of the correspondence. Judge Phelps is keeping within doors to avoid the corps of photographers and interviewers.

Endeavorers Show Great Growth

Haverhill, Mass., Sept. 30.—The biennial convention of the Massachusetts State Christian Endeavor Society was brought to a close last night with a mass meeting. The report of Secretary Robinson showed that there are 894 societies in the state with an active membership of 39,336, and a total membership of over 50,000, being a gain of 39 societies and 1000 members during the year. The total gifts for the year amounted to $22,343.80.

Marx Showed Soft Spot

New London, Conn., Sept. 30.—For the first time since the opening of the trial for murder of Joseph Pavoll at Colchester Gershon Marx showed signs of weakness yesterday when Dr. Gandy described in minute details his examination of the body of his alleged victim. Tears trickled down the face of the prisoner and he whined audibly. After the witness had left the stand, however, Marx again assumed his customary stolid air.

Coroner Thinks Murder Was Done

New Haven, Sept. 30.—A track repairer came across the body of a man in a lot on the outskirts of this city, covered by a few inches of mud. Coroner Mix stated that the body had been in the ground six or eight months and on account of the advanced stage of decomposition there was no chance to identify the features. The remains were ordered.

Worried Over Love and Finances

Hartford, Sept. 30.—Dr. Friend A. Phelps, a dentist, shot and killed himself in a room he had just hired here. He left a letter indicating that he was despondent over a love affair and his financial condition. He had been in failing health, due chiefly to nervous prostration. He was 32 years old and unmarried.

Followed Daughter to Death

Southbridge, Mass., Sept. 30.—Miss Jennie E. Boyd, 44 years old, died after an illness of about 15 minutes from heart disease. Her father, Jonathan V. Boyd, 78 years old, was stricken with grief, and was found dead in his bed nine hours after the death of his daughter.

Chance For Goodnow to Explain

Washington, Sept. 30.—Consul General Goodnow, at Shanghai, has been cabled permission to return home immediately to answer charges preferred against him of maladministration of the affairs in his office. The effect of the decision to allow Goodnow to be heard personally will be to postpone final action in this case for some time.

Railway Furnishes an Issue

Ottawa, Sept. 30.—Parliament was dissolved last evening. The general election takes place on Nov. 3. The leading issue will probably be the trans-Continental railway, which has received favorable legislation from the Laurier government.

What are Humors?

They are vitiated or morbid fluids coursing the veins and affecting the tissues. They are commonly due to defective digestion but are sometimes inherited.

How do they manifest themselves?

In many forms of cutaneous eruption, salt rheum or eczema, pimples and boils, and in weakness, languor, general debility.

How are they expelled? By

Hood's Sarsaparilla

which also builds up the system that has suffered from them.

It is the best medicine for all humors

CIGAR STAMP CASE

Controversy Settled by President and Secretary Shaw

IMPORTERS' TRADEMARK

It Must Be Placed on Bottom of Cigar Boxes Hereafter, Instead of the Top--Not the Governments Business to Advertise

Washington, Sept. 30.—The secretary of the treasury has issued a statement in the imported cigar stamp matter in which he permits the order made by Assistant Secretary Armstrong to stand, so far as it relates to reducing the size of the stamp and to attaching it in a less conspicuous place on the box. He reverses the order wherein it required the stamp to be of the same color as the internal revenue stamp and it will be placed on the bottom of the box instead of the top, but at the end where it now appears opposite the internal revenue stamp.

Secretary Shaw had been kept advised of the progress of proceedings with reference to the customs stamp case and copies of papers filed in the case had been from time to time forwarded to him. After the hearing before the acting secretary last Saturday, Mr. Taylor made a concise summary of the arguments for the consideration of the secretary, who took up the matter on his return yesterday and, after an interview with the president, made a decision. In his statement, the secretary said:

"The testimony establishes the fact that the present stamp is used as a trademark by the cigar importers; that this trademark is valuable to them and confers an advantage upon them as against the manufacturers of cigars in the United States; and that cigars are, in effect, the only commodity imported into the United States that receives the benefit of such a trademark. In view of the fact that this government stamp, in its present form, doubtedly gives a pecuniary adv to those using it, it seems t order already issued by the is, in its essence, proper

"The government's collect the revenue, far as possible ag not governm furn trade- ds. This tec facturer from a cu as an ad- ver the im- porter stamp of a dis seen by the purchase examination."

The secretary has new plates be prepared the stamps, and for placing the boxes of imported cigars.

It had been suggested that the ject might properly be referred to Congress, on the theory that, prescribes the taxes, internal toms, it should prescribe the their representation, where this matter so seriously in dispute a on which such large commercial advantages depend. This plan was abandoned. The president's opponents would have charged cowardice, while the parties in interest would have regarded this as merely an excuse for postponement until after election.

Each side, singularly enough, regarded itself in possession of the field, and viewed delay as an affront. The so-called trust regarded the long established practice of the department, with the conspicuous pink stamp, as a vested right, the very discussion of which the trust resented as an invasion of its preserves. The independent manufacturers, on the other hand, regarded the matter as already settled by Acting Secretary Armstrong's orders. They resented the rehearing last Saturday, and all further proposals of delay, as an attempt to interfere with an advantage which they had already secured.

Lull In War News Continues

London, Sept. 30.—There continues a dearth of news from the armies in the far east. Reports from Russian sources tell of terrible ravages by disease in the Japanese armies. In St. Petersburg it seems to be the expectation that Kuropatkin will not make a stubborn fight for the possession of Mukden. Another stroke of ill-fortune has befallen the Russian navy in an accident to the cruiser Oleg.

To Consider Hearst's Complaint

Washington, Sept. 30.—Further hearing in the case of W. R. Hearst of New York against the coal-carrying roads in the anthracite regions of Pennsylvania will begin before the interstate commerce commission at Chicago Oct. 11.

Striking Sailors to Return

Marseilles, Sept. 30.—The Trans-Atlantic company having agreed to make certain concessions, the striking sailors have decided to resume work. There is as yet no prospect of the dockers resuming.

Another Alleged Lyncher Free

Huntsville, Ala., Sept. 30.—The jury in the case of George Frame, charged with murder, returned a verdict of not guilty. Frame is the fourth alleged lyncher of the name Maples, to be acquitted.

SEEKING HARMONY

Parker's Efforts Appear to Be Meeting With Success

VISITS FROM "HEAVY" MEN

Truce Between Gorman and Raynor of Maryland--Supporters of Bryan Being Gathered Into the Judge's Fold

New York, Sept. 30.—Indicative of an effort on the part of Judge Parker to unite all factions and bring together individuals whose personal differences might interfere with harmonious work for the national ticket, his callers during the three days of his present trip to New York have included representatives of every wing of the Democratic party.

In this connection conspicuous among those who visited the candidate yesterday were Dr. J. H. Girdner, who has been the host of W. J. Bryan whenever he came to New York, and Alexander C. Troup of New Haven, who served as chairman of the Connecticut state committee and conducted an enthusiastic campaign for Bryan four years ago. Others prominent in Connecticut Democracy have called on Judge Parker.

The incident that has created the most notable comment was the meeting between Senators Gorman and Isador Rayner of Maryland, accompanied by an announcement from their close political associates that whatever differences heretofore existing between the Maryland leaders have been dissipated, at least so far as the present campaign is concerned. Former Representative Cable of Illinois, who called on the Judge, is another whose coming is said to mean a unit of effort from opposing organizations of the Illinois Democracy.

The candidate has made many acquaintances on this visit to New York. Much of his time has been taken up by conferences with Chairman Taggart, Senator Gorman, William F. Sheehan, Delancey Nicoll, August Belmont and others attached to the national headquarters, but he has had the opportunity as well to see scores of leading Democrats who came to New York for the sole purpose of meeting him.

Garvin Again Nominated

Providence, Sept. 30.—The Democrats of Rhode Island, in state convention, nominated a state ticket, chose presidential electors and then, separating into district conventions, named candidates for congress. The men selected for state officers are: Governor, L. F. C. Garvin; lieutenant governor, Adelard Archambault; secretary of state, J. R. Keenan; attorney general, G. T. Brown; treasurer, Edmund Walker. D. L. D. Granger was renominated for congress in the First district and Franklin P. Owen in the Second district. The platform endorsed the national platform adopted at St. Louis and pledged support to the national candidates, Parker and Davis.

Strife In Delaware

Wilmington, Del., Sept. 30.—The warring factions of the Republican party in Delaware made a vain effort to effect a compromise on a state ticket, both the Dupont, or regular Republicans, and the Addicks, or union Republicans, having held their conventions and nominated separate tickets, with the exception of presidential electors, which are the same. The hitch is over the choice of a candidate for governor, each faction insisting that it shall have the naming of the candidate.

Party Stands on Its Record

Missoula, Mont., Sept. 30.—With a stop of an hour at this point, Senator Fairbanks concluded his four days' speaking tour of Montana. Senator Fairbanks made an argument for the retention of the Republican party in power, saying that it had shown its capacity by the record already made, and urging that this record is the best guarantee for the future.

Odell Remains at the Head

New York, Sept. 30.—The authoritative statement is made that Governor Odell will not resign as governor or retire from the chairmanship of the Republican state committee of New York. Odell suggested to some of the Republican leaders that if he was unsatisfactory to the party he would retire, but the suggestion received no serious encouragement.

New England For Roosevelt

New York, Sept. 30.—Senator Aldrich of Rhode Island came to New York last evening to talk with the Republican national committee members about the campaign. Aldrich gave assurances that the electoral votes of New England would be cast for the Republican ticket.

City Officials In Disgrace

Buffalo, Sept. 30.—Mayor Knight has suspended from office Aldermen J. T. Harp, Orrin F. Pierce and Henry Moest, three of the seven men who were indicted as a result of the investigation into alleged municipal corruption.

Sample of July Weather

Pittsburg, Sept. 30.—A heat wave struck this city yesterday, sending the thermometer up from 69 degrees at midnight to 87 at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. A heavy rainstorm at 8 o'clock brought relief.

Congo Natives In Slavery

New York, Sept. 30.—Secretary Morel of the Congo Reform association has arrived in New York from Europe. He brings a memorial to President Roosevelt urging an international movement to change conditions in the Congo Free State. He says that for many years past gross outrages have been perpetrated upon the natives of the Congo by the Congo government. The whole system is virtually legalized outrage, and the whole people are practically enslaved.

Frosty Reception of New Play

London, Sept. 30.—Mrs. James Brown Potter opened her season under her own management at the Savoy theatre last night with a four act romantic play, "The Golden Light," by George Daring, a pen name which is understood to be that of her sister. The play was so poor that after many expressions of ridicule from the audience the curtain finally descended amidst chilling silence.

Primate Visits New York Slums

New York, Sept. 30.—The Archbishop of Canterbury, accompanied by Booker T. Washington, made a tour or inspection through the best and worst sections of the East Side, including the thickly packed barracks on Mulberry street and the tenements in the neighborhood of Mulberry Bend. The long rows of model flats along First avenue were also visited.

Postmaster General Laid Up

Washington, Sept. 30.—Postmaster General Payne is seriously ill. Marked symptoms of heart trouble have developed and his condition has become so serious as to cause grave concern. He returned recently from a trip in the west and appeared to be feeling much improved. He became very ill Wednesday night and has been confined to his bed ever since.

Speed Requirements Waived

Washington, Sept. 30.—The navy department has accepted the protected cruiser Des Moines, now attached to the European squadron. This vessel was built in a Massachusetts yard and fell short of meeting the complete contract requirements in the matter of speed.

Labor Trouble Settled

Montreal, Sept. 30.—The difficulty between the Canadian Pacific company and the car men employed on the system, which led to negotiations with a committee of the men in this city, has been satisfactorily settled.

Advance In Lake Seamen's Wages

Cleveland, Sept. 30.—The wages of all the seamen employed on the Great Lakes, numbering upwards of 10,000, will be advanced from 10 to 25 percent Oct. 1, in accordance with an agreement reached last spring.

NEWS IN BRIEF

The anniversary of the death of Emil Zola, who died Sept. 29, 1903, was commemorated by a large party of authors and artists visiting his former home at Medan, where addresses were delivered in his honor.

The report that the commissariat department's stores at Lisbon were destroyed by fire, involving the loss of $30,000,000, is incorrect. Forage storehouses were burned, involving slight loss.

Rusty.

A little three-year-old miss, while her mother was trying to get her to sleep, became interested in a peculiar noise and asked what it was.

"A cricket, dear," replied the mother.

"Well," remarked the little lady, "he ought to get himself oiled."—Young People's Paper.

The Phelps-Gurney Muddle

Boston, Sept. 30.—Governor Bates has made public the text of the communication forwarded by him to the state department at Washington, formulating the attitude of Massachusetts in the case of Hugh Gurney, third secretary of the British embassy, who was arrested for overspeeding his automobile in Stockbridge, and fined therefor by Judge Phelps, an additional fine being imposed for contempt of court. It is in three parts—a letter from Governor Bates, stating the facts and offering the commonwealth's regrets for their occurrence, but coupled with the suggestion that the federal government take suitable action to ensure the safety of Massachusetts citizens from those who are not amenable to her laws; a statement of the facts by Judge Phelps, and a letter from Phelps to Gurney, making personal amends for the error in procedure.

No Statement From Durand

Lenox, Mass., Sept. 30.—British Ambassador Durand says he has not received from Washington the communication sent to the state department by Governor Bates concerning the Gurney case. He refused to make any statement or comment of the case in the absence of the correspondence. Judge Phelps is keeping within doors to avoid the corps of photographers and interviewers.

Endeavorers Show Great Growth

Haverhill, Mass., Sept. 30.—The biennial convention of the Massachusetts State Christian Endeavor Society was brought to a close last night with a mass meeting. The report of Secretary Robinson showed that there are 894 societies in the state with an active membership of 39,336, and a total membership of over 50,000, being a gain of 39 societies and 1000 members during the year. The total gifts for the year amounted to $22,343.80.

Marx Showed Soft Spot

New London, Conn., Sept. 30.—For the first time since the opening of the trial for murder of Joseph Pavoll at Colchester Gershon Marx showed signs of weakness yesterday when Dr. Gandy described in minute details his examination of the body of his alleged victim. Tears trickled down the face of the prisoner and he whined audibly. After the witness had left the stand, however, Marx again assumed his customary stolid air.

Coroner Thinks Murder Was Done

New Haven, Sept. 30.—A track repairer came across the body of a man in a lot on the outskirts of this city, covered by a few inches of mud. Coroner Mix stated that the body had been in the ground six or eight months and on account of the advanced stage of decomposition there was no chance to identify the features. The coroner is of the opinion that the man was murdered.

Worried Over Love and Finances

Hartford, Sept. 30.—Dr. Friend A. Phelps, a dentist, shot and killed himself in a room he had just hired here. He left a letter indicating that he was despondent over a love affair and his financial condition. He had been in failing health, due chiefly to nervous prostration. He was 32 years old and unmarried.

Followed Daughter to Death

Southbridge, Mass., Sept. 30.—Miss Jennie E. Boyd, 44 years old, died after an illness of about 15 minutes from heart disease. Her father, Jonathan V. Boyd, 78 years old, was stricken with grief, and was found dead in his bed nine hours after the death of his daughter.

Chance For Goodnow to Explain

Washington, Sept. 30.—Consul General Goodnow, at Shanghai, has been cabled permission to return home immediately to answer charges preferred against him of maladministration of the affairs in his office. The effect of the decision to allow Goodnow to be heard personally will be to postpone final action in this case for some time.

Railway Furnishes an Issue

Ottawa, Sept. 30.—Parliament was dissolved last evening. The general election takes place on Nov. 3. The leading issue will probably be the trans-Continental railway, which has received favorable legislation from the Laurier government.

What are Humors?
They are vitiated or morbid fluids coursing the veins and affecting the tissues. They are commonly due to defective digestion but are sometimes inherited.
How do they manifest themselves?
In many forms of cutaneous eruption, salt rheum or eczema, pimples and boils, and in weakness, languor, general debility.
How are they expelled? By
Hood's Sarsaparilla
which also builds up the system that has suffered from them.
It is the best medicine for all humors

CIGAR STAMP CASE

Controversy Settled by President and Secretary Shaw

IMPORTERS' TRADEMARK

It Must Be Placed on Bottom of Cigar Boxes Hereafter, Instead of the Top--Not the Governments Business to Advertise

Washington, Sept. 30.—The secretary of the treasury has issued a statement in the imported cigar stamp matter in which he permits the order made by Assistant Secretary Armstrong to stand, so far as it relates to reducing the size of the stamp and to attaching it in a less conspicuous place on the box. He reverses the order whereby it required the stamp to be of the same color as the internal revenue stamp and it will be placed on the bottom of the box instead of the top, but at the end where it now appears opposite the internal revenue stamp.

Secretary Shaw had been kept advised of the progress of proceedings with reference to the customs stamp case and copies of papers filed in the case had been from time to time forwarded to him. After the hearing before the acting secretary last Saturday, Mr. Taylor made a concise summary of the arguments for the consideration of the secretary, who took up the matter on his return yesterday and, after an interview with the president, made a decision. In his statement, the secretary said:

"The testimony establishes the fact that the present stamp is used as a trademark by the cigar importers; that this trademark is valuable to them and confers an advantage upon them as against the manufacturers of cigars in the United States; and that cigars are, in effect, the only commodity imported into the United States that receives the benefit of such a trademark. In view of the fact that this government stamp, in its present form, doubtedly gives a pecuniary adv to those using it, it seems t order already issued by the is, in its essence, proper

"The government's collect the revenue, far as possible agr not governm furnish trade- ds. This o business or business. cision will pro- facturer from a as an ad- the im- stamp of a dist seen by the purchase examination."

The secretary has new plates be prepared the stamps, and for placing the boxes of imported cigars.

It had been suggested that the ject might properly be referred to Congress, on the theory that, prescribes the taxes, internal toms, it should prescribe the their representation, where this matter so seriously in dispute a on which such large commercial advantages depend. This plan was abandoned. The president's opponents would have charged cowardice, while the parties in interest would have regarded this as merely an excuse for postponement until after election.

Each side, singularly enough, regarded itself in possession of the field, and viewed delay as an affront. The so-called trust regarded the long established practice of the department, with the conspicuous pink stamp, as a vested right, the very discussion of which the trust resented as an invasion of its preserves. The independent manufacturers, on the other hand, regarded the matter as already settled by Acting Secretary Armstrong's orders. They resented the rehearing last Saturday, and all further proposals of delay, as an attempt to interfere with an advantage which they had already secured.

Lull In War News Continues

London, Sept. 30.—There continues a dearth of news from the armies in the far east. Reports from Russian sources tell of terrible ravages by disease in the Japanese armies. In St. Petersburg it seems to be the expectation that Kuropatkin will not make a stubborn fight for the possession of Mukden. Another stroke of ill-fortune has befallen the Russian navy in an accident to the cruiser Oleg.

To Consider Hearst's Complaint

Washington, Sept. 30.—Further hearing in the case of W. R. Hearst of New York against the coal-carrying roads in the anthracite regions of Pennsylvania will begin before the interstate commerce commission at Chicago Oct. 11.

Striking Sailors to Return

Marseilles, Sept. 30.—The Trans-Atlantic company having agreed to make certain concessions, the striking sailors have decided to resume work. There is as yet no prospect of the dockers resuming.

Another Alleged Lyncher Free

Huntsville, Ala., Sept. 30.—The jury in the case of George Frame, charged with murder, returned a verdict of not guilty. Frame is the fourth alleged lyncher of the name Maples, to be acquitted.

NOTES [illegible] TOWN.

[illegible] for [illegible]

[illegible]en C. Barnes of Wollaston is [illegible]ng and observing at the Massa[illegible]usetts Fields school.

Mr. Minnehan and family of Quincy are moving into the new house on South street opposite Belmont avenue.

George Wright of the Wollaston Golf club qualified Thursday in the open tournament at Woodland but was defeated in the first round of match play.

Mr. and Mrs. George Maybury of North Weymouth are making their home, for the present, with Mrs. Maybury's father, James A. Hayden of South street.

Rev. Thomas S. Barbour, D. D., will give an address Sunday evening at the Wollaston Baptist church on the progress of religion in European countries.

One hundred and five years ago today the town of Quincy by vote extended thanks to John Adams, then President of the United States, for a clock to be placed in the First church.

George E. Brown, the salutatorian of the Quincy High school, class of 1904, who was ill in June and unable to take part in the exercises, has recently taken the examinations for Harvard and been admitted with honor.

Golf Championship.

Several Wollaston players are entered in the State Golf tournament at Manchester next week: In the preliminaries, L. O. Crane will play A. Codman of Brookline, and F. I. Robbins will play F. W. Eddy of Newton. In the first round, R. R. Freeman will play F. W. Broadhead of Salem, C. T. Crocker, Jr., will play T. M. Cook of Essex, and B. L. Pratt will play L. J. Bigelow of Lawrence.

—An idea of the importance of the sardine industry may be had when the exports to the United States alone are considered. During the fiscal year ending June 30, 1902, which was a good year, the declared value of these exports from Bordeaux was $437,225; from Nantes and its agencies, $541,168. This year these exports will probably be exceeded.

—The bamboo somtimes grows two feet in twenty-four hours. There are thirty varieties of this tree. The smallest is only six inches in height and the largest 150 feet.

A HANDSOME CHECK.

Among the Wedding Gifts of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Morse. Jr.

At their future home, Merrymount road, were united in marriage on Thursday evening, Miss Myra Harlow Spear, daughter of Mr. Elihu T. Spear of Wollaston, and Mr. Joseph Copeland Morse, Jr., eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Copeland Morse of Goffe street.

The ceremony was solemnized at seven o'clock by Rev. D. M. Wilson of Northfield, formerly pastor of First church, assisted by Rev. Edwin N. Hardy of Bethany church. Only the immediate families were present at the ceremony.

A reception to relatives and intimate friends was held from eight until ten. The bridal couple were assisted in receiving by their parents. The ushers were Mr. George D. Follett, Mr. Walter S. McKenzie and the groom's brother, Mr. Edwin M. Morse.

Miss Spear was a most charming bride in her gown of ivory crepe de chene, trimmed with duchesse lace. She carried a bouquet of bride roses.

Roses, cut flowers, palms and asparagus vine were used profusely to decorate the house. A wedding supper was served and there was a display of beautiful gifts, among them a substantial check from the groom's father.

Mr. Morse is in business with his father in Boston, and the bride until recently was connected with the water department at City Hall, where she was very popular. The young people have the best wishes of a host of friends.

At ten o'clock the young people left in a gaily decorated hack, amid a shower of confetti, old shoes and good wishes. On their return from their wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Morse will reside at No. 18 Merrymount road, where they will receive their friends after December first.

PETITION FILED.

For Recount of All Votes for Representatives.

Edward J. Sandberg filed petitions with the Registrars of Voters on Thursday, asking for a recount of the votes cast for representatives at the recent caucus. The Registrars will meet Saturday night to consider the petitions.

The Brockton Fair.

The many smaller fairs through the country are simply appetizers that whet the appetite for the big Brockson Fair that opens its gates and extends the glad hand to the waiting public on Oct. 4, 5, 6 and 7. It is useless to say that it will be bigger and better than ever this year, for everyone knows it. Purses to the amount of $10,100 are offered for the track events, and the speediest of trotters and pacers will compete. Running races will also be a feature. The horse show will include many new features. On Oct. 7 a real old-time Firemen's muster will be held for prizes aggregating $1050. The muster is held in connection with all other events and nothing is withdrawn from the regular program to make room for it. The Bockton Fair is noted for its successful balloon ascentsons; this year it will have some balloon novelties that must be seen to be appreciated. Martland's band, the band that has delighted thousands at Nantasket for the past three seasons with all its famous soloists, Clarke's Providence Band, Milo Burke's Band will fill the ears of patrons with harmony and their souls with contentment. A large campus and club house for the comfort of automobile patrons is a new feature. If there is anything new under the sun that you have not seen, you will be pretty sure to see it at this fair. Not a "Midway" this year, but a "Pike," and a long, merry one.

Found Unconscious

A. D. Robbins, the owner of the yacht Harolde, had a close call on Thursday afternoon. He came out from Boston on the 1.28 train and repaired to his mooring near the Wollaston clubhouse.

Later it was noticed that something was wrong aboard the yacht, and investigation found Mr. Robbins unconscious on the floor.

Probably he was struck by the main boom. It was several hours before he recovered consciousness. Otherwise he was not seriously injured.

J. N. KELLY DEAD.

A Granite Manufacturer Once Prominent in Union Ranks.

John N. Kelley, a well known granite manufacturer died at his home on Centre street this morning after a lingering illness, aged 47 years.

Mr. Kelley learned the stone cutter's trade when a young man and followed that trade for many years. While working at his trade he took an active interest in the Granite Cutters' union, and for a long time was its walking delegate. Later he associated himself with the late John C. Scott in the granite manufactering business under the name of the Manet Granite Co.

He was a member of Mt. Wollaston lodge of Odd Fellows and Maple Lodge, Knights and Ladies of Honor, and both orders will attend the funeral. He leaves a widow.

Presentation.

David J. Barry, Jr., one of the conductors on the East Weymouth line, who was married Wednesday, gave a reception to his fellow employees Thursday evening at Wilson's hall. The evening was passed in a pleasant manner, speeches, music and refreshments occuping the time. When Dave starts in housekeeping a handsome sideboard, the gift of fellow employees will occupy a prominent place in his dining room.

$100 Reward, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

INFLAMMABLE AIR.

The Product Dr. Hales Distilled From Coal In 1726.

In the early days of the last century Sir Walter Scott, writing from London to a friend in Edinburgh, said, "There is a fool here who is trying to light the city with smoke." Sir Walter's "smoke" was not a human invention. Accumulations of gas from coal beds found their way to the surface and, being highly inflammable, attracted the attention of men who erected altars over them, and their perpetual fires were dedicated to the gods. For thousands of years the Chinese have speculated upon the meaning of the natural gas which has escaped abundantly from the earth in several provinces. In 1726 Dr. Hales informed chemists that by distilling a few grains of coal he had obtained an equal number of cubic inches of "inflammable air" and that if attempted on a large scale millions upon millions of cubic feet of that valuable substance could be made and conveyed unseen along the highways of the land and become the means for obtaining perpetual day. In 1813 Sir Walter's "smoke" was burned on Westminster bridge in London, and one year later the streets of St. Margarets, Westminster, enjoyed illumination from gas, it being the first parish contracting for such a luxury.

VIOLIN MOODS.

Little Things That Make an Instrument Lose Its Tone.

Some obscure but definite change takes place in the material of the body of a violin through the vibrations of the music produced, and it is very possible that some stages of this change are detrimental to the tone. The style of playing is said to influence the change, and rest checks it.

The maturing of a violin has been compared with the growth of a child who progressively increases in wisdom and stature, but has stages of weakness due to the irregular development of parts.

The tone of an instrument is also gravely influenced by the setting up of the movable parts, the sound post, the strings, the bridge and even the pegs.

Many instruments lose much of their power or sweetness if the sound post is altered a fractional amount from its best position and angle, if the bridge is inclined a little more or less or shifted or if the strings are not exactly suited to the violin. Some instruments prefer one pitch and others another, and all vary with the weather. In addition to this the best players have moods when they cannot play, and the instrument is often blamed for these.

CROSSING THE BAR.

Almost All Deaths Are Practically Without Physical Pain.

Death nearly always ensues from cessation of the heart's action, whatever it may be that causes it to stop. Almost the only exception to this rule is in the case of poisoning with prussic acid, where the whole body becomes dead before the heart ceases to beat.

It is scientifically certain that almost all deaths, even those that are seemingly most agonizing, are practically without pain. The fear of extinction may cause mental agitation amounting to pain while consciousness exists, but that is quite another thing. In death by burning pain ceases at an early stage by suffocation, while a man killed by a gunshot wound probably does not know that he has been hit, the action of the bullet being more rapid than the message to the brain announcing it. For this reason wounded men sometimes drop without knowing why.

In chest diseases pain is relieved by suffocation at the death moment, and in fevers the nervous system becomes depressed to such utter apathy as to induce quite a painless end.

He Could Write.

Edmond Rostand, the great French writer, was on one occasion the hero of an amusing episode. During a visit to a friend in the country M. Rostand was requested to accompany him to the mairie in order to register the friend's newborn infant. The adjunct of the mairie, a conscientious little man, booked the infant and then turned to M. Rostand as the first witness. "Your name, sir?" "Edmond Rostand." "Your vocation?" "Man of letters and member of the French academy." "Very well," replied the official. "You have to sign your name. Can you write? If not you may make a cross."

It Came Pretty Slow.

A young man once took a sack of corn to an old fashioned mill to have it ground into meal. The mill was fearfully slow, only a tiny stream of meal trickling out. At last the young man became impatient and complained to the miller. "Do you know," he said, "I could eat that meal faster than your old mill can grind it." "Yes," replied the miller, "but how long could you keep on eating it?" "Until I starved," was the conclusive answer of the young man.

Curious.

"There's one curious thing about discovering places," said Johnny. "Take Bermuda, for instance. It was discovered by a man named Bermudez. How he happened to stumble on a place with a name just like his beats me."

The Realization.

"Hear you've been speculating, old man. What did you realize?"

"I realized that I was a blamed fool," replied the other man sorely.—Cincinnati Tribune.

CHAPTER VII.

MISTRESS CATHERINE and I returned together to Drake Hill, she bearing herself with a sharp and anxious conciliation, and I with little to say in response and walking behind her, though she moved more and more slowly that I might gain her side.

We were not yet in sight of Drake Hill, but the morning smoke from the slave cabins had begun to thrust itself athwart the honeyed sweetness of blossoms and the salt freshness of the tidal river, as the homely ways of life will ever do athwart the beauty and inspiration of it, maybe to the making of its true harmony, when of a sudden we both stopped and listened. Mistress Catherine turned palely to me, and I dare say the thought of Indians was in her mind, though they had long been quiet; then her face relaxed and she smiled.

"'Tis the 1st day of May," said she. "And they are going to set up the maypole in Jarvis field."

This did they every May of late, because some of the governors and some of the people had kept to those prejudices against the May revelries which had existed before the Restoration and frowned upon the maypole set up in the Jamestown green as if it had been, as the Roundheads used to claim, the veritable heathen god Baal.

Jarvis field was a green tract, clear of trees, not far from us, and presently we met the merry company proceeding thither. First came a great rollicking posse of lads and lasses linked hand in hand, all crowned with flowers and bearing green and blossomy boughs over shoulder. And these were so swift with the wild spirit and jollity of the day that they must needs come in advance, even before the horses which dragged the maypole.

Maid Marion

Six of them there were, so bedecked with ribbons and green garlands that I marveled they could see the road and were not wild with fear. But they seemed to enter into the spirit of it all and stepped highly and daintily with proud archings of necks and tossings of green plumed heads, and behind them the maypole rasped and bumped and grated, the trunk of a mighty oak yet bristling with green, like the stubble of a shaggy beard of virility.

And after the maypole came surely the queerest company of morris dancers that ever the world saw, except those of which I have heard tell which danced in Herefordshire in the reign of King James, those being composed of ten men whose ages made up the sum of twelve hundred years. These, while not so ancient as that, were still of the oldest men to be come at who could move without crutches and whose estate was not of too much dignity for such sports.

And Maid Marion was the oldest and smallest of them all, riding her hobby horse, dressed in a yellow petticoat and a crimson stomacher, with a great wig of yellow flax hanging down under her gilt crown, and a painted mask to hide her white beard. And after Maid Marion came dancing, with stiff struts and gambols, old men as gayly attired as might be, with garlands of peach blossoms on their gray heads, bearing gadsticks of peeled willow boughs wound with cowslips and ringing bells and blowing horns with all their might. And after them trooped young men and maids, all flinging their heels aloft and waving with green and flowers and shouting and singing till it seemed the whole colony was up and mad.

Mistress Catherine and I stood well to one side to let them pass by, but when the morris dancers reached us and caught sight of Catherine in her green robes standing among the green bushes, above which her fair face looked, half with dismay, half with a quick leap of sympathy with the merriment—for there was in this girl a strange spirit of misrule beneath all her quiet, and I verily believe that, had she but let loose the leash in which she held herself, she would have joined those dancing and singing lasses and been outdone by none—there was a sudden halt; then, before I knew what was to happen, around her leaped a laughing score of them, shouting that here was the true Maid Marion, and that old John Lubberkin could now resign his post.

Then off the hobby horse they tumbled him, and the lads and lasses gathered around her, and the graybeards, standing aloof with some chagrin, would, I believe, in spite of me, since they outnumbered me vastly, have forced Catherine into that rude pageant as Maid Marion. But while I was thrusting them aside, holding myself before her as firmly as I might, there came a quick clatter of hoofs, and Mistress Mary had dashed alongside on Merry Roger. She scattered the merry revelers right and left, calling out to her sister to go homeward, with a laugh. "Fie on thee, Catherine!" she cried out. "If thou art abroad on a May morning dressed like the queen of it, what blame can there be to these good folk for giving thee thy queendom?"

Catherine did not move to go when the people drew away from her, but rather stood looking at them with that lurking fire in her eyes and a flush on her fair cheeks. Mistress Mary sat on her horse, curbing him with her little hand, and her golden curls floated around her like a cloud, for she had ridden forth without her hood on hearing the sound of the horns and bells, eager to see the show like any child, and the merrymakers stared at her, grinning with uncouth delight and never any resentment.

There was that in Mary Cavendish's look when she chose to have it so that could, I verily believe, have swayed an army, so full of utter good will and loving kindness it was, and, more than that, of such confidence in theirs in return that it would have taken not only knaves, but knaves with no conceit of themselves, to have foreswoen her good opinion of them. Suddenly there rose a great shout and such a volley of cheering and hallooing as can come only from English throats.

A tall lad cast a great wreath over Mistress Mary's own head and cried out with a shout that here, here was Maid Marion. And scores of voices echoed his with "Maid Marion, Marion!" And then, to my great astonishment and dismay, for a man is with no enemy so much at a loss as with a laughing one, since it wrongs his own bravery to meet smiles with blows, they gave forth that I was Robin Hood; that the convict tutor, Harry Wingfield, was Robin Hood!

I felt myself white with wrath then and was for blindly wrestling with a great fellow who was among the foremost, shaking with mirth, an oak wreath over his red curls making him look like a satyr, when Mistress Mary rode between us. "Back, Master Wingfield," said she. "I pray thee, stand back." Then she looked at the folk, all smiles and ready understanding of them, until they hurrahed again and rang their bells and blew their horns, and she looked like a blossom tossed on the wave of pandemonium.

I had my hand on her bridle rein, ready to do my best should any rudeness be offered her, when suddenly she raised her hand and made a motion, and to my utter astonishment the brawling throng, save for some on the outskirts, which quieted presently, became still. Then Mistress Mary's voice arose clear and sweet, with a childish note of innocence in it:

"Good people," said she, "fain would I be your Maid Marion, and fain would I be your queen of May if you would hold with me this kingdom of Virginia against tyrants and oppressors."

I question if a dozen there grasped her meaning, but, after a second's gaping stare, such a shout went up that it seemed to make the marshes quiver. I know not what mad scheme was in the maid's head, but I verily believe that throng would have followed her wherever she led, and the tobacco plants might have been that morning cut had she so willed.
